For the second consecutive year, Clemson's football programs were judged among the top five in America. The College Sports Information Directors of America appointed a committee of publications experts who rated the Clemson programs among the top four in the country in 1975, and the 1976 programs among the top five.

The 1977 season has certainly been the "Year of the Cat" for the Clemson Tigers. Picked to finish near the bottom of the Atlantic Coast Conference, Charley Pell's Tigers find themselves right in the thick of things for the '77 title.

North Carolina holds the top spot going into today's game at Maryland with a 2-0 mark, and the Tigers and Terps are knotted in second at 3-1. The Terps are in the driver's seat, and a win over the Tar Heels would give them a 4-1 slate with only a league game against Virginia remaining.

But the Tigers must win today to stay in the race, and Chuck Mills and his Wake Forest Demon Deacons invade Death Valley hoping to end Clemson's six-game winning streak.

It seems like every Saturday the Tiger defense is being called upon for a challenge. This week is no exception. Wake Forest boasts the ACC's top rusher in sophomore James McDougald. The talented Deac has ground out 720 yards this fall. And Clemson fans should remember James McDougald. Just one year ago he raced for 249 yards on 45 carries to lead Wake to a 20-14 win in Winston-Salem.

Prior to last week's game against Virginia, Wake had both the league's top passer and receiver in Mike McGlamry and Steve Young.

Clemson entered last week's game against N. C. State with the 14th best defense against scoring with a 10.8 average per game yield. The Tigers allowed the Wolfpack but three points, the lowest total scored by State since a 35-3 drubbing at the hands of Penn State in 1971. And that should help the Tigers vault higher among the nation's stiffest defensive teams.

Jonathan Brooks and Randy Scott each had seven solo tackles against State, and the latter finished the day with 17 total tackles, three of which nailed State runners for losses, and one pass interception.

Bubba Brown had 12 tackles against the Pack. Archie Reese had nine. And the list goes on and on. The Tiger defense played one whale of a game in holding the potent State offense without a touchdown.

Steve Fuller became the 21st Clemson player in the school's football history to reach the 1,000-yard plateau in a single season. The Spartanburg native now has 1,103 yards this fall, which is the 14th best in Clemson's record book. And he has four games remaining.

Jerry Butler went over the 1,000-yard career receiving mark by two yards against State. He has 61 career catches and 6 touchdowns.

Thought you would like to know what some other people are saying about the '77 Tigers:

"Charley Pell stands above other rookie head coaches on the basis of six games. Clemson had a 3-6-2 mark a year ago, but Pell's Tigers are 5-1-0 and now rank behind North Carolina in the Atlantic Coast Conference." Tom Siler, THE SPORTING NEWS.

"Randy Scott is as dangerous on a football field as Burt Lance is with a checkbook." Mark Wolf, THE CHARLOTTE OBSERVER.

"Clemson's Charley Pell is living proof that it isn't so much the situation but the coach that is important in collegiate athletics." David Davidson, THE ATLANTA JOURNAL.

1. Willie Jordan will have to change his nickname. He was known as "Mr. Magic" in 1975, the year he led the Tigers in total offense as a quarterback. He was winning the name "Handy Man" because of his multi-talents that enabled him to jump to the secondary, to flanker, and back to the secondary. People are starting to call him "Big Play" because of his exciting punt returns. three that have set up Tiger scores this fall. 2. Joe (left) and Jeff Bostic are the only brothers in major college football who start side-by-side along the offensive line. And both are doing outstanding jobs for the Tigers. 3. Obed Anri had never seen a football prior to coming to the United States two years ago, much less kicked one. Then in Saturday's 7-3 win over State, he made a TD-saving stop on fleet Ralph Stringer for his first Clemson tackle. Obed is 14 for 14 in the extra point department, and three for eight in field goal attempts.

THE CLEMSON UNIVERSITY TIGER BAND presents

A SALUTE TO AMERICA

By Kelly Durham
Department of Public Relations

The Clemson University Tiger Band and The Clemson University Chorus combine to salute America during today’s Clemson - Wake Forest halftime.

To get the crowd into the right spirit for the Tiger’s encounter with the ACC rival Deacons, the Band, under the direction of Dr. Bruce Cook, opens the pre-game program with “Sock It To ‘Em” and Clemson’s traditional fight song “Tiger Rag.” The Chorus, under the direction of Dr. William Campbell, joins the Band for the National Anthem and the Clemson Alma Mater.

The Tiger Band reenters the field at the half to Paul Yoder’s arrangement of “You’re a Grand Old Flag.” The Chorus rejoins the Band for a patriotic medley, “United States Hurray!”

As the two musical groups blend their talents, the Clemson University Army ROTC colorguard will present the colors at the midfield stripe.

The American medley includes patriotic favorites “America The Beautiful,” “Yankee Doodle,” and “You’re a Grand Old Flag.” The musical salute concludes with “God Bless America” as the Band spells out USA across the center of the field.

The Band exits to “Tiger Rag” to prepare the crowd for the final half of exciting Tiger football.

The Band is under the field direction of drum major Richard Moose of Newberry. The band commander is Tom Waldrop of Hanahan.

OUR 50th YEAR
1927 - 1977
Eddie Seigler Recalls

Few collegiate rivalries can match the excitement which has followed the Clemson-Wake Forest grid battles down through the years. Of the 42 previous meetings, Clemson has won 30, Wake has won 11, and there has been one tie—a 20-20 deadlock in 1968. And 18 of the past battles have been settled by a touchdown or less, including a 10-9 Clemson win in 1971 when Eddie Seigler kicked a 29-yard field goal with just 37 seconds left in the game to give the Tigers the victory.

We had started the 1971 season with all the high hopes and enthusiasm that a young Clemson team could muster. Despite our spirit, we stood 0-3 having lost to Kentucky (13-10), Georgia (28-0), and Georgia Tech (24-14). Our hopes were renewed the following two weeks with wins over previously unbeaten Duke (3-0) and then Virginia (32-15). A quarterback named Pat Sullivan had our number in Auburn the next weekend and the War Eagles sent us home with a painful 35-13 loss. Those were the weeks that led up to a game that I will remember for a long, long time.

It was great to be playing at home after four consecutive road dates. The students always put so much into the homecoming displays and the weekend, and the team knew a victory was expected. If not demanded, for this special occasion.

Wake Forest, the defending ACC champion, brought a 4-3 record to Death Valley. We knew it would be a struggle, but I had no idea that the game would be settled on a single play.

The Deacons, who got on the scoreboard early on an eight-yard pass from Larry Russell to Kevin Byrnes, controlled the ball for much of the game, running off 72 plays to our 58. But our defense bottled up Wake's great running trio of Russell, fullback Larry Hopkins, and speedster Ken Garrett in the second half.

Late in the third quarter Tommy Kendrick moved our offense 51 yards in eight plays, and Rick Gilstrap capped the drive with a seven-yard burst just three plays into the final stanza. My extra point was good and we led for the first time in the game, 7-6.

But the Deacons came back to take the lead after Larry Causey recovered a fumble on our 25. Although Wake got six yards in three running attempts. Chuck Ramsey came on to boot a 37-yard field goal, and the scoreboard read Wake Forest 9, Clemson 7. And I knew then that the outcome of this game could very well depend on my kicking.

I had practiced countless hours for such an opportunity, and if I could have kicked the field goal then, it would have been pretty much routine. I turned to look up in the stands, wishing that somehow I could be up there watching instead of on the hot seat I found myself. And as the seconds ticked off, I remember trying to remain calm. My teammates kept coming up to me, wishing me luck, knowing I would get a last chance to try a game-winning field goal. I remember day-dreaming of being at the beach, and the roar of the crowd was the crashing of the waves. I must have walked five miles up and down the sidelines.

Meanwhile, Tony Anderson had put the Deacs in a hole with a 40-yard punt that was downed at the Wake one. Slightly more than six minutes remained to be played. Once again our defense held, and we got the ball back at the Deacon 42.

Heide Davis and Rick Gilstrap combined for a pair of first downs as the clock wound down to the final minute. With 37 seconds left I ran onto the field to line up for a 29-yard field goal attempt. It was from the right hash mark, and I was kicking toward the scoreboard. I wasn't sure I'd be able to move when the ball was snapped. I was experiencing a pins and needles feeling, unlike anything I had felt before or have felt since. Somehow I kicked the ball, and it sailed directly through the uprights. All the years of practice and sweat had paid off. I felt what every athlete feels at least once in his career. I felt FANTASTIC!

The story of Clemson University — from its beginning as an idea in the mind of Thomas Green Clemson to its emergence as an important center of teaching, research and public service — is a story of unique purpose.

When the aging Mr. Clemson envisioned this institution that has flourished so well on his plantation lands, he was mindful of a special mission it would have, one he stated clearly.

In the bitter economic conditions of his time, Mr. Clemson saw the college he dreamed of as the great hope for South Carolina farmers and the state’s economic recovery. For only through the application of scientific education and technology to problem solving, he believed, could the people hope to attain a better quality of life.

In his wisdom and with an eye to the state’s future needs, Mr. Clemson entrusted the Board of Trustees with the power to change the college’s curricula to meet the changing needs of future generations.

Today, more than 84 years since that first class met in July 1893, the basic mission which Thomas Clemson stated — an institution to serve the people’s needs — remains unchanged. But as these needs have changed and new technology comes of age, the University’s programs have reflected these changing needs, as Thomas Clemson knew they must do.

Serving as Clemson’s president for the past 19 years, Dr. Robert C. Edwards has set the pace for strong leadership and administrative direction during the university’s greatest period of growth both in academic, physical expansion and in service to the State and its citizens.

More than 11,000 students pursue a wealth of academic programs in the university’s nine colleges and graduate school. Colleges are agricultural sciences, architecture, education, engineering, forest and recreation resources, industrial management and textile science, liberal arts, nursing and sciences.

In terms of academic excellence, the quality of students entering Clemson is high and they are well prepared. In the 1976 freshman class 81 per cent graduated in the top 20 per cent of their high school class.

As a land-grant university, Clemson has statewide responsibilities in teaching, research and public service programs which are not available from any other source in the state.

And one of Clemson’s major distinctions is the fact that the General Assembly has seen fit to assign the responsibility to Clemson of several state regulatory and consumer protection programs that are elsewhere handled by governmental agencies.

Like the changing needs of the state and nation, Clemson’s physical facilities have grown to serve these requirements. On the campus proper of 600 acres rise academic buildings, student housing, service facilities and equipment valued at $125 million.

Centerpieces of the campus — and symbols of Clemson’s heritage — are Tillman Hall with its clock tower and Fort Hill, the stately ante-bellum mansion of John C. Calhoun and later his son-in-law, Thomas Clemson.

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

Bill McLellan

Only the third man to own the title of Athletic Director at Clemson over the past 46 years, Bill McLellan was elevated to his present position February 4, 1971, following what had been more than a decade of service to the University’s athletic organization.

A native of Hamer, S.C., the 45-year old McLellan graduated from Dillon High School and entered Clemson where he earned a pair of football letters, and was a member of the Tigers’ 1952 Gator Bowl team.

He joined the athletic staff May 1, 1958 from Clemson’s Department of Agricultural Economics and Seed Certification where he had spent one year as assistant agronomist and two years as assistant economist.

Although carrying the title of Assistant Business Manager, McLellan has been credited with handling the majority of the department’s athletic business and operation long before his appointment into his present role.

In 1966, McLellan was named Assistant Athletic Director, and two years later was appointed Associate Athletic Director.

During his reign as Athletic Director, Clemson’s athletic program has experienced a major upheaval.

The Tigers can boast of the finest athletic facilities in not only the Atlantic Coast Conference, but in the South as well.

The modern and spacious Jervey Athletic Center is one of the most complete facilities in America, and this complex serves as the home for Clemson’s 18 sports — 12 men’s and six women’s.

The basketball Tigers play before packed crowds in attractive Littlejohn Coliseum, and many of the Clemson games are telecast on either regional or national networks.

And the football Tigers, after averaging better than 44,000 at home last fall, will be playing in a remodeled Memorial Stadium in ’78 that will have some 53,000 permanent seats.

But conference titles and All-American honors have come to other sports as well, and McLellan’s direction has given Clemson a program that was ranked 20th in the nation in overall excellence in 1975-76. Moreover, the basketball, fencing, and tennis teams enjoyed top 20 ranking in 1976-77, and the baseball and soccer teams both boasted of the nation’s top rank at some point during their respective campaigns.

McLellan earned a B.S. degree from Clemson in agronomy in ’54, and a master’s in agricultural economics in ’56. He is married to the former Ann Rogers of Fork, S. C. They have four children — Suzy, a senior at Winthrop; Bill, a sophomore at Spartanburg Methodist College; Cliff, a freshman at Tennessee Tech; and Arch Anna, a sophomore at Pendleton High School.

Coach Charley Pell

"Coach"

Charles Byron (Charley) Pell was named Clemson’s 20th head football coach December 1, 1976.

Born in Albertville, Ala., the 36-year old Pell is in his second year on the Tiger staff, having served as assistant head coach and defensive coordinator during the 1976 campaign.

Pell played but one year of high school football, but went on the University of Alabama where he was a three-year letterman for the Crimson Tide.

At a light 180 pounds, Pell was a two-way starter as an offensive guard and defensive tackle, and played in the Orange, Sugar, and Bluebonnet Bowls during his career.

In his junior season, ’61, Alabama won the National Championship.

Pell entered the coaching profession as a graduate assistant to his former tutor, Paul “Bear” Bryant in ’64.

Charlie Bradshaw hired the young Pell as defensive line coach at the University of Kentucky where the latter spent the next four years, from ’65 through ’68.

Pell’s first taste of head coaching came in December of ’68 when he was selected to rebuild the Jacksonville, Ala., State University grid program.

During the next five seasons, ’69 through ’73, Pell built aggressive defensive teams that garnered a five-year mark of 33-13-1, including a 30-7-1 ledger his last four campaigns.

His 1970 JSU team was 10-0 which included a 21-7 win over Florida A&M in the Orange Blossom Classic, and was ranked second in the nation. His ’72 team finished 10th nationally, and his ’73 squad ranked fourth.

In ’70, he was conference, district, area, and state of Alabama Coach of the Year, and runner-up for national coaching honors. He earned the state accolade again in ’73.

He joined VPI’s staff as assistant head coach and defensive coordinator in 1974, and remained there until coming to Clemson.

Pell took a defensive unit that ranked 128th nationally prior to his arrival and molded it into one that finished the ’75 season as 29th toughest against scoring.

Pell earned his B.S. degree in business administration from Alabama in ’64. He is married to the former Ward Noel of Lexington, Ky., and they have a son — Carrick (7).

CLEAR UP YOUR FUTURE IN THE 2-YEAR AFROTC PROGRAM.

What's up after college? That question is enough to get a lot of young people down. Air Force ROTC college graduates have that worry, too. But their immediate future (and longer if they choose) is much more secure. As a commissioned officer, there's a good job....Travel. Graduate level education. Promotions. Financial security. And really, lots more.

If you have two academic years remaining, there's a great 2-year AFROTC program still available to you. Look into the details. We think you'll be pleasantly surprised. And pleasantly rewarded.

Bubba Brown and Tommy Gladden

Bubba Brown and Tommy Gladden are both Cadet Corporals in the Army ROTC program at Clemson. Both sophomores, Bubba hails from Loudon, Tenn., and Tommy is a native of Winnsboro. Bubba became an outstanding addition to the Tiger program last fall when he broke into the starting spot at linebacker as a freshman. Tommy is a hard-working defensive back and valuable asset to the Tigers.

Spotlighting The Seniors

Seniors Roy Eppes, Brian Kier, and Ken Weichel have all played a big role in Clemson’s defensive success in 1977. All three entered Tigertown in 1973 and spent one year with red-shirt status.

Roy Eppes was a much-travelled football player who finally found himself a home at the cornerback spot during the spring workouts.

Following a brilliant prep career at Anderson’s Westside High School, Eppes’ tenure with the Tigers was split between the secondary and receiver corps.

One of the fastest players on the team, his settlement at corner back has helped strengthen a Clemson secondary that many pre-season prognosticators called the Tigers’ weakest area.

Eppes ranks as one of the squad’s top tacklers, and through six games in 77 has one to his credit.

Brian Kier, like Roy Eppes, is a standout in the Clemson secondary.

A two-year letterman, Kier entered the fall as the Tigers’ most experienced defensive back, although his actual varsity playing time in the defensive backfield had been rather limited.

He picked off a pair of opponent passes in 1976, and through six games in 77 has one to his credit.

A free safety, Kier and his senior teammate Eppes have been the bright sparks of leadership for Clemson’s young secondary this fall.

Six game totals show the Tigers with 11 interceptions, two more than last season’s 11-game figure.

Kier hails from Haines City, Fla.

These last two years have been most memorable for Ken Weichel, a defensive tackle for the Tigers.

Always a hard-worker, Weichel was a seldom-used player during the early years of his career, but when the Tigers opened the 1976 campaign against The Citadel, the Whitehall, Pa., native was in the starting lineup.

Nagging injuries hampered his play during the latter stages of the Bicentennial season, but his total contribution to the season was outstanding.

Weichel is another reason that the Tiger defense has continued to improve with each outing.

His cousin, Mark Smith, plays football at UCLA.

The Willie Anderson Family

Gail and Willie Anderson took walks like this on a regular basis while both were undergraduates at Clemson.

Willie met Gail Young of Piedmont while he was playing a superb middle guard for the Tigers and she was assisting the Tiger coaching staff as one of the original Bengal Babes.

That group, of course, is co-ordinated by Clyde Wrenn who assigns the lovely coeds various duties throughout the football season like hostess chores, sign making, and even as campus guides.

An excellent student, Gail breezed through Clemson in three years, and earned her degree in elementary education in 1975.

She spent the next year at Pendleton Elementary School while Willie was serving as a graduate assistant for Tiger basketball coach Bill Foster.

Willie and Gail were married that summer and the newlyweds headed for Atlanta where Gail taught at Pleasantdale Elementary School and Willie worked as an assistant coach at Chamblee High School.

After Charley Pell’s appointment as head coach of the Tigers, he put in a call to Willie who was anxious to return to Tigertown.

Gail is currently teaching in the Oconee County School System and working on her master’s degree during the summer.

The Buddy King Family

Where else would you expect to find the King Family? Buddy, from the San Francisco suburb of Concord, Calif., was a standout offensive guard for the Tigers in the early 70s, and it was at Tigertown where he met his wife, Mary Kennerty.

Mary, who hails from the port city of Charleston, graduated from Clemson in 1973, and earned her master’s degree in ’77.

She played a major role in Clemson’s inaugural year for women’s athletics, serving as head coach for both the basketball and tennis teams.

Mary led the Lady Tiger cagers to a 13-11 record in 1975-76, and the Lady Tiger netters to a 10-6 mark. This past school year she coached the tennis team to a sparkling 23-2 record and to the State AIAW (Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women) championship.

The recruiting trail keeps the Kings going different directions, but the summer months of June and July belong to them.

Other than a brief three weeks of camp for Mary, and a pair for Buddy, the Kings spent an exciting vacation in California this past summer, and many hours together in their boat on spacious and beautiful Lake Hartwell.

Buddy and Mary, who also teaches in Clemson’s Department of Recreation, live in Mauldin Hall and serve as dorm counselors for the Tiger athletes.

The Mike Bugar Family

The most recent addition to the Clemson athletic staff is the Mike Bugar Family. They came to Tigertown in August from Shelby, N. C., where Mike was an assistant coach at Gardner-Webb College.

Dawn, a fourth-grader at Morrison Elementary School, is pictured standing beside her father.

Although she has been active in such things as Brownies, baton, and roller skating, Dawn is very much athletic minded and enjoys such competitive sports as football, basketball, and softball.

Kim, however, who entered the first grade this fall at Morrison Annex, is just the opposite.

Kim likes the baton lessons, singing in the choir, and spending her hours in just the way that most little girls do.

"Although Dawn was very young when I was playing football at Florida State," explains Mike, "she was exposed to the sports atmosphere. And it has stuck with her."

The former Linda Adams of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., met her husband at FSU, and as most coaches wives do, enjoys all sports.

While Mike was coaching at Wofford College in Spartanburg, Linda drove to Tigertown for the ‘75 Clemson-FSU game, and was most impressed with the enthusiasm and loyalty of the Tiger fans.

An active church worker, Linda likes to spend her leisure hours with plants, needlework, and crewel embroidery.

Where Are These Former Tiger Quarterbacks Today?

Every Clemson fan remembers these four Tiger quarterbacks. Jimmy Addison '67, Jimmy Bell '64, Charlie Bussey '56, and Ken Pengitore '73. Addison, Bell, and Bussey were All-Atlantic Coast Conference Academic selections, whereas Addison, Bussey, and Pengitore were All-ACC choices. Certainly you remember their on-the-field heroics. But do you know where they are today?

After completing his undergraduate work at Clemson, Jimmy Addison entered the University of Virginia's Law School where he graduated in 1971. He is presently a law partner in the Atlanta firm of Troutman, Sanders, Lockerman and Ashmore.

Jimmy Bell received the Norris Medal, emblematic of Clemson's outstanding graduating senior, in 1965, then earned his medical degree from the Medical University of South Carolina. He is now a physician with Nickles, Nunn and Bell Associates in his hometown of Hartsville.

Charlie Bussey, who quarterbacked the 1956 Tigers to the Orange Bowl, earned his degree in textiles in 1957. Today, he is president of Laurens Glass Co., in Laurens. His daughter will enroll at Clemson next fall.

Ken Pengitore, who earned a degree in financial management in 1974, is the financial advisor and tax accountant for the family and law firm of Berle and Berle in New York City. His employer, the Commissioner of Environmental Conservation for the State of New York, encouraged him to pursue his master's in accounting taxation from Fairleigh Dickinson University.

With immense pride, we present a trim and timely new edition of Chevrolet's personal luxury car: The Third Generation Monte Carlo. Although thoroughly redesigned, today's Monte Carlo retains the unique personality of Monte Carlos past. You see it dramatically reflected in the stately stance and sculptured sides. The new interior is a virtual "Driver's Suite" —with sumptuous cloths and carpets, tall windows, an impressive new instrument panel, and special Monte Carlo "touch"s throughout.

Available enhancements include a new roof with removable tinted-glass panels. The Third Generation Monte Carlo. Drive it soon. We think you'll be impressed.
When Clemson's Larry Hudson talks about being in the saddle for a working day, he means it.

As an animal science specialist with the Cooperative Extension Service, he heads a statewide 4-H horse program for youths that has galloped through rapid growth. It started in 1971 and now has some 3,300 members.

Hudson — a former Virginia farm boy who is more comfortable with cowboy boots and wide-brimmed hat than shirt and tie — spends his time working with youngsters in 4-H horse clubs in South Carolina's 46 counties or conducting statewide programs for them.

He teaches horse care and riding. And when he says, "we try to ride as much as possible," you could say there's a draw to it.

Hudson didn't come to Clemson's Rhinestone Cowboy role by design nor by initial career choice. But his background fits right in.

He was reared on a farm in the hill country of Wytheville, Va., "where farming was pretty general and I was purebred hillbilly." The family also had horses. After a BS in agriculture at Berea College, Larry plowed on to an MS and PhD in animal science at the University of Kentucky.

There were 3½ years with a commercial feed company in the northeast, traveling over the country. "and some around the world." Neither the region, the travel, nor a home in a suburb of Philadelphia suited the family life. However. When the extension job came open at Clemson, Larry moved.

"Shoot yeah," he will tell you. "there's no doubt in my mind that it was a right decision. I like this place, and I like my work."

An important part of his work are two-week-long horse camps held each year at Clemson's Camp Bob Cooper or Camp Long. More than 300 horse-loving 4-Hers and their parents loaded their favorite horses aboard trailers this summer and trucked their way to the camps.

"We stress basic horse care," Hudson said. "We break the kids out for instruction in groups according to their speciality, whether it's western style, hunt seat, or saddle seat. And we also group them by levels of progress."

There's a lot of fun in the saddle, in trailriding, in competitive events, in ring activities, but the 4-Hers also spend time at the barn feeding, cleaning and looking after their horses.

Another big activity is an annual statewide 4-H horse show at the fairgrounds in Columbia. It pulled some 430 entries last year, "probably the largest single youth livestock event in the state," Hudson said.

Each county horse club also has its competitive events, regular meetings, and trailrides. Larry makes as many as he can, including one statewide two-day trailride each year for the 4-Hers.

There are times, he admits, when a certain part of his anatomy gets a little tender from overexposure to hard leather and jarring horse hooves.

"Take a week like the horse camp and I do a right smart riding," Hudson smiles (almost a cowboy smile), "but there are other extremes when it could be a month in between. There are a lot of other little chores to this work besides riding."

One of his more unusual jaunts was as head of the Bicentennial Wagon Trail, a canvas caravan that trekked across South Carolina last year. Larry was state wagonmaster. He got in the saddle at North Augusta and rode for about two weeks until they crossed the North Carolina border at Kings Mountain.

He did take a break or two on a wagon seat along what he figures was 250 plodding miles, but maintains: "that for almost every mile of that trip, I made it horseback."

The tour, he said, "was a very different kind of an experience — something you never forget."

Stars in Other Sports

JOHN SADRI, N. C. State Tennis: The top tennis player in the school’s history, John Sadri won the Atlantic Coast Conference No. 1 singles crown last spring and played in the NCAA tournament for the second straight year. He posted a 26-1 singles record last season and became the school’s first ACC singles champion. A strong all-around player, he is a native of Charlotte, N.C., and gained much of his background at the Old Tidewater Racquet and Swim Club there. He was chosen for the 1976 Junior Davis Cup Team and made the semifinals of both the National Amateur Grasscourts and the discourts tournaments in 1976. As a sophomore, he and teammate Scott Dillon won the ACC No. 1 doubles crown. He was a North Carolina high school singles champion in 1971 at Myers Park. He enjoys mountain climbing and music in his spare time and plans to join the touring pro ranks after college.

JOHN ZEGLINSKI, Wake Forest Baseball: Watch for No. 45 on the football field this fall. And if you are impressed, remember that football is not even his best sport. If John Zeglinski has a professional athlete future, it is probably in baseball where he earned his teammates’ votes for the ACC All-star Team’s Most Valuable Player. For the past two seasons, he has been the holder of the ACC’s highest batting average. In 1976-77, Zeglinski was the batting champion of the ACC and the national collegiate leagues. At the 1977 NCAA Championships, he recorded a fifth-place finish in the sabre to earn All-America honors. His season performance led the Tigers to a third-place finish in the ACC and a 13th-place finish in the NCAA. Competition has also carried Renshaw to Vienna and Budapest with U.S. teams.

JOHN GRANT, North Carolina Track: One of the greatest distance runners in the country, John Grant was chosen for the ACC All-star Team’s Most Valuable Player. He was the ACC’s first ACC Indoor Track champion and earned All-America honors in 1976. He holds the ACC indoor mile record of 3:55.1.

KRIS SNIDER, Virginia Lacrosse: A senior on the USA Lacrosse team, Snider was chosen for the ACC All-star Team’s Most Valuable Player. He was the ACC’s first ACC Indoor Track champion and earned All-America honors in 1976. He holds the ACC indoor mile record of 3:55.1.

STEVE RENSHAW, Clemson Fencing: At the ripe young age of 18, Clemson’s standout freshman fencer Steve Renshaw has enjoyed more success in competitive fencing than most athletes experience in a lifetime. A product of Wayne Hills, N. J., Senior High School, he was the under-19 National Champion in 1976, and finished third in the under-20 class. And prior to entering Clemson, he fenced for the United States Under-20 World Games Team in Poznan, Poland. In his initial season with the Tigers, he posted a sparkling 26-3 individual won-lost record in sabre competition, and finished runner-up in his weapon in the ACC Championships. Renshaw earned his first ACC All-star Team honor as a sophomore defensive back who helped lead the Tigers to the ACC title.

Ralph King, North Carolina Track: One of the greatest distance runners in the country, King was chosen for the ACC All-star Team’s Most Valuable Player. He was the ACC’s first ACC Indoor Track champion and earned All-America honors in 1976. He holds the ACC indoor mile record of 3:55.1.

GREG ROBERTSON, Maryland Track: A native of South Bend, Ind., Greg Robertson entered Maryland two years ago as one of the most-sought-after high school hurdlers in the country, and it didn’t take him long to prove that all that attention was warranted. In the past two track seasons, he has won titles at the ACC Indoor and Outdoor Championships, the IC4A Championships and the Maryland Track Classic. He has twice been on the All-ACC team and last spring finished fourth in the NCAA meet and was named to the All-American Track Team. He is the ACC record holder in the 100 meter high hurdles with a time of 13.6. He is the holder of the 110 meter high hurdles and 400 meter intermediate hurdles records in the Maryland Track Classic. In addition to his hurdling, he was also a member of the Terrapin 4x100 yard relay team and the mile relay team. A complete performer, he has been timed at 9.6 for the 100, 21.3 in the 220 and 48.0 in the 440.

TED DANIEL, Duke Tennis: A rising senior from Tulsa, Okla., Ted Daniel has captured two individual and one doubles titles during his varsity tennis career at Duke. At a freshman, he won the ACC’s No. 4 flight singles and then teamed with double partner Chip Davis to win the No. 2 doubles. This past season, he completed the regular season with an outstanding 22-1 dual meet record and then swept through the ACC tournament to win the No. 2 doubles crown. He captured the Blue Devils last spring as a junior and will battle for the No. 1 position this year.

Tigers Toning Muscles Under Dostal’s Care

Strength development and training are vital to any athletic team’s success, and Clemson’s George Dostal has more than 600 Tigers toning their muscles for their respective teams.

Dostal, who holds both his bachelor’s and master’s degrees from Kent State University where he worked on his Ph.D with a concentration on physiology of exercise, establishes off-season and in-season programs for Clemson’s 18 athletic teams.

"We’ve spent as many as 40 hours writing a program for one team," he explained. "Every team has a general program which we set according to the muscle groups used in that particular sport.

"Then, we establish a program for each individual, geared to his or her own strength and ability.

Dostal pointed out that approximately six tons of free weights are available in Clemson’s modern and spacious strength training center which he mans along with graduate assistants Pete Reynolds and Jack Pollard.

Additionally, 20 Nautilus machines, three mini-gyms, a special neck machine, four bench press stations, three squat racks, and a pair of olympic platforms are housed in this facility which is considered as one of the very best strength training centers in America.

"Two of our primary thoughts are to build flexibility strength, then maintain strength throughout the season," he added.

"Everyone has his own idea about strength and weight programs, and we feel very strongly about in-season programs which enable the players to maintain that strength throughout the season, especially down the final stretch of the campaign.

Dostal’s off-season program is a very strict schedule in which each individual works between 45 and 48 minutes three times a week.

But the in-season schedule for strength maintenance is a program of between 25 and 35 minutes, and only twice weekly.

Two years ago there were but seven football players who could bench press 300 pounds or better, whereas 61 of the ’77 Tigers can accomplish that feat.

Moreover, eight can bench press 400 pounds or more, with junior middle guard Rich Tuten the top performer with an unofficial Atlantic Coast Conference record of 500 pounds.

Four of the offensive linemen, Thad Allen, Joe Bostic, Jimmy Weeks, and Jim Wells have all hit the 405-pound mark.

Another important exercise, according to Dostal, is the squat which strengthens the leg muscles.

Already, four football players are above the 600-pound figure, with junior linebacker Randy Scott’s 635 pounds a team high.

Ten have gone over 500 pounds, and 40 have achieved 400 pounds or better.

Last year there were a total of 8,206 workouts at an average of 35 minutes each under Dostal’s supervision. With eight months remaining, 6,100 workouts have been held in Clemson’s renovated facility.

In all, Dostal predicts 16,000 workouts this year for Tiger athletes as Clemson strives for another top 25 ranking among the nation’s major colleges and universities which possess the finest overall programs.

During the fiscal year of 1976-77, Clemson’s IPTAY Club experienced its finest year. For the thirteenth consecutive year contributions exceeded those of the previous twelve month period. IPTAY President George Poole, Jr. and his staff, along with the more than 400 IPTAY Representatives, led the organization to a record setting year. An increase of almost twelve percent above last year’s contributions was realized and the organization achieved one hundred and seven percent of its projected goal.

Limited Edition Prints

Available from the Clemson University Athletic Department

Print size 24" x 34½" / Image area 21½" x 32½"

The Athletic Department is offering a magnificent limited edition that will prove to be a collector's item. Only 1500 signed and numbered prints are available. Each has been personally inspected by the artist and bears a small tiger paw emblem with handwritten date of issue.

Artist Cheryl Crawford Nute encompasses a sensitive portrayal of realism with an uncompromising gaze that cannot be forgotten. The craftsmanship of this reproduction is superb and should be included in the collections of inspired Clemson supporters and print collectors alike.

The original painting will be on display at the Frank J. Jervey Athletic Center through November.

Alumni Loyalty Fund—
Many Things To Many People
They are doctors, lawyers, teachers, farmers, businesspersons, military strategists, public servants. They have a lot going for them. They have an opportunity to grow. And their roots are here on this campus. They are former students of this institution in the foothills of South Carolina.

Clemson University has been involved in providing one of this nation's most vital resources since 1893. Yet, the educational capabilities of Clemson continue to mount, and the University has a vibrant incentive to demonstrate its ability, and an objective yardstick to measure it.

As Clemson University continues its contribution to the development of this state, it remains an indispensable part of its future. Combine capacity, ability and opportunity and you conclude that potential is virtually unlimited.

It is, with your help. Graduates, former students and friends of Clemson are not only a source of pride for the University but a monumental strength in undergirding its educational programs with annual investments in the institution through the Clemson Alumni Loyalty Fund and other development opportunities at the University.

But greater challenges lie ahead. Knowledge has multiplied beyond comprehension; the domestic and world situations have become unwieldy and precarious. To make sure performance measures up to potential, Clemson University utilizes wisely and frugally every source of aid possible from all sectors of a free society — private citizens and foundations, business and industrial organizations, state and federal governments.

Now, more than ever before, Clemson needs you, your interest, and your investment in education. Now, more than ever before, won't you consider what you can do for Clemson?

Women's Basketball—Tiger Style

The second time around, things are always somewhat easier. You get the kinks out, you smooth the rough edges — such is the feeling of Clemson women's basketball coach Annie Tribble, who is beginning her second year at Tigertown.

"Last year, there was a period of getting to know each other which is basic with a new coach," said the highly successful Coach Tribble. "But this year, we will know where we stand right from the start."

Listening to Coach Tribble, one might get the impression that the 1976-77 season was a bad year. But to the contrary, the Lady Tigers posted a 22-9 season slate, winning 19 of their final 23 games after a disastrous start. Included in that blazing finish was a win over South Carolina State, who later captured the state championship, as well as a trip to the AIAW Regionals in Memphis.

But for the coming year, the Tiger coach is optimistic. "We came on strong at the end of the year last season, with the help of some of our younger players, like Bobbie Mims and Kathy Wilson, and with the added year of experience, we should be a better unit," said Coach Tribble. "We have a lot of depth and some new players who should add a lot to our attack."

Heading the list of returnees is last year's leading scorer, forward Donna Forester, who was elected team captain. The senior from Carnesville, Georgia tallied 611 points one year ago and with her two year totals at Anderson college, has now pumped in 2,236 points. That averages out to better than 20 points per game. She also chipped in 123 assists and had 76 steals to better than 20 points per game. She also chipped in 123 assists and had 76 steals last year.

"She is the most complete basketball player I have ever been around," said Coach Tribble, who tutored the red-headed Forester during Forester's first two seasons at Anderson. "We look for a great senior year out of her."

With the addition of point guard Drema Greer, a transfer from Anderson, Coach Tribble will be able to move last year's quarterback, Bobbie Mims, to one of the wing positions, and that should make both better players. "Drema will give us great experience and leadership at the point," said Coach Tribble. "She is a very polished player, coming off the two national championship teams at Anderson. And Bobbie, who really made us go last season, will be a natural for the wing. She is a good scoring threat and possesses a natural eye for the passing end of the game. The addition of Drema should make both parts of our attack better."

"Last year, Mims, a sophomore from Bowman, S. C., averaged 11 points per game and more importantly, added a school record 172 assists to the cause. Another returnee, Bette Paulling, is having to overcome a knee injury but should be an improved player this season."

The forward slot, with Donna Forester, should be a strong area for the Lady Tigers. A new face to this position, one with considerable talent, will be freshman Cissy Bristol, the daughter of Atlanta Braves manager Dave Bristol. "She was an outstanding high school player and is going to be one of our best this season," said Coach Tribble. "She is a great baseline player and a good passer." Coach Tribble commented that Roxianna Lee and Debra Buford also have the ability to help the squad this year.

The inside game should also be a strong part of the Tiger attack. Here, the cousin of Tiger forward Donna Forester, Janet, will once again be a viable force. Last year she averaged 15 points per game and has scored 1,008 in her first two seasons. Additionally, Coach Tribble will be counting on two returnees from last year, sophomore Kathy Wilson (6.9 points) and senior Susan Reynolds (4.8 points). "Both have improved a great deal from last year. Kathy with the year's experience and Susan, with the playing time after she had sat out a year," commented Coach Tribble.

"We also have a pair of walk-ons, Gretchen Becker from Seneca, S. C. and Ray Swygert of Columbia, S. C., who have the ability to help us out inside," Coach Tribble said. "Also, freshman Debbi Hammond, from Charleston, S. C., was an outstanding high school player as well as student and she will be a big addition to our program."

Looking toward the 1977-78 schedule, Coach Tribble called it "another tough one." The Tigers open with Tennessee in Knoxville, play a complete slate of the Atlantic Coast Conference teams, participate in the Carolina Christmas Tournament in Chapel Hill, and host the state tournament the last week in February. "It will be a tough challenge with the group of teams we will play," slated Coach Tribble. "But we look forward to the competition, the second time around."

1. Annie Tribble led the Lady Tigers to a fine 22-9 record and to the AIAW Regionals in her first year at the Clemson helm last winter. She earned Kellogg's Coach of the Year honors as the Palmetto State's top major college women's coach for the 76-77 season. 2. Cousins Donna (left) and Janet Forester averaged better than 33 points a game as a duo last winter, and totaled some 20 rebounds as well. 3. Bobbie Mims, Clemson's third leading scorer last winter, joined Donna and Janet Forester on the 1977 All-State team.
Love Song of a Lunchtime Runner

To some people, running isn't mere exercise. It's a way of life.

"I've been doing it so long now it's hard to stop," says Paul Holmes, a math professor at Clemson, who runs about 40 miles a week, 1,800 miles a year.

Zoologist Arnie Eversole adds, "It's sort of a positive addiction with me, I guess. I know when I don't run because I don't feel as good.

"It tires you physically, but makes you more alert mentally."

Although it's only a sampling of the number of people who jog or run regularly, there are more than 175 Clemson students, faculty and staff members participating in the "100 Mile Club" for runners and swimmers started last spring by Fike Recreation Center.

Athletes who reach that mark are awarded a T-shirt. Holmes and a colleague in math, Don LaTorre, recently became the first runners to capture the prized 1,000-mile shirt. Holmes was also the first athlete to log 100 miles in both swimming and running.

Intramural athletic director Banks McFadden says response to the idea of the club has been greater than he anticipated.

At mid-August, the club had 16 participants in swimming and 161 in running. Four swimmers and 39 runners had passed the 100 mile mark and more than half are at work on the 1,000 milestone.

Swimming and running may be the only two sports represented in the club now, but McFadden says, "If someone signs up and walks 100 miles, we'll give him a T-shirt too."

Many runners are drawn to the sport by a desire to get back in shape or stay in shape for new activities. After a while, though, the running becomes an end in itself, a feature of the runner's lifestyle as automatic as eating or sleeping.

LaTorre, who runs about 60 miles a week, likes it because "I can do it anywhere, alone or with others. This summer, we camped at Cade's Cove, Tennessee, and I ran every morning along a 10 mile road and saw deer, rabbits, foxes."

Many of the Clemson athletes run at lunch over a scenic four mile cross-country course west of the stadium that takes them by the rugby and football practice fields, along the old Seneca River bed, and up a rather steep hill to traverse the dike along Lake Hartwell.

But on any given day, at almost any daylight hour, you're likely to see at least a couple of runners — young and old, male and female — somewhere along the course.

"You see all kinds of people — whole families — out there running. It's really sort of a social event," says Eversole, and Holmes agrees.

"I usually run with other people. It makes it a little nicer," he says. "We don't run so hard we can't have a little conversation while we're out there suffering together."

The faster it spins, the more you spend.

The purpose of that rotating disk on your electric meter is to measure the amount of power being used.

The more you’re using, the faster it goes. And the higher your monthly bill will be.

Keep that in mind. And use electricity wisely.

Because whenever you waste power, you waste money.
