THE theme of the 1934 Taps has been taken from an industry founded by ancients—primitive man. From the earliest beginnings to the middle of the XVIII century the methods of manufacturing textiles exhibited little progress; yet the products of the textile artisans of this period are amazing. The wonderment of the ancient and medieval fabrics is vastly enchanted when the crude methods of fabrication are investigated. The spinners and weavers prior to the mechanical age had little knowledge of machinery; their command of the sciences was slight; their choice of fibres was limited; and their industry was localized. But these technologists possessed wisdom, perseverance, courage, integrity, a keen and true sense of beauty, and a majestic and overpowering handicraft.

Their products will go down through the ages a monument to the true arts.

During the Industrial Revolution the intricate iron hand, the standardized hand, the soulless hand replaced the dexterous hand of the artist. The textile industry made vast strides in every field; it became concentrated in great cities; it employed millions of people from all corners of the earth; it became the dominating industry of the century—the life blood of nations.

Today the magnitude of the textile industry is almost beyond comprehension. It is directly related to, and interdependent upon agriculture, mining, and nearly all branches of manufacturing. It employs millions of people comprising many skilled and unskilled trades. It is the inviting and fascinating field of research for some of the keenest engineers, scientists, and artists. It is today one of the most important endeavors of mankind.

Through the reproduction in print of several luxurious historic woven fabrics, we hope to remind you of the textile industry's enviable record of the past, and bring to mind its imposing position today.

DEDICATION

To those men of the Textile Industry who have, through their unselfish efforts, lifted the plane of living of the employees of their plants to one of comfort, respectability, and intelligence, this, the 1934 Edition of TAPS is dedicated.

FOREWORD

INTO this volume of TAPS our efforts have been directed in attempting a true portrayal of our college scenes, activities, and endeavors. Our reward is complete if, for the present and the golden years to come, we have set forth—in spirit—the story of the Clemson of our times—a college in which great achievement has but aroused an unquenchable desire for greater progress.

HERE HAVE WE MIXED GOLDEN DREAMS WITH REALITY, REASON WITH PLEASURE, AND WISDOM WITH MIRTH.
Genuine education aims to enlighten one in making choices. Choice determines the destiny of men and nations. From Abraham to Jesus Holy Writ recurs time and again to the choice that is placed before man. The power of selection is the fate that charts the course. Great men have virtues and vices. Some men are great in spite of their vices. The little man chooses to imitate the vices but is unable to attain the virtues. One may choose his vocation too early but he can not choose too early his purpose in life or the kind of man he will strive to become. In college your best teacher is the one who makes you want to learn, your best associate the one who stimulates to higher living, your best guide the one who shows the road of noblest idealism.

Four years in college determine the fate of many. Unwittingly one is making the path of destiny. Years later reflections reveal the hour and the occasion. Four years of harboring low ideals can not suddenly be transformed. The unreliable senior is not a dependable graduate the day after graduation. Tennyson wrote that "the right performance of this hour's duties will be the best preparation for the hours or ages that follow it."

Easy street has more dangerous pitfalls than the difficult road. The narrow gate and the straightened way has more room than the wide gate and the broad way which leadeth to destruction. Hatred and strife leave no room for others on the broad. To live, let live, and help others to live makes room for all.
FIFTY years ago an old gray-headed man might be seen walking slowly in the vicinity of his home—Fort Hill. This old man, Thomas G. Clemson, was dreaming dreams and making plans which would benefit future generations of young South Carolinians.

To Mr. Clemson belongs the honor of being the founder of our college. However, the college we see and know today exceeds the fondest hopes of this old dreamer. A college may bear the name of a man who is known around the world, or whose achievements are a precious heritage to his people. The founder may endow it with his money and give it the prestige of his name, but the reputation of a college can never be had as a part of its endowment. The character and the success of those who bear its "image and superscription" make the reputation, but when once achieved it is the common heritage of every student who has resided or may reside within its walls.

Thomas G. Clemson did not leave to the college the reputation it now enjoys. It is the result of fifty years of patient work on the part of students, ex-students, graduates and teachers. The wish to be known as a Clemson man is no longer a matter of sentiment but a matter of business, as well.
School of Engineering

The School of Engineering gives courses in Civil, Electrical, and Mechanical Engineering, and in Architecture. Thorough grounding is given in English, Mathematics, Physics, and Mechanics. The technical courses, comprising a large part of the last two years' work, are given by a well-trained faculty in splendidly equipped laboratories. Time is allowed for Economics and Sociology as well as other broadening elective courses.

School of General Science

The School of General Science is principally a service school that does the academic training for all students in the several other schools. In addition it offers courses leading to the B.S. degree for those students who find that they are not adapted for work in the other schools. It also prepares for medicine, law, teaching, and scientific investigation.

School of Textiles

Clemson Textile School has made an outstanding record for itself since its establishment in 1898, in that a very large percentage of its graduates is holding responsible positions in the textile industry. During the last four years approximately one hundred and nine men have been graduated from the Clemson Textile School. Of this number one hundred and six are now employed in some phase of the textile industry. During this same period, Clemson Textile School has had approximately one hundred and fifty additional calls for its men.

The United States is definitely embarking upon a plan of agricultural control. Whether we wish it or not, the time has arrived when scientific training in agriculture is absolutely essential to successful agricultural endeavor. The School of Agriculture at Clemson College aims to train students so that they might not only fit into, but also help to mold the new society.

Teaching has long been a most honorable and useful occupation. The training of Teachers for the Public Schools has been an aim of the leading higher Institutions. With the growth of a body of scientific facts regarding teaching, the laws of learning, and administration, minimum standards have been set for teachers and administrators. These standards have as their aim the protection of the child and the welfare of the taxpayer and society. The School of Vocational Education aims to better prepare Clemson men for public service in Education.

Senior Class History

They came from the East, West, North, and South to join the Clan. I, like all who are fresh from the memorable four years of intense training preceding college, considered myself like unto a god on a lofty pedestal surveying with a knowing eye the common herd. The world was before me, the nectar of which had been mine for the asking in the past. The fears and ills which have since shaken it to its roots were in their adolescence. Life was fresh, the sun was bright, the trees were green, God was in his heaven.

The mighty Clan had gathered, and we who were to attempt to become a part thereof were called Freshmen. Our disillusionment began immediately for it seemed that to completely shatter our illusions was the aim of those who had already traveled a part of the road on which we were to follow. We were jostled about and bruised until we began to despair. Winter came, the leaves fell from the trees, alas! Our sun was dimmed. Strangely enough, coincident with this period of despair, we were unknowingly going through a process of readjustment from which we emerged as loyal members of the Clan, having been imbued with all the spirit and ideals upon which its solidarity and very existence depended. Spring came, and with it a new outlook on conditions, and an appreciation of our association with our fellow members. As our Freshman year drew to a close, we indulged in retrospection. And lo! After mature valuation we found that our joys and worthy associations far outweighed our despair. The Freshman year was over!

In the fall of the following year, the clarion call of the Clan, echoing and re-echoing through the valleys of Oconee, was again heeded by the members. And among them came those same men who had been Freshmen, but who were now called Sophomores. But, unfortunately, a great change was wrought in us. We became again masters of our fate; the world was ours and all therein. We were, in our own estimation, selected especially to promulgate the wisdom and knowledge which we had so rapidly acquired. We had added to our already domineering nature a false sense of power; we proceeded to consider ourselves the masters of the Freshmen, and thought that our duty was to imbue them with a feeling of inferiority. Little did we realize our insignificance and our close proximity to the low estate of the Freshman. We attempted much; we accomplished nothing but that which befitted our station—continuing to play and to laugh aloud throughout the year.

And in the next year when we again answered the call, we were known as Juniors. We were greeted by a new Grandmaster of the Clan, who has journeyed from a seacoast fortress to our inland stronghold in order to exert a guiding influence on the Clan, and to instil in us a sense of discipline. During the months of the year our eyes and minds were gradually opened, and we began to assume some of the responsibilities which were thrust upon us. There came to us a realization of the problems to be solved and the battles to be won within the confines of the Clan. And when the ninth month was passed there did earthen in our fortress a mighty host. From the far-away seacoast, from beyond the lofty mountains, they came in bands to join our own clan in order that they might be instructed in the act of the warrior, and enjoy the six weeks of festivities which was offered to them.

Time was marching on, and when these men returned to Clemson's halls for the last time, they were now called Seniors. As the year wore on, their thoughts began to dwell on the rapidly approaching day when they should venture forth through the portals of the institution which had been a guiding influence in their lives during the formative years. The inevitable footfalls of Time resound through the stately halls of learning, and yet, their everlasting, rhythmic beat is not so loud that I cannot hear and understand the secret heart-throbs of my classmates as they face one another and sadly realize that they soon must part, each to follow his destined road. I have learned to love them as they do one another, and I now see reflected in these same faces the will, the determination, and the ideals of the Clemson Clan which will carry them through the years as honest players on the stage of Life.

Freshmen
The above picture depicts the battle-scarred and broomtorn freshman class that just finished (for most of us) the hardest year of our lives. We have had our hair removed, our dignity outraged, our self-respect badly shattered, and our bodies thoroughly ravaged. We have had our lives molded by the not-so-gentle hands of our lady—Discipline. We have tasted Army life and found it slightly bitter; we have had our clothes ripped and torn by our beloved laundry; and we have slaved and sweated for the old boys. But, despite these trials and tribulations, we can look back upon this year as the fullest and the best year of our lives.

After we began to lose our awe of those towering old boys, we began to find them human after all; they turned out to be a pretty good bunch of fellows. True, they pounded upon the sensitive portions of our bodies with various and assorted clubs, brooms, coat-hangers, et al; they sent us all over these red hills to do their errands; and, in our first stupidity, they sold us radiators and tables, but we gave as good as we took. They helped us out and we worked for them. We antagonized them and they complimented us with numerous pep-meetings, but it was all in the spirit of fun.
In these barracks we lived, we laughed, and some of us loved. Out of accord at first, we soon fell in step. Some of us never quite found our niche and dropped out at mid-semester, but the rest of us carry on. Each one of us has found his particular cliche and has laid the foundations for lasting friendships. We have discovered here something to work for and something to work at. Our lives have become crystalized and have taken on a new meaning. We feel that we are now a part of Clemson.

Thus we found ourselves at the end of our "rat" year. We have acquired memories both comic and tragic, but, in the main, tinged with humor. Perhaps the tragedy is to come later. Next year we will be old-boys and the freshmen will hold us in awe. We will be dishing it out instead of taking it. We will find ourselves older, more experienced, and with new responsibilities. The old halcyon days when every action was passed off with, "Never mind, he's a rat," will be over. The memories of our foolish freshman days will grow clouded and dim. We will be serious all-important sophomores. But, while it's all fresh and clear-cut, we want to say, "We had a wonderful time."

The Senior Platoon

Champions of the Fourth Corps Area

The members of the Senior Platoon are selected strictly on a competitive basis, membership being highly coveted and much sought. Exhibition drills are put on during the year which have brought much favorable comment, and have given desirable advertisement to the school. The Platoon won the Fourth Corps Area Championship at the R. O. T. C. camp held at Clemson in the summer of 1933.

According to all pre-season predictions Coach Jess Neely's 1933 Bengal eleven was to rise to a position where it would be no longer the doormat for the football teams of Southern Colleges. The line was the strongest Tigertown has seen since the days of '29, when the mere mention of Clemson made the strongest opposition shiver. The backfield was to be the fastest in the Palmetto state, barring none.

But all this "dope" was issued without taking into consideration that mysterious and treacherous "jinx" which has been in the midst of our athletic circles for the past few years.

Even before the opening game Old Dame Fortune got to work. Clyde Pennington, sophomore back, one of the hardest tacklers and best punters seen here in recent years, sustained a knee injury which put him on the side-lines for the entire season.

Then came the P. C. game. The Pur-pie and Gold failed to live up to all assurances when they eked out but a lone touchdown to tie the Blue Hose 6 to 6. Clemson scored during the third period when Stevens fell across the line to tie the lead in which the Clintonites gained by scoring via the aerial route in the second quarter.

The Bengal combination gave an exhibition totally unlike that of their practice sessions and was irregular throughout.

Not content with the damage wrought, the unrelenting "jinx" was on hand to take its toll. Henry Woodward, our All-Star quarter-back, was placed on the injured list when he twisted his leg near the end of the game. This excellent ball-carrier and field-general was out of the line-up for the next three engagements as a result.

Handicapped by the loss of two stellar backfield men, the Neely men journeyed to Atlanta where they fell before a powerful and determined Georgia Tech eleven by a 39 to 2 count. On the seventh play of the game Troutman fell on a Yellow-jacket fumble back of the end-marker to gain the Tigers' only score.

The Georgians tightened, and led by Martin and Galloway, began a vicious assault which pushed the visitors back without trouble.

Came Homecoming Day!
Football

Displaying a brand of football which brought out the innermost latent ability of every Clemsonite on the field, the Bengals hurled themselves with fury against a heavier N. C. State team, and took the long end of a 9 to 0 score, in one of the most exciting games ever witnessed on Riggs Field.

McCown blocked one of McQuage's punts early in the fracas for a safety.

Not content, and out for victory, the Tigers marched right back over the Tarheel crew for the remaining points. Taking the ball on the one-yard line, after a drive from mid-field by Stevens, Willimon smashed the State line to smithereens and placed the ball over the goal. Fellers added the extra point.

The entire Clemson team was excellent. Fellers, Inabinet, Heineman, Troutman, Dozier, Lewis, Cummings, Brown and Horton formed a formidable forward wall, while Willimon, Cathcart, Stevens, and McCown in back of them were par excellence.

The Tigers had hit their stride! For their next game 700 cadets escorted the team to the Nation's Capital to watch Clemson tackle George Washington University in a night encounter.

Some 10,000 spectators who came to see the Washington school ride triumphantly over the South Carolinians were rudely jolted by Clemson's brilliant work in all departments of the game. Late in the contest a 19-yard run-off tackle by Hinson, followed by a double lateral and a forward toss put the ball on the Colonial's 2-yard marker, but the Tigers lacked the necessary punch to drive it over, and the game ended 0-all.

In the annual Fair classic with Carolina, the Bengal team could not stem the powerful running of Mauney and his cohorts. The Gamecocks clearly outplayed Clemson, and judging from the number of first downs made by each team a 7 to 0 defeat speaks well for our goal-line defense.

Only twice did Neely's proteges have the oval in Carolina's territory, and the furthest advance was the 32-yard line.

The remainder of the encounter the Columbia eleven held the upperhand, but found their opponents' line a veritable brickwall when they arrived within scoring distance.

In their succeeding tussle, one of the strongest aggregations in the South, "Ole Miss" took their visitors into camp, 13 to 0, out in Meridian, but only after the Clemson team resisted their onslaught for three full periods.

The first part of the game found long runs conspicuous by their absence, but late in the fracas, the Mudcats turned on their steam, Hudson and Gunter drove down the field, and the latter crossed the last white marker. A few moments later he repeated the same process.

Woodward and Willimon were chief ground-gainers for Clemson, and McCown, Brown and Dozier were power on defense.

Determined to break back into the debit side of the ledger, the Purple and Gold met Wake Forest in Charlotte and defeated the Deacons, 13 to 0.

Woodward flipped a pass to Horton in the end zone for 16 yards and a touchdown, in the first quarter.

The North Carolinians threatened in the second half, but the Tiger team took the ball and marched back down the grid. McCown tossed one to Willimon, who, in turn, threw it to Woodward. The dashing back bobbed off right tackle and crossed the line, for the second tally.

On Armistice Day, the Bengals took a trip to Wofford, but found the Terriers anything but peaceful. In a listless fray the boys from Spartanburg turned in probably the greatest upset in football circles of the state this year when they nosed out Clemson 14 to 13.

Dillard scored twice for the A. & M., but only one try for extra point was good, while the Wofford aggregation converted points after both their scores.

Against Mercer, down in Savannah, the Tigers found themselves up against a stronger team. Led by Trommerhauer and Zinkowsky, the Georgians took advantage of a pair of short punts and drove across the goal for two touchdowns, converting one of the trys for extra point, to win 13 to 0.

The Tigers, early in the second half, drove down the field, but lacked the necessary drive to carry the oval further than the 20-yard marker, and the majority of the time they had to rely on a defensive game.

In their tenth battle, a hard charging line and a quarter of smashing backs drove the Clemsonians to a 7 to 0 victory over their military rival, The Citadel.

Dynamic Bill Dillard started things going with a spectacular fifty-five-yard dash down the grid, carrying the ball to the Bulldog’s 3-yard line. In one play, Willimon smashed over for a touchdown, and Fellers converted the extra point.

The Bengals took the offense from the first and were never seriously threatened. They resorted to the air twice, completing one pass from Woodward to McCown for 35 yards.

Came the closing game of the year with Furman. In the grand finale the Neelymen tackled a strong Purple and White Hurricane and were outroughed 6 to 0.

Almost the entire first team had to be removed from the fracas due to injuries. The subs, though they played well, let the Greenville team sneak a pass into the end zone for victory.

John Troutman, All-State soph tackle, was the man of the hour. His hard tackling and beautiful punting was excellent.

Randy Hinson turned in a great game at quarter, and Watson held down his end in a manner that drew favorable comment.

The final whistle has sounded. The grid togs are hanging on the wall. The season of ’33 is history.

Basket-ball

The jinx that has hovered all of Clemson’s sportanic activities this year has not let up at the opening of the basket-ball season. Although the team lost only two-letter men, J. Craig and J. W. Davis, they have taken off to a bad start. After showing excellent form in several practice games with nearby textile league teams and winning decisive victories in every case, they invaded the cold grey hills of North Carolina and returned, leaving the proverbial bacon hanging on the hook. The three games played on the tour proved a bitter disappointment to supporters. They were defeated in all three instances, North Carolina State, University of North Carolina, and Duke University rubbing it into Coach Davis’ proteges.

With excellent material and excellent coaching the team was molded into a fast-stepping, flashing example of perfect coordination, but, like our football team, they haven’t quite clicked under fire. Perhaps the first three games have shown Captain Ted Simons and the lads where the trouble lies and the team will shine as in the days of yore. Conference glories are still within reach, and Clemson teams have a noble habit of coming through at the right moment.

Old jinx reached out again in the State game, twisting Pennington's knee and taking him from the scene of action for several weeks at least and possibly for the remainder of the season. The brilliant forward had played an outstanding game until the accident and had shown promise of greater things to come. Knocked out in practice with the football squad before he played his first varsity game, and now injured at the start of basket-ball season, the boy is certainly getting his share of tough breaks.

Although the future looks dismal, the silver lining is scheduled to break through at any time, and Clemson will in all probability produce, in the end, her usual excellent team.
Boxing

The boxing season for nineteen thirty-four opened with exceedingly drear prospects for the fighting Tigers. Crippled by the loss of the majority of the Varsity boxers, chances for conference victory were slim. Crow, Bannister, Magginson, Jack Henley and "Footsie" Davis were lost by graduation, leaving only three-letter men, Captain Blitch, Lofton and Medlin. Co-Captain Tommy Lide, shining light of last year's aggregation, was forced to stop because of loss of time to his studies.

To cap it all, Blitch, team captain, was injured in practice, his hand healing in time for the Florida bout. In this fight, which he won on a foul, the injury was further aggravated, forcing him out for the remainder of the season. The Florida scrap, the first of the season, ended, however, with the Tigers on the top side of a four and one-half to three and one-half score, proving again that the Clemson spirit won't be downed.

Coach Bob Jones has received some excellent material from the under-classes this year, lightening the gloom that settled like a fog around the field-house during practice. Among the outstanding newcomers are Murray Henley, Clifford Henley, Dawson, Altman and Platt, all these men showing up well in the fights they had at this writing. Fudge, gangling senior welterweight, who is battling his first year with the varsity, cut Feigenbaum, Florida’s welter, to ribbons with his slashing attack and extraordinary reach.

While the outlook at the start of the season was anything but bright, the marked improvement of the men in all weights and the victory over Florida, a very strong team, have revived the waning hopes of the fight fans. The admirable showing of the new material as well as the old men has been the Balm of Gilead to Coach Jones’ tortured soul and the dawn of a new day shows the brightest hopes of Clemson men shining with a new brilliance. What the squad lacks in experience and training they more than make up for in spirit.

Baseball

Coach Neely had to build an almost entirely new team in baseball last year, and consequently the caliber of the nine was not the same as that of the team which took the state pennant the year before.

Chavous led in batting with an average of .375 and Sherman and Rivers were close behind.

A great many second-year men saw service on the diamond and these men, now juniors, will be quite valuable when the time for candidates is issued this year.

Hood, Sherman, Gilliam, Cole, Chavous and Knight are the veterans who are back to form the nucleus of this year's nine. They have all been under fire and should bring the Purple and Gold in the "win" column consistently.
Swimming

Led by a group of Charleston boys, the Tiger swimming team turned in a perfect record for the past season.

In their first meet Clemson's aquatic aces, headed by Captain Rollins and Fisher, decisively defeated Furman's tankmen by a score of 44 to 31.

Two days later, the Bengal water stars entered the state meet in Greenville and won the State pennant, handily defeating Furman and Presbyterian College. In this contest the Tigers captured six of the possible nine first places.

Rollins, Fisher, Van de Erve, Geraty, Allison and Thomas were outstanding in the dashes and middle distance events, while Thackston and Dickson carried the Purple and Gold colors in the springboard event.
Coach Howard’s track team had a rather mediocre season on the cinderpath. The only meet of the year which the Tigers won by an overwhelming victory came when they met Furman in Greenville. The Purple and Gold smothered their opposition by a forty-point margin. Gordon Lynn, the outstanding man of the team, was also the best sprint ace in conference track circles. Lynn, better known as “The Goat” represented the school in the Penn Relay Carnival, in Philadelphia and took third place in the century against the fastest competition in America. In the State meet the speedster set a new record with a time of 9.8 seconds, and at the conference meet he tied the record with the same time. Curry, Craig and Blackwell were also point-getters for the local team. This year, with Blackwell and Lynn back the Tigers should "go places."

The Y. M. C. A. is the socializing institution of the campus. The usually neglected dormant qualities of the student have the best possible opportunity for expression in the many and varied activities of the "Y."

—C. D. Wyatt, Editor Taps, '34.

There are four sides to every man's makeup, physical, mental, social, and moral. Men reach their maximum development by profiting all of these as nearly as possible.

The Y. M. C. A. plays a major part in bringing to the Clemson campus that which the College is unable to provide; namely, the opportunity to develop the student's physical, social, and moral being. Without the Y. M. C. A. we could not get this valuable training.

—Cadet Col. F. B. Schirmer.

The Y. M. C. A. is one of the most valuable organizations on the campus. Through its social and athletic program it furnishes most of the recreation for the cadets.

—L. H. Harvin, President Senior Class.

The Y. M. C. A. is the one institution that does most in making Clemson a desirable college; the "Y" adequately fills what is lacking in social life, physical training, and moral environment.

—W. C. Cobb, Sec. and Treas. Blue Key.

During my three years of college life at Clemson it has been forcibly impressed upon my mind that the Y. M. C. A. has a more far-reaching universal influence upon the Corps of Cadets than any other student organization. Every man at school at some time, in one way or another, feels the effects of the "Y." Without it the Cadets would soon be at loss as to how to enjoy spare time. The training and experiences that a man gains in association with the Y. M. C. A., coupled with genuine friendships formed during this period, constitute one of the greatest opportunities that Clemson College has to offer a Cadet.

—W. L. Leverette, Editor-in-Chief Tiger.

The Y. M. C. A. is undoubtedly one of the greatest factors in fostering a spirit of fellowship, high ideals, and leadership. It is an institution that is vitally necessary to every college campus. With its many varied activities it stands out as one of the keenest instruments in promoting true and lasting friendships.

—D. A. Barnes, President Phi Psi.

The Y. M. C. A. at Clemson is the center of all activities for the student body as a whole. It is to Clemson what an Oasis is to the desert. Without the "Y" Clemson would be a dreary place to live.

—H. J. Schroeder, Capt. Scabbard and Blade.

The Corps of Cadets of Clemson College should be deeply appreciative to the Y. M. C. A. for extending its facilities and hearty encouragement and support towards company socials and inter-company sports. Through its varied programs the "Y" offers to Clemson the social and recreational features of a College town.

—R. B. Shores, President Tau Beta Pi.

The Y. M. C. A. at Clemson plays a most necessary and important part in the spiritual, physical, and social development of the students. The vital part of the Clemson campus is centered about the "Y" building. It keeps alive the Christian ideals that are sometimes easily lost.

—C. N. Claytor, Chancellor Alpha Zeta.

The Junior Staff of The Tiger is composed of third-year men who have evinced a desire to work on the official weekly publication of Clemson College.

At the beginning of the second semester of each scholastic year, a new Tiger Staff, composed of Juniors, is announced. This is done at mid-year in order that the outgoing staff may help the incoming quasi-journalists with the various problems that arise in the "putting out" of a collegiate paper.

Phi Psi is a national, honorary, textile fraternity, organized for the purpose of encouraging and promoting a high scholastic standing among the textile students and creating and promoting a brotherly feeling among the members of Phi Psi.

In 1927 Clemson College was granted a charter from the National Council, and Iota Chapter of Phi Psi was formed. The charter membership totaled 12 men, and since its organization the fraternity has grown steadily until at the present time its members number twenty-two.

Phi Psi selects its members according to their scholastic and social standing, the membership being limited to the highest twenty-five per cent.

The Tiger Brotherhood is a recent organization at Clemson College, having been organized in 1928 by the class of that year.

The purpose of the Tiger Brotherhood is to initiate and to ordain a higher standard of ethics at Clemson, and in so doing build a greater and better Clemson College.

This is an organization to which any loyal Tiger should yearn to become a member, as one is chosen on his outstanding qualities and high moral conduct among his fellow men.

The Clemson College student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers was founded to bring civil engineering students into closer contact with one another and with members of the faculty. The organization presents to the members the opportunity to hear, on certain occasions, speakers whose personal experiences qualify them to speak with authority upon the many questions which are of importance to the student during his college course. Membership is limited to civil engineering students of the sophomore, junior, and senior classes.
Kappa Phi

Kappa Phi is a local social fraternity organized in 1926. The purpose of the club is to create better fellowship and a higher degree of friendship among students at Clemson. Since its organization, Kappa Phi has been very successful in its attempt to set higher standards of social life on the Clemson Campus. The club has sponsored several social functions, all of which have received high commendation.

York County Club

The York County Club is composed of Clemson students from York County, the purpose of the club being to get the boys from York County better acquainted, and to better acquaint high-school students with Clemson. In order to do this the club holds regular meetings and sponsors at least one dance a year to which high-school students are invited.
Laurens County Club

The Laurens County Club was founded to further the interest of boys from this county. It helps the freshmen to become familiar with the rules and unwritten laws of Clemson College. Every year a dance is sponsored by this club at Laurens during the Christmas holidays. Every endeavor is being made to make this club useful to Clemson.

Tigertown’s own melody-makers, the Jungaleers, led by Bill Schachte, stood high in the ranks of Palmetto orchestras this year, and were much in demand for dances and broadcasts.

Old members were Schachte, Barnes, Burns, James, All, Chapin, and Salley. In addition several frosh performers, Welch, Davis, and Heikkila, teamed up with the organization.

The Jungaleers, in addition to their excellent orchestration, had something of an innovation in an amplifying system which allowed them to create desirable sound effects.

WHY H. & B. LONG DRAFT SPINNING MAKES A BETTER YARN

H. & B. Long Draft Spinning gives the fibres more opportunity to assume their natural positions during the drafting operation than do other long draft systems, because it does not hamper the natural movement of the fibres with belts or other devices.

Roller No. 2 in the H. & B. system performs the same function as do the belts in other systems. That is, it prevents sagging and controls the shorter fibres. However it does not interfere with the natural movement of the fibres, because it makes a single point contact rather than a continuous contact.

Furthermore the bite of this roll is not carried so near to the front roll as in belt systems, so that a natural arrangement of the fibres occurs and “plucking” is prevented.

The Taps Staff is deeply indebted and grateful to its many friends who have made the publication of this volume possible. We thank especially:

The Junior Staff.
Mr. Littlejohn.
Captain Harcombe.
Col. West.
Walt Dargan (Wrigley Engraving Co.).
Johnny Long and the Annual Staff (Foote and Davies Co.).
Stanley Marques and Marion Ware (Stanley Studios).

Here it is! We, with our very limited capabilities and experience, have made an honest attempt to give to you a book worthy of the title Taps. We have made our last alterations; this, the 1934 Taps, is the permanent record of our many hours of faithful and joyful labor. You, the reader and the critic, are the judge as to our success. It is our sincerest hope that we have met your high standards of workmanship.
