Today's Features

5 Terence Flagler
When this season began Terrence Flagler had quite a streak going...four straight games without carrying the football. Now he is an All-America candidate looking to set a record for most 100-yard games. Kassie Kessinger reviews Flagler's incredible turnaround.

7 Kenny Flowers
While Terrence Flagler holds all the single season rushing marks at Clemson, it's his teammate, Kenny Flowers, who holds all the career records. Annabelle Vaughan takes us back over the Florida native's record-breaking career.

52 National Champions
This is the five-year anniversary of the most celebrated accomplishment in Clemson athletic history. The Tigers won the 1981 National Championship after a difficult 6-5 season in 1980. No one would have predicted the accomplishments of the 1981 Tigers, as former Clemson sports information assistant Jeff Rhodes remembers.

55 Paw Painting
The Tiger Paw has become a national symbol of Clemson and the Tigers put it everywhere. Yes, even in the middle of the streets. Kelly Winters tells us exactly how it is done.

On the Cover
Terrence Flagler, Kenny Flowers and Steve Griffin have combined for over 5,000 yards rushing in their collective careers, most ever by a group from the same class.

77 University Feature
Clemson, South Carolina and The Medical University of South Carolina have joined forces in many worthwhile research projects. Catherine Sams reflects how this unification will benefit all South Carolinians.

81 Senior Sponsors
It has become a tradition at Clemson that the seniors honor a special lady in their final home program. Whether they are girlfriends, relatives, or tutors, these women have played a special part in the seniors' careers at Clemson.

111 This Day in Tiger Football
Exactly six years ago today Willie Underwood single-handedly turned the tide of Clemson football fortunes. Foster Senn takes us back to Underwood's incredible performance against South Carolina and reviews many other interesting games on this date over the years.

113 All-America Holder
Todd Schonhar has always had a dream of winning a Clemson game with a heroic touchdown pass on the last play of the game. This year he realized his dream...sort of...Annabelle Vaughan profiles the best holder in the nation.

114 Mother-of-the-Year
Each year Tiger Brotherhood honors the Clemson Mother-of-the-Year, and this year's selection is an outstanding choice. Beth Stewart has been a true Tiger almost as long as Frank Howard, and she is still just as spirited, as Maria Farry states.

115 Steve Griffin
Clemson's third red-shirted senior tailback would have been a starter at most schools in the ACC. Tim Match reviews his career.

Kissing Your Sister?
The Clemson football team now knows how Curt Weatherly feels. Last weekend the Tigers tied Maryland, which is commonly compared to kissing one's sister. But, in the process, Clemson won the ACC title by a half game over N. C. State. That is one of the goals, if not the major goal for the Clemson football program. Thus it was a little more than just kissing your sister, which is where the comparison to Weatherly comes in. The 1983 Clemson graduate is the brother of former Miss Universe (and Clemson student) Shawn Weatherly.

Oliver vs. Run and Shoot

While a Clemson football team has never faced the Run and Shoot, an offense devised by Mouse Davis when he was at Portland State, the Tigers do have a coach with experience against it.

Tiger assistant Bill Oliver has been around in his successful career as a college and pro assistant and he faced the run and shoot while he was in the USFL. And, the results were positive. Jim Kelly and the Houston Gamblers had Davis put the offense in and they averaged 41 points per game heading into the 16th game of the season at Memphis. The Showboats' defense was coached by Bill Oliver. Kelly could not get the ball in the endzone against Oliver's defense and the Showboats qualified for the playoffs with a 15-6 win. Coach Oliver has saved films of that game and you can be sure the Tiger secondary has been viewing those films this week.

Oliver has the Tiger secondary on a roll lately. Over the last three games Clemson opponents have completed only 45 of 114 passes, just 39.7 percent. And, they are not giving up the yardage as the opposition has picked up just 5.2 yards per attempt. The Clemson passing game, by no means an attack that ranks with BYU or Miami, has an 8.2 yards per attempt figure over the last three weeks.

Perry Chasing Perry

Clemson junior Michael Dean Perry is quickly moving up the Clemson all-time lists for quarterback sacks and tackles for loss. Both lists are headed up by his brother, William. "The Refrigerator" Perry and Michael Dean will have to go some to reach his brother's ACC marks. But, Perry is already fourth in both categories in Clemson history with 34 tackles for loss and 16 sacks in his career. This season Perry has 12 tackles for minus yardage and seven sacks. He is just three sacks away from the Clemson single season record, but he is far away from William's ACC mark of 27 tackles for loss in a single season. Perry needs just three quarterback sacks in the last two games to move ahead of Jim Stuckey and Steve Durham into second place right behind his brother on the career sack list.

Seniors' Final Home Game

Sixteen seniors and one graduate student will be playing their final home game for Clemson against South Carolina. This group includes 11 players who red-shirted at one time or another and thus were here for five years. During those five seasons Clemson has a 38-14-3 overall record, including 22-5-2 mark in Death Valley.

The players in their final home game are: Geoff Ciniero, DB, Columbia, MD; Scott Enzor, LB, Green Sea, SC; Terrence Flagler, TB, Per-had five receptions for 124 yards. Wide receiver Ryan Bethea (6-3, 206) has caught 27 passes for five scores, while five other players have caught at least one scoring strike.

Fire Ants

The USC defensive unit held Wake Forest, the nation's fifth-ranked offense last week, to just 198 total yards with 11 of those yards coming in their final two drives. For the season, the defense is yielding 368.8 yards in total offense, 167.7 on the ground and 202.1 through the air. USC has recovered 11 fumbles, snared 16 interceptions and blocked two punts.

Senior linebacker Kenneth Robinson (brother of former Clemson All-American James Robinson) closed out his final home game last week against Wake in excellent fashion, coming up with his first career interception and returning it 34 yards for a score. In the loss to Virginia, Robinson had 18 solo tackles, and heading into the Wake Forest outing he led USC in tackles with 84. Also, Derrick Little (6-4, 230) and Zip Zanders (6-0, 210) have been very effective from the middle linebacker slots. Zanders had 57 hits, including 35 solo going into the Wake game, while Little had been credited with 52 stops and two PBUs.

Two Tigers on 1982 Club

Clemson has only two players remaining on its current roster who played in the ACC title clinching game in Japan in 1982. Terrence Flagler had five carries for 19 yards against Wake Forest that day as a freshman and Steve Griffin had one carry for no yards, but had three kickoff returns for 33 yards.

There are nine other players currently on the Clemson team who red-shirted that season, so they were at Clemson on the sidelines during an ACC title clinching year, but did not play in any games. Those players are Kenny Flowers, Mike Jollay, Terence Mack, Eric Nix, Brian Raber, Jim Riggs, Todd Schonhar, Perry Williams and Ray Williams.

1982 Team Backfield

And speaking of that 1982 team, it had quite a backfield. Already there are four running backs who played pro football on that team and with Terrence Flagger, Kenny Flowers and Steve Griffin graduating this year that total should increase. Kevin Mack (Cleveland Browns), Cliff Austin (Atlanta Falcons), Chuck McSwain (two years Dallas Cowboys) and Jeff McCull (1983 with LA Raiders) all were members of that team in addition to the current lineup of backs.

Phillips Having Great Season

Clemson's top All-America candidate might be junior offensive guard John Phillips. The right guard is a major reason for Clemson's turnaround offensively since the Virginia game last year. He has started each of the last 18 games and Clemson has had at least 200 yards rushing in 17 of those games. Clemson has averaged 273.5 yards rushing per game since he moved into the starting lineup. Clemson had a streak of 14 straight 200-yard games during the stretch and it is no coincidence that the streak began when Phillips started starting.

He is also a major reason Clemson has averaged 277.0 yards a game rushing this season, the fourth best figure in the nation. He had nine knockdown blocks against Maryland and North Carolina and now has 86 for the season, exactly tied with James Farr's record of 86 set in 1963. The man he has been assigned to has not sacked the Clemson quarterback in the last 14 games and has done it just once in the 18 games he has played at guard.

Flagler Chasing Records

Clemson tailback Terrence Flagler has already set nine Clemson records this year and is in range to establish five more. Here is a list of the records he has already established this season:

- Most All-Purpose Rushing Yards in a Game: 274 vs. Wake Forest
- Most 200-yard Rushing Games in a Season: 2
- Rushing in a Regular Season: 1110
- Most Rushing in Back to Back Games: 387
- Most Rushing in a Three-Game Series: 489
- Most Rushing in a Five-Game Series: 744
- Most Rushing in a Six-Game Series: 858
- Most Rushing in a Seven-Game Series: 935

That's the spirit. And once you feel it, you just can't top it.
The man of the hour for this season was supposed to be senior Heisman Trophy candidate Kenny Flowers, but a preseason knee injury sideline him early and a later ankle injury severely curtailed his time as Clemson's starting tailback. So with Flowers ailing, backup tailback Terrence Flagler stepped in and he has turned in a season comparable to a Heisman Trophy winner.

As Wake Forest coach Al Groh said, "If Flowers is a candidate for the Heisman Trophy, then Flagler is a candidate for Mr. Universe." The accolades and rave reviews have been flowing ever since Flagler romped 90 yards in just 10 carries and netted 58 yards on three receptions in leading Clemson to a 31-28 win at Georgia. "Motown" Flagler, nicknamed this by teammate Ray Williams, has already broken nine all-time Clemson records this year and is on a pace to break many more.

Coming into his fifth and final season as a Clemson Tiger (he was red-shirted in 1983), Flagler had accumulated 904 yards rushing. But, as he suits up for his final regular season game today, he is 206 yards above that total this season alone and needs just 91 to break Kenny Flowers' single season mark of 1200 yards set last year.

To list just Flagler's senior accomplishments would take up 10 pages of this program. The native of Fernandina Beach, FL is a bonafide All-America candidate, as well as the leading candidate for the ACC's Player-of-the-Year. Entering today's game he is the second highest ranked rusher on a team ranked in the top 20 in the nation.

Not only is he leading the Tigers in scoring, rushing and all-purpose rushing, but he tops the ACC in terms of yards per carry, scoring and is third in all-purpose rushing. The 6-1, 200-pounder is assaulting the Tigers' all-time records in yards per game, yards per carry, and single season (all games) rushing yardage.

To say Flagler is parlaying his "day in the sun" into gold is an understatement. After spending three seasons battling injury and playing second fiddle to a string of outstanding Clemson runningbacks, Flagler is answering critics who perhaps began to doubt his ability.

"The big difference between this year and past years is being out on the field," said the softspoken Flagler. "The things I'm doing now may be a surprise to some people because it's the first time they've seen me play consistently. But for me, it's not really a surprise because the ability has always been there."

Teammate Kenny Flowers supports Flagler. "I feel good for Terrence. We're very close. I knew he had it in him. Everybody on the team knew he could do it. He just came on late and finally got an opportunity, and now he's showing everybody in the country that he's a great back."

Just as Flagler has skillfully evaded opponents all year long, sneaking by people is a skill he acquired at an early age. "My father (the Reverend Robert Flagler) is a minister, and though he never forced me to go to church, there were times when I was a kid that I would try to sneak out," he said.

"Luckily, our church and home were next door to each other so it was never a problem. I would pretend I was going to the bathroom, but instead I would go over to the house to catch highlights of the NFL and O. J. Simpson (his boyhood football hero) and get back to the church. I don't think I ever told my father, so when he reads this it may come as quite a surprise."

Owning up to responsibility was impressed upon Flagler at an early age, the result of being the son of a minister and being in the public eye as an athlete. "I had good guidance from my parents and a lot of caring people around me at school and in the community," he noted. "My coaches made me aware that because I was an athlete my life would be lived under a magnifying glass. They said if I wanted my dream of becoming a professional athlete to come true, then I'd better get used to it."

"The biggest lesson I ever learned was that whatever I did, to make sure it wasn't something that would get me in trouble or I'd be ashamed of. So I had to learn to take on responsibility at an early age — to stay away from drugs, to watch how I handle myself around kids and adults, because there is always someone looking up to you."

The growing process never stops, and the lessons to be learned as well never cease no matter what age, admits Flagler. "I've learned a lot about life here at Clemson. Athletics is a lot like life. The sun doesn't shine every day. You're not going to have 200-yard rushing football games every time out. You have good days and bad days and no matter what happens you have to be persistent. Don't change. If you fall, pick yourself up and keep going."

"The toughest part about waiting for my chance was being patient. When things are going well for you, everyone wants to be your buddy. You really learn to value your friends that stick with you through the bad times and good times, and making all the special friends I have in the past five years, that's been the real highlight for me during my career at Clemson."

Whether he earns All-America honors this season or not he is much closer to turning his childhood dream of playing professional football into reality. But, even if he doesn't make it in the NFL there is no other player on the Clemson team more prepared to be successful in another walk of life.

Terrence Flagler has set nine Clemson records this season.
We're bringing on the Carolina Pride Hot Dogs in a convenient new TWIN-PAK.

The Official Hot Dogs of CLEMSON TIGERS
A sk any good athlete what makes a good athlete and he will probably tell you it takes strength, speed, and a good attitude. Well, if these characteristics constitute a "good" athlete, then Clemson's all-time leading rusher, Kenny Flowers, is approaching perfect. He has the strength to bulldoze through a solid wall of defenders and still make that first down. His blazing speed usually leaves his opponents grasping for his ankles as he breezes by on his way to the end zone. And his hard-working attitude has made him a coach's dream to work with.

Flowers, a 6-2, 210-lb. senior from Daytona Beach, Florida, faced difficult odds when he first arrived at Clemson. "I was one of five running backs coming in that year and those guys were all good," he said. "They were All-Americans and all-everything in high school and I was just all-state. It was the biggest competition of my life, but I like competition. I just hung in there and worked my way up."

Flowers didn't realize at the time how far "up" would really be. This season, he broke Buddy Gore's record of 2,571 yards to become Clemson's all-time leading rusher. "If you had told me when I first came here that I would break the record, I would have said you were crazy!" said Flowers. "It feels great. It's an accomplishment I can look back and be proud of long after I leave Clemson."

Flowers' hard work in the weight room led to his honor as a first-team strength All-American in 1984. Last season, he and offensive lineman John Phillips were selected by their teammates as Lifters-of-the-Year. Flowers can bench press 355 pounds. His strength has made him a versatile player, as he started 10 games at fullback in 1984.

Late Bloomer

Kenny Flowers fumbled the first time he carried the ball in organized football. Now he's Clemson's all-time rushing yardage leader.

Flowers' 4.34 speed makes him the fastest player on the Tiger football team. Once he gets around the corner and shifts gears, the score almost automatically goes up six points. In 1984, he beat former Olympian Steve Reddick in Boston at the Bud Light Invitational in the 60-yard dash with a time of 6.28. His personal best in the 60-yard dash is 6.24, the fourth best time in Clemson history.

It wasn't until his junior year in high school that Kenny Flowers realized his tremendous speed. "I went to the Florida Relays that year, and everybody that was somebody was there," he said. "I had never faced that level of competition and I was scared. I realized that when I pushed myself enough, I was as fast as anyone. I guess I do change gears when I'm running the football. When I get in the open field I just kick it in and BAM! It's time to go."

Flowers' football career didn't have very auspicious beginnings. In the eighth grade, he decided to try out for the junior high team. "I didn't know a thing about football," Flowers remembers. "But somebody told the coach that I could run so he gave me a try at tailback. I only played one down that whole season and guess what happened. I fumbled!"

In high school, Flowers was moved to wide receiver because his team had some of the best backs in the state. But by his senior season, he was making his name as a tailback. He carried the ball 116 times that year at Spruce Creek High School in Daytona Beach for 777 yards and scored 78 points. At that point, his talents were beginning to be noticed by college recruiters, and he decided to come to Clemson.

But it isn't Kenny Flowers' strength and speed only that have made him such a success at Clemson, it's his attitude, and both his teammates and his coaches recognize this and respect him for it. "Kenny is one of the most unselfish players we've had at Clemson in a long time," said running back coach Chuck Reedy. "He always gives 100% and does anything he is asked to do. This year's spring practice was a perfect example of his attitude. He was coming off of a great season and he certainly had nothing to prove. Most guys in that position would have wanted to let some of the other players get in there and get hit. I would pull him out of scrimmages and when I would turn around, he would be back in there. He said he didn't want the other players to think he was better than anyone else or that he was getting special treatment."

This year, when an ankle injury put him out of commission for a few games, Flowers found it difficult to watch the game from the sidelines. "It was really hard for me not to be able to play," he said. "I would be happy for the team when we won, but I was disappointed that I wasn't able to contribute. I felt terrible, like I was letting people down."

Flowers credits his unselfish attitude toward the team and towards his responsibilities to his family. As one of seven children, he had to learn to be unselfish. "We weren't the wealthiest people in the world so we had to make do with what we had," Flowers remembers. "The older kids would work so my little brother and sisters could have things, but I never minded. They are my support and my motivation."

Max Lennon, former vice president for agricultural administration at Ohio State University, became President of Clemson University on October 14, 1985. The University board of trustees announced the unanimous decision at a board meeting at Clemson on that day.

Dr. Lennon is a native of Columbus County, NC and earned his bachelor's degree in animal science from N. C. State in 1962. He also earned a doctorate in animal science from the same institution in 1970.

He had been at Ohio State for two years where he had also served as executive dean for agriculture, home economics and natural resources. Lennon was also on the Ohio State Faculty Senate and was co-chairman of the Governor's commission on agriculture.

Previously, he had served as dean of the College of Agriculture and director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at the University of Missouri and as associate dean and director of research in the College of Agricultural Sciences at Texas Tech University.

Lennon, who has also served as an assistant professor at Texas Tech and an associate and full professor at Texas Tech and Missouri, spent two years with the international agri-business firm Central Soya of Illinois. He also has participated in many national and international conferences concerning new technologies in agriculture.

The 45-year-old Lennon was chosen from about 200 candidates for the presidency at Clemson. "You have the unwavering support of the entire Board of Trustees to carry out your duties as President of this university," said Louis Batson, chairman of the board of trustees. "We will stick to our role as maker of policy and we want you to carry out our policies without any interference from us."

Lennon commented on his philosophies and goals for Clemson in his opening press conference. "I am extremely delighted to be chosen as the leader of this great institution. We're at an extremely important time in our lives, not because of circumstances but because of where we are in history. We need land-grant institutions in a way that is almost unique...so we can continue to be competitive in a world market.

"We at Clemson University must make our own priorities to lead us into the 21st century. We must begin by making ourselves visible in the state, then we must focus on the global perspective of the university and what we can accomplish in that arena."

Batson declared that the long selection process had discovered a man who knows what he wants. "Max Lennon is a good planner, a deep thinker, and a man ready for the challenge. He is restless without being impatient."

Lennon said the early part of his administration will consist of familiarizing himself more closely with Clemson's programs. "It would be presumptuous of me to come in here with a set of priorities," he said. "In the academic community you build on the strengths of the institution, and my first business will be learning about those strengths. I'll be calling for help from the students, faculty, administrators, alumni and the rest of the Clemson family to make sure our priorities are in order."

Lennon began his teaching career at N. C. State in 1966 when he served as a graduate assistant professor. In 1970 he moved to Lubbock, TX, where he served as an assistant professor of animal science at Texas Tech University. He remained at the Texas institution as an assistant dean and associate dean in the College of Agriculture until 1980. On the first day of this decade he became the chairperson in the department of animal husbandry at the University of Missouri. He served as Dean of the College of Agriculture at Missouri until 1983, when he moved to Ohio State as vice president for Agricultural Administration.

Lennon is married to Ruth Carter Lennon and they have two children, Daniel (23) and Robin (21).

STEVENS
Athletic Director

BOBBY ROBINSON

A total sports program. That's the goal of the Clemson University Athletic Department, and under the leadership of Athletic Director Bobby Robinson, Clemson is headed solidly in that direction.

The road to the athletic director's position has been a steady, successful progression through athletic and administrative opportunities for Robinson. He was born in Columbia and attended A. C. Flora High School. During his high school career, he was a point guard for the basketball team and a third baseman in baseball. He also played golf competitively, and was a scratch golfer at one time. Robinson did not play any high school sports as a senior because of a heat stroke suffered in the summer of 1963. He graduated from A. C. Flora in 1964 and then enrolled in Furman University.

Robinson graduated from Furman with a B.S. degree in business and political science in 1968. He was president of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity chapter at Furman. After he was graduated from Furman, Robinson worked in his family's laundry and dry-cleaning business for two years.

Robinson came to Clemson in 1970, not in athletics, but in the housing office. After three years, he moved across campus to serve as an administrative assistant in the athletic department. "I started at Clemson in the housing office, but I came to Clemson with the intention of working in athletics," said Robinson. "No opening existed at the time, so I had to wait until there was one."

After serving the athletic department in various capacities, he became business manager in 1975. Two years later he was named assistant athletic director and in 1980 he became associate AD. He held that title four years, but his area of responsibility was primarily football and basketball.

While serving his administrative duties, Robinson found time to coach the Clemson golf team between 1975 and 1983. During his time as the head coach, Clemson won its only ACC title in golf and three times the Tigers participated in the NCAA tournament. In 1983, his final season as the head coach, he guided Clemson to a number-five national finish. Clarence Rose was one of three All-Americans to play for the Tigers during his tenure and is now a successful member of the pro tour.

Thus, it is easy to see why Bobby Robinson is most qualified for the position of athletic director at Clemson University — he has done it all. He has been an administrator at all levels, he has worked in other areas in the University, he has been a head coach, and he has handled the budgetary aspects needed to run a $12 million program.

Bobby Robinson's philosophy of athletics is very simple. "We want to be the very best — in competition, in academics, in facilities. We have made the commitment to provide our coaches and athletes the tools necessary to compete on the conference and national level."

In competition, Robinson led the Tigers to one of their best years ever. Football and men's basketball were involved in post-season play and no less than 10 teams participated in NCAA post-season competition. Seven of these teams were ranked in the top 20 in the country. In the Knoxville Journal's All-Sports Poll Clemson ranked 18th in women's sports and 22nd in men's sports, Clemson's first top 25 rating in both areas in the same year.

In academics, Clemson student-athletes had an outstanding year. Over 90 athletes had 3.0 or better grade point ratios either semester, with the football team having five players named to the Academic All-Conference Team, the most in the ACC.

In the area of facilities, Robinson continues his philosophy. Recent renovations have included the Strength Training Center, one of the finest in the country; Tiger Field, home of the Clemson Tiger baseball team; and the West End Zone locker room complex in Memorial Stadium. New facilities now underway include a new activities room in Death Valley, an indoor tennis facility, and a new permanent soccer stadium on Riggs Field. In addition to all of this, a continuing maintenance program for all facilities and practice areas has been established.

From a university perspective, Robinson envisions the athletic department as being one of 49 departments on campus, equal to English, accounting, admissions, and the others. "We believe the athletic department is a viable, important part of the mission of Clemson University," says Robinson, "as athletic competition provides a common bond for students, faculty, staff, and friends."

Under Robinson the athletic department has continued support of the university. Band uniforms and travel, the educational enhancement fund, and the athletic-academic endowment fund (coordinated with the Athletic Council) are some of the areas that have been developed.

Robinson has confidence in his staff, his coaches, his athletes, and the facilities at Clemson University. "We have a solid base to work from, but if we are not moving forward, we are losing ground. We will work within university guidelines and expand our horizons. We want to be as good as we can be as a vital part of the university and the State of South Carolina."

Bobby Robinson guided Clemson to a top 25 finish in both men's and women's sports last year.

Clemson University: THE SECOND CENTURY

Clemson Looks to the Future

Clemson University approaches its 100th birthday in 1989 with an aggressive plan to begin its second century of service to the state, region and country.

"Clemson University: The Second Century" names five major areas for emphasis. Its aim is to forge a partnership for economic progress among the university, the state and the private sector. It will be used as a road map to seek external support and focus the University's research and public service efforts.

The five areas are:

• AGRICULTURE — By applying the most sophisticated of tomorrow's technologies, Clemson will be able to help the agriculture industry become more efficient and profitable. Programs include such areas as biotechnology, food and nutrition, pest control, packaging, environmental science, and water and resource management.

• EMERGING TECHNOLOGIES — Advanced manufacturing systems and new materials — such as the fiber-reinforced composites — are revolutionizing industry. Clemson will contribute to the next generation of manufacturing productivity and materials through research in areas such as computer communications, robotics, semiconductor reliability and the chemical synthesis of totally new materials.

• MARKETING/MANAGEMENT — Marketing, particularly international marketing, is key to South Carolina, where more than 15 percent of total manufacturing output, and one-fourth of farm production, is exported. Clemson will emphasize marketing, as well as produce a new breed of manager — one who speaks the language of technology as fluently as the language of commerce.

• QUALITY OF LIFE — The human and natural resources that make life worth living — and sustain economic growth — must be cherished, nurtured and protected. At Clemson, programs emphasize the humanities; public school education; professional development and continuing education; community and regional planning; and the travel and tourism industry.

• TEXTILES — The U.S. textile industry is the world's most productive, and it has spent $2 billion on modernization in the last year alone to remain competitive. The state's textile industry will benefit from all of the above programs in technology, management, marketing and human resources, as well as from additional emphasis on textiles and fibers research.

From top left: shrink wrapping peaches individually to prolong shelf life is one innovative food packaging technique under study; getting robots to perform more complicated tasks is the object of Clemson's research in advanced manufacturing technologies; marketing research is vital to South Carolina, which exports more than 15 percent of total manufacturing and 25 percent of farm production; public school educational programs help prepare the next generation for its challenges; a joint project between the State Water Resources Commission and the Strom Thurmond Institute is an example of cooperative efforts between Clemson, industry and the state; research on composites and textiles at Clemson ranges from new materials for aircraft to fibers for bulletproof clothing.
Coach Danny Ford wants more than just a place to swim . . .

☐ A relaxing retreat from pressures of the day.
☐ An ever-ready setting for formal or casual entertaining.
☐ A family gathering place that eliminates the generation gap.
☐ A health benefiting experience.
☐ A lifetime home improvement and hedge against inflation.

Since 1956. The prestige pool builder in North and South Carolina.
Danny Ford

Clemson head coach Danny Ford is not an opera buff, he’s not even close. And, it is likely that Wolfgang Mozart never saw a college football game. But, these two giants in their fields have something in common — success at a very early stage of their careers.

Mozart became famous for his ability to compose symphonies by the time he was five years old. Danny Ford was not coaching college football teams at age five, he was barely holding a football. But, a look at past national champions indicates that the current Clemson mentor is the youngest coach in the history of the college game to win the Associated Press National Championship. It puts him ahead of all the heavyweights of the game in the modern era (since 1938) of college football.

Ford took Clemson to the national title in 1981 at the age of 33 and now is the winningest coach in the history of the Atlantic Coast Conference on a percentage basis. Additionally, Ford is already seventh in total wins among ACC coaches. Not bad for someone who is still two years away from his 40th birthday.

And, the success has come against top competition. Ford has already gained more wins over AP top 20 teams and top 10 teams than any other Clemson coach in history and is the only coach in ACC history (eight years experience) to have a winning record against top 20 teams (top 20 when playing against Clemson).

Clemson fans are certainly happy Ford entered the profession because he has brought a solid program to among the finest in the nation. Now in his eighth full season at Clemson, his record of 58-21-2 (.728) is the seventh winning percentage in college football among active coaches.

Between 1981 and 1984 Clemson had a 37-6-2 ledger, the fourth best winning percentage in America. The class of 84 was the third winningest in ACC history in terms of winning percentage, and no ACC class in the 33-year history of the league ever won more games in a four-year period.

Ford has been a part of three ACC championship teams and one National Championship team at Clemson. In 1978 he was offensive coordinator for the 11-1 team that won the Gator Bowl over Ohio State, 17-15. The Gadsden, AL native was more than just the offensive coordinator in that game however, as he had become the head coach of the Tigers on December 10 after Charley Pell had already left to go to Florida. The 30-year-old Ford made quite a celebrated beginning to his head coaching career with that victory over the Woody Hayes-coached Buckeyes. The nationally televised Clemson victory helped put the Tigers on the national football map and it began Clemson’s climb to among the elite of college football.

A review of Ford’s football past should help us understand why he has been so successful as a head coach. Another in a long line of former Bear Bryant players that have gone on to greatness in coaching, Ford played for the Bear between 1967 and 1969. He was Kenny Stabler’s sophomore tight end as a starter in 1967, played that position in 1968 and moved to offensive tackle in 1969. Ford started all three years, was all-conference in 1969 and played on three teams that went to bowl games. In 1969 he was also a member of the All-SEC academic team, and served as the captain of the Alabama team.

After Pat Dye’s coaxing, Ford remained at Alabama as a graduate assistant for the 1970 and 1971 seasons. He had already earned his B.S. degree in industrial arts and earned his master’s degree in special education in 1971. Ford became a full-time aide for Bryant in 1972 and 1973. The Tide went to four bowl games while Ford was an assistant coach.

Clemson’s current head man then accepted a position as an assistant coach under Jimmy Sharpe at Virginia Tech. He remained in Blacksburg for three seasons (1974-76) before coming to Clemson as offensive line coach in 1977. And, just 23 games later he was named head coach of the Tigers at the age of 30, the youngest active Division I coach in the country.

Nearly 40 years after hiring 31-year-old Alabama graduate Frank Howard, Clemson had hired 30-year-old Alabama graduate Danny Ford.

Now 38 years old, Danny Ford is running out of mountains to climb. He has been associated with 19 college football teams as a player or coach through the years and 18 have had winning regular season records and 12 have gone to bowl games. Additionally, those clubs have had a combined record of 154-59-5, a .729 winning percentage.
Assistant Coaches

Jack Crowe joined the Clemson staff on February 24, 1986, as the quarterback coach. He comes to Clemson from Auburn, where he served as defensive coordinator and coached Heisman Trophy winner Bo Jackson. He has also served in the offensive coordinator position at Wyoming and North Alabama, and was both an assistant and head coach at Livingston University. Crowe received his undergraduate degree from Alabama-Birmingham in 1970, and completed his master’s degree in education from Livingston in 1973. The Fairfield, AL, native will recruit in the Georgia, Virginia, and Alabama areas this year.

Woody McCorvey is in his fourth year of coaching Clemson players that catch the ball. He coached tight ends his first three years and two seasons he coached the All-ACC tight end. He is in his first season as a wide receiver coach. He recruited in North Carolina and Florida. McCorvey came to Clemson from Alabama A&M where he was defensive coordinator for four years. The 1972 Alabama State graduate lettered four years in football at the school before earning his physical education degree. He then received a master’s degree in health, leisure, and sports from the University of West Florida in 1977.

Larry Van Der Hayden has coached Clemson’s offensive line for the past seven years. In addition, he recruits in South Carolina, North Carolina, and western Pennsylvania. Van Der Hayden joined the Tiger coaching staff in January 1979, coming from Memphis State where he was offensive coordinator for three years. He also served stints at Iowa State, Drake, Indiana State, East Carolina, and Virginia. He earned his B.A. and master’s degree at Iowa State and lettered three years in football and baseball. He is a member of the All-time Iowa State football team.

Chick Reedy has coached Clemson’s running backs for the last eight years. He also has a heavy recruiting schedule covering South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and the New York-Long Island areas. The St. Augustine, FL, native earned two letters in football from Appalachian State where he was a 1971 graduate in health and physical education. He came to Clemson from Kentucky on July 5, 1976. For this reason, Clemson has signed the top player in Jacksonville five years in a row. He has coached three backs who have gone on to the NFL, including Kevin Mack, last year’s AFC offensive rookie-of-the-year.

Tommy West is in his fifth season coaching the Clemson defensive and bandit ends. He recruits for the Tigers in Florida and Georgia. Prior to coming to Clemson, West coached at Appalachian State until July 1982. The Gainesville, GA, native earned his B.S. degree in health education from the University of Tennessee in 1975 after lettering three years in football and baseball. A fine all-around athlete, West was drafted out of high school by baseball’s Chicago Cubs.

Bill D’Andrea is the newest addition to the Clemson coaching staff as he returned to Clemson on June 23, 1986, from Southern Mississippi. Prior to that he was an assistant coach at East Carolina, the University of Virginia, Massanutten Military Academy, Catawba College, and most recently was a graduate assistant at Clemson. D’Andrea received his bachelor’s degree from Indiana State in 1973, and completed his master’s degree in 1975. He will assist in coaching the Clemson offensive line and will recruit for the Tigers in North Carolina, Pennsylvania, and northern New Jersey.

Miles Aldridge joined the Tiger coaching staff in June of 1985. A native of Kansas City, MO, Aldridge coaches the inside linebackers. He is responsible for recruiting in South Carolina, Florida, southern New Jersey, and the Philadelphia area. A 1971 graduate of Gardner Webb College, he is in his 16th year of coaching. Aldridge began his collegiate coaching career at East Tennessee State, after he moved to Wichita State, Tulsa, and then Mississippi. Before arriving at Clemson he served as lineback coach at Duke for two seasons.

Tom Harper became Clemson’s assistant head coach in February 1981. Having served as defensive coordinator at North Carolina and Iowa State, his most recent stint in that same position was at Virginia Tech. He was also Wake Forest’s head coach in 1972. Harper graduated from the University of Kentucky with his bachelor’s degree in 1958 and received his master’s degree from there in 1958. He is responsible for recruiting in South Carolina and New York. Six of the Clemson players he has coached have played pro football, including three who were NFL starters last year (William Perry, Dan Bennis, and Jeff Bryant).

Bill Oliver is in his first season at Clemson as the defensive secondary coach. He will also recruit for the Tigers in Florida, Alabama, and Georgia. A native of Livingston, AL, he began his collegiate coaching career as defensive secondary coach at Auburn, and five years later was hired by the late Paul “Bear” Bryant to fill the same position at Alabama. His most recent stint, however, was with the Memphis Showboats of the United States Football League where he served as senior defensive coordinator and secondary coach. Oliver was a member of the 1961 undefeated National Championship Alabama team and he received his bachelor’s degree in 1962.

Post-season activity highlighted the 1985-86 sports year at Clemson University, as 15 of the 18 athletic teams were involved in post-season championships. Ten of Clemson’s teams finished in the top 30 in the nation last year, seven in the top 20, and four individuals finished runner-up in national championships. The women’s program ranked 18th in the country while the men were 22nd, according to The Knoxville Journal’s collegiate all-sports poll.

The Tiger teams captured four Atlantic Coast Conference titles, including an 11th ACC soccer crown, the first ever men’s swimming title, a sixth men’s tennis title, and fifth straight women’s tennis championship.

Taking national honors for Clemson was the defending NCAA Champion soccer team, which spent most of the year ranked number-one, but had to settle for a final national ranking of fourth after losing in the round of 16 in its 13th NCAA tournament.

The men’s and women’s tennis teams reached new heights as both clubs were among the favorites to win their respective NCAA titles. Chuck Kriese’s Tigers spent most of the year ranked in the top three, including a school-record high of No. 2 in February, but claimed a final ranking of fifth, which marked the eighth consecutive season in the top 15. Coach Andy Johnston’s Lady Tigers reached a high of fourth in the country on three different occasions and ended up eighth in the final poll.

Clemson’s swimming program established a solid national reputation this season as the women finished ranked seventh in the country, best ever finish for any Clemson swim team. The men’s team captured the school’s first ever ACC title and wound up 35th overall at NCAA’s.

Wrestling and golf maintained their strong standing among the traditional NCAA leaders. The wrestlers finished 19th in the NCAA dual meet poll and they wound up 20th at NCAA’s, as Clemson had representatives at the NCAA tournament for the sixth straight year.

Coach Larry Penley guided the golfers to a fifth straight NCAA appearance, sixth overall, and a finish of 21st in the championship. Sophomore Brad Clark captured the long driving contest at the NCAA golf tournament and also led after the first day of the tournament as he shot a 68 to share the lead with eventual NCAA champ Scott Verplank of Oklahoma State and Wake Forest’s Tim Straub.

The Tiger football and basketball programs were in the national spotlight once again, as the gridders made a 12th post-season bowl appearance in the Independence Bowl and the roundballers reached the quarterfinals of the National Invitation Tournament. Coach Danny Ford’s football squad had five players selected to the All-ACC Academic team, the most ever, and more than any school in the ACC.

Clemson had six ACC MVPs last year, one less than the school record of seven. Gary Conner became the 11th Clemson soccer player to be so honored. Pam Hayden capped the women’s swimming MVP, while Chuck Wade won his second straight ACC Diving MVP. Wrestler Joey McKenna was an ACC MVP recipient as he won his 150-pound division and rookie Ingelise Drieheus was the fifth Lady Tiger tennis player to be named MVP. Chuck Baldwin was chosen the league’s baseball MVP, marking the third time Clemson has had back-to-back winners since 1973.

Four coaches were chosen ACC Coach-of-the-Year in their respective sports. For the second straight year Bob Boettner and Andy Johnston were accorded the honors. Boettner was selected co-coach for the women and won it outright in the men’s division, while Johnston collected his third league coaching award. Soccer mentor I. M. Ibrahim won his third and Chuck Kriese picked up his second ACC award and third Southern Tennis Association Coach of the Year honor.

"IT WORKS FOR CLEMSON"

Because of IPTAY's commitment to excellence both in the classroom and on the playing field, the ability to expand programs has enabled IPTAY to directly benefit the entire university family. In the fall of 1984, the IPTAY Athletic Academic Endowment Scholarship Fund was created to award financial support to students whose performance in the classroom warranted distinction.

The concept that supports the endowment is based on money donated by matching gift companies, as well as monies generated by television appearances and scholarship awards in such contests. What results from this endowment is one of the largest unrestricted scholarships in the history of Clemson. Perhaps the most exciting feature of the fund is its potential. As the years go on, the growth of the program will only be equalled by IPTAY's desire to work for Clemson.

Other contributions made possible to Clemson University through IPTAY include several capital improvement projects which have helped to give the university the best facilities in the nation.

Some of the current projects that are sponsored by IPTAY include an indoor tennis facility, as well as permanent soccer stadium. The indoor facility features four indoor courts, as well as permanent seating, and will be available for faculty, students, and staff when not in use by the varsity tennis teams. The soccer stadium will provide a home for the 1984 National Champions, who will once again be defending their ACC championship. Improved lighting as well as 6,000 permanent seats and a new scoreboard will give the Tiger Soccer program the facility it deserves.

Other improvements that IPTAY has established for the university as a whole include a $150,000 enhancement grant for education to be used as the university desires, improved lighting for Riggs Field, and the development of East Bank Recreation Field for student usage.

The Tiger Band will be sporting brand new uniforms as it takes the field this fall. The uniforms, as well as all expenses for band travel, are sponsored by IPTAY. This commitment, of well over $200,000, allows the Tiger Band to strut its stuff in style, both home and away.

Although the success of IPTAY's programs and the financial management of its Board of Directors have enabled IPTAY to assist in other concerns of the university, the primary concern of IPTAY is to educate young people and in serving the needs of its membership.

IPTAY sponsors one of the most progressive tutorial programs in the country, and at any time, any athlete is able to supplement his education through the use of tutors, or the impressive study hall program. A highly-trained academic advising staff helps the student-athletes to prepare for a future, and to shape their tomorrows by studying today. Through these efforts, almost a fourth of Clemson's student-athletes were on the honor roll in the spring semester of 1986.

Working for IPTAY members is one of the major goals of the IPTAY Board and the internal staff. Each IPTAY member receives personal service to their account, and is constantly kept abreast of the programs of Clemson through the IPTAY office. Every member receives thirty-five issues of the Orange and White each year. As the official publication of IPTAY, the Orange and White is exclusively distributed to IPTAY members, and features in-depth coverage of Clemson athletics.

IPTAY is a part of Clemson in many ways. Through its various programs and contributions, the 20,000 members of IPTAY spread their support of Clemson throughout the entire university family. There is no doubt that this year's theme echoes loudly through the red hills of upstate South Carolina, because IPTAY truly works for Clemson.

Alison Dalton
Executive Secretary of IPTAY
Emergency Services

The Clemson University Athletic Department provides the following for your safety and emergency medical needs:

1. Advanced cardiac life-support stations in four locations. (North stands, Upper North deck, South stands, Upper South deck.) These units are staffed with skill-care nurses, physicians, cardiologists, internists, paramedics, and EMTs.

2. Mobile units of EMTs and paramedics are strategically located throughout the entire stadium.

3. Ambulances with life-support equipment are available in North stand and South Stand areas and have prearranged routes for evacuation to local hospitals.

Learn to recognize these personnel and facilities.

WHAT TO DO IF EMERGENCIES ARISE

Please step back and give the organized stadium EMS personnel room to work. Well-intentioned attempts to help by untrained persons interfere with the efficiency of the EMS system. If you have basic or advanced training in specific life-support methods, make your qualifications known and offer your help. Untrained personnel can be frequently more harmful than helpful.

MEDICAL ADVICE FOR FANS

If you have a pre-existing medical or health problem, please check with your personal physician and obtain his advice before attending games. Many emergencies occurring at the stadium do so because of prior existing conditions. Use common sense in dressing, eating, drinking and physical exertion. Be certain that you have identification on you as to the diagnosis and what medications you are currently taking.

Be aware of warning signs of heart attacks: chest pain, chest tightness, shortness of breath, sweating, palpitations, fainting, nausea and vomiting.

Recognize that our most common serious medical problem at football games are heart attacks and allergic reactions to insect stings. Be aware that insect stings will continue to always be very frequent at outdoor sporting events and should always be treated with immediate ice until advice can be obtained. If you have ever had a reaction to bee or other insect sting, check with your personal physician as to whether you should carry a kit.

The stadium emergency phone number is (803) 656-2999.

Sometimes, service means more than fixing a power line.

That's the kind of service most people expect from us. But that's not all we do. Our Summer Foundation provides assistance for organizations which aid people in need. Programs like the Baptist Medical Center Foundation and the Foundation for the Multihandicapped, Blind and Deaf of South Carolina, whose helping hands reach a lot of people.

Clemson fans don’t need Carnak the Magnificent to figure out what the significance of this set of seemingly incongruous numbers is. For exactly six years ago on this date, Clemson, wearing form the next time, padded early and in the printer’s designation for orange, ran down the hill against South Carolina. Willie Underwood, playing in the final game of his senior season, intercepted the only two passes of his career to help power the Tigers, with a record of 5-5, to a 27-6 win over the 14th-ranked and Gator Bowl-bound Gamecocks.

Championship Season

Five years ago Clemson shocked the college football world.

Most people regard this win as the jumping off point for Clemson’s 1981 season — the year the Tigers overcame adversity, finished the season undefeated and untied, rose to the top rung in the national polls, and, in the process, claimed college football’s National Championship.

The biggest addition to the 1981 coaching staff was Tom Harper. Harper brought a measure of stability to a young staff and he also added a new wrinkle to the defense that the Tigers still use today — the Bandit end.

The Bandit is sort of a linebacker, sort of a defensive end, sort of defensive back that plays just off the line of scrimmage. Harper had the perfect Bandit in the form of junior Andy Headen, now with the New York Giants of the NFL. Headen was one of the reasons the Tigers ranked in the nation’s Top 10 in both total and rushing defense in 1981.

On the eve of the season, the annual picture and fan day festivities were marked with a good omen, as a tiger (a REAL one) was brought in to pose with the team. The cat, a several-month-old cub that still weighed in at more than 100 pounds, proved very feisty, a trait that the team would imitate with every game.

September 5, at that time the earliest opener in Clemson history, broke sunny and hot. When Villanova had dropped football early that spring, Wofford College was picked up as a replacement. Although the Terriers were outweighed and outmanned at every position, the team lived up to its nickname by constantly running an irritating misdirection play out of a formation called a “wingbone.” The Spartanburg team actually led 3-0 at the end of the first quarter, hardly a foreshadowing of what was to transpire in the next four months. In the end, though, Clemson wore out Wofford, 45-10.

The real topic of the day, however, was how to pronounce the name of a freshman kicker from Anambra, Nigeria, who was also a star on Clemson’s soccer team. After stumbling over ig-way-BWEE-key, most folks just called him Donald, and that was enough. That is how the TV announcers still refer to the Tampa Bay Buccaneers’ kicker. Donald Igwebuiko’s first field goal in an organized football game was good from 52 yards, and that was also the longest field goal in the Atlantic Coast Conference that year.

The next week a couple of thousand Clemson fans (and the team as well) hit the road for a trip to New Orleans, LA, to face Tulane in the first game the Tigers had ever played indoors. Freshman punter Dale Hatcher hit the TV gondola suspended 155 feet above the Louisiana Superdome’s ill-fitting turf in pregame warmups.

Tulane, with the air conditioning vent at their backs, kicked off, but Clemson missed a 55-yard field goal. A field goal and a safety gave the Green Wave all the points they would get. Early in the fourth quarter, Tim Childers intercepted a pass, which marked the first time all four of Clemson’s starting defensive backs (who in this game were Childers, Terry Kinard, Anthony Rose, and Holis Hall) had appropriated an opponent’s pass. Cliff Austin had scored late in the first half, and sophomore kicker Bob Pauling added two fourth-quarter field goals to give the Tigers a 13-5 triumph in a turnover-marred game.

An event of major sporting historical significance happened the week of the Tulane game, as word started filtering out that the team, taking after the lead of the irreplaceable Ray Brown, had started calling freshman middle guard William Perry the Fridge or G. E. — and the legend has grown ever since.

The Clemson-Georgia contest of 1980 had done two things — sent Georgia on its way to a National Championship of its own and many believed it had sent Clemson to its less-than-spectacular 6-5 mark. So revenge was definitely a motivating factor when the teams met it up on September 19.

Volunteer assistant coach George Caine (who was/is quite a piece of work all by himself) shaved his head like then-Georgia assistant Erk Russell, and Clemson brought out the orange pants for the first time in 1981 as additional psychological edges. Most of the 63,000 (there was no North Stands Upper Deck then, remember?) fans shoe-horned into the Valley just knew there was no way Clemson would lose.

By halftime, Georgia had turned the ball over five of the nine times it would give up the pigskin this game, and two of the miscues led to Clemson points. Athens, GA, native Homer Jordan hit Perry Tuttle, who made a diving catch in the end zone, for the game’s only touchdown. Igwebuiko added two field goals for the finishing touches. The Atlanta Constitution, a close follower of Georgia athletics, proclaimed the fourth-ranked Bulldogs’ downfall in end-of-the-world headlines as, “DAY OF INFAMY — Georgia loses . . . 13-3.” It was the first and only regular-season loss of Herschel Walker’s Georgia career.

The Tigers broke into the Top 20 after the win over Georgia, and although the team had the next week off, Clemson moved up to 14th in both national polls.

In the days before college football on TV was deregulated and channels were allowed to show games like Cal-Fullerton and Fresno Clemson handed Herschel Walker his only regular season loss at Georgia in 1981.

by Jeff Rhodes
State, being on the tube was somewhat of an honor. It is a good thing the Clemson-Kentucky game was the only game on at the time, because most people would have changed channels by halftime.

Kentucky led 3-0 at the break and Clemson had generated a paltry 65 yards in total offense. The second stanza was a complete reversal, though, as Clemson racked up 21 points on three of its six drives. Kevin Mack, Chuck McSwain, and Jordan, whose execution of a naked reverse was so effective that the TV cameras didn’t even follow him, tallied the touchdowns in a 21-3 Tiger win. When the polls came out the next week, Clemson had moved back into the Top 10 for the first time since 1978.

“I remember it was the defense that really carried us those first games,” recalled Johnny Rembert, a junior college transfer who was in his first year at Clemson in 1981. “The defense would really get up when we had a big tackle. It became a contest to get a skull and crossbones [helmet decal] for hard hits.”

It had never rained on Tigerama, Clemson’s annual Homecoming extravaganza before 1981, and the Tigers had not played in precipitation at home since 1978, but it was a day beset with rain — the weather forecaster had said a morning tank-like into the end zone from seven yards out Jeff Bryant, who made a marked improvement over the course of the year and was the fifth pick of the NFL draft of 1982, sealed the 10-8 win when he fell on an incomplete lateral (which was ruled a fumble) with less than a minute to play.

When one is flying in the thin air that comes with being ranked second in the country and having a 9-0 record, there is a tendency to let bad thoughts start creeping into one’s mind. With the ACC Championship on the line (pre-season goal #1) the coaching staff was fearful of a Maryland upset — so they changed the game plan. Instead of keeping almost entirely on the ground as they had previously, Homer Jordan was told to “air it out.” For further insurance, the 13 seniors and the rest of the team voted to bring out the orange pants once again.

Understanding is an overused word, but that is basically what the Tigers did on that crisp fall Saturday. Jordan completed 20 of the 29 passes he threw and he also threw for more yardage (270 yards) than Maryland’s much-celebrated and pass-happy Boomer Esiason (167 yards). Jordan threw two touchdown strikes to Perry Tuttle, who passed Jerry Butler for the all-time Clemson pass catch record, and one to Jerry Gaillard, who in four years of laboring at wideout had never caught a TD pass. The defense limited Maryland to 44 yards on the ground, as Clemson came away with a 21-7 win and the ACC Championship.

Clemson, which had put a damper on South Carolina’s season in 1980, now found the cleat on the other paw. Carolina had all the incentive in the world to win the annual state championship game. In the end, though, Clemson prevailed, 29-13 (pre-season goal #2).

South Carolina blew out of the gate with a 51-yard, eight-play scoring drive, but on the Gamecocks’ next possession, two current New England Patriots turned the momentum dramatically, as Rod McSwain blocked Mark Fleetwood’s punt and Johnny Rembert recovered it in the end zone for a Clemson touchdown.

“I saw the ball in the end zone and I knew I had a free shot at it,” said Rembert. “I saw Jeff Davis and Jeff Bryant out the corner of my eye running for the ball, and there was no way I was going to let anybody else recover it.”

Carolina made a run and pulled within two points early in the second half, but Chuck McSwain’s field goal attempt was too short. Clemson went on to pull away. McSwain was later named the ESPN National Amateur Athlete-of-the-Week for his 25-carry, 151-yard performance.

Clemson had to wait a week and the first half of the Pitt-Penn State game before it became apparent that the Tigers were indeed going to become the number-one ranked football team in the country. Penn State graciously put a thrashing on the Panthers in the second half of their game, and the world that had been revolving around a small town in upstate South Carolina for the past 13 weeks suddenly came to the same conclusion — a win over Nebraska in the Orange Bowl would give Clemson the National Championship.

Danny Ford, the National Coach-of-the-Year, wanted the team in the best physical and mental shape possible for the game with the fourth-ranked Cornhuskers, so the team left for New Smyrna Beach, FL, on December 19. After a week-long cut at the beach, they flew to Miami.

Practice at Tropical Park, which used to be a race track, began on a sour note as the Tigers had a horrid session, but that can be explained by the oppressive heat and humidity. Media Day in the Orange Bowl stadium was on December 28 and to everybody’s surprise, Clemson came out with their white pants for the photographers.

There were many anecdotes and anecdotes that went on in Florida, but most of those are better left for another article.

The day before the game, the team went to the stadium for a light workout. Although NBC billed Danny Ford’s pre-game talk as happening right before the game, it was actually filmed the night before. But what Ford said in the ersatz talk was the gospel truth about the season — “I want you to go out and have fun. Relax and go out and play your kind of game and let your four Magnets do their job.”

If there was one key to the 1981 season, the players did indeed have fun every week.

Everybody knows that Cliff Austin was stuck in an elevator at the hotel for two hours before the game, and the Tigers wore orange pants, and just how the Orange Bowl came out. When Andy Heanden deflected Mark Mauer’s last-second, desperation pass, Clemson had beaten the third Top 10-ranked team it had faced that season. 22-15, absolute chaos reigned. Nobody wanted to leave the stadium — they all just wanted to savor the moment.

There are other things that stand out in the mind’s eye about the ’81 season. Perry Tuttle sticking a card in his sock every game that said “God can do anything.” Jeff Davis, the ACC Player-of-the-Year, in his judge’s robes for an All-American promotion. Terry Kinard on the Bob Hope Show at Christmas with the AP All-American team. The unsung heroes of the offensive line who week after week blew opponents off the line. William Perry’s growing legend. The list goes on and on. But one thing is most remembered.

Where good people go for good food™
There are some awfully big Tigers walking in the South Carolina woods around Clemson University these days. It makes sense because Clemson is Tiger territory, but they've even been stepping in some orange paint before they stalk along the roads near Clemson, hunting Gamecocks from the University of South Carolina and Terrapins from the University of Maryland. Now there are giant Tiger paws in several different places on Clemson roads.

No, Clemson is not the place of unicorns and giant Tigers. Thanks to the brothers and little sisters of Sigma Phi Epsilon, Tiger fans and others are reminded of the Clemson trademark, the Tiger paw, every time they drive on Highway 123, Highway 76, an exit ramp off Interstate 85 and other locations around the Clemson campus.

In 1970 it was decided that Clemson needed a new image. Because at least 36 other colleges and universities used an orange and black Bengal Tiger as a symbol, as Clemson did, the aim was to make CU's Tiger unique.

The paw was the brainchild of an advertising firm in Greenville, South Carolina, and that same year, the Sig Eps started painting by foot paws on roads around Clemson, with the permission of the university. It has since become a tradition done every summer.

"It's like a summer reunion," an ex Paw Painting chairman, Paul Fowler, said. "It's a chance for all of us to get together, paint paws and have a little fun."

This year's Paw Painting chairman was Don Hough. He organized the event for June 14th from 11 to 5 p.m. Around 30 brothers and little sisters of the fraternity gathered to complete the job, with a little help from the community.

The Clemson University Athletic Department picked up the tab for the 35 gallons of orange paint used, and the University police provided cones and wooden horses to block off areas while the group painted, as well as directing drivers away from the painters.

This year's goal was to repaint all the paws (about fifty total) with a large two piece wooden stencil in the shape of a tiger paw used to guide the painters.

The giant tigers also got help from Mother Nature, with no rain interrupting plans. It has rained in the past, but the painting has continued unless it rained so hard that the paint ran.

The members of Sigma Phi Epsilon, now one of the largest fraternities on the Clemson campus, are proud to be the feet of the Tigers of Clemson safari county. No need to worry though . . . they're all just pussycats, having a good time.

Sig Eps keep up a Tiger tradition that makes Clemson a special college town.

The Life Reach helicopter is a familiar sight in South Carolina's skies. Its mission is to remove the obstacles—time and distance—that can prevent critically ill or injured patients from reaching the care they need to live.

With Life Reach, physicians in communities across the state can send these patients to the medical referral center best able to handle their specific problems.

The helicopter is fully equipped for intensive care, and staffed with a team of critical care specialists. So besides providing fast transportation, we can maintain the necessary level of care and life support for our patients.

Providence has expanded the services offered by the Life Reach helicopter to all who need immediate, continuous intensive care during transport—cardiovascular, head injury, internal hemorrhage, burn, and other patients. We can handle transfers from hospitals, accident scenes, or clinics to Providence or any hospital within a 150 mile range.

There are South Carolinians alive today because the helicopter got them to the help they needed. Life Reach is saving lives—by saving time.

Some people set higher standards for themselves. They come out early. And stay late. Funny, how they’re usually the winners.

At Ricoh, we set higher product standards. And we put in that extra effort. Maybe that’s why Ricoh’s line of copiers, digital facsimile, laser printers, and shredders are setting new standards of performance in today’s modern office. And that’s why Ricoh cameras are winning the attention of amateurs and professionals alike in the world of photography.

Be a winner. Demand that extra effort. Ask for Ricoh. We Respond.

IT'S A JUNGLE OUT THERE.

Phillips Fibers Marvess® olefin is your guide to superior contract carpet.

It's a jungle out there, with thousands of pairs of feet walking, running and stomping on your carpet. Countless spills and constant cleaning. Sunlight and humidity.

Graphic contract carpet made with tough Marvess olefin BCF yarn outlasts the competition for a lot of good reasons.

You can now have beautifully luxurious, soft, strong Marvess olefin carpet for about the same price as standard grades of contract carpet. So you get a lot more value for your money. And Marvess olefin comes in 50 solid shades—styling colors developed especially for the commercial market.

Further, performance of a carpet is judged almost exclusively by its appearance retention. The following characteristics are what make Marvess olefin a better buy:

Marvess olefin carpet is highly stain-resistant and easily cleaned. And the color is more stable due to the use of selected pigments rather than dyes. These less permanent dyes are used to color nylon, polyester or acrylic carpet yarn.

Marvess olefin carpet has a high abrasion resistance and is chemically resistant as well. It is also performance rated over a 5-year period for no more than 10% pile weight loss.

Graphics carpet featuring Marvess yarn retains its appearance after heavy traffic over a longer period of time and resists static buildup, too. Additionally, it passes the Department of Commerce's Standard DOC f-1-70 "pill test" for flammability.

No other contract carpet will give you the durability, lasting color retention and wide choice of brilliant colors.

For your next contract carpet application, specify Phillips Fibers Marvess olefin. For a free informational brochure, call (803) 242-6600.

You'd never know it from listening to the fans attending today's game or watching the level of intensity on the field, but Clemson and the University of South Carolina are allies now.

Together with the Medical University of South Carolina, Clemson and USC have joined hands to work on what could easily be called the most significant proposal for higher education in the state's history.

Clemson President Max Lennon, USC President James Holderman and Medical University of South Carolina President James Edwards have launched an all-out push for a major investment in research to give the state the technological foundation it will need for the 21st century.

At a historic news conference held Aug. 29, the three presidents proposed a five-year research program to stimulate economic growth and create jobs, with the $600 million projected cost to be equally divided between the state and the institutions.

The proposal, labeled the Research Investment Act (RIA), asks the state to provide $60 million a year for five years, with the universities raising the remaining $300 million from non-state sources.

The RIA would provide $248 million for USC, $197 million for Clemson and $155 million for MUSC, with the state paying half.

The proposal calls for a level of cooperation and unison among research universities not seen before in South Carolina because it is not a strategy any institution can handle alone, the three presidents told the S.C. Commission on Higher Education this summer.

In a prepared statement, the presidents said that individually, Clemson, USC and MUSC are at a disadvantage in direct competition with the MITs, the Stanfords, and the Johns Hopkines of the world. But together, the schools have millions of dollars worth of research equipment and laboratories, expertise in practically all aspects of science, engineering and medicine, plus resources in international business and marketing.

"It is a carefully constructed strategy," the statement said. "The Research Investment Act focuses on specific areas of emphasis at the three universities, deliberately taking advantage of the potential for collaboration where complementary programs exist."

The program focuses on areas that will have high payoff in economic development and quality of life, Lennon said at the news conference.

At the news conference, Holderman credited Clemson's new president with getting the project off the ground. Almost immediately after taking office, Lennon initiated an effort to identify Clemson's research strengths and target specific areas of emphasis for the future.

That effort culminated in Clemson's "Second Century Plan," which focuses on agriculture, engineering and basic science, marketing and management, quality of life and textiles.

Allied in Research

Universities unite to push for Research Investment Act for South Carolina.

USC's research emphasis will be in trade and economic development, advanced science and technology, mass communication and information management, health care and disease prevention, coastal zone management and education.

MUSC's major focus will be to develop the following research and support programs: Molecular Genetics and Structural Biology Center, Cancer Center, Marine Biomedical Center, Biotechnology Center, Heart Center, Child Health Center, Geriatrics/Rehabilitation Center, Wellness Center, Arthritis and Tissue Repair Center, Neuroscience Center, Liver Research and Clinical Care Center, Deafness Center, Drug Testing Center, and Mental Health Center.

The presidents compared the proposal to the Education Improvement Act, calling it another investment the state can't afford not to make.

"The technology boom is happening right now because 80 percent of all the scientists and technologists that have ever lived in the history of mankind are alive and working today," Edwards said. "South Carolina is not getting its fair share of that technological development, and that has hurt us."

Lennon said the state's decision on the proposal the three schools are offering might determine the future of some industries.

"Take the textile industry as an example. In the year 2000, only 14 years from now, there will be more than 300 million laborers in China competing against our industries. There's a limited amount of time for debate. We have to decide now whether we want to still be competitive then," he said.

Seniors In the Crowd
— by Kassie Kessinger

Geoff Ciniero
Columbia, MD

Ciniero is a vital member of Clemson’s inspired special teams. Heading into his final regular season game as a Tiger, he has eight tackles and has made seven on special teams this season. A veteran of 20 Clemson football games, the 21-year-old native of Columbia, MD has played in all 10 of the Tigers’ outings this year. When not chopping down opposing players as a member of the special teams, he serves as a backup strong safety. Like most members of the special teams he is an unsung hero, as Coach Danny Ford said, “He is one of the special people on our special teams.” The 5-9, 172-pound senior had a special moment in the Georgia Tech victory this year. On one of Tech’s kickoff returns, he knocked down three Jackets, sacrificing himself to allow someone else to make the tackle. He is one of the hardest workers on the squad as evidenced by his strength results, in which he posted two of the best marks in the three major power lifts at his position. He made the school’s student/athlete honor roll last spring by registering a 3.4 grade point ratio in civil engineering. Ciniero was born in Silver Spring, MD, April 22, 1965.

Mike Jollay
Tucker, GA

Jollay, 22, is another outstanding specialty teams member who will be closing out his regular season today. He has been in five of the Tigers’ games so far and was credited with a tackle late in the Duke outing. When not playing on the punt return team he is a backup linebacker, the only senior for Clemson at that position. A fifth-year senior, he redshirted his freshman year in 1982 and has earned the respect of all his fellow players and coaches for his dedication to the Clemson football program. One of the quickest linebackers on the team, he runs the 40 in 4.98. A native of Tucker, GA, Jollay came to Clemson from Shamrock High School, where he was selected DeKalb County’s Defensive Player-of-the-Year in 1981. He was a three-sport star there, earning letters in football, wrestling and track. An administrative management major, Jollay was born in Atlanta, GA, January 4, 1964.

Greg Sox
Columbia, SC

Sox, a 21-year-old native of Columbia, SC, will suit up for his final Clemson regular season game against his hometown university. He joined the Tiger football program in 1983 as a walk-on and has been a backup punter ever since. Although he has yet to get in a game, the 5-11, 192-pounder says he never quit anything in his life and the experience of being a walk-on has helped him grow up a lot. Sox’s dedication and contributions in practices have earned him the respect of his fellow teammates as well as Coach Ford. “You have to admire a fellow like Greg who comes out every day and works as hard as he does, not knowing whether he will ever get into a game,” said Ford. “We all respect players like Greg. He should be a big success in life.” Sox punted and was a placekicker in high school and had the opportunity to attend a small school on scholarship, but he's glad he chose Clemson. Born January 12, 1965, he is a financial management major.

Scott Enzor
Green Sea, SC

Enzor, a 22-year-old product of Green Sea, SC, is closing out his Clemson career with his best season ever. He has seen action in all 10 games so far as a special teams. Last year he played in seven games, mostly on the special teams. Heading into his final regular season game this season, he had been credited with five stops and one pass broken up. At Duke he was in on just 11 plays but he was credited with three stops. A 6-1, 225-pounder, Enzor says that Sunday’s weekly film session is a motivating factor for the special teams. “Each Sunday, Coach Ford shows a film of the kicking team, and for a good hit you get a skull,” revealed Enzor. “Everybody takes pride in it because you see it in front of the team. When you do a good job, he points it out.” In last spring’s drills Enzor shined as well as anyone. He was recipient of the Carlon Box Spring Defensive Award, given to the top walk-on player. A recipient of nine varsity letters at Green Sea Floyds High School, Enzor is an outstanding student and this past spring he was named to the school’s dean list for posting a 3.86 grade-point ratio in secondary education. The graduate student was born February 12, 1964 in Mullins, SC.

John Jansen
Conyers, GA

John Jansen has been a reliable reserve offensive lineman for the last two years. He is one of the more versatile linemen on the Clemson squad as he also has played on the defensive side of the line of scrimmage. He is a two-year letter-winner who undoubtedly will receive a third letter this season. Jansen was named the most improved Offensive Lineman last spring and is one of the strongest players on the team with a 385 bench press figure. This season he has been a backup guard to John Phillips, one of the best players at his position in America.

Jansen is destined to be a success for many years. No, probably not on the football field, but his 3.6 grade point ratio in the fall semester last year is testimony to his academic abilities. He will be widely recruited after he graduates in May.

“John Jansen has helped us in a lot of areas for four years,” said Danny Ford. “We have moved him around from linebacker, to defensive tackle to a number of places and he has never complained. He is a team player.”

Eric Nix
Anderson, SC

After starting three games near the end of last season Nix was listed as Clemson’s starter at center heading into the 1986 campaign. However, a knee injury suffered during pre-season drills and subsequent arthroscopic surgery following the Virginia Tech outing forced him into a backup role and he has been playing behind Jeff Bak ever since. The 6-2, 255-pound native of Anderson, SC made a quick recovery, missing just the Georgia game. On the year he has drawn film grade of 70 percent or better in six games, including a high of 88 percent in the Virginia Tech loss and an 83 at Maryland. He has had a knockdown block in six of the nine games he's played and had three on 17 snaps against Virginia Tech. For his career he has played in 31 games for Clemson and will pick up his third varsity letter at the end of this year. A former all-state center at T.L. Hanna High School, Nix was born January 8, 1964 and is majoring in administrative management.

the good stuff. Past records should and will be put aside in this rivalry of rivals. Fans have planned for this day ever since the Tigers and the Gamecocks left the field at Williams-Brice Stadium last November. Furthermore, this game takes on a special meaning for many today as they participate in their final game at Clemson Memorial Stadium. Roth captured that feeling in Goodbye, Columbus; today, that novel could be entitled Goodbye, Clemson.
However, before we seniors bid everyone an emotional au revoir, there is the matter of the game at hand that needs to be settled. That game with all of its spirit will get started when Tiger Band begins the action with its traditional pregame show. The “Band That Shakes The Southland” begins by reliving the glory of the National Championship by playing “Sock It To Em;” the Orange Bowl March, and “Tiger
Rag” while spelling out the word “Tigers.”

Today’s guest of honor dueing the ‘i’ is the 1986 Tiger Brotherhood Mother-Of-The-Year,
Mrs. Beth Stewart (See page 114). While action is “pawed,” the graduating seniors of Tiger Band will also be recognized. The action then continues with “You’re A Grand Old Flag” and “America The Beautiful,” directed by Dr. Rich-ald E. Goodstein and accompanied by the Clemson University Chorus. Tiger Band Director Dr. Bruce F. Cook will then conduct “The Star-Spangled Banner” while an entourage from Fergus College comes to stir the school and presents the colors. Today’s invitation will be offered by The Reverend Tim Willis, pastor of the Baptist Campus Ministry. The stirring Clemson University Alma Mater, conducted by Mr. Mark Jessie, will follow, and then it’s time for “the 25 most exciting seconds in college football,” as the Fightin’ Tigers rev ‘em up and come roaring down the hill.

Today’s halftime show is an encore of the North Carolina halftime show, “Music From Space.” This show is being dedicated to the seniors of Tiger Band, who selected its replay.
Following a presentation from the M arching
Gamecocks, Tiger Band will take to the field and open with a fanfare from the theme from “Superman II;” featuring the percussion section and the auxiliary percussion section, also known as “The Pit.” The opening fanfare was composed by John Williams and arranged by Bob Cotter.

The rest of the show will be taken from the suite “The Planets;” composed by Britain’s Gustav Holst for orchestra in 1915. Arranged by Jay Bocook with percussion by Barry Reese; “The Planets’” features “Jupiter, The Bringer Of Jollity.” During this suite, Tiger Band will segue into a percussion feature composed by Tiger Band Percussion Captain Mark Biering, a senior industrial engineering major from Charleston. Tiger Band would like to credit the Zildjian Cymbal Company and Pecknel Music Company for their donations of 16 pairs of cymbals for today’s halftime show.

And, as is customary, today’s halftime show will end with a salute to departing seniors and Clemson fans in Death Valley, the Palmetto
State, and worldwide with “The Song That Shakes The Southland;” TIGER RAG! TIGER
RAG! TIGER RAG!

Where the Blue Ridge yawns its greatness
Where the Tigers play
Here the sons of dear old Clemson.
Regn Supreme alway.

Chorus
Dear old Clemson, we will triumph
And with all our might
That the Tigers roar may echo
O’er the mountain height.

WE HELP PUT A BRIGHTER FACE ON THE FUTURE.

The Jefferson Pilot Companies

Nuclear energy is part of our way of life.

Fortunately, so is Chem-Nuclear.

Nuclear energy is important to us in South Carolina—it is used to generate more than half of the electricity we use. So, when you turn on the lights, or the television, there's a good chance the electricity you're using comes from a nuclear generating plant.

Nuclear energy and technology are also vitally important in medical research and the treatment of many diseases. Industries, too, use nuclear materials in productive, socially useful applications.

But like almost every other aspect of modern life, both the production of electricity and the other uses of nuclear technology create waste. Most materials that come into contact with radioactive substances become contaminated and must be properly handled. Even slightly contaminated articles like tools and rags have to be disposed of with care.

That's where Chem-Nuclear comes in. We've developed much of the technology used in the management of low level radioactive waste—from processing, packaging, and transportation to permanent disposal. And we provide all those services to utilities, hospitals, universities and industries in every area of South Carolina.

These Chem-Nuclear services all have one goal—protecting public health and safety and preserving our environment. Everything we do is carried out with the highest degree of safety-consciousness and attention to detail—no corners are cut.

Modern life produces waste. Whether it's your family's garbage that can be hauled to a sanitary landfill, or the low level radioactive waste produced when you turn on a light, it must be managed properly if the quality of our environment is to be maintained.

All of us play a part in the generation of low level radioactive waste. Fortunately, Chem-Nuclear can handle it.

The race-winning Corvette of Rippie/Anderson Motorsports.
Tires: Goodyear Eagle VR S "Gatorback" street radials.

The fact that both of these Corvettes are on Goodyear Eagle street radials is no coincidence.

Every Corvette made since 1984 comes with just one make of tire: the Goodyear Eagle VR "Gatorback" street radial. Which is no coincidence. Because the Eagle VR "Gatorback" was developed specifically for the Corvette's tremendous cornering, handling and speed capabilities.

Considering the performance of the Eagle VR "Gatorback," it's not surprising that successful SCCA Showroom Stock Endurance racing teams like Rippie/Anderson also choose an Eagle street radial: the Eagle VR S "Gatorback," a version of the Eagle VR "Gatorback" made for ultimate grip rather than ultimate treadlife.

The success of both the Eagle VR and VR S "Gatorbacks" has a common source:
Goodyear's ability to engineer better high-performance radials. For virtually every performance car.

So it's really no coincidence that the Eagle VR is to be found on every Corvette made.

Or that the Eagle VR S is the favorite tire of people who race Corvettes in the SCCA Showroom Stock Endurance Series.

In fact, when you think of how the Eagles perform, it's no coincidence at all.

*Tires shaved to racing depth. Before you race on Goodyear street radials, write the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, P.O. Box 9125, Akron, Ohio 44306 for preparation recommendations and procedures.

omewhere in Clemson today, somebody should have a party for Willie Underwood.

No, it’s not Willie’s birthday or anything like that. It’s just that today, November 22, is a special day for Clemson, thanks mainly to the Herculean efforts of Underwood on this day in 1980. It was on this day that Underwood made THE interceptions, THE runbacks, and helped introduce THE pants, all of which would help propel Clemson to THE National Championship in 1981.

ALL ORANGE

Clemson’s orange pants tradition started on this date six years ago.

The Gator Bowl bound Gamecocks of South Carolina entered this game with one of their best teams ever. With an 8-2 record and featuring eventual Heisman trophy winner George Rogers in the backfield, the Gamecocks were on a roll. It did not look good for the 5-5 Tigers.

The weather also did not look good. It was raining periodically at Death Valley; it was overcast, dark, and gloomy. November 22, 1980, appeared as if it would be an unhappy, dark, wet day for Clemson fans. Enter Willie Underwood.

A few minutes before 1:00 P.M., poking through the gloom at Death Valley, orange pants, an idea created by Underwood and Jeff Davis, shocked the crowd. After wearing white in warmups, the Tigers came back into the lockerroom to find the orange pants hanging in their lockers. The entire project was a secret, with only a few knowing about it.

Underwood, however, was not satisfied with introducing new game attire. This would be his last collegiate contest and his best.

The game was a close one with both teams matching field goals in the first half. The score was tied at six when Carolina began a march late in the third quarter and appeared to be headed towards the go-ahead score. Again, enter Willie Underwood. USC quarterback Gary Harper dropped to pass and fired towards a receiver in the flat. Underwood, however, intercepted the ball in full stride and raced down the sideline 67 yards before he was knocked out of bounds at the Gamecock 24. Homer Jordan would score a few plays later to put Clemson up 13-6.

Now, it’s early fourth quarter and USC hopes to make a comeback. Once again, enter Willie Underwood, a player who had never intercepted a pass prior to this game. In full stride, Underwood picked off another Harper pass and this time ran 37 yards for a touchdown to put the Tigers up 20-6. Jeff McCall would run 15 yards for another touchdown in the final period to make the final score, 27-6.

The momentum from this upset victory would carry over to the next season as Clemson went 12-0 and won the national championship. The orange pants would be worn many times in big games, each time with a special feeling of magic about them.

A final look at Underwood’s scoresheet from this day? Two interceptions, two long runbacks, 17 tackles (10 of them unassisted), and a special uniform design. For his efforts, he was named Sports Illustrated defensive player of the week, an honor no Clemson player has achieved since.

That special contest is one of several the Tigers have played on this day. Clemson has won and lost some on November 22 but always made more exciting moments.

1941 — The Tigers trounced Furman this day 34-6 in Greenville. It was Clemson’s seventh victory of the season and pushed their conference mark to 5-0.

1952 — Believe it or not, Vince Dooley has been trouble for Clemson as a player and coach. With this game against Auburn deadlocked at zero and only 90 seconds to play, Dooley saved the game for Auburn. Dooley was the holder for field goal attempts and this time he got an awful snap. Somehow, Dooley got the ball down, however, and the kick by Joe Davis was good for a 3-0 Auburn victory. Auburn coach Shug Jordan said, “It was one of the finest plays I’ve ever seen in football.”

1958 — With a Sugar Bowl invitation riding on the outcome, the Tigers played an outstanding game to capture a victory, 34-12, over Boston College. Bill Mathis was a standout for the Tigers, as was Doug Cline.

1969 — USC’s Tommy Suggs ruined Coach Howard’s final game as he passed USC to 27-13 victory before 42,941 at Columbia. Carolina jumped out to a 17-0 second quarter lead and held off a Clemson rally after that. Carolina went on to the Peach Bowl.

Willie Underwood saved the best for his last game at Clemson.

The words "Schonhar to hold, Treadwell to kick," have become very familiar to Clemson football fans over the past two seasons. Everyone knows who Treadwell is. He's the kicker who booted that unforgettable field goal to beat those Georgia Bulldogs down in Athens a couple of months ago. But who is this Schonhar kid and where did he come from?

He came from right down the road in nearby Easley, SC. Schonhar, a 6-0, 190-pound senior, has made a name for himself in a variety of ways. He is best known as Clemson's candidate for All-America Holder. (They do have those, don't they?) He is also the Tiger football team's official comedian, a David Letterman in football pads. Although he loves his role on the team, Schonhar admits that it isn't quite what he expected.

At Easley High School, Schonhar played quarterback for the football team and catcher for the baseball team. By his junior year, he was already hearing from major colleges about football scholarships and he had a few professional baseball teams looking at him. Even though he felt he had more talent at baseball, his heart was set on playing football at a Division I school. But his senior year was not a successful one for his Easley High team, and when the time came to sign with a school, he wasn't satisfied with his options. So Todd Schonhar decided to come to Clemson and play baseball.

But a funny thing happened on the way to the baseball diamond. One day, Schonhar and his coach came to Clemson to talk to baseball coach Bill Wilhelm. As they were leaving the baseball office, they bumped into Danny Ford. Ford told Schonhar he would love to have him try to walk-on for the Tigers.

Schonhar wasn't sure he liked the idea of walking on but eventually decided to give it a try. "I had gotten a lot of rewards for playing baseball, but I hadn't fulfilled my goals as a football player," he said. "I wanted to prove I could play at a Division I school."

Schonhar soon found out that the life of a walk-on required lots of work and carried with it little glory. "Being a walk-on is like going to a party uninvited," he said. "You have to prove yourself even more than the other players. One of my coaches told me my freshman year that I could be just as good as the other players, but I had to be better if I ever wanted to play." Schonhar's freshman year was a learning experience, as he practiced behind quarterbacks Homer Jordan and Mike Eppley. The next year, he decided to redshirt in hopes that he might play sometime down the road. But, the next year brought in a highly recruited and highly talented Randy Anderson and the next year brought in an equally touted Rodney Williams, so Todd Schonhar began to realize that his chances of becoming Clemson's quarterback were getting slim.

"I was always in the background," Schonhar remembers. "Randy, Rodney and I were always pulling for each other, but I knew it would end up being between the two of them. But I still wanted to help the team out in any way I could."

Todd Schonhar found a way. He began working with the special teams as a holder. In the 1985 season opener against Virginia Tech, he held for the first time since high school, and David Treadwell was kicking for the first time ever, anywhere. That game was won on a second attempt field goal with no time left on the clock. "It was a great confidence builder," said Schonhar. "It really started us out on the right 'foot'."

Schonhar's job as holder eventually won him a scholarship. "Holding is the one thing I do so I try to be perfect at it," he said. "I take a lot of pride in it."

"Todd has been the key to my success as a kicker," said David Treadwell. "I have confidence every time it's snapped that he's going to get it down. I think 'Schonhar for All-American' is a great idea."

All-America Holder

Todd Schonhar has realized his dream in a slightly different form.

Treadwell said that Schonhar also keeps him from getting too nervous before a kick. "When we go out on the field to attempt a field goal, he keeps me loose with his wisecracks. It breaks the tension and helps me kick better."

Schonhar also helps to loosen up the whole team. His imitations of coaches have become legendary. Before the Georgia game, ABC commentator Lynn Swann was watching the Tigers warm up and Schonhar walked up to him and began imitating Howard Cosell. "It may have been one of the first times Swann was at a loss for words," reports Clemson Sports Information Director Bob Bradley. His imitation of Georgia Announcer Larry Munson was shown on WSPA-TV the week after the Georgia victory.

"I used to try to hide my emotions by being funny," Schonhar said. "It hurt sometimes that I worked so hard and still couldn't play. I began to be accepted by the guys on the team because of my sense of humor even though I was a walk-on. As I got older, the younger guys would come in and they would feel comfortable around me and come to me when they had a question or needed something, so it's helped me to become a leader."

Todd Schonhar is proud of what he's accomplished at Clemson. "It's almost complete," he said. "I proved to myself that I could play at a big school so I fulfilled my dream, only in a different way than I expected. I always dreamed of throwing a pass for a winning touchdown against South Carolina or Georgia. Instead, I held for the winning kick. It's still a dream come true."
MOTHER-OF-THE-YEAR

by Maria Farry

If you meet Beth Stewart on the street, chances are you will be greeted by a warm smile, a friendly hello, and a big hug. Then, she might go on to tell you how her great-grandchildren are doing, or how much she enjoys her work, and more than likely, she will let you know how well those Tigers are doing this season. But you can be sure that no matter what the course of the conversation, you will leave with a warm feeling, knowing that you have just spoken with a very special lady; one who is quite deserving to be named Tiger Brotherhood's Mother-of-the-Year.

Mrs. Stewart earned her degree from Columbia College, where she served as President of the Student Body her senior year. She fondly recalls, "I got my diploma and got married all within the same hour! We were the first couple to be married in the Columbia College chapel." The young man she married that day was Harry J. Stewart. They shared 38 wonderful years together before he passed on. "I used to tell Harry if he hadn't been a Tiger, I'd never have married him," laughed Mrs. Stewart.

After their marriage, the Stewart couple lived in Orangeburg, SC, where he was with the highway patrol. Soon they moved to Florence, SC, where Harry was Safety Director for the City. Beth was employed by the South Carolina Industrial School in Florence for eight years. She says, "That was interesting work, and I enjoyed working with the boys who were there. When we moved away, I used to tell people they were just letting me out on good behavior!"

The Stewart’s next move was to the Smokey Mountains. There, they built, owned, and operated a rustic lodge. "Our 10 years in the Smokies were probably the most exciting years of my life! We had all kinds of horses and we would have square dances up there, too. We came in contact with all sorts of people from all over the United States."

Then, in 1973, the Stewarts came to Clemson, where her husband became involved with the amusement park business. Beth worked on and off with the University during registration for several years. Then she began work in the Athletic Department with IPTAY, where she recorded all of the money that came in. "I loved my job at IPTAY. I have always loved sports, especially when it's Clemson, and I enjoy young people. I just love the students to death!"

Beth worked with IPTAY for five years, took one day off, and then went to work at Palmetto Capital, where she is currently employed. She works for Joe Turner, who previously served as the Executive Secretary of IPTAY. Although Beth loves her job now, she says, "I will find my way over to the athletic department every now and then. I miss all the people who work there."

Mrs. Stewart does love athletics. As a matter of fact, athletics played a part in bringing Beth and her husband to Clemson in the first place. Their daughter, Kapp, married former Clemson football player Whitey Jordan, and the couple was living in Clemson. Beth and her husband came down from the mountains to be closer to their daughter and their three grandchildren (two girls and one boy).

After Whitey Jordan finished his football career, he went on to become a coach for Clemson. He is now coaching at SMU in Dallas, Texas. But before he even finished Clemson, Beth recalls, "When Whitey was still playing ball here and Kapp had just had her second child, she won the first Miss Clemson pageant. I might get in trouble for telling you that though!"

Beth’s love for Clemson athletics is a deep seated one, indeed. You might even say she goes "above and beyond the call of duty." Maureen Holladay, a newlywed co-worker of Beth’s, tells this story, "We were having my bridal shower at Keowee Key on one of the away-game Saturdays, and Beth came to it. All of the sudden, Beth started yelling and jumping around, and we didn’t know what she was doing.

Then, I looked back and saw that she had on her headphones and was cheering for one of Terrence Flagler’s touchdown runs!" The Holladays were married the next away-game Saturday, and yes, Mrs. Stewart had her headphones on there, too. "I didn’t yell in the church, though," she said.

Loyal Tiger

Beth Stewart is Tiger Brotherhood’s Mother of the Year.

Beth Stewart is truly a warm, kind, and loving person. She is a wonderful mother, grandmother, and great-grandmother, and she has proven to be a great asset to Clemson University and the community. She also takes time to be active in the Clemson United Methodist Church.

Beth’s favorite quote, which is hanging in her living room, says, "I am not afraid of tomorrow, because I have seen yesterday, and I love today." No more fitting words could be found to sum up the personality and character of Mrs. Beth Stewart, Tiger Brotherhood’s Mother-of-the-Year.

What is Tiger Brotherhood?

Today, the Brotherhood is a local, selective, honorary fraternity. It still embraces the same basic tenets as established by its founders, led by Professor John Logan Marshall, in 1929. Enamored with ritual, the Tiger Brotherhood promotes high standards of social and ethical conduct, while recognizing in its members an earnest devotion to Clemson, coupled with the integrity of character commensurate with the atypical Clemson Gentleman.

Tiger Brotherhood embodies an unequaled cross-sectional representation of the Clemson community. Students, faculty and staff all work within the bonds of brotherhood to champion a closer relationship. One for all and all for one. With Clemson, its many traditions and underlying spirit as our central focus, the Brotherhood today provides a viable, flexible and continuing forum for ideas and unending service to Clemson.

Four years ago Steve Griffin came to Clemson as one of the brightest lights of his freshman class both on and off the field. An Adidas All-American and a respected student from Charlotte, NC, Griffin had two goals: first and foremost, to be the first of his family to attend college and graduate; and second, to become an excellent football player. Both will have occurred by next year as Griffin will graduate in 1987. He has become a fine football player, at least in the eyes of his Clemson coaches and his strong contingent from the Tar Heel state.

If Steve could give one piece of advice to a football player coming out of high school, it would be this: "I would stress to a person to come to a university as a student-athlete. At all times STUDENT comes first and ATHLETE comes second and a hyphen is in between. The time spent in between the two, the hyphen, is YOUR time and it is the one where you should place the highest priority for your goals and it should be school work."

"I knew that I could play football anywhere and Clemson would be the place for me because of the high academic standards in the business school." Steve has a 2.5 GPA in financial management, and promised his mother, Henrietta, he would achieve his degree. After graduation Griffin hopes to acquire a position in the management area of a graphic design company. He has worked as an intern for a graphic design company the past three summers.

While Griffin has been a three-year starter in the summers, he has not been a starter on the gridiron. Every Clemson coach will tell you he is certainly worthy of it though. Clemson signed five tailbacks in 1981 to supplement its two returning seniors, Cliff Austin and Chuck McSwain. The most coveted of the newcomers was Terrence Flagler, a high-school All-American from Jacksonville, FL. Griffin was probably rated second and close behind were Kenny Flowers of Daytona Beach, FL, Stacy Driver, the only member of the group who was not red-shirted, and David Barnett of Summerville, SC.

"I knew that I would not be the only running back coming into Clemson and realized that it would be the greatest football challenge of my life. I was never naive about the situation. The coaches were straightforward with me in the recruiting process. My decision took all that into account, because Clemson just came off a national championship season and their only two tailbacks were seniors, so I expected it to be tough. I was confident in my ability and I still am."

Griffin may not have put a lot of large numbers on the board as the other premier Clemson running backs have done in the past, but he certainly has the ability. During his freshman year, he led the squad in kickoff returns with 172 yards, and had a fine 19.1 yard average.

As a sophomore he was named the outstanding player in the 1983 spring practice as he had over 100 yards in three of the scrimmages, but ended up wearing the red-shirt for that season.

In Griffin's 1984 season he finished as Clemson's number-three rusher, compiling 350 yards at five yards a pop and five TDs. During that season, Griffin's most memorable moment in Clemson football took place.

Steve Griffin has followed the teachings of a high school counselor to success for five years.

"I had a 60-yard run against Duke in 1984 and that was the big thrill of my football life so far because all my friends are from the triangle area and I was able to show them I could still run. I was only able to carry the ball five times for 85 yards, but playing well in front of my friends meant the most to me."

Then came the spring of 1985. Griffin heard rumors during the winter that he would possibly be switched to cornerback. The rumors turned into reality during the first week of practice as coach Danny Ford approached him in the weight room and asked him to his office.

"We needed someone to help at cornerback," Ford remembered. Clemson had lost three starters and needed some help in that area. "He's a great athlete, and we thought he could help us out there."

Griffin had a negative reaction at first, but he said, "I like Clemson too much. It's the best place for me to get an education."

Finally came his senior season. Griffin thought his time to show his stuff would finally be here, when Kenny Flowers was injured but Flagler took the spotlight and has never let go.

"Flagler's performance has not surprised me at all. Both he and I knew that either of us could go in there and run if given the opportunity."

Although the three have shared time on the field, Flowers and Flagler and Griffin have combined for over 5,400 career yards going into the South Carolina game, making them the first group of senior running backs in Clemson history to go over the 5,000-yard mark. Griffin has 614 yards and a healthy yards per carry figure (5.0). "I'm happy I came to Clemson. I wouldn't trade the Clemson experience for anything."

Many high school superstars often do not reach the spotlight in college that they once received in prep school. Many youngsters caught in this predicament have thrown in the towel. But, Steve Griffin remembered the advice that a counselor once gave to him, "Student-Athlete represents three separate functions, a student, an athlete and then your time." It is advice that has served him well.
Our first experience with the South Carolina game came in 1941 when we were freshmen at Clemson. My remembrance of this was that my dad drove me to Columbia and he listened to the game on the radio at a local hotel while we went to the game.

Clemson was the favorite in the game, but South Carolina won, 18-14, and this was my introduction to what was then the world's largest outdoor cocktail party north of Jacksonville...Big Thursday. That wasn't the first time, or the last, where the favorite didn't win.

The third Thursday in October was a state holiday back then and Clemson students got out after their last morning class on Wednesday and were off the rest of the week.

In 1941 we had a military instructor, Maj. Frank B. Farr, better known as "Gator" Farr, who was later to become famous for his "Gamecock funerals" on the Tuesday evening before dismissal for state fair holidays.

Farr would preach the funeral in poetry and review the season of both Clemson and South Carolina in doing so. His text would always be the same, coming from the fall edition of Sears Roebuck catalog (ladies' ready-to-wear section on the corset page) and it stated that "no chicken shall strike a tiger and be permitted to live."

Farr would always be decked out in tails and derby hat and would lead the procession into the outdoor theater. A real coffin which Boston College fans gave the Clemson students after the Tigers beat the Eagles in the 1940 Cotton Bowl was brought into the arena with full military escort.

Even after moving to Florida and going into public school work, Farr continued to come back to Clemson each year until his death to make sure that "that chicken had a decent burial."

Back in the days of Big Thursday, it was truly a fashion show for the ladies. There would always be a lengthy story in all major daily papers of the state on what the wives of the two university presidents wore as well as that of the governor's wife and the two United States senators.

The bands would always perform, but the main activity at halftime would be the two university presidents meeting at midfield and exchanging guests. If the governor and his wife sat with Clemson during the first half, they'd sit with the South Carolina president the second half while the two senators would be with Clemson. Even if the temperature was 85° the wives would have on their furs, hats, veils, high heels — the works.

Clemson and South Carolina might be the only two schools ever to play because of a resolution passed by the General Assembly. The 1951 teams of Clemson and Maryland received bowl bids and accepted, the Tigers to the Gator and the Terps to the Sugar, despite the conference school presidents ruling otherwise.

Consequently, Clemson and Maryland were put on conference probation for a year, with the stipulation that they could play no other conference team except each other, unless a state law dictated differently.

The South Carolina General Assembly passed a resolution that Clemson and South Carolina would meet on the gridiron at the State Fair Grounds in Columbia, S. C., October 23, 1952. That they did, but Clemson and Maryland had to completely revamp their 1952 schedules. The Tigers opened the season at home with Presbyterian and closed the home schedule the next week against Villanova. The last seven games were on the road.

Clemson and Maryland being put on probation was the main reason the Atlantic Coast Conference was formed the next year — in May of 1953.

The first 57 games of the Clemson-South Carolina series were played at the State Fair. The first one outside of Columbia was at Clemson November 12, 1960, three games from the end of the season, and one of the duller games anyone would want to ever see. The score was 3-2 at halftime and Clemson ended up winning, 12-2.

The next year (November 11) in Columbia, a fraternity borrowed some uniforms from a high school in Orangeburg which looked very similar to Clemson and one of the brothers dressed up to look like coach Frank Howard.

When this group came on the field a few minutes ahead of the real teams, the Clemson fans stood up and cheered wildly. As the "players" started their warm-ups, it was quite clear that this was not the real Clemson team and the Tiger students emptied onto the field. It took several minutes to restore order.

There is also a story that has circulated that this same fraternity had borrowed a cow from a farmer over in Lexington County and planned to parade her out and introduce her as Clemson’s homecoming queen, but old Bossy had a heart attack and died beneath the stands before her moment of glory.

The next year, 1962, when the game came back to Clemson, it was the last game of the season and that’s where it’s stayed.

Back in 1956 Warren Giese replaced Rex Enright as South Carolina coach and Clemson hung shutouts on the Gamecocks in 1956 and 1957. Before the 1958 game Giese was quoted as saying that "only God and Howard know where IPTAY funds go," and Howard retorted that "Giese knows as much about IPTAY as he does the Ed Sullivan show." Howard further said he would tip his hat to Giese the first time South Carolina scored on Clemson.

In the '58 game the Tigers scored first, but the Gamecocks tied the game at 6-6 just before halftime and Howard tipped his hat to Giese. South Carolina came out and scored 20 points in the second half and won, 26-6.

In his post-game interview, Howard invited the press into the dressing room with a "come on in and claim the body," and announced later on that "my head got pretty sunburned before the day was over."

Today is the 84th game of this long, colorful and storied series. Every player who ever dressed out has a recollection. The game was halted between 1902 and 1909 because of "bad blood" between the two schools — a counterfeit ticket printing in 1945 caused the gates to be stormed and fans were six deep between the sidelines and teams. It wasn’t unusual to see a soft drink hawker between the coach and the playing field. And things of this nature about the game could go on and on.

No doubt there’ll be over 80,000 new stories to come out of today’s game.
