This quarter has not been quiet when it comes to moves in the field.

Nancy Beals, who also published an article in Against the Grain, was promoted from librarian I to librarian II as the electronic resources librarian for the Wayne State University Libraries.

Jane Bethel became a colleague of mine, joining the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill as the EPA electronic resources/reference librarian. Jane writes:

This is my first professional position after graduating from Dominican University, although I served as the serials associate at St. Olaf College in Northfield, MN from August 2003 until June 2010 and have been a NASIG member since 2004. I so enjoy working with Tamika Barnes, Susan Forbes, Michael Cummings, and April Errickson here at the EPA campus. I feel very privileged. I am working through all sorts of serials issues as you might well imagine.

Heather Cannon made two changes this quarter, writing first to report that she had become the head of Collection Support Services at Loyola University, Chicago's Health Sciences Library, having previously been the serials & e-resources librarian there. Then, Heather wrote:

As of August 9, I will be the technical services librarian at the Adler School of Professional Psychology in Chicago, IL. This will be my second place of employment as a professional librarian position after having been at the Loyola for the past eight years.

At the end of May, Katy Ginanni reluctantly left Trinity University and moved to Cullowhee, NC, where she started as collection development librarian on July 1. Katy writes:

I loved both Trinity and San Antonio, but have wanted to live in western NC for years, so this is really a dream come true for me. Moving into collection development is another exciting change. Not to worry, though – NASIG will be a part of my life forever! Or at least until I retire...

Past President of NASIG, Mary Page joins the University of Central Florida (UCF) Libraries faculty as associate director for Collections & Technical Services on August 9, 2010.

From UCF's press release:

Page received her MLS degree from Rutgers University where she also served in a variety of librarian positions for nineteen years. Most recently employed as assistant university librarian for Technical Services at the University of California-Davis Library, Page brings with her extensive experience in all aspects of technical services, including acquisitions, serials, collection management and collection development. Among the many leadership positions and service activities in which Page has been involved are the Ingenta

Library Advisory Board, the National Academy of Sciences ... and The North American Serials Interest Group (NASIG). She currently serves as a Director-At-Large for the Association for Library Collections & Technical Service, Board of Directors. She was also a guest editor and writer for Against the Grain and other professional publications.

And, Lynn Shay has changed her place of employment to the University of North Carolina, Wilmington where she is the electronic resources/serials librarian.

Editor's note: The state of North Carolina would appear to be a popular destination, and, as a resident, I can't say I blame my new neighbors for coming.
