Dear Sir,

You see, by the date of this, I am in my new quarters. I left the Home Tuesday morning, at ten o'clock, & slept here that night. I am comparatively quite comfortable, & think I shall do very well for the summer, at least. As I moved out, Mr Towers moved in, so with his five, & my five wagons, it was quite a scene of confusion. As I wrote you in my last, the rent papers were signed in due form, & I de--jointed yours with Mr L. Jackson, till I heard whether you wished it sent you by mail, or would wait till you came down to get it. Let me know if you desire it sent. Fannie is not yet here. I expected her last evening, & sent for her, but she did not come. I suppose her friends persuaded her to remain longer.

I hope your health has improved, tho if it is as cold with you, as we have it, I fear you will suffer from the sudden changes.

I have no news, living here in a corner, so you must excuse a dull letter. I am over wearied, by the very tiresome week I have passed, & my ideas have not yet settled, into their usual calm.

I heard from Calhoun the day I left. He was quite well, but very weary of his long confinement.
I wrote you, I think, I had two letters from W^c. One the 14th, the other the 22^d of April. He was well & wrote in good spirits. Said he wanted for nothing, & provisions of every kind were very plentiful.

My love to all the family
Your affectionate niece Anna C. Clemson
