

2014

Humanitarian aid for ethnic reconciliation

K. Holba

V. Matic

Follow this and additional works at: <https://tigerprints.clemson.edu/foci>

Recommended Citation

Holba, K. and Matic, V., "Humanitarian aid for ethnic reconciliation" (2014). Focus on Creative Inquiry. 68.
<https://tigerprints.clemson.edu/foci/68>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Research and Innovation Month at TigerPrints. It has been accepted for inclusion in Focus on Creative Inquiry by an authorized administrator of TigerPrints. For more information, please contact kokeefe@clemson.edu.

PAST

Following the breakup of former Yugoslavia, a war broke out amongst three ethnic groups (Serbs, Croats, and Bosniaks) over the autonomy of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

In July 1995, in the small mountain town of Srebrenica, known for its prosperous mining and tourism, one of the most horrific events of the war took place. In a matter of two days, through a massive ethnic cleansing campaign, more than 8,000 Bosniaks

(Bosnian Muslims) mostly men and boys, were killed in the town's "safe zone".

PRESENT

Today the town of Srebrenica works to rebuild its war-torn society as more Bosniaks begin to trickle back to the area and intermingle with the Serb community. However, the more than 8,000 graves surrounding the town of 15,000 serves as a constant reminder of the ethnic cleansing that took place in their town less than two decades ago.

HUMANITARIAN AID FOR ETHNIC RECONCILIATION

Srebrenica, Bosnia and Herzegovina

OUR MISSION

Build awareness and educate people about the events that took place in Srebrenica to promote ethnic reconciliation within the region and prevent the potential for future violence.

OUR ROLE

- 1) Provide better education to the children of Srebrenica and encourage them to attend and participate in school by providing much-needed necessities such as clothes and school supplies. We collect money and supplies in the U.S. to bring over as aid.
- 2) Build awareness about Srebrenica and the Balkan War through movie nights and other events.

