We have three serious changes to report from this past quarter.

In September, Katy Ginanni jumped back into the vendor world when she accepted a position as Collection Development Manager for GOBI Library Solutions from EBSCO (formerly YBP Library Services). She will be calling on academic libraries in AL, AR, LA, MS, and TN. She is still chuckling at being back on the EBSCO payroll – something she had not predicted would happen!

Virginia Bacon Martin is now Head, Continuing Resource Acquisitions Department at Duke University Libraries.

And, Steve Oberg, NASIG Vice-President/President-Elect, writes:

Very recently, I accepted a new position at my library. I will oversee the largest of four organizational groups, what is called Resource Description and Digital Initiatives (RDDI). It will be on an interim basis for up to a year with the possibility for it being made permanent.

My current area is already part of RDDI so this is basically a step up to a higher level of responsibility to oversee cataloging, e-resources and serials, and our digital initiatives group. In addition, I'll be focusing now on digital library-related things to a much greater degree. This covers a broad range of stuff including a digitization program, website development, library discovery tools and systems, a nascent publishing initiative, and more.
