Contributions on behalf of fellow members will be cleared with the author(s) before they are printed. Include contact information with submissions.]

Take note, gentle readers, this quarter’s column expands on the concept of citations, citing the co-chairpersonship of Beth Johns at the Michigan Library Association’s annual conference:

Beth Johns, MLIS
May 5-6, 2011 at the Amway Grand Plaza, Grand Rapids, MI

Beth notes:

This is the second year our state association held this event. The conference attracted 128 registrants and two keynote speakers, including NASIG's own Rick Anderson (Steven Bell was the other); a special address by ACRL President, Lisa Hinchliffe; and eighteen breakout sessions on a variety of topics by association members.

Valerie Ryder, MLIS, director of information strategy at Wolper Subscription Services, was a panelist at a fundraising workshop for public and school librarians, “Fundraising in an Era of Cuts,” attended by dozens of librarians from Northeast Pennsylvania in June 2011.

Valerie has also been rather prolific, of late, publishing:

And

Christina Torbert has also been active in the literature, publishing:
