Contents

5 Danny Triplett
Clemson's aggressive linebacker has been a main cog in Clemson's outstanding defensive efforts for four years. Jeff Rhodes takes a look at Triplett's past accomplishments and his future.

7 Clemson Cheerleaders
The Tiger football team works hard all fall on the gridiron, but the cheerleaders put in just as many hours in preparation for the season. Jill Mixon examines their routine and some of the people that help enhance "Death Valley's" reputation.

43 Johnny Ringo
Johnny Rembert is one of the few junior college players who have come to Clemson and found a starting berth. At times this year the Tiger coaches have regretted not recruiting him out of high school. Tim Bourret profiles Clemson's active backer.

44 Memorial Stadium at Age 40
Last season marked the end of 40 seasons of football in Memorial Stadium. Clemson has come a long way since the days when Frank Howard used to have to cut the grass himself and the players had to help build the foundation. Jeff Rhodes helps Frank Howard recall some of the great moments of Memorial Stadium.

57 Mother of the Year
Margaret Jordan Timmerman is this year's recipient of the annual award from Tiger Brotherhood. This fine lady has produced three Clemson graduates, but that is not the only reason she was chosen. She is a real Clemson person. Anyone who would spend her honeymoon at the Clemson-South Carolina game is an easy choice for this distinguished award.

67 Tiger Bowl Victories
Frank Howard always said his team's victory over TCU in the first Bluebonnet Bowl was one of Clemson's finest. Jeff Rhodes recalls some of the great moments of yesteryear.

93 University Feature
Chief Ferguson is the man who really runs the show at Clemson on Saturday afternoons in the fall because he is the man in charge of security. No one is more organized than Ferguson and Margret Prudgen tells us why.

99 Senior Receivers
Frank Magwood and Jeff Stockstill have waited patiently for three seasons. Now they are accomplished starters and are making the most of it. Jill Mixon and Tim Bourret tell us about the solid receiving duo.

The Magic is Back

By Tim Bourret

Pass the word, the magic is back! That is the word around the South as the Clemson Tigers have appeared to have survived some passive, early season play to put together three victories and regain a spot among the nation's top 20 teams. And, the optimist really can say the Tigers are really only two kicking plays away from a 5-0 mark and a top 10 ranking.

The new season began with the second half of the Western Carolina game. After trailing 10-9 at intermission to the Cata Mounts, the Tigers came alive and gained 136 yards and scored two touchdowns in the third period to gain a 21-10 win. The following week the Tiger offense gained 405 yards and the defense allowed Kentucky's Wildcats 14 yards rushing, the third lowest figure in Clemson history.

At Virginia last Saturday night, Clemson treated its fans and most of the country on America's Station (WTBS in Atlanta) to an old-fashioned thrashing of Virginia, 48-0. "We certainly are an improved team since we opened with a loss and a tie," said Head Coach Danny Ford earlier this week. "We were struggling to find our identity early in the season and had to face some good competition while trying to find the identity. But, the team has come together as a unit the last three weeks and has a chance to be a very good football team."

The running game has been the stepping stone to success for Clemson teams in the recent era of good fortune (since 1977, 64 percent of the Tiger yardage has been rushing and only 36 percent passing). The Tigers have averaged 435.5 yards per game on the ground in the last two weeks and are ranked 15th in the nation in that category coming into the Duke contest.

Coach Ford likes to believe he has a deep team and he was not fooling himself last Saturday night. Three Clemson running backs gained over 100 yards rushing in the game as Cliff Austin had 105, Chuck McSwain and Jeff McCullar tied for second best on the night with 103. McSwain and McCullar did not even start the game so it was another first for the MacBackfield, as it was the first time in Clemson history two backs who did not start the game picked up over 100 yards rushing.

The triple-100 was another noteworthy event because it was only the fourth time three backs had carried for over 100 yards in the same game. Steve Fuller, Lester Brown and Marvin Sims did it against South Carolina in 1978, but you have to go back to the 1950 season to find another occurrence. Fred Cone, Ray Matthews and Jackie Calvert incredibly did it on consecutive weekends against Presbyterian and Missouri that undefeated season.

It was a victory Austin, McSwain, and McCullar all will remember when the three seniors are together some day at a reunion. Austin ran for two touchdowns to lead the Clemson scoring and has now averaged over 100 yards a contest in the last four games. McSwain had the longest run of the game, 82 yards, and that jaunt around the left end was the fifth longest in Clemson history and the longest run from scrimmage in the last 31 years. It was also special for McCullar, who exceeded the 100-yard mark for the first time in his career.

It was a landmark team win also, as the 48-0 win in Charlottesville set a Clemson record for the largest Clemson margin of victory in a road ACC game. It was also Clemson's largest margin of victory in a road game over anyone since 1959. But, this weekend, Clemson firsts and records probably won't be on the Tigers' minds. They'll be happy with any kind of victory because one of the nation's most sophisticated offenses, led by a record-setting quarterback of its own, will be in Death Valley attempting to end Clemson's home unbeaten string at 10 games.

Duke caught the attention of the nation early in the season by winning at Tennessee, 25-24, certainly not a World's Fair highlight for Knoxvillians. The Devils followed that with a victory in Columbia over South Carolina, and an impressive 51-17 thrashing of Virginia. While most teams enjoy playing at home, Red Wilson and his gang might not agree with the theory as the Blue Devils have failed in the last two outings, both in refurbished and antiseptic Wallace Wade Stadium.

If it is possible to lose and look good, Duke has done it in the last two weeks. "They certainly look good in the films we have seen," said Danny Ford. "We respect Ben Bennett and have to find a way to put pressure on him. If you don't, he can pass you silly.

A look at the latest NCAA stats indicates that Bennett is one of the slickest quarterbacks in the nation because he is ranked second in the latest NCAA stats with 157.8 rating points. Last week, in a narrow 22-21 loss to Virginia Tech, he hit his first 11 passes for two touchdowns and a 21-0 Duke lead. In a 27-21 loss to Navy the preceding week he connected on 20-24 passes for three touchdowns in the fourth quarter alone. The 20 completions set a national record for completions in a quarter.

You can be sure Bennett will fill the air with footballs, as the Tigers are ranked 9th in the nation in rushing defense, so Duke, as most opposing teams have realized, sees it won't be very profitable to rush against the Tigers. Clemson opponents have averaged 34 passes a game this year. In case you are wondering, the Clemson opponent record for pass attempts in a single game is 56 set by Jay Venuto in 1980. Bennett has thrown 62 in a game so get out the slide rules.

Two years ago, as a freshman, Bennett engineered one of the greatest upsets in recent Duke football history with a 34-17 win over the Tigers in Death Valley. The Sunnyvale, CA, native threw a touchdown pass and caught a touchdown pass on the way to completing 21-32 passes for 257 yards. Duke had not won a game coming into the contest and the 17-point loss served as a low point for Clemson football in the last six years.

As Coach Ford has said, the pass rush will be the key for Clemson and it will make for some great matchups. Not the least of which will be in the middle of the line where Clemson's "Bruise Brothers," William Perry and William Devane, will challenge Philip Ebinger, the preseason choice as the all-conference center this year. Perry, Devane, Dan Benish and the rest of the Clemson defense have gotten to the quarterback 11 times in the last two games and if that proficiency can continue, the Tigers should continue the home game unbeaten streak, and their march upward in the polls.

Congratulations to Clemson University
1981 National Football Champions

There's plenty of energy for everyone in SCE&G's service area. But there's not enough that folks can afford to waste it. So keep your thermostats down in cold weather, up in hot. And remember to turn off your lights and appliances when you're through using them. Because we could save lots of energy if we got everybody clicking.
Clemson May Not Be the Final Frontier

By Jeff Rhodes

Danny Triplett

The gentleman rancher, having just seen that the cattle rustlers are in jail, rides off into the sunset; the credits roll, the house-lights come up and another Western movie has been brought to a successful conclusion. Clemson's Danny Triplett has hopes that many of his working days end in a similar fashion.

"If I can't play pro football, I'd like to be a cattle rancher," said the 6-3, 224-pound Triplett. "After I get my degree, if there is any way, I'd like to go out West and start a ranch.

"I can't sit still all of my life," Triplett added. "I've got to get out to where it's open and clean. I could live freely and there wouldn't be as much pressure. I would be the head man. I'm pretty sure that's how I'd like to live, but you've just got to try it."

Triplett has a leg up on most neophyte ranchers in that he already knows how to dog a steer. He's certainly had plenty of training by dragging opposing offensive backs to the ground. Last season, he was the fourth leading tackler on the team with 86 total hits, four tackles for loss, and one sack. His most memorable play, though, occurred in the Orange Bowl when he corrilled Roger Craig, so William Devane could recover a fumble. That play led to Clemson's first points of the evening.

"They were running a sweep," Triplett noted. "I just played my position. I went in to make the stop on the back and when I got close to him I realized he didn't have the ball. My reaction was to just get him out of the way and go for the ball."

Triplett started his career on the specialty teams in 1979, and had worked his way to the reserve linebacker spot by 1980. In 1981, though, he was starting on the strong side with his partner in punishment, Jeff Davis.

"Jeff and I used to tie our jerseys in the back as a sign of togetherness because we thought we were the best linebacker duo in the South. I try to do it every game, but I'm not superstitious. I was running late against Western Carolina and just forgot to do it, and we still won, so it's not that big a deal.

"I looked up to Jeff and Bubba Brown when I first got here," Triplett recalled. "Jeff would work with me individually so that I could improve."

"I improve he did, as Triplett's tackle, tackle for loss, and pass deflection totals have risen every year since he has worn number 52. He also caused four fumbles each of the last two seasons, so it is evident that Trip (as he is known to his teammates) likes to play football with gusto. He led the team in tackles earlier this season until a thumb injury suffered against Western Carolina slowed him down.

Triplett "hit" his career peak performance against Kentucky last season when he made 14 tackles, had an interception, and broke up a pass. "It was just my lucky day, I guess," Triplett said with a shrug. "Everything just worked out. I just go out and do the best I can every game and hopefully I'll have a day better than that this season."

Triplett, who is one of the faster linemen with a 4.80 time in the 40-yard dash, has had to use all of that speed this season because of the many opponents who are airing out the football. "We have had to work a lot harder on our coverages this year," Triplett said. "We have to be ready for the run, the pass, the screen, whatever. I know what's going on with pass drops and if they run on the ground, I'll try and hit them, but I, and the rest of the defense, just have to keep working to get better and better.

"We have to be in the motel room on Friday nights and most times I'll just sit and watch 'Dallas.' I'm sort of like J.R. in that I'm dirty and nasty on the field, but I'm really not like that away from football," Triplett said.

"I have no regrets about coming to Clemson," Triplett concluded. "I have broadened myself. I have met lots of people, I have a beautiful wife, and I have played on a team that has won the national championship. Life has been pretty good to me so far.

"I know if I ever get that ranch, I won't be a supervisor—I want to do the work myself. You feel better toward yourself at the end of the day if you have done something. If there is one day I don't feel like working, I won't have to because I'll be in charge.

"I hate being indoors. I'll start slow and work my way up to the big ranch. The feeling you get with achievement is the best in the world."

And Danny Triplett has already achieved quite a bit.

The C-L-E-M in Cadence Counters

By Jill Mixon

C-L-E-M-S-O-N. On September 18, 1982, this thunderous cry once again reverberated throughout the hills of the Blue Ridge Mountains as Clemson fans welcomed the return of the 1981 National Football Champions in unparalleled style as they cued Death Valley with an awesome sound. But, have you ever wondered how 60,000 plus ardent fans show their support for their team in a unified manner? The young people who take on this monumental task are collectively known as the Clemson University Cheerleaders. This group spends extensive hours each week preparing to help lead the Tigers to victory.

To become a Clemson cheerleader it takes more than just a pretty face and a congenial smile. It takes an almost year-round dedication to the sport of making spirit at Clemson the best in the country. Each spring tryouts are held for 16 varsity positions. Among these positions are head cheerleader (who is named prior to basketball season and who serves as head cheerleader for basketball and then the following football season), the Tiger, a cannon-firer, and a flagger in addition to the six male and six female cheerleaders.

All cheerleading candidates must attend a three-day clinic during which they learn many stunts, cheers, routines, and proper cheerleading techniques. One requirement of all the cheerleaders is that they maintain a 2.0 gpa in addition to possessing other prerequisites. The candidates are judged in six separate categories: 1) Interview, 2) Appearance, 3) Cheer, 4) Partner stunts, 5) Gymnastics, 6) Pom-pom routine (male) and flight song (males).

During the summer the newly-chosen cheerleaders attend cheerleading camp. They reported to Clemson on August 3rd and practiced until the 7th in preparation for camp on August 9-13. Our cheerleaders attended camp in Memphis, TN. The gatherings, sponsored by the National Cheerleading Association, brought 83 squads together and the Tigers finished in the top 10 according to judges. They were finalists in all three categories open to competition: 1) Cheer, 2) Sideline, 3) Fight-song, and received the "Master Key to Spirit Award" as voted on by their peers. Traditionally this award is given to the squad that exemplifies the most spirit and is deemed to be the best representation of a collegiate cheerleading squad.

While the squad was amassing these team awards, Tiger mascot Randy Faile, was walking away with individual honors. He received a superior rating in every category and was one of three mascots to receive a Superior Mascot Trophy. Faile, who bubbles over with excitement when he talks about being the Tiger said, "I absolutely love being the Tiger. I get to be involved with so many activities in addition to entertaining at games. I've the goodwill ambassador of the school and have to make many public appearances for charity events and publicity purposes."

Faile worries about becoming worn down because of the extreme heat and the weight of the Tiger suit. To build up his endurance Faile has worked out with the Tiger football players in the weight room and runs to build up his leg muscles. "Being the Tiger, I must continually pace myself so I will not drop from exhaustion during the fourth quarter," offered Faile, who is a junior from Aiken, SC, majoring in administrative management.

During the fall, the cheerleaders maintain quite a hectic pace. Head Cheerleader Scott Galloway, a senior from Hartsville, SC, majoring in industrial management remarked, "We practice approximately two hours and fifteen minutes every Sunday through Thursday. On Fridays we perform at pep rallies and then games on Saturdays. So it's a real full-time seven-day job."

The cheerleaders, who are funded by Student Life (headed by Dean Joy Smith), work hard in-hand with two other campus organizations, Tiger Band and Central Spirit. Galloway feels, 'We couldn't be as organized without the help of the band and the efforts of Central Spirit. We certainly appreciate the concerted effort of these two groups and hope to continue the success we have achieved in the past."

The Clemson cheerleaders, who travel to all away games and will even make the 16-hour trek to Japan this November, are one of the hardest working and most dedicated groups on campus. Galloway stated, "This group is real close and like a second family. I'm sure I speak for all of us when I say, 'Cheering gives us the opportunity to contribute to the overall excellence of Clemson and it gives us an opportunity to belong! It's up to us to keep things going.'

Two cheerleaders who keep things going on the sidelines are Beth Cousins and David Pinion. Cousins, a junior majoring in administrative management from Newberry, SC, recalled the moment she was told she had been selected as a Tiger cheerleader. 'I was shocked. I was so thrilled that it didn't hit me until we started practice. I had wanted to be a Clemson cheerleader since I was six-years-old.'

Pinion, a junior majoring in chemical engineering from nearby Anderson, SC, stated, "I played football in high school. I realized that I wouldn't be able to play at Clemson, but I wanted to remain a part of the athletics in some way and cheering offered the perfect outlet for me. By cheering I'm killing two birds with one stone: keeping in touch with athletics and being a true part of Clemson University. Lifting all those pretty girls isn't too bad either." Pinion added jokingly.

The remaining members of the 1982 Varsity Cheerleading Squad are: Kathy Anderson, a sophomore from Clemson majoring in ceramic engineering; George Davis, the flagger, a senior from Denmark, SC, majoring in agriculture/economics; Johnny Peden a senior from Fountain Inn, SC, majoring in agricultural engineering, David Castlesberry, a junior from Kingsport, TN, majoring in mechanical engineering; Rick Conne, a junior from Ft. Lauderdale, FL, majoring in mechanical engineering; Bill Goudelock, the cannon-firer, a junior from Winnsboro, SC, majoring in architecture; George Hennrich, a junior from Myrtle Beach, SC, majoring in mechanical engineering and pre-medicine; Pat Hook, a junior from West Columbia, SC, majoring in administrative management; Sheryl Pitts, a junior from Greenville majoring in financial management. Russell Ragan, a junior from Atlanta, GA, majoring in administrative management, Aron Roberts, a junior from Greenwood, SC, majoring in administrative management, and Sherry Thrift, a junior from Westminster, SC, majoring in administrative management.

All 16 are intricate parts of the organization, and in a way, Clemson image makers. Their spirit has helped to continue a tradition of athletic excellence at C-L-E-M-S-O-N.

Danny Ford

In just three full seasons as head coach, Danny Ford has made quite an impact on Clemson University. He has brought the Tigers to the pinnacle of college football and put Clemson in the limelight with the 1981 National Championship. Last year he was the major reason Clemson was the most improved team in the nation.

Ford deservedly was named National Coach-of-the-Year by United Press International, the American Football Coaches Association, the Football Writers of America, and the Washington Touchdown Club, in addition to many other local football clubs. Ford is also the youngest head coach (33) ever to take a team to a national championship.

Ford is also the youngest fourth-year coach in Division I of the NCAA, but the now 34-year-old Gadsden, Alabama native has been associated with more winning teams and programs than most coaches come in contact with in a lifetime. Including his years as a player at Alabama under Bear Bryant, Ford has been associated with college football for the last 15 years. Fourteen of those clubs have had winning records and 11 have gone to bowl games. Additionally, the 15 teams have had a record of 124-47-3, a .720 winning percentage.

Ford has brought his winning attitude to Clemson University. Now in his fourth full season as a head coach, Ford has led the Tigers to a 27-9 record and three bowl games since taking over on December 10, 1978. That was a fine day in Clemson athletics because the University announced that Charley Pell had relinquished the head coaching duties of the 1978 Gator Bowl to Ford. Nearly 40 years after hiring 31-year-old Frank Howard, Clemson had hired a gifted 30-year-old to lead the Tiger forces on the gridiron.

Ford conquered all kinds of adversity in leading the Tigers to a nationally televised 17-15 triumph over perennial power Ohio State in the Gator Bowl in his very first game as head coach. Few mentors in NCAA history have made such a celebrated and successful beginning.

With this list of accomplishments, it is little wonder that the Student Affairs Committee of the Clemson Board of Trustees only considered one name as Charley Pell’s successor. Danny Ford not only had the backing of Pell, but also from the members of the Clemson football team. He was then assistant head coach and offensive line coach for the Tigers. After two meetings between Ford and the committee on the morning of December 5, 1978, it was the unanimous opinion of the committee that Ford should be named Clemson’s 21st head coach.

Ford began his association with college football in 1967 when he started for Bear Bryant at Alabama as Ken Stabler’s sophomore tight end. He played three years for Bryant, (including three wins against Clemson) and was an All-Southeastern Conference choice, All-SEC academic selection and team captain during his senior season.

After receiving his B.S. degree in industrial arts in 1970, Ford remained at Alabama as a graduate assistant for the 1970 and 1971 seasons. Upon earning a master’s degree in special education in 1971, he was made a full-time assistant under Bryant for the 1972 and 1973 seasons. The Tide went to four more post-season games while Ford was on Bryant’s staff.

Clemson’s current head man then accepted a position as an assistant coach on Jimmy Sharpe’s staff at Virginia Tech. He remained in Blacksburg for three seasons (1974 to 1976), before he was beckoned to Clemson by Charley Pell, who had just been named the Tigers’ head coach. Pell and Ford had served together on the VPI staff for two seasons.

And only 23 games later, Ford became head coach of the Tigers at age 30, the youngest Division I head coach in the country.

Even the sound of the door closing is by design.

Our doors speak well of the rest of our car. But their tight, solid sound is no accident.

Before we begin building the car, we engineer the best way to assemble it. Piece by piece.

Doors, trunk and hood fit the body with close tolerances all around. We align hinges and latches to work freely.

Window glass is held snug. And runs in the window channels smoothly. Triple rubber door seals help reduce outside sounds and wind noise. We've improved the insulation throughout the car.

"I guess I'm a dreamer, and I try to make the dreams come true."

The dream is a national championship in football for Clemson University. The man in large part responsible for making it come true is Bill McLellan.

Whether the dream factory is Hollywood or big-time college athletics, everyone knows that dreams don't come true without a large supporting cast. True to form, Bill McLellan gives most of the credit for Clemson's athletic success to its fans. "The willingness of people to help and to become a part of Clemson is unbelievable. Their total involvement makes my job easier," says the 48-year-old father of four, two of whom are Clemson students.

This "total involvement" of fans is matched by McLellan's job performance as athletic director. When interviewed two years ago, McLellan was described by this writer as "one of the most sought after and accessible administrators on campus."

He's rarely away from a telephone or walkie-talkie, by which he answers the steady stream of questions that ultimately come his way. "I handle the calls as they come, without delay if possible. It's like a chain reaction. I like to keep things moving."

And keeping things moving, to Bill McLellan, is a vital ingredient in Clemson's athletic success. "It's a continuous challenge," he says. Staying up-to-date and pushing hard to see that Clemson has the opportunity to be competitive is my whole job."

But "pushing hard" has its price. "I've spent four Sundays at home in the last 13 months," said McLellan one day last winter. He described sitting down for a visit with his youngest daughter, Arch Anna, now a sophomore at Winthrop. It wasn't long before the phone rang with a call from an ABC-TV sports executive. "She felt it was wrong that she had to share me on a Sunday afternoon," says McLellan. "But you can't get away from it. It's the thing we've had to accept. It would blow your mind if you let it.

Clemson University has enhanced its national visibility through athletics, and the value of greater name recognition carries over into the University's educational mission. "I'm proud of the fact that the recognition is not limited to Clemson athletics, and also that it's not limited to Clemson University," says McLellan. "Clemson has been good for South Carolina, and people around the state can relate to that."

McLellan is fond of saying, "It's the little things that make life important." That attitude is at the heart of Clemson's athletic program, which is known for its efficiency and attention to detail both on the field and behind the scenes.

It is an attitude rooted in McLellan's upbringing in a family of seven children in the small farm community of Hamer, S.C. "Being a member of a big family helped me learn to understand people better and to appreciate the little things that are a part of that kind of life," he says. "We did everything together. All nine of us would pile into the car and go to church or visit relatives. We'd all eat together and we were always bringing our friends to the house."

The sense of family, the sense of belonging, is one of Clemson's strongest assets, he says. "You know how it is when you go somewhere and feel out of place. I don't think anyone who comes to Clemson feels out of place, as long as we remember that we get out of it what we put into it."

This concern for values is not lost in McLellan's handling of Clemson's athletic program. "I've got to let our coaches know that winning is good but that we've got to educate these young people. They're going to be representing us for the rest of their lives. We've got to realize that four years is a very short time for us to help shape their futures. We can't let the athletic demands get out of balance with the educational demands."

McLellan came to Clemson in 1950 on a football scholarship after graduating from Dillon High School. He earned two football letters as a Tiger lineman and was on the 1952 Gator Bowl team. But he insists he was not a very good athlete. Yet on-the-field talent wasn't the only kind former football coach Frank Howard was adapt at spotting. "I knew he was bright, a hard worker and had gotten a good education," recalls Howard, who hired McLellan in 1958. "I let him do everything I didn't want to do, and he did a better job than if I had done it myself."

In a sense, Clemson's athletic program has grown as McLellan grew into his role as athletic director, the post he assumed in 1971. The result is one of the best athletic facilities in the country and an overall sports program that has been ranked as one of the nation's top four in recent years. "We've been forerunners in a lot of ways, and we've shown that we put what we earn back into our facilities. I'm proud that we're a self-sustaining auxiliary enterprise of the University."

Putting something back into the University has a personal dimension for McLellan also. "As one of seven children, that athletic scholarship made a lot of things possible for me, and I appreciate the opportunity to pay Clemson back. It's not an ego trip for me, but it is personal satisfaction which no one can ever take away."

Is there a limit to the pressure and job demands that Bill McLellan is willing to endure? "There's no limit as long as I can breathe, because I don't think a thing's impossible, given the support we have from Clemson people."

For this commitment and service to Clemson, Bill McLellan was named as a Distinguished Alumnus of Clemson University this past summer.

When my folks sent me to college, they never dreamed I'd come home a Financial Wizard.

I didn’t have to take a course or crack a book, either. All I did was become a C&S customer. Now I can use C&S’s Wizard machines on campus and around town to make deposits and withdrawals from my checking and savings accounts, make transfers, even make payments on a loan—24 hours a day. And there are some 100 C&S offices and over 75 Wizard machine locations around the state, so I can be a Financial Wizard almost anywhere in South Carolina.

So, folks, even though I’m not on the Dean’s List yet, I’m already getting straight A’s in banking at C&S.

"Just 10 minutes from Death Valley"
Clemson Iptay Club

By Len Gough, Assistant Executive Secretary of Iptay

The school year of 1981-1982 will bring fond memories to Clemson fans for many years. There were six ACC Champions, 15 of 17 teams participated in postseason playoffs and there were two national championships. Two? Of course, everyone knows about Clemson football, but once again, as in the previous three years, IPTAY was number one.

This team of dedicated alumni, students and friends continues to defy the odds with 18 consecutive record-setting years raising funds for athletic scholarships. With 1981 being the most successful year for athletic scholarship fundraising, IPTAY 1982 merely had a 152% increase in giving over the goal. Success of this magnitude is nothing new for the 20,000 members as this group has raised over 22 million dollars in the past 45 years. What is it, then, that makes IPTAY so much more successful than all other athletic fundraising groups?

"Clemson people have made IPTAY the strong organization it is today," says Joseph J. Turner, Jr., executive secretary for IPTAY. "Our IPTAY representatives are people from across the state and the Southeast who love Clemson University and who want to help Clemson in any way. These folks spend a lot of their time arranging meetings and visiting other Clemson supporters. They're the ones who keep IPTAY head and shoulders above the rest."

IPTAY relies heavily on quality leadership provided by officers like President John Timmerman, Vice President Bill Reaves and Secretary Treasurer Lawrence Starkey, Jr., who were all re-elected to their respective offices in tribute to the outstanding job they did in 1981-82.

IPTAY’s officers and board of directors provide the guidance and judgment necessary to administer a successful program. When you take 20 successful businessmen and put them in your boardroom, chances are good ideas will develop," says Turner.

Founded as a secret society complete with mystic words and secret ceremonies, IPTAY has evolved into a professional organization of volunteers. These ideas that Dr. Robert A. Fike, IPTAY’s founder and eight other men, discussed in Dr. Fike’s Atlanta home over 45 years ago provide the basis for IPTAY today. Can you imagine what Clemson athletics would be like today if that meeting in August of 1934 had not taken place?

"Without a doubt, Clemson University would not be enjoying the national exposure it now has without the aid and support of the IPTAY organization," said Bill McLellan, Clemson’s athletic director. "Athletes as well as the university community as a whole should be thankful for all the benefits that IPTAY has provided in the effort to make Clemson University Number One."

It’s not a secret society anymore. Over one million dollars was distributed to 400 athletes in 19 varsity sports during the 1981-82 school year. This is the main thrust for IPTAY to provide athletic scholarships for student athletes.

The success of IPTAY has enabled this organization to give aid to the athletic department and the university in many other ways. IPTAY paid for the new uniforms for the band in 1978 as well as provided travel funds for the band in 1980 and in 1981. The band will also travel in 1982 thanks to funding from IPTAY.

Among the physical improvements that were made possible by IPTAY, assistance included $22,000 for lights at the Biggs Soccer Field as well $150,000 for construction of permanent seating at the Tigers’ tennis courts and baseball field.

The new scoreboard, the stadium graphics, and ultramodern sound system were all made possible thanks to a $300,000 contribution from IPTAY. Certainly this helps to provide Death Valley one of the finest facilities in the South.

Certainly physical needs are not all at Clemson that IPTAY recognizes. The organization funds an academic tutoring program at no charge for student athletes. Forty thousand dollars has been contributed by IPTAY as partial funding of a master transportation plan for Clemson University. IPTAY contributed a $125,000 seed grant to begin planning for a Fine Arts Center for use by the entire Clemson Community.

"IPTAY is committed to Clemson and Clemson students," said Turner. "IPTAY is doing several things to make Clemson athletes even stronger, and therefore benefit the university as a whole."

With 20,000 Clemson people dedicated to these goals, IPTAY can’t help but stay Number One.

Making Things Happen
For Today’s Students

Four students . . . two Poole Scholars, an R. C. Edwards Scholar, and the Student Alumni Council president . . . represent outstanding young people at Clemson who are assisted by alumni programs which encourage academic excellence to match the Tigers’ athletic achievements. A gift to the Loyalty Fund will add your name to the list of those who back up their belief in the students of tomorrow.

Melanie Smith, Poole Scholar freshman, from Wilson, N.C., and the N.C. School of Science and Mathematics: “Everyone here is so kind; the concept of the Clemson family tipped the scales; what a great day when Clemson alumni said, “‘Come on down!’”

Mark Swancy, senior, Student Alumni Council president from Spartanburg: “I feel honored to serve as student representative on the Alumni Association Board. I’ll be glad to back the Loyalty Fund when I graduate; I learn everyday how valuable our support really is.”

Alden Gold, Edwards Scholar, freshman from Columbia, accepted by M.I.T. and Georgia Tech: “I appreciate so much the confidence Clemson and its people placed in me. Thanks, alumni, for the opportunity; I promise I won’t let Clemson or my parents down.”

David Czabala, Poole Scholar, freshman from Atlanta: “Growing up in South Chicago, I dreamed of Notre Dame and was accepted; however, Clemson provides a sound undergraduate program and helped me make up my mind by offering a scholarship; I hope some day I can pay alumni back.

ACC FOOTBALL / BASKETBALL
Available once again for the 10th year!

First issue to be published September 1982

Clemson's National Football Championship, and the increased success of ACC Football generally, combined with a growing demand from subscribers, helped us to decide to expand ACC BASKETBALL to ACC FOOTBALL / BASKETBALL.

Subscribers will receive weekly a 4-12 page newspaper section containing reprinted stories, photos, statistics and columns selected from the sports pages of the Raleigh newspapers. You can have all the details of those classic battles between the ACC teams and their encounters with non-conference foes, in one easy-to-read, easy-to-save package. Stories are also carried on major developments in other ACC sports.

SUBSCRIBE NOW ... Don't miss a single issue!
ACC FOOTBALL / BASKETBALL will come to you once again beginning September 1982 and will continue for 25 consecutive weeks.

YOU DON'T GET TO THE TOP BY JUST PLAYING GAMES.

It takes hard work and a lot of practice. And it takes a commitment to being the best. The kind of commitment Clemson students, faculty and alumni have also brought to their positions on the J. P. Stevens team throughout the years.

Students filling jobs in nearby plants. Faculty providing continuing education and valuable research. And alumni in management roles.

For years we've worked together to create quality fabrics. Having Clemson on our side has helped keep us at the top, too.

Johnny's Looking Ahead

By Tim Bourret

That old baseball philosopher, Satchel Page, was credited with many pithy sports doctrines in his era, but the late pitcher's most famous adage might have been, "Don't look back, someone might be gaining on you." That adage probably comes to the minds of opposing coaches and players this season when they watch Clemson linebacker Johnny Rembert.

The senior from Arcadia, FL, runs a 4.7 in the 40 and is regarded as one of, if not the fastest, linebackers Clemson has ever had. When an opposing back breaks by the line of scrimmage, chances are Johnny Rembert is close behind. Many times this season the 6-3, pro prospect has chased down fleet backs from behind and after four games in 1982 he was second on the team in tackles.

Now a starter as a senior after matriculating to Clemson in 1981 from Cowley County Junior College in Arkansas City, Kansas, Coach Danny Ford looks back and wishes he had recruited Rembert when he was a senior in high school.

"Rembert has done a great job for us and I wish we still had him for two more seasons," said Ford. "He has a lot of potential and is still improving. He will still be getting better when his Clemson career ends."

An often asked question of any junior college transfer centers around his initial decision to forego a four-year school at the beginning of his career. Rembert explains his reasoning. "I needed a lot more work after high school, I really was not ready. I weighed only about 195 pounds and played defensive end and tight end in high school. No big schools really recruited me. I could have gone to some smaller division I schools, but I thought maybe a good couple of years in junior college and some big schools would take an interest in. Many players have used that route before." O. J. Simpson is one who immediately comes to mind.

Rembert made the most of his two seasons at Cowley County, one of the best, if not the best, areas of junior college ball in the country. He worked hard on the weights and the books to prepare himself. "There is not a great deal to do in Arkansas City, Kansas, so it was not that hard to discipline myself but I did make improvement."

Rembert's team won the conference championship both years he played (1979 and 1980) and he was named a JUCO All-American his last year. His team played in two bowl games during his career. With all these accolades and 30 more pounds of muscle, the college recruiters from division I schools came calling. "I narrowed my choices to Kansas State, Miami (FL), Michigan State, Pittsburgh, Iowa State and Clemson," recalled Rembert.

"You know, although I was from Florida I really did not know much about Clemson until I met a guy named Tracy Lewis out at Cowley County. He was from Atlanta and had been recruited by Clemson. He told me it was a pretty nice place. Coach King (Buddy) was still looking at him last year and Lewis told coach King I would be a good player to look at also. As it turned out, I ended up at Clemson and Lewis did not."

Clemson is certainly happy Lewis got Rembert interested in Clemson because he has been a welcomed addition. He is one of the best all-around linebackers Clemson has had. "We knew he would be a good one," said linebacker coach Les Herrin. "That junior college league in Kansas has had some great players like Mike Rozier (now with Nebraska), Dwayne Crutchfield (Iowa State and the New York Jets) and Ron Springs (Ohio State)."

"He has all the potential to join those players in the pros," continued Herrin. "He runs well and has great body balance, those are his two best assets. He just keeps getting better and better with game experience. All he needs to do is get a little stronger in his upper body."

Of course, Herrin is probably comparing Rembert to Clemson's strongest linebacker ever, Jeff Davis, a natural comparison because that is the player Rembert replaced in the Clemson starting lineup. "I learned a lot from Jeff Davis last year," said Rembert. "He is a great player, but is a different style than me. I might be a little quicker and play pass defense more, but he was so strong and great against the run," stated "Johnny Ringo," a nickname given him by assistant coach Willie Anderson last year that has stuck.

Quickness, and thus pass defense, is a noticeable asset with Rembert, just look at his interception stats as a collegian. Through four games of his senior year at Clemson, he had picked off 12 passes between games at Cowley County and Clemson, an unheard of number for a linebacker. He was tied for second in the nation in interceptions this year at Clemson through three games and had two thefts against Western Carolina for 45 return yards.

"I watch the quarterback on my drops and just try to fill the area where I think the ball is going," said Rembert. "Just get near the ball and make the big play."

While Danny Ford often looks back and wishes he had Johnny Rembert for two more seasons, Rembert and a lot of pro scouts are looking forward to the active linebacker's promising future.
Tales of Death Valley

By Jeff Rhodes

Many Clemson football players come to summer school these days to stay in shape by working out in the strength training room, but 41 years ago, a number of athletes got their summer workouts by clearing a natural ravine that is now known as "Death Valley."

"In 1941, we took all of the boys who were in summer school and gave them axes to clear the land for the stadium," said Frank Howard, who was the first coach to field a team in Memorial Stadium. "Sid Tinsley was a real small player and he said he couldn't swing the axe. Well, I knew he was just trying to get out of work, so I bought him a hatchet and told him to cut up the trees that were already on the ground."

"We did as much as we could to help build the stadium in order to save money," Howard noted. "We cleared the land and once the stands were built, we put down the sod."

But before the first permanent seats were built in 1941-42, part of Cemetery Hill was trimmed down and the dirt was used to build up the site of the North Stands. A 36-inch-diameter pipe was also laid to fill the ditch running from end zone to end zone on the soon-to-be playing field. "It was almost a perfect natural valley," said Howard. "The contractors had to do comparatively little site work."

The 20,000 original seats, which are those below the portals and go from goal line to goal line, were completed at a cost of $125,000, which translates to $65.50 a seat.

"Before they sank the corner posts for the stands, I put a plug of chewing tobacco at the bottom of each hole for luck," said Howard, the noted chaw expert. Apparently, those mouthfuls of tobacco have brought the Tigers good fortune because Clemson has a 121-54-4 record in The Valley, which is a .657 winning percentage. In other words, sports fans, it's a tough place to play if you're visiting.

"I learned my first lesson in motivation when we started planting the grass," Howard noted. "After we had to regrade the field to cover this huge piece of granite under the field, we had 40 laborers planting the 1½-by-2-foot squares. They had worked for two weeks and had only covered to the 50."

"Well, this was July 15 and we had a game in September, so I told them I would get 50 gallons of ice cream and pay them all for two weeks worth of work if they could finish in 10 days. They had the field covered in three."

Clemson christened Memorial Stadium, which is dedicated to the men who were lost in World War II, by beating Presbyterian, 32-13, on September 19, 1942.

"That's when we started the tradition of running down the hill," said Howard. "We dressed in Fike and that was the shortest way to get down to the field."

"After the season, I was cutting the grass," said Howard, with a look in his eyes that told of a story coming on. "Dr. Poole (then Clemson president) told me he didn't think I should have to do that and he suggested that we put sheep in the stadium and let them keep the grass mowed. Well, since he was the president, I didn't say anything, and we put sheep on the field. When we came back the next fall, there was about a foot-and-a-half of sheep manure (poetic form) on the floor of the President's Box. Needless to say, Dr. Poole didn't say any more about putting sheep in the stadium."

Lights were added to the stadium prior to the 1948 season, and Clemson played one or two night home games for the next eight years. "A night game was just too inconvenient for most people in those days, so we stopped night football after the 1956 season, and the lights came down soon after that," said Howard.

Prior to the 1958 season, the old problem of supply and demand caught up with the limited supply of tickets and 18,000 seats were added (at a cost of $16.50 each) above the portals and two half sections were added to fill in the end zones. An 8-3 season in 1958 and a 9-2 ledger in '59 produced even more ticket requests, so the 5,700-seat West Stands were completed in 1960. Costs had risen quite a bit in two years, and the price per seat in the new addition was pegged at $52.63. The woods behind the West Stands were also graded to accommodate the additional parking demands.

In 1961, with Lake Hartwell starting to fill up, it was discovered that the new body of water would fill the stadium up to the 39th row of seats. "I had already picked out another site to build the stadium (where the Horticultural Gardens are now), when this engineer came to me and informed me the problem," recalled Howard. "He said there would be no need to move the field if the dykes were built where they are now. He said it would cost about $2 million to build the dams there, but I knew that a couple of million meant nothing to the government, so I took him right to Bob Edwards' (then Vice President for Development) office and we got the whole matter straightened out."

The stadium remained pretty much the same for the next 18 years, with only noticeable changes being the addition of aluminum seats in 1972 and the pro-style goal posts a year later.

After the 1976 season, ticket demand far outpaced supply and final plans were laid for the South Stands Upper Deck.

Construction started after the 1977 season and was progressing on schedule until January 1978, when it was discovered the support structures were sinking. Further examination of the site revealed a ditch that had been improperly covered many years before and construction was halted.

Building was resumed after the concrete retaining walls were finished, but the project was now several months behind schedule, so crews were forced to work through the 1978 season. The upper deck was finished in time for the season's finale against South Carolina on November 25. A southeastern United States record crowd of 63,050 watched, including the 9,000 additional seats that cost approximately $889 each, as Steve Fuller and Lester Brown rolled over the Gamecocks 41-23.

"When Jess Neely left to go to Rice in 1940, he told me to build a 10,000-seat steel stadium, and that would be all that Clemson would ever need," said Howard, who inherited the job as pilot of the Tigers from Neely after the 1940 Cotton Bowl. "When he came back to Clemson in 1980 for the Rice game and saw all of the seats, he nearly fainted."

The summer of 1982 saw The Valley grow deeper once again, as 3,800 seats were added on the hill to insure that all season ticket holders would have the benefit of a permanent seat. And if Death Valley isn't ominous enough now, just wait until next season, when Memorial Stadium will have 15,000 additional seats in the North Stands Upper Deck and accompanying luxury boxes at a projected cost of $15,000,000, bringing the cost per seat to an even $1,000 each.

When Presbyterian coach Lonnie McMillan nicknamed Memorial Stadium "Death Valley" in 1948, he really must have known what he was talking about, because nearly 73,000 screaming fans can certainly change a near upset into another opponent's demise on the scoreboard.
The original stadium, circa 1950 (Notice the lights).

Memorial Stadium added 15,000 seats in 1955.

The South Stands Upper Deck, from start to finish.

The summer of 1982 saw the final addition, that is, at least until next year.

Clemson University was born during hard economic times in the decade of the 80s—the 1880s. Through scientific education in agriculture and the mechanical arts, the young Clemson &M College turned out thousands of Southern boys with the technical and management skills to build a modern economy strong in agriculture and manufacturing.

Economic hard times are with us again in the 1980s and Clemson, now a modern, coed university, approaches its centennial with a renewed sense of urgency about its founding mission.

Simply stated, Clemson believes education—investing in human resources, investing in brainpower—is the essential cornerstone of prosperity and well-being for South Carolinians.

Despite rising costs and budget cuts, there is everywhere on campus this fall evidence of a renewed commitment to academic excellence.

Records for private support for academics were shattered last year. The University's total permanent endowment now exceeds $9.7 million and Clemson alumni rank third in the nation among public colleges and universities in percentage participation in alumni giving.

Through the Alumni Loyalty Fund, Clemson has increased academic scholarships, fellowships and awards for outstanding teaching and research. It also added five permanent Alumni Professorships, awarded to the University's "master teachers."

Plans are under way to launch, in early 1983, a major academic fund-raising effort, the "Challenge to Greatness" campaign, to culminate with the school's 100th birthday in 1989.

Applications for admission are up, and so is student retention. Last year 86 percent of Clemson freshmen returned as sophomores, reflecting their view of the value of a Clemson education as well as their own scholastic achievement.

The University launched its honors program "Calhoun College" this fall. And Clemson continues to review and evaluate its 77 undergraduate and 58 graduate programs to make sure they meet the needs of the students, society and industries served—agriculture, textiles, electronics, construction, forestry, travel and tourism.

The University foresaw the computer age and the demand for computer education and built one of the largest and best-managed academic computer centers in the nation. And the computer science department is the fastest growing academic unit on campus.

Research and public service activities through agencies like the S.C. Agricultural Experiment Station and the Cooperative Extension Service are undergoing a similar rigorous examination to make sure they meet the needs of the 21st century.

When the year 2082 rolls around, Clemson plans to be ready.

This year, we at Chevrolet are going to prove something very important.

We're going to prove that your faith in American ingenuity, technology and skill has not been misplaced.

In the coming months, you'll see that proof in places you may not have checked lately. In our Chevrolet products.

Take a good hard look, this year especially.

You'll discover a Chevrolet that's much more than simply number one in sales.

You'll discover a Chevrolet that's taking charge in providing better, more exciting, affordable products.

Chevrolets built with higher-quality design and assembly procedures.

Chevrolets built with more state-of-the-art production techniques.

Chevrolets with the most advanced automotive technology ever in our history.

Whether or not we become your next new car, we want to make you proud that we are America's car.

We are USA-1. And USA-1 is taking charge.
Tiger Brotherhood's Mother-of-the-Year

By Cricket Yates

Author’s Note: We would like to thank Mrs. Peggy Carter for her help in this article on Tiger Brotherhood’s Mother-of-the-Year.

Margaret Jordan Timmerman is a wife, mother, grandmother, active church member and Clemson supporter. She has three offsprings that are Clemson graduates and all have distinguished themselves. But, perhaps her most graphic demonstration of love for Clemson took place in 1932.

Tiger Brotherhood’s Mother-of-the-Year was a 1928 graduate of Coker College. She met and married Washington Prince “Pap” Timmerman, Jr. in 1932. “Pap” was a 1928 graduate of Clemson, where he was captain of the Band Company and lettered in baseball and football.

Unlike most newlyweds the pair headed to the state capital, Columbia, for their honeymoon. Tiger romantics at heart, they took in the Clemson-South Carolina freshman football game on their wedding night. And, if that wasn’t enough, they showed up again the next day for the annual Clemson-South Carolina varsity game. Since that October day in 1932 they have not missed a game in that rivalry, a span that covers some 50 years.

The family expanded as the years rolled on and the Timmermans had three sons and a daughter, three of whom went to Clemson.

Albert Jordan Timmerman is a 1958 graduate of the University. He is a plant manager for Sonoco Products Co. in Vancouver, Washington. John Hodges Timmerman graduated from Clemson in 1962 and currently resides in Columbia, SC, where he is a dentist. He is currently the president of IPTAY.

Washington Price (Tim) Timmerman is a 1963 Clemson graduate and is one of Tiger Brotherhood’s charter seniors. He currently lives in Greenville and is president of Electes Painters, Inc., a firm based in Indianapolis, IN. Finally, daughter Margaret Timmerman Carter is a 1970 graduate of Meredith College. She currently lives in Pendleton. “Love of Clemson,” says daughter Peggy, “has been one of the ties that binds the Timmerman family.”

Mrs. Timmerman is a lifelong member of the First Baptist Church of Hartsville and has held numerous positions. She has been active in support of her alma mater and has served on the Darlington County library commission. But, her service goes deeper than memberships in clubs or service on boards because Mrs. Timmerman has used her talents of caring for people to the improvement of the society around her.

Her son, Tim, expressed why he felt his mother was a perfect choice for Tiger Brotherhood’s Mother-of-the-Year by saying, “Because of the values she has instilled in her children and the worth she has found in the lives of everybody around her, she deserves this honor. She exemplifies everything Tiger Brotherhood stands for—service, humanity and integrity. She has ministered a million people.”

What is Tiger Brotherhood?

Today, the Brotherhood is a local, selective, honorary fraternity. It still embraces the same basic tenets as established by its founders, led by Professor John Logan Marshall, in 1929. Enamored with ritual, the Tiger Brotherhood promotes high standards of social and ethical conduct, while recognizing in its members an earnest devotion to Clemson, coupled with the integrity of character commensurate with the atypical Clemson Gentleman.

Tiger Brotherhood embodies an unequaled cross-sectional representation of the Clemson community. Students, faculty and staff all work within the bonds of brotherhood to champion a closer relationship. One for all and all for one, with Clemson its many traditions and undying spirit as our central focus, today provides a viable, flexible and continuing forum for ideas and unending service to Clemson.

Tigers Tease TCU

By Jeff Rhodes

Trivia buffs, here is a short quiz to see if you know some obscure facts about Clemson football. When was the last "Big Thursday" game with South Carolina? What season did Clemson record five shutouts, its second highest total in history? Which team was the Tigers' third Atlantic Coast Conference title-winner? What year did Frank Howard last take a team to a bowl? What game does Howard believe was the best performance any of his teams gave?

The answer to any of the first four questions is 1959. If you know the answer to the last question, you were at the 1959 Bluebonnet Bowl.

"The Bluebonnet Bowl game against Texas Christian was one of the best games Clemson ever played," said Howard, who retired in 1969 after 30 years as mentor for the Tigers. "Everything really clicked for us that day."

There were eight offensive and defensive tackles who weighed 240 pounds or better on the field that day and when they hit it sounded like elephants colliding in the jungle," recalled Howard. "It really was a hard-hitting game."

Howard was not just kidding about those tackles," recalled Sonny Barnes, the TCU sophomore end on the '59 team. "This is one time Coach is not just making up stories. It certainly was the best and toughest game I ever played in."

TCU's Jack Spikes started Houston's inaugural Bluebonnet Bowl when he kicked off to Clemson's George Usry. The Tigers fumbled on their first possession and the Horned Frogs drove to the Clemson 27 where Spikes' field goal attempt drifted wide left.

Alternate quarterback Lowandes Shingler drove Clemson from its 12 to the TCU 5 in 12 plays, but the drive stalled. Lon Armstrong hit on a 22-yard field goal as the second quarter started and Clemson led 3-0.

Not to be outdone, TCU second-stringer Don George drove the Frogs on a 12-play, 63-yard march of their own to the Clemson end zone. An 18-yard pass from George to halfback Harry Moreland moved TCU to the Clemson 19 and on the next play, right halfback Jack Reding threw to Moreland for the touchdown. Jim Dodson added the point after, and the two teams went into the locker room with TCU leading 7-3.

After being held to a paltry 87 yards in total offense, all on the ground, in the first half, Clemson went to the air route to score two fourth-period touchdowns to break the game open. Tiger quarterbacks Shingler and Harvey White, who went a combined 0-5 passing in the first half, combined for 103 yards passing and completed five-of-seven attempts in the final stanza to account for the final 23-7 margin.

"We had a particular man-in-motion pass play, the 109-T, which was one of the three pass patterns we ran," said Barnes. "And, when Harvey White called that play in the huddle, he looked at me and said, 'Can you get open?' Naturally, I said sure, but could you give me time for one more step?"

"Marvin Lasater was the cornerback and I gave him a hard head fake. To my disbelief, he turned and I turned in on a post pattern and it was a perfect pass," Barnes caught the ball at midfield and sprinted in for the score to give the Tigers a lead they wouldn't give up.

"Near the end of the play, I felt like somebody was gaining on me because I was getting tired, but I made it in. I never had to break stride for that pass—if I had thought about it at the time, I probably would have dropped it," Barnes recalled.

"A few years ago, I had some business in Houston, so I went to the TCU athletic department and the secretary said there was nobody there but Coach Lasater," Barnes said with a devious laugh. "The wheels started turning in my mind and I told her, 'I'd like a few minutes of his time.'"

"I got into his office and we talked for a few minutes," Barnes continued. "I finally asked him if he knew who I was. He said that I looked awfully familiar, but he couldn't quite place the face. So, I said, 'Why did you go to the outside in the Bluebonnet Bowl?' His face lit up, and he said, 'You're the son-of-a-gun that beat me!' Although he didn't quite use those terms."

After a TCU fumble, Shingler took four plays to parlay the gift into points. "Don King made one of the most remarkable catches I've ever seen," said Barnes. "He ran a short post to the goal line and he turned around in the air and had to reach around his neck to get the ball, and somehow he held on." Clemson led at that point 16-7.

The Tigers got their final points on a long drive that covered 63 yards in seven plays, with Ron Serudato carrying over right tackle from the one for the score. Doug Daigecault ended the last TCU threat with an interception, and Clemson ran out the clock for the win.

"Everybody connected with that game said it was such a well-played contest," said Barnes. "TCU had Bob Lilly, whom I later played with on the Dallas Cowboys, and he felt the same way about the game as I did. He was my roommate on road trips, and he used to rehash the game. Despite the score, it was a close game until the floodgates opened in the fourth quarter."

Clemson won its 300th football game with that win in Houston and it marked the Tigers' fourth bowl win in seven tries. So, the 1959 season could be the season that is remembered for the vast amount of "Tiger Tease" questions that came out of it, but most fans will remember the great game the Tigers played in beating Texas Christian.
Clemson Coaches

For the third time in the last four years, the Clemson all-around sports program has been ranked in the top five in the nation. The survey conducted by the Knoxville Journal takes into account national ranking in many selected sports. The Tigers were ranked fourth in this year’s poll as six Clemson teams were rated in the top 20 in men’s athletics last year. The Tigers have been in the top five of the poll in 1979, 1980 and 1982 and have been in the top 30 in the last seven years. Obviously Clemson’s superb coaching staff is the prime reason Tiger athletics are on such firm ground.

Ferguson's Bible

By Margaret Pridgen

Clemson opened its home football season against Furman in 1979 one week after Jack Ferguson arrived on campus as Director of Public Safety.

When the season's final whistle blew in December Ferguson took a solemn oath, "I will never go through another football season like that again," he vowed.

By the time the 1980 season rolled around, Ferguson had put together a comprehensive planning, communications and information document that has come to be called, simply, "the football manual."

Now in its third edition and more than 140 pages long, the manual is a guide that covers almost every procedure and precaution involved in squeezing 70,000 enthusiastic people onto a 15,000-person campus for four hours on a Saturday afternoon.

There are sections on parking, traffic and crowd control, emergency medical facilities, seat locations of doctors, lost (and bogus) ticket procedures, alcoholic beverage control, and lost and found people and property.

"We have contingency plans for just about everything, but the main thing is just to provide a good, safe environment where everybody from the infants to the elderly can come and have a good time and not have to worry about anything," says Ferguson.

In addition to compiling the manual, he begins each summer a round of briefings for the 300-plus safety and security people who make things run smoothly at home games.

About 120 Crowe Security personnel are under contract to the university to help with crowd and traffic control, and they all got a tour of the stadium and grounds before the first home game.

Ferguson says that force is augmented each week by 80 to 100 S.C. Highway Patrolmen, 40 state agents from SLED and Alcohol Beverage Control, 40 student policemen, 12 Pickens County Sheriff's deputies and his own security force of 30.

His big problems are medical emergencies (particularly in the early part of the season when it's hot), traffic incidents, and fans who throw things from the upper deck.

Ticket scalping is a perennial headache and some counterfeit tickets even surfaced last year. But the incidence of public drunkenness and disorderly conduct varies from game to game.

"At the Wake Forest game last year we made about three arrests," says Ferguson, "but you take a game like Georgia and I bet we had almost 50 including ticket scalping."

On home game Saturdays, Ferguson's day begins at 7 a.m. with a cruise of the campus to check the parking lots and the placement of barricades and curb ramps.

"I really enjoy seeing the activity picking up," he says. "I ride out by the bottoms where the campers are and smell them cooking breakfast, and then I see my people and the fans trickle in and hear the band warming up.

"It's really kind of nice to see everything coming to life."

From his command post near the press box, Ferguson is aware of everything that goes on both on and off the field. All calls from medical emergencies to broken elevators are funneled through that central point.

"It's sad when he has to call a fan away from his seat to notify him of an emergency at home, but the duty has its lighter moments, too."

During the Wake Forest game last year the press box lost radio contact with the field. It was a high-scoring game, a lot of unfamiliar players were going in, and the spotters just couldn't keep up. Ferguson volunteered to help and, using his police radio, contacted the field to ask who had run the previous play.

"I relayed the response I got," Ferguson says, "and the announcer put out over the PA that 'O.K. Standby' had rushed for three yards."

Jack Ferguson must organize the activities of about 65,000 people on Saturday afternoons.

Popular Tunes

By Jill Mixon

The Tiger Band will enter Frank Howard Field to "Sock It To Em" and "Tiger Rag" as it prepares to kickoff another exciting day of Tiger football in The Valley. The pregame festivities include the presentation of the colors by the Army ROTC as the Clemson University Chorus joins the Tiger Band in "America the Beautiful." "The Star-Spangled Banner," and the alma mater.

Then a very special guest will dot the "i" during the pregame activities. This year's Tiger Brotherhood Mother-of-the-Year, Mrs. W. P. "Pap" Timmerman, Jr., will be honored. The former Margaret Jordan is a 1928 graduate of Coker College and she and her husband will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary in just three days on Oct. 19th. The Timmermans, who attended the Clemson-SC game on their honeymoon, have not missed a Clemson-USC contest in their 50 years of marriage. The Timmermans have four children and 10 grandchildren. Al Timmerman is a '58 graduate of Clemson and resides in Vancouver, WA. John Timmerman is a '62 graduate of Clemson and is the President of IPTAY. He lives in Columbia. Tim Timmerman is a '63 graduate of Clemson and a resident of Greenville. Peggy Timmerman Carter is a '70 graduate of Meredith College and she and her family reside in Pendleton.

Today's halftime show is a collection of popular tunes. The band enters to "They're Playing Our Song," from the play of the same name. The original score was written by Marvin Hamlisch and was arranged for band by Jim Ott. The program continues with an upbeat melody, "Star," recorded by the popular group Earth Wind and Fire and arranged by Bob Cotter. In the Tiger Band's final presentation the tempo slows down considerably for Lionel Ritchey's ballad, "Still." This tune was popularized by The Commodores and arranged by John Higgins.

In celebration of Parents' Day at Death Valley we thought you might be interested to discover that several current bandmen had fathers who also played in the Tiger Band.

Tom Boling, a member of the percussion section who plays the mallets, is the offspring of Benjamin Thomas Boling. The elder Boling attended Clemson in 1956-61. During his tenure he acted as student conductor from 1957-60 and vice commander in 1960. Mr. Boling is currently the assistant personnel director at Horry County Public Schools.

In addition to the Bolings, John Crawford, Jr.'s father was a member of the Tiger Band. John P. Crawford, Sr., from St. Stephens, SC, attended Clemson from 1953-57 and studied Agricultural Engineering. The younger Crawford plays the saxophone.

The final bandsman whose father played in the Tiger Band is Thomas Garrett, Jr. Thomas Garrett, Sr., attended Clemson from 1954-56 and played the clarinet. He is currently the President to the 3G Corporation. Thomas, Jr. plays the alto sax-clarinet. The Garretts reside in Beaufort, SC.

Other siblings in the Tiger Band today include: Kevin Bismack (commander) and his sister, Sue Bismack; Michael and Patrick Freeman from Clemson; Tim and Richard Harley from Trenton, SC; Curtis and Gail Holland from Brevard, NC; Dan and Keith Jenkins from Chesnee, SC; Bob and Cindy Morris from Greenville; and Dale and Carol Stoudemire from Chapin, SC; and Brian and Kent Wigington from Seneca.

The Tiger Band will exit the field to a reprise of the song that shakes the Southland—"Tiger Rag" and prepares for another exciting half of action against the Blue Devils of Duke.

Tigers in the Crowd

Jean Desdunes
Miami, Fl.

Desdunes, 21, was an All-American for the Clemson tennis team last year and should rank as one of the top 10 college singles players in the nation this season. Last year the senior had a 47-19 overall record in sanctioned matches, including a 34-14 mark as Clemson's number-two player. He should easily become Clemson's all-time leader in singles victories by the end of the season as he needs only 14 triumphs to set Mark Dickson's record. Desdunes has been an all-conference selection for three seasons and has been ranked in the top 40 in the country since his sophomore season.

Mo Tinsley
Wolverhampton, England

Tinsley, 22, became the Atlantic Coast Conference's all-time leader in assists by a soccer player recently, and has been Clemson's top player over the first half of the season. Now in his fourth season as a starter, Tinsley is in the top 10 in career goal scoring at Clemson as a starting striker. A second-team all-conference selection in each of his first three seasons, Tinsley was named the most valuable player of the SIU-Edwardsville tournament in September and will be leading the Tigers in the Clemson Invitational this weekend at Riggs Field.

Mary Anne Cubelic
Columbia, SC

Cubelic, 22, was a first-team All-Atlantic Coast Conference tournament selection last year and is expected to be the Lady Tigers' leader on the basketball court this season. She and Barbara Kennedy gave Clemson the best one-two scoring punch in the ACC last year as the twosome averaged 46 points per game. Cubelic averaged 20.0 points per outing over the last half of the season, including a 23-point average in the ACC tournament. Now in her senior season at Clemson, Cubelic stands fifth in the Clemson career scoring list heading into her final year.

Vincent Hamilton
Rutherfordton, NC

Hamilton, 21, was a second-team All-ACC performer for the season and in the tournament last year as a sophomore, the youngest Tiger to make an all-conference basketball team since 1975. Clemson's leading scorer with a 15.0 average in 1981-82 also led the ACC in field goal percentage with a .586 figure, the first Tiger to lead the ACC in that important category. Now a junior, Hamilton is Clemson's career leader in field goal percentage and already ranks in the top 10 in career assists and in the top 35 in career scoring. He scored in double figures in 24 of the 28 games last season and shot over 50 percent from the field in 21 of the 28 games.

Jeff Gilbert
Tucker, GA

Gilbert, 21, was the All-Atlantic Coast Conference pitcher last season as he pitched to a 9-2 record, the best mark on the Clemson staff. In two seasons the 3.6 student has a 17-5 record and has worked over 190 innings. By the end of the season he should be in the top five in career games started and completed, innings pitched, and victories. Gilbert etched his name in the Clemson record books last March when he pitched a no-hitter against Western Carolina in a 5-0 Clemson win. He walked only two batters and faced only three over the minimum in Clemson's first no-hitter in two years.

Perry Tuttle
Winston-Salem, NC

Tuttle, 23, was a first-round draft choice of the Buffalo Bills last spring and was off to a good start in the pro ranks before the NFL strike hit. He had two receptions for 28 yards in his first game ever, including a 23-yarder that set up Buffalo's winning touchdown in a triumph over Kansas City. Tuttle finished Clemson as the school's all-time leading receiver in receptions and total yardage as he led the club in receiving for three seasons. Tuttle caught 52 passes for the national champion Tigers and had what proved to be the winning TD catch in Clemson's two biggest victories of the year, over Georgia and Nebraska.

The McGee-Robbins Scholarship

The McGee-Robbins Scholarship Fund has been established in the memory of Mr. Herman McGee and Mr. Rick Robbins, two men who dedicated great time and effort to Clemson athletics. In forty-six years of service to Clemson, McGee held numerous positions, including head trainer and equipment manager. Mr. Robbins, known to Clemson fans as "Colonel Robbins" served as "Braincoach" to Tiger athletics, taking on the position of academic advisor in 1967, after having served as an Assistant Professor of Military Science at Clemson. Both men were loved and respected by all who associated with them. In recognition of their contributions, the Clemson University chapter of Mortar Board has established the McGee-Robbins Scholarship.

Mortar Board is a senior honor society devoted to the principles of scholarship, leadership, and service to school and community. Each year Mortar Board awards the McGee-Robbins to the rising junior at Clemson who best exemplifies these ideals. To raise money for the scholarship, each year Mortar Board sponsors a drawing. This year's prizes include:

Converts on the Flanks

By Jill Mixon and Tim Bourret

It was once said, "Something worth having is worth waiting for." Senior split ends Jeff Stockstill and Frank Magwood have waited and now after three years they are ready to accept the burdens and responsibilities of starters. Both have taken similar paths to Clemson.

When Stockstill left Fernandina Beach, FL, in 1979 and came to Clemson he arrived on the scene as a quarterback. But, due to the mass quantities of freshmen quarterbacks, not to mention starting QB Billy Lott and backup Mike Gaspare, he quickly decided to change positions. "The coaches first tried me at defensive back, but I knew playing defense wasn't for me. Positions are a matter of personalities and playing defensive back is not my personality," stated Stockstill.

So Stockstill decided to settle upon the receiver position. Luckily, the change wasn't too difficult for the natural athlete. "I grew up playing all sports. Every Monday to Sunday Dad, Rick, (the former starting quarterback at Florida State) and I were out in the yard playing some sport. It didn't matter what the season was whether it was football, basketball or baseball, we were out there playing. Dad would play quarterback for both teams and Rick and I would go one on one," recalled the youngest Stockstill.

Stockstill, who was coached by his father, Joel Stockstill, at Fernandina Beach High School received the usual flack about playing because he was the coach's son. "My family may have had more of their fair share of the fans' criticism because there were two of us. Our family had recently moved to Fernandina Beach from Georgetown, Kentucky where Dad took over the head coaching job at the high school and Rick became the starting quarterback. Well, people started to talk and after he graduated and I became the quarterback they vocally protested. All the remarks bothered my mom because she sat in the stands and had to listen to them, but it didn't bother me. Things like that don't affect me," stated Stockstill.

After high school Stockstill almost followed Rick on to Florida State, but three key factors influenced Stockstill's decision to come to Clemson. "The first and foremost was that I really liked Clemson. Secondly, FSU didn't run my type of offense. Finally, I didn't want to continue to be known as Rick's little brother and I would see that happening all over again if I went to Florida State," offered Stockstill.

The 6-2, 180-pound Stockstill realized as a freshman that his best alternative would be to devote all his efforts to becoming a receiver. "I was in a hurry to see playing time and I wasn't very patient. Besides, I didn't see any future at quarterback," said Stockstill.

Since becoming a receiver Stockstill has learned a lot from his teammates. Stockstill remarked, "Tuttle (Perry) was probably the most influential teammate during my college years. I learned a lot from Perry. I'd always watch him, especially as a freshman and sophomore, and see how he handled himself. He was a great player under pressure, which I admired."

Like Stockstill, Magwood is a converted high school signal caller. In high school he accounted for 22 touchdowns, 10 rushing and 12 passing. But, even when he was a kid, he wanted to be a receiver. "When I was a kid I used to want to go out for passes. Everyone else wanted to be the quarterback, but not me. I loved to catch the ball," said Magwood, who caught a career high six passes for a career high 103 yards in the Boston College game.

This natural love for receiving has aided his dedication to the game and thus his concentration on the game. He has the best hands on the team according to Coach Ford and there is a reason why. "Concentration is the key," said Magwood. "You can't think of where you are going before you catch it. Concentrate on the pattern and on the ball and then go from there after you've got it."

This system has worked well for Magwood this year and in the past. Last season, no one will forget his 12-yard reception in the Orange Bowl after a Nebraska defensive back had tipped the ball. He still made the diving key catch that raised everyone's eyebrows.

"Frank has great hands and runs accurate routes," says receiver coach Lawson Holland. "He is not as quick as Tuttle (Perry), but he has such good hands he can make up for other problem areas. He has a good chance to make it in the pros, if he continues the way he has gone early in the season."

Magwood already compares favorably with a lot of former Clemson greats now in the pros. Believe it or not, he has already caught more career passes than the famous Dwight Clark of the San Francisco 49ers, and if he continues his current pace this year, he will surpass other Clemson greats like Joey Walters, Bennie Cunningham, Ray Yanger and Gary Barnes, all players who have made their mark in professional football.

Stockstill and Magwood have been patiently waiting in the wings behind Perry Tuttle and Jerry Gaillard for three seasons. The 1982 season has already produced dynamic exciting plays by the duo and as the season progresses this duo might rank right up there with the pair they replaced. It's been worth waiting for.

Starting receivers Frank Magwood and Jeff Stockstill both were high school quarterbacks.

PLEASE DON'T SEND ME MUCH
Dear Clemson,
I am writing to tell you how much I like your team. And I'm so happy you won the 1982 Orange Bowl. And I would like for you to send me some books, posters, stickers and maybe a pen. And please don't make me pay any money please. My name is Jamie Hayden and I'm from Hartsville, SC. I am 10 years old. Tell Homer Jordan I think he is a great quarterback.
From,
Jamie Hayden
Hartsville, SC
P.S. Please don't send me much because I don't have the money to pay.

PLANNING AHEAD
I like buy Clemson U. Tigers cap with Tigers (purple and orange) paw on it. After they won National Championship and 1982 Orange Bowl Championship they don't sell Clemson U. caps in Oklahoma City, OK. Can you help me get one? Also send me Clemson University Tigers Football Schedules 1982-83-84-85-86-87-88-89-90. Thank you. Send Clemson Tigers 1982 Base- ball Schedule too.

Thank you,

FLATTERY WILL GET YOU...
Dear Mr. McEllan,
Your the greatest in the world. Your the greatest to me. I hope to meet you. I live in Clemson for 7 years then moved here but I love the Tigers. My dream came true when they became National champs. And I really like the basketball team the most. I love to play basketball I scored 60 points in a game and made all stars and I won two Free Throw contests and I am going to the state championship. Enough about me.
Your the great one. And Clemson. I sure like Raymond Jones and Vincent Hamilton so much. There the best. And you are too. Could please if you don't mind could you please send me a picture of Raymond Jones and Vincent Hamilton and it would mean a great deal to me if you would please have them autographed. And could I have a BB. team picture. Your the greatest and please stay that way. Clemson's #1 in the whole world.
One more thing. could you please get me Raymond and Vincent's address. It is what I want mostly. It is alright with them I won't give it to anybody else. I want to write to them and tell them how great I think they are.
Sincerely,
Jimmy Jernigan
