Georgia Defeats Clemson In Two Games.

The first two games of the baseball season were played on Monday and Tuesday of last week. Although we lost both games, still we have the consolation of knowing that we have a splendid team. The fact that we lost these two games need not dishearten anyone because they were with one of the strongest teams in the South, which easily outclasses any of the teams in this State that are members of the S. I. A. A. The attendance was good at both games and the rooting was characteristic—you know what that means. (Continued on Page 8.)

Columbia College Quartette.

We are accustomed to associate the coming of spring with scenes that are pleasing to the eye, and with sounds that are pleasing to the ear. Had anyone in this community harbored a doubt concerning the arrival of spring among us on last Saturday, March 25, he might have had the last vestige of that doubt dispelled by visiting the chapel at about 8:30 p.m., for, within the brightly lighted Memorial hall, he would have been greeted both by sights pleasing to the eye, and by sounds not at all unpleasant.
to the ear. The occasion was none other than the recital of the Columbia College Quartette, the purpose of which was to afford pleasure to an audience of college boys and people of the community, and by so doing to assist in making the 1911 volume of “Taps” a financial success.

It is not often that the cadets at Clemson enjoy the privilege of seeing and hearing a group of college girl entertainers. There seems to be some hesitation, on the part of the heads of women’s colleges, to allow their fair charges to come here “among that great big mob of farmer boys.” But not even one with the most Puritanical ideas as to the standards of deportment could have found anything to censure in the behavior of the corps of cadets on the occasion referred to above.

The various numbers on the program were listened to with almost breathless attention; applause was instant and generous, and encores were frequent. On being called back for the first time, the quartette sang the old “Show Me the Scotchman” ballad, with an added verse containing a local allusion; from that moment, the house belonged to the singers. That good singing can be enhanced in its effect by good judgment in the choice of selections to be sung on recall, was made evident at several stages in the program; for no songs brought such appreciative applause as the college songs and the short, light ballads that have their appeal especially to the young people.

Of the numbers on the program, perhaps none left a more lasting impression than the tender, plaintive “Daddy” quartette. The fresh young voice of Miss Bessie Hamer, in “For All Eternity,” and the more mature singing of Miss Martha Edmonds, in her rendition of Tosti’s “Good-bye,” both held the audience under their spell. The musical sketch, “Mrs. Proctor, Mrs. Doctor,” gave us a hint of what college girls may do with light opera.

In the unavoidably absence of Miss McDonald, the part of second alto was sung by Mrs. Gilbert, who made an admirable understudy.

It was not true—nor was it expected—that these college girls would give us any “grand” music. With the return of spring, our taste for “grand” music languishes, as does our desire for rich food. But the sound of fresh, young voices, almost birdlike in their quality, is never out of place; and the sight of girlish faces is always welcome here in this girl-forsaken masculine desert. It is our sincere hope that the management of “Taps” will again succeed in bringing among us the Columbia College Quartette, or something very much like it.

And they—well, one of them wished that she could take Clemson back to Columbia. (For further particulars, apply to F. H. Jeter.)

There are certain practices that are carried on by members of the student body that should be suppressed by the more considerate men among us. There are few who would not look with contempt upon the student who stoops so low as to appropriate the money or other property of a fellow student, but there are other practices that are overlooked the very essence of which is nothing less than stealing. For example, a student goes out and robs a hen-coop—a frequent occurrence—and he is not considered a thief by his fellow student. But where is a civil court that would not consider it stealing? It is stealing and there is no other word in the English language that better describes the practice. We should not only look with contempt upon those who are guilty of this form of stealing, but there should be incorporated within the honor system rules for the punishment of the men who rob hen-nests, steal chickens, and do such other contemptible things. It is a reflection on the whole student body because no outside person can single out the guilty man; consequently the whole body of men are considered guilty. Now every cadet knows full well that there are only a few men engaged in this business, and if the proper spirit be developed this practice can be stopped.

Frederick Keppel, dean of Columbia University, says that the weakest point of American colleges today is their failure to help their students choose a career. He shows that most boys pick their vocations independent of any college advice or influence. He thinks the professors who come in daily contact with the students should guide and advise them in the matter. Out of 500 college men whom Dean Keppel interviewed on this subject, more than 200 chose their life work before coming to college, and did not change their minds until after graduating. “For those who decided while in college” says Dean Keppel, “the junior year seems to be the critical period, 87 men reporting their decision in that year, as against 12 in the Freshmen, 38 in the Sophomore and 63 in the Senior year.” Mr. Kepple shows that 22 per cent enroll themselves in the business world; Law is next with 19 per cent; then teaching with 13 per cent and engineering with 9 per cent. 6 and 5 per cent go into medicine and ministry respectively. The rest go into different pursuits. No one admits that he intends to make his living in politics.

Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. was exceedingly fortunate in securing as its speaker for last Sunday evening Prof. Furman, who made an address upon “The Prevailing Evils of Today.” Prof. Furman in his very able and forceful manner pointed out a good many of the most popular evils that are dominating the minds of a large majority of the people of today, and compared these evils with the evils that were in existence during the time of Monasticism in ancient Rome. And from this comparison, it is very evident that the evils of ancient Rome are very much the same as the evils of today, only that the same evils are practiced on a much larger scale today. He said that graft was one of the worst evils of today, and insisted that we should do all we could toward its destruction when we went out into life.

There was a very large crowd at this meeting, and they seemed to be inspired by the address of Prof. Furman. We were very glad, indeed, to have Prof. Furman to address us.
It is with regret that we come to the last of our “write-ups” of the various sections. However, there is an end to all things mortal, so here it goes. It has been our aim to treat all fairly. If we have failed to do so in any case, it has been an error of the head and not of the heart. To the kind readers who have been interested enough in the different courses pursued by our men here at college as to bear patiently with our attempt to give them a fuller insight into the doings of our members in their several courses, we are sincerely grateful. To show this appreciation, we have saved for the readers special benefit the write-up of the mechanical-electrical sections till the last, for, generally, the best, when not given first, is saved till the last, which leaves the most lasting impression. These rare gems are not found every day; so when it falls to the happy lot of an unhappy reporter, who is hard pressed by a stern, critical editor who never becomes satiated but who is incessantly calling for, yea, demanding, “news! news!” when there is “no news,” to tell to the world the college facts concerning men such as are found in sections 5 to 10, inclusive, he is thrilled and filled with rapture beyond expression.

In these mechanical sections we find one major, Mr. G. C. Furtick; one captain, Mr. E. I. Davis; three first lieutenants, Messrs. McCord, O. P., Milling, J. C., and McCown, F. O.; two second lieutenants, Messrs. Rogers, F. E., and Williams, T. D.; and eleven “Senior Privates,” Messrs. Hardin, L. H., Lawrence, B. F., Parker, F. F., McClure, L. C., Stevens, R. G., Tobin, L. P., Arthur, M. W., Walker, R. H., Gilmer, F. V., Ginn, W. N., and Harrison, J. W. Messrs. Furtick and Stevens are great track men, being especially good in hurdling and pole vaulting. Mr. McCown is one of the stars on the present varsity baseball team. He has an excellent record in football, although he did not go out until late in his college course.

Among the irregular Seniors we have Messrs. Beaty, H. C., Bedell, A. S., Bissell, P. L., Davis, H. S., and Brodie, O. B. Bissell is one of our leading baseball and football men. He is making good on the track also.

Mr. G. C. Fant was elected some time ago as chief rooter to succeed Jim Byrd Keith who, owing to his position as manager of the baseball team, could not lead on the side line. Under the leadership of Fant and Jeter, the men on the side line showed their college spirit admirably. Under the leadership of these two efficient leaders, we hope to see this spirit grow.

Messrs. Chapman, Knight, . . . . , Garner, Beaty, and Epps attended a reception given at Chicoera College last Friday night.

We hope, ere this comes from the press, that the Seniors will have been granted “privileges” usually enjoyed the third and last term of their college course.

Some of our classmates are showing up fine in the baseball, among whom are: “Doc” Ezell, “Chubby” Harris, Hardin and Thomas.

We have at last reached third base and the home plate is only about two months off. Let’s make it a big game and all have colors flying when we reach home.

We are glad to see Mr. P. R. Kilgo back among us.

At Wellesley anyone who hands in a paper in which three words are misspelled must join one of the classes in spelling.

SOCIAL ITEMS.

Mrs. R. E. Lee has as her guest her aunt, Miss Aiken, of Winnsboro, S. C.

Mr. J. L. Hilton, of Anderson, has come to Clemson to fill the position in the commandant's office which was left vacant by the resignation of Mr. Gasque.

Mr. Carroll, of McCormick, S. C, has been given the position of assistant bookkeeper in the treasurer's office, and has already taken up his work.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Bradley and Master Mark Edward Bradley spent several days last week in Abbeville.

The Thursday Club met last week with Mrs. J. G. Hall.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. M. E. Bradley entertained very delightfully at cards. Among the invited guests were: Mrs. W. M. Riggs, Harry Smith, M. B. Rudd, Willis, J. G. Hall, B. Freeman and A. Bramlett.

Wednesday evening Mrs. Harry Smith was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bramlett at tea. After supper the Misses Sailer and Mr. D. H. Henry were invited to join them in a game of cards.

The many friends of Miss Rosa Calhoun at Clemson and elsewhere have received invitations which read as follows:

Miss Calhoun
invites you to be present at the marriage of her daughter
Rosa
to Mr. Samuel Wilds Evans
on Wednesday the twelfth of April nineteen hundred and eleven at high noon
Fort Hill Presbyterian Church
Clemson College, South Carolina

Miss Calhoun is one of our most attractive and popular young ladies and is much loved by her many friends, while Mr. Evans is one of the finest young men and most perfect gentlemen at Clemson. Only within the last few weeks Mr. Evans has been promoted from the position of assistant bookkeeper to that of head bookkeeper.

BETSY HAMILTON.

On Friday evening, March 24th, Mrs. M. V. Moore, popularly known by our Southern people as Betsy Hamilton, gave a reading for the benefit of the Daughters of the American Revolution here. This reading was given in the Y. M. C. A. Hall and quite a crowd of our people were fortunate enough to be present. Mrs. Moore has read at Clemson before but those who heard her then enjoyed this last reading even more than they did her former ones. With the exception of one poem, which was written by Mrs. Moore's husband, her pieces were all her own writings, and many of them were read by the request of those who had heard them before and could not be satisfied without a repetition of them. The most of Mrs. Moore's selections are full of rare humor and those who were fortunate enough to attend felt that they had not enjoyed anything so much in many months. We hope that this will not be our last opportunity of hearing Betsy Hamilton. The last selection of the evening was given in costume.

is—always good. While there were one or two faults in the playing, Coach Dobson expressed himself as well pleased with the result. It is due to Dobson that the games were as close as they were. His splendid work with the men for the past four weeks has had a wonderful effect, and we are confident that the team will grow better as the season draws to a close. Below is a short account of the two games:

University of Georgia 5; Clemson 2

This game was played on a wet field with a high wind blowing all the time. Both sides hit fairly well, but the Georgia bunch had a little the best end of the deal, getting eight to our five. Rivers pitched this game and pitched a good one considering the fact that he has practiced very little as yet this spring. The feature of the game was the hitting of Bartlett for Georgia, who secured three hits out of four times up. All the fellows played a steady game but owing to the high wind a good many errors were made. Good base running was done on both sides. The game was interesting throughout and it wasn’t over until the last man was put out in the ninth.

University of Georgia 3; Clemson 0.

This game was played on Tuesday and under almost ideal conditions. Leon Rice, of Anderson, officiated. Georgia scored two of her runs in the first inning by a pair of men who had walked followed by a clean single by McWhirter. After this inning, the “Doc” Ezell settled down to work and pitched a beautiful game throughout. The fielding of Schroder and the hitting of Harris were features of the game from our side; while the pitching of Thompson and a one-hand “shoestring” pick up of Tupper’s drive to second by Bartlett of Georgia was remarkable. All the boys stayed in the game all the time and few errors were made. Those who played in these games were: Rivers and Ezell, pitchers; Jenkins and Bates, catchers; Thomas 1st; Hiers and Harris, 2nd; Tupper, ss; McKeon, 3rd; Connelly, If; Schroder, cf, and Cochran, rf.
