A Native Swede Entertains on Lyceum Course.

Almost two hours of continuous amusing and instructive entertainment was given in chapel by Karl Jansen, a native of Sweden, on the evening of April 4. His subjects were miscellaneous and his recitals in costume. It is needless to say that those who enjoyed this unusual privilege were pleased with this actor's great ability as an entertainer. To those who missed this we would say, grasp the first opportunity in the future to hear Jansen.

Calhoun Society Gives Annual Celebration.

The Calhoun Literary Society held its annual celebration in the college chapel on last Friday evening at 8 o'clock. The rostrum was beautifully decorated with white and pink geraniums, ferns and begonias.

After prayer by Rev. T. V. McCaul, Mr. Salley, the presiding officer, in a few but eloquent remarks, expressed to the audience the purpose of the society's annual celebration. Mr. Salley now introduced Mr. Ross, of Gaffney, S. C., as the first declaimer of the evening. His subject was “Rienzi to the Romans.” The old chapel walls echoed and re-echoed to the eloquent voice of the declaimer. Mr. Hill, of Bamberg, S. C., held his audience's at-
Mr. Crawford, of Bartow, Fla., the first orator of the evening, opened the firing line of oratory. Subject, "The Ruling Spirit." The young orator handled his subject eloquently. Mr. C. S. Lykes, of Columbia, S. C., the last orator of the evening, silenced his audience by his thrilling oration, "America Yesterday and Today." Mr. Lykes dealt with his subject very skillfully indeed.

Mr. Salley now introduced the debaters of the evening and read the query. Mr. Foster, of Gaffney, S. C., forcibly represented the affirmative side. Mr. Deason, of McCormick, S. C., strongly upheld the negative side. Query: Resolved, That a treaty of commercial reciprocity should not be concluded between the United States and Canada. For thirty-five minutes each debater hotly contested his side of the question.

Professors Riggs, Wells and Bramlett acted as judges. After much consideration and the careful weighing of the points of the debaters, and the style and composition of the young orators and declaimers, Prof. Riggs announced Mr. Ross as the winner of the declaimer's medal; Mr. Crawford as the successful one to the orator's medal; and Mr. Deason as the lucky winner of the debater's medal.

The society was very proud of its members who so eloquently represented it in the celebration.

The society is indebted very much to the college orchestra for the fine music which it gave the audience during the intermissions.

For one hour this robust, attractive, and cultured native of "The Land of the Midnight Sun" gave in an interesting manner a description of his native home, the beauty of this cold country, the customs peculiar to the people among which he was reared, and the contrast between Swedish and American schools. He believes that the physical part of man is co-equal with the mental part, and one would be—and rightly—led to have faith in the doctrine by the grand physique and perfect health of the man of whom America should be proud. His discourse was almost like a visit to the land of Sweden, and was, every word and act, full of interest, instruction and amusement.

For ten minutes the audience was highly pleased with the presentation of the sixth and seventh acts of Richard III in regal costume. Though many of the audience were not familiar with this work of Shakespeare, the thrilling scene of the criminal king's death was appreciated by all.

Mr. Jansen came to the United States ten years ago and is now proud of the fact that he is a naturalized citizen. He carries with him his native flag together with the stars and stripes. He is now of Greensboro, N. C., but is familiar with many portions of our country. To say the least, Mr. Jansen is a man of no mean ability, and fortunate will we be on the day when another engagement is secured with him.

"You see," said the professor, "the science of chemistry depends on the discovery of certain affinities—"

"Pardon me," interrupted Miss Prim, "I trust the conversation can proceed without drifting into scandal."—Ex.

Soph. Mellette wanted to know how many girls there were in the Columbia College quartette.
During the past month, the work in the Palmetto has been considerably interrupted by the examinations, and the annual celebrations, contests, etc., of the other societies. The new set of officers are now in place, and the work has been resumed with the vigor which has characterized our work throughout the year.

The debate, which should have taken place at this meeting, was postponed in order that all the debaters might be present, and that each side might have its full representation in the settling of this all-important issue. All the debaters, on both sides, are from the Junior class, and, much, it seems, is expected of them.

Messrs. Gilmore and Henderson, with their splendid orations, and Messrs. Rast and Johnston, with their inspiring declamations, made the meeting a most interesting one.

The essayist, Mr. King, C. J., was absent. Three of the honorable members of the Columbian, Messrs. Wall, Wiggins, and Harrison, graced the society with their presence. We were glad, indeed, to have inspiring words from each of these.

preciation of good manners. It is hoped that these few fellows rear of the hall to rise and walk heavily out is sufficient to em-walk out of the hall? This was probably not meant as a discouring while the music was being rendered. What could be more either left the hall or came in during the speaking. To say the otions of a few of the cadets at the recent annual celebration of the will be more thoughtful in the future and realize the effect produced by their actions.

The Charleston boys didn’t even make the game interesting. Probably they will do better next time.

What about the “Lyric”? Clemson is assuming the aspect of a city now, as the business manager of ‘11 Taps has put on a motion picture show for Friday and Saturday nights. Turn out boys and make the annual a financial success.

It is impossible to refrain from making criticisms of the actions of a few of the cadets at the recent annual celebration of the Calhoun Literary Society. It was a conspicuous fact that several either left the hall or came in during the speaking. To say the least, these cadets had full opportunity of either leaving or entering while the music was being rendered. What could be more discourteous to a speaker than to get up during his speaking and walk out of the hall? This was probably not meant as a discourtesy to the speaker, but for one occupying a seat even near the rear of the hall to rise and walk heavily out is sufficient to embarrass or baffle an experienced speaker. Besides this the speaker is discouraged to the extent that he feels that his audience is not appreciating what he has to say. Men actually left from near the middle of the hall in the midst of more than one of these speakers’ discourses. Such action not only shows discourtesy to the speaker, but is a prominent manifestation of a gross lack of appreciation of good manners. It is hoped that these few fellows will be more thoughtful in the future and realize the effect produced by their actions.

The Tar Heel, published by the athletic association of the University of North Carolina, has for some time been waging an energetic campaign against public dice rolling. It seems that some of the students carry on this practice on the sidewalk in front of drug stores, etc., and while engaged in this practice, they have a total disregard for any ladies or other passers-by. We do not care to say anything against such a detestable—worse when public—practice, but we wish the Tar Heel success in its endeavor to stop this and uplift the morals of the student body of the University. There is no greater mission for a college paper than to aid in the improvement of the morals of the institution in which so many young men go each year to prepare themselves for life.

A paper should speak out for those things which are just and right whether applauded in its course or not.

THE SPARTANBURG SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The delegation from the Sunday School at Clemson College, which attended the S. S. Convention at Spartanburg March 28-30 inclusive included two members of the faculty, and 15 boys.

The representatives of the delegation made their report at Sunday school last Sunday, and each seemed to be very greatly impressed with the work that the International Sunday School Association is doing.

The program, as it was arranged and carried out at the convention, was very helpful to those who attended as the problems were discussed by educators and business men from all over the State. Not only were the problems discussed as they exist in the Sunday schools, but they were discussed in their relations to the betterment of the nation at large.

Each one of the delegates reports a very profitable meeting, delightful entertainment and a really good time in general. We hope that these delegates may set themselves to work and let the Sunday school here know by their acts that they attended the Sunday School convention.

Students of Taylor University, Texas, who eat at Cowden Hall, have registered a formal protest against the serving of soup and ice water in vessels of similar shape and size. The following petition sets forth their grievances in unmistakable form:

“Resolved, by the undersigned feeders at Cowden Hall, have registered a formal protest against the serving of soup and ice water in vessels of similar shape and size. The following petition sets forth their grievances in unmistakable form:

Whereas, Through this similarity it often happens that a man gets soup in his glass and water in his bowl, and consumes them without discovering the mistake, and

Whereas, Through the coolness of the soup, it is impossible to distinguish between them by temperature; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the undersigned feeders at Cowden Hall, That we respectfully petition the management to procure and to enforce the use of an entirely different design of pitcher for soup, or to otherwise so mark, distinguish, label, define, serve, or classify the said soup that it will not be confused with the said ice water. All of which your petitioners pray for to the end that they may with certainty get what they want, or, at least, know what they get.”

CLASSES

SENIOR.

Everything comes to those who wait. In our last report, we closed earnestly hoping that “Senior Privileges” would be granted ere long. On last Saturday, the hearts of all the Seniors were made to rejoice when we heard General Order No. 42, granting the long sought freedom.

A great deal of interest is being manifested by our members in the organization of the rifle club to compete for the prizes offered by the United States war department. Out of the thirty-six men who have begun practice, eighteen are from our class. These are Messrs. All; Wolfe, R. S.; Crawford, J. T.; Lawton, J. K.; Dukes, O. O.; Tobin, L. P.; Epps, M. H.; Stokes, W. E.; Lykes, C. S.; Boone, L. D.; Stickley, J. P.; Altman, L. B.; Hankel, W. H.; Haynesworth, W. M.; Cooper, H. P.; Harrison, J. W.; Henderson, W. N.; and Lykes, F. W.

Baseball and track are progressing very nicely. The men who represented our class in the games against Erskine last Friday and Saturday were: Messrs. Jenkins, E. S.; McCown, F. O.; Boone, L. D.; Stickley, J. P.; Altaian, L. B.; Hankel, W. H.; Haynesworth, W. M.; Cooper, H. P.; Harrison, J. W.; Henderson, W. N.; and Lykes, F. W.

Mr. J. B. Keith has put on a moving picture show in chapel for every Friday and Saturday night when there is nothing else to conflict. We commend this to the hearty support of all, especially the Senior class. The proceeds of this show will go for the benefit of “1911 Taps.” Now, the book, as it is being published this year, costs just about twice as much as it will be sold for. So, come out, one and all, enjoy the pictures, and, at the same time, help make the Annual a “booming” success.

Clemson was well represented at the State Sunday School Convention held in Spartanburg, March 28-30. Those attending from our numbers were Messrs. Dukes, Garrett, Altman and Gilliam. All report a very pleasant and profitable time.

The suggestion of turning the college publications over to the Junior class seems to have been well received by all concerned; yet, nothing has been done about it. Over two weeks of the third term has now slipped by. Procrastinate a few weeks longer, and June will be here and the new men will not have received any experience. Then, we who have once been in that predicament, will pity them; but it will have come too late to do them any good.

The ever pressing question presenting itself to men about to go out to do battle with the world, “What am I going to do?” comes to many of our men at this time. However, some have settled it definitely, having secured positions—some good, some poor, some indifferent; but all presenting, more or less, chances of advancement to those who deserve it.

In some cases, things are badly turned around in this world. It seems that the Wofford Senior, after four year’s study in the class room, should know more about the Bible than was found to be the case in an examination some time ago. When asked who Jeremiah was, he replied that he did not know; but ventured to add that he did know who Jerry Moore was. Now, we feel sure—thanks to the Y. M. C. A. and our practical agriculturists—that there is hardly one in Clemson who could not answer both of these questions.

JUNIOR.

Many men in our class took advantage of the opportunity of spending a few days at home at the end of the second term; but they have all returned to college now, and have got a good two week’s start on the third and last term of this year.

The baseball spirit is still alive among the members of our class. On Saturday morning, a double-header was played. The first game was only for seven innings, and was between the “Bulls” and the “Hayseeds.” When the final inning was played, it was found that the largest score was in favor of the “Hayseeds.”

The second game on Saturday, was also a seven inning game, and was between the “Chemists” and the “Bulls.” After a closely contested game, the “Bulls” again suffered defeat. The final score of this game read: “Chemists” 13; “Bulls” 12.

Other games are to be played by these teams from time to time, and a game will soon be played between two teams, one picked from the agricultural members of our class, and the other from among the mechanical men of the class.

Messrs. Caldwell, Strubling, Ezell, Hall, and others spent a few days at their respective homes at the end of the second term. Messrs. J. A. Bates and H. P. Rivers spent last Friday and Saturday in Due West, where they aided in the defeat of the Erskine baseball team.

Mr. C. J. Hayden made a business trip to Seneca on last Saturday.

A PARODY.

Nothing to eat for dinner,
Nothing to eat you say?
Let's take a trip on memory's ship,
Back to old Christmas day.

There are pies, there are cakes,
And there are puddings,
Turkey and cranberry sauce,
With all these good things,
And others not named,
I'd rather be there than here.

Home days, home days,
Dear old days of pleasure,
Eating, and playing, and going to sleep,
Working but little, with plenty to eat,
That was not like this life I live.

Starring to death on uncooked food,
When I leave the mess hall, I'm hungry, boys,
I'm as hungry as I was before.

A FRESHMAN'S WAIL.

I am a Freshman here,
Within a foreign land;
My home is lovelier by far
Then "73's" wielding hand.

Oh! when, thou home of mine,
Shall I thy steps ascend?
Where belts are ne'er applied,
And happiness never ends.

Thou happier home than Eden's bloom,
No nights of banquets see.
Blest gates! through rude and stormy scenes
I onward press to thee.

We'll pad our backs, my brother Fish,
Our humble home's discerning,
We'll obey the call of the Sophomore class,
And let our backs keep burning!

"When does the 3:49 train get in?" asked one.
The old man regarded him seriously and at length, "Wall,

Later they approached him respectfully. "About time that

"Yes," said the agent, "she's about due. There comes the

"Why do people call this railroad the dairy line?"

SOPHOMORE.

The Sophomores are down to hard study again after the second term examination. This is the last term, and we are certainly glad. Visions of June come before our eyes, even at this early date.

The four agricultural sections of our class were very sorry to see Dr. G. C. Crampton, professor of zoology, leave on Sunday, April 2, for Amherst, Mass., where he has accepted a position in the Agricultural College of Massachusetts. The members of the four sections presented Dr. Crampton with a beautiful fountain pen, before his departure. We all wish Dr. Crampton much success in his new position, and we are sorry that he could not stay with us longer.

Messrs. T. F. Massey and T. C. Gentry attended the delightful reception at Chicora College Friday, March 23.

Y. M. C. A.

Owing to the fact that Mr. Bauknight, who was to have addressed the Y. M. C. A. on last Sunday evening, was taken sick and could not be with us, the Rev. Mr. McCall addressed the Y. M. C. A. on that occasion. Though he was given but short notice, he made an excellent address on "The Right Foundation." All who attended this meeting were very much inspired by this address.

At a recent meeting of the cabinet, it was decided to give a banquet to the Bible class which had made the best average attendance since Christmas. But, since two classes had one hundred per cent attendance, we had to give the banquet to two classes instead of one. The Bible class leaders and the cabinet will also be entertained at this banquet. The new cabinet for the ensuing year was also presented to the old cabinet for their approval, and was accepted without opposition.
