THEME

The bell is ringing. Grey-clad cadets are cluttering the Clemson Campus, pouring from the buildings, journeying to and from their fate or glory—classes. Freshmen are dashing to and fro, in fear of being late for the roll call; Engineers, with their leather cased slide rules dangling, are leisurely trodding the path to the Engineering Building, busily discussing the afternoon "lab"; "Ags." are turning briskly in the direction of the Library and Dairy Building, wondering if they know enough to pass that quiz; the future doctors and attorneys (General Science) are gathered around the Main Building steps, smoking, wise-crackly, and casually tossing remarks about "Picks!" Psychology; still more cadets can be seen cutting across the small parade ground en-voyage to the familiar grey walls of the test-tube-arrayed chemistry laboratory; the Architects can be heard discussing the reinforcement of floor slabs or "Sids" new problem; around the "Jew-shop" may be seen some Block "C" boys, laughing with "Major," and some of "Mack's boys' detouring for a snack before settling down to work in the Textile Building.

Things are wide-awake around the Campus during these five minutes, but soon the soft shadows of Calhoun's Cedars are undisturbed again, the lull is hushed, and the students are settled in the classrooms for another hour of learning—Agriculture, Engineering, Architecture, Chemistry, Textiles, General Science, or whatever it may be.

In a school so large and with a curriculum so varied, what would be your decision as to a theme for the College Yearbook? Indeed, it is a most difficult task to adopt or create one to please 1550 cadets and to make smiles of contentment spread over the countenances of the faculty.

Yes, the Staff has given the thought the most careful and serious consideration and with the hope of at least pleasing some of the readers—our decision for the theme of the '36 TAPS is Architecture; not so predominately represented, but enough to serve as a medium for decorative motif and still have some meaning and symbolization of the progress and continuous advancement of civilization by man since the building of the great Egyptian Pyramids 1000 B.C. up to our modern skyscrapers of this century.

Needless to say, what is more symbolic of man's progress today than the massive buildings which dominate our cities, seeming to make the horizon which was once green pasture lands reach up into the heavens? The beauty and esthetic qualities of man's creations are not only found in Art, Poetry, and Music, but also in the Architecture throughout the country. Architecture is the oldest of Arts. The Egyptians, Persians, Greeks, Romans, and Italians all were influential factors in presenting forms which have long been preserved and admired by the generations that have followed. The ancient monuments are the glory of the ages; representing the fact that amidst toil and struggles of civil and rebellious strife there was still an outlet for the creation of beauty—Architecture.

One could hardly speak of our Architecture in the United States as being American, inasmuch as it is too old an art to be linked with one nation. The entire world contributed its part in making our historic buildings and monuments what they are today. Our ancestors in the "Old Country" were perhaps influential in this great building art, who knows? They saw, and no doubt realized the progress manifested from time to time in the temples of the Romans and Greeks, the fine Italian Palaces and Churches, the picturesque French Cathedrals, on down to our colossal buildings of the 20th Century. Time passed, and with its passing, times changed.

And speaking of the Americanized part of the theme, we could say very little that would not glorify and hold higher our esteem for our forefathers and kinsmen who braved the unsettled country. They were at first too busy fighting Indians and struggling for existence in the new country to give much thought to incorporating beauty in their hastily-made log-cabin homes. They had courage, mastered the wilderness and hardships, and set up a government which enables us to enjoy Justice, Liberty, and Democracy. Should not we be grateful?

Let us pause for a moment and give thought to what has gone before us—the hardships, the struggles and sacrifices which it has taken to make America what it is today. Perhaps now as we gaze at the massive structures which stand so firmly upon our American soil we can appreciate the significance for which they stand—Progress. No other nation has progressed in the last 100 years as our United States. Let us keep it so and strive to create instead of to condemn.

Thus, my speech is spoken; I hope you can appreciate our viewpoint around which our theme is built. "The progress of mankind," Architecture.
In presenting this volume of TAPS we have sought to make a permanent record of the scenes and events of this final period of our college career. Our purpose will have been achieved if we have succeeded in portraying in these pages the familiar scenes and events in such a way that it will only be necessary to glance through this volume in future years in order to recall the pleasant memories, sweet triumphs, and bitter failures of this memorable year.
In the following pages may be seen some simple representations of some of the periods in the history of Architecture. Should I hesitate to explain it would involve too much archaeological detail and only make this volume confusing. So in simply presenting it to you may I say that I hope you will enjoy the efforts of the Staff in compiling this twenty-ninth edition of the Clemson TAPS. You were interested enough to begin this volume; it is only fair to let you form your own opinion about the book, the theme and contents herein—we hope you like it.

SECOND BARRACKS
When Dr. Enoch Walter Sikes became President of Clemson College in 1925, the student body was approximately one half its present size. Largely due to the impetus of the President himself, in "putting Clemson on the map," the student body has steadily increased until the record breaking '35-'36 enrollment of approximately 1500 students overcrowded the existing facilities of the College and necessitated an expansion. Dr. Sikes immediately started a campaign to secure the needed funds. Finally, due to his continuous efforts, $800,000 was secured from the Federal Government with which to build an Agricultural Building and additional Barracks. Meanwhile, Dr. Sikes' efforts resulted in a much-needed increased appropriation from the State, through the medium of the Legislature.

Dr. Sikes is keenly interested in the students' welfare, and does everything within his power to raise the intellectual and social standards of the Clemson Cadets. To this end, he asked that the new barracks be so designed that a smaller group of men would come in direct contact with one another, in order that they might form closer friendships. He also asked that each unit of the barracks contain a reception room, in which the cadet might meet the outside friends who came to visit him, and in which the members of the faculty could make interesting lectures to small groups on subjects not in the scope of the regular curriculum.

From the foregoing statements one can easily see that Dr. Sikes is a very capable College President, one who is truly interested in the members of the student body, and though his duties prevent him from knowing all of the cadets personally, he is never too busy to discuss and try to solve their problems.
If we examine closely any successful enterprise we will find at the back of it a very capable business manager, who, due to the very nature of his work, does not get all of the credit and very little of the glory for the way in which he handles the finances of the business. This is especially true of Clemson's genial Business Manager, Mr. J. C. Littlejohn. Due to the fact that his duties keep him very busy he does not have time to come in contact personally with a large number of the members of the student body, and thus they realize in a very small way just how much he has meant to Clemson.

Mr. Littlejohn finished Clemson in 1908, and has been connected with the College since that time in the various capacities of Instructor in the Engineering Department, Registrar, and Business Manager. Thus he is well acquainted with the problems confronting the College and truly has its best interests at heart. Because of his keen business interest and foresight, Clemson was able to come through the period of the depression and concurrent high prices without incurring any large indebtedness or increasing the student's fees. This alone is a fitting attest of his ability as a business executive. When the record-breaking '35-'36 enrollment overcrowded the existing barracks Mr. Littlejohn promptly remedied the situation by quickly constructing temporary barracks, which can be used as storerooms when the new permanent barracks are finished. The Business Manager was also very instrumental in procuring the loans for the expansion program now under way; and, to sum up his activities, he plays an integral part in everything for the betterment of Clemson in a financial way.
Clemson College was established primarily for the dissemination of scientific agricultural knowledge. It was logical, therefore, that the agricultural curriculum should attract many of those who come here for their education. When the institution first opened its doors in 1893, one hundred and fifty students registered for work in the twelve courses offered in General Agriculture, Horticulture, Dairying, and Botany. Today three hundred students are enrolled in one hundred courses which lead to degrees in Agricultural Economics, Agronomy, Animal Husbandry, Dairying, Entomology, Horticulture, and Agricultural Engineering. Specialized training is also provided in Forestry, in botanical subjects, in Poultry Husbandry, and in Veterinary Medicine.

Hundreds of our agricultural graduates have gone out and made their way into positions of leadership in their respective fields. With the entire agricultural industry being organized on a scale undreamed of a few years back, bringing changes of far reaching importance, it seems likely that opportunities will continue to beckon those interested in farming and its problems.

The new Agricultural Building, so long needed, will furnish greatly improved facilities for the work of the School of Agriculture, making possible more interesting, more thorough, and more efficient instruction.
School of
GENERAL SCIENCE

THE School of General Science is primarily a service school in that it gives training in the fundamental subjects common to all the other schools, so that every student in College is taught in its several departments. In addition the school of General Science offers several courses leading to the B.S. degree. Students may specialize in English, Physics, Mathematics, and the Social Sciences. Also, three-year pre-professional courses are offered for those who wish to prepare for Medicine, Law, Dentistry, etc. A student who completes the pre-professional course will be awarded a B.S. degree from Clemson when he is graduated from a recognized professional school.

The faculty of the School of General Science is composed of men who have had special training in their respective fields. All have degrees from recognized colleges and universities and all have done graduate work. Nine of the staff have the Ph.D., ten have M.A., and all the others have B.S. or B.A.
IN 1890, when so-called modern chemistry was but twenty-one years old, the Chemistry Building was erected at Clemson College. The first faculty, consisting of Colonel M. B. Hardin and Dr. R. N. Brackett, reported for duty in 1891, two years before the College opened its doors to students. In 1900 the building was enlarged to its present size.

On Colonel Hardin's retirement, Dr. Brackett became Director. In 1933 the School of Chemistry and Geology was formed, and Dr. F. H. H. Calhoun as Dean succeeded Dr. Brackett. The teaching staff now numbers twelve.

Early students of Chemistry returning to Clemson can find their old familiar laboratories and even their same old desks, but they find a very different curriculum—modern and broadened. The 640 freshmen who began their study of Chemistry in the fall of 1935 did not elect it as a favorite science, but accepted it as a fundamental part of their professional training whether they expect to become civil, electrical, mechanical, or textile engineers, agricultural experts, pre-medics, or chemists. Nor does a chemist have the narrow field of former years, but can now specialize in ramifications of chemical science not dreamed of forty years ago. Thus the courses now offered in this department reflect the enormous growth of the subject and its ever widening applications in industry and in the other sciences.
THE School of Engineering offers four-year courses leading to degrees in Chemical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering and Mechanical Engineering. Included in the Engineering School is one of the South's finest Architectural Schools, and the only one in South Carolina. In addition to these four-year courses we also offer electives in Electrical Engineering to those who desire to study Radio or the application of the various tubes to industry. In Mechanical Engineering we offer work in Air Conditioning, also elective in Aerodynamics. An elective in Refrigeration is also offered if there is a sufficient number who desire it.

Our buildings and equipment are the equal of any in the South. Our curricula are changed from time to time in order to keep abreast with the times and many of our faculty take advanced work, or work in the practical field in order that they may better serve the School.

It is the purpose of the Engineering School to fit men to take their places in industry, both in and out of the State. We are particularly interested in preparing men to take the leadership in industries already established and to establish other industries in the State, feeling that we need not only more industry in South Carolina but also a more diversified industry.

We point with a great deal of pride to many of the graduates of the School of Engineering who now occupy very responsible positions throughout the country.
THE military training of the students of Clemson College has always been an integral part of the curriculum, and one in which the students and friends of the school have manifested an unusual interest. In no other department of the College does the individual student have so good an opportunity to develop the qualities of leadership and responsibility which are absolutely necessary for success in the complex modern world of today.

The administration of the Corps of Cadets is carried out by Cadet Officers, selected for their inherent abilities, under the direct supervision of the Commandant.

The program of training is prescribed and supervised by regular Army personnel detailed by the War Department, and the actual military instruction is given by the Professor of Military Science and Tactics and his assistants.

When the War Department organized the Reserve Officers Training Corps, a unit was established at Clemson for the training of Reserve Officers for the Infantry branch of the service. This unit has been expanded until it is now the largest unit in the Fourth Corps Area, and one of the largest in the United States.

As an attest of the high standard maintained by the Military Department, Clemson has been given the rating of "Excellent" by the War Department Inspectors each year. This is the highest rating awarded.
School of

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

THE School of Vocational Education includes a teacher training program which involves the Departments of Agricultural Education and Trade and Industrial Education, and provides for a program of training for teachers of science. It involves not only the college departments mentioned above but three public schools — Calhoun-Clemson, Central, and Seneca. In addition, about twelve rural schools and three industrial communities are centers for evening class work in teacher training. The itinerant teacher training program in both Agricultural and Trade and Industrial Education extends out into many sections of the State. As a definite teacher training program, the work began at Clemson with the passing of the Smith-Hughes Act and its acceptance by the General Assembly of South Carolina in 1917.

When the training of agricultural teachers was started at Clemson, it was connected with the Department of Agriculture, where it remained as a division until several years ago.

Over ten years ago a sudden demand for Industrial Education on the part of students wishing to major in that field caused Agricultural Education to provide for that training as it was the only division that could give teacher training or educational subjects. The following year an Industrial Education teacher trainer was provided, but the work was carried on as part of the Agricultural Education program. However, Industrial Education was transferred to the Textile Department and became a Division in 1928.

When the College was reorganized into Schools, in order that all the teacher training might be co-ordinated under one directing head, the Division of Agricultural Education and Industrial Education were brought together to make the School of Vocational Education in 1932. The curriculum for training teachers of science is now in its first year of operation.

The School of Textiles was established in 1898 when Clemson became the first Land Grant College to offer textile courses. At that time there was little demand by manufacturers for college-trained men and only a small percentage of the early graduates found positions in actual manufacturing. Classes were small. There were three professors and only one course in Textile Engineering was offered.

This year the School of Textiles is thirty-seven years old and although it is still housed in the same building in which it started, it has a faculty of eleven members who teach textiles to approximately 275 students.

The Textile School offers three major courses: Textile Engineering, Textile Chemistry, and Weaving and Designing.

The attitude toward college graduates has changed in the last ten years. The value of technical training is now generally recognized and at the present time there is always a demand for graduates of the School of Textiles not only from South Carolina manufacturers, but also from those of neighboring States; in fact, Clemson Textile School has men to fill only about half the calls received for its graduates.
The ADMINISTRATIVE GROUP

ONE of the most important official groups on the campus is the Administrative Group, which is composed of the Business Manager, Commandant, Registrar, Alumni Secretary, Librarian and the Deans of the various schools. This group meets in executive sessions with the President, in an advisory capacity, at stated intervals, to discuss all matters related to the various phases of administration. The committee acts upon proposed changes in curriculum, student government, additions to the faculty and all other matters of a similar nature, and recommends such changes as it deems necessary.
The ADMINISTRATIVE YEAR

DURING the past TAPS year, which extends from January 1 to December 31, many things of an administrative nature have happened.

Clemson, being a State institution, must secure authorization from the General Assembly to enable it to undertake certain things. Such acts are known as Enabling Acts. The first one asked for this year was to enable the College to secure a loan and a grant from the Federal Government for the erection of a long-needed Agricultural Building. This request was unanimously and heartily endorsed by the Agricultural Committee of the House of Representatives on which there were several Clemson farmers. The General Assembly agreed that an Agricultural College without an agricultural building was an anomaly. To secure the loan the College agreed to pledge its income from the sale of Fertilizer Analysis tags. Faculty, students, former students, farmers, and friends were very helpful to the administration in securing this Enabling Act.

The next Act was one for the erection of additional barracks. No new barracks had been erected in twenty-five years, although the enrollment of students has been steadily increasing. This request was not received so cordially. Some said that one building a year was enough. Others said there were too many going to college. To pay for this loan the College agreed to pledge its income from room rents, thus costing the State nothing. Finally this measure was passed.

The Dairy Barn was burned during the session of the General Assembly. For the erection of a model up-to-date barn the General Assembly promptly granted the request for funds to supplement the insurance collected, and so the Dairy Barn was begun at once and paid for when completed.

Another request which was granted was to permit the Federal Government to build laboratories or other educational buildings on College lands. The General Assembly also very generously authorized the paving of certain roads on the campus, matched funds from the United States Department of Agriculture, and passed the usual appropriation bill with a slight increase.

The next hurdle to mount was to get the loan and grant from the authorities in Washington. This was delayed during the summer, but thanks to Senator Byrnes, the funds were allocated for the erection of both the Agricultural Building and the Dormitories. The contracts have now been let and the work will soon begin. The United States Department of Agriculture wished to enlarge its work in Cotton Spinning Testing and so it was necessary to build additional offices in connection with the Textile Building. The Works Progress Administration came to our assistance on this.

The inrush of new students, much larger than was expected, necessitated the erection of a temporary barrack at once to care for a hundred students. This relieved the crowding in some rooms. The overcrowded Mess Hall compelled the finding of extra space elsewhere which has greatly inconvenienced the Band.

The Federal Government has expanded its Extension activities and has made possible the employment of specialists in terracing and home management, another district home agent, and several additional agents in the counties. Much of the educational work of the Agricultural Adjustment Act has been transferred to the Extension Division along with the funds which amounted to $230,000 this year and which will be increased each year for the next four years. Since these new positions call for graduates of standard A. and M. Colleges most of the men will be recruited from the ranks of Clemson graduates.

The Agricultural Research Division is to receive additional funds from the Bankhead-Jones Act. This year the amount was $15,000 but an additional $15,000 will be added each year until it amounts to $75,000. These funds must be used on new research problems. The United States Department of Agriculture expects to establish in South Carolina a breeding laboratory for vegetables. This matter has been neglected in the South and it seems very timely when the South is looking for substitute crops for cotton. It is also planned to secure additional lands at some of the substations that more work may be done on tobacco.

Additional men have been sent and more will be sent to man the Cotton Spinning Research Laboratory at Clemson. This work is in cooperation with the Bureau of Plant Industry. The staff has been increased from five to nine, five of whom are Clemson graduates. Three or four additional men are to be added to the staff in the near future.

During the summer a unique summer school was conducted. It was indeed a practical school for the people. Various kinds of courses were offered. The type of student varied in training from the illiterate to the near Ph.D. and in age from six to sixty.
The large freshman class indicates that the distinctive type of instruction at Clemson is growing in popular favor. This is the largest freshman class in the history of the College and brings the total enrollment to high-water mark. While our facilities have been taxed beyond their capacity it augurs well for the future of the College. Among the first-year men were many who came from junior colleges, and who came from other colleges, seeking technical training. The National Youth Administration has helped many young men to stay here by securing jobs for them by which they could meet some of their expenses. Despite the rising cost of food-stuffs the College has been able to keep the cost of board moderate without accumulating any debts.

There have been several changes in the collegiate department. Absences from classes are reported by the teacher to the Registrar. A limited number of cuts are allowed to meet emergencies that may arise.

Dean H. W. Barre of the School of Agriculture has been granted a leave of absence to reorganize the work of the Division of Cotton and Other Fiber Crops of the United States Department of Agriculture. Mr. R. A. McGinty is in charge of the work during Dr. Barre’s absence. Dr. B. O. Williams is Acting Head of the Department of Agricultural Economics during the absence of Mr. G. H. Aull. Four men have been added to the faculty of the School of Agriculture. Dr. J. B. Edmond has been appointed Associate Professor of Horticulture. He holds his Ph.D. Degree from the University of Maryland. There was such a call for work in Forestry that a Department of Forestry was added to the School of Agriculture. Dr. R. A. Cockrell has been made Head of the Department. Mr. O. M. White is Assistant in Botany. Mr. R. H. Jones, Graduate Assistant in Agricultural Engineering, is a graduate of Mississippi State College.

The School of Chemistry and Geology has to care for so many students it has been necessary to appoint four graduate assistants to help with the laboratory work. The young men are recent Clemson graduates. The following have been appointed: B. H. Hodges, H. B. Kirkegard, J. E. Land, and R. T. Rogers.

There are two new men in the School of General Science. Dr. J. E. Ward has been made Associate Professor of Economics and Political Science. Dr. Ward holds his Ph.D. Degree from the University of Virginia. Mr. J. W. LaGrone is Instructor in Mathematics. Mr. LaGrone was graduated from Clemson and later received his M.A. Degree from Vanderbilt University.

There are several changes in the School of Textiles. Mr. Joseph Lindsay, Jr., has been appointed Professor of Textile Chemistry and Dyeing. He was graduated from Erskine College and has studied at the Philadelphia Textile School. Mr. T. H. Nelson is Instructor in Textiles. He holds an M.S. Degree from North Carolina State College. Mr. Bratton Williams is Assistant Professor in Weaving. Mr. Williams was graduated from Clemson in 1925. Mr. W. G. Day is Assistant Professor of Carding and Spinning. He graduated from Clemson in 1931.

There is only one change in the Military Department. Major L. D. Hutson has been appointed Assistant to the Commandant and Assistant Professor of Military Science and Tactics. Major Hutson graduated from Clemson College before entering the Army.

The installation of a remote control studio operating through Station WAIR has given the College radio opportunity which is used by all the departments of the College and also certain organizations. There have been gatherings here during the year, the largest being the annual convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. The Daughters are deeply interested in the preservation of the Calhoun Mansion and are planning its restoration. The Highway Department is planning to pave roads on the Campus and to widen the main highway. At the College this year samples of soils of thousands of farms in South Carolina have been analyzed and the analyses sent to the farmers, the county agents, and a copy retained in the Extension office.

The finances of the College have been kept in good shape. All accounts have been paid and even the funds borrowed on the Field House have been repaid. The College has weathered the storm of the depression without the loss of any funds through bank failures or otherwise. While salaries have not been restored no one has gone unpaid. Altogether the future of the College seems bright and it is proposed to render the State more valuable service than has been done in the past. The depression has taught the need for trained men. Both agriculture and industry are looking for men of intelligence, character, and adaptability. The times challenge faculty, students, and friends. Opportunity spells obligation. Let us all gird ourselves for the task which is to raise up, qualify, and send forth more men to solve our social and economic problems.

at CLEMSON
CLEMSON'S NEW BUILDINGS
Under the PWA PROGRAM

Since the disastrous fire destroyed the Agricultural Building, this School has been quartered in the Library Building. The rapid expansion of the Agricultural School, coupled with the ever-increasing student body, has made the need for an Agricultural Building more apparent each year. This increase of the student body has also overcrowded the limited rooming facilities of the existing barracks; consequently, when the P. W. A. announced that it would lend large sums of money to self-liquidating agencies for the purpose of making permanent improvements, the College authorities requested the sum of $400,000 for each of the buildings needed. The request was granted, $220,000 of each of the $400,000 being a loan, while the remaining $180,000 was a direct gift to the College.

The Agricultural Building is to consist of classrooms, laboratories, an ample auditorium, offices for the Extension Department, and will be modern in every respect. The barracks, of modern fireproof construction, are to consist of four units of fifty rooms, with a spacious reception room in each. In the basements of the units will be located rifle ranges and rooms for various student activities. These buildings will not only accommodate the rapidly expanding student body but will also add greatly to the appearance of the Campus.

Below are the architects' drawings of the Agricultural Building and Barracks as they will appear when completed. As the Taps goes to press the excavations for the foundations are being made and every effort will be made to have the major portion of the work completed by the opening of the next school session.

Foregoings of the CLASS OF '36

BACK in the fall of 1932 the rather tremulous air which hung over the nation was reverberating with the sound of breaking banks and the angry muttering of the masses. The stock market was making a few dispirited attempts to pick itself up from the cellar floor. Tattered rags which covered the shivering bodies of half the nation's once proud citizens were flapping dismally in the chill breezes. There was nothing around the corner but another brendline. Politicians, the length and breadth of the country, were prophesying hoarsely, and for the thousandth time, that the upturn was now due. The Republican Party was reading the handwriting on the wall. We were at home packing our trunks while tired parents sat on the edges of beds and told us that we were very fortunate to be going to college, conditions being what they were.

Once at Clemson the cloistered atmosphere shut off the outside world. Things went much as usual, but we didn't realize this at that time. We were given the usual hazing and we thought it the toughest in existence—in fact, most of us still do! We worked diligently, more diligently, we are sure, than any other college freshmen ever worked. Outside, the world heaved and rolled over and over, in going through one of the most severe economic and social upheavals she has ever known, but we scarcely noticed it.

The years that followed were much the same. The world rocked along through the revolution, famine and flood, and we didn't care. We struggled through calculus, genetics, thermodynamics, art and quantitative analysis and the world didn't care. Our class, not a particularly large one, decreased more rapidly than usual as the depression took its toll and we became sophomores and then juniors. The playboys of prosperity were all gone and a more serious air pervaded the campus. We had no money and perhaps the most valuable thing we learned in college was the art of getting along on nothing a week.

The leaders came to the front in these years as we fought and bled for our Alma Mater, played politics, and, to use the accepted form, "snatched." We struck up friendships and we made enemies. We worked and we wasted time.

This, our last year, took us a little by surprise. We looked up one day and we were officers, editors, fraternity presidents. Looking about us for something to reform, some steps to take that would leave a glowing memory behind us, we found that nearly everything possible had been done by the seniors of last year. So we went along, discharging our duties as student leaders to the best of our abilities. A few changes for the betterment of the College have been brought about by our regime—we hope.

We make no claims to being the best class the College has turned out. We did our work well, but not extraordinarily so. Perhaps we do not have the necessary requirements for greatness or perhaps our shortcomings were due to the fact that no other class has ever been so harried by financial worries as has ours. We have no apologies to make and we feel that the College need never be ashamed of us. That is sufficient.

The end has come and we find that in four years of our seclusion the world has completed its revolution. The first indication was the bumper freshman class which arrived this year. We are a handful beside the army that enrolled last fall. Newspaper headlines indicate shorter breadlines, greater employment, and general financial improvement. It looks now as if the upturn is actually here, as if prosperity has finally rounded the corner.

When we entered here four years ago we left behind us an atmosphere of gloom and despair. As we leave, the dawn is breaking, bringing with it a new day, new hope, new ambition, for a tired world. We have a new confidence as we go forth in search of our daily bread. And much of that confidence arises from the conviction that we meet the battle with ample equipment gained in these four years spent at Clemson.

The COLOR GUARD
The United States ARMY OFFICERS

The school year 1935-36 has seen the Clemson Cadet Corps reach new heights. With the co-operation of the Commandant and Professor of Military Science and Tactics, much more authority has been released to the cadet officers than was formerly the rule. Under this system there has been developed in the corps a greater initiative on the part of both officers and men, a higher regard for military law and discipline, and a finer esprit de corps, these soldierly qualities being reflected in all phases of student activities, and conspicuous to all those coming in contact with the cadet regiment. The parades during the year have been excellent; due to the greatly increased size of the corps, the formation of a fourth battalion was necessitated, as was the change of formation from line of battalions.
And the Cadet Regimental STAFF

in column of close column to line of battalions in close column of companies, both being innovations which have excited much favorable comment.

It is hoped by the officers that during the past session there has been inculcated into the corps a spirit which will continue to grow and be expressed in both the lives of each member of the regiment, and in the activity of the corps as a unit, and that each cadet will be imbued with spirit that binds Clemson men together. May each cadet work for the regiment, remembering that though the corps is composed of many men, it is the regiment as a unit that is Clemson.

Probably one of the most valuable groups, yet least known, as far as its work is concerned, is the Regimental Staff. The average member of the Cadet Corps thinks of the Staff Captain as a "beat-out," but he is far from that. The Regimental Adjutant is responsible that the orders of the Regimental Commander are transmitted to the Cadet Corps, through the various channels. The Supply Officer assists the Quartermaster when clothing and equipment are issued. The Plans and Training Officer helps plan and supervise the various parades, especially the weekly Battalion parades. The Personnel Officer details the members of the guard, and is responsible that the guard detail is complete. The other members of the group perform duties of various natures, as prescribed. From this summary, we find that the staff is a very useful and important group, composed of very responsible men.

The SENIOR DEMONSTRATION COMPANY

A YEAR AGO, the present Seniors formed what was called the Junior Platoon and elected as their Commander, Robert F. Scott. The unit took second place in the close order drill competition at the Fourth Corps Area R. O. T. C. Camp held at Fort McClellan, Alabama. Although the platoons were not judged in their fancy drill at camp, the Clemson platoon drew a tremendous applause.

Working with the Junior Platoon as a base, a Senior Platoon was formed, composed of forty-three outstanding military leaders. The platoon, besides being the pride of Clemson’s Military Department, has gained wide praise as being one of the outstanding fancy drill organizations of the country. In making five formal appearances, the platoon drilled before some forty-five thousand enthusiastic spectators, and in so doing, brought a great deal of favorable comment from leading Southern newspapers. The crack fancy drill team has brought more praise and recognition of Clemson than any platoon of Clemson’s history. Their most spectacular drill was at the Alabama-Clemson football game in Tuscaloosa, when they received a continuous and thunderous applause from the very beginning until the end of the performance.

PASSING IN REVIEW and TRAINING IN PROGRESS...

As a regular feature of the military instruction the Cadet Regiment stages many parades on Bowman Field, which attract visitors from the entire Piedmont section. The appearance of the Corps “Passing in Review” in full dress uniform of spotless white trousers, gray coats and white cross belts, intermingled with the color superimposed by the brilliant sashes and glistening sabres of the Cadet Officers is a very impressive sight, worthy of the many favorable comments from the spectators. One parade which merits more than passing note is the annual “Moonlight Parade,” held in honor of the Honorary Cadet Colonel. By day and by night, the Corps “Passing in Review” presents a brilliant spectacle.

The Corps Marches On

Every member of the Cadet Corps is required to complete the two-year basic R. O. T. C. course during the four years of compulsory military training. Those men desiring to do so and meeting the physical requirements may elect the two-year advanced course. Upon its completion, they are commissioned as Second Lieutenants in the Infantry Reserve. Many of these officers continue their military training upon graduation, through correspondence schools and the various Reserve Officers Camps held each summer. Through this means they may obtain higher commissions. A limited number of the Reserve Officers are permitted to enter the regular service as Second Lieutenants, the same rank as a cadet from West Point holds upon graduation.

JESS NEELY, soft spoken coach of the Bengals, has proven himself to be a very capable head of the Athletic Department. Starting with a deficit in the treasury, and practically no playing material, Coach Neely and his staff have more than balanced the budget, and developed teams which made a clean sweep of Palmetto Athletics the past season. The football team made a very creditable showing this season despite the fact that it tackled one of the hardest schedules in the history of Clemson football.

The Cadet Corps is very grateful to Coach Neely for the manner in which he has brought Clemson Athletics to the forefront and pledges to him its most loyal and whole-hearted support.
UNDER the guidance of Head Coach Jess Neely, Clemson's Tigers are steadily roaring back to their former spot among the most feared athletic teams of the South. The 1935 season, featuring six victories against three losses, followed the exceptionally successful 1934 season of five wins and four losses against nine of the toughest teams that can be found below the Mason and Dixon line.

Reporting for practice on Labor Day, thirty-five Bengals took the field and buckled down to immediate work under Jess Neely, Head Coach; Joe Davis, end coach; Frank Howard, line director; and Earl Hoagland, former Purdue University star who was secured to assist in the development of the backfield.

A three-weeks practice period of calisthenics, signal drills, punting, passing, blocking, tackling and heavy scrimmages under a blazing September sun whipped the Bengals into excellent condition for the season's opener with Coach Walter Johnson's always-to-be-respected Presbyterian College team.

The Tigers of 1935 were led by Captain Harry Shore, versatile man-of-all-positions from Savannah who performed brilliantly at end, guard, center and in the backfield during his three years with the Neelymen. Shore's all around excellence is substantiated by the fact that he won All-South Carolina honors at guard his junior year and last fall was selected as the mythical All-State center. Tom Brown, brilliant tackle from Cross City, Florida, was Alternate Captain of the last Clemson production.
APPROXIMATELY seven thousand anxious spectators witnessed the opening game of the new season at Clemson when the Tiger powerhouse turned on the steam to down the Calvinists, 25 to 6, in one of the most impressive victories Clemson has registered over Walter Johnson’s fighting Blue Stockings in several seasons of competition.

A new star took his place among Southern gridiron luminaries as Winston “Streak” Lawton, speedy little one-hundred-and-fifty-pound miniature giant from Thacker, West Virginia, set off the initial spark in the second period with a forty-five-yard run that featured his fleeting heels and untouchable hips on the goalward journey that paved the way to Clemson’s victorious introduction to the public. ‘Dusty” Wiles, a sophomore playing his first varsity football game, rang up the first score of the new season from the four-yard line.

The second new star made his appearance five minutes later when Joe Berry, of Union, headed the sixty-five-yard drive that terminated in Mac Folger’s powerful exhibition of line plunging that carried him over from the ten-yard line. Again in the third period, Folger’s powerful charge opened another ten-yard path through the Presbyterians for the third score of the game. The consistency of Clemson’s new-found stars brought encouragement to the Tiger backers. The fourth score was chalked up by Clyde Pennington after Joe Berry had again led the drive from midfield.

The totally outclassed Presbyterians scored late in the fourth period when Waldrep caught Lawton’s tumble on his own forty-five-yard line and raced the distance to the goal, untouched by the Bengals that participated in the race.
DISPLAYING their ability to fight from behind, and their intentions of presenting Clemson with one of the finest football records in the history of the school, the Royal Bengals overtook a seven-point lead at Blacksburg, Virginia, to turn in their first Southern Conference victory of the year by virtue of the 28 to 7 defeat they administered the Virginia Gobblers.

The Techmen scored within ten minutes of the opening whistle when Captain Louis Fittro gathered in a fifty-yard pass from Mel Henry and crossed the final stripe standing. Sodaro added the point from placement and Clemson was holding the small end of the ball game.

Blasting the theory that Clemson cannot put up a ball game out of the bounds of South Carolina, the Royal Bengals fell in behind Joe Berry and "Streak" Lawton to even the count in the second period when Folger crashed over from the one-yard line and rode on to an overwhelming victory in the fourth period by virtue of a trio of touch downs in rapid fire order.

Big Cliff Henley plowed through to partially block a punt that was finally gathered in by Tate Horton on the V. P. I. twenty-three-yard line and returned for a touchdown before the Gobblers could find the ball.

Joe Berry again flashed into the spotlight to personally account for Clemson's third score of the afternoon. Intercepting a pass on his own twenty-three-yard line, the Tiger quarterback weaved back to V. P. I.'s forty, directed the running attack up to the twenty-five and then circled the right end for the remaining distance. Berry again figured prominently in the final scoring for the day when his twenty-three-yard pass to Pennington was completed in the end zone and two minutes later the roar of Clemson's Tiger again vibrated through the Blue Ridge range.
IT was on a blazing Saturday afternoon early in October that "Streak" Lawton personally managed Clemson's third successive victory of the 1935 season and vaulted to a place among the most sensational gridiron "finds" of the year. In a manner not yet fully understood the big Clemson Tigers allowed a fighting team of Wake Forest demons to take complete command of the first thirty minutes of play and stand at the head of the class at the midway mark: Wake Forest, 7—Clemson, 6.

Walton Kitchen, Wake Forest halfback, who was one of the finest performers ever to take the pigskin on Riggs Field, had passed to Bert Shore for the first touchdown of the game and Kitchen had added the extra point. Lawton's fourteen-yard run had given the Bengals scoring position and Mac Folger proved unstoppable within the ten-yard line. His three powerful thrusts at the line netted five yards and a score, but Clemson's inability to convert the extra point left the Tigers trailing at the half.

Vinson Edens, standing on Wake Forest's thirty-five-yard line, pounded the pigskin viciously enough to sail it thirty-five yards downfield when the Clemson "Streak" gathered it in on his own thirty. His head pumping in the manner of a circus pony, feet flying with uncanny swiftness and elusiveness, and hips swaying even more deceptively than an expert South Sea islander, Lawton lit out for the sidelines, encountered a nest of would-be Wake Forest tacklers, bobbed up again in the open on the fifty-yard line and sped easily past the man Tom Brown had blocked out. Balancing on the sidelines with the sureness of a tight rope artist, the "Streak" outsped the Wake Forest backfield for a distance of forty yards.

It was one of the most thrilling punt returns the Clemson field has ever seen and there are those who will say that had Lawton's shoes been a size larger, he would have been out of bounds. It brought Clemson's third win of the year and sent the Bengals to Durham undefeated.

The Wake Forest Game—Fake Reverse
CLEMSON, 12—DUKE, 38

Duke University, the "wonder" team of the year (they had everyone wondering what to expect next)—the team that was to lose to Georgia Tech and Auburn and then blast the powerful North Carolina team out of the national spotlight—handled Clemson her first defeat of the year.

Playing superb football and to all appearances the team of the year, Wallace Wade's Blue Devils fell in behind Elmore Hackney, Jule Ward and Jack Alexander to take complete command of the game before it was five minutes old. Two touchdowns in the first period, followed by two more in the second and one in both the third and fourth proved entirely too much for the two scores Clemson was able to rack up as a result of a spectacular forward lateral from Berry to Folger to Lawton that led to both of Clemson's scores.

Completely unable to gain through the powerful Clemson forward wall that presented Inabinet and Croxton two of the finest guards the Durham field saw this year and a pair of excellent tackles in Black and Brown with Harry Shore and Al Yarborough playing the pivot post in fine style, the Duke boys had very little trouble following perfect interference outside Clemson's ends for telling yardage and resulting touchdowns. Clemson scored in the second quarter when the lateral to Lawton worked for twenty-two yards and Folger cracked the line for four yards. Another score in the fourth period when Lawton traveled thirty-eight yards with the lateral to Duke's ten and Berry, Pennington and Lawton hit the line for the touchdown, Pennington scoring.
Although still unexplained whether it was the humiliating defeat handed them by Duke or whether the Tigers merely played the football of which they were capable, the fact nevertheless stands that at the State Fair classic some thirty Bengal football warriors came into their own to ring up one of the most decisive victories in the thirty-nine-year history of the Palmetto football classic when they downed the weakened Gamecocks 44 to 0.

The selection of individual stars that flashed over the Columbia greensward is an injustice to the remainder of the squad, we know, but how can one refrain from mentioning the brilliance with which Brown, Black, Troutman and Henley crashed through the Gamecock line to block punts, the way Inabinet, Croxton, Wyse and Bryant played a great deal of the game in the Carolina backfield, the manner in which Shore, Yarborough and Lewis backed up the line, the defiance of Shuford, the McConnells and Kissam at ends?

For the dazzling performances of Berry, Lee, Folger, Horton, Lawton, Wiles and Pennington there is one adjective—unstoppable. Joe Berry was all over the field, running, passing, intercepting passes and returning punts, not to mention the flawlessness of his signal calling. Who saw that game who does not remember the powerful plunging and blocking exhibitions of Folger and Lee and the punting of Horton? The multitude of fans still vividly remember the again superb performance of “Streak” Lawton.

In devoting much space to Clemson, Carolina is not forgotten. In the face of the overwhelming odds of the Tiger at his height, the Gamecocks fought gamely and fell in defeat only to sheer manpower and superiority.
THE climax was capped, unfortunately, in midseason and a powerful Tiger started winding up its 1935 campaign. An engagement with Mercer, played in Augusta before a filled high school section and possibly fifteen hundred more spectators, revealed a shell of the ferocious Tiger of the week before. The battling boys of Mercer held the score to 13 to 0; there is very little else to tell.

Clemson did not play a bad football game, but neither did the Tiger give an exceptionally brilliant account of itself. Mercer was really battling that day, which doubtless makes up part of the difference. Berry’s passing again came to the front, heaves of twenty and thirty yards to Horton and Folger, respectively, marking the Tigers’ scores that the brilliant efforts of Allen, Owen and Bryan threatened on several occasions but could not quite wipe away.
Clemson, 0—Alabama, 33

We now turn our attention to Alabama—of necessity. The team of Red Elephants that Clemson encountered at Tuscaloosa deserve the praise for the game they played that early November afternoon. Unlike Duke, who was unable to gain consistently except around Clemson’s ends, Alabama piled up the yardage wherever the fancy struck them, except possibly the end on which Don Shuford was stationed.

At this time, please allow a brief pause from the Alabama write-up to mention the brilliant work of Shuford. The Georgetown boy was not even slightly stage struck on foreign soil and buckled down to the business of stopping the plays directed his way and, if you’ll pardon the slang, he darn well did it.

Behind the great front trench playing of Jim Whatley, Tarzan White, Key Francis and Jim Walker in particular, the Alabama backfield of Riley Smith, Rudy Rhordantz and Joe Kilgrow, the Red Elephants chalked up thirty-three points while the Tigers struggled in vain.
Opinions differ, naturally, but the majority votes the Clemson-Citadel game the best Clemson contest of the year.

It was played in Charleston, blessed with ideal weather and two good football teams. The vital statistic was "Streak" Lawton's ten-yard power run on his first play that carried him over the final white line and gave Clemson the six-point margin that proved enough—both to win and to make the game exceptionally exciting.

There was a lot of good football paraded before the fans that afternoon. Specifically, the punting of Tate Horton of Clemson and Ed Hall of The Citadel, the fine line performances of Clemson's Brown, Black, Troutman, Inabinet, Shuford and Kissam and the equally commendable work of Manly, Lowe and Rogers of the Bulldog team.

Though their work failed to materialize into touchdowns, the fact nevertheless is recorded in history that Berry, Folger, Lee and Horton contributed colorful exhibitions of passing, ball carrying, blocking and defensive work, while the same may be said of Claude McCredie, Andy Hall and Arthus Ferguson of The Citadel.
O UR hearts, souls and fingers grow rebellious when we are heartlessly ordered to write of Furman's Thanksgiving Day victory over the Tigers, but rebel as we may, we sit here in a helpless trance, knowing our fingers are pounding out that Furman had the best football team that rough Thanksgiving afternoon.

In saying that Clemson played a good brand of football we add to the honor of Furman's victory—and without restraint. In no way subtracting from the superiority of Furman's play, we wish to record here for future reference that the game was played on a field ankle deep in mud by players caked with a two-inch layer of the plaster. It was a nightmare for the players as well as for the record crowd of spectators and the Purple Hurricane deserves praise for its ability to sit its saddle in weather fair or foul.

There were events that justify whole-hearted praise; the brilliant line work of Manuel Black and Tom Brown, who were responsible for Clemson's early touchdown; the fine work of Clarence Inabinet and John Troutman, who ended their years with the Tigers in very commendable style; the all around excellence of Joe Berry and, in particular, the 60-yard punt return that fell short of the victory mark by only twenty yards, and other individual feats that of necessity cannot be enumerated here. The scoreboard reads: Furman, 8—Clemson, 6, and may we add the notation: Well done?

FROM the largest Freshman Class in the history of the College over one hundred men responded to "Bob" Jones' call for material with which to keep the ranks of the Tigers at fighting strength when the last whistle shall have sounded for the Varsity players who have done their last bit towards making Clemson a power among the best teams of the South. From this large group were selected about fifty of the most promising players, and though they were not outstanding in the strict sense of the word, they did show that Clemson will not be lacking when the next season begins.

THE RESUMÉ OF THE SEASON

CLEMSON opened their season with a tour of Dixie and in a double header at Auburn, defeated the Plainsmen 33 to 23 and again the next evening 31 to 18.

Following the Christmas holidays, the Royal Bengals journeyed to Chapel Hill where they lost a thrilling game to N. C. U. by a score of 24 to 23. Bryce and Pennington were outstanding for the Tigers. Continuing their tour, the Tigers piled up a 13 point lead in the first half and defeated the University of Virginia 45 to 34.
Swinging homeward, they lost a game to N. C. State at Raleigh, 47 to 33. The Wolfpack maintained the lead throughout the game.

After a short rest, the Clemson basketeers paid a visit to Georgia Tech in Atlanta and came out on the long end of a hard-fought 35 to 32 score. Led by Pennington, the Tigers overcame a Georgia Tech half-time lead to win in the last few minutes of play.

Opening the State basketball campaign at home, Clemson played a perfect defensive game as they defeated Wofford 37 to 13. Continuing their brilliant play on the local hardwood, the Davismen eked out a bitterly fought 31 to 30 victory over the Carolina quintet. Spearman

What was supposed to be the toughest battle of the season turned into a rout as the Tigers journeyed to Greenville to renew their rivalry with Furman. Leading 23 to 9 at the half, Clemson's subs finished the game, reducing the Hurricane to a breeze by a score of 41 to 33. Pennington, Bryce and Cheves were outstanding for Clemson. With this victory over Furman, Clemson began eyeing the state basketball title.

The Davis proteges again donned their travelling togs as they invaded Virginia for a trio of Southern Conference games.
V. P. I. at Blacksburg first felt defeat at the hands of the inv-vaders by a decisive 46 to 32 score. V. P. I. took the lead but Pennington and Spearman soon served notice as to the final outcome. The next night, the Tigers lost to Washington and Lee—the Southern Conference leaders, by a score of 34 to 26.
With a series of perfect long shots at the first of the game, W.
& L., gained a lead which the Tigers were unable to overcome.
The last stand in Virginia was against V. M. I. at Lexington as the Tigers increased their Southern Conference standing, 43 to 36. Clemson's lead during the first half was sufficient to withstand a determined rally on the part of the Cadets in the final period. Pennington, as usual, led the scoring with 18 points.
THE GEORGIA BULLDOGS handed the Tigers their worst defeat of the season at Athens by running wild during the second half and ending the tilt 33 to 13.

In the second encounter with the Furman Hurricane, Clemson again had little difficulty deflating the visitors, 50 to 23, retaining their undefeated status in state competition. Clemson played brilliant defensive ball, while Spearman, Bryce, Cheves and Pennington repeatedly broke through the Furman defensive to toss goal after goal.

Clemson clinched the state basketball title by handing the Carolina Gamecocks a 43 to 30 lacing at Columbia. It was anybody’s ball game until Pennington and Spearman went wild with the score at 23-23 and eight minutes left until the final whistle. Pennington was responsible for 20 points, while Spearman garnered 11. This game was the sixth straight victory for the Tigers in the Palmetto League and assured them the championship.

The Clemson hardwood artists’ victory march was temporarily halted as N. C. State invaded Tiger-town and piled up a lead which Clemson’s last quarter rally failed to overcome. The final score was 27 to 21. Berry, N. C. State’s star forward, scored eleven points, strengthening his hold on first position in Southern Conference scoring, while Pennington’s nine points were sufficient to boost him into second place.

The roar of the Bengal Tiger sounded the sweetest revenge of the season as it decisioned the Georgia Bulldog in the Clemson Field House. The Clemson lead of 11 points to Georgia’s 3 during the first half was sufficient to withstand a determined Bulldog assault as the game ended, 27 to 24.

A last second goal during the extra period was the margin by which N. C. U.’s White Phantoms again handed the Tigers a licking in the most fiercely contested battle seen in the Clemson Field House this season. A wildly cheering crowd saw the Tigers go down in defeat 35-34.

With a successful season behind them, the Tiger Basketeers are looking forward to the Southern Conference Meet at Raleigh later in the season where they will renew rivalries with other members of the Conference.

THE SQUAD
Standing—Verner, Lancaster, Carter, Coach Davis.
Middle—Cheves, Bryce, Kitchens, Rice.
Bottom—Spearman, Pennington, Brown, Crawford.
The varsity players

The varsity basketball squad will lose four valuable veterans in the graduation of Pennington, Brown, Spearman, and Crawford. The remainder provides a nucleus for a team which promises to be as outstanding as those of the past.

Clyde Pennington is one of the best shots Clemson has ever had, and the grace and ease with which he tosses goals makes the hardest shots look easy.

Tom Brown adds thrills to every game with his bullet-like passes across the full length of the court, and his brilliant defensive play is worthy of the highest praise.

Pete Spearman, another of the Senior veterans, is one of the fastest men on the court and his timely shots close under the basket have decided many close games.

Bryce, a very versatile center, outjumps most opponents and deserves praise for his excellent play despite the handicap of a leg injury early in the season.

Verner, Kitchens and Cheves are promising Sophomores who will be mainstays in the lineup next year. Kitchens and Cheves have seen much service during the past season.

Rice, Crawford and Carter deserve much credit for their splendid spirit—such men are essential in sustaining the morale of a team.

Top Row: Pennington, forward; Brown, guard.
Second Row: Spearman, forward; Bryce, center; Verner, guard.
Bottom Row: Kitchens, guard; Cheves, forward; Carter, center; Crawford, forward; Rice, forward.
TRACK
RUNNING, hopping, skipping and jumping in the manner of two-year-olds with the halters off, Clemson's powerful track team of the 1935 season turned in a record-breaking performance at the State cinder festival in Clinton when the proteges of Frank Howard amassed a total of 71-5/6 points, thereby surpassing by more than seven points the total point record set by Presbyterian College in 1931.

Running a comparatively slow second to the high-flying Bengals, Presbyterian rang up 39 points, with Furman, South Carolina, Newberry, Wofford, and The Citadel following in the order named.

Two of the three new records set at the meet were registered by Tiger performers, while a Furman luminary shattered the other. Bob Carter, Tiger Sophomore ace, stepped off the 120-yard high hurdles in the record-breaking pace of 14.4 seconds, while "Bubber" Blackwell was achieving his athletic ambition with an 184 foot 9-1/2 inch javelin heave that surpassed the former mark by eight inches. The third record for the day sped away under the flying discus unleashed by Bob King, Furman ace, who tossed the plate 135 feet, 8-1/16 inches, bettering by 1/16 inch the record set by Tom Craig of South Carolina a year before.

A newcomer to the ranks of South Carolina track and field stars, Bob Carter was voted the individual star of the meet and awarded the medal for that honor. Carter stood at the head of the class in individual points, piling up a total of the not-so-lucky 13.
Summary of the 1935 Season

One of the finest teams Clemson ever placed on the cinder path proved to be the production of genial Frank Howard, youthful track mentor of the Bengals. Tackling a hard schedule, Howard brought his men through with four victories and one loss.

Clemson opened the season with Georgia's flying Bulldogs March 30, and with a well-balanced track and field team, held the lead throughout, winning by a score of 80 to 51. Ford of Clemson was runner-up for individual scoring with first in the 100 and 220 events, and second in the broad jump.

On April 6 the Tigers lost a very close meet to Georgia Tech on Grant Field, when the Jackets relay team proved a little too strong, giving Tech a $67\frac{1}{2}$ to $64\frac{1}{4}$ victory.

In the meet with P. C., April 13, the Blue Stockings, who were conceded to have the second best track team in the State, were virtually snowed under, by a score of $97\frac{1}{2}$ to $32\frac{1}{2}$; P. C. took only three first places, and failed to place in several events.

The Tigers ended the home season with a 99 to 32 victory over the University of South Carolina. Ford of Clemson was individual high scorer, accounting for 13 points.

In the dual meet with Furman April 27, the Tigers copped 13 of the 14 track and field events, to win the meet by a score of $95\frac{1}{2}$ to $30\frac{1}{2}$. Ford again led the field for individual scoring, placing first in the 100 and 220 events, and also first in the broad jump.

Running against the finest of the Southern crop at the league meet in Durham, the Tigers placed fourth, the highest ranking held by Clemson in many years.

The State Champions
THE TRACK TEAM

ONE of the highlights of the Track season was the unparalleled performances of the high jump team, composed of McMahon, Carter and Bryce. This trio placed first, second and third in every dual meet, which went far towards the winning of the State Championship.
BOXING
THE Clemson Pugilists formally opened what proved to be a successful season, that brought with it the State Championship, by outfighting the University of Georgia boxers 5½ to 2½ in eight fast college bouts. In the opening bout, Barrow of Georgia, gained a T. K. O. over Williams, and after "Teddy" Boselli verified the promise he showed as a Freshman by winning his fight in the featherweight division, "Bubber" Dawson evened the K. O. count with Stevens as his victim. At this point, Coach Bob Jones' namesake and protege, Sophomore Bob Jones, made his debut in the junior welter division with the vaunted Radutzky, Southeastern Conference Champion, as his opponent. The newcomer to Clemson's team gave a masterful show of boxing skill and technique in holding the champion to a draw, the first and only blot on Radutzky's otherwise perfect record. The other four bouts went the way of good fights with Georgia taking one and Clemson gaining decisions in the last three.

The Tigers had tasted victory and when N. C. State visited them in their lair, they were not to be denied. Jackie Williams erased his name from the rolls of the K. O. club by gaining a T. K. O. over his opponent. Captain "Swede" Henley gained his first K. O. of the season in a slam-bang affair. State's only victory came as a result of Captain Hudson's well-earned victory over Bob Jones, experience proving the deciding factor.

Clemson's undefeated boxers made quick work of their third opponents of the year in defeating South Carolina by a decisive 6 to 2 score. There were three K. O.'s among these fights, Bob Jones, Roddy Kissam overwhelming their Gamecock opponents in such a style as to set the stage for Captain Henley's fusilade of leather that overcame Mills of Carolina in one minute and forty seconds of the first round.
Clemson's next opponents proved a tartar to the victory march. The University of Florida presented a well-balanced and experienced team that fought the Tigers to a 4 to 4 draw. The feature fight of the night, Captain Henley's thrilling knockout victory over "Big Six" Jones in the second round, proved to be the deciding factor in giving Clemson the draw.

The Tigers' took up the victory torch again and defeated the Plainsmen from Auburn by a record 8 to 0 score, a rare occurrence in college pugilistic circles. Clemson capitalized on Auburn's inexperience and gave the Plainsmen a sound lesson in the fine art of self-defense. Inasmuch as it was Auburn's initial fight, and first boxing team, we must say that they put up some good fights and the spirit which they showed was admirable. Dawson, Jones and Henley won their fights by the K. O. route.

In a return match with the University of Georgia, the Tigers came out on the short end of a 4½ to 3½ match, consisting of bouts that were full of action and closely fought all the way. Georgia presented a team which was much improved over the one that the Tigers met at the beginning of the season. "Ripper" Murray made his second appearance of the season for the Jungaleers and scored a second win, "Bubber" Dawson again gained a knockout over his opponent. Captain Radutzky, Georgia's Champion, went after Bob Jones, the holder of the only blot on his record, and gained revenge through a K. O. in the second round. With the score 4 to 3 and the heavyweight fight coming up, Milton secured Georgia's victory by holding Captain Henley to a draw, the match ending 4½ to 3½.

The Tiger squad is one of the strongest in Clemson's ring history and Coach Bob Jones and his proteges are to be commended for the excellent manner in which they carried Clemson's colors to the front. As "Taps" goes to press, they are preparing to journey to Charlottesville, Va., for the Southern Conference Meet where they give promise of making a good showing, being one of the favored contenders for the Conference crown.

This season marks the finale of three men who have fought the good fight for Clemson, and whose last season ended their college boxing careers in a blaze of glory. "Jackie" Williams, Alt. Capt. "Bubber" Dawson and Capt. "Swede" Henley will be sorely missed next year.

Little "Teddy" Boselli is one of the fastest scientific boxers in the Southern ring.

Nathans' nonchalant attacks prove very unexpected to his opponents and his continued improvement will class him as a very valuable man on the squad.

"Bubber" Dawson is the most skillful member of the team, and his fake attacks have proved to be the downfall of all of his opponents.

Captain Cliff Henley, whose steady improvement during the year was quite marked, deserves a great deal of credit for the capable manner in which he has led the squad through a very successful season.

"Roddy" Kissam's short uppercuts, rangy style and aggressiveness have brought him through the year with only one defeat.

Bob Jones' ability to absorb punishment and his ringmanship give promise to further the development which was so marked this year.

"Jackie" Williams is a shrewd little boxer and the points he garners are often well-earned and well-timed.

The efficient management of J. J. Mikell played an important part in the success of the boxing squad, and he deserves more than this passing note for his faithfulness.
BASEBALL
WHEN spring was turning the young men's fancies lightly to thoughts of love, Clemson's baseball team found itself "on the spot" so to speak. The football, basketball, swimming and track teams had come through with State championships and the boxers had fought to a tie for the title. Coach Jess Neely's diamond crew was depended upon to make it a clean sweep of Palmetto Athletics.

Swinging Southward on a pre-season tour of Dixie, Coach Johnny Kob's veteran Michigan State Club found the offerings of Alex Swails and Bill Croxton a trifle more complicated than they expected and they went down under a 5-0 defeat as the Royal Bengals opened their drive with an impressive victory.

A tour into North Carolina for a crack or two at two of the finest of the Conference teams brought the Tigers back with a 3-0 victory over Duke, but they entered the "lost" column when N. C. State won a 5-1 decision and Duke captured a slugfest 12 to 8.

Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets proved the next victims of Croxton's fast ball and fell, 4 to 0, before the Neelymen. The first State scalp was hung up by downing P. C., 10 to 2. A double-header at Georgia ended even. Georgia touched Croxton for only two hits in the opener, but won, 2 to 0, and the Tigers retaliated the next day, 4 to 3.

Two more State teams, Wofford and South Carolina, dropped before the booming barrage of hits that bounced off the Tigers' bats as Wofford fell under an avalanche of runs, 12 to 3, and the Gamecocks lost 5 to 4.

The second Georgia-Clemson series was also an even break, the Bulldogs taking the first 7 to 2, while the Tigers came back in the second to win, 6 to 4.

Coach "Dutch" McLeans and his band of Newberry Indians came to Clemson and temporarily knocked Clemson off the top rung of the ladder with a 7 to 1 victory, but the 5 to 1 victory over Wofford that followed restored the Royal Bengals to their throne.
BALL SEASON

It was real war in Atlanta when Clemson invaded the Jackets' nest for a three-game series. Behind the brilliant pitching of Swails and the 18-hit bombardment of the entire team, Clemson walked off with the opener, 10 to 2. Apparently, the Bengals ran out of hits the first day and Tech took a double-header the following afternoon, 6 to 0 and 2 to 1.

Erskine's Flying Fleet felt the sting of the Tiger's claws twice in as many days, 5 to 0 and 4 to 2. P. C. fell by the wayside, 6 to 3, and Clemson's opportunity for another pennant lay in the pair of games to be played with Furman.

In the double-header at Clemson the Tigers rallied behind Swails and Croxton to turn back the Purple Hurricane twice. By the scant margin of one run in each contest the Bengals came out ahead, 3 to 2 and 1 to 0. It would be unfair to mention Clemson's victories without praising the work of Guy Williams, brilliant Furman pitcher, who assumed the "iron man" role that afternoon to hurl two beautiful ball games, allowing only five hits in the opener and three in the nightcap.

The season ended in Clemson when "Country" Kneece, the Gamecock southpaw, pitched his mates to a 3 to 0 victory over the Tigers.

With nine victories against two losses in the State competition, Clemson added the baseball pennant to the "championship" flagstaff at Tigertown.

Joe Berry, pitching five balls in the Wofford game was credited with the victory.

AFTER a month of training, the Tigers opened their season with a 58-26 victory over P. C. The next day the Clemson team lost a close meet to the fast University of Florida Team, 44-40.

On the Georgia tour Clemson defeated Emory 55-28, and on the following day trounced a strong University of Georgia team 44-31. P. C. journeyed to Tigertown to be handed their second defeat by the locals, 59-24. On March 2, the Bengal aquabats annexed the State championship at the State meet at Furman. Final score: Clemson 54; P. C. 32; Furman 25.

The Tiger "Tanksters" took a "Dark Horse" trip to the Southern Conference at Durham and placed third in a seven-school meet.

The Tigers' home pool was the scene of the Clemson-Ga. Tech meet, where the Tigers won a 45-39 victory. The season wound up with the tank team in Florida. After losing a 43-41 swim with Florida, the Tigers sunk their claws into Rollins College and downed her 53-31 to end the season.

TENNIS TEAM

WITH four men, Horton, Woodward, Spann, and Geer, returning from the 1934 Championship team, the outlook was bright for the 1935 Tiger Tennis Team.

Opening the season with Mississippi State as our guests the Tigers sent them back on the short end of a 5-2 score. Next P. C. was downed at Clinton with a 7-0 whitewashing. Erskine gave the Tigers their first score, but they were subdued, 6-3. P. C. was again swamped 7-0, this time on the local courts. At Greenville the Bengals tasted their first defeat 5-4, Furman eking out the victory by winning two of the three doubles matches. Wofford was set back 6-1 on the local courts. Next the Tigers dropped Erskine 5-2 at Due West. Furman visited us and the previous score was reversed, Clemson winning 5-4. Carolina defeated the locals 6-3, giving them their worst defeat of the year. In a return match the Gamecocks set back the Tigers 4-3. The schedule ended as well as it started with the Tigers on the long end of a 7-0 victory over The Citadel here, giving them a season's record of nine victories and three losses.

The State tournament found Tate Horton and Henry Woodward crowned 1935 doubles Champs while Horton was defeated in the final round of singles by Dibble of The Citadel.
THE Clemson College Rifle Team of 1934-35, stimulated by the enthusiastic work of instructors, Major J. P. Gammon and Sgt. A. J. Kline, and reinforced by increased interest in the Corps, rapidly developed into an efficient and formidable representative of the College.

A creditable record was published in telegraphic matches with the leading military colleges of the East. Special ability was exhibited in shoulder-to-shoulder matches with P. C., Wofford, The Citadel, and L. S. U.

SOCCER TEAM

Clemson was the first South Carolina college to organize a soccer team to play other schools. Soccer was started on an intramural basis at Clemson in 1933, and due to the interest created, a varsity squad was developed out of the intramural players. Fred Kirchner, the present director of intramural sports at Clemson, was responsible for getting soccer started and making arrangements with Furman to play the first intercollegiate soccer game in this State.

Clemson opened the 1935 season with a 5-3 victory over the Riverside Military Academy team. Misdom, Scott, Orr, and Vicaria were the outstanding players for the Clemson team.

On December 6, Clemson entertained the Furman team on the local field. Clemson was master of the contest from start to finish. The score ended 4-2 in favor of Clemson.

December 7 found the Clemson team playing in Gainesville, Georgia. The Tigers proved too much for the Military Academy and the final count stood, Clemson 6, Riverside 2. In this game Kinghorn at halfback was the outstanding Tiger player.

The Tigers journeyed to Greenville December 10 and after a rough and tumble affair, emerged from the fray with a victory count of 4-2 on the Baptists.

Clemson and Furman again locked horns for the third encounter of the season at Rock Hill in an exhibition game before the Delegates to the South Carolina Physical Education Association, the Winthrop Student Body and people from the City of Rock Hill. The Tigers lost a close meet, 2-1.

December 14 found the Tigers on the Davidson campus ready to scrap the Presbyterian lads. On a muddy field, the Davidson team defeated the Clemson boys.

Many schools and colleges in the Carolinas are fast seeing the value of this wonderful outdoor sport and are making it a part of their athletic programs, both intramural and intercollegiate.

THE program of Intramural Sports at Clemson College provides a means for wholesome recreational activity to a large portion of the Clemson Cadet Corps throughout the entire school year. The Intramural work is so organized and designed that all students who are physically able find one or more recreational sporting activities suitable to their liking. A list of the sports included on the Intramural Program is as follows: Basketball, Touch Football, Soccer, Track, Boxing, Tennis, Golf, Handball, Horseshoes, Ping-Pong, Volleyball, Tumbling, Bowling, Badminton, Hiking, Gymnastics, Shuffleboard, Speedball, Archery, Swimming, Fowl-Shooting, Rifle-Marksmanship and Playground Baseball. Games, contests, meets, leagues, matches and tournaments are organized and regular schedules conducted in the activities on this program.

There is an increase in the program each year; last year over one thousand planned periods of competitive physical activity in Intramural Sports were conducted. This varied program of recreational sporting activities has been developed to the point that it is keenly felt to be an important feature of student life on the Clemson Campus.

The Intramural Governing Board is a group of students organized to aid in the direction of this sports program. The board is composed of the Company Athletic Officers. Each competitive unit is represented on the board. Captains and Managers for the various teams are elected by the participants in the sports.

Clemson authorities recognize the fact that in “Today’s Educational Program” students must be taught the value of using their leisure time in a worthwhile way. It is important that young men learn wholesome recreational sports that provide a means for them to enjoy vigorous physical activity. One of the major objectives of the Intramural Program is to teach students sporting activities which will contribute towards wholesome living throughout their lives.

Students must be taught useful activities as well as useful facts. Many fine things are offered to the student who participates in sports on the Intramural Program; among these things are beneficial exercise, enjoyment, group loyalty, social contacts, better health and a lasting love for clean sports.

Y. M. C. A.
THE constitution of the Clemson College Y. M. C. A. provides for a body which is designated as the Advisory Board. It is composed of the President of the College, the President and General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and outstanding members of the faculty; the faculty members are elected by the membership of the Y. M. C. A. to serve for a period of three years each.

Service on the Advisory Board of the Y. M. C. A. is a gratuitous service and these men and many other men who have served on this Board are to be congratulated for the fine development that has been made in the work at Clemson. Time, effort, money—all have been given freely by these men and by many other friends who live here and who reside elsewhere now. A great deal of the progress that is perceptible at present is the result of the work of the men who are at present members of the Board.

THE Clemson College Y. M. C. A. is an institution. To many students it is also a movement significant of an opportunity for wholesome development and growth of the mental, spiritual and physical.

The employed staff consists of a General Secretary, an Associate Secretary, and three Assistant Secretaries responsible to the College, to the Y. M. C. A., and to the Athletic Association for the physical education and intramural sports program, for work with Freshmen, for the program of socials sponsored by the "Y," and for the building management and projection.

The history of the Clemson Association is replete with steps indicating progress and advancement. Organized in 1914 by Mr. Fletcher Brockman, who later distinguished himself as one of the Christian Statesmen of China, the Clemson Association was one of the earliest to secure the services of a full time employed secretary. Within a few short years the Clemson Association, largely through the instrumentality of Dr. R. N. Brackett, and of Dr. W. M. Riggs, then President of the College, started a movement to secure the present Y. M. C. A. Building. This was secured chiefly because of a gift of fifty thousand dollars by Mr. John D. Rockefeller, the Board of Trustees giving fifteen thousand dollars; and alumni, students and friends giving ten thousand dollars.

Almost twenty years have elapsed since the present building was dedicated and opened to the public. During this time the entire scope of the work has enlarged so that it is difficult to recognize the Clemson College "Y" of twenty years ago. Much equipment has been added to the building. It is almost unbelievable that this trend has actually continued upward through the period which we are wont to refer to as "the great depression."

The Clemson College Y. M. C. A. is a service organization. Many other organizations take part in and give impetus to the program of the Clemson "Y."

We judge educational and religious organizations by the manner in which lives are influenced and attitudes are formed. This tendency to evaluate is, we believe, correct. Using this standard as a criterion, we believe that the College may be justly proud of those sons who have distinguished themselves by their record in the work of the "Y" and other college activities. Many communities in this State and in other states have reason to be thankful for the splendid leadership of Clemson men. A goodly percentage of these men have been active in the Clemson "Y."
The Y. M. C. A. Cabinet is composed of fourteen members: seven seniors, six juniors and one sophomore. The Y. M. C. A. officers are elected and they select the other members of the Cabinet, who are the Chairmen and Assistant Chairmen of all standing committees. The Cabinet is primarily concerned with the spiritual phase of Y. M. C. A. work. To this end, the Cabinet is constituted by the following nine cooperating committees: religious programs, evening watch, freshman work, deputations, Bible studies, membership and finance, socials, publicity and conferences. The aim of the Cabinet is, through the combined work of the various committees, to organize and develop a well-rounded religious program for students. The Y. M. C. A. officers are sent each summer to the Y. M. C. A. President’s Training School at Blue Ridge for inspiration and training in association technique. The Cabinet men are also sent as delegates to the various conferences and retreats sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. and similar organizations. The Cabinet, as a whole, meets weekly; the committees meet independently and less often.

The Y. M. C. A. Cabinet Members
The Senior Y. M. C. A. Council

The Senior Y. M. C. A. Council is a group of men who have banded themselves together through their common interest in the work which the "Y" is conducting on the campus.

The Council seeks to give its members spiritual training and training in leadership. It also tries to bring about fellowship between man and God, and between the members—fellowships that will go with each man long after his college days are over.

The nucleus of the Council was organized four years ago under the leadership of Wallace Friday. The various programs given at the meetings of the Council have consisted of discussions by the members of the group, and talks on various interesting subjects by outside speakers.

Most of the programs during this year have consisted of discussions of moral and religious problems confronting the student body as a whole.

The Junior Y. M. C. A. COUNCIL

The Junior Y. M. C. A. Council is composed of a group of men who were selected during their freshman year, and others who later became interested in the Council and its work.

The purpose of the Council is to develop leaders for the future years and to create friendship among those men who are interested in the Y. M. C. A. and its activities.

Programs at the weekly meetings of the Council consist either of a speech by a member of the faculty, or a program of current events.

The outside activities of the Council consist of social functions and week-end trips to points of interest.

The Sophomore Y.M.C.A. Council

The Sophomore Council is composed of men who are interested in the development of leadership and a higher type of manhood. It offers the members a chance to contribute to discussions concerning the theories of life, and affords a genuine fellowship between the students which would otherwise be impossible.

Everyone is given the opportunity to express his views and much has been accomplished in furthering the sincere religious viewpoint on matters that have arisen. The Sophomore Council truly carries out the ideals of development both socially and spiritually and aids materially in the preparation for responsibilities that will follow in later life.

The Freshman Council is composed of boys from the company Freshman Forums, selected by a group of upper-class councilmen and cabinet members. There are forty boys in the Council, representing the six hundred freshman members of the forum groups.

This group of forty boys have, by becoming members of the Council, signified their intention to help foster a movement for better student life during their four years at Clemson. As Christ is the center of the Y. M. C. A., so is He the living dynamic force of the Council.

The Council meets every Monday evening, at which time a message is brought by some well-known man on the campus, or a group discussion is held. Both of these types of meetings are intended to help broaden the boys' views and give them a better perspective on the vital subjects of life.

The Tiger, official student publication of Clemson College, was founded by the Class of 1907. Almost continually since that date, The Tiger has been an important part of student activities at Clemson. For the past several years, responsibility for editing and publishing the paper has been left up to the student staff entirely, and now it is published by the students without faculty supervision or censorship.

The new staff takes charge at the beginning of the second semester during each session, thus allowing a staff one calendar year in office. During the last session, in addition to the regular editions, several special issues dedicated to various college activities were published. Probably the first extra edition of The Tiger ever to be printed was published last fall when official news of the $800,000 PWA loan to Clemson was received on the campus. Last summer, a special edition was published and over 7,500 copies were sent to prospective Clemson students, alumni and regular students.

One of the more outstanding and popular weekly features of The Tiger is “Oscar Says,” the official “dirt” column, and to add to the popularity of the column, the identity of the author is not disclosed until the end of the school session.

The Tiger is published every Thursday afternoon and distributed to all the rooms in barracks. In addition to the fifteen hundred students who read The Tiger, there are about one thousand other readers in all parts of the world.

REPORTORIAL TIGER STAFF

FRESHMEN, Sophomores, Juniors, and a sprinkling of Seniors who were late in joining The Tiger organization, make up the membership of the reportorial staff. Their duties, while minor, are multitudinous and to them goes a large share of the credit for the successful publication of the college weekly. They are reporters, runners and assistants to the business and circulation managers.

This, the lowest bracket of The Tiger hierarchy, is in reality a journalistic laboratory. The members of this staff are ever subject to severe criticism and correction from their superiors. The most valuable training in newswriting and in newspaper mechanics is obtained during the term of service here.
THE yearbook would not be complete without mentioning Mr. J. C. Littlejohn, genial business manager of the college, and financial adviser of Taps and The Tiger. He is always willing to give freely of his valuable time to help solve the many problems confronting the staffs of the publications. His helpful suggestions and timely advice have been invaluable contributions to the success of the annual and the weekly newspaper, the official college publications. To say that we are extremely grateful is the least that the Taps Staff can do to repay in part the many favors shown by this friend and staunch supporter.

THE many persons who visit the Clemson campus are very favorably impressed with its beauty and attractiveness. A great deal of the credit for the preservation of the natural beauty and the continuous efforts to enhance it by artificial means is due Mr. D. J. Watson, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. "Jake" Woodward, General Secretary of the Alumni Association, has the sincere interest of Clemson at heart, and is very active in promoting the growth and welfare of the school among the alumni.

THE Director of Publicity plays a leading role in bringing a college to the forefront. Clemson is indeed fortunate in having Joe Sherman, a recent graduate, acting in this capacity. Not a little of the honor for Clemson's becoming recognized as one of the leading schools of the South is due to Joe's articles in the daily newspapers.

- CAPTAIN J. D. HARCOMBE

ALTHOUGH his picture is missing from this page, due to the fact that he was seriously ill when the photographer was making the pictures for the '36 Taps, we wish to dedicate this space to Captain J. D. Harcombe, because of what he has done for Clemson, and what he has meant to Clemson men.

SINCE 1923 this Architectural Society has been known to the people of the surrounding country as the Minaret Club, but the club has undergone a change in the last few months. The new club in the department is known as "The Minarets." The requirements for membership are more difficult and effort has been made to make this the nucleus for a National Architectural Fraternity. The club offers a medium of creation for friendship, co-operation with the faculty, and a wide range of extra-curricula activities together with beneficial social functions throughout the school year, which greatly aid the

The Central Dance Association was formed several years ago to replace the inefficient system then in use. Since its inception it has lowered the average dance price, brought bigger orchestras to the college, and built the Clemson dance into a state institution.

The Association is operated on a non-profit basis, a reserve fund taken from the profits of the big dances being used to make up the deficits left by the...

THE ATHANOR endeavors to promote higher scholarship, social interests, and a spirit of friendship and service among those students whose major interests lie in the field of chemistry. SIGMA TAU EPSILON is an honorary general Science fraternity. It was founded at Clemson College, S. C., in 1934.

The purpose of this society is to establish and develop high standards of scholarship, character, and a spirit of fellowship among its members; to create and bind together a body of outstanding men who by scholarly attainment and maintenance of high ethical ideals have achieved distinction.

Its members are selected from the top men of the Senior and Junior classes.
THE INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

THE INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB is an international organization sponsored and endowed by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. The club is not, as may be supposed, an anti-war society; but its real purpose is to study and discuss National and International problems. Membership is limited to twenty and requires a grade point ratio of 4.5, which must be maintained during the entire membership of the student. The club also offers associate memberships to those who are interested but whose scholastic standing will not allow them to become members.

The Clemson College Chapter was organized in February, 1933. Although rather inactive recently, it bids fair to take its rightful place as one of the most valuable organizations to which a student can attach himself. In addition to studying past and contemporary world problems, it offers the student an opportunity for broadening his knowledge beyond his chosen line of endeavor.
THE ANIMAL HUSBANDRY CLUB was organized several years ago for the purposes of promoting and maintaining an interest in livestock and livestock production among all agricultural students, of bringing about a closer association and a mutual understanding, and of giving the students training in public speaking. The club meets semi-monthly. Programs consist of talks by students, talks by Extension and Department of Agriculture workers and talks by faculty members on topics related to livestock and livestock production. It is the aim of the club to take several educational trips each year.
ALPHA TAU ALPHA

ALPHA TAU ALPHA is the national professional agricultural education fraternity among men who are teaching or are preparing themselves to become teachers of vocational agriculture in the high schools of the State. The purposes of the fraternity are: to develop a true professional spirit in the teaching of agriculture, to help train teachers of agriculture who shall be rural leaders in their communities, and to foster a fraternal spirit among students in teacher training for vocational agricultural work.

THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE of Electrical Engineers is a national organization that has for its purpose the advancement of the electrical engineering profession. The student branches, which are located in engineering schools, aid the electrical engineering student in gaining a better understanding and appreciation of his profession and, at the same time, give him an opportunity of keeping in touch with real engineering problems.

This year the Clemson branch was host to the South-Eastern District Convention, which meets annually.
THE AMERICAN SOCIETY of Civil Engineers is the oldest Engineering Society in America. Established in 1852, as a means of advancing the engineering profession, it has progressed to take its present position among the outstanding professional societies in America.

The Clemson Student Chapter derives its membership from the Sophomore, Junior, and Senior Civil Engineering students and was organized for the purpose of familiarizing the student with the current developments in Civil Engineering.

FOUNDED FOR THE PURPOSE of acquainting Clemson students with some knowledge of public speaking and parliamentary procedure, the Calhoun Literary Society is today bringing to its members an assurance of manner, poise, and self-expression. Though literary societies at Clemson have undergone a period of decline during the last decade, the Calhoun Literary Society has noted a distinct revival of interest in the past year and is promoting this interest to the fullest extent.

THE PALMETTO LITERARY SOCIETY was established at Clemson College in order to promote skill in public speaking and public reading, and to develop a more general interest in these accomplishments throughout the student body. It aims to familiarize the student with all phases of parliamentary procedure by affording experience in speaking, debating and oratory. At no time has joining a Literary Society been compulsory, but all students who are awkward or abashed before a crowd are urged to join so that they may overcome this handicap. The Palmetto Literary Society, in conjunction with the Calhoun Literary Society, holds a combined membership in the South Carolina Oratorical Association.

THE CLEMSON COLLEGE 4-H CLUB was organized, with the aid of the State 4-H Club agents at Clemson, in 1930 by many of the former 4-H Club members then in school, interested in trying to stimulate and keep alive the 4-H Club spirit. The main purpose of the club is the continuance of the development of leadership qualities and activities begun back in the home communities.

This leadership is developed by preparing and conducting programs and taking an active part in these programs and organization. All boys interested in 4-H work are encouraged to join.

THE CLEMSON COLLEGE DAIRY CLUB is a student organization composed of students from all classes that are particularly interested in dairying. The purpose of this organization is to stimulate interest in the study of dairying. This club is beneficial from an educational standpoint as well as from a social contact with men who are particularly interested in this industry. Professors take an active interest in the function of the club. At the close of each meeting, refreshments from the creamery are served. New students who are planning to study dairying are especially urged to join this club.

THE S. G. CLUB

THE S. G. CLUB, a club organized on the Clemson College campus at the beginning of this school year, is composed of boys whose homes are in Savannah, Georgia, and of boys who have formerly lived there.

The club was formed for the purpose of promoting a more fraternal feeling among its members, and for carrying on social activities both at Clemson and in Savannah.

Members are chosen by popular vote with membership based upon personality and character.

During the Christmas holidays the club sponsored a very successful dance at the Savannah Golf Club.

AIKEN COUNTY CLUB

THE AIKEN COUNTY CLUB was formed in 1933 for the purpose of forming a closer relationship among the boys from Aiken County.

It has become an annual custom for the club to sponsor a Clemson-Aiken dance during the Christmas holidays and during the Spring holidays.

When first formed, the club had a membership of fifteen boys, and now has over thirty active members. The club has reason to be proud of its steady growth, and hopes that some day it will be one of the leading clubs of the campus.

Our motto: “One for all, and all for one.”

IN 1935, the boys of Marion County organized the Swamp Fox Club at Clemson. The purpose of this club is to foster friendship, promote social welfare, and to bring the men into closer contact with one another.

This club sponsors dances and informal socials at Clemson and at Marion, South Carolina. Meetings are held semi-monthly, thus giving the boys from Marion County a chance to discuss topics that are of interest to them.
HAMPTON COUNTY CLUB

THE HAMPTON COUNTY CLUB has the distinction of being the oldest active county club at Clemson College. The aim of the club is to promote a feeling of friendship among the members of the club.

The members of this club have much to do with the bringing of many High School boys to Clemson from the “Low Country.”

The club sponsors a dance during the Christmas holidays which is attended by Clemson boys and their friends from neighboring counties.

THE SPARTANBURG CLUB was organized for the purpose of promoting a spirit of friendliness and good fellowship among Spartanburg County boys at Clemson. Each year the club has continued to develop into a more widely recognized and useful organization. Campus activities include weekly business meetings, and occasional social functions.

The club sponsors dances in Spartanburg during the major school holidays, featuring the music of such popular orchestras as Dave Burnside's and Luke Chaney's. Many dance enthusiasts of nearby counties, as well as members of the club, attend.
THE YORK COUNTY CLUB is composed of Clemson Cadets from York County. The purpose of the club is to promote a strong feeling of fellowship among the boys in order that they may better interest high school students in Clemson. To this end the club has regular business meetings and sponsors at least one dance each year to which high school students are invited.

THE BLOCK "C" CLUB was organized for the purposes of promoting congeniality and friendship among the letter-men, fostering clean sportsmanship in all branches of athletics, encouraging conduct at all times becoming a gentleman and a true sportsman, impressing upon its members the importance of maintaining a high standard of scholarship and assisting in every way possible in achieving this aim, and promoting the advancement and welfare of Clemson College at all times.

The membership of the club is limited to those men whose athletic achievements merit their award of the Block "C," thus making it a distinct honor to belong to the organization.

At CLEMSON
ALPHA CHI PSI, founded at Clemson College, April 10, 1930, for the primary purpose of petitioning a national fraternity. Membership in this organization is based upon the student’s scholastic standing, as well as his distinctive qualities of character, leadership, and personality.
SIGMA PHI

SIGMA PHI, the oldest organization of its kind at Clemson, was organized to promote a friendly spirit and a feeling of brotherhood among its members. At present, the organization proudly claims as members its share of leaders in scholarship, military, and student affairs. Many of the alumni members of the fraternity have gone out into the world as leaders and men of character.

SIGMA EPSILON is a social fraternity organized for the purpose of promoting good fellowship and brotherly feeling among its members. This club was developed at Clemson in 1930 under the name of Sigma Theta; but in 1931 a reorganization took place, a new chapter was drawn up, and the name changed to Sigma Epsilon.
KAPPA PHI

KAPPA PHI is the oldest of the local social fraternities and has always been among the most outstanding. The activities of the club are purely social in nature and no attempt has been made at any time to exert political pressure or to resort to any of the other common practices of like bodies.

During the past year the organization has sponsored several small dances, a number of banquets and dinners, and has been very active in the entertainment of guests during the weekends of dances.

Among the alumni members are listed some of the most distinguished graduates of the college.

BETA SIGMA CHI is a local social fraternity. Its members are selected from those Clemson cadets who live within a fifty-mile radius of Charleston, South Carolina.

The primary purpose of the club is to enable its members to become better acquainted with one another; to promote higher ethical and moral standards; to stimulate interest in social activities; and to encourage a closer fellowship among the boys from the low country.

The fraternity sponsors an annual dance at Charleston during the Christmas holidays and many other social functions throughout the year.

No doubt I am a lad long-

Faultless
UTILITY
PASTEURIZER

Heater : Holder : Cooler : Storage Tank

The Faultless Utility pasteurizer accomplishes all of the operations of pasteurization: namely, heating, holding, and cooling, all done in the same unit and without removal of the product, which obviously renders highly efficient pasteurization, and is most economical in operation and at a minimum initial investment. It also serves as a refrigerated storage tank.

The inner lining or milk container is made of No. 14 gauge polished stainless steel with seams welded, ground and polished.

The agitator is driven by a reduction geared motor mounted on a swivel base. The entire agitator assembly can be readily taken apart and removed, which gives unobstructed access to the inner container for easy cleaning.

This unit is manufactured in sizes from ten to three hundred gallons.

APPRECIATION . . .

THE TAPS is finally out. The staff has worked hard to deliver this volume to you. Probably the staff alone will get credit or criticism for this volume, but we wish to take this opportunity to thank several other friends whose untiring efforts helped to make this edition possible: Mr. J. C. Littlejohn, faculty advisor, who at many times sacrificed his valuable time to help us attain decisions; Mr. Walt Dargan of Wrigley Engraving Company and Mr. Johnny Long of Foote & Davies Co., whose helpful advice and services were always rendered at times we needed them most; The Gaspar-Ware Studios for their excellent photo service; Mr. John Lane for his invaluable aid in compiling the manuscript; Mr. David Watson for his efforts in co-operating with the Advertising Manager; Cadet H. E. Miller for making the snapshot section possible; The Junior Taps Staff whose services were given most unselfishly, and without which it would be practically impossible to publish an Annual. There are still numerous other people who at all times were willing to co-operate with us in order to help us out, but should we attempt to mention names, it would more than fill this page. Last but not least, the Editor and Business Manager wish to thank the staff for their hardships and many hours of toil that they so endured while working on this yearbook.
