HONORARY DEGREE
GEORGE C. CHAPLIN
DOCTOR OF HUMANITIES

Clemson alumnus and South Carolinian George Chaplin, editor-at-large of The Honolulu Advertiser is one of the most highly respected journalists to come out of the institution. He enjoys both a national and international reputation in his field.

As a young cadet in the early 1930s, Mr. Chaplin was majoring in chemistry and reporting for The Tiger. He was encouraged to put away his test tubes and pursue a career in the written word because his special flair for writing had not gone unnoticed by John D. Lane, who was faculty adviser to the student newspaper. Professor Lane taught English and was beloved by countless students. Mr. Chaplin remembers Professor Lane telling him one day that “he probably had set chemistry back a couple of centuries.” But Chaplin also credits Professor Lane as “the person more than anyone else who set me in the direction my life has taken.”

Born in Columbia, Mr. Chaplin moved to Greenville with his family when he was about 14 years old. He earned his undergraduate degree at Clemson, where he was editor of The Tiger and was a cadet lieutenant colonel of the cadet corps. He graduated in 1935.

Mr. Chaplin’s full-time career as a journalist began in nearby Greenville with the Piedmont. At age 26, when he was a city editor of the Piedmont, he was recipient of a Nieman Fellowship at Harvard University in 1940-41. He first went to Hawaii in the Army in World War II as the founding editor and officer-in-charge of the Pacific edition of The Stars and Stripes, the armed forces newspaper.

He later worked on newspapers in Camden, New Jersey, San Diego and New Orleans (where he was editor of the Daily Item from 1949 to 1958) before moving to Hawaii to begin his long association with The Honolulu Advertiser, Hawaii’s prize-winning newspaper. When he was elected president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors thirteen years ago, he was the first editor outside the continental United States to be so honored.

After a distinguished career which spanned 52 years, 28 of them with The Advertiser, he retired as editor-in-chief on December 1, 1986 and remains as editor-at-large. During his tenure at the editorial helm, The Advertiser won more than 60 national awards. Mr. Chaplin himself also has received many writing awards. Among his current writing projects is a biography of the 133-year-old newspaper where he spent much of his career.

Two years ago Mr. Chaplin founded and raised $200,000 for the Coalition for a Drug-Free Hawaii, a respected non-profit, private-sector program aimed at the young, their parents, and people in the workplace. He also has worked for many years to improve relations between the United States and Japan. In recognition of this, the government of Japan conferred upon him the Order of the Rising Sun.

His biographical sketch has for years been included in “Who’s Who in America” and “Who’s Who in the World.”

Clemson University holds him and his lifetime achievements in the highest regard. It is a privilege for all of us to honor an individual who has contributed so much to the cause of a free press and to the building of stronger relationships among nations through his humanitarian initiatives.
HONORARY DEGREE
JOHN C. MAROUS
DOCTOR OF LETTERS

John C. Marous, one of the most often quoted spokesmen for corporate America on the concept of total quality and excellence, is chairman and chief executive officer of Westinghouse Electric Corporation in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Prior to becoming chairman on January 1, 1988, Mr. Marous served as president of the Corporation's Industries and International Group. The group included businesses involved globally in the development, manufacture and marketing of a wide variety of electrical and electronic products for industrial, construction and utility markets.

Following service in the Army, Mr. Marous earned bachelor and master of science degrees in electrical engineering from the University of Pittsburgh.

A Pittsburgh native, Mr. Marous joined Westinghouse on the graduate student training program in 1949. He held a series of key sales and marketing positions in electronic and construction products divisions and was named executive vice president of the Construction Group in 1973. He was named president-international in 1979, and in 1983 was appointed president of the Industries and International Group.

He is a member of the President's Advisory Council at Clemson, the board of directors of Bell Atlantic, Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company and Mellon Bank. He also is chairman of the Board of Trustees of the University of Pittsburgh and chairman of the board of River City Brass Band.

South Carolina is among the top three states in terms of Westinghouse employment, and Clemson has enjoyed an excellent working relationship with the corporation through the years. Sixty Clemson alumni are employed by Westinghouse in its various locations, and the University is among a select group of schools nationwide which are targeted for recruiting activity by Westinghouse.

Mr. Marous also serves on the boards of the Pittsburgh Opera, the American Waterways Wind Orchestra and the Allegheny Trails Council of the Boy Scouts of America. He is an international councillor of the Center for Strategic and International Studies and a member of the Japan-U. S. Business Council. He is a lifetime member of the Council on Foreign Relations and an Overseer of the Executive Council on Foreign Diplomats.

He also is a member of The Business Roundtable and a trustee of the U. S. Council of the International Chamber of Commerce; an elected member of the Conference Board, Inc.; a member of the American Society of Corporate Executives, the Business-Higher Education Forum and the National Foreign Trade Council; a board member and former chairman of the World Affairs Council of Pittsburgh; and a director of the Foundation for the Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Award.

MURRAY M. STOKELY

In 1936 the architectural and engineering firm, J. E. Sirrine Company, hired a 22-year-old electrical engineer fresh from Clemson College with Bachelor of Science degree in hand. The new employee was Murray Marvin Stokely, who would help build the company into a giant in its field and would be elevated to its highest position of leadership.

Mr. Stokely remained with J. E. Sirrine (now CRS Sirrine) throughout his professional career, becoming a partner in the firm in 1954 and an officer of the company in 1956. He retired as chairman of the board and chief executive officer in December 1979.

He exemplifies the Clemson alumnus who has a strong desire to return something to his alma mater for what it imparted to him as a student. Mr. Stokely has been generous to Clemson with time, talents, and financial support.

He served for many years on the Board of Directors of the Clemson University Foundation and is a former president of that organization. He has been a strong supporter of the Foundation’s Pooled Income Fund, beginning with an initial gift in 1975 and subsequent gifts through the years.

Mr. Stokely is a member of the Founders major gift club, the Benefactors of 1889 and the Benjamin Ryan Tillman Society. Many honors have come to him in recognition of what he has meant to Clemson. Returning home from the war, he joined a small electric supply business as a partner, purchased the business soon afterwards and changed its name to Walker Electric Co., Inc. In 1948 he started Catawba Wholesale Electric Supply Co. which wholesales electrical supplies to contractors and businesses.

Mr. Walker also built the Walker Electric Co. into a highly successful electrical contracting operation which has handled numerous projects throughout the Carolinas.

Mr. Walker has been a loyal Clemson alumnus, serving his alma mater in a variety of capacities to promote excellence in all university programs. He served on the Alumni National Council and he is a recipient of the Distinguished Service Award (1973), the highest honor bestowed by the Clemson Alumni Association. The Academic Procession

The Academic procession is composed of the faculty, officers, Trustees, and honored guests of the University. Faculty enter by college and each college is preceded by its marshal, a senior faculty member, with the college baton, described under University Regalia.

Following the marshal is the college banner bearer. Each banner is a combination of colors that declare the disciplines taught in that college. These colors, which were established by the American Council on Education, are as follows:

Collegiate faculty follow their banner in order of academic rank wearing academic costumes of medieval origin. Those who have received their degrees from institutions outside the United States wear costumes specified by the awarding institutions.

The academic costumes of faculty whose degrees are from United States' institutions are specified by a uniform code maintained by the American Council on Education. Caps are black and are usually mortar boards with tassels. Doctors of Philosophy wear gold tassels usually of metallic thread; other degrees wear black or discipline colors.

The bachelors' gown is simple and black with long, pointed sleeves. Masters' gowns, also black, are longer than bachelors. Older gowns have sleeves that terminate at the elbow while those since 1960 have sleeves extended to the wrist. Doctors' gowns are full, with bell-like sleeves. The front is marked by velvet panels and the sleeves are marked by three velvet bars. While most gowns are black with black velvet, one variation is to replace black velvet with velvet in the discipline color. A second variation is a colored gown usually of the university's colors.

All hoods specify the level of degree, the discipline studied and the awarding institution. First, degree level is signified by the size of the hood with bachelors' smallest, masters' larger, and doctors' quite large and of a different shape. Clemson does not award hoods to bachelors. The width of the velvet trim also conveys the degree. Secondly, the discipline is indicated by the color of the trim edging the hood to form the throat over the gown. Finally, the color of the hood's lining specifies the awarding institution. The colors are displayed in combinations that are drawn from heraldry. Notice that the Clemson University hood is lined with purple through which is an orange chevron (a "V"). Although many combinations are duplicated by dozens of institutions, Clemson is presently the only institution with that registered combination.

The officers, trustees, and honored guests wear academic, ecclesiastical, or military regalia as set forth by their professions. They are preceded by the University marshal. Clad in a gown of office in gold and purple, the marshal wears no hood and bears the University mace. At the ceremony's close, the faculty do not exit as a part of the recessional but are dismissed, along with students and guests, when the marshal leaves the coliseum.
The University Regalia

The University mace is the symbolic representation of the whole of Clemson University and must be present at any convocation where the University, through its delegated members, is acting officially. At any official convocation such as commencement, the University Marshal, carrying the mace, precedes the President into the assembly. The mace rests before the President's chair or speaker's stand throughout the ceremony, and its removal from the assembly at the close of a convocation is symbolic of the official withdrawal of the University and, thus, the close of the proceedings.

The decorative design of Clemson's mace is derived from the ceremonial maces carried by heads of state and church in the Middle Ages. Its basic club-like shape, however, is much more ancient, probably going back to man's pre-history. It is made of walnut wood and silver, with the seal of the University in gold and the University colors represented by insets of cornelian (orange) and amethyst (purple). Amethyst is also the state stone of South Carolina.

The Presidential chain and seal is symbolic of the authority vested in the office of president by the governing body of the University. Only the University President may wear it, and while wearing it he speaks for the whole body of the institution. Clemson's chain and seal are made of silver and gold, and cornelian and amethyst.

The batons of the college marshals also descend from medieval "staffs of office" which were carried by the senior members of departments of state or church. They display the seal of the University and the symbolic color of the discipline to which the college belongs. Clemson's batons are made of walnut wood and silver with the various disciplines inset with enamel.

The University regalia were designed and executed by Mr. Robert Ebendorf. Mr. Ebendorf is twice winner of the Tiffany Award and one of the most acclaimed goldsmiths of our era. The enamel plaques for the batons were executed by the late Professor Marshall C. Bell, and the lapidary work was executed by the late Mr. C. C. Wilson of Clemson University.
Coat of Arms

Designed by Clemson University graphic artist, Connie Floyd, the coat of arms represents the historic three-fold mission of this institution: teaching, research and service.

Pictured on the cover, the coat of arms is divided into three parts. The bottom contains a series of open books representing the concept of teaching as the basis of the land-grant university. The white of the books and the purple of the background designate the teaching mission of the University as it is achieved through undergraduate and graduate instruction.

The upper portion of the shield contains two sets of calipers and wheat sheaves illustrating the measurement system for research, as well as Clemson's tradition in agriculture and Extension. The three symbols—the books, calipers and wheat sheaves—also represent the humanities, technology and science.

The entire shield is joined by a small orange center shield bearing a white tiger mask symbolizing the abiding spirit of Clemson.

The crest is a gold palmetto tree, which emphasizes Thomas Green Clemson's desire that Clemson become "the people's university" for South Carolinians. It rises from a band of purple, orange, white and gold. The outer pair of colors, purple and gold, are the official colors of the University; the inner pair, orange and white, are Clemson's student colors.

Historical Statement

Clemson University is named for Thomas Green Clemson (1807-1888), who left the bulk of his estate to the State of South Carolina for the founding of the institution.

Thomas Clemson was born in Philadelphia in 1807 and educated at the Royal School of Mines in Paris (1828-1832). His early profession was that of a mining engineer; but circumstances diverted his interests into politics and the life of a southern planter, and he soon became an enthusiastic advocate of scientific agriculture. He had a career as a diplomat (charge d'affairs to Belgium, 1844-1852) and served as the first Superintendent of Agricultural Affairs in Washington (1860). As a scientist he published numerous articles in the fields of mining, chemistry, and agriculture. His varied activities included his assistance in the founding of the Maryland Agricultural College, his support of the Morrill Act, his leadership in South Carolina after the Civil War, and his part in founding Clemson University.

Thomas Clemson was the son-in-law of South Carolina's John C. Calhoun, a political figure of national importance during the first half of the nineteenth century. Mr. Calhoun's home, Fort Hill, is preserved on the Clemson Campus as a national shrine.

The academic program at Clemson College began in 1893 with an enrollment of 446. The first "college prospectus" announced only two four-year curricula, supplemented by two two-year preparatory courses. Today the University has ten major academic units. These are the College of Agricultural Sciences, the College of Architecture, the College of Commerce and Industry, the College of Education, the College of Engineering, the College of Forest and Recreation Resources, the College of Liberal Arts, the College of Nursing, the College of Sciences, and the Graduate School.

The institution is an accredited member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools; various curricula are accredited by the National Architectural Accrediting Board, National League for Nursing, Society of American Foresters, American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business, Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology, and National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education.

Clemson is a land-grant institution. As such, it is engaged not only in its primary academic program, but does extensive research at the main campus and at five agricultural experiment stations located in the State. The University is also heavily committed to a varied program of public service, including the work of agricultural extension which has professional personnel located in each of the State's counties.
Clemson Alma Mater

A. C. Corcoran, '19

Where the Blue Ridge yawns its greatness,
Where the Tigers play;
Here the sons of dear old Clemson
Reign supreme alway.

Chorus
Dear old Clemson, we will triumph
And with all our might,
That the Tiger's roar may echo
O'er the mountain height.

We will dream of great conquests,
For our past is grand,
And her sons have fought and conquered
Every foreign land.

Where the mountains smile in grandeur
O'er the hill and dale.
Here the Tiger lair is nestling
Swept by storm and gale.

We are brothers strong in manhood,
For we work and strive;
And our alma mater reigneth
Ever in our lives.
