Weakened by the loss of two of their best men, Barrett and Magill, the Sophomores went down in defeat before the “Rats” in their annual class game played last Saturday afternoon. The Sophs were altogether on the defense, and the ball was in the hands of the Freshmen during most of the game. Both touchdowns were the result of clean line bucking by Durant, Major, and Littlejohn and sweeping end runs by Walker and Reaves, and no flukes characterized the scoring as in the Junior-Fresh game the week before. The loss of one of their regular backfield men, considerably weakened the Sophs and their work on the offense was loose throughout. Durant and Reaves did the scoring for the Fresh, but the victory was due to

Dreaming and Building:
We must build, each for himself,
Whether we will or no,
And be the structure high as fame,
Or like despair as low.

A Master wise has furnished well
The implements for all
With which to dress the awkward stones
And unhewn timbers fall.

We ever dream, and dreaming form
An ideal for a plan
By which each stone is laid in place
And finished every span.

Few build alike, though side by side
Their buildings upward rise.
Some span the stream of Time full well,
Some build a bridge of sighs.

Within the present some have built,
And for themselves alone;
While others build of kindly deeds
Their house upon a stone.

Whether our structures stand or fall,
On our ideals depend.
Then, dreaming, let's dream noble dreams
That ideals high commend.

DINGLE'S JINGLES

BY W. D. BANKS

A Winthrop girl addressed a letter to Mr. Will Love Smarr. When delivered it read thus: Mrs. Jones Always Will 'Love Smarr.

The Corn Club boys' bunks were made of canvas tacked across two-by-fours somewhat as a drum-head is fastened. As a substitute for turning, one boy took his knife, reached over, and cut the canvas from under the boy next to him.

A late and popular song is entitled, "Will Chewing Gum Lose It's Flavor on the Bed-post Overnight?"

Dr. Calhoun—Should I be seen in the Sahara desert, what would happen?

Joe Barnwell—It would freeze.

Two men, to catch some boys off limits, went over to Calhoun the other day, and hid in a box car. Luckily, one of the boys happened to see them enter their hiding place, so he slipped up and locked the door.

Two days later, they were discovered in Columbia, taken before court, and sentenced to five years hard labor for riding on a freight train.

"Of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these, It might have been."

One-year student (looking at bill board): Gee, I wonder when the "Gold Dust Twins" are going to be at the theatre.

Sloan: Headaches are caused by pressure of the brain.

Gentry: Well, I've been wondering why I have headaches so often.

Peter Myers: Give me two eggs and a beef.

Goodman: I haven't got the beef so "cheese it".

One of the Corn Club boys asked Captain Holmes to take him to the Y. M. C. A., swimming hole.

Major Stuff: We are going to have a colored picture in our Annual this year.

Alex Lewis: Who's? Ed. Hunter's?

Roy Robison: Alex, what are you going to run the mile in this year.

Alex: In B. V. D.'s, of course.

Sam Harrison: I have 185 does in my ring.

J. O. Erwin: I have my fingers in mine.

W. M. RIGGS, President, Clemson College, S. C.

Clemson College expends over $100,000 annually for State work, such as Fertilizer Inspection and Analysis, Veterinary and Entomological Inspection, Tick and Cholera Eradication, Agricultural and Textile Scholarships, Branch Stations, and other lines of public service.
There is nothing more interesting to visitors—or cadets—than the mess hall. There is also nothing at Clemson but a better system. Few of us realize this; and, therefore, it will prove of interest to read “The Mess Hall” by Dr. Riggs, in this issue.

Four months more of college life, four months more of college fare, four months more of thesis work, four months more of toil and care, four months more of reveille, four months more of drill and such, four months more, the seniors say, four months more—not very much. Four months sounds better than four years, yet we do not hail the time so joyfully as we once thought. Anxious though we are for our diplomas, as the time of departure draws near, it brings with it a feeling of sadness and of fear—the sadness of parting and a fear of the future. Into the next four months should be crowded much—much of sweetness added to the friendships, much of work in preparation for the future.

Man in charge: If you say a word after half past eight, we will send you home.
Corn Club boy: What if I talk in my sleep?

Kyser: The men and women of today are not what they used to be.
Smar: How’s that?
Kyser: They used to be boys and girls.
THE "MESS HALL."

To furnish over 2,200 meals every day of the session at an average of less than 9c per meal, is a task of no small magnitude. "Feed" has a direct bearing on efficiency and reasonable contentment. The task of feeding the 700 or more students at Clemson is therefore one of the most important problems with which the College has to deal.

The Editor thinks that some of the details of this big business which concerns every student will be of interest to the readers of "The Tiger." Since I have given much time and thought to this Department,—in fact more than to any other one Department of the College,—I take pleasure in writing this account of how this business is managed.

To start at the beginning, each student pays per quarter of ten weeks $22.50 for his living expenses. This is at the rate of $10.00 per month divided up as follows—Board $8.00, Laundry $1.00, Heat, Light and Water $1.00. The total income from this source is approximately $65,000 during a session of average attendance.

In this article we will consider only the $8.00 which is paid for board.

Under the laws of the College, the President is the Trustee of the funds which are paid in by the students, and is authorized to expend them for their necessary living expenses. Not one cent of the funds which the students pay goes to the College. It is all used for the purposes specified, and if there is a small remainder at the end of the session, it is either carried over to the next session for the same purpose, or is used to make improvements that will directly benefit the student body. Should there be a deficit, the College makes it good.

The College does not charge to the cadets the service of many of the officers who are connected with the expenditure of the cadet fund, as for instance, the Treasurer, the Bookkeepers, the Quarter-master, the Teamster, etc.

The purchasing of all food and supplies is in the hands of a Committee composed of the President and the Treasurer, Dr. Sloan. The Steward acts with the Committee as a judge of quality. About three times a year a list of groceries, etc., is sent out to wholesale firms and written bids asked for. No verbal proposition is considered, and the bid of any firm that sends an agent to solicit the business is thrown out. This rule is followed in order that all of the work of the Committee may be in the form of documentary record. No second grade materials are specified or bought. Flour, rice, grits, canned goods, etc., are of the first grade.

After the material arrives, it is turned over to the Quarter-Master and kept in the Commissary. Every day the Steward, Mr. Schilletter, makes out a requisition for his needs of the day, and this is furnished and charged to him. A daily report is made by the Quarter-master to the President’s office, showing what has been furnished the Steward, and from this report the cost per student is figured out. The Steward makes a daily report giving the bill of fare for each meal. At the end of each month, the daily reports are added up, an inventory of all supplies on hand is taken, all receipts and expenditures on the Treasurer’s Books are considered, and a complete account for the month is prepared. This is made up in the President’s of-

In connection with the mess hall, a Beef Feeding station is maintained for furnishing a supply of fresh meat. This is under the charge of the Division of Animal Husbandry. A truck garden is also operated under the supervision of the Horticulture Division. Both of the above divisions, as well as the dairy, sell their products to the barracks at approximate cost prices. A contract is maintained with Armour & Co. of Chicago, to furnish sausage, pork and beef if at any time the local supply fails. This session we have used only native cattle which are killed one day and eaten within thirty-six hours.

The mess hall and kitchen are under the supervision of Mr. Schilletter, and he is held responsible for everything connected with them. To assist him, he has the Matron, who looks after the dining room service and the dish washing, the head waiter, who in turn supervises the cadet waiters, and the various cooks, laborers, etc. Mr. Schilletter has been with the College over seventeen years, and so far as I know, he has never missed a day on account of sickness, or failed to get a meal on time. This is a record of faithful service that very few can boast of.

Until this session, only $6.50 was charged for board. However, in view of the higher price for food and labor, the Trustees decided for this session to raise the board to its present figure of $8.00, and this is none too high to give reasonably satisfactory service. Every cent of this amount is being expended for the mess hall.

It is fashionable for College boys, and girls too, for that matter, to complain of the fare they have at College. However, considering the number of boys and the different homes from which they come, it is surprising that there is so little complaint. This session I have heard only three complaints from students or parents in regard to the fare. In one case, a boy wrote home and told his father that he got spoiled beef almost every day. Of course, such a statement is ridiculous! The few who complain do not stop to think that there is a necessary difference in feeding a family of 700 and a family of six or seven who sit down at the home table. They do not reflect that 9c is a small price to pay for the meals they get. If the price of board were raised, greater variety and greater quantity could be given, but many a poor boy who is now barely able to get along would be deprived of an opportunity for an education.

I wish it to be distinctly understood that it is our purpose to make the mess hall just as satisfactory as possible to every student, and that criticisms made in the proper spirit will be welcomed and carefully investigated. One of the special duties which I expect of the Class Co-operative Committee is to help keep me posted on the living conditions of the students. It is not only my duty, but it will be a pleasure for me at any time to further improve conditions or to remove any just cause for complaint in so far as it is possible to do so. Of course, accidents will happen sometimes, as they will in the best regulated families. Sometimes it will happen that a lot of meal will have weevils in it, and some of it will get on the table before this is discovered. Sometimes a barrel of molasses will sour and some of it be used before the trouble is discovered. However, these little irregularities will happen in almost any family, and they should be borne with that patience which is the mark of good breeding. Perfection is not to be expected and cannot be attained. Reasonable efficiency on the one hand and reasonable requirements on the other must be necessary for the successful operation of a business of such magnitude, and run on such a small margin as is the mess hall.

Just one thing in closing,—a proper appreciation courteously expressed goes far to compensate those who bear every day the heavy burden of trying to feed and to please so large a family. A word of encouragement to those who bear these burdens and a word of appreciation when things are a little better than usual, will bear fruit in still more efficient and loyal service.
