5 Reggio Pleasant
One of the greatest success stories of this outstanding senior class belongs to Reggio Pleasant. He came to Clemson as a walk-on and now leads the ACC in passes broken up with a Clemson single season record 13. David Webb reviews Pleasant's career in Tigerstown.

7 Fulbright Scholars
Clemson is always searching to improve itself academically, that is the mark of a great institution. An example of the progress the school has been making is documented in the number of Fulbright Scholars on this campus. Catherine Sams takes a look at the high success rate of this class.

48 Clemson's Finest Class
You could fill an entire program with the accomplishments of this senior class. No other class in America has a better winning percentage, and no class in the history of the ACC has won more games with a better percentage. Jill Mixon discusses the class with some Clemson coaches who have seen a lot of great ones come and go.

57 Senior Sponsors
Each year Clemson seniors honor an important lady in their respective lives. It is a Clemson tradition and a way the players say thanks for timely support to a special person in their lives.

61 This Day in Tiger Football
Clemson will try to gain still another victory on this date in Clemson football history. Sam Blackman examines Clemson's record on this date in history and reviews some of the more interesting games, many of which have had a bearing on the history of this outstanding series.

65 Spirit Blitz
The second annual Spirit Blitz week was held a couple of weeks ago when the Virginia Tech Hokies came to town. Many people put in countless hours to make the card section, laser show and other events a success that week. Al Bynum chronologues the events in preparation for the festive week.

97 Seniors in the Crowd
Twenty-four seniors have made Clemson successful over the last four seasons. Some have not been starters their entire careers, but all have contributed. Maria Farry introduces us to six seniors who have had a significant bearing on the Tiger record over the last four years.

102 Tigers in the Pros
Clemson ranks in the top 20 in the nation when it comes to contributing players to the NFL. Every Sunday some former Tigers have a bearing on an NFL game. Tim Bourret summarizes the season for the 21 former Tigers in the NFL.

On The Cover:
This is the final home game for the winningest class in Clemson history. The 24 seniors in this picture have won a National Championship, two ACC titles, had countless national rankings and set all kinds of Clemson records. Lance McKinney was the photographer who captured Clemson's most successful class.
Today's Game

By Tim Bourret

Fans of both Clemson and South Carolina feel like people who receive invitations to the Presidential Inaugural Ball. They are all excited upon receiving the invitation, but as the Inauguration date approaches the President’s schedule of appearances is released. Clemson and South Carolina fans feel a little like the people who got tickets to the ball where President Reagan will only make a token appearance. They are not quite as fired up about the whole situation, but his token appearance will still be enough incentive to go.

South Carolina and Clemson supporters still will come to Death Valley in droves and will be excited about today’s game, but it will not be with the religious fervor of what it could have been. Both teams might have been looking ahead last week as they both went down to defeat decisively. Had South Carolina come into this game with a 10-0 ledger and a number-one ranking, and Clemson entered with an 8-2 record and a number-15 rating, the national guard would have had to come in to keep things under control. Alas, we just have your regular, intense intra-state rivalry that dominates the lives of nearly everyone in the state of South Carolina for a week. The only difference is, this game could have dominated the lives of people across the country.

While things are a bit toned down for the fans, that will not be the case for the players in this game, for both combatants have a lot to play for, and we are talking about more than just pride. South Carolina has a 9-1 record with its top 10 ranking and hopes of going to a very rewarding (socially and economically) bowl game. The Gamecocks have lost to Clemson four seasons in a row and seven of the last eight years. And, by winning its last two games, well who knows what can still happen if Brigham Young suffers defeat.

Contrary to popular belief, Clemson, and in particular the senior class, has a lot to play for also. The Tigers have a 37-5-2 record over the last four seasons, the second best record in the nation over this time period, and there is quite a log-jam for the top five as you can see by the grid on this page. Clemson is only .003 percentage points off the pace set by SMU, which has a 38-5-2 record during the same time period. If Clemson has hopes of being the winningest class in the nation the last four years, it must beat the Gamecocks.

Also, Clemson’s current class of seniors needs one more victory to set an ACC record for wins by one class and needs one more win to be the best class in ACC history on a winning percentage basis. This class has 37 wins and is currently tied with the Clemson class of ’81 and the Maryland class of ’78 in terms of total victories. This class’ .864 winning percentage is just .001 ahead of Maryland ’53 and Maryland ’54, which had winning percentages of .863. A loss to South Carolina and you can kiss those accomplishments goodbye.

This senior class also has the motivational factor of its home winning streak. They have not experienced a loss in Death Valley and would certainly like to go down in history as being the first class never to lose a home game. They have gone 24 straight games without losing at home, the longest active streak in the nation.

Regardless of what happens both teams have had excellent seasons and have many accomplishments to hang their helmets on. This is only the second time in the history of this series that the teams collectively have 16 wins coming into this game (the other year was 1981), and it is the first time these two teams have both been ranked in the top five at some time or another in the same year.

South Carolina has gone to the big play this year in becoming the winningest team in the school’s history. The Gamecocks have allowed 341.4 yards a game on defense, but they have forced turnovers just when they need them (ask Florida State about that) and have turned them into points.

Allen Mitchell and Mike Hold are the leaders of the offense, as coach Joe Morrison, who is rapidly becoming as much a legend with South Carolina fans as Danny Ford is with Clemson fans, has successfully used the two-quarterback system. Mitchell starts the game and Hold finishes it and more often than not, it has not really mattered who has been at the controls. Mitchell has 53 completions in 99 attempts with seven touchdowns and Hold has 51 completions in 93 attempts with also seven touchdowns. Hold likes to go deep a little more often, that is the only real difference (they even both have exactly four rushing touchdowns) as Hold has thrown for over 1100 yards to only 780 for Mitchell.

Ira Hillary, who is finally a senior, leads a list of receivers that have five players averaging over 20 yards a reception. Clemson by comparison has only one player over 20 yards a reception. Hillary has 24 receptions for 484 yards and two TDs. Tight end Chris Corley, another senior, is the second leading receiver with 18 catches for 372 yards, a 20.7 yard average. He might lead all tight ends in the nation in yards per reception. Bill Bradshaw, who quarterbacked the Gamecocks at one time in his career against Clemson, has 13 catches for 266 yards.

As you can see by this article both teams have a lot in common. Both clubs also have a key starter out of action for this game, Clemson's Henry Walls at linebacker and South Carolina's Kent Hagood, a running back. Despite missing a couple of games Hagood is still the team's top rusher coming in with 551 yards and a 6.7 average. But he is out for the season with an injury, leaving Thomas Dendy with the running chores at tailback. He has an equally healthy 6.6 yards per carry figure and leads the team in touchdowns with eight. Quinton Lewis, who played well against Clemson last season, has 451 yards and a 5.6 average per carry. Del Wilkes, an All-America candidate, is South Carolina's top offensive lineman.

The South Carolina defense has given up considerable yardage and points this year, but they always come through with the big play. Bryant Gilliard typifies the big play defense, and his performance in particular against Florida State is a case in point. The free safety had a South Carolina record four interceptions against Florida State on national TV and has seven thefts for the season. He single-handedly turned the Seminoles back time and again in the fourth period and was justly rewarded by Sports Illustrated by being named the magazine's national Player-of-the-Week.

While Gilliard leads the secondary, a pair of seniors named James led the rest of the defense. James Seawright and James Sumpter are key members of the South Carolina defense this season and their leadership and experience have been reasons for South Carolina's unparalleled success in 1984. Seawright is second on the team in tackles with 110, including eight behind the line of scrimmage. Sumpter has 54 tackles in the front line, and also has eight behind the line of scrimmage. No, we haven't forgotten about Paul Vogel, who played havoc with the Notre Dame offense in South Bend a few weeks back with 24 tackles. This season Vogel has 141 tackles, including eight behind the line of scrimmage. Carl Hill is another starting linebacker over 100 tackles and Gleen Woodley (yes, Gleen) and Tony Guyton, a non-starter, lead the down linemen with 71 tackles apiece.

This South Carolina defense will have to contend with a Clemson team that is only 41 points away from being the highest scoring team in the history of the Atlantic Coast Conference. While Clemson has not built up the yardage the 1981 team did, they have put the points on the board consistently by converting turnovers into points (Clemson has scored a touchdown or field goal 18 times after 26 opponent turnovers this year.)

Mike Eppley closes out a record-setting career today as Clemson's all-time leader in TD passes (28), completion percentage (.569) and passing efficiency (133.5). He has hit 108 of 192 passes this season for 1396 yards and a school record 14 touchdowns. Many of those TD passes have gone to sophomore Terrance Rouihac, who needs one more TD reception to break Perry Tuttle's single season record of eight (1981).

Clemson has used a very balanced rushing attack this year as it is a rare occasion that a back gains over 100 yards in a game and no one has 600 yards for the season coming into this game. Stacey Driver, one of three tailbacks to see considerable action this season, is the leader with 597 yards on 130 carries. Kenny Flowers, the starting fullback, is coming off a career high 136 yards in 20 carries against Maryland, and has 516 yards for the season.

While Eppley will go down as one of Clemson's greatest quarterbacks ever, William Perry certainly should go down in history as his counterpart on defense. He needs just two quarterback sacks to establish a new ACC record for career sacks, he has 23 and Mike Corvino of Maryland had 24. He also needs just one tackle for loss to break Randy White's 10-year-old ACC record for tackles for loss in a season. Perry and White both stand at 24. Last week Perry became the league's career leader in tackles behind the line of scrimmage. The list can go on and on.

So, the records are there to be broken, team and individual, for both teams. And, we haven't even mentioned the bragging rights and all the other intangibles involved in the Clemson-South Carolina game. There really isn't any need to because this game has been hyped enough all week.

Players will hit harder, fans will yell louder and in general all involved will give everything they have in this one. It should be quite a spectacle, even one President Reagan would enjoy viewing.

Reggie Pleasant

By David Webb

THE SCENE: October 28, 1984. A hot, muggy afternoon at Carter-Finley Stadium just outside of Raleigh, NC. In what had been a see-saw battle, Clemson was holding a 35-34 lead over N.C. State, but the Wolfpack was driving with the ball at the Tigers’ 11-yard line.

THE PLAY: State quarterback Tim Esposito took the snap and dropped back as two red- jerseyed Wolves made their way towards the left section of the endzone. Esposito fired the ball just to see a white-jerseyed Tiger leap into the air and pull down the interception, snuffing State’s drive.

THE RESULT: Neither team scored from that point on, and the Clemson defense held in the last minute to save the 35-34 victory.

THE PLAYER: Reggie Pleasant.

Reggie Pleasant, a soft-spoken senior from Pinewood, reminds the above scenario well. Along with the Maryland game of 1982, the 1984 game against N.C. State ranks as his most memorable game. In both of those contests, he had a key interception and a number of tackles, as well as a record four passes broken up against the ‘Pack and a humble recovery against the Terps.

In reference to his game-saving play of this season, Pleasant said, “That is a set play from practice. The offense sends two receivers to the endzone. If you react too soon, you’ll get burned for a TD, but if you stay cool and watch the quarterback, you can usually tell what he’s going to do. I had no idea how important this interception would prove to be later on, I just knew that we had stopped the Wolfpack short of the endzone and hopefully had given the Clemson offense some momentum.”

Pleasant is unique among starters in that he is a walk-on to the team, not a recruit. From his days at Furman High School under Coach James Gist, where he played defensive back and running back, Pleasant knew that he wanted to play at Clemson. The game that impressed Pleasant the most was the 1978 Gator Bowl, in which the Tigers defeated Ohio State, 17-15. A subsequent campus visit confirmed Pleasant’s desires. “When I came here for a visit, the students and players were so friendly — that told me I wanted to come to Clemson,” Pleasant said, who has set a Clemson single-season record for passes broken up this year.

In coming to Tigertown, Reggie passed up several offers from other schools that would have given him sure opportunities to play on the team. Still, he came to Clemson to major in mechanical engineering and to face the odds as a walk-on. The coaches didn’t know him. The players didn’t know him. Reggie Pleasant had just begun to fight.

“The main thing I had to do was have confidence in myself as a player so I could compete against the recruits. I had to believe in myself before the coaches could believe in me.” While that competition got discouraging from time to time, it also served as motivation for Pleasant to strive just that much more to succeed.

The result is Clemson’s starting right cornerback and the ACC’s leader in passes broken up. Furthermore, the cornerback position is one of the toughest in which to play. The cornerback is lined up on the outside of the formation and is susceptible to both the run and the pass. He must be able to hit the running back should there be an outside rush or be there to defend against the pass. The cornerback never knows what to expect, and must, therefore, be prepared for anything.

One of Pleasant’s biggest assets is his self-discipline. He graduated second in his class at Furman High and plans to graduate on time this May — something many regular students fail to do. Additionally, he has the rigorous schedule of daily practices and weekly games.

A good deal of that discipline came from his family. One of 14 children, Pleasant has seven brothers and six sisters. As children he and his brothers played football and basketball together. Pleasant believes that the good times and the hard times drew his family close.

So, what is next for Reggie Pleasant? His first priority is to get his degree, but he would also like to keep playing football for a few more years. “I’ll see how things go in the USFL draft in January, or in the NFL’s spring draft,” Pleasant said. In the meantime he plans to sleep more, work out with weights, and stay in shape. If he doesn’t make the pros, then he’s ready for an engineering career.

Reggie Pleasant’s key to success is to always take work seriously. “Things may not go your way all the time,” he said, “but if you have the desire, determination, and dedication, it all pays off in the end.” He thanks God for his ability and he thanks Jessica Graham, his girlfriend, to whom he offers a special thanks in today’s program for her support throughout his career.

So, just around the corner awaits the soft-spoken senior from Pinewood. But beware, although he’s soft-spoken, his non-verbal communication speaks with the volume of a frenzied Clemson crowd.

THE RESULT: Neither team scored from that point on, and the Clemson defense held in the last minute to save the 35-34 victory.

THE PLAYER: Reggie Pleasant.

Reggie Pleasant, a soft-spoken senior from Pinewood, reminds the above scenario well. Along with the Maryland game of 1982, the 1984 game against N.C. State ranks as his most memorable game. In both of those contests, he had a key interception and a number of tackles, as well as a record four passes broken up against the ‘Pack and a humble recovery against the Terps.

In reference to his game-saving play of this season, Pleasant said, “That is a set play from practice. The offense sends two receivers to the endzone. If you react too soon, you’ll get burned for a TD, but if you stay cool and watch the quarterback, you can usually tell what he’s going to do. I had no idea how important this interception would prove to be later on, I just knew that we had stopped the Wolfpack short of the endzone and hopefully had given the Clemson offense some momentum.”

Pleasant is unique among starters in that he is a walk-on to the team, not a recruit. From his days at Furman High School under Coach James Gist, where he played defensive back and running back, Pleasant knew that he wanted to play at Clemson. The game that impressed Pleasant the most was the 1978 Gator Bowl, in which the Tigers defeated Ohio State, 17-15. A subsequent campus visit confirmed Pleasant’s desires. “When I came here for a visit, the students and players were so friendly — that told me I wanted to come to Clemson,” Pleasant said, who has set a Clemson single-season record for passes broken up this year.

In coming to Tigertown, Reggie passed up several offers from other schools that would have given him sure opportunities to play on the team. Still, he came to Clemson to major in mechanical engineering and to face the odds as a walk-on. The coaches didn’t know him. The players didn’t know him. Reggie Pleasant had just begun to fight.

“The main thing I had to do was have confidence in myself as a player so I could compete against the recruits. I had to believe in myself before the coaches could believe in me.” While that competition got discouraging from time to time, it also served as motivation for Pleasant to strive just that much more to succeed.

The result is Clemson’s starting right cornerback and the ACC’s leader in passes broken up. Furthermore, the cornerback position is one of the toughest in which to play. The cornerback is lined up on the outside of the formation and is susceptible to both the run and the pass. He must be able to hit the running back should there be an outside rush or be there to defend against the pass. The cornerback never knows what to expect, and must, therefore, be prepared for anything.

One of Pleasant’s biggest assets is his self-discipline. He graduated second in his class at Furman High and plans to graduate on time this May — something many regular students fail to do. Additionally, he has the rigorous schedule of daily practices and weekly games.

A good deal of that discipline came from his family. One of 14 children, Pleasant has seven brothers and six sisters. As children he and his brothers played football and basketball together. Pleasant believes that the good times and the hard times drew his family close.

So, what is next for Reggie Pleasant? His first priority is to get his degree, but he would also like to keep playing football for a few more years. “I’ll see how things go in the USFL draft in January, or in the NFL’s spring draft,” Pleasant said. In the meantime he plans to sleep more, work out with weights, and stay in shape. If he doesn’t make the pros, then he’s ready for an engineering career.

Reggie Pleasant’s key to success is to always take work seriously. “Things may not go your way all the time,” he said, “but if you have the desire, determination, and dedication, it all pays off in the end.” He thanks God for his ability and he thanks Jessica Graham, his girlfriend, to whom he offers a special thanks in today’s program for her support throughout his career.

So, just around the corner awaits the soft-spoken senior from Pinewood. But beware, although he’s soft-spoken, his non-verbal communication speaks with the volume of a frenzied Clemson crowd.

Fulbright Scholars

By Catherine Sams

It would hardly be news if Clemson were to beat Harvard or Yale on the football field. But with this year’s record-setting success in the fierce competition for Fulbright Scholarships, Clemson has topped the Ivy League at its own game.

Six undergraduate students were nominated by Clemson’s honors program for the prestigious academic scholarships and all six received grants — a percentage termed "phenomenal" by Fulbright officials.

"I’ve never heard of a school having 100 percent unless they only had one nominee," says Georgette Gelormini, spokesperson for the Fulbright Foundation. "Not even Harvard and Yale had that kind of ratio."

The students, all members of the graduating class of 1984, are: Katherine Cole of Marietta, Ga.; Russell Caldwell of Crosswicks, N.J.; Kathy Heinsohn of Folly Beach; Annette House of Sumter and Mooresown, N.J.; Deborah Savage of Columbia; and Nancy Snow of Greenville.

"I was proud the day we won the national football championship in 1981," president Bill Atchley said when the grants were announced, "but I’ve never been prouder than the day I heard about these awards."

The Fulbright Scholars program, created in 1947, is an international student exchange program that aims to promote mutual understanding between Americans and citizens of other nations.

The grants permit students to spend two to 10 months studying abroad. More than 800 awards were given in 1984 by the Council for International Exchange of Scholars, funded through the U.S. Information Agency.

Cole, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cole, is studying in Paris. The foreign language major is teaching English to French students.

Caldwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Jack Caldwell, majored in history and German at Clemson and will concentrate on early 20th century German literature during his studies at Gesamthochschule Siegen.

Heinsohn, who received her degree in zoology, is studying marine biology at the University of Gottingen and the university’s field station on the Island of Sylt. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Heinsohn Jr.

House, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton L. House, is spending a year at the Technical University in Berlin. She majored in textile chemistry at Clemson.

Snow, a political science graduate, is studying at Bayreuth University in West Germany. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Snow.

These students have set a new standard for Clemson’s honors program, which supervises the Fulbright program on campus. Program director Jack Stevenson fears it may be hard in years ahead not to feel a bit of a letdown over a “mere” two or three recipients.

"We won’t be alone, though. These six students have set a new standard for every leading university," he says. "Even if we don’t make it some years, we’ll have the consolation of knowing that we still hold the record everyone else is trying to match."

YOU DON’T GET TO THE TOP BY JUST PLAYING GAMES.

It takes hard work and a lot of practice. And it takes a commitment to being the best. The kind of commitment Clemson students, faculty and alumni have also brought to their positions on the Stevens team throughout the years.

Students filling jobs in nearby plants. Faculty providing continuing education and valuable research. And alumni in management roles.

For years we’ve worked together to create quality fabrics. Having Clemson on our side has helped keep us at the top, too.
President
Bill Atchley

Clemson President Bill L. Atchley has an impressive list of credentials and accomplishments. He is also known as a very down-to-earth, plainspoken individualist. In one of his frequent banquet introductions, he was recently described this way: "This man is an aggressive administrator, a supersalesman, an innovative educator, and a talker of good plain common sense."

Since coming here in 1979, Bill Atchley has steered Clemson on a steady course toward becoming one of the Southeast's preeminent universities. Under his leadership, Clemson is also making great strides in developing practical science and technology and adapting it for the good of all South Carolina. But in talking about what has been done at Clemson in the past five years, Bill Atchley always puts the emphasis on "we", not "I". And here is some of what Clemson has accomplished during the Atchley tenure:

- launched strategic planning to develop "centers of excellence," academic programs where Clemson will aim for a national reputation.
- obtained a $1 million Center for VLSI Reliability Research, making Clemson the nation's headquarters for reliability research on very large scale integrated circuits, a key component of the so-called "supercomputers" of the future.
- established the $1 million Abney Chair of Free Enterprise in the College of Commerce and Industry.
- established the Engineering Center for Automated Manufacturing Technology to study robotics and other automation technology.
- established the S.C. Energy Research and Development Center.
- established the Energy and Resource Development Institute, which investigates the management and development of energy resources in the entire Southeast.
- joined with the S.C. Research Authority to create a 210-acre research park near campus to attract high technology industries.
- unveiled plans for The Strom Thurmond Center, a $25 million complex that will contain a performing arts building, a continuing education center, and an institute of government and public affairs.
- launched a multi-year, multi-million-dollar project called "Challenge to Greatness" to raise funds to bolster academic programs and enhance the University's total educational experience.

Also during this period the 15,000-seat upper deck project for the north stands in Memorial Stadium got the nod, and despite four years of one of the nation's worst recessions, Clemson University with Bill Atchley at the helm has raised $18.3 million in private funds for academic programs and boosted the assets of the Clemson Foundation from $3.4 million to $10.3 million.

A Missouri native, Bill Atchley has an ideal background to lead Clemson -- a unique blend of education and experience. He holds B.S. and M.S. degrees in civil engineering from the University of Missouri and an engineering doctorate from Texas A&M. He spent 23 extremely successful years as a college professor, administrator, and engineering dean at the University of Missouri and at West Virginia University before coming to Clemson in 1979. He still owns and oversees operation of a productive 500-acre farm near his birthplace in southern Missouri.

Clemson's president is well-known for his work in the energy field. He was chairman of the Governor's Commission on Energy, Economy and Environment in West Virginia and has served as science and energy advisor to five governors in three states. He holds national-level appointments on the Committee on Fossil Fuels of the U.S. Department of Energy and on the board of directors of the Great Plains Coal Gasification Project, which has federal loan guarantees of $1 billion. At WVU he directed a group that brought a $24 million "fluidized bed" research facility to that campus, and he led a West Virginia business team whose efforts resulted in the selection of the Morgantown area for a $700 million coal conversion plant. He also managed to find time to serve as budget officer for a $63 million Personal Rapid Transit System.

From 1966 to 1975 at the University of Missouri-Rolla, Bill Atchley was the coordinator and liaison between the engineering school and inner-city projects in St. Louis. He also developed the program for the school's doctor of engineering degree, and he designed its professional development degree.

President Atchley has received many honors stemming from his work in engineering and higher education. He is in Who's Who in Engineering Education and is a member of the Academy of Sciences and Outstanding Educators of America. His publications show him to be a leader in assessing society's needs and determining how education can best help the nation and the world.

At one time or another he has been a town alderman, a Rotarian, Chamber of Commerce director, Lions Club member, and local council director for the Boy Scouts of America. He has been chairman of the American Society of Engineering Education in the Midwest, chairman of the Council of Presidents for all public colleges and universities in South Carolina, and is on the board of directors of the American Federal Savings Bank. He is the only college president in America serving on the prestigious U.S. International Sports Committee, whose members include three professional sports commissioners, the president of the American Baseball League and U.S. Olympic Committee, and the publisher of Time magazine.

An active sports enthusiast, Bill Atchley has a superior knowledge of athletics. His expertise is especially proficient in baseball. Before his college days and a stint in the Army, he spent two years as a professional baseball pitcher for the former New York Giants organization. He is one educator who understands intimately the concept of the student-athlete. He himself was an athlete who attended college on an athletic scholarship, yet he recognizes that the role of a university is to build character and to increase knowledge and intellectual abilities in students.

President Atchley and his wife, the former Pat Limbaugh, have three children. Julie is a 26-year-old graduate of Southeast Missouri University and is a special education teacher in the St. Louis school system. Pam, 22, was graduated from Clemson with a degree in engineering last May, while David, 18, is a freshman at Wofford College.

Athletic Director
Bill McLellan

No major university that stresses academic achievement by student-athletes as Clemson does has had a more dynamic, aggressive and forceful impact on the Atlantic Coast Conference and on national intercollegiate athletics in the last 14 years.

That success, across-the-board, in all sports and in the development of funding for a self-sustaining athletic program, parallels the administration of Bill McLellan as athletic director at Clemson University. Working his way up through the ranks after joining the Tiger athletic staff in May 1958, McLellan took on the task of running the whole show in February 1971. Since then the sports information people have not had the luxury of consistently using file photos or existing text material to depict the Clemson athletic complex. At Jerey Athletic Center nothing is more consistent than change.

Brick and mortar, additions to facilities, aesthetic improvements, innovative funding techniques, new ideas and fulfilled dreams have kept writers and cameramen busy chronicling the astigmatic success and growth of Clemson athletics.

In 1971, as McLellan charted a course for athletic excellence, IPTAY was providing $400,000 annually for scholarships. Today, it is reaching $5 million a year for athletic and academic enrichment. As Executive Director of IPTAY, McLellan insists that his fund raisers maintain an endowment to assure that all commitments to Clemson athletes who wear the orange and white are met.

He has blended private support, gate receipts and consortium with state banks to make Clemson Memorial Stadium the showplace for a national football champion. Soccer, baseball, tennis, swimming, track, and wrestling all have facilities that others seek to emulate. In Littlejohn Coliseum, NCAA and NIT banners proudly proclaim that excellence in the two major revenue sports, football and basketball, can coexist. In all, Clemson competes in 17 NCAA Division I programs — 11 men’s and 6 women’s — and conference titles, as well as national ranking are growing consistently in number. Record crowds watch the Tigers in action personally and millions more see the excitement of paw power on regional and national television.

Bill McLellan’s theory for success is simple ... “the Clemson family.” He asserts that those who care for this Institution — alumni, friends, business and industry — can accomplish any task, meet any goal so long as they pull together in the best interest of Clemson University.

The pace he sets belie his 52 years, but his wife, Ann, will attest to his busy schedule that allows few opportunities for an afternoon on the lake, a family gathering or a quiet evening at home. But there’s not a closer “Clemson family” than Bill and Ann Rogers McLellan, daughter Susy, a Winthrop alumna, Cliff and Bill, Clemson grads and Arch Anna, now a senior at Winthrop.

A native of Hamer, SC and a Dillon football recruit of Frank Howard, McLellan earned two football letters at Clemson and was on the 1952 Gator Bowl team. He earned his bachelors degree in 1954 and added a masters in agricultural economics in 1956. In June 1982 the Clemson University Alumni Association recognized him with the highest honor it can bestow — the Clemson Alumni Distinguished Service Award. Head Coach
Danny Ford

What do Oklahoma's Barry Switzer, Penn State's Joe Paterno, Nebraska's Tom Osborne, Clemson's Danny Ford and Michigan's Bo Schembechler all have in common? Sure, they're all head football coaches in Division I colleges, but there is one other thing that puts these men above the other 98 head coaches in Division I-A schools.

When it comes to winning football games, they are the nation's five best, and it seems only fitting that Clemson's own Danny Ford would be ranked fourth on that list. After just six years as Clemson's head coach, Ford has a .793 winning percentage.

Ford and the Tigers have also won 91.2 percent of their games over the past three seasons, the best three-year record in the nation and the best three-year record in Clemson history.

And the achievements continue. The Tigers have totally dominated the ACC, winning their last 19 games against conference foes. Only Nebraska can claim three straight seasons of undefeated play against its conference teams.

It's no wonder to Clemson fans that Ford has been ranked as one of the nation's best coaches. The 36-year-old Gadsden, AL, native came to Clemson in January, 1977, as assistant head coach and offensive line coach under the then head coach Charley Pell. Then December 10, 1978, Pell relinquished the head coaching duties of the 1978 Gator Bowl to Ford, and since that time the Tigers have compiled a 45-11-2 record.

But Ford did not discover his winning attitude at Clemson; he brought it with him. Including his years as a player at Alabama under the late Bear Bryant, he has been associated with college football for the last 18 years. Fourteen of those clubs have had winning records and 11 have gone to bowl games. Additionally, the 18 teams have had a record of 124-47-3, a .720 winning percentage.

Ford came to Clemson and promptly led the Tigers to their first ever national championship in 1981 — the pinnacle in college football. He was deservedly named national Coach of the Year by United Press International, Station WTBS in Atlanta, Pigskin Club of Washington, American Football Coaches Association, Washington Touchdown Club, Columbus (Ohio) Touchdown Club, Atlanta Touchdown Club and Football Writers Association of America. He was also the youngest coach (33) ever to take a team to the National Championship.

Since that time the Tigers have posted a winning percentage of .912, losing only two games in three years. Crowds filled Death Valley so often to watch Clemson defeat teams during the last six years that the stadium has been enlarged twice and is now the nation's tenth largest stadium and South Carolina's largest, seating 78,915.

With this list of accomplishments, it is easy to see that the Clemson University Board of Trustees was right when announcing that Ford should take the reins of head coach six years ago. The Board's Student Affairs Committee considered only one name for the job and after two meetings between Ford and the committee on the morning of December 5, 1978, it was the unanimous opinion of the committee that Ford should be named as Clemson's 21st head coach. Nearly 40 years after hiring 31-year-old Frank Howard, Clemson had hired a gifted 30-year-old Alabama graduate to lead the Tiger forces on the gridiron.

Ford began his association with college football in 1967 when he started for Bear Bryant as Ken Stabler's sophomore tight end. He played three years for Bryant (including three wins against Clemson) and was an All-Southeastern Conference choice, All-SEC academic selection and team captain during his senior season.

After receiving his B.S. degree in industrial arts in 1970, Ford remained at Alabama as a graduate assistant for the 1970 and 1971 seasons. Upon earning a master's degree in special education in 1971, he was made a full-time assistant under Bryant for the 1972 and 1973 seasons. The Tide went to four more post-season games while Ford was on the staff.

Ford then accepted a position as an assistant coach on Jimmy Sharp's staff at Virginia Tech. He remained in Blacksburg for three seasons (1974-1976), before he came to Clemson under Charley Pell, who had just been named the Tigers' head coach. Pell and Ford had served together on the VPI staff for two seasons.

And only 23 games later, Ford became head coach of the Tigers at age 30, the youngest Division I head coach in the nation, and went on to prove that age has nothing to do with experience or winning.

In Times Like These, How Do You Keep Businesses Going, Farms Growing, Wheels Turning, Kids Learning, Teams Competing, And Ends Meeting?

It takes work. And careful planning. But you can do the things you need to do. Make it a good life for yourself and the people you love. Make it an even better, brighter future. And you don't have to do it alone.

We'll help. With all the banking services you need. Whether you're just starting out with your first job, first home, first baby. Or you're already established and looking for ways to make the most of what you've accomplished.

But there's more to it than just providing the services you need now. There's the promise that we'll grow with you. Refining services to help you cope with change. Developing new ones to help you get ahead.

So you can come to C&S. And stay with C&S. Like thousands of folks all across South Carolina. They're still building, growing, and achieving, despite the up and down, round and round times we live in.

But that doesn't come as a surprise. After all, every one of them is a Financial Wizard.

Assistant Coaches

Don Denning is in his fourth season with the Clemson staff. The deep secondary coach and north Georgia recruiter joined the Tigers on July 1, 1981. He has previously served Western Carolina as defensive coordinator and assistant athletic director, Memphis State as assistant head coach, and Delta State University as head coach. Denning graduated from Presbyterian College in 1960 and received a master's degree from Western Carolina in 1969.

Tom Harper, the Tigers’ assistant head coach, came to Clemson from Virginia Tech’s coaching staff on Feb. 2, 1981. The native of Piqua, OH served as the defensive coordinator for Virginia Tech, North Carolina, Iowa State and Wake Forest, where he was head coach in 1972. Harper graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1955 and received his master’s degree at the same school in 1958. Eight of his former players have signed pro contracts in the last three years.

Les Herrin has coached the Tiger linebackers for the past three years. He is also responsible for recruiting the lower part of South Carolina. He joined the staff on Feb. 9, 1981 from Appalachian State where he was defensive coordinator. The 1971 Western Carolina graduate captained the Catamounts in 1970 and was named the team’s MVP in 1971.

Lawson Holland was a reserve quarterback for the Tigers from 1970-73, which makes him the only current coach who played Clemson football. In his seventh year, Holland is in charge of receivers and recruiting Virginia, Washington, D.C., and central North Carolina. The Mooresville, N.C., native earned his B.A. in secondary education from Clemson in 1975.

Woody McCorvey is the newest member of the Tiger coaching staff, he is in his second year of coaching the tight ends. He came to Clemson from Alabama A&M where he was the defensive coordinator for four years. The 1972 Alabama State graduate lettered four years in football at the school before earning his physical education degree. He then received a masters degree in health, leisure and sports from the University of West Florida in 1977.

Chuck Reedy has coached Clemson’s running backs for the past six years. The St. Augustine, FL, native also recruits for the Tigers in southeast South Carolina, south Georgia and Florida. He earned two letters in football from Appalachian State where he graduated in 1971 with a degree in health and physical education. He came to Clemson from Kentucky on July 5, 1978.

Nelson Stokley has been the Tigers’ offensive coordinator for the past four years. He came to Clemson on January 18, 1980 after serving as offensive coordinator for Virginia Tech. The 1968 graduate of LSU was the school’s starting quarterback from 1965-67 and then served the fine southern institution as an assistant coach from 1968-75.

Larry Van Der Heyden has coached some fine offensive linemen during his five years at Clemson and is a major reason why the Tigers’ ground game has been so successful. The offensive line coach joined the staff on January 5, 1979 from Memphis State where he was offensive coordinator for three years. He has also served stints at Iowa State, Drake, Indiana State, East Carolina and Virginia. He earned his B.A. and masters degrees at Iowa State and lettered three years in football and baseball.

Tommy West coaches the defensive ends and recruits middle and south Georgia for the Tigers. He is in his third year at Clemson, he came from Appalachian State University on July 10, 1982. The Gainesville, GA, native earned his B.S. degree in health education from the University of Tennessee in 1975 after lettering three years in football and baseball for the Volunteers. A fine all-around athlete, he was drafted out of high school by baseball’s Chicago Cubs.
making this moment possible

The role Clemson Alumni and Friends play in helping make this moment possible at Clemson University is one of the greatest investments you can make in America’s future.

The Clemson University Annual Fund... CUAF! It’s the way you can become a stockholder of this enterprise. If you care for Clemson, no matter if you never attended a class here, we invite you to become a partner with us. Make a gift to Clemson this year and every year. It’s an investment that keeps on giving. The CUAF... working for Clemson every day.
IPTAY

IPTAY has begun the second 50 years of a long and successful journey. From a very modest beginning in 1934 with only 162 members, this athletic scholarship fund-raising group has grown into 20,000 loyal Tiger supporters. IPTAY is recognized as the “Number-One” group of its kind in America. But what is behind the success of IPTAY?

The reason is people — people who are committed to a successful program at Clemson University, both on and off the field. Professors, athletes, administrators, managers, trainers, alumni, and friends all play a part in this success. The results which have been produced are something we can all be proud of in this search for excellence at Clemson University.

The on-going search for excellence in the academic area at Clemson University has resulted in the awarding of the Fulbright Scholarship for graduates to study overseas to 5 of 6 Clemson applicants. In addition, a Guggenheim Scholarship was awarded to another Clemson graduate. Of the 320 valedictorians in South Carolina high schools, over 120 were accepted to Clemson University. Furthermore, a building program is being instituted on campus that will include a new chemistry building, as well as the expansion of several other departments.

That search for excellence is further exemplified by the efforts of the 20,000 IPTAY members who contributed to the total of $5.1 million in 1983. These monies enabled over 440 athletes, managers, and trainers to receive scholarship aid to attend Clemson.

These athletes also have the strong commitment to excellence that Clemson supporters both deserve and desire. The Tiger football team has the best three-year record in college football at 30-2-2. Soccer, men’s cross country, women’s cross country, baseball, men’s tennis, and women’s tennis were all Top 20 teams, while men’s cross country, women’s and men’s tennis were conference champions in 1983-84. Swimming and wrestling enjoyed their best seasons ever. There were 13 All-Americans and 56 all-conference performers competing for Clemson, in addition to the 18 athletes that qualified for the Olympic trials. There is no doubt that Clemson athletics enjoyed one of its best years ever.

IPTAY certainly was a major reason for these accomplishments. But, what is IPTAY other than scholarships? And, how has Clemson University benefited from these 50 years of service? The Clemson IPTAY Club has a board of directors led by President Bill Reaves, Vice President Lawrence Starkey, and Secretary-Treasurer Jim Patterson. Under the direction of these men, the main purpose of IPTAY continues to be raising monies for athletic scholarships. Thanks to the foresight of Athletic Director Bill McElrath and the support of the Board of Directors, many improvements have taken place on campus which are of benefit, not only to athletes and fans of athletics, but to the academic area of our University as well.

Specific areas of improvement include installing lights on Riggs Field; building a new baseball facility, with lights to be added in 1985; funding Tiger Band travel; funding the annual Sport and Society Symposium; donating over $200,000 to the President’s Fund; and developing the East Beach area enjoyed by all Clemson students.

The attitude of Clemson people, especially those associated with IPTAY, is that “success is a journey, not a destination.” The search for excellence continues at Clemson and, thanks to the continued support of 20,000 IPTAY supporters, the excellence in athletics will continue. As IPTAY begins the second 50 years of service to Clemson, one may wonder what the future holds.

According to Joe Turner, Executive Secretary of IPTAY, “the love, sincerity, and support of the Clemson people give a unique quality to Clemson. It is for this reason the success the Tigers now enjoy will continue.”

After 22 consecutive years of record-breaking support, there is no doubt that Clemson will remain “NUMBER ONE.”

Thank you, IPTAY.

Twenty points awarded for first place, 19 for second, 18 for third, etc.

For the fifth time in the last six years the Clemson all-around sports program has been ranked in the top 10 in the nation. The survey, conducted by the Knoxville Journal, takes into account national rankings in selected sports. Women's sports are not included in this poll, which has been in existence since 1971.

This poll is a good index of the rise of Clemson athletics over the years. The Tigers were first ranked in the survey in 1975-76 with a number-20 finish. In the 1978-79 poll, Clemson climbed to fourth, and in 1979-80 gained a number-three ranking, the school's highest ever. Three years ago Clemson was fourth and in 1981-82 the Tigers picked up the number-five rating.

Last year five Clemson sports were top 20 teams, headed by the cross country team's number-four rating. The ranking was the highest recorded by the Tiger harriers, and Coach Stan Narewski was rewarded with National Co-Coach-of-the-Year honors. The Clemson football and soccer teams were 11th in final polls, which gave Clemson the lead in the poll after the fall. But tennis and golf were Clemson's only top 20 teams thereafter.

Lady Tiger teams also had a good year. The women's cross country team was seventh nationally, while the women's tennis team was 15th in the final poll.

You can use Marvess Olefin yarn for more fabrics than you thought...

for less money than you think.

As the most extensive product line in terms of colors and deniers, Phillips Marvess olefin multifilament yarn sets the standard for the upholstery industry. But this technically superior yarn also has a wide variety of other fabric applications.

Fabrics for window curtains, shower curtains, drapes, mattress ticking, indoor/outdoor furniture covering, bedspreads. The list goes on and on.

So do the benefits of using this strong, yet lightweight yarn. For example, Marvess olefin has the lowest specific gravity of any fiber, which reduces the number of ends and picks needed per square inch. Thus it produces more yards per pound of fabric. And that means big savings to you.

Our non-allergenic, fade-resistant yarn also has extremely low moisture absorption, so less energy is required in the drying process—which means additional savings. And because of its high strength, wet or dry, fabrics don't need to be overconstructed.

Last, but certainly not least, Phillips Fibers has the largest plant capacity in the U.S. devoted exclusively to producing textile olefin filament yarns for the home furnishings industry. And the price is competitive, but then, that's what you'd expect from one of the performance companies.

For more information and service that's second to none, contact Olefin Fibers Marketing, Phillips Fibers Corporation, P.O. Box 66, Greenville, SC 29602. Call: 803/242-6600.

Clemson Visitors Center Offers Front Door to Campus

For visitors to Clemson University, the new Visitors Center offers recreational information, travel and entertainment directions and, most importantly, an introduction to the state's land-grant university, all in an atmosphere of orange carpet hospitality. For those who are considering investing the next few years of their lives in the university, the center, with its audio-visual displays, guided tours and numerous services, is a priceless source of information and orientation.

Located in historic Tillman Hall, at the gateway to the university, the center is the first stop for tourists as well as prospective students and their families. It provides information on everything from university programs and student life to recreational activities, travel directions and shopping.

"The university has needed a focal point for visitor information services for a long time," says John Allen, director of Clemson's visitor programs.

The Visitors Center has met that need. Since opening in June, the center has served more than 1,300 people from 33 states and seven foreign countries. And each person has gotten his full share of Clemson hospitality.

"Every visitor represents a new opportunity to let people know about the university and what it means to South Carolina and this region," Allen says.

Staffing the center are Janis Moore, manager, and Joy Skelton, assistant manager. Both know the Clemson area well.

The Moore family lived in Clemson for five years during the 1960s when Janis' father was head of the civil engineering department. After graduating from Clemson in 1967, Janis earned a master's of English from the University of Virginia in 1970. Last fall she left a teaching career in Virginia to become manager of the Visitors Center.

Joy Skelton graduated from Clemson in 1981 with a bachelor's degree in political science. After graduation, she served in positions with the Registrar's Office and the IPTAY Office before becoming the Visitors Center's assistant manager.

Campus tours conducted by the professional staff and the student University Guide Service branch out from the new center to explore Clemson's numerous landmarks, such as Fort Hill, home of John C. Calhoun and university founder Thomas Green Clemson.

Visitors also can see Hanover House, the 18th century home of French Huguenot Paul de St. Julien. Originally constructed in Berkeley County in 1716, the house was rebuilt on the Clemson campus in 1941.

Tours also include Memorial Stadium, the largest college football facility east of the Mississippi. And for visitors who would rather relax in the grass and enjoy the scenery, the horticulture gardens feature 70 acres of ornamental azaleas, camellias, wildflowers and natural wonders along numerous foot trails.

Self-guided audio-cassette tours are provided by the Visitors Center and specialized group tours of the university, Calhoun Mansion and Hanover House are available upon request.

"We want the center to be the front door to the campus," says Allen. "And we want it known that our door is always open."
Clemson University has established a licensing program to protect the use of the University’s name and insignias. Our proud heritage has created a demand by University students, fans, and alumni for products bearing the name and logos of our University to show their allegiance.

Our program is designed to protect the quality and integrity of products bearing the name and registered marks of our institution. Formal procedures for approval of products, artwork, and quality control of merchandise is in place.

We urge you to look for and buy officially Licensed Collegiate Products. A hangtag should be attached to all merchandise that has been approved by our University. We need and appreciate your cooperation.

If you have any questions or comments concerning this program, please contact Mr. R. Allison Dalton, P.O. Box 31, Clemson, S.C. 29633 or telephone (803) 656-2213.

Clemson's Finest Class

By Jill Mixon

"I made up my mind that Clemson was the place I wanted to play football after the 1980 South Carolina game," recalled Dale Hatcher, the Tigers' outstanding senior punter. "It's really hard to explain the feeling I experienced when I saw the team run down the hill in orange pants for the first time. It was overwhelming to see all the orange that all the fans wore and listen to the deafening roar of the crowd as Clemson upset USC. I told Coach Ford right after the game that I really wanted to come here to school."

Dale Hatcher was one of several high school football recruits that took more than a passing interest in the 1980 Clemson-South Carolina contest, as the decisions those recruits made would determine which school they would offer their football talents. For 10 high school seniors and 14 freshmen red-shirts the 1980 Tiger-Gamecock clash set the tone for things to come.

Now four years later after a lot of hard work, dedication and sheer determination the Clemson football Class of '84 stands near the head of the class among its peers as the nation's winningest class. The Tigers own a 37-5-2 record for a .864 winning percentage, just behind SMU. This senior class of Clemson football players has tied an ACC record for wins by one class and has the most wins ever against ACC schools.

Tom Harper, Tiger defensive coordinator, has been in coaching for over 20 years now, and he has a special bond with this senior group. Harper remarked, "I came to Clemson in the spring of 1981, so I feel like I'm a senior with this bunch. During my coaching career I have never seen a group that has given so much, but received so little in return. They have given of themselves time and time again regardless of the situation, and its truly unfortunate that they haven't been rewarded with more bowl appearances. But, they do have 37 wins right now, and I'm still counting."

Tiger fans are still counting the accolades this senior class has captured. During the Class of '84's tenure, Clemson was crowned National Champions, recorded the best ACC record for three consecutive seasons, walked away with the conference championship twice, and had three top 20 finishes in as many years.

But, all these accomplishments could not have been reached without determination and dedication. Head Trainer Fred Hoover, who has seen many Clemson teams come and go during his 26 years at Clemson, reflected on the past four years. "They are a great class that has had to overcome a lot of adversity. But, the pride is still there. They've played for themselves, their families, and Clemson University. They've worked too hard 2nd Best Winning Percentage in the nation as a class.

Undefeated in Death Valley heading into this week.
Ranked in the AP Top 20 37 times in the four seasons.
Has scored more points than any class in Clemson history.
Winningest Clemson and ACC class in history on total wins and winning percentage basis.

One of the reasons the Tigers have been so successful is because of one of “master recruiter” Chuck Reedy's prized recruiting “gems”, William Perry. “We knew about William since he was in the ninth grade. He had been on our mailing list and coming to our summer camp and games for several years, so he was well educated about us, and we knew a lot about him. William is very close to his family and we knew he wanted to stay close to home (Aiken, SC) so his family would be able to see him play. At least, that was one mark in our favor. We were just very fortunate that Clemson was his choice,” explained Reedy.

Reedy is in his seventh year on the Clemson staff and he remembers the Tiger Class of 1978. “When you talk about sheer offensive talent it’s hard to measure up to the Class of ’78. We had Steve Fuller, Jerry Butler, Dwight Clark, and the Bostic brothers playing that year, all NFL starters now. The problem with that class was they didn’t learn to win until they were juniors.

“The ’84 group just doesn’t know how to lose. They came in as a winner and they will go out as a winner.”

Senior wide receiver Richard Butler’s brother Jerry was a senior on that team that Reedy spoke of so highly. Butler explained, “When Jerry first came here they weren’t winning a lot of games. Then back in 1977-78 they started a winning trend that we’re still proud of. I felt fortunate that we’ve won so many games and I feel like everybody has contributed in some kind of way to the trend that Jerry’s team started.”

It has been said that something worth having is worth waiting for, and Clemson certainly had to wait for quarterback Mike Eppley. Tiger assistant coach Larry Van Der Heyden signed Eppley out of Harding High School in Charlotte in 1980 in late spring. “We knew when we went after Eppley that he wanted to play both football and basketball in the ACC. And, we also knew that he really wanted to get a good education, but what we didn’t know was that it was going to take us so long to sign him.

“His basketball team was having a real good year and ended up in the state playoffs. By this time all the other coaches had signed all their recruits and had already left Clemson to go to Myrtle Beach with their wives to enjoy a few days away from the office. But not me. I was still in Charlotte watching the State basketball tournament. But, it paid off for us when we finally landed Eppley,” offered Van Der Heyden.

Not everybody in this senior class was recruited so actively. “When I saw Clemson beat Ohio State in the Gator Bowl in 1978, I knew I wanted to be part of that high flying defense,” said senior defensive back Reggie Pleasant. “I became very determined and confident and set my sights on walking on the team in 1980. Little did I know I would later earn a scholarship and be a part of a National Championship team.” Not only has he played well, Pleasant set a Clemson record for passes broken up this season.

Whether they came as a walk-on or were recruited by 250 schools, they have all made a contribution to the Clemson winning tradition over the past four seasons. Thank you seniors!

This Day In Tiger Football

By Sam Blackman

The typical football season finale brings thrilling and exciting games with rivalries being renewed, bragging rights being settled, and stadiums overflowing with people. These are just some of the characteristics of a season ending game that makes the game of college football a great American game. On this date, November 24, Clemson has played in some classic season finales.

1898 - On November 24 of this year, Clemson met Georgia Tech for the first time on the gridiron. The Clemson team anticipated a close and hotly contested game, but the Thanksgiving Day contest at Augusta, GA was just the opposite. The most interesting feature of this game was the miraculous goal-line stand made by the Clemson defense.

"With Tech only six inches from the Tigers' goal line, the Clemson men made a fearless goal-line stand. Three times the Yellow Jackets tried to score but were unsuccessful," stated the Greenville News. This changed the momentum and Clemson dominated the rest of the game, 23-0.

1900 - Clemson met and defeated Virginia Tech on Thanksgiving at Charlotte's Latta Field on this date 84 years ago.

Virginia Tech struck first in this contest when Carpenter kicked a 27-yard field goal to give VPI a 5-0 lead. Later in the half, Clemson's Claude Doubie went through the middle to give the Tigers a 6-5 advantage.

In the second half Clemson broadened its lead to 12-5 when Jim Lynah went straight through the Hokie line for 30 yards and a touchdown. A few minutes later the game was called on account of darkness at the request of Virginia Tech.

1910 - Georgia Tech broke a three-game losing streak as 6,000 fans saw Georgia Tech defeat Clemson easily 34-0 in Atlanta. Georgia Tech's Head Coach John Heisman started six substitutes and five regulars in this contest. Tech's H.W. Patterson made runs of one and seven yards for two of the Yellow Jacket's six touchdowns scored on this Thanksgiving day.

1938 - Clemson did all its scoring in the second quarter to defeat Furman on Thanksgiving Day 10-7 before 12,500 fans at Riggs Field. Clemson's Banks McArthur spearheaded the attack as he ran for 65 yards, including a six-yard touchdown off tackle to lead Clemson to victory. Clemson's Ben Pearson's field goal from 18 yards out proved to be the winning points, as Furman scored seven points in the fourth quarter.

1945 - In the 1945 edition of the November 24 game, Clemson and Georgia Tech met in Atlanta. Frank Howard, Clemson's head mentor, called it "The toughest game of the year." Georgia Tech's Head Coach Bobby Dodd stated before the game that he would start the second team, and it was rumored that Tech did not even scout the Tigers. Butch Butler, who was on a 45-day leave from the Army, scored two touchdowns for Clemson before 20,000 people. Frank Howard said he asked the general for a 45-day leave for Butler because he had the days numbers that he needed him during the football season. Clemson won this World War II battle 21-7.

1951 - Clemson rallied late in the game and scored four times in the last quarter to defeat Auburn 34-0 before a Homecoming crowd of 18,500 at Clemson. The Tigers scored in the first half as Billy Hair threw a five-yard pass to Glenn Smith to give Clemson a 6-0 lead at halftime. In the fourth quarter Clemson proved unstoppable as Larry Oresette, Glenn Smith, and Archie Baker scored in this Tiger onslaught.

1956 - Charlie Bussey smashed at the middle of the line from a half-yard out to give Clemson a 7-0 lead that they never relinquished and the Tigers held on to win over Virginia. This win also insured Clemson of the ACC crown. The Tigers picked 227 yards rushing on the day.

1962 - Clemson, wearing blue jerseys that were left over from the Sugar Bowl game with LSU in 1958, defeated South Carolina 20-17 in the 60th meeting between the two schools. With the score tied 17-17 Clemson's Rodney Rogers kicked a 24-yard field goal to give Clemson the win.

1979 - In a battle of two nationally-ranked, bowl-bound teams, the only time Clemson and USC have both been ranked in this game, South Carolina defeated Clemson, 13-9. Jay Feltz kicked the Tigers to their fourth with an 80-yard punt with 2:04 left, but Clemson quarterback Billy Lott guided the Tigers to the Gamecock five where a fourth down pass fell incomplete. Obed Ariri scored all of Clemson's points with three field goals.

AIM HIGH!

AIR FORCE ROTC AT CLEMSON
Spirit Blitz

By Al Bynum

How do you top a game in which you set a world's record? Why not set another world's record? And while you are at it, why not make a whole weekend out of it—have an outdoor concert, give away a trip to Mexico and release some balloons?

That's exactly what Clemson did for the Virginia Tech weekend. Sure, it didn't get the national media attention that last year's balloon release got, but it did draw the Clemson family together once again for an unforgettable event. And when you get down to it, what could be better than bringing the Clemson family together?

Spirit Blitz '84 was designed to do exactly what the name indicates—promote spirit. It began on Friday afternoon (November 9) and ended during Saturday’s game with "Flashcard Clemson", a card trick that would have impressed even the organizers of the Summer Olympics Games. And during the twenty-four hours that it lasted, Tiger fans were treated to the type of excitement and enthusiasm that make college athletics so popular.

The extravaganza began with the "Great Hokie Hunt", a search that was spiced with clues hidden throughout the campus and a trip to Cancun, Mexico for the winner. Patterned after the city of Miami's "Tropical Hunt", the Clemson version involved five clues and five hundred participants. It took about three hours before Tim Jones and Jim Dalton, two roommates from Summerville, claimed the prize, which was sponsored by Eastern Airlines, Small World Travel, and the Cancun Sheraton.

A pep rally started the excitement on Friday night, as President Bill Atchley and coaches Danny Ford and Cliff Ellis spoke to and led cheers with the estimated 10,000 people gathered on the intramural fields. An outdoor concert followed as the Spongetones, a popular group from Charlotte, NC, rocked the crowd. According to Mike Hamilton, executive director of Spirit Blitz '84, the concert was well-received and may be tried again next year.

The highlight of the evening was "Lasercast", a spectacular show that has performed everywhere from the 1982 World's Fair to the Empire State Building's 50th birthday party. It was the first appearance for this exhibition in the Carolinas, but it did make a showing at the University of Florida's Gator Growl. The multi-colored exhibition of lights produced a spectacle that those in attendance will not soon forget.

"I would say Friday night was a big success, even more so than expected," says Hamilton. But for Hamilton and many other volunteers, Friday night had just begun. They spent all night taping flashcards to seats in the stadium for Saturday's spectacle.

Saturday began with the "Great Paw Painting", a massive effort inspired by a challenge from the University of Alabama. Crimson Tide supporters had painted a world's-record 8,100 faces prior to their game with Boston College, and they challenged Tiger fans to do better. Although Clemson probably paints that many faces before every game, Spirit Blitz decided to enlarge the effort and then take an official count. As expected, the record was broken as 42,611 faces were painted, over eight times as many as the previous best. "The interesting thing," explains Hamilton, "is that we did not count people already in the stadium and we quit counting at 12:30."

Balloons were the theme of last year's world-record weekend, so the Spirit Blitz people made sure plenty were on hand this year. Twenty-two strands of 950 balloons each draped the field, forming a tunnel for the football team to run through on their way down the hill. The organizers spent three hours blowing up the 21,000 balloons, an effort that was well-rewarded by the resulting spectacle.

But the highlight of the weekend was "Flashcard Clemson", an effort that required participation from everyone in the stadium. The end result was messages such as "Clemson" and "Up-roar '84" being displayed on 81,000 cards, but the work behind the project also deserves mention.

The organizers were told by the people who sponsored the Los Angeles Olympics flashcard show that the cost would be about $58,000, roughly four times that of last year's balloon project. Rather than spend that much money, the Spirit Blitz sponsors organized the show themselves, using computer graphics, a local printer, and student volunteers at much less expense. The effort was a complete success, thanks largely to the hard work of the 1,000 volunteers.

In case you are wondering, Spirit Blitz '84 was financed by donations, the same method that sponsored last year's balloon project. Forty-five thousand IPTAY members, alumni, and parents were each asked to contribute five dollars, with any excess money to be used for an academic scholarship. Heading into last weekend, over $30,000 had already been collected.

In the tradition of the world-record balloon release, Spirit Blitz '84 was a huge success. Mike Hamilton won't guess what next year's student government project will be, but whatever it is, you can bet that it will bring the Clemson family together once again.

WHATEVER THE SEASON THERE'S A REASON FOR S-10 BLAZER.

Chevy S-10 Blazer is that versatile. Lots to carry? Just fold down the optional rear seat for more load length than any full-size sport utility. Tote up to 1,000 lbs., including people and cargo. That's 4-passenger-plus load versatility.

Shift on the fly. S-10 Blazer 4x4 with revolutionary Insta-Trac lets you shift from free-wheeling 2-wheel drive to 4-wheel-drive High and back while driving at any speed.

Tow up to 5,000 lbs. Properly equipped, S-10 Blazer 2WD can tow up to 5,000 lbs.

S-10 4x4 up to 4,000 lbs., including trailer and cargo. Versatile S-10 Blazer. The sport utility that's always in season.

Let's get it together. Buckle up!

Emergency Services

The Clemson University Athletic Department provides the following for your safety and emergency medical needs:

1. Advanced cardiac life-support stations in four locations. (North stands, Upper North deck, South stands, Upper South deck.) These units are staffed with skill-care nurses, physicians, cardiologists, internists, paramedics, and EMTs.

2. Mobile units of EMTs and paramedics are strategically located throughout the entire stadium.

3. Ambulances with life-support equipment are available in North stand and South stand areas and have prearranged routes for evacuation to local hospitals.

Learn to recognize these personnel and facilities.
Announcements will inform you of special hazards – heat, bees, etc.

WHAT TO DO IF EMERGENCIES ARISE
Please step back and give the organized stadium EMS personnel room to work. Well-intentioned attempts to help by untrained persons interferes with the efficiency of the EMS system. If you have basic or advanced training in specific life-support methods, make your qualifications known and offer your help. Untrained personnel can be frequently more harmful than helpful.

MEDICAL ADVICE FOR FANS
If you have a pre-existing medical or health problem, please check with your personal physician and obtain his advice before attending games. Many emergencies occurring at the stadium do so because of prior existing conditions. Use common sense in dressing, eating, drinking and in physical exertion. Be certain if you have any pre-existing medical conditions that you have identification on you as to the diagnosis and what medications you are currently taking.

Be aware of early warning signs of heart attacks: chest pain, chest tightness, shortness of breath, sweating, palpitations, fainting, nausea and vomiting.

Recognize that our most common serious medical problem at football games are heart attacks and allergic reactions to insect stings. Be aware that insect stings will continue to always be very frequent at outdoor sporting events and should always be treated with immediate ice until advice can be obtained. If you have ever had a reaction to bee or other insect sting, check with your personal physician as to whether you should carry a kit.

The stadium emergency phone number is (803) 656-2110.

Clemson players, coaches and fans are famous for mustering up big appetites. That's when they want the best U.S.D.A. Graded Choice heavy grain-fed Western Beef. NOW THERE'S MORE

For the past three years the Orange Aids Catalog Marketing program has made it possible for Clemson Alumni and IPTAY members to shop at home for quality Clemson products. The Orange Aids program provides only officially licensed Clemson products and the proceeds go to support various programs at the University.

NOW THERE'S MORE. The Orange Aids Station is a new retail outlet for Clemson paraphernalia located adjacent to gate 9 on the Northwest corner of Memorial Stadium. The Orange Aids Station is an extension of the Clemson University Bookstore and will display all items which are in the Orange Aids catalog plus a broad selection of products previously available only in the bookstore. You are encouraged to shop in the Orange Aids Station before and after each home football game. The Orange Aids Station will be open each weekday for your convenience.

Seniors In The Crowd

By Maria Farry

Rick Bailey
Melbourne, FL

Bailey, 22, was touted as William Perry’s backup at the beginning of the season and has done quite a bit of work for the Tiger defense this year. Of the five games he has played in this fall, Bailey has earned seven tackles, five of which were first hits and two assists. He had one tackle for a two-yard loss and one sack for two yards, the sack came at Virginia. The 270-pound middle guard saw action in 10 games last fall and had his only tackle in the season opener against Western Carolina. Bailey was red-shirted in 1981 and moved from offensive tackle to his defensive position in the spring of 1981. He is very active in the Real Life Fellowship and is quite adept in public speaking. He attended Eau Gallie High School and had an excellent prep career under Head Coach Larry Canaday.

Ken Brown
Hartwell, GA

Brown, 22, has seen action in 10 games this season and has totaled 22 tackles. He has caused one fumble, had four tackles for loss of 18 yards, and has had two quarterback sacks for 14 yards. He also served as one of the team captains for the Virginia Tech game. In 1983, Brown had his first injury free season and played in all 11 games. He recorded 22 tackles and had his best tackling game against Virginia when he had four first hits and one assist. In January of 1982, he fractured his left knee and had a 16-game string in which he was unable to play. Brown was a 1982 red-shirt, but in 1981 he saw action at strong safety in seven games before a knee injury ended his season. In 1980, he was a backup wide receiver and earned a letter by participating on the suicide squad with the varsity and on the JV team as quarterback and wide out. At Hartwell County High, he passed for 1800 yards and rushed for 2100 during his junior and senior years.

Glenn Chapellear
Greenville, SC

Chapellear, 22, is a junior college transfer from Lees-McRae in North Carolina. While at Lees-McRae, he played football in 1980 and 1981. This season, he has seen action in two games at cornerback and on special teams. In the 1984 Orange-White Spring Game, he recovered a fumble from the defensive back position. Chapellear, who is quite active in many campus activities and organizations, serves as President of the Clemson chapter of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. In his prep career, he lettered in football at Carolina High School in Greenville. As a senior, his team won the conference championship and finished as runnerup in the up-state playoffs. Chapellear is majoring in recreation and parks administration.

Richard Donaldson
Fayetteville, NC

Donaldson, 22, has seen action in every game and has started three at strong safety for the Tigers this season. During the first nine games, he recorded 23 tackles, 12 of which were first hits and 11 assists. One of his tackles was for a four-yard loss and he has broken up one pass this fall. Last season, Donaldson played in all 11 games and recorded a total of 13 stops. Prior to that, he had had only nine career tackles. In 1982, he had six tackles as a special teams player, the third most special team tackles on the squad. He made the switch from offense to defense in the spring of 1982 when he moved from wide receiver to strong safety. He was red-shirted in the 1981 season and saw limited action with the varsity squad in 1980.

Kevin Gemas
Plymouth, WI

Gemas, 22, a former walk-on, has started one of the first nine games he has participated in this fall and has recorded 12 stops. Four of his tackles this season were first hits and eight were assists. Last fall, he played in four games and had eight tackles. In the 1984 Spring Game, Gemas made two tackles for the White team. At the beginning of the season, he was listed as backup to Eldridge Milton and Keith Williams at linebacker. In the 1982 season, he was red-shirted and in 1981 he saw limited action in two games. He attended Plymouth Comprehensive High School, and was not only captain of his team, but also an all-conference and all-area selection. He lettered two years in football and two in basketball. Aside from Donald Igwebuike, Gemas made the longest trek to Clemson of any team member.

Alexander (Duke) Holloman
Myrtle Beach, SC

Holloman, 22, has seen action at the fullback position in three games this season with one carry for a gain of two yards. Last fall, Duke played as a reserve fullback in every game except for, ironically, the Duke game. He had six carries for 19 yards as starting fullback for the Orange team in the 1984 Spring Game. Heading into the fall, Holloman was listed as second-team fullback behind Kenny Flowers. He missed all of the 1982 season, as he was recovering from injury. In 1981, he was a reserve halfback and was a red-shirt in 1980 due to a knee injury. He had a career high 58 yards against Wake Forest in 1981, including a touchdown. At Myrtle Beach High School, he played both defensive back and tailback with a rushing total of 900 yards as a senior. All four years of Holloman’s prep career, his team won the conference title.
THE ACC GAME PLAN.

Tigers In
The Pros

By Tim Bourret

In a survey recently released by the National Football League, Clemson ranked in the top 20 in the nation in sending players to the NFL. A total of 17 Tigers were active on NFL rosters on opening day and four others were on injured reserve. Clemson players are doing something significant in the Sunday league nearly every week. Here is a rundown of former Clemson players in the NFL and how they are doing this season.

Obed Ariri is the prodigal son of Clemson players in the NFL. After attempts with the Baltimore Colts, the Buffalo Bills and assorted USFL fledgling franchises, Obed stuck with Tampa Bay this year. Ironically, he beat out Bill Cappice, the former Florida State star who was in a constant battle with Ariri for the National Field Goal Championship in 1980. So far this season Ariri has converted 24 of 25 extra points and is 11-16 in the field goal department. He currently leads the Tampa Bay Bucs in scoring with 57 points and he is a perfect 5-5 inside the 40-yard line. He has already set a Tampa Bay Buc record as he booted three field goals of over 40 yards in the win over Green Bay this year. That was the most field goals over 40 yards in a single game in Tampa Bay history. His last kick was a 48-yarder that won the game in overtime.

Jeff Davis is in his third season with the Tampa Bay Bucs and he is having his finest season. Clemson's number-two ranked tackle of all-time has 113 stops this season, including six for losses. He leads Tampa Bay in tackles by far, the second leading tackle had only 75 through 11 games. His best game this season took place in the season opener when he had 13 tackles against the Chicago Bears. Davis was the captain of Clemson's national championship team of 1981 and has continued to show that leadership in Tampa.

Steve Fuller is in his sixth season with the NFL. A four-year performer and starter for Kansas City, Fuller moved to the LA Rams last year and served as the third-string quarterback. On April 20 of this year the Rams traded him to the Chicago Bears. A reserve behind Jim McMahon in the first 10 games of the year, Fuller got his chance against his old team, the Rams, on November 11. The native of Spartanburg completed 21 of 27 passes for 240 yards, the third best yardage day of his career. For the season Fuller has completed 78 percent of his passes and has gained 43 yards on 10 carries, including a touchdown.

Cliff Austin is in his second year and with his second team in the National Football League. Clemson's leading rusher in 1982 and the all-time single game rushing leader with 260 yards against Duke, Austin has been a fine special teams player for the Atlanta Falcons this season. The tailback has just three carries for seven yards from scrimmage this year, but he is tied for second on the team in special teams tackles. The native of Georgia has also been a kick returner for Atlanta this season.

Perry Tuttle has been affiliated with three teams this year. Tuttle began training camp with Buffalo, then was traded to Tampa Bay just as the season began. After playing in four games without catching a pass, he was sent to Atlanta on October 9. Since his arrival in Atlanta, the former All-American has played in three games, but has not caught a pass this season. In his first two seasons in Buffalo he caught 25 passes, including six receptions for over 100 yards in the season finale last year, of all teams, Atlanta.

One of three former Tigers on the Atlanta Falcons is Dan Benish. One of only four free agent Tigers to make the NFL among the current players, Benish is now a starter with the NFL team that is closest to the Clemson campus. This season Benish had started eight of 11 games and has 44 tackles, 22 solo, with one sack. His best game of the year took place against the New York Giants, the other NFL team with three former Tigers on it. Benish had a career high 10 tackles with one sack against the Giants.

Clemson's only individual national award winner in football heading into this season was Terry Kinard. The native of Sumter was the national Defensive Player-of-the-Year by CBS in 1982 as he led Clemson to a 9-1-1 record and number-eight national ranking. Now in his second season with the New York Giants, Kinard is leading all Giant secondary players in tackles this year with 61 from his free safety spot. He had 42 individual tackles through 11 games, including 10 in New York's loss to Tampa Bay on November 11. Kinard, who is tied for the all-time ACC record in interceptions with 17, has two interceptions this season.

Clemson players nearly single handily stopped Dallas for the New York Giants in New York during a game in October. While Terry Kinard had a fumble recovery and six tackles, Andy Headen had an 81-yard fumble return for a touchdown that turned the game around. It was the first touchdown of Headen's career. The native of North Carolina had 27 tackles for the year, 21 of which are solo. That total was achieved in just five games, as Headen has missed the last seven games with a knee injury. The second year player has also played some tight end in short-yardage situations for the Giants, but he has yet to catch a pass.

Jeff Bostic is living proof why former Clemson players should not give up even if they are not drafted. The native of Greensboro, NC was signed as a free agent out of Clemson in 1980 by the Philadelphia Eagles. The Eagles let him go and the Washington Redskins picked him up because they needed someone who could snap the ball on punts. A couple of years later Bostic is one of the starting Hogs for the Washington offensive line that protects Joe Theismann so well. Bostic played in the Pro Bowl last season and had appeared in 65 straight games, 49 as a starter, before he was injured in the St. Louis game in late October of this year. He sustained a knee injury and is not expected back this season.

Joe Bostic, Jeff's older brother, does not own a Super Bowl ring like Jeff, but Joe has become a fixture with the St. Louis Cardinals. A starter since his rookie season, Bostic has started at guard since the 1981 season. He was named St. Louis' best offensive lineman by the coaching staff in 1982 and has started 76 of 79 games since 1979. The second-round draft choice has been a mainstay for the Cardinal offensive line that has played so well this season.
Jerry Butler was enjoying a stellar career in Buffalo before a knee injury suffered at the end of last season put a halt to his progress. The injury was serious enough to keep him out of the 1984 season also. Butler came into the pro game with a flurry as he set a Bills single-game record with 255 yards receiving against the Jets in 1979. For his career Butler has 222 receptions for 3,229 yards and 22 touchdowns. He is expected to return next season.

Many Clemson fans were surprised to learn that Al Latimer was a starter in the secondary for the Detroit Lions in 1983. Afterall, Latimer was just the fifth defensive back for the 1978 Tigers. But, more and more people are seeing how awesome that 1978 Clemson team was as the days go by. Latimer is now the fifth defensive back and a top special teams player for Detroit this season. He started eight games in 1983, but has not started this season. After starting his career as a special teams player with Philadelphia in 1980, Latimer has played 23 games in Detroit in his career.

Steve Kenney is another free agent who has made it big in the NFL. The native of Raleigh (his parents own the Ramada Inn in Raleigh) has been a key player for five years for the Eagles and started in the 1980 Super Bowl game. He has had an injury plagued 1984 season as he has started six games and missed six games this season due to an ankle injury. He had started 32 straight games at tackle between 1981 and 1984 before the ankle problem arose.

Chuck McSwain is in his second season as a special teams player with the Dallas Cowboys. He currently leads “America’s Team” in kickoff returns with 14 for a 21.1 yard average. He has played in 10 of the first 11 games this season after spending almost all of the 1983 season on injured reserve with a finger injury. He played only two games in his rookie season. His biggest thrill might have come in a preseason game against Miami in 1983 when he scored the winning touchdown in the final minutes on a long scoring pass.

Bennie Cunningham is the elder statesman of Clemson players in the pros. The man from Seneca who owns two Super Bowl rings has 195 career receptions, eighth on the all-time Pittsburgh Steeler list. He needs only five more to move into seventh place, but no one knows when he will make the move because he has missed seven games with a hip injury. The former first-round draft choice has started 69 games in his career and has played in 104, more than any other active pro Tiger. He was recently inducted into the Clemson Hall of Fame.

Johnny Rembert played only two seasons at Clemson, but he left his mark. He was the perfect pro style of linebacker and the New England Patriots thought so too. They drafted him in the fourth round of the 1983 draft and after a few games on the bench in 1983, Rembert became a starter. He was second on the New England team in tackles in his rookie season and he also had a couple of interceptions. This year he sustained a knee injury in the preseason and he is now getting back into the lineup. He came back on November 11 to play his first game of the year and record two tackles in a reserve role.

Rod McSwain is a teammate of Rembert’s in New England. The native of Caroleen, NC was drafted in the third round by Atlanta last year, but he was traded to New England just before the first game. As a special teams player this year and the nickelback on passing situations McSwain has had 11 tackles.

Frank Magwood is making a living in the NFL but has never played in a game. The 1982 ACC Clemson receiver has been on the New York Giants’ injured reserve list for two full seasons. In the preseason of 1983 he suffered an ankle injury in a preaseason game and he hurt the same ankle in the preseason of 1984. He is not expected to play this season but does live in New York to go through rehabilitation. Magwood was the top receiver for Clemson in 1982 and was drafted by the Giants.

Chuck Bryant is currently fifth in the ACC in quarterback sacks with 9.5. The former Tiger defensive tackle was the number six pick of the entire NFL draft in 1982 and has been a starter for three years with the Seattle Seahawks. In 11 games this year he had 53 tackles, one caused fumble and one recovered fumble. In 1983 Bryant led the Seahawks in tackles among down linemen with 65. He had seven tackles, including a quarterback sack, in Seattle’s rousing Monday Night Football win over Oakland two weeks ago.

Jim Stuckey is another down lineman who has made it in the NFL. An off and on starter for San Francisco this season, Stuckey had 26 tackles through 11 games with 2.5 sacks. He has appeared in every game for the first place 49ers. He was drafted in the first round out of Clemson in 1980 (after the 1979 season when he was an All-American). He is still holds the Clemson record for tackles by a down lineman with 418, but Willy Perry recently eclipsed his career sack record and his single season tackle for loss record.

Dwight Clark is certainly the most incredible story among all the former Tigers in the pro ranks. The native of Charlotte, NC was picked in the 10th round of the 1979 draft after catching a total of 30 passes in his career for Clemson. In some NFL seasons since then he has nearly tripled that total in terms of receptions. He has been to the Pro Bowl three times and in 1983 caught 70 passes for 840 yards. He injured a knee in the last game of the season, but he has come back strong this year to catch 38 passes for 696 yards and four TDs. His best outing this season came in Houston when he caught five Joe Montana passes for 127 yards, including an 80-yard touchdown.

The Carolina Marching Band, a 310-member ensemble under the direction of Jim Copenhaver, will open today’s halftime show with “A Salute To the Beatles”. Songs played will include “Yesterday”, “Got To Get You Into My Life”, “Sgt. Pepper’s Lonely Hearts Club Band”, “Yellow Submarine”, “Eleanor Rigby”, “The Long & Winding Road”, “Hey Jude”, and “A Hard Day’s Night”. The visitors from Columbia will conclude their performance with the Carolina Fight Song.

At that time Tiger Band will take things over with an encore production of “A Salute to Tchaikovsky”. Since first performing this show at the Wake Forest game, Tiger Band has been besieged by a number of requests to do it again. The salute will commence with a medley of Tchaikovsky’s works including “Capriccio Italiano”, “The Nutcracker Suite”, “Swan Lake”, and music from the Fourth Symphony.

“Tchaikovsky Showcase” was written by the famous composer and arranged by Michael Sweeney. Memories of Boston on the Fourth of July may be stirred as Tiger Band moves into its performance of “The 1812 Overture”. Arranged by Jay Bocook for marching bands and by Barry Reese for percussion, “The 1812 Overture” is well known for the rounds of cannon fire that often accompany it. The piece was also a traditional favorite of the late Arthur Fiedler, longtime conductor of the Boston Pops. No Clemson halftime show would be complete without ending with “The Song That Shakes The Southland”, Tiger Rag!

This week Tiger Band would like to feature its graduating seniors. This senior class is the last class that attended the 1982 Orange Bowl and was part of the 1981 National Championship. Richard E. Goodstein, assistant band director, said that without the leadership provided by these seniors, the progress made by 1984 Tiger Band would never have been accomplished. He added that next year’s seniors will have a tough act to follow.
