Rick Barnes, Head Basketball Coach, Clemson University, was introduced as the guest speaker. His presentation was entertaining and informative. He is totally committed to the Clemson Basketball program and is emphasizing a positive image for all the basketball players. He requires class attendance and promotes a neat and clean appearance. The early basketball recruiting class is rated one of the sixth best in the country and ESPN did a two minute spot on the program. Each player has a weekly plan with an emphasis on class assignments and grades. Sports Illustrated interviewed Devon Gray and the team and Rick is enthusiastic about the positive publicity that the Clemson program is receiving. He addressed several questions from the floor concerning high school programs, student support of the athletes and sports, and his personal goals. He speculated that this would be a tough year especially on the road but is optimistic about the future success of Clemson basketball.

Two spelling corrections were noted and the minutes were then approved as written.
