The Second Lyceum Entertainment.

The Bostonia Sextette Club gave the second performance of the 1910-1911 Lyceum Course last Saturday night, Oct. 29, in the college chapel. This company fully sustained its reputation for good performance, delighting an appreciative audience.

E. P. Josey made a business trip to Seneca Saturday.

THE PLAY'S THE THING.

Ever since the senior class at Clemson has been publishing an annual, perhaps, its business manager has had recourse to theatrical performances in order to make the volume financially possible. It is a matter of regret that the character of the entertainment provided in times past has not been of the highest. The policy of the managers—and there is some justification for it—seemed to be to provide something that would “take with the fellows,” regardless of whether there was any real merit in the production or not, and of the reception which it would receive at the hands of the people of the Hill.

It was a matter of pleasant surprise, therefore, to those who attended any, or all, of the performances put on by the Sylvia Summers Stock Company, which filled an engagement in the Chapel on Friday and Saturday, October 21 and 22, to find that nowhere in the two nightly performances, or in the Saturday matinee, was there anything to offend the most cultivated taste; but that pure amusement, fun, and laughter were there in plenty. For those who cared to go a little deeper than the surface, there was that quality in each of the three plays which leads one to think; the quality which makes the greatest of all dramatists exclaim, "The play's the thing." There was nothing of the wildly sensational melodrama, which seeks to hold the attention by mere thrills alone; no one was murdered; nobody committed suicide, the players sought to please in the acts rather than by specialties between the acts.

The most pleasing feature of the entire series was the acting of Miss Sylvia Summers herself, in "The Bachelor and the Maid," as Mercy Baxter in Jack's Wife," and in the title role of "Doris Dear." She seemed to radiate sunshine, and had the happy faculty of playing her emotional parts without exaggeration. Mr. Aldrid Pierce seemed peculiarly fitted for his part as Jack, as the Bachelor, and in the leading part of "Doris." He combines talent with unusual histrionic ability. The characters of Martin and Sir John were also well acted.

The work of the Sylvia Summers Co. is conceded by all who are in a position to pass judgment, to be of a higher order than that of any other stock company that has played here in a number of years. The management of "Taps, 1911" hopes to be able to present this company to a Clemson audience again in the near future, and while the annual managers are somewhat gratified at the financial returns of the engagement just completed, they are in hopes that the next appearance of these players will be under circumstances such that every seat can be filled, and that no cadet—or faculty member—need deny himself the pleasure of witnessing a worthy dramatic performance, on the grounds of "saving up for the Fair."

We are indebted to Cadet "Joyous" Howle for one of the best of the season. It seems that never in his life had Mr. Howle seen a train until the day he decided to come to Clemson. On the morning of his departure, he stood on the platform of the station talking to his brother Ed who was giving him some kindly advice and a few words of warning. While this was going on, the whistle of the through train blew and "Joyous" became very much excited, not knowing exactly what to expect.

His brother said: "Now, 'Joyous' yonder comes a train. That is the kind of thing that shall take you from our midst."

About this time, the train flew by. Joyous, wild eyed and very much afraid, turned to his brother and said:

"Ed that thing got through here all right this time, but sposed she had come through sidewise. There wouldn't have been much left, would there?"

Rastus Lykes: "Professor, you said the other day, that crab apples were not grown extensively around here. Down where I came from, they grow them by the bushels."

Prof. Thompson: "Yes, Mr. Lykes; but remember, I was speaking of a "civilized" country.

Class: Usual accompaniment.

Sweetening Henderson: "I have got to go to the commandant's office to get my signets (insignia.)"

* THE CALHOUN. *

On account of the show in the chapel, the exercises of The Calhoun were not carried out in full on Friday night, Oct. 21.

Messrs. Fant, as orator, Knox, as declaimer, Goldfinch, as essayist, and Lathrop, as reader, did their several points well. On account of the absence of Mr. Boone, the critic's chair was filled by Mr. Salley.

The subject for debate was, Resolved: "That there is a greater demand for professional farmers than for professional mechanics." Affirmative, Freeman, R. W., and Rowell, W. A.; negative, Lawrence, B. F., and Crawford, J. R. Messrs. Freeman and Rowell are agricultural students, while Messrs. Lawrence and Crawford are mechanical students.

Although it is natural that one's personal belief should enter largely into the argument, yet each side presented the facts from an impartial standpoint, as much as possible. The agriculturists claimed that theirs was a comparatively new science, and that it was offering more and better employment each succeeding year. The mechanicals claimed that without the aid of mechanics the farmer was powerless and that the mechanical man was always demanded first, to pave the way for the farmer. But the house and the judges decided in favor of the affirmative.

We were glad to see several visitors in our midst, from our sister societies, the Columbian and Palmetto.

* THE PALMETTO. *
* * * * *

Notwithstanding the fact that last Friday night, Oct. 21, was "big show" night at Clemson, the Palmetto Society had its usual good attendance. The exercises were begun much earlier than usual, in order to get through in time for the show. No part of the program was slighted on this account.

The debate was exceptionally good. Messrs. Massey, Heriot, and Lawton, represented the affirmative of: "Resolved, that Hospitals should be owned and maintained by the government." On the negative were Messrs. Hunter, Gettys, and Jennings. On both the affirmative and the negative, the debates brought out many unthought-of points, which went to prove that they had studied thoroughly their sides of the question. The judges Messrs. Goodwin, Gentry, and Stribling decided in favor of the affirmative.

Mr. Workman, J. N., was excused from delivering his oration. He will deliver it at the next meeting.

Mr. Garrett, W. C., gave us a good oration. Mr. Turbeville, W. N., another of our gifted "rats," appeared for his first time, as declaimer. Following him, came another "rat," Mr. Johnson, with a well prepared essay.

Mr. J. A. Goodwin, Treasurer, showed by his report, that the society was in good financial condition. Mr. E. W. Tinson was granted an honorable discharge.

We get the following from Columbia: A gentleman from Clemson walked into a cafe to get a meal. The waiter handed him the bill of fare, and he proceeded to order a large amount of feedstuffs. After selecting the body of his meal, he said:

"And, waiter bring me some fly specks."

"But," expostulated the waiter, "we have no fly specks."

"Why do you have them on the bill of fare, then?" inquired the gentleman in question.

We are under obligation to Mr. Malkie for this contribution. One of the Freshmen, who had never filled out a laundry blank before, undertook to send out his laundry the other day. After listing all his various articles of wear, one shirt, one collar, one suit underwear and one handkerchief, he filled out the heading in the following manner:

Cadet.....Yes.

Room.....12x10x8.

Floor.....Not much good.

Date.....No, peach.

Across the back of the blank in a bold and flourishing hand was the cadet's name, J. C. Smith.

Neighbor Boggs says the pasture (pastern) joint does not tickle (articulate) with anything.

Carolina—The next victim to the Tiger's hunger.

Now is the time, boys, to get together and make your rooting count. The fact that the whole corps will be at the Clemson-Carolina game, should mean that victory will be ours, even though our team were not so strong as it is. Our rooting will count greatly on this occasion. Everyone should learn to boost for the Tigers by the time this game is to come off. Get together in groups, and practice the songs and yells, and be prepared to show the eleven that we are with them, and show the Gamecocks that the Tigers have their enthusiastic supporters. Fellows, don't forget to do all the possible good, clean, high-toned boosting for your team.

Imagine Clemson College in the city of Columbia. Well, that is exactly the circumstances that will exist during Fair week. The representative portions of the college will be temporarily located in Columbia for one week. Everyone who accompanies this portion of the college to the Fair, should bear in mind that Clemson will be under a more scrutinizing inspection than could possibly be made by a committee or by the Legislators. Not so much her business methods will be watched, but the traits of the human element that go to make the college. Boys, this is a grand opportunity to show the people that the Clemson boys are gentlemen in spite of some of their opinions to the contrary.

Our natural location makes the social features of Clemson life somewhat depressed. Very few occasions come to the students, during the session, to enjoy themselves. In fact, the few entertainments that visit us are almost the only sources of pleasure to the larger number of us. These entertainments should in their nature be amusing in order to give the students and members of the faculty a period of relaxation from their regular routine of daily work. In addition to being amusing, they should be suggestive, instructive, and of a very high standard. The recent entertainments which we have had are typical of the desirable kind to have among us.

A very striking characteristic of the Clemson alumni's loyalty, is their attendance upon football games when played anywhere within their territory. They usually get on the side line and root more than an ordinary student would. After the game is over, they get together and entertain the boys. Fellows, this should be an example of loyalty to every one of us.

The "Tiger's" subscription list in barracks is not large enough. We should have not fewer than four hundred subscribers among such a large student body as we have here. It is the duty of every student to support the college publications. Are you shirking your duty?

We beg your hearty support, and hope that, when possible, you will patronize our advertisers; for our financial success depends largely upon those who advertise through our columns.

CLASSES

SENIOR.

The time to go to the State Fair is rapidly drawing near. Although most of the members of our class have had the pleasure of taking this trip twice since we have been at Clemson, many of us are as eager for the time to come again as are the rats who have never had the pleasure of parading up and down the streets of the Capital City, in the garb of a soldier. Now, we are all glad, to know that ours shall be the pleasure of visiting Columbia once more as Clemson cadets, but we must all remember that we are representing one of the greatest colleges in the State. Let us remember, also, that Clemson expects us to do nothing unmanly, to be courteous, kind, and gentlemanly; and to show by our conduct that we are worthy of the opportunities and advantages afforded us by the State of South Carolina. The example set by the "Senior members" of the corps will be followed, to a large degree, by the other members of the corps. We expect to go down to the Fair, have a jolly, good time, make friends of all students, legislators, and "fair" visitors in our power, and return to Clemson and to our studies much benefitted by the trip. Our class will be well represented on the "varsity" squad that faces the "Gamecocks" on Thursday of Fair week.

The hardy fellows who represented us against the "Auburnites" were Messrs. Bissell, Epps, Hanckel, Connelly, Woodward, Britt, Martin, Gilmer, Foster, and Manager Arthur.

Through the efforts of our wide-awake business manager, Mr. Jim Byrd Keith, and his assistants, Mr. Frank H. Jeter and Mr. Dean Garner, the Silvia Summers Stock Company gave performances on Friday evening, Saturday afternoon, and Saturday night for the benefit of 1911 "Taps."

Mr. "Gene" Sitton visited his home in Pendleton the latter part of last week.

We are all wondering what attraction there is for Mr. B. F. Lawrence in the little city of Calhoun.

Our deepest sympathy goes out to Mr. E. S. Jenkins, who has been called home on account of a relapse in his father's condition. We sincerely hope that it will be possible for Mr. Jenkins to be back with us at an early date.

JUNIOR

A class meeting was held last week, for the purpose of electing a committee of five of the members of the class to confer with acting President Riggs on all matters pertaining to the welfare of the college and the class. The following men were elected as representatives of the Junior class: A. P. Fant, H. T. Prosser, H. F. Rivers, F. L. Ross, and J. A. Bates. These are men who will ably represent the class in all conferences with acting President Riggs.

G. W. Byars made a business trip to Seneca on Saturday, for the purpose of having dental work done.

J. C. Caldwell has been selected as one of the men to represent Clemson at the inter-collegiate tennis tournament to be held at Clinton the week following Fair week. Here's hoping that he will aid in winning the cup for Clemson.

B. F. Pennell made a business trip to Belton Saturday.

SOPHOMORE.

Last year, Acting President Riggs asked each of the classes to elect a committee of five men to act as a sort of channel between the president and the classes. The men were elected from each class, and it was found that the plan worked very much to everyone's satisfaction.

Last Thursday, Oct. 20, Professor Riggs made the same request of the classes. The Sophomore class held its meeting in the chapel. Eight men were nominated, but there were only five who could be elected. The men elected for the committee are R. B. Waters, E. B. McLaurin, W. E. Morrison, J. A. Barre, and M. Coles. We feel sure that these men will do their best for the interests of the class, and we are very glad that such a committee has been elected.

FRESHMAN

All Freshmen are looking forward to next Monday as a big day which begins one of the most pleasant weeks in the college session.

As the encampment at the fair is altogether new to us, we naturally feel more enthusiastic about the trip than the upper-classmen.

We are all using our powers of imagination to the fullest, at the same time not failing to express every thought. If the time we have, is at all similar to our expectations, next week will be a week full of fun and pleasure.

THE MARATHON RACE.

Every member of the Senior class is patiently awaiting the announcement of the annual Marathon race. It is remembered that a very prominent member, Mr. Beaty, won the race last season. Some of the entries tried to contest the race, because of the fact that Mr. Beaty started before they were ready, and that he was helped along by sundry rocks and sticks being thrown in the near vicinity of his head. However, all agreed that from the looks of the runner's overcoat, which skimmed through the air like the planes of an airship that Mr. Beaty made the distance from the starting point to barracks in the fastest known time.

WE'RE GETTING MILITARY NOW.

No time for fooling now
 No time to run around,
 It doesn't need two eyes to see
 They're military in this town.

In the morning at six o'clock
 To reveille you'd better run,
 Or you'll get to walk some extras,
 And I guess that won't be fun.

Then back to sweep your rooms,
 Neatly make your beds up, too;
 For, if you don't you know what's what,
 There'll be more extras for you.

Then wash your face and brush your hair,
 Put a nice clean collar on,
 For, if you don't, you're bound to hear
 Something said in a military tone.

"Seniors, fall in ranks,
 You're no better than a prep!"
 "Lively there!" says our "Cap,"
 "Won't you ever learn to keep step?"

Up from the breakfast table to sick call,
 You better fall in quick,
 Try to think of something good
 To make Doc. think you're sick.

"Chapel time!" sings out the bell,
 "Get up, my lads, and go!"
 "If you're late you know what it will mean,
 Just the same old ten and four.

Chapel o'er, we get our books,
 And to our sections repair,
 In our heads a blissful ignorance,
 In our hearts an awful fear.

"What do you fear?" you may ask.
 Why to military rule we bow,
 Can't you see, can't you see!
 We're getting military now?

Junior Harvey (to Junior Golphin): "Are you going to the

Golphin: "What is that, a football game?"

Y. M. C. A.

Last week, after Rev. John Little had addressed us on "The Negro Problem," the Y. M. C. A. decided to organize several mission study classes, in which the boys could acquaint themselves with the above mentioned problem, if they desired to do so. One night during the week, several of the boys canvassed the barracks in order to get boys to join these missionary classes. They got about one hundred and thirty-five members. This was a very good start off, and we hope to make these classes a continued success.

Owing to the fact that the Rev. Hogue, who was to have addressed the Y. M. C. A. last Sunday night, could not be with us, we were exceedingly fortunate in securing Rev. M. B. Kelly to fill his place. Rev. Kelly gave us a very interesting address, and one which all who attended enjoyed. We are always glad to have Rev. Kelly with us. Rev. Hogue was to have conducted a series of evangelistic services for us this week, but for some cause he could not be with us; so these services were postponed until some future date.

Our General Secretary, Robt. L. Sweeney, visited Furman University this past week. He was there assisting the Furman students in their Y. M. C. A. work.

Fellows, I notice in attending the Y. M. C. A. services, that there are a good many of the boys in barracks who do not attend these services. Why don't you attend? You have a cordial invitation.

Prof. Morrison has discovered the shortest route to Milling's brain, by way of the head basket; at least he thinks that he has but some say that he has a big contract to fill before he can reach the destination.
