Today's Game
By Tim Bourret

Clemson and Wake Forest have had football seasons comparable to the commodities market on the Chicago Board of Trade. Anyone who has invested in October Wheat or September Soybeans knows that the prices are as volatile as Joaquin Andujar's temper. This afternoon in Memorial Stadium Wake Forest will attempt to turn a Bear Market into a Bull Market, while the Tigers will try to continue their flourishing economic trends.

The Tiger's economic indicators in recent weeks have taken major about faces from the statistics that would have put the directors of the Federal Reserve into a state of depression. But, over the last three weeks Clemson's cost of living index (turnover margin) has improved by leaps and bounds. Here is a little grid that compares the two seasons Clemson has had so far:

The bottom comparison seems to be the most significant barometer concerning this year's Clemson team, and every Danny Ford coached team in Tigertown. When Clemson has had fewer turnovers than the opposition since Ford has been at Clemson the Tigers have an incredible 35-1-1 record. The North Carolina game of 1980 is the only game in Ford's career in which the Tigers had fewer turnovers, yet lost the game.

The turnover figure has been coming down in each game since the seven mortal sins were committed at Kentucky. Last week the important cost of living index hit rock bottom at zero turnovers against N.C. State. That's like Danny Ford going into a supermarket to buy chewing tobacco and finding that the price has gone from $7 a case to a penny a case.

The Clemson ground game has been a big reason for the Tigers Octoberfest in the last three weeks. The offense has gained 830 yards in the last three games, as the ground game has made significant strides, led by the tailbacks and the offensive line. A Clemson running back has gained at least 100 yards in each of the last three games and the tailback position has picked up at least 200 yards in each game, including a high of 261 yards last week.

Kenny Flowers, the only running back in Clemson history to gain over 100 yards against the same opponent (Duke) three times in a career, has averaged 99 yards a game over the last three games, including 70 yards against N.C. State. He scored three touchdowns in the game, the second time in his career he has registered 18 points on the scoreboard, and he leads the club in touchdowns, and scoring with seven and 42, respectively.

Stacey Driver, who needs 198 yards to reach the 2,000 mark for his career, is coming off the second best performance of his career. The diminutive running back who is hoping to follow in the Lilliputian footsteps of Stump Mitchell into the NFL, had 125 yards and a touchdown against N.C. State last week. Terrence Flagler has averaged 6.6 yards per rush over the last two games and now has a 4.4 yard average for the season.

The offensive line has been led by All-ACC guard Steve Reese over the last few games, but a couple of young- sters have come on to plug some holes also. John Phillips had played just 21 snaps in the first four games, but the last three weeks he has averaged 60 snaps and the Tigers have not lost a football game. Last week Eric Nix started at center for the first time in his career and played a fine game in place of the injured Jeff Lytton.

While the Clemson offense has had bullish statistics in the last three games the defense has been the major reason the opposition's statistics have been bearish. Against N.C. State, Clemson nearly set a record for sacks in a single game, and did set a mark for a single quarter. Six times before the first period ended the Clemson defense sacked N.C. State quarterbacks for minus 45 yards. The Tigers had eight for the game, just two off the record of 10 set against Maryland in 1979.

Steve Berlin has been the leader of the defense of late and he has 67 tackles for the season. He has averaged 9.7 tackles per game and this is ahead of the Clemson record for tackles in a season by a down lineman. Yes, better than Jim Stuckey, William Perry, Jeff Bryant, James Robinson or Steve Durham ever turned in, and we all know what level of football they rose to.

Mark Drag has also improved at the middle guard slot. In fact, all of Clemson's middle guards have showed marked improvement. As a unit against N.C. State the middle guard position had 19 tackles, three sacks and an interception. Drag was the ACC rookie of the week nominee for his nine tackles and four tackles for loss to go with two sacks, while Raber turned in his first career interception.

Michael Dean Perry had his best game of the season with seven tackles, two pass deflections, a caused fumble, a sack and a Partridge in a Pear Tree. No, there is no truth to the rumor that he has been moved to fullback for this week's game.

Saturday's game will showcase two of the top hitting free safeties in the south in Clemson's A.J. Johnson and Wake Forest's Reggie McCummings. Johnson is second among ACC's defensive backs in tackles this year with 74; quite a total for a 5-10 walk-on who showed up at Clemson because the Tigers were recruiting a teammate.

McCummings leads all conference defensive backs in tackles this year, and had an unofficial world record 133 stops in 1984. He has 75 so far this year and is the leader of Wake Forest's improving defense, and is among Wake Forest's top five tacklers of all-time.

Wake Forest has allowed just 133.5 yards a game rushing, one of the best figures in the ACC so it should make for an interesting matchup this afternoon. Linebacker Tony Scott has 67 stops to rank behind McCummings, while true freshman A.J. Green has 61 stops. All-ACC defensive end Gary Baldinger is second on the team in quarterback sacks with five and he has 44 total tackles. Bruce Mark has six sacks to lead the club.

Defensively, Wake Forest has moved the ball very well, but doesn't have the point totals to show for it. For instance, Wake Forest out-gained Tennessee (the same team that stymied Georgia Tech last week) by 153 yards, yet lost the game. The Deacons out-gained N.C. State by 150 and Virginia by 71, yet lost the contest. They are a very balanced team, as shown by their play selection against Virginia. The Deacons threw it 37 times and rushed 39 times last week. And, don't get lackson-diasial if the Tigers get ahead early. Wake Forest has scored 165 points, this year, 116 have come in the second half.

Quarterback Foy White suffered a muscle tear in the right calf against Tennessee and is lost for the season. Prior to his departure he was leading the ACC in passing efficiency. Jamie Harris came on and did a good job, but he broke his thumb against Maryland. So, Mike Elkins, a red-shirted freshman, was the starter against Virginia and completed 19 of 37 passes for 185 yards and two TDs. They seem to have an endless supply of signal callers in Winston-Salem.

Wake Forest has a solid pair of running backs in seniors Topper Clemsons and Michael Ramseur backs that have to stretch to reach six-feet in height. Ramseur is second on the school's all-time rushing list with 3,106 yards and needs one more touchdown to become the school's all-time leading scorer. He is just the second player in ACC history to reach 3,000 yards rushing and 100 pass receptions. He showed his all-around ability against N.C. State when he had over 100 yards rushing and over 100 in receptions (yes, the same game and no Clemson Tiger has ever done that).

Clemsons had 126 yards against the Cavaliers, the third time this season he had gone over the 100-yard mark. He has scored five touchdowns on the season and is really coming into his own after playing in Ramseur's shadow for so long.

Flanker Greg Scales (6-4, 225) has caught just 13 passes this year, but five have gone for touchdowns. Ramseur leads the ACC in receptions with 45 out of the backfield and end James Brim has 39 catches for 436 yards. It is evident that passing is the key to the Wake Forest offense.

So it will be a passing team against a running team as Wake Forest tries to win at Clemson for the first time since John Kennedy was the President of the United States.

Both teams will attempt to be bullish on America so to speak, but they will be using vastly different commodities in an attempt to turn the profit.

Last year, ARA served thousands of meals to people away from home. College students, hospital staffs, industrial personnel. Why, right here in Clemson, ARA serves over 15,000 breakfasts, lunches and dinners to students, parents and faculty daily.

But you may not know our full story. ARA chooses only the freshest and most wholesome ingredients. Bright, crisp vegetables. Ripe, firm fruits. The choicest meats and dairy products. Ingredients that are chopped, steamed, broiled, baked and blended into luscious menus. For banquets or birthdays. Cocktail parties or tailgate feasts. In your home or in one of our private dining rooms in the Clemson House. No matter what your special occasion, ARA can fill the bill of fare.

So the next time your calendar is marked with a red letter day... call ARA for that special service.
People who have pets normally choose names like Rover, Spot, Fido, Whiskers, Felix, or even Morris. And, Jimmy and Gypsy are not far off line when it comes to pets’ names. What makes Jimmy and Gypsy different is that they are not dogs, cats, birds, or even hamsters. Jimmy and Gypsy are full grown alligators from the Okefenokee Swamp, and they are the pets of senior Tiger linebacker Eldridge Milton.

“It’s not unusual to see an alligator swim out of a ditch and cross the street on a day when we have had a lot of rain,” said Milton, the Folkston, GA native. “In my hometown most of the people live on farms and many of them have lakes and ponds in their backyards. So, a lot of people have alligators as pets.

“People up here say that they never would swim in a lake with a gator, touch one, or have anything to do with one. But, the people down there feel the same way about tigers. The folks from my area say they never would get into a ring with a tiger. Yet, some people around Clemson have pet tigers, like the man who brought one to picture day a few years ago. That just goes to show if you get an animal when it’s really small and train it, then it can grow up to be a pet.”

Milton has had his “pets” for almost 15 years. “I was in the third grade when we got Jimmy and Gypsy. At that time they were about a foot long, and they lived in the pond behind our house. Now, Jimmy is nine-feet long and weighs about 300 pounds, and Gypsy is about seven feet and 250 pounds,” said Milton.

“When I was younger, I used to play with them. I would grab them by the tail and spin them around in circles in the water. That is also how I used to ride them. If they were swimming along, I could grab them by the tail, climb up on their backs, and ride them like a horse. But, I haven’t ridden one since 1980,” explained the 6-3, 230 pound senior.

Danny Ford probably would not be too thrilled to know that his top reserve linebacker rides alligators on a regular basis. But, Milton seems confident that his alligators will not harm him. He continued. “A gator will not attack you if he is just swimming along. The only way a gator will attack a person is if the gator is really, really hungry. But, they are rarely that hungry because there are plenty of fish and other animals for them to eat in the swamp.

“The only other times I consider them dangerous would be when they are hemmed up in a corner, or when a female protects her young. If you sneak up on one while his mouth is closed you can grab his mouth by two fingers and hold it shut. He will not be able to open it. But, if you don’t hold it shut it is a different story altogether. They have enough power in their jaws to break a two-by-four in half.”

Milton delved further to explain the difference between a crocodile and an alligator. “A crocodile will eat you alive. There is a big difference between a crocodile and a gator. A crocodile’s teeth are much sharper than those of an alligator. And, they will attack you for no reason, where a gator must be provoked. But, crocodiles are not a problem in my area. I’ve never seen one, and I’m glad I haven’t.”

A myth about alligators that many people do not believe concerns how fast the reptile can run on land. Milton believes that it is no myth, and he is a man who should know. “They can run and run fast. A gator can run down a man if he’s not running full speed.”

No wonder Milton runs the 40-yard dash in 4.65 seconds. He spent 10 years running from and chasing alligators throughout the Okefenokee Swamp. The agility and mobility Milton picked up from growing up with gators as pets may have made him a better linebacker.

During 1984, Milton tied Michael Dean Perry as the fourth leading tackler on the squad with 75 stops, a figure that was tops among the linebackers. The 1984 season also saw Milton cause three fumbles and place him in the top five in the ACC in that category.

Two weeks ago against Duke, Milton broke into another defensive statistic column as he highjacked a Steve Slayden pass to halt an imminent Blue Devil scoring attack. “We (the linebackers) were back in man coverage, and I was deep with my man. I didn’t think I would be able to get to the ball at first,” recalled Milton. “Coach Aldridge teaches not to watch the quarterback’s eyes. He emphasizes that when the passer turns his shoulders and separates his hand from the ball to break for it. So when he did that, I broke and Kenny Danforth batted the ball into the air. I just dove for it, and I was able to intercept the ball. It was a super feeling.”

Milton attributes much of that ‘super feeling’ to his new position coach, Miles Aldridge. “He really believes in hard work. He has all of us convinced that there’s no easy way out. If you want something bad enough and you work hard enough good things will happen, like the interception.”

Aldridge believes that Milton is a hard worker. “Eldridge is a young man who has excellent work habits. He really tries to do everything that I ask of him. He is the kind of guy who tries to do the right thing no matter who is coaching him, which definitely has made things easier for me in my first year. Every coach is different and has his own way he wants to do things. From my players’ viewpoints they probably have had to adjust to me more than I have had to adjust to them. But, Eldridge being a senior with experience, has made that transition easier,” concluded Aldridge.

Whether he is wrestling with Jimmy and Gypsy back home in Folkston, or wrestling opposing offensive backs to the ground in Death Valley, you can rest assured that Eldridge Milton will be giving 100 percent effort.

Established in 1973, the Clemson Athletic Hall of Fame strives to honor the great contributors to Clemson athletics. To achieve its aims, the hall selects and enshrines new members each year. This year, the hall has selected five inductees, bringing the total in the elite group to 79. Among the inductees are two former football greats, a longtime Clemson athletic official, a former Clemson baseball player, and a veteran Clemson football coach.

Bob Bradley is now entering his 32nd year as Clemson sports information director. A recognized leader in his profession, Bradley has received every conceivable award the past few years. He was elected president of CoSIDA, the national organization of sports information directors, during 1974-75. In 1976, he received the Arch Ward Award as CoSIDA Man-of-the-Year. He was also elected by his peers to the organization’s Hall of Fame. Under Bradley’s direction, the Clemson Sports Information Department has won a total of 55 national and state awards for their brochures and press guides in the last 10 years. Additionally, he was honored by the South Carolina Athletic Hall of Fame in 1983 for his special contribution to athletics.

Steve Fuller, an outstanding quarterback for the Tigers in the late 70’s, established an athletic and academic record that might not be eclipsed during this century — or the next one for that matter. He started 27 consecutive games for the Tigers, and finished his career with 6096 yards rushing and passing, and was responsible for 44 Clemson touchdowns (22 on the ground and 22 through the air). Only 21 of his 554 attempts were intercepted.

He was All Atlantic Coast Conference in 1977 and 1978, and also ACC Player-of-the-Year those two seasons. He was Back-of-the-Year in the south as named by the Atlanta Touchdown Club and he also received the Frank Howard Award “for achievement bringing honor to Clemson.” Fuller also had many academic achievements at Clemson. He made the ACC all-academic team three years in a row, and in 1978, he was one of 11 scholar-athletes honored by the National Football Foundation Hall-of-Fame. He was awarded a NCAA postgraduate scholarship worth $1500, and he was chosen recipient of one of the NCAA’s Top Five Awards. While majoring in industrial management, Fuller made the Dean’s List six consecutive semesters, during which time he posted only 2 B’s in the classroom and owned a 3.93 grade point ratio (out of a possible 4.00). He is now with the Chicago Bears of the NFL.

Doug Kingsmore was an outstanding baseball player at Clemson from 1950 to 1954. Kingsmore entered Clemson on a partial scholarship given after a brilliant high school career at Union, S.C. His four-year batting average at Clemson was .346 and he played three years of varsity baseball at Clemson without making a single error. Kingsmore was a member of four All-State teams while at Clemson and had a four-year slugging percentage of .646. His ACC home run record as well as Clemson home run record stood until expanded schedules in the late 60’s. In 1954, Kingsmore signed a bonus contract with the Baltimore Orioles and he played professional baseball for three years in the Tri-State League, Carolina League, and Texas League.

After his three years in the Baltimore organization, Kingsmore joined Amercoron Corporation as personnel trainee. Having been involved in the textile industry ever since high school, he was very familiar with the concerns of the textile industry. He subsequently worked for Riegel Textile Corporation for 23 years. He is currently President and Chief Operating Officer of Cannon Mills in Kannapolis, N.C.

Coach Covington (Goat) McMillan, joined the Clemson staff on September 1, 1937 and retired at the end of the 1964 season. He came to Clemson from the Furman coaching staff, where he was assistant coach and director of physical education. At Clemson, he was backfield coach until 1955 when he was made head freshman coach. He coached Clemson freshmen for 10 years where he helped to develop All-America backs Banks McFadden, Jackie Calvert, Bobby Gage, and Joel Wells. He also served as recreational director of state parks for seven years from 1935 to 1941. Altogether, Coach McMillan participated in seven bowl games (1940 Cotton, 1949 Gator, 1951 Orange, 1952 Gator, 1957 Orange, 1959 Sugar, and the 1959 Bluebonnet).

Coach McMillan graduated from Clemson in 1930 with a BS in Chemistry. He also played tailback for the Tigers from 1929-30. These teams finished 6-3, 8-3, and 8-2, respectively, and these teams also beat South Carolina three straight years.

Charlie Timmons was a running back for the Tigers in the late 30’s and early 40’s. Timmons led the Tigers in rushing in 1939 with 146 carries for 556 yards and also in 1941 with 149 carries for 635 yards. Timmons is 12th in career rushing at Clemson with 1545 yards and is also 12th in career scoring with 129 points.

The highlight of Timmons’ career as a Tiger occurred after the 1939 season when the 8-1 Tigers were invited to play in the fourth Cotton Bowl in Dallas against Boston College. The game was largely a defensive struggle but the Tigers won 6-3. Timmons scored the only Clemson touchdown and finished the game with 27 carries for 115 yards.

The 68-year-old Timmons was born in Piedmont, S.C., and is a graduate of Abbeville High School. He graduated from Clemson in 1942 with a degree in textile engineering. He is married to the former Mary Elizabeth Newsome of Union Point, Georgia. Timmons now resides in Greenville, S.C.
Victory Peal
Symbolic of Clemson’s Progress

If the Tigers win the game today, listen for the Victory Peal resounding over the campus in celebration.

In June, the first six bells of a proposed 47-bell carillon were installed in Tillman Tower, where they chime the hour and play the Victory Peal, the first four notes of the Westminster Chime.

The peal, which will ring at graduation and other campus celebrations, is symbolic of the progress Clemson University has made in the past year. For example:

• Students, faculty and staff found a new best friend with LUIS, a computerized library system that allows them to check the status of library holdings from anywhere on campus.
• After a successful fund raiser in Washington, D.C., groundbreaking ceremonies from the Strom Thurmond Institute were set for fall 1985, with Vice President George Bush scheduled to attend.
• With the addition of two new microscopes, Clemson’s $1.6 million electron microscope lab became one of the best of its kind in the country, allowing users to magnify images more than 300,000 times.
• In competition with 152 other college units from across the country, the Air Force ROTC detachment marched away with the No. 1 ranking in the nation.
• Helene M. Riley became the first female department head at Clemson when she was named head of the department of languages.
• The South Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station dedicated its new $4 million Pee Dee Research and Education Center near Florence, and construction began on the new $9.5 million chemistry building behind Sirrine Hall.
• Under a program approved by the state Commission on Higher Education, Clemson became the only institution in the state to offer a Ph.D. in computer engineering.
• In May, the university conferred 1,492 degrees — including the first Ph.D. in forestry — to the largest graduating class in Clemson’s history.
This has been a special year in the life of Walter Cox. Fifty years ago he enrolled at Clemson as a freshman after graduating from Belton (SC) High School. It is fitting that in his golden jubilee academic year with the University that he has become interim president of Clemson University.

Cox has served Clemson over the last five decades in a number of capacities on the academic side and the athletic side of life, and Clemson has become a lot better place because of his presence. Cox received his bachelor of science degree in June of 1939, then remained for another year to pursue graduate work. In February of 1940 he began his association with the University as a full-time employee as he became a line coach on Frank Howard’s first team. He held the assistant coaching position until 1950. During this period he also served as the head baseball coach and as athletic ticket manager.

Cox gained his knowledge on the gridiron from Jess Neely and Frank Howard, two Hall of Fame Head Coaches. Cox played on the Clemson varsity football team between 1937 and 1939 and was an all-state selection in 1939. He was a member of Clemson’s first bowl team, an eleven that downed Boston College in the 1940 Cotton Bowl. Cox earned three letters in football and the team had a 20-6-2 record during his career.

In 1942 Cox was called into the Armed Forces and served with the rank of lieutenant in the Fiji Islands, New Caledonia and Guadalcanal with the 147th infantry Regiment of the 37th Division.

In 1950 Cox moved on to the other side of campus as he brought his excellent administrative dexterity and knowledge to university administration. Between 1950 and 1955 he served as Director of Public Relations and Alumni Affairs and as an assistant to the vice president.

In 1955 he moved up to the position of Vice President for Student Affairs and Dean of Students, a position he had held the last 30 years until his most recent appointment on July 2. He has had a stellar career as University Vice President and has directed many programs that have benefited the overall quality of life at Clemson University.

During his three decades as Clemson’s first vice president for student affairs and dean of students, Walter Cox guided the campus through a population explosion from 2,700 students in 1955 to more than 12,500 today, a span of years that includes such milestones in the University’s development as the enrollment of women and the peaceful desegregation of the institution. Under his leadership the programs and functions of the student affairs division have steadily expanded and improved to meet the changing and increasing needs of this dynamic student body.

Through the offices and departments of admissions and registration, student life, student health services, the University Union, housing, intramurals, intercollegiate athletics, bands, student financial aid, counseling and career services, university canteens, and the bookstore, the student affairs division that Cox has assembled performs essential student services to support and complement Clemson’s academic mission. It provides students with special opportunities for intellectual, moral, cultural, spiritual and physical growth.

The success of the comprehensive and progressive approach Cox took as vice president for student affairs is evident in such services as the Counseling and Career Planning Center, which provides individual counseling and group programs on topics ranging from academic and personal concerns to time management and assertiveness training; the University Union, through which students devise, produce and participate in more than 800 varied activities each year; and Fike Recreation Center, a half-million-dollar complex of modern intramural sports and physical training facilities.

Walter Cox has an illustrious and honored history at Clemson University. He is one of only a handful of graduates to be selected to the Clemson Athletic Hall of Fame and to also win the Clemson Medallion (1984) and the Distinguished Alumni Award (1963). He has truly run out of awards to win, but he still has the motivation to climb more mountains as an active university president. After 50 years of serving a university, most alumni retire to private life. Not Walter Cox, he serves his university from the highest level.

Athletic Director
Bobby Robinson

Few Athletic Directors in the country have moved up the ladder as fast as Bobby Robinson. This past March the 39-year-old native of Columbia culminated a 12-year steady progression up the administrative steps to the position of Clemson Athletic Director. He succeeded Bill McLellan on Friday, March 8, 1985.

Robinson came to Clemson in 1970, not in athletics, but in the housing office. After three years he moved across campus to serve as an administrative assistant in the athletic department. "I started at Clemson in the housing office, but I came to Clemson to work in athletics," said Robinson. "No opening existed at the time so I had to wait until one opened up."

After serving the athletic department in every imaginable manner, he became business manager in 1975. Two years later he was named assistant athletic director and in 1980 he became associate AD. He held that title four years, but his responsibility moved to an area of strength in regard to the football and basketball programs in 1982.

While serving his administrative duties with vigor, he also coached the Clemson golf team between 1975 and 1983. During his time as the head coach Clemson won its only ACC title in golf and three times the Tigers participated in the NCAA tournament. In 1983, his final season as the head coach, he guided Clemson to a number-five national finish. Clarence Rose was one of three All-Americans to play for the Tigers during his tenure. Rose is now a successful member of the pro tour.

Thus, it is easy to see why Bobby Robinson is most qualified for the position of athletic director at Clemson University—he has done it all. He has been an administrator at all levels, he has worked in other areas in the University, he has been a head coach and he has handled the budgetary aspects needed to run an 8.5 million dollar program.

Robinson has done everything in the Clemson athletic department, but he concedes there is a big change between associate athletic director and athletic director. "I no longer can just look at what we could do in a situation, it has changed to 'what will we do.' The area of facilities is something I will be more involved in also. We have some of the best facilities in the nation and we want to continue to rank favorably in that area." Robinson already has formulated a 10-year plan for facilities as he has a keen interest in all sports at Clemson. Changes in the soccer facility and tennis facility are planned for the next few years.

All of these factors have allowed him to come to grips with what is necessary to be a leader of a national program such as the one at Clemson. "Our philosophy will always be the same. We're going to be as good as we can be and give our coaches and athletes the opportunity to compete and be successful. That is the primary goal from an athletic point of view.

"From the University point of view, we have to be as good as we can be, yet operate within the rules and be a force within this University. As long as we are within the University structure, we do report to people and we are not different from anybody else—we can be a very positive factor for this University. Our importance is no bigger than that of the English or math department."

Robinson has confidence in his staff, his athletes and the facilities at Clemson University. "We have a solid base in all areas and we are a very solvent athletic department. But, we need to get better, take everything that we have and broaden it. We can't stand still. We will look ahead within the framework of the University and work to expand our horizons. We want to be as good as we can be and be a vital part of this University and represent the State of South Carolina in a positive manner."

Robinson was born in Columbia and attended A.C. Flora High School. During his high school career he was a point guard for the basketball team and a third baseman in baseball. He also played a good bit of golf during his younger days and was a scratch golfer at one time. He did not play any high school sports as a senior because of a heart stroke suffered in the summer of 1963. He graduated from A.C. Flora in 1964 and enrolled at Furman.

Robinson graduated from Furman with a B.S. degree in business and political science in 1968. He was a member of the varsity golf team and was the president of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity chapter at Furman. He worked in his family's real estate business for two years after receiving his degree from Furman.

Bobby Robinson has served Clemson as a successful coach and administrator since 1970.

Clemson football fans owe Auburn some favors. Each of the first four football coaches in Clemson history came from Auburn, including John Heisman, the Hall-of-Fame Coach who laid the groundwork for the Clemson football tradition in the early years of this century.

In contemporary times, Clemson fans owe Auburn another favor, stemming from a friendship between Danny Ford and Pat Dye. Ford, Clemson’s head coach since the 1978 Gator Bowl, was a player under Dye when the latter was an assistant coach under Bear Bryant at Alabama. The two became good friends and it was Dye who convinced Ford to pursue the coaching profession.

“Pat Dye and I were good friends when I was in my senior year in college and I was wondering what I was going to do with my life,” said Ford. “Coach Dye was the one who pushed me to ask Coach Bryant about a graduate assistantship. He put me on the staff and I have been in coaching ever since.”

Clemson fans are certainly happy Ford entered the profession because he has brought a solid program to among the finest in the nation. Now in his seventh full season at Clemson, his record of 52-15-2 (.768) is the fourth best winning percentage in college football among active coaches.

In the last four seasons Clemson has a 37-6-2 ledger, the fourth best winning percentage in America. The class of ‘84 was the third winningest in ACC history in terms of winning percentage, and no ACC class in the 32-year history of the league ever won more games in a four-year period.

Ford has been a part of three ACC championship teams and one national championship team at Clemson. In 1978 he was offensive coordinator for the 11-1 team that won the Gator Bowl over Ohio State, 17-15. The Gadsden, AL native was more than just the offensive coordinator in that game however, as he had become the head coach of the Tigers on December 10 after Charley Pell had already left to go to Florida. The 30-year-old Ford made quite a celebrated beginning to his head coaching career with that victory over the Woody Hayes coached Buckeyes. The nationally televised Clemson victory helped put the Tigers on the national football map and it began Clemson’s climb to among the elite of college football.

In 1981 Ford became the youngest coach in the history of the game to win the National Championship. At the age of 33, Ford surprised the college football world by taking the unranked Tigers to three wins over top 10 teams and a perfect 12-0 record. Clemson handed Herschel Walker the only regular-season loss of his Georgia career, downed North Carolina in Chapel Hill in the only showdown of top 10 teams in ACC history, then defeated former champion Nebraska in the Orange Bowl.

That obviously is the highmark of Ford’s brief, but eventful career at Clemson as he was named national Coach-of-the-Year by UPI, the College Football Writers of America, the Walter Camp Foundation and the Football Writers of America.

A review of Ford’s football past should help us understand why he has been so successful as a head coach. Another in a long line of former Bear Bryant players that have gone on to greatness in coaching, Ford played for the Bear between 1967 and 1969. He was Kenny Stabler’s sophomore tight end as a starter in 1967, played that position in 1968 and moved to offensive tackle in 1969. Ford started all three years, was all-conference in 1969 and played on three teams that went to bowl games. In 1969 he was also a member of the All-SEC academic team, and served as the captain of the Alabama team.

After Dye’s coaching, Ford remained at Alabama as a graduate assistant for the 1970 and 1971 seasons. He had already earned his B.S. degree in industrial arts and earned his master’s degree in special education in 1971. Ford became a full-time aide for Bryant in 1972 and 1973. The Tide went to four bowl games while Ford was an assistant coach.

Clemson’s current head man then accepted a position as an assistant coach under Jimmy Sharpe at Virginia Tech. He remained in Blacksburg for three seasons (1974-76) before coming to Clemson as offensive line coach in 1977. And, just 23 games later he was named head coach of the Tigers at the age of 30, the youngest active division I coach in the country.

Few people climb to the top five of their profession by the age of 37. Pat Dye gave Danny Ford some sound advice back in 1969 and Clemson fans are glad he took it.

Assistant Coaches

Miles Aldridge is the newest member of the Tiger coaching staff, as he joined Clemson on June 28, 1985. The native of Kansas City, MO will coach the inside linebackers and recruit in the lower part of South Carolina. A 1971 graduate of Gardner Webb College, he is in his 15th year of coaching. He began his collegiate coaching career at East Tennessee State, after which he moved to Wichita State, Tulsa, and then Mississippi. His most recent stint before Clemson was at Duke, where he served as linebacker coach for two seasons.

Lawson Holland was a reserve quarterback for the Tigers from 1970-73, which makes him the only current coach who played Clemson football. In his seventh year, Holland is in charge of receivers and recruiting Virginia, Washington, D.C., and central North Carolina. The Mooresville, N.C., native earned his B.A. in secondary education from Clemson in 1975.

Don Denning is in his fifth season with the Clemson staff. The deep secondary coach and former Georgia recruiter joined the Tigers on July 1, 1981. He has previously served Western Carolina as defensive coordinator and assistant athletic director, Memphis State as assistant head coach, and Delta State University as head coach. Denning graduated from Presbyterian College in 1968 and received a master's degree from Western Carolina in 1969.

Woody McCorvey is in his third year of coaching the tight ends. He came to Clemson from Alabama A&M where he was the defensive coordinator for four years. The 1972 Alabama State graduate lettered four years in football at the school before earning his physical education degree. He then received a master's degree in health, leisure and sports from the University of West Florida in 1977.

Larry Van Der Heyden has coached some fine offensive linemen during his six years at Clemson and is a major reason why the Tigers' ground game has been so successful. The offensive line coach joined the staff on January 5, 1979 from Memphis State where he was offensive coordinator for three years. He has also served stints at Iowa State, Drake, Indiana State, East Carolina and Virginia. He earned his B.A. and masters degrees at Iowa State and lettered three years in football and baseball.

Tom Harper, the Tigers' assistant head coach, came to Clemson from Virginia Tech's coaching staff on Feb. 2, 1981. The native of Piqua, OH served as the defensive coordinator for Virginia Tech, North Carolina, Iowa State and Wake Forest, where he was head coach in 1972. Harper graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1955 and received his master's degree at the same school in 1958. Nine of his former players have signed pro contracts in the last four years.

Tommy West coaches the defensive and bandit ends and also recruits middle and south Georgia for the Tigers. He is in his fourth year at Clemson, where he came from Appalachian State University on July 10, 1982. The Gainesville, GA native earned his B.S. degree in health education from the University of Tennessee in 1975 after lettering three years in football and baseball for the Volunteers. A fine all-around athlete, he was drafted out of high school by baseball's Chicago Cubs.

Chuck Reedy has coached Clemson's running backs for the last seven years. The St. Augustine, FL., native also recruits for the Tigers in southeast South Carolina, southeast Georgia and Florida. He earned two letters in football from Appalachian State where he graduated in 1971 with a degree in health and physical education. He came to Clemson from Kentucky on July 5, 1978.

Nelson Stokley has been the Tigers' offensive coordinator for the past five years. He came to Clemson on January 18, 1980 after serving as offensive coordinator for Virginia Tech. The 1968 graduate of LSU was the school's starting quarterback from 1965-67 and then served the fine southern institution as an assistant coach from 1968-75. Stokley still holds many LSU passing records and he was the SEC Sophomore of the Year in 1965.

For the sixth time in the last seven years the Clemson all-around sports program has been ranked in the top 15 in the nation. The survey, conducted by the Knoxville Journal, takes into account national rankings in selected sports. Women’s sports are not included in this poll, which has been in existence since 1971.

This poll is a good index of Clemson’s athletic success in recent years. Clemson first made the top 20 in 1975-76 with a number-20 finish. The Tigers had four top five finishes between 1980 and 1983, one of only two schools in the nation to do that during this time period.

The 1984-85 academic year was another outstanding season for Clemson sports as nine teams were ranked in the top 30 of their respective sports. Five male sports teams and four female sports teams were in the top 30, highlighted by the soccer team’s national championship. Three other individuals were lauded as national champions as Richard Matuszewski and Brandon Walters won the NCAA indoor doubles national title, while Tim Krebs won the 1500 meters at the NCAA indoor track meet in Syracuse, NY.

CHECK LISTINGS FOR THE GAME OF THE WEEK.
The Clemson University Athletic Department provides the following for your safety and emergency medical needs:

1. Advanced cardiac life-support stations in four locations. (North stands, Upper North deck, South stands, Upper South deck.) These units are staffed with skill-care nurses, physicians, cardiologists, internists, paramedics, and EMTs.

2. Mobile units of EMT's and paramedics are strategically located throughout the entire stadium.

3. Ambulances with life-support equipment are available in North stand and South stand areas and have prearranged routes for evacuation to local hospitals. Learn to recognize these personnel and facilities.

WHAT TO DO IF EMERGENCIES ARISE
Please step back and give the organized stadium EMS personnel room to work. Well-intentioned attempts to help by untrained persons interferes with the efficiency of the EMS system. If you have basic or advanced training in specific life-support methods, make your qualifications known and offer your help. Untrained personnel can be frequently more harmful than helpful.

MEDICAL ADVICE FOR FANS
If you have a pre-existing medical or health problem, please check with your personal physician and obtain his advice before attending games. Many emergencies occurring at the stadium do so because of prior existing conditions. Use common sense in dressing, eating, drinking and physical exertion. Be certain that you have identification on you as to the diagnosis and what medications you are currently taking.

Be aware of warning signs of heart attacks: chest pain, chest tightness, shortness of breath, sweating, palpitations, fainting, nausea and vomiting. Recognize that our most common serious medical problem at football games are heart attacks and allergic reactions to insect stings. Be aware that insect stings will continue to always be very frequent at outdoor sporting events and should always be treated with immediate ice until advice can be obtained. If you have ever had a reaction to bee or other insect sting, check with your personal physician as to whether you should carry a kit.

Protecting The Southeast
IPTAY, in its 52nd year as Clemson's athletic scholarship fund-raising club has continued on its long and successful journey. From a modest beginning in 1934 with only 162 members, IPTAY has grown to include 20,000 loyal Tiger supporters. IPTAY, “I-Pay Thirty-A-Year,” is recognized as the number-one group of its kind in the country.

During the 1984-85 academic year, IPTAY continued to grow and expand with the addition of three features. The IPTAY Athletic Academic Endowment was established during the fall of 1984 for recruiting scholarships for academics. The basic principle behind the endowment is that money donated by matching gift companies is earmarked for a separate scholarship just for academics.

IPTAY also introduced the Tiger Life program in late 1984. With Tiger Life, the Clemson IPTAY Club is the owner and beneficiary of a whole life insurance policy on a participant’s life. The contributor makes comparatively small annual gifts for a maximum of eight years. Contributions go directly to Clemson University Tiger Life, and all donations to Clemson and IPTAY are, of course, tax deductible. With this program, the member creates a sizable capital asset without impinging on the funds destined for his family. In effect, it creates a $100,000 endowment fund in the contributor’s name.

During the past year IPTAY also adopted the Orange and White as the official publication of IPTAY. The Orange and White, which is published weekly from mid-August to March and monthly during April, June and July, began exclusive distribution to 20,000 IPTAY members in early September.

Listed above are just three features that IPTAY has implemented in order to continually attain new heights of success. But, the determining factor that has allowed IPTAY to flourish for over 50 years, is the undying dedication of its members.

The reason is people—people who are committed to a successful program at Clemson University, both on and off the field. Professors, athletes, administrators, managers, trainers, alumni, and friends all play a part in this success.

The results which have been produced are something Clemson people can all be proud of in this search for excellence at Clemson University.

The on-going search for excellence in the academic area at Clemson University has resulted in the awarding of the 1984 Fulbright Scholarship for graduates to study overseas to six of six Clemson applicants. In addition, a Guggenheim Scholarship was awarded to another Clemson graduate. Of the 320 valedictorians in South Carolina 120 were accepted to Clemson University. Furthermore, a building program is being instituted on campus that will include a new chemistry building, as well as the expansion of several other departments.

That search for excellence is further exemplified by the efforts of the 20,000 IPTAY members who contributed $118,000 more in 1984 than the year before. These monies enabled over 440 athletes, managers, and trainers to receive scholarship aid to attend Clemson.

These athletes also have the strong commitment to excellence that Clemson supporters both desire and desire. The Tiger football team has the fourth best four-year record in college football. In December 1984, the soccer team became the school’s second national champion by defeating defending champion Indiana. Soccer men’s cross country, women’s cross country, men’s tennis and women’s tennis were all Top 20 teams, while the men’s and women’s tennis teams were conference champions. Swimming and wrestling enjoyed their best seasons ever. There were 19 All-Americans and 50 all-conference performers competing for Clemson, in addition to six athletes that took part in the Olympics. There is no doubt that Clemson athletics enjoyed one of its best years ever.

IPTAY certainly was a major reason for these accomplishments. But, what is IPTAY other than scholarships? And how has Clemson University benefited from these 51 years of service? The Clemson IPTAY Club has a board of directors led by President Lawrence Starkey, Vice President Jim Patterson, and Secretary-Treasurer Eddie Dalton.

Under the direction of these men, the main purpose of IPTAY continues to be raising monies for athletic scholarships, and thanks to the foresight of athletic department officials and the support of the Board of Directors, many improvements have taken place on campus which are of benefit not only to athletes and fans of athletes, but to the academic area of the University as well.

Specific areas of improvement in recent years include installing lights on Riggs Field, building a new baseball facility (with lights that were added this spring); funding Tiger Band travel; donating over $200,000 to the President’s Fund; and developing the East Beach area enjoyed by all Clemson students.

The attitude of Clemson people, especially those associated with IPTAY, is “success is a journey, not a destination.” The search for excellence continues at Clemson and, thanks to the continued support of 20,000 IPTAY supporters, the excellence in athletics will continue. As IPTAY continues its service to Clemson, one may only wonder what the future holds.

After 23 consecutive years of record-breaking support, there is no doubt that Clemson will remain number-one.

meyers arnold and CLEMSON possibly two of the BEST!
When you purchase $215,000 worth of office supplies annually, you need to do it in the most cost-effective means possible.

That's the responsibility and challenge facing Russ Conley at South Carolina National Bank. For every day, across the state, more than 2,300 people depend upon his department for the materials and supplies they need to respond to their growing audience of customers.

Harper Brothers lent a hand through the introduction of Purchasing Management System. A computerized mode of purchasing office supplies that is more time and cost efficient than anything else in the market.

Purchasing Management System gives you precise, timely inventory control without the cost. And all but eliminates expensive, time-consuming back-orders and misfills.

Monday morning press a button and enter your order. Tuesday morning, it's on your desk.

"With the help of Purchasing Management System, we have been able to cut delivery time from seven days to one. In terms of inventory reduction alone, that translates into savings of $80,000 for this year."

If you'd like to do something about your office supplies purchasing, we'd like to show you how to press our button.

Let's talk.

People who take flying seriously complain if an airline isn't performing. So you can imagine how proud Piedmont was last year when, according to Air Transport World magazine, we received fewer complaints than any other major airline.

It's one reason why Air Transport World recently named us, of all the world's airlines, the Airline Of The Year. And a reason why our record against the competition has been so good lately.

WHEN TIMING IS CRITICAL...

LIFE REACH

As the region's preeminent referral center for patients with cardiovascular disease, Providence Heart Institute in Columbia treats patients from across South Carolina. And when a heart problem needs immediate attention, our Life Reach helicopter can get a patient to us rapidly and safely.

The helicopter is fully staffed and equipped for critical care — and it can take off within 5 minutes of a call to our Emergency Room. At 150 miles an hour, the Life Reach crew can reach any hospital in South Carolina in under an hour — often in only minutes. On the trip back, the medical team on the helicopter is in communication with doctors at Providence.

Heart disease touches almost every family in South Carolina. The Providence Heart Institute was created to provide the highest quality services for the diagnosis and treatment of cardiovascular problems, and the Life Reach helicopter is a reflection of our dedication to that goal.

We are committed to offering the most up-to-date diagnostic and therapeutic services...with an expert medical staff...using the very latest techniques and equipment...in the finest facilities. Providence Heart Institute also has a commitment to research into the best methods of treating and preventing cardiovascular disease.

Our state's community hospitals are able to take care of almost any illness you'll ever have. But it's good to know that when specialized cardiovascular services are needed to complement those at primary care facilities, Providence is available. And it's reassuring, too, to have Life Reach Rapid Transport standing by — when timing is critical.

Cliff Ellis has Tiger sports fans talking hoops in the off-season again. Not since the 1980-81 season has interest in Clemson basketball been as high as it is today. That year the Tigers were coming off an NCAA appearance and had just landed one of the nation’s top 15 recruiting classes. This is the case again as Clemson is coming off an NIT bid season and a recruiting class ranked fifth in the nation by Basketball Times magazine.

Clemson’s second year head coach accomplished all kinds of firsts and eliminated some long negative streaks in his first year in the ACC and the accomplishments caught the eye of Tiger fans and ACC followers. Clemson upset three top 20 teams during the season in North Carolina, Georgia Tech and Maryland. Ellis’ team returned to the post-season tournament picture and moved out of the cellar of the ACC, with five conference wins, the most league wins for the Tigers since the 1980-81 season.

Since the end of the year Ellis has continued his success rate in the recruiting circles as six new recruits will be a part of the program for 1985-86. Four of the players are freshmen with one junior college transfer and one other transfer eligible in December. The recruiting class has been ranked in the top five in many polls and the top 10 in just about every service that rates those futurestic things.

“Last year was very rewarding for me,” said Ellis. “It was a great year because we accomplished some things that had not been done before or in a number of years. Beating North Carolina and Georgia Tech were high points, there is no doubt. Now we must establish some consistency and be a threat to beat any team every night out. Last year the surprise factor helped. We won’t sneek up on anyone this year and I think teams respect our style of play.”

While Clemson fans remember the ACC wins, triumphs over state-rivals South Carolina and Furman and two regular season tournament triumphs, they should also remember two seniors who were keys to victory in most of those wins. “It will be difficult to replace Vincent Hamilton and Raymond Jones,” said Ellis. “Vincent was our best defensive player, our top scorer and top rebounder. Raymond came off the bench and gave us that lift in many games.”

Hamilton and Jones will be sorely missed in 1985-86 as they aided Ellis’ first team with talent and leadership. Hamilton will be remembered as one of Clemson’s greatest players ever as he is the number-two rebounding guard in the history of the Atlantic Coast Conference and is one of only four players in the history of the league to record over 1500 points, 325 assists and 600 rebounds in a career. He led Clemson in scoring and rebounding last season, only the second guard in the history of the ACC to lead his team in rebounding.

There is excitement in the air at Clemson, but the loss of Hamilton and working with a roster that contains four freshmen (67 percent of this year’s roster did not play last year) tempers the euphoria just a bit. Clemson will be one of the youngest teams in the very competitive ACC this year, a league that is so competitive that marked improvement may not be reflected in the won-loss record.

THE BACKCOURT

The present alignment of Cliff Ellis’ second Clemson roster indicates only one player is returning who had any experience in the backcourt last year. Greatson Marshall started 13 games at point guard in 1984-85 and was the sparkplug of the team in many contests, especially in the IPTAY tournament. For now, Chris Michael and Glenn Corbit, two experienced seniors who played guard at times last season, are listed as small forwards, leaving the successor to Vincent Hamilton’s guard slot up for grabs among rookies.

Marshall is a pure point guard who set an ACC freshman assist record with 192, a 6.6 per game figure. The sophomore from Washington, DC captivated the Tiger following early last year when he was MVP of the IPTAY tournament off a 17-point performance against South Alabama in the championship game. Marshall averaged 7.3 points a game last year, but it was his play-making that made the difference, as he set the Clemson single season record for assists on a per game and total basis. He also led the team in charges taken and was the top clutch free throw shooter, hitting 87 percent from the line in the last five minutes of the ACC games.

Michael Tait is another guard with Division I basketball experience. The sophomore played the 1983-84 season at Arizona and was a Pac-10 all-rookie team choice as he averaged 7.1 points and 3.1 assists per outing. The native of Compton, CA will be eligible for the Tigers in December and will be able to play in the Rainbow Classic. Tait has the reputation of a fine long-distance shooter and is an intelligent play-maker.

Two freshmen will be in the wing guard picture. Michael Best and Larry Middleton all come to Clemson with excellent reputations as far as shooting is concerned. The player who does as well on the defensive end of the court likely will line up as Vincent Hamilton’s successor.

Best averaged 19 points and eight assists per game at All Saints High School in Washington, DC last year in limited action. The 6-4 freshman was a member of an undefeated high school team that was ranked in the top 10 in the nation by USA Today. But, Best broke his leg prior to the beginning of the season and missed many games. He was an honorable mention All-American in some services heading into this season. He is capable of playing either guard position.

Larry Middleton was a two-time Junior College Player of the Year in California and was the last player to sign with the Tigers. He scored 26.2 points a game last year for Los Angeles Valley Junior College. In the spirit of Vincent Hamilton, Middleton also led his team in rebounding from the guard position as the 6-3 player pulled down 7.8 rebounds per outing. Middleton played his prep basketball at Taft High School in Los Angeles. Chris Michael and newcomers Kimble McHone and Chris Couch are also in the backcourt picture.

THE FRONTCOURT

Clemson is most experienced in the frontcourt in terms of returning players as three starters return from the center and forward slots from last year's team that led the ACC in rebound margin. Clemson surprised the league with that stat as Horace Grant, Chris Michael, Glenn Corbit and Glen McCants hit the boards hard.

Corbit is the leading returning scorer off last year's team as he connected for 11.7 points per contest. The native of Orangeburg, SC was Clemson's top scorer in post-season play last season with 35 points. A starter in all but four outings, he started 16 contests at forward and nine in the backcourt. He scored a career high 22 points on 10-13 shooting against N.C. State in the ACC Tournament so Ellis is hoping he can pick up where he left off.

Anthony Jenkins is a frontcourt player with considerable starting experience. The junior forward red-shirted last season when an achilles tendon injury ended his 1984-85 season in November. In 1983-84 he was the third leading scorer on the team with a 10.1 average. He is one of the top free throw shooters on the club as his 85 percent career figure indicates. The native of Spartanburg, SC was one of the top three-point field goal shooters in the nation as a freshman.

Horace Grant should be a starter at the strong forward position. The junior from Sparta, GA was one of the most improved players in the ACC last year as he scored 11.3 points a game and was second on the club in rebounding with a 6.8 average. He also had the top field goal percentage among the starters with a 55 percent mark, including a 61 percent figure over his last four games. Grant has experience at center and forward as he had to move to the pivot when McCants was injured last season.

That injury to McCants hurt Clemson's chances for more significant success down the stretch. The Tigers were 13-7 in games in which he played last year, but just 3-6 when he was not playing. The senior from Columbia, SC was Clemson's starting center until a knee injury suffered against South Carolina on February 9 ended his season. McCants averaged 7.9 points and six rebounds a game and led the team in blocked shots with 38.

A third returning starter in the frontcourt is Chris Michael. One of the most gifted athletes on the Clemson team (he holds the Clemson long jump record in track) he is in his fourth season with Clemson. A starter in 24 of the 29 games last year, Michael averaged 8.8 points and 3.1 rebounds a game. The streak shooter will always be remembered for scoring the winning bucket with two seconds left in Clemson's 52-50 win over North Carolina in Cliff Ellis' first outing against the Tar Heels.

John Hall, Jerry Pryor, Jeff Holstein and Robert Stone are four newcomers who should battle for playing time in the frontcourt. Hall and Stone will work at the center position, while Pryor and Holstein should help out the strong forward slot.

Pryor is the best of Clemson's newcomers in the frontcourt according to many scouting services. The 6-8 215-pounder signed with Clemson in November and was a third-team All-American selection according to Parade Magazine and was a top 40 player according to Associated Press. Pryor averaged 22 points and 16 rebounds a game last year, but is even better known for his shot blocking talents. He once blocked 18 shots in one game last year for Southeast Bulloch High School in Brooklet, GA. Holstein was an all-state player in Orangeburg, SC a couple of years ago when he averaged 18 points a game.

Hall also signed with the Tigers during the early signing period. The center from Mobile, AL averaged 15.4 points and 10.1 rebounds for Vigor High School during his senior season and was an honorable mention All-American. Stone averaged 16.5 points and 18.1 rebounds a game for Hephzibah High School in Augusta, GA in 1983-84.

THE ENEMY: POTHOLES

Cracks, sudden bumps and cavernous potholes exact a terrible toll from tires. But the Goodyear Vector is engineered to help meet the challenges of today’s roads. Its backbone of belted steel helps resist the punishment of torn-up roads. While its aggressive criss-cross tread helps prevent hydroplaning and gives you excellent traction on snow, slush or ice. The unique all-season Goodyear Vector. The next best thing to having every road freshly paved.

Vector It simply performs like no other tire in the world.
If you’ve ever sat in the lower stands during an early autumn football game, you may believe Memorial Stadium gets the nickname of “Death Valley” from the torrid California desert that’s often called the hottest spot in America.

Relief usually comes from the westly winds that flow through the breezeways on each side of the west end zone stand — the very breezeways that may someday be closed in with additional seats.

Athletic department officials, thinking ahead to the day when an additional 5,000 to 10,000 seats might be needed at Clemson, have been concerned that adding those seats in the most logical place (the west end zone) might make conditions in the lower stands, not to mention on the field, intolerable for many early season games.

“Although we have no plans at present to enlarge the stadium, we wanted to get some basic information about what would happen, as far as fan comfort is concerned, if we ever do,” says athletic director Bobby Robinson.

They didn’t have to look far for the expert help they needed. Just around the corner from the stadium is a civil engineering laboratory that contains a wind tunnel specifically designed for research on the effects of wind on people and property.

“We’ve used the wind tunnel to simulate tornadoes and hurricanes as part of research projects aimed at learning how building designs could be improved to withstand high wind,” says civil engineering professor Ben Sill. “But it can just as easily measure low-speed winds, the kind you’d have on a typical early autumn day.”

Sill built a special tunnel large enough to hold a scale model of the stadium and surrounding campus.

“We built a model from drawings of the current stadium and made removable, pie-shaped wedges to serve as the additional seats,” Sill says. “With the additions, the lower deck would wrap around the field in a horseshoe shape. There would be no upper deck on the end zone, because the existing upper decks don’t lend themselves to that design. They’re not the same height.”

The engineers made velocity profiles at various points and heights around the stadium, charting how winds move at each location. Then they measured the percentage of change before and after the addition.

Rotating the stadium model allowed them to test winds coming from all possible directions.

Early results of the project indicate temperatures would rise a bit if the seats were added, with the effect mostly felt in the lower decks. Readings taken at various points in the model showed anything from no change to an 80 percent wind reduction.

“An 80 percent drop means the wind on a fairly breezy day would drop from about 10 miles per hour to 2 miles per hour, which is virtually the same as no air movement,” he says.

Sill plans to do additional testing to see if minor modifications in the end zone design could reduce or eliminate the effect. Then, the only thing that’ll raise temperatures in the stadium will be the action on the field.
COULD BE THE BEST PASS OF THE GAME.

Success on the field doesn't come easy.

It takes a lot of work. A lot of planning. A lot of effort, skill and commitment.

Then, if you've worked hard enough and planned well enough. You come up with a winner.

And that's what the South Carolina Electric Co-ops have done over the past 50 years. By delivering affordable, dependable power to rural areas, they made possible the industrialization of more than half of our state.

Whether that industrial development took place in factories or on farms, rural electrification made production more efficient and effective, reduced food prices and expanded our potential for economic development.

That means life got better. On the farms. And in the cities. Because South Carolina Electric Co-ops are fielding a winner. For everyone.

The Legend
By Kassie Kessinger

Even though former Clemson football coach and athletic director Frank Howard officially retired from the University June 30, 1974, he still comes to his office regularly in the Jervey Athletic Center. Almost daily he answers a mound of mail, or he is off on another of the many speaking engagements, or he is lining up some advertisers for the Kickoff Publishing Company.

Howard retired from coaching December 10, 1969, after 39 years on the Clemson coaching staff, 30 of which were as head coach. He was also athletic director during this time and he kept this position until February 4, 1971, when he was named assistant to the vice president.

The following is a brief interview with Coach Howard, in an attempt to get his feelings on some of the players and highlights in his career as football coach at Clemson. In his 30 years of coaching Howard won 165, lost 118 and tied 12, and took the Clemson Tigers to six bowls. It was truly a colorful career, and he is the Legend of Clemson Football.

Who would you rate as the best offensive player that you coached?

Well, there were quite a few, guys like Joel Wells, Jackie Calvert, Billy Hair, Ray Mathews, Ray Yauger, but I would have to say probably Fred Cone (1948-49-50) was the best one I ever had. He was a good, hard running boy. We went from a 4-5 season in 1947 to an 11-0 season in 1948, and he took us to two bowls. Anybody that could do that was pretty good. Now he had some good help, good linemen, But he was just the ingredient we needed to make us a good football team. So I've always had a tender spot for Fred, because he more or less kept me in coaching. They would have fired me if he hadn't come along.

How did you get him to come to Clemson?

Actually, my sister who lived in Biloxi, MS, called me up and said she had a football player for me. When Fred got out of the Army, he wanted to go to either Auburn or Alabama. But back in those days all of the schools were crowded by September and he couldn't get in. It so happened I had gone to the registrar and told them to save me 40 places. My sister called me in August saying, "Brother, I have you a great football player, but he has never played." I had 39 names and wasn't expecting to get anymore so I just wrote his name down. He came up here and turned out to be a real running back and instead of us losing we had an undefeated season. I asked my sister later, "How did you know he was going to be such a good football player?" She said, "Well I saw him dive off the diving board and he looked athletic."

Who would you say was your best defensive player?

That would be hard to say, but I think really it would be Wyndie "Dumb Dumb" Wyndham (1948-49-50). He was the most unfriendly boy on the football field I ever had, I do believe. He didn't like the opposition. I've seen him knock four out on four consecutive tackles. He'd hit 'em, and they would go out. One time we were playing Missouri and the left halfback ran with the ball, Wyndham tackled him and knocked him out. Next play the fullback ran, and Wyndham hit him and knocked him out. Then the right halfback carried the ball, Wyndham tackled him and knocked him out. They punted to us and on the first play Cone took the ball and ran about 57 yards for a touchdown. Then we kicked off and Wyndham was on the kickoff team. It was a short kick and went to a big tackle, who was about 6-foot 8 and weighed 285 pounds when tackles back then weighed about 215. Wyndham caught him with his arms up in the air and he laid him out. Well, the Missouri captain came out on the field and told the referee, "take that wild so-and-so out of the game before he kills everyone of us." He'd hit them and stop them dead. Like Cone, he was a free boy or what they call walk-ons now.

How did he get the nickname "Dumb Dumb"?

We used to change plays at the line of scrimmage by adding and subtracting. One day we were out there and we called a "56" play. The defense wasn't right for the "56", so I said, "down 2" and Wyndham looked around like he didn't know what I was talking about, like he couldn't add or subtract. So he came back to me and said, "I don't understand, I don't understand." I said, 'Good gracious boy, you're too dumb to be one boy, you ought to be twins.' We just started calling him "Dumb Dumb." But he really was a smart devil. He wasn't dumb.

Who was the most enjoyable player you ever coached?

Well, the better they were the more I enjoyed them. We had a lot of good boys. But there was one boy named Willis Crane. I don't think he ever played, but maybe very little in 1954. He was from Chester, SC. He wasn't a good player, but he was one of the best boys I ever had. The most outstanding boy that came the longest way was a boy named Tom Barton (1950-51-52). He had a hard time getting through school. He wasn't dumb; he just wasn't applying himself. I expect I was rougher on him than anyone I ever had about doing things right. We called him "Blackcat." After he got out of school, he got his Master's Degree. Then he went to Duke and got his Ph.D., and how he’s president of Greenville Tech.

I drink coffee every morning with a group of fellows at the Holiday Inn. One day they were kidding me, saying I didn’t have as many pro football players like they do now. I told them, “No, I had a few, but I didn’t want my boys getting their brains knocked out playing pro ball. I’m awful proud of those 45 millionaires I’ve turned out. I’m awful proud of all those bank presidents. I’m proud of all the plant managers, surveyors, architects, doctors, dentists, lawyers. Believe it or not I’ve turned out a few preachers. And about that time one of my preachers came in. The group called him over and they said, “Rev. Joe Bowen, did coach Howard really coach you?” Rev. Bowen looked at them and said, “Hell, yes he coached me. I heard the Lord’s name mentioned a hell of a lot more on the football field than I ever did in the seminary.”

Who was probably the best opposing player you ever had to play against?

Steve Wadiak at South Carolina was a real fine runningback. They used to say, “Run Wadiak run, Coach Enright needs a cadillac.” There were a couple of players that always played so well against us that when they were seniors I went into the dressing room and kissed them goodbye. One of them was Edward “Butch” Songin, who played quarterback for Boston College. His senior year was 1948. Then in ’64 there was Ken Williard who played fullback for North Carolina.

What opposing coach did you enjoy going against the most?

I always liked to play against Douglas Clyde (Peahead) Walker of Wake Forest. Wake used to have some good teams when Peahead was up there. He knew a football player when he saw one. He didn’t hold an ordinary spring practice. He took his squad out into the woods for a drill. The guys that ran around the trees he made into backs. Those that ran over the trees were his linemen.

The smartest coach I ever worked with, without a doubt, without any reservation, was Ara Parseghian. That little devil has a good football mind. I worked in several all-star games with him and I really liked working with him. He was a good one.

What is the most exciting game you ever coached in?

I’d say the first Gator Bowl game in 1949. We humiliated Missouri, 24-23, beat the devil out of them, wouldn’t you say. It looked like a tennis match. When they had the ball we couldn’t stop them, when we had the ball they couldn’t stop us. It was up and down, up and down. I remember we had put in a new defense. It was the Vanderbilt defense that my assistant coach, Russ Cohen, had implemented. He was the same coach who had given me my scholarship to Alabama. I remember asking him at half, “Hey Pop, you know that defense isn’t working so good. We made it to this bowl playing that old defense, so let’s put it back in.” We slowed them, but we didn’t stop them. I also remember that with about two minutes to play we had a one-point lead with the ball on the 50-yard line. It was fourth down and three yards to go. The quarterback looked at me, and I told him to run the ball and try and make the first down. Pops looked at me and said, “Skipper what did you tell him?” Pop, I told him to run that doggone ball. This next play is going to determine whether I’m a good coach or one of those SOBs. He said, “I wish you had told him to punt.” The QB took the ball and ran right into the line and they hit him at the line of scrimmage, but he wiggled out for a gain of four yards. The old man grabbed me around the neck and he said, “you ain’t no SOB today.”

What would you rate as your most satisfying win?

A lot of people said the best game we ever played was in the 1959 Bluebonnet Bowl. I don’t know if it was. TCU was leading us 7-3 at halftime. Well, the second half we had a pass-play that they just could not stop, and we started throwing that thing and we scored three touchdowns. I liked the TCU coach, Abe Martin. So I told our guys to stop throwing that pass, we had enough points, let’s just play defense. I didn’t want to humiliate them. They couldn’t come close to stopping that pass. Gary Barnes was the one catching most of the passes. He was good.

Which of your teams would rank as your favorite?

All of them that win are your favorites. I guess the 1948 and 1950 teams. Mainly, the ’48 team because it came at such a good time for me, because I was about to get fired, and I knew it. I never had contracts like they have now. They could have fired me in mid-season and wouldn’t have owed me a cent. But that ’48 team went undefeated and went to our first bowl. The ’50 team was about the same group as the ’48, with the exception of a few players. I don’t think they had as much ability, but you came to expect the same results. Also, the ’50 team played in the Orange Bowl, which was a bit more recognized than the Gator Bowl at that time.

What is one particular funny incident that stands out in your mind about football officials?

Actually, most of my funnier stories deal with officials. I remember Lou Bello working a VPI game for us and he’d messed us out of two touchdowns. We were behind 20-7 with a minute to play. He was hot and sweaty and he stopped the game just for him to rest. He came over to me and said, “Coach do what do you want me to do with the football after the game?” I said, “You so-and-so, low-life boy, you take that football and stick it right up your butt.” I thought I really had told him. But he turned and said, “Coach would it be alright if I let the air out first?”

What is your favorite story you tell when on the banquet circuit?

I tell them about wearing out three college presidents. When my first president, Dr. Enoch W. Sikes, hired me, he told me, “Coach, I don’t want you to tell people what I pay you.” I said, “Doc, you don’t have to worry, I’m as ashamed of it as you are.” I went in to see Dr. R. F. Poole about a pay raise and he said: “I can’t raise your pay, but I can give you some titles and degrees.” I said, ‘those titles and degrees are fine, but they don’t educate kids or put groceries on the table.’ I didn’t get the raise. Then we got a new president, Dr. R. C. Edwards, who used to be a football manager. He was smarter than the others. He went in to see the trustees about a pay raise for me and they said we can’t pay a football coach more than a college president. So he said, “he’s worth every cent I’m recommending. I want you to comply with my request.” With that they raised his pay, $20,000.

Did you have any superstitions while you were coaching?

Oh I guess I had quite a few. I remember after upsetting Mississippi State in ’48, I ordered the same plane and pilot for future trips that season. I had my players follow the same menus, meal by meal, that they had in Missisipi. Well, we went through the season undefeated and without an injury to a single man all season. I’ve worn the same old suit a few times as well.

IPTAY Student Advisory Board
By Jill Mixon

In September of 1983, then student body president David Stalnaker and past Executive Secretary of IPTAY Joe Turner, proposed the IPTAY Student Advisory Board as an extension of student government. The intent of the organization was then and remains today, to improve relations between IPTAY and the student body.

The body was originally designed to include 15 student members, four members of the IPTAY Board of Directors, and the Executive Secretary of IPTAY. But, the Board recently revised its constitution to increase student involvement to 25 members.

President of the IPTAY Student Advisory Board (ISAB), Scott MacLean, explained membership in the organization, "Presently we have 25 student members which includes the officers and liaisons. The group consists of four representatives each from the senior, junior, and sophomore classes, in addition to two members from the freshmen class. We also have the president and vice-president of the student body, the editors of the Tiger and Taps, the program director for WSBF, and the student senate representative for the Athletic Affairs Committee serving as liaisons on the board."

The ISAB members recently conducted a membership drive in which they selected 10 new members. MacLean explained, "The revision to the constitution allowed us to appoint 10 new people to our Board. We held a drop-in at the President's Box of the stadium in mid-September, and over 50 students expressed interest in joining our group. Each individual filled out an application relating to their knowledge and opinions concerning IPTAY. Our nominating committee reviewed the applications and selected 30 applicants to be interviewed. It was a long and tedious process, but we believe we have some really sharp new members."

During its three-year existence the ISAB has made great strides towards improving the student body's concept of IPTAY, but they still have much work ahead of them. The group designed and distributed an informative poster to all students in January, which illustrated the success of Clemson Athletics. In addition to the collage of pictures, the poster also highlighted recent accomplishments of the IPTAY club. The paw notes included such facts as IPTAY's $1,160,000 donation to the College of Education for the purchase of computers, their donation of $265,000 for a developmental education program, and co-sponsorship of student government projects "Rising Above" and "Spirit Blitz".

The biggest challenge the ISAB has met came about as the organization introduced the freshmen class to IPTAY. "We held a barbeque for the freshmen the first week of school, and we had various representatives from the athletic department come and explain Clemson's policies to the students. For example, Van Hilderbrand, the ticket manager, spoke to the students and explained when and where they need to come to pick up their football tickets. Cliff Ellis, Dr. I. M. Ibrahim, Bobby Robinson, Don Wade, and Allison Dalton all made presentations to a group of over 700. We feel that the barbeque was very successful, and that the Class of 1989 is the most informed freshman class ever about IPTAY. We plan on making the barbeque an annual event, so after a four year sequence we will have a whole student body that is well educated about IPTAY."

Dedicated people are one reason why the ISAB has prospered. Executive Secretary Allison Dalton and Assistant Executive Secretary Bert Henderson have spent many long hours working with the Board to ensure its success. "We really appreciate all the help Mr. Dalton and Mr. Henderson have provided. We could not have accomplished what we have without their assistance," concluded MacLean.

The officers of the ISAB are: President, Scott MacLean, Bridgtown, ME; Vice-President, Chap Jones, Florence; Secretary, Belva White, Marion. The senior representatives include: Teresa Bullock, Mauldin; Mark Hughes, Cowpens; Kevin Landmesser, Abbeville; Jill Mixon, Barnwell; and Kent Shull, West Columbia. The junior representatives include: Louisa Dodd, Bamberg; Tony Greer, Conway; Kevin McCarter, Clover; and Kenny Owens, Greenville. The sophomore representatives include: Wayne Brown, Florence; Mary Anne McDonald, Laurnburg, NC; Sam Stiteler, Dunwoody, GA; and Laurie Williams, Georgetown. The freshmen representatives are Rich Varalla, Decatur, GA and Lisa Williamson, LaGrange, GA. The liaisons include Student Body Vice President Dent Adams, Kingstable; WSBF Program Director Helen Bosbyshell, Largo, FL; Student Body President Matt Locke, Belton; Taps representative Don Lusk, Westminster; Past WSBF Program Director Barry Reynolds, Lexington; Tiger Editor Foster Senn, Newberry; and Student Senate Athletic Committee representative Scott Sprouse, Piedmont.

Sometimes, service means more than fixing a power line.

That's the kind of service most people expect from us. But that's not all we do. Our Summer Foundation provides assistance for organizations which aid people in need. Programs like the Baptist Medical Center Foundation and the Foundation for the Multihandicapped, Blind and Deaf of South Carolina, whose helping hands reach a lot of people.

If you know of an organization that could use our help, drop us a line. We'd like to be of service.

Satisfaction Guaranteed
Or Your Money Back

Whatever you buy at Sears, you have the right to use it for a reasonable time before you determine it is satisfactory and decide to keep it. If you decide it is not satisfactory, return it to us at our expense. We will do whatever is necessary to correct the cause of your dissatisfaction.

If we can't satisfactorily provide a remedy, or if you request a refund, we will refund your full purchase price including any appropriate delivery charges, finance charges and applicable taxes.

Sears Pledge of Fairness

If, after you have decided to keep your purchase, it doesn't give you the service or performance you reasonably expect of it and there isn't a specific written warranty on the item that will satisfactorily correct the problem, please let us know.

We want to make an adjustment that you will consider fair.

You Can Count On Sears
You can count on Sears for satisfaction

Satisfaction guaranteed or your money back is a promise Sears has lived by for half a century. Other things you can still count on at Sears: fair prices, good workmanship, wide selection, competent service.

You pay good money at Sears. In return, Sears believes that you should be completely satisfied with everything you buy.

You must be satisfied with performance, quality of workmanship, fit, styling—even color. Suppose you buy a blue sweater through the catalog and the blue strikes you as different, however slightly, from the blue on the printed page.

Says Sears catalog: "In such a case, as with everything we sell, we guarantee your satisfaction or your money back."

Sears goes to extraordinary lengths to make certain that you will be satisfied. For instance:

1. Men and women from Sears spend thousands of hours a year at factories that make Sears products.

These men and women are called buyers, but they do a lot more than place orders. They study the needs and desires of Sears customers—and work personally with manufacturers to make certain that Sears products perform as expected.

2. The Sears Laboratory tests over 10,000 products a year.

Sears maintains one of the world's largest private laboratories for testing consumer goods. It tests for strength, durability, handling, and performance.

3. Sears employs engineers to help manufacturers improve their efficiency.

This is one of many steps Sears takes to help hold down costs. Others include an almost fanatically efficient distribution system.

Example: Refrigerator door handles are left off refrigerators for shipment to Sears stores. With door handles tucked neatly into cartons instead of sticking out, each carton can be a little smaller. Sears can get more refrigerators on each truck—and the shipping cost for each refrigerator goes down a few cents.

Dozens of small efficiencies like this explain why Sears regular prices are so reasonable, and Sears sale prices such terrific bargains.

So it's first to Sears for millions of shoppers—more than shop at any other store. These millions have found again and again that they are likely to spot exactly what they're looking for at Sears, to pay a fair price for it—and to be completely satisfied with it once they get it home.

You can use Marvess® Olefin yarn for more fabrics than you thought...

for less money than you think.

As the most extensive product line in terms of colors and deniers, Phillips Marvess olefin multifilament yarn sets the standard for the upholstery industry. But this technically superior yarn also has a wide variety of other fabric applications.

Fabrics for window curtains, shower curtains, drapes, mattress ticking, indoor/outdoor furniture covering, bedspreads. The list goes on and on.

So do the benefits of using this strong, yet lightweight yarn. For example, Marvess olefin has the lowest specific gravity of any fiber, which reduces the number of ends and picks needed per square inch. Thus it produces more yards per pound of fabric. And that means big savings to you.

Our non-allergenic, fade-resistant yarn also has extremely low moisture absorption, so less energy is required in the drying process—which means additional savings. And because of its high strength, wet or dry, fabrics don't need to be overconstructed.

Last, but certainly not least, Phillips Fibers has the largest plant capacity in the U.S. devoted exclusively to producing textile olefin filament yarns for the home furnishings industry. And the price is competitive, but then, that's what you'd expect from one of the performance companies.

For more information and service that's second to none, contact Olefin Fibers Marketing, Phillips Fibers Corporation, P.O. Box 66, Greenville, SC 29602. Call: 803/242-6600.

WE HELP PUT A BRIGHTER FACE ON THE FUTURE.

The spirit and enthusiasm that surrounds collegiate football is unmatched. College football has the ability to bind people from different walks of life while creating a common bond and commitment among students and fans alike. On one such occasion on this day in Tiger football, November 2, the student body exemplified the Tiger Spirit that Clemson is so famous for, and welcomed back a team that had suffered defeat.

1911—Clemson played before the biggest crowd to watch an athletic event in the state of South Carolina on this day 74 years ago. A total of 3,000 spectators, 700 of which were Clemson cadets, saw Clare Webb score two touchdowns on the way to a 27-0 defeat over the South Carolina Gamecocks at the annual state fair at Columbia, SC. Webb scored from one and two yards out in the Tiger victory. The contest started at 11:00 a.m.

1920—Georgia Tech, now an ACC rival permitted Clemson to use its practice fields and locker rooms on the Friday before Clemson was to play Kentucky the next day. The Tigers left Clemson by train en route to Lexington Friday morning and worked out at Georgia Tech's practice fields before continuing their trek to Lexington that afternoon.

In this game, Kentucky, whose line averaged 200 pounds, had an easy time with the Tigers, winning 44-6. “Shipwreck” Kelly scored two touchdowns for the Wildcats in registering the victory.

When the Tigers got back from Lexington, they were greeted at the Clemson train station by several hundred Clemson students who were welcoming them back from their long trip. The students then hoisted the football team into a wagon which they pulled back through town giving the football squad a ride back to campus and more importantly a sign of support and spirit that Clemson students and fans have been known for many years.

1935—Two touchdown passes thrown by Net Berry proved to be the margin of victory in a 13-0 Clemson victory over Mercer at Augusta, GA. Berry first threw for a first down in the first quarter with Mac Folger catching the ball for a 15-yard touchdown reception. Tate Horton was on the receiving end of a 50-yard scoring play in the fourth quarter to seal the victory for the Tigers. On the day Clemson was 6-6 in passing for 135 yards while gaining 111 yards on the ground.

1945—After a 26-hour train ride from Clemson to Miami, FL on the day before the game, Clemson had to endure a longer trip back home as the Tigers fell victim to Miami 7-6 on a Friday night.

All 13 points were manufactured in the first quarter with the Tigers scoring first. Jim Reynolds scored on a one-yard run to give the Tigers a 6-0 advantage. Miami later scored on a double reverse with Gene Hancock scoring from 29-yards out. Harry Ghaut then kicked the all-important extra point to lift Miami over the Tigers.

1949—Bobby Gage threw two touchdown passes, as the Tigers took a 14-7 win over Virginia Tech. In the first quarter, Virginia Tech scored when Dick Deshazo took a lateral from Ted Johnson and went 19 yards around the end to take the lead 7-0, which lasted until the fourth quarter. Clemson then cut loose with an aerial show that netted two touchdowns and a 14-7 win. Bobby Gage's five-yard pass to Chip Clark and later 14-yard pass to Dewey Quinn were the scoring plays that enabled Clemson to win.

1957—Sophomore quarterback Harvey White fired two fourth-down passes for touchdowns to lift Clemson to a 20-7 victory over Rice at Houston. White's first scoring aerial was a 20-yard pass to Whitey Jordan. White then connected with Charlie Horne on a nine-yard scoring pass.

1963—Clemson fullback Pat Crain scored on runs of two, five, and one yard as he led his Clemson team to a 36-0 rout of Wake Forest. New York pitching great Whitey Ford was in attendance at this game. His reaction to the game was, "Wake Forest had a good pitcher (quarterback) but needs a good catcher (receivers)." Brian Piccalo starred for the Deacons.

1968—This game on November 2, featured the two top teams in the ACC, Clemson and N.C. State, playing in one of the most exciting games ever played in the conference. The game started out with a promise of a thriller as N.C. State's Bobby Hall ran the kickoff back for a touchdown. On the ensuing kickoff Clemson's Buddy Gore returned the ball 78 yards to the N.C. State 22-yard line to set up Clemson's first touchdown. In the fourth quarter with the score 19-17 in N.C. State's favor and with 2:20 left in the game, Clemson started a drive on its own 31-yard line. Ray Yauger capped this drive with a seven-yard run that gave Clemson a 24-19 victory over eventual ACC champions N.C. State. It only took the Tigers 87 seconds to score.

1974—Clemson connected on three scoring strikes and went on to down Wake Forest 21-9. Clemson's first score was a 31-yard pass from Tiger quarterback Mark Fellers to Rickey Bustle. Joey Walters also scored on a long pass, this one being a 45-yard aerial from Fellers. Tony Mathews finished off the Clemson scoring with a 20-yard run around left end.

Today's Band Feature
By David Webb

For two preceding years, Wake Forest faced Clemson in Memorial Stadium, but Death Valley lacked the added teeth and fury as the majority of Clemson students, were away on fall break. Well, this year, the students are back, well rested and ready to welcome not only the Deacons, but also some people who have notable contributions to the Clemson athletics program. Those people will be officially recognized today as part of the Hall of Fame Day festivities.

Tiger Band will start the activities of a Clemson football Saturday with its traditional halftime show. Starting with "Sock It To 'Em," and the Orange Bowl March, the band will continue with the ever-arousing "Tiger Rag" while spelling out the word "Tigers."

Today's guest of honor dotting the "i" in Tigers will be Mr. Alan Corbett. Mr. Corbett has been named the South Carolina Handicapped Citizen Of The Year, and his notation today is in recognition of all handicapped citizens.

Continuing the pregame show, Tiger Band will offer its rendition of "You're A Grand Old Flag" and "America The Beautiful." These selections will be directed by Dr. Richard E. Goodstein and accompanied by the Clemson University Chorus. Dr. Bruce F. Cook will then direct Tiger Band's playing of our national anthem, followed by the Clemson University Alma Mater, directed by William W. Campbell. The invocation will be offered by the Reverend Greg Apparcel of St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Church, and the colors will be presented by an ensemble from Pershing Rifles, Company C-4, Kerry Graham, Color Guard Commander. The pregame show will conclude in an expertise a la Clemson as the Fightin' Tigers come roaring down the hill.

Tiger Band will give the Clemson student body a chance to see what it missed last week when the band presents an encore of its halftime show, "Crafted With Pride In The USA." Performing to the "visitor" side of Death Valley, today's halftime show will commence with the Jacksons' hit "Torture," arranged by Dr. James Sochinski of Virginia Tech. The show continues with Tiger Band's rendition of the 1983 Al Jarreau smash, "Boogie Down". Arranged by Paul Lavendar, this song will serve as a reminder of the imminent arrival of basketball season by featuring the Rally Cats. Next "Trooper Salute," will be played, a song dedicated to the troopers of Wyoming. "Trooper Salute" was arranged by Jay Bocook, and Jay Reese arranged the percussion. The final number of today's halftime show features the percussion section and it was arranged by two Clemson students. "Y, Y, Z," arranged by Mark Biering and Michael Pry, will conclude with "Crafted With Pride In The USA" before Tiger Band turns an about face to once again face the "home" side of the stadium and make its exit with the salute to Clemson fans in every corner of the Earth with "The Song That Shakes The Southland," TIGER RAG!!

This week, Tiger Band would like to feature its twirlers. For the first time in several years, Tiger Band has just two twirlers instead of five. The twirlers for 1985-86 Tiger Band are Robin Berry and Tammy Ward.

Berry is a junior majoring in psychology. She has been twirling since she was five-years-old, and she has been twirling competitively at both state and national levels for nine years. Berry has won numerous titles, including Miss Majorette of South Carolina and South Carolina Most Outstanding Twirler, as well as being the South Carolina Two-Baton Champion.

Ward is a junior majoring in political science. This is her third year as a twirler in Tiger Band, but her first year as a feature twirler. A resident of Weaverville, North Carolina, Ward has been active in baton twirling for 12 years and has competed in local, state, and national events since she was nine. Her awards include being Miss Majorette of North Carolina three times and Miss Majorette of South Carolina in 1984. She was runner-up for the Miss College Majorette title last January.

In Clemson athletics, coaches teach their players to run, swim, hit, or volley. One Clemson coach, however, spends his time preparing his team for a two-minute walk.

That coach is Joe White, his team consists of all Clemson athletes, and the two-minute walk he prepares them for is their march up the Littlejohn Coliseum floor to receive their diplomas at the end of their academic program.

White is the academic advisor for athletes at Clemson University, and is in charge of coordinating the progress of Clemson's athletes through their college career. He works within the academic structure of the university with the deans of each school. His involvement begins as recruits of all 17 sports visit Clemson. At that time White, or his assistant, Ian Davidson, begin the counseling process that hopefully ends in graduation.

"When the recruit makes his official visit, we explain our program, especially the tutoring and study-hall concept," says White. "If the prospective student-athlete knows what academic program he wants to pursue, we usually have a faculty member come and counsel him on his choice. If the recruit doesn't know what he wants to concentrate in, we give him a general idea of the overall academic program with the help of some of our faculty."

Supervised by Dr. B. J. Skellon and the Office of Student Affairs, the program goes much further than the athlete's initial visit. White and Davidson, aided by graduate assistants Mike Jenkins and Cameron Davidson, conduct a continuous tutoring and advising program. Study hall is required for incoming freshmen and all students with less than a 2.0 grade point average. "We have 65 tutors on hand for two hours five nights a week," Davidson says. "If the student's difficulties can't be solved in regular study hall, we arrange for additional tutorial assistance."

The Academic Advising staff also assists in arranging block schedules for the athletes to coordinate their overall daily routine, and for assuring that each athlete is making satisfactory progress towards a degree. NCAA regulations are also a concern of White and his staff, and it is their responsibility to help the student-athlete keep his academic progress within the provided boundaries.

"We feel that it's important to help students be the best they can possibly be," commented White. "We try to make them aware of the need to earn their degree, and its importance to them in later life. Only two percent of college athletes play professional sports, and they eventually retire, and leave the sport. We want to prepare our youngsters for fulfilling lives off, as well as on the field."

Once a position filled by football coaches, the job of academic advisor has risen in stature over the years. "In 1978, I attended a national conference for academic advisors and 30 people showed up," says White. "Last year, we had 130 people attend."

White believes the greatest accomplishments of his program are the inclusion of all sports and athletes, and the expansion of his staff to accommodate each individual's needs.

The program, funded by ITPAY, has offices in Mauldin Hall, and is a part of the overall academic-athletic program enabled by ITPAY contributions.

Today, you may cheer if a Tiger runs into the end zone for a touchdown, but it won't equal the achievement that a slow walk for a diploma will someday bring, thanks to hard work of the Clemson Academic Advising Program.
Several theories have been advanced down through the years as to why Clemson has such a great following at its football games, both home and away.

Some say it goes back to the days of military when the entire student body was a close-knit group and you knew the name of everybody on your company or else it was spelled out on the back of your lap with a broom until you did know.

Others believe the following developed because of the “family atmosphere” at Clemson games where children are brought to see the Tigers play football and not left at home while mama and daddy leave town to do naughty things.

There are those who say that winning teams, national championships, conference titles, great facilities and plenty of close-in parking combine to draw crowds. This might be true, but not always. Even when Clemson suffered through a 2-9 season in 1975, average attendance per game jumped over 5,000 the next year. And a 3-6-2 tally in 1976 saw nearly a 3,000 increase in 1977.

But one of the stronger arguments for the staunch following — with one of the lowest fair-weather defections of any school — probably stems from “youth day” which was observed for 12 straight years from 1956 through 1967.

When a game was designated “Youth Day” it meant that any group — Scouts, 4-Hers, Future Farmers, BYU, MYF, and pee wee teams — could get into a Clemson game for a dime apiece. Several factors contributed to the demise of youth day, but one was when teams began showing up with more (adult) coaches than there were team members ... also getting in for a dime.

But these youth day crowds saw some great football games. It seems that everytime a game was designated as such, it would turn out to be a whale of a contest. And many of these kids were seeing their first football game. They wanted to come back for more. And as the years drifted by, many of them continued to attend Clemson games, first as enrolled students and later as graduates and contributing supporters.

Only twice in the 12 years did the youth see less than 30 points scored in a game. In seven of the dozen, over 40 points were scored. And several of the games were not decided until the final quarter.

One game seen by the youth day crowd was the 1966 Virginia game when the Tigers were behind 17 points with 18 minutes to play and came back to win, 40-35. The Furman game of 1958 (36-19) vaulted Clemson into the Sugar Bowl although Tiger fans were not so sure at the end. Clemson had a 30-0 halftime lead, but the Hurricane (as Furman was nicknamed then) outscored the Tigers 19-6 in the second half.

The Wake Forest game of 1959 may be the best game ever played in “The Valley.” The Deacons led, 17-14 at halftime, and jumped ahead 24-14 with seven minutes showing in the third. Clemson went up 27-24 with 8:16 to play, but Wake came right back to regain the lead, 31-27.

Because of a crazy substitution rule where a player could only enter once in a quarter, the Deacons could not get quarterback Norman Snead back in the game. Chuck Reiley passed out in the flat, George Usry intercepted for Clemson, returned it 73 yards to the 10 and the Tigers scored the winning TD with 4:24 left.

Such were some of the games on Youth Day — all for a dime apiece. And with nearly every car, bus, station wagon and truck that entered the parking lot, there was double capacity of kids in every one. And invariable, a dozen or so would become separated from the group they came with and be brought to the press box ... usually to be claimed after the first announcement.

But at one game, this Cub Scout was brought to the press box about five minutes before the first half ended. Repeated announcements failed to bring a caller to the press box. But the Cub was content. He had a good view of the game, he was getting plenty of soda pop and sandwiches and he didn't lack for attention.

Announcements continued to be made during the second half, but still no one called for a missing Cub. An hour after the game he was still enjoying the leftovers in the press box, but something had to be done.

The Cub knew his name as well as that of his parent's name. He told us he lived in Belton. So a call was made to the Belton Police Department and the officer on duty knew the Cub's parents. He was told to call the family and tell them that their son would be at the police department in about 30 minutes, courtesy of a State Highway Patrolman who was on his way back to Greenwood.

The Cub was delivered safely and we found out later that the party who brought him to the ball game did not miss him until they pulled up in front of his house in Belton and told him to “get out.”

In all probability, that Cub Scout is among the thousands who have grown up and still love to come to Clemson for a football game. He got a little more attention than most of the ones did back in that era. But they all saw some pretty good football on “Youth Day” and that is just one man's theory on what caused this great Clemson following.

George Usry goes high to score Clemson's winning TD on "Youth Day" against Wake Forest in 1959.

Crossing the Threshold of New Horizons

Leadership. Yeargin is in the forefront of high technology construction for tomorrow's industry... from precision laser equipment alignment procedures and clean room installations to automated welding systems.

For a glass optic fibers facility, we designed and constructed one of the nation's first self-contained mobile Class 100 clean rooms for preinstallation welding, bending, and cleaning of high-purity stainless piping. Yeargin had to meet precision equipment installations with job-required tolerances of .0001 millimeters.

Additionally, utilizing orbital welding techniques, we set new industry fabrication and installation standards under clean room conditions encompassing 700 production machines at a microchip circuit board facility.

Being a leader in the construction industry for carbon fibers, electronics, nuclear power, pharmaceuticals, pulp and paper, and foods is a position to which Yeargin is accustomed. Quality construction... On time... And within budget.
