

Peter Jennings Reporting:

Breakdown - America's Health Insurance Crisis

Docutalks is a monthly documentary film series sponsored by the Clemson University Libraries. Films 30-60 minutes long are followed by moderated discussions.

Join us this semester as we focus on select issues in the United States 2008 presidential election.

Date: Monday, February 25, 2008

Time: 4:00 PM - 6:00 PM

Place: 416 Cooper Library (Brown Room)

This last documentary by Peter Jennings aims the lens on the country's health insurance system. Why is there a growing number of uninsured in this country? Why do people, who can afford the ever-increasing prices, cannot get insurance? Peter Jennings finds that spiraling costs and the growing number of uninsured are all part of a health insurance system in a state of crisis.

Watch and then join us for the lively discussion following the film.

For more information, contact:

Derek Wilmott

(864) 656-2897

rwilmot@clemson.edu