2013

100 Years of Clemson Architecture: Southern Roots + Global Reach

Peter L. Laurence

Follow this and additional works at: http://tigerprints.clemson.edu/cudp_environment

Recommended Citation

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the Clemson University Digital Press at TigerPrints. It has been accepted for inclusion in Environmental Studies by an authorized administrator of TigerPrints. For more information, please contact awesole@clemson.edu.
Louis Kahn and Gayland B. first group of students occupied the Villa, thousands more have expanded their Clemson roots through chair José Cabán ('67) established the school's third urban center in Barcelona. Forty years since the school's “Fluid Campus.”

Born in Chattanooga, Tenn., Harlan McClure (1916-2001) had Southern roots and a broad intellectual reach: The building's building with global development of degree programs and faculty hires during Lee's tenure, which spanned from 1896. Beaux-Arts training and awareness of national developments in architectural education informed the Anderson, S.C., he was an engineering graduate of Clemson's first class of 1896. However, studies building construction and allied subjects.” Like this mission, Lee had Southern roots: Born in nearby. Already looking beyond state borders, Rudolph Lee (1874-1959) established architectural education. Since its first year of instruction in 1913, architectural education at American architect Richard Morris Hunt, founder of AIA, is trained Polytechnic education and École des Beaux-Arts 1889 Modern Architecture.