NASIG 26th Annual Conference

June 2-5, 2011

St. Louis, Missouri

Mark your calendars! The North American Serials Interest Group Conference Planning Committee is hard at work planning the 2011 conference in St. Louis. Founded in 1764, this vibrant, bustling city was the historical beginning point of U.S. westward expansion. The city's nickname, "the gateway to the West," inspired the conference theme, and the Gateway Arch takes center stage in the logo this year.

Along with the NASIG Conference, don't forget to check out what the great city of St. Louis has to offer. Check out the St. Louis Official Travel Information site for more travel tips and things to do on your visit. A great place to start is the St. Louis City Museum, which will house the NASIG reception on Thursday, conference opening night.

Are you a baseball fan? You're in luck! The St. Louis Cardinals will go head to head with the Chicago Cubs, their biggest rivals, on Friday, June 3rd at Busch Stadium in St. Louis (across from the Ballpark Hilton conference hotel). Check out the Cardinal's schedule.

Attendees interested in going to the game will be able to purchase tickets during conference registration. A block of 300 discounted tickets has been reserved by NASIG.

So save the date, and keep checking with the NASIG Conference site for program and registration information. While you're there, visit the NASIG Discussion Forum for the latest buzz on the conference and discussions on hot topics in Serials. For questions and suggestions about the 2011 Annual Conference, send an email to conf-plan@nasig.org.

Attend the conference in style with a NASIG "Gateway to Collaboration" t-shirt!
