4-1-1957

Senator Harry Byrd's efforts to reduce the budget

Strom Thurmond

Follow this and additional works at: https://tigerprints.clemson.edu/strom

Materials in this collection may be protected by copyright law (Title 17, U.S. code). Use of these materials beyond the exceptions provided for in the Fair Use and Educational Use clauses of the U.S. Copyright Law may violate federal law.

For additional rights information, please contact Kirstin O'Keefe (kokeefe [at] clemson [dot] edu)

For additional information about the collections, please contact the Special Collections and Archives by phone at 864.656.3031 or via email at cuscl [at] clemson [dot] edu

Recommended Citation
Thurmond, Strom, "Senator Harry Byrd's efforts to reduce the budget" (1957). Strom Thurmond Collection, Mss100. 1452. https://tigerprints.clemson.edu/strom/1452

For additional information about the collection, please contact the Special Collections and Archives by phone at 864.656.3031 or via email at cuscl [at] clemson [dot] edu

This Speeches is brought to you for free and open access by the Manuscript Collections at TigerPrints. It has been accepted for inclusion in Strom Thurmond Collection, Mss100 by an authorized administrator of TigerPrints. For more information, please contact kokeefe@clemson.edu.
The people in this country are more concerned than at any time in my memory about economy in government.

I believe the people are opposed to extravagance in government at any level and particularly in the Federal Government. The mail which comes to my office indicates that they are aroused and intend to seek and bring about greater economy in the Federal Government.

Senator Byrd has been a stalwart figure in the Senate for 24 years and has fought and earned the name of being the chief advocate of economy in government.

This year he has offered budget reduction suggestions amounting to a total of $6.5 billion dollars. These reductions would include $1.5 billion for national security activities; $2 billion for foreign aid and international affairs; and $3 billion for domestic civilian activities.

The Camden Chronicle, a newspaper in South Carolina, pointed out in a recent editorial that Senator Byrd "has a habit of going to the heart of matters in his public statements. He has done this in his analysis of the proposed $71.8 billion federal budget."

Mr. President, I agree with this editorial and I agree with Senator Byrd. He is a great American and his recommendations on the budget should be followed.

Mr. President, I request unanimous consent to have the editorial to which I referred printed in the Appendix of the Record.