Clemson alumnus Warren H. Owen is one of the top corporate leaders of Duke Power Company at its headquarters in Charlotte, N. C.

Mr. Owen is executive vice president of the company's power group, which involves overall responsibility for engineering, construction, production, and generation and information services. But as busy as he is, he always has time for Clemson. He is known as one of the University's most dedicated and enthusiastic alumni and is currently serving a second term as president of the Clemson Alumni Association and the Alumni National Council. He also has served on the College of Engineering Advisory Board and on search committees which have filled three executive level positions at Clemson University.

He played a crucial role in the highly successful campaign among Duke Power employees which raised $1.3 million for academics at Clemson. The Duke Power/Clemson University Campaign was in celebration of the University's Centennial. On Nov. 29 one of the distinguished professorships to be funded from the campaign was named the Warren H. Owen Distinguished Professorship of Engineering in his honor — an action which underscores the high esteem in which he is held both by colleagues and employees at Duke.

Mr. Owen earned his bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering, graduating in 1947 with high honors. He joined Duke Power Company as an engineer in the steam production department the following year and served in various positions before being assigned to the general office in 1954. He was transferred to the design engineering department in 1962 and was made principal mechanical engineer in 1966. He was elected vice president of design engineering in 1971, senior president of engineering and construction in 1978 and executive vice president of engineering and construction in 1982. He accepted additional responsibilities as executive vice president of the power group during a reorganization in October 1988.

He was elected to the Board of Directors and executive committee of Duke Power in 1978.

Since becoming principal engineer in 1966, Mr. Owen has accumulated an impressive record of accomplishments. His increasing level of involvement and responsibility in the design and construction of power plants led to placing in operation 14,295 megawatts of productive capacity. Half of this capacity is comprised of seven nuclear units. Additionally, he is now directing the company's efforts toward completion of four pumped-storage hydroelectric units with a combined capacity of 1,000 megawatts.

Under his leadership these fossil and nuclear generation plants were designed and constructed to achieve one of the industry's highest levels of operating performance and efficiency. Duke Power has had the number one fossil-gathering system in the country for the past 14 years and finishes high in total generating efficiency, both nuclear and fossil, each year.

His many honors and awards include the Atomic Industrial Forum's Clyde A. Lilly, Jr. Award which he received for managing recovery efforts at Three Mile Island in 1979. In 1987 he received the James N. Landis Medal from the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Clemson is indeed fortunate to have alumni like Warren Owen who are committed to its future and eager to work for its continued advancement. It is a very special privilege to honor one of our own with the presentation of this honorary degree.
The President's Award

DR. ROBERT ROY PEARCE

Friends and associates alike know this Clemson graduate as one of the University's most active and dedicated alumni — Columbia businessman and distinguished war veteran Dr. R. Roy Pearce. He is a member of the Class of 1941 that marched out of college and off to a world war in which about one-fourth of the 409 graduates gave their lives in defense of their country.

He long has been an enthusiastic supporter of programs to achieve greater overall excellence at his alma mater. On December 13, President Lennon announced that Dr. Pearce and his wife, the former Margery Ellison "Marnie" Walker of Columbia, are establishing the R. Roy and Margery W. Pearce Center for Professional Communication — a Class of 1941 initiative — with a $1.5 million commitment to the University. Their generous gift is the largest cash gift in the University's history.

Dr. Pearce, who is president of the Class of 1941 and a past president of the Clemson Alumni Association, also heads that class's drive to raise a minimum of $5 million for Clemson in memory of classmates who died in World War II. Dr. and Mrs. Pearce's gift will help complete that goal by the class's Golden Anniversary Reunion in 1991.

Dr. Pearce was one of the quarterbacks on the 1939 Clemson football squad that played in the Cotton Bowl. He also played on Coach Frank Howard's first team as head coach that won the Southern Conference championship in 1940.

Dr. Pearce is president of Roy Pearce Associates, management counselors, and secretary of Budweiser of Columbia, Inc.

The University Regalia

The University mace is the symbolic representation of the whole of Clemson University and must be present at any convocation where the University, through its delegated members, is acting officially. At any official convocation such as commencement, the University Marshal, carrying the mace, precedes the President into the assembly. The mace rests before the President's chair or speaker's stand throughout the ceremony, and its removal from the assembly at the close of a convocation is symbolic of the official withdrawal of the University and, thus, the close of the proceedings.

The decorative design of Clemson's mace is derived from the ceremonial maces carried by heads of state and church in the Middle Ages. Its basic club-like shape, however, is much more ancient, probably going back to man's pre-history. It is made of walnut wood and silver, with the seal of the University in gold and the University colors represented by insets of cornelian (orange) and amethyst (purple). Amethyst is also the state stone of South Carolina.

The Presidential chain and seal is symbolic of the authority vested in the office of president by the governing body of the University. Only the University President may wear it, and while wearing it he speaks for the whole body of the institution. Clemson's chain and seal are made of silver and gold, and cornelian and amethyst.

The batons of the college marshals also descend from medieval "staffs of office" which were carried by the senior members of departments of state or church. They display the seal of the University and the symbolic color of the discipline to which the college belongs. Clemson's batons are made of walnut wood and silver with the various disciplines inset with enamel.

The University regalia were designed and executed by Mr. Robert Ebendorf. Mr. Ebendorf is twice winner of the Tiffany Award and one of the most acclaimed goldsmiths of our era. The enamel plaques for the batons were executed by the late Professor Marshall C. Bell, and the lapidary work was executed by the late Mr. C. C. Wilson of Clemson University.
The Academic Procession

The Academic procession is composed of the faculty, officers, Trustees, and honored guests of the University. Faculty enter by college and each college is preceded by its marshal, a senior faculty member, with the college baton, described under University Regalia.

Following the marshal is the college banner bearer. Each banner is a combination of colors that declare the disciplines taught in that college. These colors, which were established by the American Council on Education, are as follows:

Collegiate faculty follow their banner in order of academic rank wearing academic costumes of medieval origin. Those who have received their degrees from institutions outside the United States wear costumes specified by the awarding institutions. The academic costumes of faculty whose degrees are from United States' institutions are specified by a uniform code maintained by the American Council on Education. Caps are black and are usually mortar boards with tassels. Doctors of Philosophy wear gold tassels usually of metallic thread; other degrees wear black or discipline colors.

The bachelors' gown is simple and black with long, pointed sleeves. Masters' gowns, also black, are longer than bachelors. Older gowns have sleeves that terminate at the elbow while those since 1960 have sleeves extended to the wrist. Doctors' gowns are full, with bell-like sleeves. The front is marked by velvet panels and the sleeves are marked by three velvet bars. While most gowns are black with black velvet, one variation is to replace black velvet with velvet in the discipline color. A second variation is a colored gown usually of the university's colors.

All hoods specify the level of degree, the discipline studied and the awarding institution. First, degree level is signified by the size of the hood with bachelors' smallest, masters' larger, and doctors' quite large and of a different shape. Clemson does not award hoods to bachelors. The width of the velvet trim also conveys the degree. Secondly, the discipline is indicated by the color of the trim edging the hood to form the throat over the gown. Finally, the color of the hood's lining specifies the awarding institution. The colors are displayed in combinations that are drawn from heraldry. Notice that the Clemson University hood is lined with purple through which is an orange chevron (a "V"). Although many combinations are duplicated by dozens of institutions, Clemson is presently the only institution with that registered combination.

The officers, trustees, and honored guests wear academic, ecclesiastical, or military regalia as set forth by their professions. They are preceded by the University marshal. Clad in a gown of office in gold and purple, the marshal wears no hood and bears the University mace. At the ceremony's close, the faculty do not exit as a part of the recessional but are dismissed, along with students and guests, when the marshal leaves the coliseum.
Coat of Arms

Designed by Clemson University graphic artist, Connie Floyd, the coat of arms represents the historic three-fold mission of this institution: teaching, research and service.

Pictured on the cover, the coat of arms is divided into three parts. The bottom contains a series of open books representing the concept of teaching as the basis of the land-grant university. The white of the books and the purple of the background designate the teaching mission of the University as it is achieved through undergraduate and graduate instruction.

The upper portion of the shield contains two sets of calipers and wheat sheaves illustrating the measurement system for research, as well as Clemson's tradition in agriculture and Extension. The three symbols — the books, calipers and wheat sheaves — also represent the humanities, technology and science.

The entire shield is joined by a small orange center shield bearing a white tiger mask symbolizing the abiding spirit of Clemson.

The crest is a gold palmetto tree, which emphasizes Thomas Green Clemson’s desire that Clemson become “the people’s university” for South Carolinians. It rises from a band of purple, orange, white and gold. The outer pair of colors, purple and gold, are the official colors of the University; the inner pair, orange and white, are Clemson’s student colors.

Historical Statement

Clemson University is named for Thomas Green Clemson (1807-1888), who left the bulk of his estate to the State of South Carolina for the founding of the institution.

Thomas Clemson was born in Philadelphia in 1807 and educated at the Royal School of Mines in Paris (1828-1832). His early profession was that of a mining engineer; but circumstances diverted his interests into politics and the life of a southern planter, and he soon became an enthusiastic advocate of scientific agriculture. He had a career as a diplomat (charge d'affaires to Belgium, 1844-1852) and served as the first Superintendent of Agricultural Affairs in Washington (1860). As a scientist he published numerous articles in the fields of mining, chemistry, and agriculture. His varied activities included his assistance in the founding of the Maryland Agricultural College, his support of the Morrill Act, his leadership in South Carolina after the Civil War, and his part in founding Clemson University.

Thomas Clemson was the son-in-law of South Carolina's John C. Calhoun, a political figure of national importance during the first half of the nineteenth century. Mr. Calhoun's home, Fort Hill, is preserved on the Clemson Campus as a national shrine.

The academic program at Clemson College began in 1893 with an enrollment of 446. The first "college prospectus" announced only two four-year curricula, supplemented by two two-year preparatory courses. Today the University has ten major academic units. These are the College of Agricultural Sciences, the College of Architecture, the College of Commerce and Industry, the College of Education, the College of Engineering, the College of Forest and Recreation Resources, the College of Liberal Arts, the College of Nursing, the College of Sciences, and the Graduate School.

The institution is an accredited member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools; various curricula are accredited by the National Architectural Accrediting Board, National League for Nursing, Society of American Foresters, American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business, Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology, and National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education.

Clemson is a land-grant institution. As such, it is engaged not only in its primary academic program, but does extensive research at the main campus and at five agricultural experiment stations located in the State. The University is also heavily committed to a varied program of public service, including the work of agricultural extension which has professional personnel located in each of the State's counties.
CLEMSON ALMA MATER
A. C. Corcoran, '19

Where the Blue Ridge yawns its greatness,
Where the Tigers play;
Here the sons of dear old Clemson
Reign supreme alway.

Chorus
Dear old Clemson, we will triumph
And with all our might,
That the Tiger's roar may echo
O'er the mountain height.

We will dream of great conquests,
For our past is grand,
And her sons have fought and conquered
Every foreign land.

Where the mountains smile in grandeur
O'er the hill and dale.
Here the Tiger lair is nestling
Swept by storm and gale.

We are brothers strong in manhood,
For we work and strive;
And our alma mater reigneth
Ever in our lives.
