OUR MOTHERS AND FATHERS
Editor's Foreword

In a school so large, with activities so varied, and with interests so diversified, it is impossible to use a theme that would embody in itself the true spirit of such a cosmopolitan group of individuals. Of course by resorting to the tried and true—but as is so often the case, trite—means, this end can be obtained; but then, what has our reader gained?

We have chosen as our theme "The History of Architecture"; not because we wish to place the course of Architecture above the others offered at this institution, but feeling the fact that buildings, their design, and their construction play such an active part in the normal life of this age, makes a study of their trend stand out as one which adequately portrays the spirit of progress which our Alma Mater is forever desirous of instilling into her foster-sons.

It is evident that a theme so large as is the one of our selection cannot be presented in its entirety within such limited space. Because of this fact we confine ourselves to presenting a mere outline of Architectural History.

In phases other than our current theme, with only minor changes, we have let precedent be our guide. Since an accurate picture of Clemson College and her activities as we have known them is the ultimate aim of our publication, we have earnestly tried to make representativeness the primary requisite for both our selection and our presentation of material.
Alma Mater

Where the Blue Ridge yawns its greatness,
Where the Tigers play;
Here the sons of dear old Clemson
Reign supreme always.

CHORUS

Dear old Clemson, we will triumph,
And with all our might,
That the Tiger's roar may echo
O'er the mountain height.

We will dream of greater conquests
For our past is grand,
And her sons have fought and conquered
Every foreign land.

Where the mountains smile in grandeur
O'er the hill and dale,
Here the Tiger's lair is nestling
Swept by storm and gale.

We are brothers strong in manhood,
For we work and strive;
And our Alma Mater reigneth
Ever in our lives.

Cadet Colonel J. W. Newman
Cadet Lieutenant-Colonel F. W. Lee
ATTARED in a uniform of cadet gray, disciplined by regulations which are prescribed by the War Department of the United States Government, quartered in military barracks, and studying the courses and training in Military Science and Tactics that are according to the provisions for the department of the United States Army which is described as the Reserve Officers Training Corps, the student at Clemson Agricultural and Mechanical College lives in an environment that is militaristic; not in its opposition to peace, but in its radiation of a strict discipline, which requires gentlemanly conduct, neatness in dress, and habits of punctuality, precision, and regularity.

Immediately upon our matriculation here, the mass of about four hundred members of our class were distributed throughout the twelve companies, which comprise a regiment of three battalions. We were at that time in a stage similar to that of the Regular Army "rooky," entering upon a period of assimilation.

Our first impression of military discipline was that it was one of those necessary evils which one must endure if one wished to remain at Clemson. Consequently, we immediately assumed an attitude of non-conformity and belligerence toward this unwelcomed phase of college life.
We had the idea that the authorities were trying to make soldiers of us, and we stubbornly refused to be made soldiers. Our independent natures rebelled at the very thought of being compelled to do something—for we were freshmen, merely freshmen, having the typical freshman viewpoint.

Time passed. We became Sophomores. The Military aspect was not quite so distasteful to us then. We had acquired a better understanding of the significance of the training and discipline, reluctantly admitting the possibility of its having some value. At this stage we had, at least, succeeded in adapting ourselves to the various requirements and regulations. The fact that we found promotion and privilege to be theoretically based on merit alone caused within us a true spirit of democracy. We were members of a large group of which the possibilities of both the group and its components were dependent upon the ever varying diligence of its individual members.

It was during our Junior and Senior years that the true significance of military life unfolded itself to us. Now, just as we stand on the threshold of the life which we shall find when we become full-fledged members of this Twentieth Century Civilization, we cannot help acknowledging the fact that the training and discipline which we have received at the hands of the Military Department of this college has had a direct and beneficial bearing on both the mental and physical development which we have accomplished during the past four years, despite the fact that many of us have previously seen such training as fundamentally pointless drudgery. The hours of drill and theoretic study and even the six weeks of regular army life at Fort McClellan appear to us now as well-warranted pursuits of invaluable experience and training. The uniform of cadet gray, the barracks life, the strict discipline, and the military phase of our Clemson career in general have all made a definite contribution which we now see as an advantage.

Athletic History

WHEN the Class of 1931 came to Clemson to be initiated into the order of Tigerdom, there came with us an entirely new staff of athletic coaches and supervisors. James G. Gee re-assumed the duties of an active Bengal in the capacity of Director of Clemson Athletics. Josh Cody, who had already established for himself an enviable record as a coach at Vanderbilt University, took up the duties of Head Coach. As assistants in the coaching department, came Jules Carson, who is a former Clemson graduate, and "Dizzy" McLeod, who later returned to Furman to accept a coaching position there. Later during our stay at Clemson, Joe Guyon and "Red" Sanders were employed as assistants to Josh Cody, who, in the meantime, had earned the familiar title of "The Big Man."

The accomplishments of Clemson athletic teams under the coaching regime, which period coincides with our stay at Clemson, are little less than miraculous, when we take into consideration the fact that athletics were at the lowest possible ebb when Coach Cody and his aides took charge. Since then, under his capable tutelage, there has been a complete and rapid rejuvenation of all forms of athletics. An increase in the scope of sports has been concurrent with an impressive rise in Clemson's prestige both in State and Southern Conference circles.

The Clemson football team having succeeded in passing the last two seasons with no defeats within the state, the eyes of grid enthusiasts are now turned toward greater laurels in the more extensive field of the Southern Conference. The successes of the other teams have caused a similar desire for larger achievements. New phases of intercollegiate competition have been introduced, the most popular of these being boxing.

It is with unfeigned pride and pleasure that we review the athletic attainments of Clemson during these past four years. We are even slightly inclined to be boastful about our various triumphs, and, when our record is taken into consideration, no one can deny that we have every justification for being that way. Two state football championships in consecutive years; two state baseball championships; two state track championships and one state championship in basket-ball. Does not such a record as that give conclusive proof of our athletic eminence?

Next fall, Cody, Gee, Carson, Guyon, and Sanders will have gone into new employment. We offer them our gratitude for the athletic accomplishments Clemson has enjoyed while we were here and send with them our wishes for similar success in their future work. Coach Jess Neely comes to Clemson as successor to the staff that came and left with us. The Cody-et-al regime has set a new, high plane for all of Clemson's athletic participation. It is our sincerest hope and belief that the new athletic staff will start where their predecessors stopped and continue UPWARD.
FOOTBALL
At the beginning of the 1930 football season, Clemson's football strength was somewhat of an unknown quantity. Through the inroads of graduation eleven letter men were lost, and the Tigers faced a season which was problematical to a high degree. Coach Cody, however, with his usual unerring precision, replaced his depleted ranks with new material and coasted smoothly through the first six games of the schedule without a defeat. From a disorganized and heterogenous array of candidates he perfected a machine that won the second consecutive state championship for Clemson and established itself as a permanent menace in Southern Conference competition.

Gridiron hostilities for the 1930 season were initiated at Clemson ten days after the opening of school, when the Bengals encountered P. C. on the rain-soaked turf of Riggs Field. Throughout the entire contest the supremacy of Cody's outfit was evident, the final score being 28 to 7 in Clemson's favor. The comparative ease with which the Tigers annexed this contest warranted the respect of future foes which were to be met on the Clemson schedule.

The Jungaleers further emphasized their offensive power on the succeeding week-end by administering a 32 to 0 setback to the ambitious Wofford Terriers at Clemson. The brilliant work of Maxey Welch and Mule Yarbrough were outstanding features of the game. The "Mule," in addition to throwing the Terrier backs for numerous losses, reinforced his bid for fame by recovering two blocked punts, each of which resulted in a touchdown for the Tigers.

The Citadel Bulldogs, who were met at the Pee Dee Fair in Florence, proved to be tartars to Cody's confident aggregation. Floyd, the Citadel coach, and Cody, both Vanderbilt men, used identical systems in this contest, and the result of their clashing was a bare 13 to 7 victory for Clemson. For a large part of the game the two teams were in a 7 to 7 deadlock, but, a determined drive by the Bengals in the last quarter resulted in the touchdown which later proved to be their margin of victory.

In their initial Conference game of the season, the Tigers matched claws with the stubborn Wolfpack from North Carolina State in Charlotte. The Pack was courageous and fought the more powerful Tiger on even terms for the greater part of the game. A bewildering forward passing attack on the part of Clemson proved to be the deciding factor, giving the Jungaleers a 27 to 0 victory in what, nevertheless, developed into one of the most thrilling struggles of the season. Despite the top-heavy score, the six thousand clamorous spectators who witnessed the fray departed with the inate satisfaction of having seen a mighty battle between two unyielding antagonists.

In the third appearance of Cody’s 1930 eleven on Riggs field, the opposition, such as it was, was furnished by the lowly Indians of Newberry College. The Redskins were completely outclassed in every department of the game, Clemson’s backs scoring almost at will. The tragedy ended thusly: Clemson 75, Newberry 0.

After having safely tucked away five successive games, Clemson’s 1930 edition of Bengal gridders again forged its way to supreme heights among the Nation’s leading teams by overwhelming the University of South Carolina Gamecocks by a score of 20 to 7. In the first few minutes of play, one of Billy Laval’s Birds, famous for his fleetness, slipped off tackle for the brilliant dash which netted Carolina’s only touchdown. From that moment until the close of the Classic of Palmetto football, the golden-clad Tigers maintained one of the most brilliant advantages ever known in the history of Carolina-Clemson games to most decisively defeat the Gamecocks for the fourth consecutive time during the administration of Josh Cody.

However, this record of six successive wins was destined to fall, for the following week Clemson met a severe defeat at the hands of the ever strong University of Tennessee Volunteers. Despite the fact that the Tigers never yielded without giving staunch opposition, the powerful Tennesseans were ever as superior as the score of 27 to 0 indicates.

Undismayed by their defeat at Knoxville, a vengeful Tiger emerged from an encounter with the Flying Squadron of the Virginia Military Institute a 32 to 0 victor. In this contest, the Codymen again showed the sustained drive and impenetrable defense that had been characteristic of all their play prior to the Tennessee game.
The power that controls human destinies, however, had another defeat registered on His roster for Clemson, for the Bengals were overwhelmingly humbled in an engagement with the Florida Alligators, drawing the small end of a 27 to 0 score. The results were largely due to the fact that an unavoidably sluggish Bengal outfit faced a team, ordinarily powerful and then fighting under an extra impetus which was the result of their having tasted defeat at its bitterest.

The final victory, the brilliance of which was only exceeded by the dogged determination which led to it, came as a crowning feature of a very successful season, when Clemson's 1930 Tiger football team clinched the undisputed State Championship by defeating the Furman Purple Hurricane by a score of 12 to 7. From the opening whistle of the game, it was clearly evident that the two teams were evenly matched and that victory for either would be the result of the possession of an extra amount of fight. Furman had one point lead on Clemson, and the game was nearly ended. The Bengals had made a long, strenuous drive and had been turned back just as they came in the shadow of the goal that meant victory.

Many of the large crowd of spectators felt that such a few last moments of play could not bring any change in the score. It seemed as if all must be over, when Frank Sowell received a Furman punt on his forty-yard line and dashed sixty yards for the touchdown that meant victory and an undisputed claim on the second successive State grid supremacy for Clemson. The decisive run was just as thrilling, just as sudden, and executed behind just as perfect interference as the last minute wonders of current "Talkies."

DISRUPTED on two occasions by quarantines, Clemson's basket-ball schedule for 1931 developed into a mere skeleton of the original menu. The season opened with two victories for the Tigers, Presbyterian College and Newberry being the first two victims of Cody's ambitious quintet, on successive nights. The first important road-trip for Clemson, however, proved to be disastrous. Three conference foes, Kentucky, Tennessee, and Auburn were met on successive nights, and each of them administered a decisive defeat to Cody's charges.

These three setbacks in a row seemed to steady the squad and make it more determined than ever, for in its first three appearances on the home court, three straight victories were rung up.

Presbyterian College, Tennessee, and Auburn were the vanquished outfits. Victory is especially sweet when the element of revenge is combined with it, and the wins over Tennessee and Auburn were further accentuated by this fact.

The highly touted Georgia Bulldogs were encountered by the Bengal court team in their next two games, both of which resulted in victories for the Georgians. By their stellar performance in these two contests the Bulldogs offered convincing proof that their leadership in the Conference was not due to luck or good breaks. The Jungaleers fought courageously and extended the Georgia quint to the limit, but were unable to match the speed and precision of their superior opponents.

Entering the Conference tournament in Atlanta after a long period of enforced idleness, the Tigers drew Duke University for their opening foe. The Demons from Durham got off to an early lead in the contest. A desperate effort in the last half, though spectacular, was not enough for Clemson to overcome an earlier margin. Duke won the contest by a 31 to 27 score, eliminating Clemson from further competition in the tourney.

The University of Alabama added further to its athletic fame by winning first place in the Conference Tournament.

Clemson listed eighteen contests on the 1931 basket-ball card. Twelve of these were to be with Conference opponents. Eight contests were to be played at Clemson.

BASEBALL
Clemson College's 1930 baseball season was significant primarily for its being one of ins and outs. Marked by wins from powerful opposition and losses to comparatively weak opponents, the record made by this Tiger team shows not the true strength of the squad. In two-game engagements with such prominent teams as Florida, Furman, and Carolina, Guyon's men emerged victorious in at least one of the two starts, their victories being just as overwhelming as their defeats were disastrous. Interspersed with wins from strong Southern Conference nines were losses to small teams from within the state.

After opening their season with a handy win in a practice game with the Jersey City International League team, the Bengal diamond trotters received a severe temperamental setback on their first road trip, when they lost the initial quartet of engagements. The Georgia Tech and Oglethorpe nines threw a bomb of disappointment into the hopes of Tiger followers of the nation's favorite pastime.

From this time throughout the remainder of the season, the Clemson College baseball team experienced apparently great difficulty in uniting their powers to maintain any permanent advantage.

The nine was composed of many potential individuals who frequently failed in their attempts at co-operation and teamwork. Pitchers in excellent form seldom received support that was in proportion to their expenditures; while, on other occasions, masterful fielding was frequently rewarded with erratic hurling.

The baseball season of 1931 is one among a very few seasons in the history of intercollegiate competition which have not been closed with Clemson holding undisputed supremacy.

TRACK
Track

OUR track team for 1931, under the competent supervision of Coach Carson, was, as usual, one of the leading contenders for state honors. However, due to our lack of sprinting talent, we were forced, for the first time in a number of years, to relinquish our claim on the state title to another state team. The Presbyterian College outfit won the state championship and later annexed the S. I. A. A. crown also.

When practice opened at the first of the season, Coach Carson was faced with the problem of developing, within a few short weeks, an entirely new set of hurdlers and sprinters. There was not a single experienced man in these two departments; consequently over half of the team necessarily had to be selected from an untried array of Sophomore candidates. The new men were willing, however, and the co-operative and enthusiastic spirit exhibited by them was largely responsible for Coach Carson's success in building a team that would measure up to the standard of former track teams of Clemson.
Track

Our first competitive participation took place in the Tech Relays in Atlanta. We failed to cop any first places in this meet, but placed second and third in a number of the events. Our Freshmen relay team won second place in their event.

We were defeated by very close margins in our next two engagements with Georgia, and Georgia Tech respectively. The loss to Tech was made especially hard to bear because of the fact that we won most of the first places. Their victory is ascribed to the small number of Tiger entrants rather than to the inferiority of our team.

Our next encounter, which was with the University of South Carolina in Columbia, was won handily by the Bengal cindersmen. We completely outclassed the Gamecocks in the field and distance events and accumulated nearly enough points in first places to win the meet.

In a dual meet with Furman’s Hurricane on Rigg’s field, however, we were given the battle of our lives and were perfectly satisfied when the contest culminated in a deadlock. There has certainly never been a more thrilling exhibition of cinder path rivalry given on the Clemson track.
THE Blue Stockings were favored to cop the Annual State Meet at Clinton, although Clemson was conceded an excellent chance to upset the hopes of the confident Calvinists. The Flying Squadron of the Presbyterians proved to be even better than they were advertised, however, and amassed enough points in the dash events alone to put them far ahead of the field. For the rest of the afternoon the Jungaleers vainly endeavored to overcome this advantage, but in spite of their successes in the weight and field events, they were unable to do better than win second place in the meet. Our position as runner-up was no mean attainment in itself, however, when we consider the number of schools contending and the calibre of the team that outpointed us.
MINOR SPORTS
Boxing

SECOND to football in the ability to draw and to hold crowds is boxing. Of the minor sports at Clemson, boxing is the latest addition, and has made the most rapid strides toward recognition. Leather pushing is the only minor sport that pays its way, and it does even more, since it is second to football for profit.

Coach Guyon deserves much credit for having created an interest in the manly art of self defense. Through his interest and enthusiasm, a well rounded schedule of six matches, two of which will carry the team to Louisiana, has been arranged. As a result, the competition for places on the team is exceedingly keen.

The Tiger mittmen were a greatly improved team last year, and made a formidable race for the state crown, winning several matches. Coach Guyon lost seven of his last year’s warriors, and is faced with the problem of selecting a squad largely from the sophomore and junior classes, since only three seniors are on hand. The big chief is not pessimistic over his prospects, for he sees in the material out for the team a group of, for the most part, inexperienced but willing fighters. After being under the tutelage of their master for a time, the team will present an array of vicious two-fisted scrappers. Outstanding among this year’s material are Captain “Big Gun” Cannon, “Buster” Pearson, “Skinny” Long, Reuben Siegel, “Pistol” Cannon, “Chip” Kennemur, and P. L. Rogers.

The teams to be encountered this year are:

Tulane University, Louisiana State University, Presbyterian College, The University of Florida, The University of South Carolina, The North Georgia Agricultural College.

Tennis

ONE of the most popular recognized minor sports at Clemson is that of tennis.

Last year's racquet wielders, who enjoyed the most successful season of recent years by winning seven, tying one, and losing only four of their meets, have returned intact, with the exception of Captain Bob McCauley, who did much toward building up the prestige of inter-collegiate tennis at Clemson.

Coach Sloan, with an enviable record made last year by a team composed largely of Sophomores, faces a most promising season with a team of experienced Juniors, including Captain-Elect Lipscomb, whose steady game and leadership have made of him a most desirable man. While the schedule is being prepared, the team is working out daily with the earnest intention of bringing the tennis crown of South Carolina to Clemson.

Enthusiasm is running high in tennis at Tigertown, and in due time, for less progress has been made in this sport, perhaps, than in any other form of Athletics. In 1912 only four courts existed at Clemson, and now in 1931 only five are available for students. Increasing interest will doubtless bring about the desired enlargement of playing facilities.
Golf

The year 1930 saw several minor sports appear on the horizon at Clemson. Among them was golf. The student golf enthusiasts gathered and voiced an interest in the formation of a golf team. The action was brought to the attention of Mr. Gee, Director of Athletics, and he responded favorably, thereby making a team possible.

Under the supervision of Reverend G. H. Hodges, the first golf team to represent Clemson made an enviable record, winning three and losing a similar number of matches. Presbyterian College was downed twice; an even split of one win for each team, resulted from the matches with Furman; while the two out of the state teams encountered, University of Georgia and Emory, eked out a win each from the Bengals. Moss, who was then a freshman, was not eligible for these matches. Outstanding performances were turned in last year by Ramseur, Hicks, and Nemitz, seniors; Dashiell, a junior; and Moss. Prospects for an even better team than last year now loom as the season approaches. Ramseur now a graduate student, is again eligible, along with Dashiell, Moss, A. Johnstone, and H. Hicks.

Mr. Hodges is no longer on the campus but Mr. Ed Freeman, an excellent golfer, has been selected as coach to take the place left vacant.
Rifle Team

THE Rifle Team is composed of men from all four classes; being essentially a Clemson minor sport, but sponsored by the R. O. T. C.

Blocks heretofore have not been awarded but it is believed that the Athletic Association will grant letters this year.

Five of the men on the team were at Camp Perry, Ohio, last summer for the National Team Matches; Dyess and Crymes on the 4th Corp Area R. O. T. C. Team; and Rose, Dowdle and Dashiell on the South Carolina Civilian Team.

In the W. R. Hearst Match, as well as many telegraphic matches, the team's scores were well above the average. In the Fourth Corp Area R. O. T. C. Match, made up of some twenty-five college teams over the South, Clemson came second. This made the team eligible for competition in the National R. O. T. C. Match.

Much of the success of this organization is due to the competent supervision of the instructor Capt. P. H. Kron.

The officers of the team are: A. J. Dyess, Captain, F. H. Crymes, Student Coach, and J. P. Littlejohn, manager.
Cross Country

The Cross Country Team is composed of those men who desire to develop the staying powers of a distance man. The three and five mile courses accomplish this as no other sport or exercise can hope to do.

Cross Country is considered as a minor sport at Clemson, but, even at this, very little interest has been shown in this form of athletics. Since this team furnishes the distance men for the track team, men interested in running should go out for it in order to strengthen the followers of the track. They have always assured this team of their points in the score of the meets.

This year there were only two meets held, one with Georgia Tech in Atlanta and the other with the University of Florida in Jacksonville. The team made a very creditable showing in both contests.

Mr. J. C. Littlejohn
Business Manager

There is no phase of college activity of which Mr. Littlejohn is not a vital part; there is no phase of college business with which he is not directly connected. He is mentioned in this particular section because as Business Manager of the College he has been in closer contact with the business affairs of the Athletic Association this year than any other one man at Clemson.

Mr. Gene Parker
Alumni Secretary

The Athletic Section of this book would not be complete unless every phase of that division of college activity is considered. One of the most important parts of all sports is the publicity which they necessarily demand. The publicity of all college activities is in the hands of Mr. Parker who, at the same time, is the Alumni Secretary.

THE EXISTENCE OF THE CLEMSON Y. M. C. A.

Clemson’s Young Men’s Christian Association was organized in 1894 by Mr. F. S. Brockman, State Secretary, and Dr. T. R. Harrison, then of Clemson’s English Department, and a few of the cadet corps. The membership was small, though some of the outstanding students were interested.

The one great need, that had been felt and discussed from the earliest years, was a home for this work. There seemed nowhere for funds to come from for this great needed purpose. In the fall of 1913 Dr. R. N. Brackett, the chairman of Clemson’s Young Men’s Christian Association Advisory Board, while attending a meeting of the Agricultural Workers Association at Raleigh, N. C., had his attention called to a new Young Men’s Christian Association at North Carolina A. & M. College, to which Mr. John D. Rockefeller had made a liberal contribution. After a talk along these lines with Dr. W. D. Weatherford, General Secretary of the South, on his next visit to Clemson the Chairman of the Advisory Board arranged a conference with Dr. W. M. Riggs, President of the College, to discuss the possibilities of laying Clemson’s great need before Mr. Rockefeller. At this meeting Dr. Weatherford offered his services in getting the matter before Mr. Rockefeller. Dr. Weatherford’s help was a most important factor in the success of the project. Dr. Riggs obtained permission of the Board of Trustees to lay the matter before Mr. Rockefeller, and immediately took steps to this end. After some months of consideration Mr. Rockefeller notified the president that he would contribute $50,000 for such a building, providing the faculty, students and their friends would either contribute or raise not less than $25,000 more, the building to be a community center, as well as for the use of the Young Men’s Christian Association. This most welcome offer was accepted by the Board of Trustees with the assured support of the faculty and student body. All details of the contract having been worked out to the satisfaction of Mr. Rockefeller and the Board of Trustees, the building was assured to Clemson.

The corner stone was laid at Commencement 1915 and the building opened for use January 1, 1916.

The Student-Faculty banquet, sponsored by the Y. M. C. A., is an annual affair that furnishes quite an impetus to a better understanding between the students and members of the faculty. Throughout the entire program of the "Y" better relations between students and faculty is one of the objectives. Members of the faculty come into close contact with the students through talks at Vesper services, and speaking directly to all councils and the cabinet.

Junior-Senior Reception of "Y" Championship Teams

The Junior-Senior reception is held at the "Y" annually for the students. The evening is filled with entertainment, and is always a brilliant success.

Elimination of company basket-ball teams provides an opportunity for two outstanding teams to participate in the final game of the season.

Tau Beta Pi is a national honorary engineering fraternity, established in 1885 at Lehigh University. Eligibility for membership is determined chiefly by scholastic standing and character. At the beginning of each year the seniors standing within the upper eighth of the class and the highest standing junior in the schools of electrical, mechanical, and civil engineering are eligible for membership. In the spring of the year the members of the upper eighth of the Junior Class are initiated; the remaining eighth are taken in at the beginning of the following year, thus making the membership consist of men in the upper fourth of the class.

The South Carolina Alpha Chapter of Tau Beta Pi was established at Clemson in 1928, and at the present time is the only chapter in the state. To secure the chapter, the engineers of the Class of '27 organized a local honorary fraternity known as Eta Epsilon Sigma, and in 1928 presented a petition before the annual convention of Tau Beta Pi. The petition was passed upon and the fraternity granted a charter. The Alpha of South Carolina is the 52nd chapter to be established in the United States.
The Clemson Society of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers is a student branch of the national organization. The object of the society is to arouse interest in electrical developments. Any Junior or Senior engineering student is eligible for membership in the local branch of the A. I. E. E.
A. S. C. E.

The American Society of Civil Engineers stand for the advancement of that branch of engineering science, the furtherance of knowledge among its members, and the establishment of a central point of reference and union for its members. Only Juniors and Seniors are eligible for membership.

Judging Team

The Dairy Club, composed mainly of Juniors and Seniors majoring in Dairying, endeavors to stimulate enthusiasm and to emphasize current events of the dairy industry. This is fostered by sponsoring a judging team to the National Dairy Show in St. Louis, which this year, enjoyed a successful trip. Prominent men, familiar with the industry, are selected to keep the Club informed on the prevailing status of conditions.

SIDE GLANCES
Parades; Martial airs; Spectators; the colors—while "Bertba" looks peacefully on.
They actually study—sometimes. "Crip." "55 yards" Sowell (Touchdown) "Mink". "Shoat". "Yank" (looking for a ride to Anderson). "Skeel".
Gentlemen (Ha-Ha!) of the Press. Watson is looking for his dog. Joe wrote the thing.
"Swifty" is right, "The army ain't no place for a lady". Ferg looks "hot".
Betula be went to a dance in Anniston.
The rest are just reminders.
Typical scenes—"Bus" is waiting for "lates". Lee is "rubberneckin'". Showroom and sales agency in rear of barracks.
Main Street "Big Business". "Doc, will you hold this check?" Good ole pals.
"Friends, Romans, Countrymen." "And I never put my hands in my pockets." Make up your own titles—they won't be censored.
"Leo is here through the courtesy of Mr. Holzenborff!" Free show and so forth.
Staff photographer meets resistance. "Steady, please."
The rats won—as usual.
"Any clothes today?" Storm-face looks worried; "Pinkie" looks simple; Roc and Ted look affectionate.
Officer of the Day (the man who put the "X" in Executive). Throw a peanut. No blonde or Sam-Browne?
More Parades. "Officers—Post—March!" "And they came from miles around."
Dedicated to the victims of Clemson's dazzling nightlife.

Headed straight for the gutter with joy in their hearts & liquor on their breath.

When a Trademark clings to a FADED DRESS . . .

6 men lose business

LOOK over the shoulder of your customer . . . at his customer and his customer's customer. That is where your business is built.

The kind of dress manufacturer whose business you want, doesn't forget the opinion of the little lady at the end of the textile chain. He cultivates her favor for himself and for you . . . when he sells fast dyed fabrics.

There is no longer any excuse for undependable substitutes. Du Pont Vat Dyes provide a complete range of colors for every type of cotton material. They are fast.

The textile chain is too long to trust your prosperity entirely to other men's ideas of how to build greater profits.

Du Pont Vat Dyes will protect you. Let du Pont technical service help you establish a profitable vat dye policy for dyeing and printing all cotton wash goods.

A Newboy's Progress As A Cadet

The month of September, when eyes are turned toward school and the ex-Hi'School senior plans his career with his mind definitely set on a Military school. (Allah save him.) He departs with ideals and ambitions to "Knock 'em cold,"--off to Clemson.

His conception as to his reception is somewhat shattered as he steps on the first inch of campus. Upperclassmen who appear as giants receive him with open scissors and outstretched arms (containing brooms).

After the processing and after one hundred, or perhaps two hundred, questions he finds his cell.

His ideals are restored as he cases into the the mirror at his likeness in a first uniform. "If Dad could see me now."

He had often wished to fire a "Springfield"; so he gets his first shot.

Now his "Peau Ideal" as army takes him into hand. Then he tastes his first bit of drilling.

He goes in for strict training that he might lead the dash to the origin of "Men-boys-e-e-e!!!"

That is no mere and fine, he actually meets the femmes at the "Hop" and dances with them. --Imagine!!

Another social activity, but this also requires speed to beat the twelve hundred.

He completes his trim fought battle, and loses his pre-name of "Rat" with a priceless experience, but not one wish for its repetition.

ADEQUACY

In the production of fine books, or for that matter, fine printing of any sort there must be an adequacy of Understanding and experience to plan and interpret. Of workers who have mastered their crafts. Of materials of the best quality. And of modern equipment and exact skill in its direction. « « «

These sales and service offices and this manufacturing plant are evidences of an inflexible rule that adequacy must be maintained at « « «

TO write a book one must first know where to begin—and where to end.

What better ending than to thank those who in their own way have made this book possible?

To Mr. J. C. Littlejohn for his aid and co-operation in financial and other matters; to Capt. J. D. Harcombe for the "midnight" lunches, which he so generously supplied the staff; to Mr. Gene Parker for photographs; to Joe Adams for written material which was used in the book, and to the Junior staff for invaluable help; the Staff of 1931 wish to express their appreciation.

We are especially fortunate in our choice of printers, engravers and photographers for through their prompt and efficient work and valuable suggestions it was possible to get this book out on time. Among these we wish to mention Mr. Walt Dargan, of Wrigley Engraving Co.; Mr. Clayton Webb and Mr. Earl Sanders, of Foote & Davies Co., and Mr. Stanley Marques, of White Studio.

The art work of Reid Hearn and John Allen Long, who are members of the staff, and Louis Wolff has been very outstanding and has enabled the book to reach a new level in this respect.

There are many others who are not mentioned but to whom the staff is greatly indebted.

We offer the book with no apologies—it's all our fault—we cannot use even "the quarantine" as an alibi; but—we hope you enjoy it.

FRANK H. CRYMES,

Editor-in-Chief.
