Item 12. President’s Report.
Statement: President Barker described the context in which Clemson University is operating on a national level, state level and campus level. On a national level, he reviewed the Spellings Commission’s emphasis on accountability. He remarked that Clemson University does a good job on this. He expressed concern over the Commission’s effort to establish standardized assessment of learning outcomes. He noted that it is difficult for federally mandated tests to recognize differences between universities and their missions. On a state level, he reported that Clemson had been briefed on the Governor's task force on higher education, noting that it had been an insightful discussion and that Clemson would continue to be engaged with that process. He explained that Clemson endorses the idea of a state-wide plan that recognizes differences between and among the institutions and that we also recognize that any play must address (1) a stable funding strategy that rewards quality not just growth and (2) regulatory reform that gives us more flexibility in competing for students and research nationally. From the campus level, he reported several highlights of progress on priorities set by the 2006 Tactical Plan. (Attachment X). He reported that the University recruited 140 outstanding faculty and staff, improved from 34 to 30 in the US News rankings, and had secured $11.4 million in state funds for priorities. He further reported that the Timken research center was open on the CU-ICAR campus. President Barker distributed his report card to the Trustees. He reviewed each of the University goals for 2011 and noted progress toward these goals as of 2006-2007 (Attachment Y).

Finally, President Barker closed with his latest installment of Life in the President's House. He reported that he and Mrs. Barker had been dog-sitting for their son and daughter-in-law. Their “grand dog” had been rescued from a shelter in Atlanta and had the “born free” gene. When he escaped through the garden gate, President and Mrs. Barker ran all over campus looking for the dog. Word spread that the grand-dog was loose and many people appeared on Bowman Field to help try to catch him, which they did. President Barker commented that it can take a campus to raise a grand-dog.
