5 Ty Davis

7 Orange Aids
No longer can a proprietor, school or entrepreneur steal the Clemson Tiger paw logo for further self enrichment or economic gain. The paw has been copyrighted and so have some other logos. Al Bynum discusses the licensing program and the building of the Orange Aids Station.

The Clemson Air Force ROTC is number-one ranked in the nation, a ranking that is deserving. And, that is number-one out of 152 units so it was no easy accomplishment. Catherine Sams tells us how they did it.

61 This Day In Tiger Football
Clemson has had many exciting games on this date in history. Sam Blackman, the athletic department’s sports historian, recounts some great games in Tiger football on November 10.

65 Mother of the Year
Each year Tiger Brotherhood honors the Clemson Mother-of-the-Year. This year another deserving person will be honored, as Mrs. Mary Cox, wife of Clemson Dean Walter Cox, is the recipient. Maria Farry talks with the Cox family about this fine Clemson lady.

97 Perry Poster Promos
William Perry’s lifesize mug adorns most of the sports departments in the country this week as the growth poster has been received in all corners of the nation. Tim Bourret reviews the events that led up to the development of the poster and interviews the originator of the idea.

102 Clemson Professionals
Clemson football players in the pro ranks are seen every Sunday on the national tube. There are many other Clemson Tigers in the pros in other sports, however, many of whom are leaders of their respective teams. Kassie Kessinger gives us a rundown on their accomplishments.

Clemson’s William Perry is known as GE, or the Refrigerator all over the country. Hopefully he will be justifiably honored at the end of the season with many post-season honors. Jim McQueen is the artist who painted this fine cover on today’s program.
Two of America's top defensive players will be on display this afternoon at Clemson Memorial Stadium when the Tigers take on Virginia Tech in the renewal of a rivalry that has been dormant for four seasons. Yardage will come as a premium, especially on the ground, as defenses led by two of the 12 finalists for the Lombardi Award will take center stage.

Seniors William Perry of Clemson and Bruce Smith of Virginia Tech have been dominant figures for their teams for the past four seasons and are reasons the Gobblers and the Tigers have lost only four games between them this season. Virginia Tech has a 30-12 record since Smith has been lining up for Bill Dooley's team and Clemson is 36-4-2 since William Perry has gotten in the four-point stance at middle guard for Clemson.

Smith and Perry have gained much notoriety this season and it comes as no surprise because they were the most decorated defensive linemen in America as juniors. Perry made five All-America teams in 1984, including the Associated Press and Football Writers first team. He has been All-ACC for two seasons and should become only the third defensive player in the history of the league to be All-ACC for three seasons.

Smith made five All-America teams last year and was first-team as chosen by the Football Coaches (Kodak) and the Newspaper Enterprise Association. He was chosen to the All-South Independent team and was his team's MVP last season.

Both have played extremely well this season, continually hassling quarterbacks and ball carriers with big plays behind the line of scrimmage. They are among the national leaders in tackles for loss per game and tackles for defensive interior linemen. Perry has 67 tackles for the season to lead Clemson in that category and has 19 for losses of 67 yards, the top figure in the nation in tackles for loss per game. Smith has 55 total tackles, including 42 unassisted tackles and he has 18 tackles for losses. He has been involved in 14 quarterback sacks, although some of those are assisted sacks.

Both have received plenty of plaudits from coaches and the media. Georgia's Vince Dooley said, "William Perry means to Clemson what Herschel Walker meant to Georgia. He can take over a football game with a big play at any time." Last season after Smith sacked Duke quarterback Ben Bennett four times he said, "Smith and I talked about my family, world affairs, just about everything. We had plenty of time to get to know each other. He spent the afternoon with me."

Both teams enter the game with winning streaks and hopes of concluding the season with a 9-2 record. Defense has been the watchword for much of the season for both clubs as Clemson has used a big play defense in clutch situations to turn things around. Virginia Tech's defense has just been steadily awesome in the last five games, allowing only 34 points in this time frame.

The Clemson defense had a fine comeback last week against Wake Forest. Danny Ford's defenders allowed only two touchdowns, one apiece in the winning sections of each half when the Tigers were playing prevent defenses with big leads. The Demon Deacons came in averaging 209 yards per game on the ground and could muster only 129 yards on the ground and less than a four-yard average. This was certainly an improvement over the week before when Clemson yielded 35 points.

But, even in the N.C. State game the defense came up with clutch plays in the fourth period to hold on to the victory. N.C. State did not cross into Clemson territory in the fourth period and Henry Walls and Reggie Pleasant continually made big tackles or broke up key passes. And, last week the big play defense was at it again, thanks to William Perry's blocked punt and 11 passes broken up by the secondary.

Virginia Tech's defense has allowed only 75.6 yards per game on the ground this year, a mark that is the best in the nation for rushing defense. Teams have picked up only 56 yards a game on the ground over the last five weeks and the opponents are scoring only 11.9 points per game. Overall, Virginia Tech is ranked nationally in the top five in rushing defense, scoring defense and total defense.

Clemson's defense does not have the lofty ratings of the Virginia Tech defense, but Clemson is in good shape nationally in its own right. Clemson is also ranked in the top 45 in the nation in scoring defense (31st), total defense (31st) and pass defense (42nd). The secondary is a much improved unit over those of past seasons and Don Denning, Clemson assistant coach, should get a lot of credit. Having four seniors back there much of the time is important too. Clemson opponents have a combined passing efficiency of 104.2 and Clemson has picked off 15 passes.

Reggie Pleasant has been on a hot streak of late. The ACC Defensive Back-of-the-Week for his performance at N.C. State, Pleasant is a former walk-on who has been all over the field knocking passes down and making key tackles. Against

N.C. State he tied a Clemson record with four passes broken up, had five tackles and three of those were of the touchdown-saving variety. Last week he had only three stops but also knocked away three passes, giving him seven in a two-game period, the most every by one player in back-to-back games. Pleasant now has 11 passes broken up for the season, only one off Terry Kinard's single season record of 12 set in 1982, the year Kinard was named Defensive Player-of-the-Year.

The Clemson defense will have to contend with some fine running backs for a team that averages 215 yards a game on the ground, almost as good as Clemson's 226 average on offense. The leading rusher for the Gobbler is starting tailback Eddie Hunter. The 5-10, 177-pounder has burst on the scene for Virginia Tech with 558 yards and a 5.3 average. He has also scored six touchdowns, just two more than his backup, Maurice Williams. The reserve is the same class as Hunter, but a little bigger at 6-0 and 203 pounds. Williams has 505 yards for the season, giving the sophomore tailbacks over 1,000 yards already this season. They have over 225 of the Gobblers' 449 carries, and overall they will carry the ball 70 percent of the time when the game is on the line.

Virginia Tech has used two quarterbacks this season, but it appears Bill Dooley has settled on junior Todd Greenwood. The 6-0, 177-pounder has completed 75 percent of his passes for 554 yards this season, a completion accuracy mark that is near Mike Eppley's figure of 58.1. Mark Cox is his backup and he has actually thrown more passes than Greenwood. Cox is 53 of 109 for 601 yards and three touchdowns, and has been injured of late.

Joe Jones, a starting tight end who is a pro prospect, has 32 catches for 362 yards. Donald Snell is the leader among the wide receivers with 17 catches for 232 yards and Terrence Howell, a wingback, has 17 catches for 219 yards.

The Clemson offense will counter with a fine receiver of its own, the ever-improving Terrance Roulhac. The sophomore is now one of the most dangerous threats in ACC with a league leading seven touchdown receptions in eight games and he is only one of two backs to have yardage over 1,000 yards through the season. Roulhac's season has already tied Tuttle's single season record. Actually, Roulhac has already tied Tuttle's record for TD receptions in a regular season, as Tuttle grabbed his last one in the Orange Bowl. That was a catch that put Tuttle on the map via Sports Illustrated.

Mike Eppley is the man who throws to Roulhac and he has returned to his consistent and reliable self this year. He is currently in 15th in the nation in passing efficiency and is now Clemson's all-time leader in touchdown passes with 25. An incredible 24 of those scores have come in Mike's last 19 games. Clemson is now 20-3-1 with Eppley as the starting quarterback and he has now led Clemson to a perfect 11-0-1 record against "Big Four" schools in his career. Now that is something a player from Charlotte, NC can hang his hat on.

There is plenty for this senior class to hang its hat on, but they must continue to win to retain their number-one ranking across the country. A comparison of school winning percentages across the country shows that Clemson has a .36-4-2 record over the last four season, the best mark in the nation. But, one slip-up will move Clemson down the list as Georgia, Nebraska and others are waiting to move into the number-one slot.

Playing the position of cornerback on a nationally recognized team is a pressured filled role, but Clemson's Ty Davis has all the corners covered. So often, a student-athlete finds it is difficult playing football and going to school away from home but not Ty Davis, as he has not cut any corners in his college career. He has gone away from home to experience college life to the fullest.

Just as a defensive back needs to be alert in a game so must a prospective student-athlete in making the wise choice for a college. As an Athens, GA native, one may think it was hard for Davis to come to Clemson, but it was not a difficult decision for the senior starter. "When I was growing up I was a Georgia fan, because I lived only a mile and a half from the campus, but, when I was a high school student I decided I wanted to go away to college. I wanted to play for a school that would play against Georgia and see how my friends would react. I also wanted to be away from home and be a real college student."

His friends reacted positively to his playing for Clemson as they are supportive of him 100%. "My friends still back me. They like to see me do well." Davis also credits his mother with helping make the choice of what college to attend. "She did not want me to go too far away from home, but far enough that I could be on my own. My mother has always been a big factor in my life. She has taught me to do things right and aim for the top."

Davis is not the first native of Athens to play for Clemson. More recently Homer Jordan started the Athens connection as he starred for Clemson in the 1979-82 seasons, during which time he led the Tigers to the 1981 National Championship. Coincidentally, Davis and Jordan were good friends growing up. "I've known Homer for a long time. We played little league football together and attended the same high school. I played behind Homer at quarterback and learned a great deal from him. We lived two blocks away from each other and we used to play a lot a sandlot football while growing up. I used to go over to his house and play ping-pong."

Davis was a high school standout at Cedar Shoals High School. He set records there for the most interceptions in a single game and in a season. He lettered three years in basketball and football and lettered in track twice.

Since arriving at Clemson, Davis has made his presence known as he has been a three-year starter at Clemson but he missed the 1981 national championship year because of a knee injury. "It was hard on me and bothered me missing the national championship year, but I worked hard to come back for the next season." The extra work paid off for 1982, because he received his first starting role that year. "I felt good about getting the start but I was real nervous." The nervousness soon wore off as he performed well in this outing as he had seven tackles against Western Carolina.

The 1983 season saw Davis lead the team in interceptions with four and turned in an outstanding performance against Georgia when he had four tackles, broke up two passes and caused a fumble. Davis likes to play Georgia. "Being from Athens motivates me to play better against Georgia, but playing any rival helps me play better."

Preparing for Georgia or any other game is a major concern for Davis. "I watch film of the other opponent and prepare myself mentally and physically during the week. You can't wait until Friday to prepare for them."

Over the past few years Davis has played with many outstanding stars, including Terry Kinard and Rod McSwain. "Terry and Rod were great motivators for me. They set good examples for me to follow." But Davis is rapidly moving up to the level of those current NFL players. Defensive back coach Don Denning said, "He does an excellent job for us. He has the physical and natural ability of a great defensive back. He has excellent hands and is a hard hitter. We feel confident having him play left corner back. It will be interesting to see how he does in the pros because several pro scouts have shown an interest in him."

Davis also has his future plans covered. "If playing professionally falls through, I will follow my major of textile technology and start a career in the Athens or Atlanta area. Clemson has given me a great education. While playing football and going to school, you go through a lot of changes. It makes you a whole person. Although it is tough, it has been worth it."

Even though this is Davis' last season at Clemson it has been a fun place for him. "Touching Howard's rock and running down the hill is something you can't describe, you have to be there. It is fun playing before 80,000 fans."

As you watch Davis today covering his man closely, also remember that he has the challenge of life covered as well, with a sound future that has no chance of being intercepted.
OUR CENTERS ARE SMALLER & FASTER.

Our hubs let us offer quick connections. And bring new service to cities that need it.

PIEDMONT AIRLINES
Winning the national championship in 1981 brought more than just recognition to Clemson University. It also brought the responsibilities and opportunities that an unprecedented interest in Tiger sports generated. As a result, the Clemson athletic department added two new concepts to its already successful marketing program - a licensing system and the recently opened Orange Aids Station.

As soon as the Tigers sewed up their national championship, an unexpected problem began to develop. "Clemson items became more popular than ever," said Assistant A.D. for Marketing Allison Dalton, "and, we had no control of the situation. We knew something had to be done to ensure that the influx of products maintained some standard of quality."

Ironically, it was about that time that former Tennessee coach Bill Battle, representing Golden Eagle Enterprises, approached Dalton. Already the licensor for the University of Alabama, Golden Eagle Enterprises wanted to provide the same services to Clemson. After about six months of negotiations, an agreement was reached and the licensing process began to take shape.

"The first step was to register the logos," said Dalton. "Golden Eagle was associated with a patent law firm in the Washington, D.C. area, who helped us begin the applications process in early 1982. Our first approval came in June of this year, and we now have 13 logos registered."

The licensing program is designed to ensure quality in goods bearing one of the registered trademarks. Golden Eagle Enterprises, which has since merged with International Collegiate Enterprises and is now known as Collegiate Concepts, Inc., administers the program and the paperwork. They first send a contract agreement to an interested manufacturer for his signature. After agreeing to the terms of the arrangement, the manufacturer must send a product sample to Clemson. There the product must be reviewed by the Product Approval Committee, made up of a representative from each of five bodies: the bookstore, IPTAY, the athletic department, the alumni office, and the administration.

The Product Approval Committee looks for the quality of the product and proper use of the logo. If an item is derogatory towards another school or in poor taste, it will be rejected.

Assuming the product is approved, the manufacturer sends a commission from his sales to Collegiate Concepts, which forwards the proceeds to Clemson. Without the use of an agent, Dalton estimates that the athletic department would have needed two additional employees to handle the program.

Although Clemson was the second school to enter into the licensing agreement, Collegiate Concepts now represents 65 schools. When Clemson initiated the program, the other conference schools were critical. It is interesting to note that - as was the case with the colored football uniform pants - the others in the ACC have followed suit.

Another marketing development at Clemson concerns the Orange Aids Station. "It is really an extension of the bookstore," says manager James Sparks. "It is just a part of our effort to serve Clemson fans, students, and alumni better. Most of the other schools in the country are doing the same thing, but we are unique because our store is at the stadium."

"Game days are really something. We have really had good crowds. We expect anywhere from one-third to one-half of our yearly sales to occur on football Saturdays. In addition, we will be open before and after basketball games to serve customers."

The new store has 6,000 square feet of space, housing products ranging from sweatshirts to golf balls. Anything you can imagine having to do with Clemson is there, with one notable exception - there are no more William Perry lifesize posters, and no more will be ordered. But if you will settle for any other poster, you are in luck.

Selling Clemson is easy, but marketing Clemson products is complex. It is for this reason that Allison Dalton and James Sparks are working so hard. So, no matter how uncurable your appetite for Clemson memorabilia, the athletic department is looking out for you.

YOU DON'T GET TO THE TOP BY JUST PLAYING GAMES.

It takes hard work and a lot of practice. And it takes a commitment to being the best. The kind of commitment Clemson students, faculty and alumni have also brought to their positions on the Stevens team throughout the years.

Students filling jobs in nearby plants. Faculty providing continuing education and valuable research. And alumni in management roles.

For years we've worked together to create quality fabrics. Having Clemson on our side has helped keep us at the top, too.

STEVENS
J.P. Stevens & Co., Inc.
Clemson President Bill L. Atchley has an impressive list of credentials and accomplishments. He is also known as a very down-to-earth, plainspoken individualist. In one of his frequent banquet introductions, he was recently described this way: “This man is an aggressive administrator, a supersalesman, an innovative educator, and a talker of good plain common sense.”

Since coming here in 1979, Bill Atchley has steered Clemson on a steady course toward becoming one of the Southeast’s preeminent universities. Under his leadership Clemson is also making great strides in developing practical science and technology and adapting it for the good of all South Carolina. But in talking about what has been done at Clemson in the past five years, Bill Atchley always puts the emphasis on “we”, not “me.” And here is some of what Clemson has accomplished during the Atchley tenure:

- launched strategic planning to develop “centers of excellence,” academic programs where Clemson will aim for a national reputation.
- obtained a $1 million Center for VLSI Reliability Research, making Clemson the nation’s headquarters for reliability research on “very large scale integrated circuits,” a key component of the so-called “supercomputers” of the future.
- established the $1 million Abney Chair of Free Enterprise in the College of Commerce and Industry.
- established the Engineering Center for Automated Manufacturing Technology to study robotics and other automation technology.
- established the S.C. Energy Research and Development Center.
- established the Energy and Resource Development Institute, which investigates the management and development of energy resources in the entire Southeast.
- joined with the S.C. Research Authority to create a 210-acre research park near campus to attract high technology industries.
- unveiled plans for the Strom Thurmond Center, a $25 million complex that will contain a performing arts building, a continuing education center, and an institute of government and public affairs.
- launched a multi-year, multi-million-dollar project called “Challenge to Greatness” to raise funds to bolster academic programs and enhance the University’s total educational experience.

Also during this period the 15,000-seat upper deck project for the north stand in Memorial Stadium got the nod, and despite four years of one of the nation’s worst recessions, Clemson University with Bill Atchley at the helm has raised $18.3 million in private funds for academic programs and boosted the assets of the Clemson Foundation from $3.4 million to $10.3 million.

A Missouri native, Bill Atchley has an ideal background to lead Clemson — a unique blend of education and experience. He holds B.S. and M.S. degrees in civil engineering from the University of Missouri and an engineering doctorate from Texas A&M. He spent 23 extremely successful years as a college professor, administrator, and engineering dean at the University of Missouri and at West Virginia University before coming to Clemson in 1979. He still owns and oversees operation of a productive 500-acre farm near his birthplace in southern Missouri.

Clemson’s president is well-known for his work in the energy field. He was chairman of the Governor’s Commission on Energy, Economy and Environment in West Virginia and has served as science and energy advisor to five governors in three states. He holds national-level appointments on the Committee on Fossil Fuels of the U.S. Department of Energy and on the board of directors of the Great Plains Coal Gasification Project, which has federal loan guarantees of $1 billion. At WVU he directed a group that brought a $24 million “fluidized bed” research facility to that campus, and he led a West Virginia business team whose efforts resulted in the selection of the Morgantown area for a $700 million coal conversion plant. He also managed to find time to serve as budget officer for a $63 million Personal Rapid Transit System.

From 1966 to 1975 at the University of Missouri-Rolla, Bill Atchley was the coordinator and liaison between the engineering school and inner-city projects in St. Louis. He also developed the program for the school’s doctor of engineering degree, and he designed its professional development degree.

President Atchley has received many honors stemming from his work in engineering and higher education. He is in Who’s Who in Engineering Education and is a member of the Academy of Sciences and Outstanding Educators of America. His publications show him to be a leader in assessing society’s needs and determining how education can best help the nation and the world.

At one time or another he has been a town alderman, a Rotarian, Chamber of Commerce director, Lions Club member, and local council director for the Boy Scouts of America. He has been chairman of the American Society of Engineering Education in the Midwest, chairman of the Council of Presidents for all public colleges and universities in South Carolina, and is on the board of directors of the American Federal Savings Bank. He is the only college president in America serving on the prestigious U.S. International Sports Committee, whose members include three professional sports commissioners, the president of the American Baseball League and U.S. Olympic Committee, and the publisher of Time magazine.

An active sports enthusiast, Bill Atchley has a superior knowledge of athletics. His expertise is especially proficient in baseball. Before his college days and a stint in the Army, he spent two years as a professional baseball pitcher for the former New York Giants organization. He is one educator who understands intimately the concept of the student-athlete. He himself was an athlete who attended college on an athletic scholarship, yet he recognizes that the role of a university is to build character and to increase knowledge and intellectual abilities in students.

President Atchley and his wife, the former Pat Limbaugh, have three children. Julie is a 26-year-old graduate of Southeast Missouri University and is a special education teacher in the St. Louis school system. Pam, 22, was graduated from Clemson with a degree in engineering last May, while David, 18, is a freshman at Wofford College.

Athletic Director
Bill McLellan

No major university that stresses academic achievement by student-athletes as Clemson does has had a more dynamic, aggressive and forceful impact on the Atlantic Coast Conference and on national intercollegiate athletics in the last 14 years.

That success, across-the-board, in all sports and in the development of funding for a self-sustaining athletic program, parallels the administration of Bill McLellan as athletic director at Clemson University. Working his way up through the ranks after joining the Tiger athletic staff in May 1958, McLellan took on the task of running the whole show in February 1971. Since then the sports information people have not had the luxury of consistently using file photos or existing text material to depict the Clemson athletic complex. At Jervey Athletic Center nothing is more consistent than change.

Brick and mortar, additions to facilities, aesthetic improvements, innovative funding techniques, new ideas and fulfilled dreams have kept writers and cameramen busy chronicling the astigmatic success and growth of Clemson athletics.

In 1971, as McLellan charted a course for athletic excellence, IPTAY was providing $400,000 annually for scholarships. Today it is reaching $5 million a year for athletic and academic enrichment. As Executive Director of IPTAY, McLellan insists that his fund raisers maintain an endowment to assure that all commitments to Clemson athletes who wear the orange and white are met.

He has blended private support, gate receipts and consortium with state banks to make Clemson Memorial Stadium the showplace for a national football champion. Soccer, baseball, tennis, swimming, track, and wrestling all have facilities that others seek to emulate. In Littlejohn Coliseum, NCAA and NIT banners proudly proclaim that excellence in the two major revenue sports, football and basketball, can coexist. In all, Clemson competes in 17 NCAA Division I programs — 11 men’s and 6 women’s — and conference titles, as well as national ranking are growing consistently in number. Record crowds watch the Tigers in action personally and millions more see the excitement of paw power on regional and national television.

Bill McLellan’s theory for success is simple ... “the Clemson family.” He asserts that those who care for this Institution — alumni, friends, business and industry — can accomplish any task, meet any goal so long as they pull together in the best interest of Clemson University.

The pace he sets belie his 52 years, but his wife, Ann, will attest to his busy schedule that allows few opportunities for an afternoon on the lake, a family gathering or a quiet evening at home. But there’s not a closer “Clemson family” than Bill and Ann Rogers McLellan, daughter Susy, a Winthrop alumna, Cliff and Bill, Clemson grads and Arch Anna, now a senior at Winthrop.

A native of Hamer, SC and a Dillon football recruit of Frank Howard, McLellan earned two football letters at Clemson and was on the 1952 Gator Bowl team. He earned his bachelors degree in 1954 and added a masters in agricultural economics in 1956. In June 1982 the Clemson University Alumni Association recognized him with the highest honor it can bestow — the Clemson Alumni Distinguished Service Award. Bill McLellan, an AD’s AD who sees the forest and the trees at the same times.
Last year, ARA served thousands of meals to people away from home. College students, hospital staffs, industrial personnel. Why, right here in Clemson, ARA serves over 15,000 breakfasts, lunches and dinners to students, parents and faculty daily.

But you may not know our full story. ARA chooses only the freshest and most wholesome ingredients. Bright, crisp vegetables. Ripe, firm fruits. The choicest meats and dairy products. Ingredients that are chopped, steamed, broiled, baked and blended into luscious menus. For banquets or birthdays. Cocktail parties or tailgate feasts. In your home or in one of our private dining rooms in the Clemson House. No matter what your special occasion, ARA can fill the bill of fare.

So the next time your calendar is marked with a red letter day... call ARA for that special service.

We'll cater to your every need.

Head Coach
Danny Ford

What do Oklahoma's Barry Switzer, Penn State's Joe Paterno, Nebraska's Tom Osborne, Clemson's Danny Ford and Michigan's Bo Schembechler all have in common? Sure, they're all head football coaches in Division I colleges, but there is one other thing that puts these men above the other 98 head coaches in Division I-A schools.

When it comes to winning football games, they are the nation's five best, and it seems only fitting that Clemson's own Danny Ford would be ranked fourth on that list. After just six years as Clemson's head coach, Ford has a .793 winning percentage.

Ford and the Tigers have also won 91.2 percent of their games over the past three seasons, the best three-year record in the nation and the best three-year record in Clemson history.

And the achievements continue. The Tigers have totally dominated the ACC, winning their last 19 games against conference foes. Only Nebraska can claim three straight seasons of undefeated play against its conference teams.

It's no wonder to Clemson fans that Ford has been ranked as one of the nation's best coaches. The 36-year-old Gadsden, AL, native came to Clemson in January, 1977, as assistant head coach and offensive line coach under the then head coach Charley Pell. Then December 10, 1978, Pell relinquished the head coaching duties of the 1978 Gator Bowl to Ford, and since that time the Tigers have compiled a 45-11-2 record.

But Ford did not discover his winning attitude at Clemson; he brought it with him. Including his years as a player at Alabama under the late Bear Bryant, he has been associated with college football for the last 18 years. Fourteen of those clubs have had winning records and 11 have gone to bowl games. Additionally, the 18 teams have had a record of 124-47-3, a .720 winning percentage.

Ford came to Clemson and promptly led the Tigers to their first ever national championship in 1981 — the pinnacle in college football. He was deservedly named national Coach of the Year by United Press International, Station WTBS in Atlanta, Pigskin Club of Washington, American Football Coaches Association, Washington Touchdown Club, Columbus (Ohio) Touchdown Club, Atlanta Touchdown Club and Football Writers Association of America. He was also the youngest coach (33) ever to take a team to the National Championship.

Since that time the Tigers have posted a winning percentage of .912, losing only two games in three years. Crowds filled Death Valley so often to watch Clemson defeat teams during the last six years that the stadium has been enlarged twice and is now the nation's tenth largest stadium and South Carolina's largest, seating 78,915.

With this list of accomplishments, it is easy to see that the Clemson University Board of Trustees was right when announcing that Ford should take the reins of head coach six years ago. The Board's Student Affairs Committee considered only one name for the job and after two meetings between Ford and the committee on the morning of December 5, 1978, it was the unanimous opinion of the committee that Ford should be named as Clemson's 21st head coach. Nearly 40 years after hiring 31-year-old Frank Howard, Clemson had hired a gifted 30-year-old Alabama graduate to lead the Tiger forces on the gridiron.

Ford began his association with college football in 1967 when he started for Bear Bryant at Ken Stabler's sophomore tight end. He played three years for Bryant (including three wins against Clemson) and was an All-Southeastern Conference choice, All-SEC academic selection and team captain during his senior season.

After receiving his B.S. degree in industrial arts in 1970, Ford remained at Alabama as a graduate assistant for the 1970 and 1971 seasons. Upon earning a master's degree in special education in 1971, he was made a full-time assistant under Bryant for the 1972 and 1973 seasons. The Tide went to four more post-season games while Ford was on the staff.

Ford then accepted a position as an assistant coach on Jimmy Sharp's staff at Virginia Tech. He remained in Blacksburg for three seasons (1974-1976), before he came to Clemson under Charley Pell, who had just been named the Tigers' head coach. Pell and Ford had served together on the VPI staff for two seasons.

And only 23 games later, Ford became head coach of the Tigers at age 30, the youngest Division I head coach in the nation, and went on to prove that age has nothing to do with experience or winning.

In Times Like These, How Do You Keep Businesses Going, Farms Growing, Wheels Turning, Kids Learning, Teams Competing, And Ends Meeting?

It takes work. And careful planning. But you can do the things you need to do. Make it a good life for yourself and the people you love. Make it an even better, brighter future. And you don't have to do it alone.

We'll help. With all the banking services you need. Whether you're just starting out with your first job, first home, first baby, or you're already established and looking for ways to make the most of what you've accomplished.

But there's more to it than just providing the services you need now. There's the promise that we'll grow with you. Refining services to help you cope with change. Developing new ones to help you get ahead.

So you can come to C&S. And stay with C&S. Like thousands of folks all across South Carolina. They're still building, growing, and achieving, despite the up and down, round and round times we live in.

But that doesn't come as a surprise. After all, every one of them is a Financial Wizard.

Assistant Coaches

Don Denning is in his fourth season with the Clemson staff. The deep secondary coach and north Georgia recruiter joined the Tigers on July 1, 1981. He has previously served Western Carolina as defensive coordinator and assistant athletic director, Memphis State as assistant head coach, and Delta State University as head coach. Denning graduated from Presbyterian College in 1960 and received a master's degree from Western Carolina in 1969.

Tom Harper, the Tigers' assistant head coach, came to Clemson from Virginia Tech's coaching staff on Feb. 2, 1981. The native of Piqua, OH served as the defensive coordinator for Virginia Tech, North Carolina, Iowa State and Wake Forest, where he was head coach in 1972. Harper graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1955 and received his master's degree at the same school in 1958. Eight of his former players have signed pro contracts in the last three years.

Les Herrin has coached the Tiger linebackers for the past three years. He is also responsible for recruiting the lower part of South Carolina. He joined the staff on Feb. 9, 1981 from Appalachian State where he was defensive coordinator. The 1971 Western Carolina graduate captained the Catamounts in 1970 and was named the team's MVP in 1971.

Lawson Holland was a reserve quarterback for the Tigers from 1970-73, which makes him the only current coach who played Clemson football. In his seventh year, Holland is in charge of receivers and recruiting Virginia, Washington, D.C., and central North Carolina. The Mooresville, N.C., native earned his B.A. in secondary education from Clemson in 1975.

Woody McCorvey is the newest member of the Tiger coaching staff, he is in his second year of coaching the tight ends. He came to Clemson from Alabama A&M where he was the defensive coordinator for four years. The 1972 Alabama State graduate lettered four years in football at the school before earning his physical education degree. He then received a masters degree in health, leisure and sports from the University of West Florida in 1977.

Chuck Reedy has coached Clemson's running backs for the last six years. The St. Augustine, FL, native also recruits for the Tigers in southeast South Carolina, south Georgia and Florida. He earned two letters in football from Appalachian State where he graduated in 1971 with a degree in health and physical education. He came to Clemson from Kentucky on July 5, 1978.

Nelson Stokley has been the Tigers' offensive coordinator for the past four years. He came to Clemson on January 18, 1980 after serving as offensive coordinator for Virginia Tech. The 1968 graduate of LSU was the school's starting quarterback from 1965-67 and then served the fine southern institution as an assistant coach from 1968-75.

Larry Van Der Heyden has coached some fine offensive linemen during his five years at Clemson and is a major reason why the Tigers' ground game has been so successful. The offensive line coach joined the staff on January 5, 1979 from Memphis State where he was offensive coordinator for three years. He has also served stints at Iowa State, Drake, Indiana State, East Carolina and Virginia. He earned his B.A. and masters degrees at Iowa State and lettered three years in football and baseball.

Tommy West coaches the defensive ends and recruits middle and south Georgia for the Tigers. He is in his third year at Clemson, he came from Appalachian State University on July 10, 1982. The Gainesville, GA, native earned his B.S. degree in health education from the University of Tennessee in 1975 after lettering three years in football and baseball for the Volunteers. A fine all-around athlete, he was drafted out of high school by baseball's Chicago Cubs.

IPTAY

IPTAY has begun the second 50 years of a long and successful journey. From a very modest beginning in 1934 with only 162 members, this athletic scholarship fund-raising group has grown into 20,000 loyal Tiger supporters. IPTAY is recognized as the “Number-One” group of its kind in America. But what is behind the success of IPTAY?

The reason is people — people who are committed to a successful program at Clemson University, both on and off the field. Professors, athletes, administrators, managers, trainers, alumni, and friends all play a part in this success. The results which have been produced are something we can all be proud of in this search for excellence at Clemson University.

The on-going search for excellence in the academic area at Clemson University has resulted in the awarding of the Fulbright Scholarship for graduates to study overseas to 5 of 6 Clemson applicants. In addition, a Guggenheim Scholarship was awarded to another Clemson graduate. Of the 320 valedictorians in South Carolina high schools, over 120 were accepted to Clemson University. Furthermore, a building program is being instituted on campus that will include a new chemistry building, as well as the expansion of several other departments.

That search for excellence is further exemplified by the efforts of the 20,000 IPTAY members who contributed to the total of $5.1 million in 1983. These monies enabled over 440 athletes, managers, and trainers to receive scholarship aid to attend Clemson.

These athletes also have the strong commitment to excellence that Clemson supporters both deserve and desire. The Tiger football team has the best three-year record in college football at 30-2-2. Soccer, men’s cross country, women’s cross country, baseball, men’s tennis, and women’s tennis were all Top 20 teams, while men’s cross country, women’s and men’s tennis were conference champions in 1983-84. Swimming and wrestling enjoyed their best seasons ever. There were 13 All-Americans and 56 all-conference performers competing for Clemson, in addition to the 18 athletes that qualified for the Olympic trials. There is no doubt that Clemson athletics enjoyed one of its best years ever.

IPTAY certainly was a major reason for these accomplishments. But, what is IPTAY other than scholarships? And, how has Clemson University benefited from these 50 years of service? The Clemson IPTAY Club has a board of directors led by President Bill Reaves, Vice President Lawrence Starkey, and Secretary-Treasurer Jim Patterson. Under the direction of these men, the main purpose of IPTAY continues to be raising monies for athletic scholarships. Thanks to the foresight of Athletic Director Bill McLellan and the support of the Board of Directors, many improvements have taken place on campus which are of benefit, not only to athletes and fans of athletics, but to the academic area of our University as well.

Specific areas of improvement include installing lights on Riggs Field; building a new baseball facility, with lights to be added in 1985; funding Tiger Band travel; funding the annual Sport and Society Symposium; donating over $200,000 to the President’s Fund; and developing the East Beach area enjoyed by all Clemson students.

The attitude of Clemson people, especially those associated with IPTAY, is that “success is a journey, not a destination.” The search for excellence continues at Clemson and, thanks to the continued support of 20,000 IPTAY supporters, the excellence in athletics will continue. As IPTAY begins the second 50 years of service to Clemson, one may wonder what the future holds. According to Joe Turner, Executive Secretary of IPTAY, “the love, sincerity, and support of the Clemson people give a unique quality to Clemson. It is for this reason the success the Tigers now enjoy will continue.”

After 22 consecutive years of record-breaking support, there is no doubt that Clemson will remain “NUMBER ONE.”

Thank you, IPTAY.

For the fifth time in the last six years the Clemson all-around sports program has been ranked in the top 10 in the nation. The survey, conducted by the Knoxville Journal, takes into account national rankings in selected sports. Women's sports are not included in this poll, which has been in existence since 1971.

This poll is a good index of the rise of Clemson athletics over the years. The Tigers were first ranked in the survey in 1975-76 with a number-20 finish. In the 1978-79 poll, Clemson climbed to fourth, and in 1979-80 gained a number-three ranking, the school's highest ever. Three years ago Clemson was fourth and in 1981-82 the Tigers picked up the number-five rating.

Last year five Clemson sports were top 20 teams, headed by the cross country team's number-four rating. The ranking was the highest recorded by the Tiger harriers, and Coach Stan Narewski was rewarded with National Co-Coach-of-the-Year honors. The Clemson football and soccer teams were 11th in final polls, which gave Clemson the lead in the poll after the fall. But tennis and golf were Clemson's only top 20 teams thereafter.

Lady Tiger teams also had a good year. The women's cross country team was seventh nationally, while the women's tennis team was 15th in the final poll.

You can use Marvess® Olefin yarn for more fabrics than you thought...

As the most extensive product line in terms of colors and deniers, Phillips Marvess olefin multifilament yarn sets the standard for the upholstery industry. But this technically superior yarn also has a wide variety of other fabric applications.

Fabrics for window curtains, shower curtains, drapes, mattress ticking, indoor/outdoor furniture covering, bedspreads. The list goes on and on.

So do the benefits of using this strong, yet lightweight yarn. For example, Marvess olefin has the lowest specific gravity of any fiber, which reduces the number of ends and picks needed per square inch. Thus it produces more yards per pound of fabric. And that means big savings to you.

Our non-allergenic, fade-resistant yarn also has extremely low moisture absorption, so less energy is required in the drying process—which means additional savings. And because of its high strength, wet or dry, fabrics don't need to be overconstructed.

Last, but certainly not least, Phillips Fibers has the largest plant capacity in the U.S. devoted exclusively to producing textile olefin filament yarns for the home furnishings industry. And the price is competitive, but then, that's what you'd expect from one of the performance companies.

For more information and service that's second to none, contact Olefin Fibers Marketing, Phillips Fibers Corporation, P.O. Box 66, Greenville, SC 29602. Call: 803/242-6600.

Clemson Visitors Center Offers Front Door to Campus

For visitors to Clemson University, the new Visitors Center offers recreational information, travel and entertainment directions and, most importantly, an introduction to the state's land-grant university, all in an atmosphere of orange carpet hospitality. For those who are considering investing the next few years of their lives in the university, the center, with its audio-visual displays, guided tours and numerous services, is a priceless source of information and orientation.

Located in historic Tillman Hall, at the gateway to the university, the center is the first stop for tourists as well as prospective students and their families. It provides information on everything from university programs and student life to recreational activities, travel directions and shopping.

"The university has needed a focal point for visitor information services for a long time," says John Allen, director of Clemson's visitor programs.

The Visitors Center has met that need. Since opening in June, the center has served more than 1,300 people from 33 states and seven foreign countries. And each person has gotten his full share of Clemson hospitality.

"Every visitor represents a new opportunity to let people know about the university and what it means to South Carolina and this region," Allen says.

Staffing the center are Janis Moore, manager, and Joy Skelton, assistant manager. Both know the Clemson area well.

The Moore family lived in Clemson for five years during the 1960s when Janis' father was head of the civil engineering department. After graduating from Clemson in 1967, Janis earned a master's of English from the University of Virginia in 1970. Last fall she left a teaching career in Virginia to become manager of the Visitors Center.

Joy Skelton graduated from Clemson in 1981 with a bachelor's degree in political science. After graduation, she served in positions with the Registrar's Office and the IPTAY Office before becoming the Visitors Center's assistant manager.

Campus tours conducted by the professional staff and the student University Guide Service branch out from the new center to explore Clemson's numerous landmarks, such as Fort Hill, home of John C. Calhoun and university founder Thomas Green Clemson.

Visitors also can see Hanover House, the 18th century home of French Huguenot Paul de St. Julien. Originally constructed in Berkeley County in 1716, the house was rebuilt on the Clemson campus in 1941.

Tours also include Memorial Stadium, the largest college football facility east of the Mississippi. And for visitors who would rather relax in the grass and enjoy the scenery, the horticulture gardens feature 70 acres of ornamental azaleas, camellias, wildflowers and natural wonders along numerous foot trails.

Self-guided audio-cassette tours are provided by the Visitors Center and specialized group tours of the university, Calhoun Mansion and Hanover House are available upon request.

"We want the center to be the front door to the campus," says Allen. "And we want it known that our door is always open."
Clemson University has established a licensing program to protect the use of the University's name and insignias. Our proud heritage has created a demand by University students, fans, and alumni for products bearing the name and logos of our University to show their allegiance.

Our program is designed to protect the quality and integrity of products bearing the name and registered marks of our institution. Formal procedures for approval of products, artwork, and quality control of merchandise is in place.

We urge you to look for and buy officially Licensed Collegiate Products. A hang tag should be attached to all merchandise that has been approved by our University. We need and appreciate your cooperation.

If you have any questions or comments concerning this program, please contact Mr. R. Allison Dalton, P.O. Box 31, Clemson, S.C. 29633 or telephone (803) 656-2213.

Twenty-five years from now you will probably still be able to flip through the Clemson record book and read his unending list of accomplishments. The record book will state that William Perry became Clemson's first sophomore All-American in history in 1982 and that he repeated the honor in 1983, (with the 1984 team yet to be named). It will say he broke Jim Stuckey's all-time record for most quarterback sacks and Randy Scott's record for most tackles for loss in a career in 1984. And, that he was leading the nation in tackles for loss per game with a 2.38 average, eight games into his senior year.

But, the one thing that the record book will overlook is William Perry's devotion as a husband. Defensive line coach Tom Harper put it best, "On the field he always knows his responsibilities. When he misses an assignment it's only due to the fact that he has over compensated in order to help his teammates. He constantly rises to the occasion. And, off the field he is also outstanding. He's a model husband and father. He even helps his wife Sherry with the household chores whenever he can. As a matter of fact, she may even be the real boss of the family," commented Harper. Can you imagine being the boss of the family when the man of the house is 6-3, 320?

The life of the William Perry family (William, Sherry, and two-year-old daughter Latavia Shenique) is similar to the lives of other married Clemson students with a child. The Perrys live in a modest married housing duplex complete with Latavia's swingset in the backyard. As head of the household William has responsibilities like any other husband for maintaining the yard and the house, and tending to the well being of his family, in addition to school work. And, yes William and Sherry have to find a babysitter just like everybody else when they want to go out for the evening.

But, there's one major difference between the Perry family and Clemson's typical married student family, William Perry is one of the top defensive football players in the country. When the typical student leaves class in the afternoon to go home for study or relaxation, and time with his family, William Perry's day has just begun. After classes each day Perry must spend approximately three to four hours with football related activities, such as team meetings, watching film, taping and dressing, and practice. With such a hectic pace one might wonder how he handles all the demands.

"When we were first married (March 1982) William's football took a lot of time away from our marriage," recalled Sherry Perry. "But, now William has a perfect balance of family, football, and school. It even helps me that he has football practice to go to in the afternoons. I enjoy spending time with Latavia when William is at practice. And, I'm able to get most of the housework and meal preparation done at that time."

Wives, can you imagine preparing meals for a 6-3, 320-pound husband? "William definitely eats a lot. Right now he's supposed to be on a diet, and I'm having a hard time making him stick to it. Last night I fixed a pot roast, string beans, potatoes, and cornbread for dinner and two hours later he was hungry and wanted a snack. Sometimes I'll go by and pick up fried chicken for dinner. Normally I'll get a three-piece dinner for Latavia and me, and seven or eight pieces just for William."

William's pride and joy is daughter Latavia. Sherry said, "I've never seen a man take up so much time with a child. He loves to get her all fixed up with a pretty new dress and ribbons in her hair and take his little girl for a walk. William just loves to show her off. From the time she was born though, he's been buying her little boy toys. I have to keep reminding him that she's a little girl. William bought her a battery operated truck that she can ride around in, and she spends most of the time in it chasing William or me around in the backyard."

Although Latavia is too young to know what a big star her Daddy is, she's not totally in the dark about his football career. When William and Sherry rolled out the lifesize poster of William for her, Latavia went running towards it smiling, laughing, and saying, "Daddy, Daddy!" She knows exactly what number her Daddy is too. When asked, Latavia responds "Six, six." But, her best line of all is her answer to the question, "What does your Daddy do?" Her response, "Daddy plays football practice."
The phrase that might best describe the outlook for the 1984-85 Clemson basketball fortunes is, "A New Lease on Life". Last year the Tigers raced to 7-0 and 11-2 records with a full complement of healthy players. But, by season's end eight different players had collectively missed 40 games and the Tigers missed post-season play with a 14-14 record.

Since that time most of the players have healed and a new head coach, Cliff Ellis, has come on the scene to give Clemson fans reason for optimism in 1984-85. Four starters and seven lettermen are back to give the first-year coach a good nucleus for Tiger basketball at the mid-point of the decade of the eighties. The former South Alabama mentor brings youthful enthusiasm and an up-tempo style of play that has Clemson supporters excited about returning to post-season play.

"Basically our system puts a high priority on fast-break basketball," said Ellis, who won over 70 percent of his games at South Alabama. "We use a pressure defense to create fast-break opportunities and we have been successful with this style of play.

"I think we have the players to fit into this style of play and I am excited to see what they can do when we start practice. Vincent Hamilton, Chris Michael and Warren Wallace are veteran players who are excited about this style of play and I think they can help us to a lot of victories with the up-tempo style.

"It is going to take a lot of hard work and discipline, however. I am a firm believer that those areas are the keys to a successful program. We will work very hard defensively from day one because I believe in a lot of changing defenses that can create fast-break opportunities."

THE BACKCOURT

The leader of the Clemson backcourt and of the entire team is senior All-ACC candidate Vincent Hamilton. Now in his fifth season with the Tigers (he missed 1982-83 with a broken wrist), Hamilton is destined to finish among the Clemson career leaders in many categories. His current rankings detail his all-around abilities: 11th in scoring, sixth in assists, 22nd in rebounding and third in field goal percentage.

The 6-4 wing guard from Rutherfordton, NC has been a mainstay in the Clemson lineup since his freshman year when he started the last 22 games of the season. A career 54 percent field goal shooter, Hamilton is one of the most consistent players in Clemson history with 59 double figure scoring games already to his credit. Five times he has been an all-tournament selection.

Joining Hamilton in the backcourt among the returnees are a pair of prep school teammates who, like Hamilton, are from North Carolina. Chris Michael was fourth on the Clemson team in scoring a year ago as a wing guard or small forward. He will operate in both areas this year. The 6-5 swift athlete scored 7.5 points an outing a year ago and shot 46 percent from the field. Michael finished the year strong by hitting 60 percent from the field over the last six contests and he had a higher scoring average in ACC games than he did in non-league contests.

Warren Wallace was a teammate of Michael's at Fork Union Academy in 1981-82 and the duo has started together in the Clemson lineup off and on for the last two years. Wallace started eight of the last nine games at point guard a year ago after starting 20 games at the wing guard during 1982-83 when Hamilton was injured. Wallace, a native of Charlotte, NC, averaged only 2.9 points per game last year, but ran the offense well with only 14 turnovers in 200 minutes in ACC play. One of the finest athletes in the conference, Wallace has a 39-inch vertical jump, can bench press nearly 300 pounds and finished third in the long jump at the ACC track meet last spring.

The remaining members of the Clemson backcourt are newcomers, but all three have outstanding credentials. Coach Ellis said he had no backcourt talent that could match his up-tempo offense and he satisfied the void with the addition of Grayson Marshall, Anthony Blackman and Harlan Graham last spring.

Marshall was an All-Metro selection for St. John's High School in Washington, DC last year as he scored 16 points per outing and shot 63 percent from the field. The member of the Capitol All-Stars in the McDonald's Classic averaged seven rebounds and seven assists in leading Joe Gallagher's team.

Blackman scored 22.6 points an outing at McKinley High School in Buffalo, NY. He was rated among the Top 30 guards in the East by the B.C. survey and excelled in many post-season all-star games. The 6-3 wing or point shot 84 percent from the foul line in 1983-84. He has suffered from ankle problems in the preseason, but should be ready by December. Graham was a first-team all-state choice in Georgia last year as he scored 23 points an outing at Columbia High School in Decatur, GA. He also pulled down 8.0 rebounds a game as he used his 6-4 frame and outstanding leaping ability to the fullest.

THE FRONTCOURT

While the backcourt has only three returning veterans, the frontcourt has six veterans returning who have seen action and four of them have been starters at one time or another. Two red-shirts round out the list of frontcourt players for Cliff Ellis' first Tiger team.

Anthony Jenkins, a 6-7 forward from Spartanburg, SC, is the top returning scorer among the frontcourt players. Unfortunately Jenkins may be out for the year due to a ruptured Achilles tendon suffered this past Halloween. One of the top outside shooters in the ACC, Jenkins was hot at the end of last season when he joined the starting lineup. He averaged 14.3 points a contest, 33 minutes a game with 6.6 rebounds and only 1.7 turnovers a game over the last 10 games, all as a starter. Jenkins scored 10.1 points a game for the year and shot 52 percent from the field. He has led the club in free throw percentage in each of his first two years. The junior led Clemson in rebounding in five of his last 10 games, as his all-around game improved considerably over the performance of his freshman year.

Raymond Jones is the most experienced of the frontcourt players as he has seen action in 88 games, 50 as a starter since he came to Clemson for the 1980-81 season. Jones has played center and forward in his Clemson career and he started 18 games in the frontcourt last year when he had a year of streaks interrupted by injury. But, the 6-8 native of Union, SC, shot 59 percent over the last dozen games and scored nine points a contest. The MVP of the Tigers in 1982-83 has led Clemson in blocked shots in each of the last two seasons.

Horace Grant is only a sophomore, but he might be the most promising big man on the Tiger team. As a rookie in 1983-84 Grant averaged 5.7 points and 4.6 rebound per game, the fourth best rebounding total on the club. A fine all-around player, Grant showed his abilities with eight points, seven assists and six rebounds in the ACC tournament game against North Carolina last year. Grant shot 53.3 percent from the field, the second best figure among the regulars, including a 15-19 streak to end the season. He was a member of Raycom's 1984 All-ACC Rookie Team.

Glen McCants saw limited action as a reserve center last season, but he should see more playing time this year. McCants has played in 54 games over the last two seasons and has been a reliable backup center. He hit on 53.3 percent from the field last year and led the team in blocked shots per minute.

Two red-shirts, one medical and one by decision, return for 1984-85. Harvey Grant, Horace's twin brother, will be a 6-9 freshman on this year's team. The rapidly developing athlete could play small forward because of his quickness and outside shooting ability. He scored 16 points a game at Sparta High School in Georgia his senior season.

Glenn Corbit played the first five games of 1983-84, then red-shirted the year because of an ankle injury suffered in practice. He had scored nine points in the first five games as a member of the "Orange Aids' team. Corbit transferred to Clemson from Anderson Junior College where he was a third-team All-American.

CIMARRON '84
THIS ONE’S GOT THE TOUCH.

The Cadillac touch. It’s Electronic Fuel Injection, matched by a tenacious Touring Suspension that comes to grips with the road. It’s leather-faced front bucket seats with lumbar support behind a leather-trimmed steering wheel that lets you know you’re in control. It’s new grille and taillight styling. Laser-accurate quality fits. It’s Cimarron ’84... with something no other car in its class has.

The Cadillac touch.

BEST OF ALL... IT’S A CADILLAC.
Let’s Get It Together... Buckle Up.
By Catherine Sams

It takes a lot of hard work, dedication and quality people to have a number-one team, and no one knows that better than the cadets and officers who make up Clemson’s Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps (AFROTC) detachment.

In national competition this year against 152 other college units, the U.S. Air Force ROTC Headquarters deemed Clemson’s Detachment 770 to be the nation’s finest.

Col. Lewis E. Jordan, commander of the unit, called the ranking a tribute to the people at Clemson who have “set the standard” for AFROTC detachments in such areas as student recruiting, community service and development of student leadership potential.

“Our use of microcomputers in recruiting was one thing that brought us national attention,” Jordan says. A computer program developed by Capt. Rick Sorrenti helps the department keep track of interested high school seniors, making direct-mail recruiting efforts more efficient.

Student honorary service organizations such as Angel Flight and Arnold Air Society also contributed to the number-one ranking. Angel Flight was also selected best in the nation for service projects, resulting in Clemson’s selection as national Angel Flight headquarters.

The organization sponsors an annual Red Cross blood drive and participates in a POW-MIA awareness program. Clemson senior Kathy Valdes of Mauldin is national Angel Flight commander.

Arnold Air Society has been named southeastern U.S. headquarters and national headquarters for publications.

Enrollment has risen from a low of 114 in 1977 to more than 300 today, representing about 3 percent of the total student body.

Partially because of the university’s dedication to the AFROTC program, Headquarters selected Clemson President Bill Atchley to serve on the Air Force ROTC Advisory Committee.

The elite group consists of four other university presidents from across the nation, selected because of their “academic and administrative excellence and understanding of mutual concerns of the academic and military communities,” Jordan says.

Atchley will serve for two years, providing an external source of advice, expertise and influence for AFROTC programs nationwide.

Rivalries being fought, championships being settled, key games being played are characteristics of contests that are staged in the month of November. Those elements are what make college football an enjoyable pastime for thousands in the United States. On this particular day, November 10, Clemson has played rivals and key games and made this day an exciting one for many Tiger fans.

1897-On November 10, of this year, 2,000 spectators witnessed Clemson claim its second state championship in as many years as the Tigers defeated South Carolina at the fairgrounds in Columbia. Clemson, with its superior weight, took an early 4-0 lead when South Carolina's Lee Haggard fumbled on the Gamecock 31-yard line and Clemson's W.T. Brock caught the fumbled ball in the air and raced 30 yards for a touchdown. Touchdowns counted four points while points after touchdowns counted two back in these early days of football.

1900-Clemson was first scored on in 1900 on this date by the University of Georgia at Athens. This game featured the unusual appearance of a coal barrage thrown against Clemson players by some Georgia students from the windows of nearby dormitories. Clemson, behind the efforts of Claude Douillet, Norman Walker, and W.C. Forsythe, braved the attack and led Clemson to an easy 39-5 win.

1906-Auburn and Clemson met on this day 78 years ago in a battle of Tigers on the Clemson campus. In a hard fought game Auburn took an early lead when Auburn's Whitney drop-kicked a goal from the 30-yard line. Clemson managed to take the ball to the Auburn seven after a long punt return by Bill Latimer, and from there J.N. McLaurin carried it over for a touchdown. Doc McFadden kicked the all-important extra point to break the tie and give Clemson the win 6-4.

1909-Clemson defeated Georgia 5-0 at Augusta, GA at the fairgrounds two days before they would play the Citadel at Charleston. The determined Tigers were successful in stopping Georgia's swift backs in this game.

1910-A year later Clemson again faced Georgia at the same location at Augusta, GA in a fierce battle. Called by many as a moral victory for Clemson, The Tigers and Georgia fought to a 0-0 tie. Clemson played well defensively as the Tigers made two goal-line stands on their own two-yard line twice in the game. Georgia also missed a 35-yard field goal by just a few inches.

1921-Twenty-five hundred onlookers saw the Citadel Bulldogs tie Clemson 7-7 at the Orangeburg county fair in Orangeburg. The Citadel's John O'Shaughnessy scored a touchdown for the game's first score and put the Bulldogs on top 7-0. Later in the contest Clemson evened things up as Pinky Colbert went over for the game-tying score. Colbert also kicked the crucial point after to give Clemson a tie.

1928-Clemson's Goat McMillian ran for one touchdown and passed for another to give Clemson a 12-0 win over VMI at Lynchburg, VA. McMillian ran from four yards out in the third period to give the Tigers a 6-0 advantage. Later in the fourth quarter, McMillian threw a 24-yard touchdown pass to Henry Asbill to give Clemson the win.

1934-Called by many newspapers as one of the best teams in the nation at the time, Alabama soundly defeated Clemson 40-0 before a homecoming crowd at Denny Stadium. Alabama's Howell threw two touchdown passes to left end Hutton to lead the effort.

1945-Spectators who numbered 7,000 enjoyed the Indian summer weather as they saw Clemson defeat today's opponent, Virginia Tech, 35-0 in a Southern Conference clash. Two of Clemson's touchdowns came as a result of Jim Hough's 76-yard pass interception run and June Pruitt's 67-yard run from a fake kick.

1951-Left halfback Billy Hair passed for two touchdowns and ran for a third as his Clemson team whipped Boston College 21-2 at Clemson. Hair's scoring passes of 29 and 43 yards were thrown to right end Glenn Smith in the first period. Hair ran for one yard for his touchdown.

1956-Maryland battled the Orange Bowl bound Tigers to a 6-6 deadlock and came within six yards of an upset victory in the closing seconds in a crucial ACC game. Clemson scored in the third period with fullback Bob Spooner plugging over from the one-yard line to cap a 47-yard drive.

Maryland took advantage of a Tiger fumble on the four and four plays later fullback Tom Selip plowed over left guard from the two. Both team's conversions went wide, and the game ended in a tie.

1962-At Sirrine stadium in Greenville, 12,000 spectators were on hand to see Clemson win its 25th straight game over Furman, 44-3. Clemson dominated the game as the Tigers gathered 438 yards total offensive in the victory.

1973-Clemson's Ken Pengitore passed for 212 yards on 12 of 17 attempts and rushed for 100 more in 25 carries to lead Clemson to a 37-29 ACC victory over North Carolina. In 16-degree chill factor temperatures, Smiley Sanders and Tony Mathews had two touchdowns each to help Clemson to victory.

1979-Obed Arini's record-tying four field goals proved to be the margin of victory as the Tigers beat North Carolina, 19-10. Tailback Lester Brown returned to the lineup after a three-game absence and rushed for 69 yards. This put him over 2,000 yards for his career, only the fifth Clemson back ever to do so. Clemson's defensive team held the Tar Heels to only 79 yards rushing on just 29 plays.

Ken Pengitore led Clemson to a 37-29 win over North Carolina on this date in 1973.

AIM HIGH!

AIR FORCE ROTC
AT CLEMSON
Mother Of The Year

By Maria Farry

Any woman who is capable of dividing her love and attention between a husband, four children, five grandchildren, and an entire university of students without slighting any group deserves special recognition. Mary Johnson Cox, wife of Dean Walter T. Cox, is just that type of lady. Since coming to Clemson in 1940, she has devoted much time and effort to the betterment of the University. Today, Tiger Brotherhood honors her achievements by recognizing her as Mother-of-the-Year.

Mary Cox was born and raised in nearby Anderson County. Her father died when she was quite young, leaving only Mary, her mother, and four sisters. In 1939, she graduated from an all-girls high school and went on to Anderson Jr. College. After graduating with honors from Anderson in 1936, she continued her education at Winthrop College, and graduated in 1938. She taught second grade in Columbia for one year before marrying Walter T. Cox, her high school and college sweetheart, in September, 1940.

After their marriage, Mrs. Cox was flung into the predominantly male environment of Clemson A&M, where her husband had accepted a position under Coach Frank Howard. In 1950, Walter Cox became University President Robert Poole's assistant and was placed in charge of public and alumni relations. By 1955, he was promoted to the position of Dean of Student Affairs, which is now called the Vice President of Student Affairs. Dean Cox is also a member of the Tiger Brotherhood.

Mrs. Cox and her family have lived within earshot of the Clemson campus for the past 45 years. The sounds of the Tillman Clock, band practice and other campus activities are welcome familiarities to the Cox family. During Dean Cox's time at the University, Mrs. Cox has remained active in all Clemson-related social affairs. She and her husband served as official chaperones during the days of college-wide dances, a few Christmases ago, and Mrs. Cox has poured punch at about every activity imaginable.

The Cox Family has four children, three boys and one girl. The oldest, Walter T. Cox, III, graduated from Clemson in 1964 and from USC law school in 1967. He practiced law in Anderson and was made a circuit court judge for the 10th judicial district. On Sept. 6, 1984, he was appointed to the U.S. Military Appeals Court by Ronald Reagan. He and his wife Vicki have two children. Lisa, their daughter, is a freshman at Clemson, and their son is Walter T. Cox, IV.

Frank J. Cox, a 1968 Clemson graduate, is now the chemical officer at the 9th division at Fort Lewis, Washington. He has just been promoted to Lt. Colonel. He and his wife Crossie, whose father was a Clemson Military Science professor, have two children, Cady and Campy.

The Cox's only daughter Grace Cox Kerns, attended the University of Georgia (we'll forgive her). She and her husband, Charles, live in Atlanta with their son, Wes, and they own and operate a Mexican restaurant.

Bill Cox, the youngest of the Cox children, attended Clemson and now resides in Johnson City, TN, where he is a food-service director for an industrial organization.

As well as being an avid Tiger sports fan, Mary Cox is quite concerned with academics. Not only has she cheered for both athletic and academic achievements, she has also shed some tears over hard times in both.

Mrs. Cox is a member of Clemson First Baptist Church and an active member of her circle. In addition, she is a member of the Clemson Woman's Club and the Colonial Dames. She and her husband have spent their lives in true devotion to Clemson and the surrounding community. The Tiger Brotherhood is proud to name Mrs. Mary Cox as Mother-of-the-Year.

What is Tiger Brotherhood?

Today, the Brotherhood is a local, selective, honorary fraternity. It still embraces the same basic tenets as established by its founders, led by Professor John Logan Marshall, in 1929. Enamored with ritual, the Tiger Brotherhood promotes high standards of social and ethical conduct, while recognizing in its members an earnest devotion to Clemson, coupled with the integrity of character commensurate with the atypical Clemson Gentleman.

Tiger Brotherhood embodies an unequaled cross-sectional representation of the Clemson community. Students, faculty and staff all work within the bonds of brotherhood to champion a closer relationship. One for all and all for one, with Clemson its many traditions and undying spirit as our central focus, today provides viable, flexible and a continuing forum for ideas and unending service to Clemson.

Old Milwaukee brings you two great players.
Old Milwaukee, the beer that tastes as great as its name.
And Old Milwaukee Light, the beer that got the taste of light right. Any way you play it, that's one great team.

DO A GOOD TURN FOR ENERGY BILLS.

Turn your thermostat to 68° or lower for heating, and 78° or higher for cooling. For every degree you maintain your home below 68° and above 78° you reduce your operating costs. And that can be a big turn for the better. We’ll be happy to give you a free booklet full of energy-saving tips like this. Just call your local SCE&G office.

SCE&G. PEOPLE PUTTING THEIR ENERGY TO WORK FOR YOU.

Emergency Services

The Clemson University Athletic Department provides the following for your safety and emergency medical needs:

1. Advanced cardiac life-support stations in four locations. (North stands, Upper North deck, South stands, Upper South deck.) These units are staffed with skill-care nurses, physicians, cardiologists, internists, paramedics, and EMTs.

2. Mobile units of EMTs and paramedics are strategically located throughout the entire stadium.

3. Ambulances with life-support equipment are available in North stand and South stand areas and have prearranged routes for evacuation to local hospitals.

Learn to recognize these personnel and facilities. Announcements will inform you of special hazards – heat, bees, etc.

WHAT TO DO IF EMERGENCIES ARISE

Please step back and give the organized stadium EMS personnel room to work. Well-intentioned attempts to help by untrained persons interferes with the efficiency of the EMS system. If you have basic or advanced training in specific life-support methods, make your qualifications known and offer your help. Untrained personnel can be frequently more harmful than helpful.

MEDICAL ADVICE FOR FANS

If you have a pre-existing medical or health problem, please check with your personal physician and obtain his advice before attending games. Many emergencies occurring at the stadium do so because of prior existing conditions. Use common sense in dressing, eating, drinking and in physical exertion. Be certain if you have any pre-existing medical conditions that you have identification on you as to the diagnosis and what medications you are currently taking.

Be aware of early warning signs of heart attacks: chest pain, chest tightness, shortness of breath, sweating, palpitations, fainting, nausea and vomiting.

Recognize that our most common serious medical problem at football games are heart attacks and allergic reactions to insect stings. Be aware that insect stings will continue to always be very frequent at outdoor sporting events and should always be treated with immediate ice until advice can be obtained. If you have ever had a reaction to bee or other insect sting, check with your personal physician as to whether you should carry a kit.

The stadium emergency phone number is (803) 656-2110.

Our most sincere appreciation also goes to Alex Coleman of Coleman Chevrolet Olds Inc., of Lake City, SC; Jake Walters of Piedmont Honda in Anderson, SC, who along with the others pictured have donated cars to the Athletic Department for use in travel by members of the staff.
Clemson players, coaches and fans are famous for mustering up big appetites. That's when they want the best U.S.D.A. Graded Choice heavy grain-fed Western Beef. Beef that's actually guaranteed to be tender. Every time. And BI-LO's Western Beef Market is where they find it—during football season, or any other time.

NOW THERE'S MORE

For the past three years the Orange Aids Catalog Marketing program has made it possible for Clemson Alumni and IPTAY members to shop at home for quality Clemson products. The Orange Aids program provides only officially licensed Clemson products and the proceeds go to support various programs at the University.

NOW THERE'S MORE. The Orange Aids Station is a new retail outlet for Clemson paraphernalia located adjacent to gate 9 on the Northwest corner of Memorial Stadium. The Orange Aids Station is an extension of the Clemson University Bookstore and will display all items which are in the Orange Aids catalog plus a broad selection of products previously available only in the bookstore. You are encouraged to shop in the Orange Aids Station before and after each home football game. The Orange Aids Station will be open each weekday for your convenience.

Perry Poster Promo

By Tim Bourret

Sports information promotion and hype were born in South Bend, IN, October 20, 1924 when George Strickler, the most famous student assistant in sports information history, set up a picture with classic repercussions. The preceding Saturday Notre Dame had beaten Army in New York 13-7 behind the success of four running backs. Granland Rice had called them the "Four Horsemen" in his story in the New York Herald Tribune on Sunday.

That Monday at practice, Strickler had four horses waiting at the Notre Dame practice field and put the four players on the animals for a group picture. Strickler then sent the photo over the country and it appeared in every major daily in the land. Sports promotions have not been the same since.

Clemson has attempted to use innovative ideas to promote its worthy players in recent years as Terry Kinard, Obed Artiri, Perry Tuttle and others have all been the subject of special projects. This year the most elaborate project was completed in October, the William Perry Growth Poster.

"Perry is a viable candidate for the Outland Trophy and the Lombardi Award this year and we wanted to do something that will bring him attention," said Bob Bradley, sports information director at Clemson. "William has to do the job on the field, but we must make everyone aware of his accomplishments and the growth poster was a good way to do it."

The idea for the growth poster really must be credited to someone who has never seen a Clemson game in person. Jeff Pratt is a printing representative for Sports Graphics in Chicago, IL, and a sports nut. He has followed Clemson since the national championship season and has viewed Perry's career with interest.

Pratt wrote a letter to members of the Clemson sports information department this past summer with a proposal and things took off from there. "We started doing these growth posters two years ago when we did one on Paul Molitor of the Milwaukee Brewers," said Pratt. "We purchased a 340 scanner a couple of years back that allows us to print separations that big at a much smaller cost than previously, so universities and pro teams can afford to print them.

"We have done the posters for Dave Parker of the Cincinnati Reds, Mark Aquirre of the Dallas Mavericks and Terry Cummings (now of the Milwaukee Bucks). The pro teams use them as give-aways to get more people in the stands. The Perry poster was the first one that has been done for promotion and the first one we have done for a college athlete."

The project actually started the Tuesday after the Clemson-Virginia game. Lance McKinney of the Clemson communications center was the photographer and he spent most of the morning setting up the lighting and the studio. Two refrigerators were brought in from Modern Supply in Williamston, SC. The actual shooting took about an hour and a half as about 50 different pictures and poses were done to try and get the optimal expression from the 320-pound All-American middle guard. McKinney took care of all the details, even pumping up the air-conditioning so that the studio temperature was about 60 degrees. Perry does tend to sweat in a complete uniform and that would not have been an ideal situation for the purpose of the photo.

The actual shooting was the most important part of the project and Pratt says it made the difference in the poster. "We feel the Perry poster is the best overall quality project we have done. The photography was great and this enabled us to blow the transparency up 2,000 percent without losing a lot of quality. As far as color, design and reproduction this poster is the standard we will use for quite some time to measure our other works. We have already sent the poster to all the USFL and NFL teams to help drum up business for next year. We want to do 40 to 50 of these things next year. We also have 30 universities looking into it, but Clemson was the first."

The posters arrived at Clemson on October 19 around 1:00 PM. A total of 4,000 were printed, 2,000 for public sale and 2,000 to send to media and high schools in Clemson's recruiting area. The sports information office sent the posters to all the voters on the Lombardi Award and Outland Trophy panels, plus its All-American mailing list (top 500 newspapers, TV stations and radio stations from Maine to California).

The stuffing process was quite an ordeal as the 77x36 inch posters were not exactly a snap to roll and place in a mailer. It took the student assistants in the SID office (Al Bynum, Jill Mixon, Sam Blackman, Maria Farr, David Webb and Barry Tomlinson) about three afternoons to roll the posters and deliver them to the post office. Bynum came up with a rolling stick invention that made the work faster, they'd still be there if he had not come up with the idea.

For this project to work Clemson fans also had to come through and purchase the posters. The project cost about $10,000 and you just can't spend that kind of money for a promotional campaign. The athletic department sold the 2,000 posters for $5 apiece at the Orange Aids Station next to the stadium. It did not take long for the athletic department to get its money back, as it took only 30 hours to sell out. That last poster was sold at 6:00 PM after the Duke game on October 20 exactly 60 years to the day after George Strickler took the "Four Horsemen" picture at Notre Dame.

Tiger Professionals

By Kassie Kessinger

Former Clemson football players are all over the television set on Sunday afternoons. In fact, Clemson is one of the top 20 schools in the nation in producing pros in the NFL. But, the other sports at Clemson are doing quite well also. Last year, no less than eight former Tiger baseball players were in the major leagues. In all, 15 former Clemson athletes are performing with distinction at the major league level in their respective sport. Here is a rundown on what they are doing.

BASEBALL

Chuck Porter of the Milwaukee Brewers had his best season as a relief pitcher in '84, as he posted a 6-4 record and a 3.87 earned run average. He appeared in 17 games and pitched 81 innings, sixth best on the club. While at Clemson the 28-year-old Porter was named ACC Player-of-the-Year and was an Academic All-American in 1976. He originally was selected by the California Angels’ organization in the seventh round of the 1976 free-agent draft and was signed by the Brewers’ organization in May, 1980.

A teammate of Porter’s at Milwaukee this past season, was former Tiger catcher Bill Schroeder. The 6-2, 200-pound Schroeder completed his rookie year with a .257 batting average, 54 hits, 14 homers and 25 runs batted in. Despite playing in only 61 of the Brewers’ 161 games, the Baltimore, MD, native ranked second on the club in home runs behind all-star Robin Yount. Schroeder made the Brewers’ regular lineup because of an injury to starting catcher Jim Sundberg, and the former Tiger answered the call by smashing five home runs and going 9-18, which raised his batting average from .236 to .265. For his excellent play he was honored as Sports Illustrated’s major league player of the week (Sept. 4). A key member of the Clemson Tigers’ ACC Championship teams in ’78 and ’79, Schroeder originally was selected in the eighth round of the 1979 June free-agent draft.

Also seeing major league duty for the first time in ’84 was former Clemson star Jimmy Key. Playing for the Toronto Blue Jays, Key was the subject of an article in the Sept. 18 edition of The Sporting News that described how Toronto Blue Jays pitching coach Al Widmar made a minor adjustment in the pitching mechanics of the left-handed reliever. The Huntsville, AL native responded with seven consecutive appearances in which he did not allow an earned run, earning saves in four of them. In all, Key finished his outstanding rookie year with 10 saves, which tied him for the club record and it was a new rookie record. He went 4-5 for the year, had a 4.65 ERA and set a club record by appearing in 73 games.

Key spent two years in Tigertown from 1981-82, where he was all-conference in 1982 as DH-LHP. He led the Tigers with 116 innings pitched, had a 2.79 ERA and compiled a 9-3 record. Key was a Blue Jays third-round selection, 56th pick overall, in the 1982 June free-agent draft.

Another former Tiger who played for the Toronto Blue Jays in '84 is Ron Musselman. The 29-year-old was purchased by the Blue Jays August 16, 1984. He finished the '84 campaign with the Blue Jays as a right-handed relief pitcher. He went 0-2 in 11 games, with a 2.11 ERA. His previous major league experience was 12 relief appearances with the 1982 Seattle Mariners prior to being traded to Texas on Dec. 21, 1982. In 1976, Musselman was 8-3 with a 2.11 ERA for the ACC Champion Clemson Tigers, including a school record four shutouts. He had a no-hitter against Virginia.

Opportunity broke for former Clemson All-American Tim Teufel at the start of the '84 season when the Minnesota Twins' regular second baseman John Castro suffered a back injury. The 26-year-old rookie parlayed his fortunes into a regular position by promptly posting impressive stats. He finished the season with a .262 batting average, had 149 hits in 568 at-bats, 30 doubles, 14 home runs, and three triples. He drove in 61 runs, which was fourth best on the club, and he had 10 game-winning hits. His 14 homers were third best on the team and broke Bernie Allen's 1962 club homer record for second basemen. Teufel, a native of Greenwich, CT, was acquired by the Twins in the second round of the June, 1980 free-agent draft. He was originally selected by the Milwaukee Brewers organization in the 16th-round of the June, 1978 free-agent draft.

Perhaps Clemson’s best known active professional baseball player is the Houston Astros’ Denny Walling, a veteran of seven major league seasons. Considered one of the premier pinch hit-
Mike Brown, a three-time All-ACC performer while at Clemson, struggled to a 1-8 record and a 6.85 ERA in his second year with the Boston Red Sox. For his career, Brown was the Red Sox first pick in the second round of the 1980 June draft. He spent the final month of 1982 with the Sox and was the winning pitcher in the season’s final game. In 1983, he was Boston’s most dependable starter in April and May. The 6-2, 195-pound Haddon Township, NJ product originally went to Clemson on a baseball-football scholarship, and he was 9-4 with a 3.17 ERA and 77 strikeouts in 94 innings as a senior.

BASKETBALL

Now beginning his eighth year as a professional with the NBA Atlanta Hawks is former Clemson basketball great. Tree Rollins. According to a poll a couple of years ago among Tiger fans, Tree was regarded as the best Tiger basketball player of all-time and certainly one of the most famous Clemson athlete of all-time. Last year, Tree was named to the 1983-84 NBA all-defense squad and he went over the 4,000-mark in both points and rebounds and cracked 1,600-mark in career blocked shots. He had a rare triple-double night against Chicago with 15 points, 11 rebounds and 10 blocked shots. He has never ranked below third in the NBA in blocked shots in his career, leading the NBA in blocked shots with a .29/. per game average, (the second best in NBA history) in 1982-83. One of the most durable players in Clemson history, the Cordell, GA native never missed starting a game at Clemson (110 in a row), and when he graduated he held the all-time NCAA record for consecutive games started.

Larry Nance may be Clemson’s most celebrated and accomplished professional. Now in his fourth year with the Phoenix Suns of the NBA, the 6-10, 217-pound forward was a 1981 first-round choice, the 20th overall pick. The Anderson, SC native is one of the few players in basketball history who improved his stats when he arrived in the NBA. He had his best year last season as he turned in his career bests with a 17.7 points per game average, .576 field goal mark, and .707 free throw mark. He enters the 1984-85 season with a 214 consecutive games played streak, having missed only two games in three campaigns. He led the Suns in blocked shots with 2.11 per outing, which was fourth best in the NBA, and he ranked eighth in the league in field goal percentage (.576). He is now the Suns all-time leader in field goal accuracy with a .556 figure. He also was NBA slam dunk champ in ‘84.

Former All-American Barbara Kennedy rewrote the record books as a Tiger roundballer from 1978-82. She spent two years playing professional basketball in Italy and is currently a member of the Virginia Wave of the new Women’s Professional Basketball League. A starter with the Wave, the 6-2 forward scored 22 points against Houston and tossed in 17 points against Nancy Lieberman’s Dallas club in her first two outings.

TENNIS

Mark Dickson, a three-time All-American at Clemson, made his professional debut last year on the WCT tennis circuit and he climbed as high as number-36 in the world rankings. He also was referred to by CBS commentator Tony Trabet as the ‘master man of tennis’. At one point, though he was ranked only 96th in the world, he owned wins over Ivan Lendl, Guillermo Vilas, Kevin Curren and Thomas Smid. Dickson also had banked over $175,000. His first success came in the early part of 1983. At Munich, Germany, he upset Lendl, Curren, and Bill Scanlon before losing to Brian Teacher in the finals. Then, at Houston he defeated Vilas and Smid before losing to Paul McNamee in the semifinals. Presently, Dickson is ranked 54th and has pocketed $162,655 in 1984. His most recent appearance came in the Mazda Classic at Brisbane, Australia, where he lost in the semi-finals to Francisco Gonzales.

Another recent Clemson All-American to turn professional is last year’s NCAA singles runner-up, Lawson Duncan. The native of Cullowhee, NC, set the tennis world on fire in ’84, winning an NCAA record 70 singles matches in one season, and reaching the NCAA finals without dropping a single set in the earlier rounds. Duncan, who would have been a sophomore on this year’s Tiger squad, elected to play for money at the ’84 U.S. Open. As of Oct. 8, 1984, Duncan is ranked 173rd in the world and has earned $8,887.00.

Mike Gandolfo is another pro who has met with success, especially in doubles play. He has been to the quarterfinals of the U.S. Open in doubles play. At Clemson, he was an All-American in 1979. He was also the first Tiger to be named national Senior Player of the Year.

Gigi Fernandez left Clemson after her freshman year in 1983. She came to within one point of being the first athlete in Clemson history to win an NCAA individual singles championship. As of Oct. 8, 1984, Fernandez was ranked 49th in the world and had earned $39,759 in prize money. Her best singles performance to date came last August at the Virginia Slims Tournament in Newport, RI. She wound up a ‘lucky loser’, when after losing in the qualifying round, she was invited to join the $150,000 tournament when number-two player, Pam Shriver, had to withdraw. Fernandez proceeded to knock off four opponents and became the first ‘lucky loser’ to ever make the finals of a Virginia Slims tournament. Her opponent in the finals – the world’s top-ranked woman’s player, Martina Navratilova, who eventually won the championship, 6-3, 7-6. But Gigi, in one afternoon, won more points than four players did all week against Navratilova. For her efforts, Fernandez pocketed her biggest purse as a professional with $13,000 as the runner-up. A week later, Fernandez was in Los Angeles representing Puerto Rico in the 23rd Olympic Games.

GOLF:

Former All-American golfer Clarence Rose is in his fourth year as a touring professional. He is well ahead of his pace of 1983 when he earned $45,271 and was 109th. Entering 1984, Rose had career earnings of $87,312, and as of Oct. 8, 1984, Rose is currently in 88th place on the Tour with earnings of $62,278. Having played in 30 events, he’s been in the money 19 times, missed only 11 cuts and his stroke average of 72.06 is his best yet. For 1983, his best efforts include a tie for fifth at the Canadian Open and a tie for eighth place at the Greater Greensboro Open. While at Clemson he was a two-time All-ACC performer and held the Clemson career average round of 73.74. Rose’s 1980-83 stroke average still ranks as the Tiger’s third finest.

The great paw painting, tunnelvision, and a laser show are just a few events scheduled for Spirit Blitz '84—a project sponsored by the Clemson University Student Government to serve as an encore for last year's Rising Above. Clemson fans will once again be aiming for the record books, this time by painting more faces than any other group. The current record is held by the University of Alabama. Spirit Blitz will show the world that Tiger fans have spirit all of the time, but particularly today as Clemson plays host to the Gobblers of Virginia Tech.

Tiger Band will raise the spirit when they start today's pregame show with the traditional tunes of "Sock It To 'Em", the Orange Bowl March, and "Tiger Rag" while spelling "Tigers".

Today's guest of honor dotting the "i" in Tigers will be Mrs. Mary Cox of Clemson. Mrs. Cox is married to Dean Walter Cox, who is the Vice President of Student Affiliates, and has been named the 1984 Clemson Mother-Of-The-Year.

Sounding from underneath a tunnel of balloons, Tiger Band will continue the pregame show with "You're A Grand Old Flag"; 'America The Beautiful", directed by Richard E. Goodstein and accompanied by the Clemson University Chorus; "The Star-Spangled Banner", directed by Bruce F. Cook; and the Clemson University Alma Mater, directed by William W. Campbell. The colors will be presented by the following cadets of the Clemson Air Force ROTC: Toni Donaldson, David Ashe, Diane Neely, John O'Nan, and Color Guard Commander Dallas Harken.

The Marching Virginians, under the direction of Harry Price, will begin today's halftime show with their rendition of Bill Comit's "Power", arranged by James Sochinski. "Moodido" (The Match) will continue the Hokies' performance. "Moodido" is the boxing theme of the 1984 Olympic Games and was written by the group Toto. The Marching Virginians will then wrap up their halftime show with "Olympic Fanfares and Themes", a combination of music from the Los Angeles games and the 1976 Montreal games. The piece was jointly composed by John Williams and Maurice Arnaude. Virginia Tech then will exit the field with "Tech Triumph", the fight song of Virginia Tech.

Tiger Band then will take over with the Spanish piece "El Tigre", composed by John Higgins. "The Rainmaker", written by jazz guitarist Earl Klugh and arranged by Jay Bocook, continues the halftime show. Tiger Band will then end its halftime performance by featuring the French Horn section with "Softly As I Leave You", written by A. DeVita and arranged by Bocook. No Clemson halftime show would be complete without the finale of "The Song That Shakes The Southland" — Tiger Rag!

This week Tiger Band would like to feature its Flag Corps. Directed by Ms. Cheryl Crenshaw of Seneca, the corps is 25 members strong, 24 of which perform at halftime. A new addition to this year's squad reflects a trend that is spreading nationwide, even at the high school level. Gerald Foster, a sophomore from Gastonia, NC, who is majoring in computer science, is a new member of this year's squad, marking the first time that a male has been a member of this part of Tiger Band.

Crenshaw feels that it is the strong spirit of unity that is shared by the corps that allows the group to function with the quality that it does. The flag corps practices at the scheduled rehearsals with Tiger Band, but also meets on Thursday afternoon by themselves to iron out the routine. Because of the 6½ feet flag poles, it is essential to know the charting of the halftime show before choreographing their performance. Furthermore, the squad must perform in four-step intervals which limit the ability to move around with the speed of other band members.

Jerry Frampton and Connor Coward serve as this year's flag corps captains. They were voted upon by the squad and selected by Tiger Band directors. The captains take on a leadership role in which they keep up with equipment, assist in the routine decisions — a task that is shared by the entire group — and, in general, direct the squad as a unit. Crenshaw noted that she really enjoys her work with Tiger Band through the flag corps. She said, "This is the fourth year with Tiger Band, and it keeps getting better. The 1984 season is a super year, and this group is a true asset, not only to Tiger Band, but also to Clemson University."
