The annual Banquet of the Junior-Senior Classes to be held May 8

Senior Dancing Ball is sponsoring Ball in Field House; Y to Give Reception

A beautiful gesture, on the part of both the seniors and juniors will climax the social calendar for the Clemson cadets next Friday night. An occasion of gay recollections of the past and that will carry an emotional undercurrent of sadness for those who are leaving the portals of their Alma Mater and one that will stand out boldly and pleasantly in the reminiscences of all who are included in this festive occasion.

This banquet and dance is perhaps the most fascinating and attractive of all events in the social calendar. Artistic and beautiful in every way, this event will add to the prestige of the college and will add a bright chapter to the annals of the alma mater.

Throughout the evening will prevail the music of the Zulu Band, which will play the latest and most popular hits of the current season. The band will be under the direction of Captain Harcombe, the bandmaster, who has been praised highly for his ability to conduct and direct.

The ballroom will be decorated with flowers and lit with fairy lights, creating a magical atmosphere. The guests will be dressed in their finest attire, and the formal and elegant ambiance will make this event one to remember.

This occasion is cherished by all who are present and will be treasured as a memorable part of the college experience.

Clemson Cadet Corps Again Awarded RATING OF EXCELLENT IN INSPECTION

The Cadet Corps of Clemson College on the dates of April 28-30, was inspected by the annual Spring Inspection by Col. J. C. Brothers, of the United States War Department. The Corps, giving again as awarded a rating of "Excellent," the highest grade ever given by the U. S. C. C. T. not to require, which means that Clemson will have the privilege of retaining the "Honor Star" throughout the coming term. Generally, the grading totaled 3.975, which is the highest that has been received here in several years.

The inspection began Tuesday afternoon with a full dress Retreat Parade given in honor of Col. Brothers. Spectators and officials viewing the inspection considered it the most handsomely dressed of its kind seen in the camp in many years. The white trousers and cross belts with the afternoon suit and white glinting on polished brass accented the official appearance of the Corps. The inspection was given in a perfect manner and the cadets showed the green background of clever staff work both on foot and on horseback.

Wednesday morning was given over to inspection of classrooms, museums and apparatus, and onqe to inspection of all the Military Science. Every department inspected passed with very high grades, in fact, nearly all the grades were above par.

With the close of this inspection, the 1927-28 year comes to a close. Although there were many interesting tactical problems presented by the inspection, the cadets handled them all very creditably.

LIVESTOCK JUDGING CONTEST HELD HERE

University of Florida Team is High Scorer in Contest

The Eastern States Livestock Judging Contest held in Clemson College on May 15, 1928, was attended by eight teams, each representing a livestock judging school in the South. The contest was held at the University of Florida, which is one of the foremost livestock judging schools in the country.

For several years, Dr. W. H. B. Marshall, extension professor of economic botany at Clemson College, has been interested in the maintenance of a well-organized livestock judging team. The team has been successful in various contests and has earned national recognition for its excellence.

The University of Florida team, under the guidance of Professor J. E. F. Calhoun, was the high scorer in the contest. The team's performance was characterized by their ability to handle the questions with ease and to provide detailed and well-reasoned answers. Their success was a testament to their hard work and dedication to the field of livestock judging.

The contest was held in Clemson College's Auditorium, and a large audience was in attendance to witness the exciting event. The questions were asked by the judges, who were experts in the field of livestock judging. The team's responses were scored based on accuracy, clarity, and completeness.

The team's success was a source of pride for the University of Florida and a testament to the quality of education provided in the livestock judging program. The team's performance was lauded by the judges and audience alike, and their victory was met with a standing ovation. The University of Florida team's success serves as a reminder of the importance of hard work and dedication in achieving success in any field.

HOME

In chapel last Thursday, Doctor Sikes brought up a subject of vital interest to every college man, that of our loved ones back home. We are too prone to neglect our home folks. We say neglect because every boy here really wants to make his parents and relatives at home happy, but the trouble is we forget the little things such as writing home regularly, and remembering Mother’s and Dad’s birthdays, etc., which are the very things that give them the most pleasure. During holidays we spend too little time at home and some of us go there only when we have no other place to go. We do not realize all our fathers and mothers are doing to give us the best possible start in this life. They keep up our supply of bull and there is no need of asking advice. They are that ignorant.

Thanksgiving has just passed and the song “Heart Aches” to be entitle “Hot Cakes.”

Three years and eight months ago we started to school in a matricula tion line. Since that time we have been in registration lines, R. O. T. C., tennis, hunting lines, Messr’s lumber jacks, and on the audience lines. Now it seems as if we are ready to enter an even longer line—a test of wills. For as long as life is characterized of the army, let it be the U. S. Army or the army of the unemployed.

At Clemson College the only consistent is in consistency, from cause to cannot be relied upon.

And a wisely benevolent faculty recommends that the established custom of granting two-day permits for the Junior-Senior season be broken. That was indeed a thoughtful step, for no college junior or senior is capable of determining when he can or cannot afford to visit two or three classes. Kindergarden tactics, we call this.

The majority of modern dates are at three classes—both parties make meaningless love, a three hour session of conversationless macking, or a combination of the first two, which is the key to expected to general in exchange for “club member” which entitles him to the same rocking privileges. It is a priceless gift of both sexes that for a few minutes of boyish, girlish relation other than these three.

This is the final session; professors, having exhausted their supply of bull which they see necessary to interest class sessions, have reverted to emphasizing Asusn and impossible a minute of work in the presence of preparing for our final exams. After all our being rid of, finally, about open begging, we had to us the occasion to the fact-eared Winstead Junior. However, I need only mention the occasion was a three hour session on errors when the elusive David scored a home run on errors when the elusive David scored a home run. Blackie Smithey has punched back the popular song “Heart Aches” to be entitle “Hot Cakes.”

On Sunday night, May 3, Vesper service was held by a delegation from Emory University. Mr. G. L. Carter, secretary of the Freshman Council, was in charge. The service was opened with a scripture reading by Hugh Montgomery, after which Mr. White read a vocal solo accompanied by Miss Lucy Garret at the piano. Morris Nelin, the principal speaker of the evening, gave a fine talk on life and its opportunities based on the parable of the wise and foolish Virgins. The service closed with a song and a prayer.

FRESHMAN COUNCIL MEETS

On Thursday night just after supper, the Freshman Council assembled at the Y. The meeting was opened with several prayers. Along with the "High Ridge" the essays which the boys wrote last fall were given back and discussed by several of the members. This brought up the question of determining what outside activities a fellow should choose. The remainder of the meeting was spent in discussing plans for the coming trip to Blue Ridge.

SENIOR COUNCIL

With only a few more trips to meet together, the Senior Council seemed to have taken on new life and interest. Tuesday night a long discussion was held concerning the house party at Blue Ridge for the benefit of those who could not go. Then Professor Borren continued his talks to the group on the subject of God. The members expressed the desire not to disturb the Council even though graduation is nearly here. A plan was set on to meet every five years and keep alive the close spirit of brotherhood that was started here at Clemson.

CABINET MEETING

The Y Cabinet held a regular meeting Thursday, April 30. The meeting was opened with a scripture reading by Hugh Montgomery, after which a few short discussions were held. Several letters from men who have shown interest in the Y. M. C. A. work were read. After which, Dr. J. W. Went, then gave a very interesting and detached view of what trip to Europe he would have taken. The meeting closed with a prayer.

Numerous Errors Leave Clemson With A 10-1 Defeat

On May 4, Carolina continued its winning streak by taking the second game from the Tigers. It was the fourth time in five games in which the Tigers had been outscored, this time by a score of 10-1.

The game was the first of a scheduled two-game series with Carolina. The Tigers had been outscored 12-2 in the first game.

Mrs. Brown, who is a frequent reader of the sports column, was very pleased with the Tigers' performance in the second game. She said, "I was delighted to see the Tigers score 10 runs in one game. This is the best they have done all season."

The Tigers will play the last game of the series on May 5. They are currently in fifth place in the league, with a record of 3-5.
