5 Vance Hammond
Clemson senior defensive lineman Vance Hammond had many collegiate opportunities to play basketball coming out of high school, but simple arithmetic was all it took for him to choose football, as Heather Czeczkó explains.

7 Stacy Fields
Behind the Jervey Athletic Center is a large field mainly used by Tiger golfers in the summer months. As Annabelle Vaughan explains, some Clemson football players also used the field this summer, but not to improve their golf games.

49 Clemson Sports Programs
Clemson is well known for its success on the gridiron, but as Tim Bourret reviews, Clemson has experienced success, especially recently, in all 18 varsity sports.

51 Les Herrin
Athletics, especially football, has influenced the life of Clemson defensive line coach Les Herrin, but as Tim Match tells us, Les Herrin's life is more than just football.

55 Mitch Belton
The Tigers' top special teams player never even thought of attending Clemson University, but as Annabelle Vaughan reveals, an accident prior to a college football game in Columbia changed his life dramatically.

62 Senior Spotlights
Clemson's group of seniors needs just one win to break the Atlantic Coast Conference record for victories by one class. Here is some information on a few of the contributors to that success.

105 Women's Basketball Preview
The 1990-91 edition of Clemson Lady Tiger basketball takes to the court this month as they prepare to battle for the Atlantic Coast Conference Championship. Turn to page 105 as Sam Blackman examines Jim Davis' squad for the upcoming season.

112 The Last Word
The Clemson-South Carolina football game provides all types of stories, some true, some legendary, some mythical, but in today's Last Word, Bob Bradley shares with us, some of Frank Howard's memories of the state's biggest rivalry.

Seniors Look for ACC Record

Clemson never needs extra motivation when preparing for a game with South Carolina, but the Tiger seniors will have that little extra when the Gamecocks come to Death Valley. Clemson's group of seniors needs just one win to break the ACC record for wins by one class, or, wins in a four-year period.

Ironically, the seniors can break the mark with a win over their major rival in their final home game. The Clemson class of 1990 is currently tied with the Clemson class of 1989 with 38 wins apiece for the league mark for wins. The current group is 38-8 for four years, while last year's group was 38-8-2 for four years. As you can see by the chart below, Clemson classes own five of the top eight winningest classes in ACC history.

This year's group of seniors is also among the best nationally. Heading into the games of November 17, only the senior classes at Miami (40-4), Nebraska (40-7), Florida State (39-6) and Notre Dame (40-6), have more wins than the current Clemson senior class.

Here is a list of the ACC's Winningest Classes:

Kirkland Butkus Award Finalist

Clemson outside linebacker Levon Kirkland has been named one of five finalists for the Dick Butkus Award. The honor is given to the top linebacker in the nation and is presented by the Downtown Athletic Club of Orlando, FL. The winner will be announced on December 4 and the banquet honoring the selectee will be held on December 8.

Kirkland is joined by Michael Stonebreaker of Notre Dame, Maurice Crum of Miami, Alfred Williams of Colorado and Derrick Brownlow of Illinois. Kirkland, who is the only underclassman of the group, is the first Clemson player to be chosen as a finalist for the award. The native of Lamar, SC is one of the reasons Clemson is first in the nation in total defense. He has 44 tackles (to match the number on his back), 10 tackles for loss, six passes broken up and 11 quarterback pressures.

"It is a great honor to be among the finalists for this award, especially when you look at the other four finalists," said Kirkland. "I have to give credit to the other defensive players, especially my fellow outside linebackers. Without them, we would not be number-one in the nation in defense. Our team ranking has a lot to do with me being in the final five for the Butkus Award."

Long Finalist for Outland Trophy

Clemson offensive tackle Stacy Long is one of 14 finalists for the Outland Trophy, the award presented each year to the top lineman (offensive or defensive) in the nation. The winner will be announced December 5 in Los Angeles. Long is the second Tiger to be a finalist for the Outland Trophy. Michael Dean Perry (in 1987) was also a finalist for the award.

Long was a first-team All-American according to the Sporting News last year and a third-team selection by AP. He has had another fine season this year with an average grade of 78 percent and 32 knockdown blocks. The two-time ACC Lineman of the week is Clemson's career leader in knockdown blocks by an offensive tackle with 127.

"Stacy Long is one of the classic drive blockers in all of college football," said Georgia Tech Head Coach Bobby Ross. "He is tremendously strong. When you look at him on film, the first thing that stands out is how quick, how low and how aggressive he is coming off the ball. Clemson has always had football players who can do that, but I think Stacy Long has to be one of the best they've had."

South Carolina Update

South Carolina enters the meeting with Clemson with a 5-4 ledger after its win over Southern Illinois last week. The Gamecocks have moved the ball all season and have many standout offensively.

Bobby Fuller has had statistics that exceed those of his predecessor, Todd Ellis. Fuller has completed almost 60 percent of his passes this season and could end the year with a Gamecock completion percentage record if he has a good day against Clemson. He had a career best 356 yards against N.C. State.

Running back Rob DeBoer, who went to South Carolina to play baseball, is the team's second leading rusher with over 500 yards, but he has been the mainstay over the last five games. He averages over six yards a carry.

Robert Brooks is an outstanding wide receiver and has nearly 100 career receptions even though he still has another year of eligibility. He is already seventh in Gamecock history in receptions and reception yardage (even though he missed two games this year after undergoing arthroscopic surgery).

This could be a great battle of kickers. Clemson of course has Chris Gardocki, but the Gamecocks counter with Darren Parker and Collin Mackie. Mackie has missed only one extra point in his career and has 64 career field goals. Parker has a 40-yard average as a punter and was among the national leaders last season.

Harmon Sets Two Clemson Records

Clemson senior Eric Harmon deserves a lot of credit for Clemson's 8-2 season and top 10 national ranking in rushing offense this year. The native of Camden, NJ is Clemson's leader in knockdown blocks this season with 61 and now has an all-time Clemson record 258 for his career. He broke John Phillips' record of 245 when he had nine against Wake Forest on October 27.

Harmon also holds the Clemson record for games started in a career, regardless of position. Now, that is an accomplishment for an offensive lineman considering the contact Harmon faces every week. He will make his 46th career start against South Carolina and has missed just one game in his career. He broke the record of 44
Clemson Seeking Sixth Straight Bowl Appearance

With an 8-2 record heading into the South Carolina game, Clemson is on the brink of a sixth straight bowl trip. Clemson will be an ACC record for consecutive seasons in a bowl game when it makes its appearance this year. Clemson has been to a bowl game every year since 1985 and has won each of its last four bowl games. Clemson and Florida State are the only teams in the nation to win a bowl game four years in a row.

Clemson will tie Maryland's record for consecutive bowl seasons. The Terps were in a bowl every year between 1973 and 1978. Clemson will have a shot at breaking the ACC record for consecutive bowl victories. Clemson has won four in a row heading into this year's postseason play. North Carolina also won four straight bowl games in four years between 1979 and 1982.

Clemson extended its ACC record for consecutive winning regular seasons to 14. Clemson has had a winning ledger in the regular season every year since 1976.

Clemson Defense Ranked First

Clemson hopes to be stingy defensively for one more game in regular season play. If Clemson can be strong defensively against the Gamecocks it could give the Tigers their first total defense national championship in the history of the school.

The Tigers are leading the nation in total defense, allowing just 124 yards per game. The Tigers' highest finish in that important category is third by the 1954 team that allowed just 176 yards per game.

Clemson is also second in the nation in scoring defense, first in rushing defense, and eighth in pass defense. No Clemson team has ever finished the season ranked in the top 10 in the nation in all four categories. Last year's team was the first Clemson team to finish in the top 25 in all four areas.

Only three teams have gained over 300 yards in total offense against Clemson this year. Opponents have reached 110 yards rushing just once and eight of those teams have been held to double figures in rushing yardage for the game. Five times the opponents have failed to score a touchdown, including each of the last two games.

Clemson Looks for Undefeated Home Season

A Clemson victory over South Carolina would give the Tigers their perfect season at home since 1981. The Tigers are 5-0 so far at Death Valley and have outscored the opposition 187-13. Only one team has scored a touchdown against Clemson in Memorial Stadium this year, and that score came on a kickoff return by Duke in the final stages of the game against Clemson's second-team kickoff return defense. Opponents are averaging just 137 yards per game in total offense in Death Valley this season.

Clemson has had 11 perfect seasons at home since Death Valley was opened in 1942, but the Tigers have had just two perfect home seasons in the last 16 years.

Brewster Needs Two Tackles for 300

Senior inside linebacker Doug Brewster should become the sixth player in Clemson history to reach the 300-tackle mark when he plays his final game in Death Valley against South Carolina. Brewster is coming off one of his best games as a Tiger as he had 11 stops against North Carolina to lead the Tigers.

Brewster, a first-team All-ACC choice last year, has 71 tackles this year to rank second on the team. He now has 298 career tackles in his four seasons. Teammate Ed McDonald should join the club next year. He already has 253 career stops and still has another year to go.

How does the tallest defensive lineman in Clemson's history and a first-team All-ACC player for 1989 describe himself? "I'm a pretty simple person."

Well that may be how Vance Hammond humbly characterizes himself, but any opposing offensive players would disagree. Going into the last game of the season, Vance Hammond is leading the Tigers in quarterback sacks and in tackle-for-loss yardage. He was also named Player-of-the-Game after the N.C. State game. In that game, he had 11 tackles, one of which was the sack that caused the fumble that gave Clemson its game-winning possession.

But the senior from Spartanburg, SC, is not completely satisfied with his performance. "I don't know what my potential is. I've had my best year since I've been here, but I don't like to put a cap on something. I like to see how far I can go with everything. When it runs out, then I'll leave it there."

Hammond always liked football, even as a small boy. His father had played for Wingate College and his brother Mark played at Newberry College, so football was a kind of family tradition. He also loved to watch George Rogers and Larry Czonka play football. But Hammond was not very coordinated. "I was so uncoordinated, I tripped over my own feet. Then my brother took me out to the garage one day and threw a jump rope in my hands. I jumped rope for as long as I could and he would time me. I did that until I could jump that rope and twist it and everything. I think it helped me more than anything that I had somebody there to show me something."

And his hard work paid off. Hammond went on to receive seven letters at Dormian High School, three in football and four in basketball. Then why did Hammond choose to play football on the collegiate level over basketball? Simple arithmetic. "I looked at it like this. There are five people that start on a basketball team. Well, I was pretty good at basketball and I was hearing from some major colleges. But then I started thinking. In football, there are 11 on offense and 11 on defense; that's 22 people, plus special teams. I can find a spot for me; I can play somewhere with all those slots."

Vance Hammond has found his place at Clemson. He has started the last 25 games that the Tigers have played. But there is one more game in the regular season which Hammond is eagerly waiting to start.

"The South Carolina game—that's the meca of all games. I hope to finish the season off strong in that game, maybe seven or eight sacks and three more tackles for loss," Hammond said with a grin. "It's the rivalry I used to watch when I was little. I always felt that if you could participate in that game, you were playing in the biggest game in South Carolina ... which it is."

"I'm very happy that I came to Clemson. Playing football has been good to my brother, and my father, my whole family. It has been a real family-oriented thing and that's special to me. I lost a grandfather my second year here and that really made me appreciate that I was so close to home so I could be with my family. It doesn't really hit you until something like that happens."

Hammond also lost a coach while he was at Clemson. "When Coach (Tom) Harper passed away, it hurt me. I could always talk to him about everything and he'd always have a joke or something to pick me up when I was down. He was a great guy. I miss him a lot."

During his junior year, Vance Hammond had to adapt to new coach Les Herrin. The transition went smoothly. So when another change came in January of 1990, Hammond was forced to adjust once again. Fortunately, Coach Herrin stayed on the Clemson coaching staff under Coach Ken Hatfield. "It made me feel more comfortable. We had a year under our belts. We had been to war together and gotten through it. This year I've had to do is play football."

After the South Carolina game is over, there are still two things which Hammond will have to look forward to. First is a possible bowl game. Hammond doesn't care which one, just preferably "one in Florida. It's warm, the great sunshine, and anytime you go to the beach in December that is an A+, no matter what."

Hammond is also looking forward to graduation in December. So what does this big guy do with his time during the day? Well, when he is not practicing football, or studying, one can find Vance keeping up with his soap operas. That's right. "My favorite is Y&R, The Young and the Restless. I like Victor Newman because he always gets what he wants."

If Vance Hammond gets what he wants, he'll be playing football in the next few years. "Maybe I'll be playing some celebrity golf tournaments, (even though) my handicap is that I lose a lot of balls."

He also wants to spend about six months in Australia. "I've always wanted to go there. It's still wild, still open, and there is still a lot of uncovered territory. It would be neat to see the different people and a different life style."

Hammond likes new adventures and he loves a challenge. That is why he chose to play defense over offense, besides the fact that defense is the best place to match his character and his talents. "Defense is more aggressive, more reaction, more spontaneous. Either you can shut somebody down or you can be the missing link to a big play. You could be the one to mess up. I just find that more enticing, interesting, enjoyable, and fun."

Vance Hammond will be ending one aspect of his life when he leaves Clemson this winter. But, at the same time, he will be taking with him everything he has learned both on and off the field. "I've had a great career here. I appreciate everything Clemson has done for me and my family for their support. I just hope I finish the year off with a bang. I've enjoyed it (my career at Clemson), it's been special and I will always remember it."

Behind the Jersey Athletic Center, between the Tiger baseball stadium and the football practice fields, is a large field that is used mainly as a driving range. Four or five golfers hitting drives are a familiar sight to those who work in the Athletic Department and to the Clemson athletes that spend so much time there. But last summer, the drives that were being practiced on that field were of the variety that score seven points, as it became the place where Tiger quarterbacks and receivers worked on honing their skills.

Perhaps the most frequent visitors to that field were tight end Stacy Fields and quarterback DeChane Cameron. Sometimes the pair would be on the field early in the morning, before the dew had even burned off the grass. Often they would be out in the cruel heat of the afternoon. Those familiar forms could be seen at dusk and even on the weekends, simply throwing the ball back and forth.

This diligent work was not part of a required off-season conditioning program, but something that Fields and Cameron and several other players decided to do among themselves, as they tried to build a winning team. "My personal goal for this season was to improve," says Fields. "I knew that DeChane was going to be the quarterback and I wanted him to have confidence in me. He also throws the ball pretty hard, so I wanted to get used to his passes. I practiced catching and running routes. I practiced catching the ball with my eyes closed. Sometimes, just DeChane and I would go out and throw for one-and-a-half or two hours until we got so tired and hot that we couldn't do it any more. Then I would go home and sit in front of the television for hours with a football in my hand, just handling it and throwing it up and catching it and getting a feel for it. I really disciplined myself to make sure I gave myself every possible advantage heading into the season."

The 6-3, 230-pound senior came to Clemson as an outside linebacker after playing most of his high school career as a signal caller. He red-shirted his first year and spent 1987 working as an outside linebacker and seeing action on the Tiger special teams. In the spring of 1988, however, the Clemson coaches felt that they needed help at the tight end slot, and Fields became the prime candidate.

"The last thing I wanted to do was to move to tight end," Fields laughs. "I had spent two years learning how to gain an advantage over a tight end and I didn't want those outside linebackers doing those things to me! But we had so many good linebackers and I wanted to contribute to the team more. The coaches thought I could be molded into a tight end and I guess I was the ideal size. I knew that was where I was needed so I just disciplined myself to the change."

Fields became the Tigers' starting tight end in 1989 and has held on to the starting job ever since. He was the top returning receiver heading into this season and is third on the team in receptions heading into the South Carolina game with 13. He has been Clemson's target on several key pass plays over the course of the season and has made gutsy receptions time and time again. The time and sweat spent out on the driving range has definitely paid off for Fields and the Tigers, as quarterback DeChane Cameron is the first to acknowledge.

"Stacy and I really got our timing down when we worked together this summer," says Cameron. "A lot of the passes he catches now during the games are the types we worked on. It's instinct now, I know where he's going to be on certain plays."

"He is a leader on and off the field. On the field, he leads by example. When things are going bad, he tries to get the guys going in the right direction. He's the type of guy we want to go to when things are getting rough. Off the field, he tries to get all the guys to concentrate on academics and let them know there is life after football. He may not be the flashiest person on the team and he may not be the player the public knows the most about, but he is definitely one of the key players on the team from our standpoint."

Fields has become well-known to Clemson football followers during his years at Clemson, but not as much for his exploits on the football field but his prowess in the classroom. He has been chosen to the All-ACC Academic football team each of the last two years and was the winner of the Gator Bowl Academic Award last season. He is also attending Clemson on the prestigious Jersey Academic Scholarship, making him, Steve Fuller, and Mike Eppeley the only Tiger football players ever to earn that honor.

"Ever since I was young, my parents made academics important to me," says the well-spoken Fields. "I've seen too many people put all of their future in the game of football and I've seen too many people be disappointed. The primary reason why I am here is to earn a degree, but the thing I love is the game of football. I really decided that I wanted to also be known for what I do on the field so I tried really hard this year to improve. That's what I worked on this summer. I think I've done a good job this year of improving. I guess I am the opposite of the normal stereotype of a football player, but people seem to think that since I do well in the classroom, I am not a good football player. People forget that I was recruited to play football.

"People also think that I spend all my time studying, but that is not true either. I have just disciplined myself enough so that I know when I have to study. Academics is just one dimension of my life and it is something that is going to take me where I need to go. But it is not the only thing that is important to me. I play around and like to have fun as much as any college student."

Fields is scheduled to graduate next May with a degree in industrial engineering. This spring, the first semester of college that he will spend without donning a football uniform, will most likely be filled with job interviews. Last summer, when he was not catching passes on the driving range, he worked with Dow Chemical, helping determine which procedures would bring optimum efficiency in their manufacturing processes.

Today, as Fields plays his last game in Death Valley, just a stone's throw away from the driving range where he worked all summer, he hopes to bring optimum efficiency to the Tiger offense and become a part of the winningest senior class in the history of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"Against North Carolina when I was captain, my adrenaline just started flowing and my emotions were so built up before the game, I felt like I almost wanted to cry. I kept thinking one more time in Death Valley and this is it. The feeling I have before a game is so hard to describe. You have to be here and be a part of it. There are so many people involved in making Clemson football what it is and it is special to so many people. I'm very proud of my academic accomplishments, but when I put on my uniform and get ready to run down the hill, I'm just proud to be a Clemson athlete."

Fields should become the second Clemson gridder in the last seven years to be chosen Academic All-ACC three times.
Last year, ARA served thousands of meals to people away from home. College students, hospital staffs, industrial personnel. Why, right here in Clemson, ARA serves over 15,000 breakfasts, lunches and dinners to students, parents and faculty daily.

But you may not know our full story. ARA chooses only the freshest and most wholesome ingredients. Bright, crisp vegetables. Ripe, firm fruits. The choicest meats and dairy products. President Max Lennon

In the four years Max Lennon has been president of Clemson, the university has become one of the nation's top 100 research universities (according to the National Science Foundation), launched its largest fundraising campaign ever, and entered its second century. But no single event during his administration may have been more important than this year's emphasis on strategic planning.

At Lennon's directive, during the past year Clemson faculty, staff and administrators have developed a blueprint for Clemson's future. As a result, Clemson enters the 1990's better prepared than ever to serve the state's needs as South Carolina's land-grant university.

The strategic plan calls for increased emphasis on undergraduate education, the environment, advanced materials, and biotechnology — areas Lennon considers critical to the state's future.

"There is an urgent need to develop a campus consensus about university priorities, and that's been the goal of our academic strategic planning process," Lennon said. "This year-long, faculty-driven process has defined four areas where we should devote greater resources, because they are areas in which we are convinced we can be a leader."

Evidence of the potential for leadership in the 1990s already is emerging, particularly in environmental sciences, to be the focus of a $10 million research initiative launched by the university in 1990. Lennon also sees potential for national leadership in innovative public-service programs, such as those in agriculture, engineering and other disciplines that enabled Clemson to help South Carolina recover from the devastation of Hurricane Hugo.

"Our goal is to become the model among land-grant universities by providing education with relevance," he said.

"As a land grant college, we have an obligation to rural development and to help eliminate the pockets of poverty and illiteracy that remain in this state. Education is the answer, and we have an obligation to make education accessible to all people."

Lennon came to Clemson from The Ohio State University, where he had been the vice-president for agricultural administration and executive dean for agriculture, home economics and natural resources. Lennon was also on the Ohio State Faculty Senate and was co-chairman of the Governor's Commission on Agriculture.

Previously, he had served as dean of the College of Agriculture, and as director of the Agriculture Experiment Station at the University of Missouri, and as associate dean and director of research in the College of Agricultural Sciences at Texas Tech University.

Lennon is a native of Columbus County, N.C., and earned his bachelor's degree and doctorate from N. C. State.

"Our goal is to become the model among land-grant universities by providing education with relevance."

The Clemson president has been active in a number of civic and professional groups, ranging from his local Rotary Club and the South Carolina Research Authority to the Board of Directors of EARTH in Costa Rica which aims through education and investments aims to improve third world agriculture.

In the fall of 1987, Lennon was named to the board of trustees of the Farm Foundation, a national organization devoted to improving research and education to benefit rural areas. He will serve a four-year term as the university representative on the board, which also includes farmers, legislators and executives of leading agricultural industries.

Lennon was appointed in 1988 to the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Policy Advisory Committee for Science and Education Research Grants Program by Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lyng, and was a keynote speaker at the AgBio tech 88 international conference in Washington.

Last year Lennon was appointed to chair a committee of top administrators and federal officials from 11 universities across the nation to work with congress on legislation relating to foreign assistance and international development. The committee is a project of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges.

Lennon is married to Ruth Carter Lennon and they have two children, Daniel Ray (28), and Robin (25).
Facing challenges head on: that might be Ken Hatfield’s most significant asset. It has helped him in all walks of life, but especially when it comes to football.

As a player, he helped Arkansas face every challenge in 1964, when the Razorbacks had an 11-0 season and won the national title. As an assistant coach at Tennessee and Florida, he moulded countless players into top-notch athletes who competed for Southeastern Conference titles, played in seven bowl games in a 10-year period, and ranked in the final top-20 five times.

As a head coach, he took a dormant Air Force program to a number-13 national ranking and a pair of bowl wins. He continued to meet the challenges at Arkansas, his alma mater, guiding the Razorbacks to back-to-back Southwest Conference titles, something that had not been done at Arkansas since Hatfield was a player.

And now he faces another challenge at Clemson. His charge is to continue Clemson’s contemporary excellence (only Nebraska and Miami had fewer losses in the decade of the eighties). But if Hatfield’s track record for meeting challenges is any indication, Clemson football is in good hands entering the 1990s.

That track record has included eight straight trips to post-season bowls, including major bowl appearances in three of the last four years. Hatfield is one of just four active coaches to take a team to a bowl each of the last eight years. He is in noteworthy company as the other members of that exclusive club are Tom Osborne (Nebraska), Pat Dye (Auburn) and Bobby Bowden (Florida State).

Hatfield has an overall record of 82-48-2 (.629), but he has won 77 percent of his games over the last seven seasons (65-19-1). At Arkansas, he posted a record of 55-17-1 over six seasons, a .760 winning percentage. That percentage is second best in Southwest Conference history as only Darrell Royal (Texas 1957-76) had a better percentage. Hatfield’s SWC winning percentage was higher than 11 former SWC coaches who are in the College Football Hall of Fame, including Bear Bryant, Frank Broyles, Jess Neely, and John Heisman.

The native of Helena, Arkansas, played in two bowl games with the Razorbacks, coached in seven post-season games as an assistant and has been the head coach in eight bowls. Five times he has coached a team to a top 15 final ranking in the AP poll, and he played on two other top 15 teams.

Hatfield-coached clubs have excelled offensively and defensively, but they have been particularly successful in rushing offense and defense. Each of his last eight teams have finished in the top 20 nationally in rushing offense, including five top 10 finishes. His 1983 Air Force team was second in the finer points of the game. It is one reason he was named the third best teaching coach in college football by Inside Sports Magazine last summer. Hatfield began his coaching career immediately after graduation. In the fall of 1965, he served as an assistant coach at Helena-West Helena High School in Arkansas. In 1966, he moved to West Point, where he served as freshman coach for two seasons. His 1967 club posted a 9-0 record.

After the two-year stint at Army, he served as an assistant coach at Tennessee for three years (1968-70). The Volunteers went to post-season bowls all three seasons (including two major bowls), won a conference title and ranked in the final top 20 of the AP poll all three seasons, including a number-four ranking in 1970.

In 1971, Hatfield began a seven-year stint at the University of Florida, spending four seasons as a defensive backfield coach and three as an offensive backfield mentor. Florida played in four bowl games during his career in Gainesville and two more Gator teams finished in the AP top 20, including the 1974 team that played Nebraska in the Sugar Bowl.

Hatfield became offensive coordinator at the Air Force Academy under current New York Giants Head Coach Bill Parcells in 1978. A year later, Parcells was wooed to the Big Apple and Hatfield became the Falcons’ head coach. The Air Force program had not had a winning season since 1973. But by his fourth season, Hatfield had an eight-game winner, led Air Force to its first-ever victory over Notre Dame, and had taken the Falcons to a post-season bowl for the first time since 1971.

In 1983, Hatfield was named national Coach-of-the-Year by the Football Coaches Association (Bobby Dodd Award) after leading Air Force to a 10-2 season that included wins over Notre Dame, Navy and a bowl victory over Mississippi. It was the Academy’s first-ever win over Notre Dame in South Bend.

The next year, Hatfield succeeded Lou Holtz at Arkansas, where he would take his alma mater to 55 wins in six seasons, six bowl appearances and four final top-15 rankings. His 1985 club finished with a 10-2 mark and number-12 national ranking, the Razorbacks' first Top 20 finish since 1982. Four times the Razorbacks rallied from fourth quarter deficits to gain victory.

The 1986 campaign was another year of success with highlight victories over a nationally ranked Texas A&M club and the Razorbacks' first win in 20 years at Texas. Arkansas advanced to the Orange Bowl and finished 15th in the final AP poll.

Arkansas won the 1988 and 1989 Southwest Conference Championship and the Razorbacks never finished lower than second in his six years at Fayetteville. He was named Southwest Conference Coach-of-the-Year in 1988 as he took the Razorbacks to the league title and a 1-0 start. Miami (FL) defeated Arkansas 18-16 in the Orange Bowl to stop the streak. Seven players off the 1988 club (all recruited by Hatfield) were drafted by the NFL, an Arkansas single draft record.

After last season's 10-2 ledger and second straight SWC championship, Hatfield was named Southwest Conference Coach-of-the-Decade by the Houston Post. Included in the victories was a triumph over a top-15 Houston team and Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware.

Hatfield has also had success off the field. A recent release by the CFA cited his 1989 Arkansas class for excellence in terms of graduation rate (over 75 percent), one of the top 10 figures in the nation.

"Football is a part of a young man's education. He learns about himself by playing football," states Hatfield. "It gives him a perspective of how to handle defeat as well as victory. Our success at Clemson will be reflected in the lives of our players after they leave Clemson University. We want to help make them the best people they can be. We want to maximize their potential. That is our challenge."

These statements were certainly watchwords for Hatfield as a player and these experiences have helped him in his relationship with his players. Hatfield played for three years at Arkansas (1962-64) and he was a starter on the National Championship team of 1964. A defensive back by trade, he earned his fame as the nation's top punt returner in 1963 and 1964. He also finished as the runner-up as a sophomore and is still the only college football player to finish in the top two in the nation in punt returns three straight seasons.

His most memorable play took place against Texas in 1964 when he raced 81 yards with a punt return for a touchdown in Arkansas' thrilling 14-13 victory. It was the key victory in the Razorbacks' championship season. Altogether, Hatfield scored five TDs via punt returns in his career, including an Arkansas record 95-yard return against Tulsa in 1963.

An accounting major who earned his diploma in the spring of 1965, Hatfield was an Academic All-American in 1964 and was the recipient of the Swartz Award, presented annually to the top student-athlete at Arkansas. The 1964 All-SWC selection was inducted into the Arkansas Sports Hall of Fame in 1989.

The success of The Campaign for Clemson depends on your annual gifts.

Clemson University closed the doors on its first one hundred years by making history — launching its most ambitious fund-raising effort ever. The Campaign for Clemson: A Partnership for Academic Excellence is a five-year, $62-million capital campaign that will propel the University into its next century with a solid base of support for academic scholarships, professorships, programs, equipment and new facilities.

A major goal of The Campaign for Clemson is to raise $6 million in annual, unrestricted giving through the Clemson Loyalty Fund. The University is relying even more than usual on its best and most loyal donors to continue and increase their annual giving. Otherwise, the pressing needs and priorities of scholarship, academic and library programs will go unmet. Please make your Loyalty Fund contribution to The Campaign for Clemson today and open the doors to Clemson’s future.

WALLY AKE is responsible for coaching Tiger inside linebackers, the same position he held at Arkansas in 1989. Ake also spent several years coaching the Razorback defensive line (1984-88), and was the defensive line coach at Air Force for three seasons (1981-83). He spent the 1980 season as a graduate assistant coach at Arkansas where he worked with tight ends and he was the linebacker coach at William & Mary in 1979. The Hawthorne, VA native was a three-year letterman in football at William & Mary and won all-conference honors as a junior and second-team honors during his senior season. He has coached three All-America players, Wayne Martin (DE, Arkansas), Tony Cherico (NG, Arkansas), and Chris Funk (DT, Air Force), and has coached one or more all-conference players each year of his coaching career. Arkansas ranked fourth in the nation in rushing defense in 1988, seventh in 1987, 13th in 1985, and 14th in 1984, seasons in which Ake was the defensive line coach. Responsible for recruiting Maryland, Virginia, parts of Georgia and Texas, and the Washington, D.C. areas, Ake earned his bachelor's degree in physical education from William & Mary in 1972.

LARRY BECKMAN works with the Tiger offensive line, concentrating mainly on the tackles and centers after spending six years as the offensive line coach at Arkansas (1984-89). He also spent several years at Air Force, where he was the offensive line coach from 1981-83 and worked with the tight ends and special teams in 1980. Previous to his stint at Air Force, Beckman was the offensive line coach at East Tennessee State (1976-78) and worked at his alma mater, the University of Florida, as a junior varsity assistant (1975) and as a graduate assistant in 1966. He was an all-Florida defensive end in high school at Miami Edison and lettered three years at offensive guard at Florida, where he was an All-Southeastern Conference choice and an honorable mention All-American in 1965. Beckman also served as captain of the 1965 Gator squad. Since 1982, he has coached in eight straight bowl games and Arkansas ranked in the top-20 in the nation in rushing all six years he coached the offensive line. Beckman earned his bachelor's degree in physical education from Florida in 1966 and his master's in the same field in 1967. His recruiting territory includes Alabama, and parts of Texas and Florida.

LARRY BRINSON, a former NFL player, is in charge of the Tigers' young group of running backs as well as recruiting the Atlanta, GA, and Miami, FL, areas, and parts of Texas. The Miami, FL, native has spent the past six years as the running back coach at Arkansas (1984-89) and also spent a year working with that group at Air Force (1983). Brinson was a four-year letterman at the University of Florida as a running back before entering the professional ranks. He rushed for 1,105 career yards and nine touchdowns with the Gators before spending three seasons with the Dallas Cowboys, where he was a member of the 1977 and 1978 Super Bowl teams. Statistically with the Cowboys, Brinson rushed for 124 yards on 26 attempts and gaining 502 yards on 23 kickoff returns. Brinson also spent two years (1980-81) with the Seattle Seahawks before a knee injury ended his playing career. He earned his bachelor's degree in physical education from Florida in 1983. Brinson has participated in 13 different bowl games as either a player or coach and Arkansas ranked in the top-20 in the nation in rushing all six years he served as an assistant.

LES HERRIN is in the second season of his second stint with the Clemson program after coaching at North Carolina (1988) and East Carolina (1985-87). Responsible for coaching the defensive line and recruiting in South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, Herrin was the Tiger inside linebacker coach from 1981-84. Before coming to Clemson for the 1981 national championship season, Herrin also spent a year as the defensive coordinator at Appalachian State (1980). A Waycross, GA native, Herrin earned his bachelor's and master's degree from Western Carolina where he was a four-year letterman in football and a team captain. During his first two years at Clemson, the Tigers ranked in the top 10 in scoring and rushing defense. Herrin also coached ACC MVP Jeff Davis, who went on to be captain of the Tampa Bay Bucs and 1989 All-Pro Johnny Rembert of the New England Patriots. Clemson ranked in the top-10 in scoring and rushing defense his first two years at Clemson and last season ranked fifth in the nation in scoring, rushing, and total defense.

ROGER HINSHAW is responsible for coaching the Tigers' talented group of outside linebackers, a position he previously held at Arkansas (1984-89) and Air Force (1983). Hinshaw also worked as the defensive coordinator at Livingston University (1979-82) and as a graduate assistant at Appalachian State (1974). Hinshaw earned his bachelor's degree in Health and Physical Education from Appalachian State in 1974, where he played defensive back for the Mountaineers and led the team in interceptions as a senior. He coached Kerry Owens, currently with the Cleveland Browns, while at Arkansas, where the Razorbacks ranked in the top 20 in the nation in rushing defense four of his six years. Hinshaw's recruiting responsibilities include the state of Louisiana, and parts of North Carolina and South Carolina.
RICK STOCKSTILL is in his second season with the Tigers after joining the Clemson coaching staff in February of 1989. Stockstill came to Clemson from the University of Central Florida, where he spent four years as assistant head coach and wide receiver coach (1985-89). Stockstill's responsibilities at Clemson include coaching the Tiger quarterbacks and recruiting sections of South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. Prior to his stay at Central Florida, Stockstill spent two seasons as offensive coordinator and quarterback coach at Bethune-Cookman (1983-84). The Sidney, OH, native earned three letters in football from Florida State University, where he quarterbacked the Seminoles to consecutive Orange Bowl appearances after the 1979 and 1980 seasons. Stockstill was also a 1980 and 1981 All-Southern Independent and All-Metro Conference performer for FSU. He received his bachelor's degree in physical education from Florida State in 1982, where he was an honorable mention All-American. FSU was ranked sixth nationally in 1979 and fifth in 1980. In his first season with the Tiger coaching staff as quarterbacks coach, Clemson set a school record for completion percentage (60%).

BOB TROT'T serves as the Tigers' defensive coordinator in addition to coaching the defense's defensive secondary. He spent the 1989 season as the defensive coordinator at Arkansas, where he was also the defensive back coach from 1984 to 1988. Prior to working with the Razorbacks, Trott was the defensive back coach at Air Force for three seasons (1981-83), and worked with the Falcon outside linebackers for three seasons (1978-80). He was also a part-time assistant coach at North Carolina in 1976 and 1977. Trott was a three-year letterman at the University of North Carolina and won academic All-ACC honors as a senior. He has coached five professional players: Kevin Wyatt (Miami), Greg Lasker (N.Y. Giants), Steve Atwater (Denver), Anthony Cooney and Richard Brothers (Chicago). Ninety-five percent of the players he coached at Arkansas received their degrees. Trott earned his bachelor's degree in business from North Carolina in 1976 and his master's in teaching in 1982. He is responsible for recruiting Tennessee, and areas in North Carolina and South Carolina.

LARRY VAN DER HEYDEN has been at Clemson longer than any other coach on the 1990 staff after joining the Tigers on January 5, 1979. The Brazil, Iowa native coaches the offensive line and is in his first season as the Tigers' offensive coordinator. He came to Clemson after coaching at Memphis State (1975-78), where he served as offensive coordinator, Virginia (1974-75), East Carolina (1973-74), Indiana State (1969-73), and Drake University (1968-69). Van Der Heyden coached the defensive line at his alma mater, Iowa State, from 1965 to 1967, and served as a graduate assistant coach there in 1964. He is a member of the all-time Iowa State team, selected by former players and coaches, and was a member of the Big Eight all-conference team and the captain of the baseball team in 1961. He also won the Reuben Miller Award for Most Valuable Player on and off the field at Iowa State that same year. Van Der Heyden earned three letters in both football and baseball from Iowa State and received a bachelor's degree in physical education (1962) and a master's degree in education (1968) from the same institution. He has coached three All-America guards over the last seven years at Clemson and for a five-year period (1983-87), one of his guards was chosen All-ACC. Clemson has ranked in the top-20 in the nation in rushing offense six of the last seven years while Van Der Heyden has been the offensive line coach. His recruiting areas include South Carolina, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Tennessee.

RICHARD WILSON works with the Tiger wide receivers in addition to recruiting the Columbia and Charleston, SC, areas, parts of Texas, and all junior colleges. He comes to Clemson after a year as the receiver coach at Arkansas (1989) and two seasons at The Citadel, where he worked with the wide receivers (1988) and the defensive secondary (1987). He spent the 1986 season as a volunteer coach and head junior varsity coach at Missouri, where he worked as a graduate assistant in 1984 and 1985. The Hope, AR, native played one year at Central Arkansas for the National Championship team and spent three years as a player at Arkansas, where he saw action in the secondary and on special teams and played on the 1980 Sugar Bowl team. He coached two professional players while at Missouri. Eric McMillan (N.Y. Jets) and Robert Delphino (L.A. Rams) and Arkansas was 11th in the nation in total offense his only year with the Razorbacks. Wilson earned a bachelor's degree in education from Arkansas in 1981 and received a master's in sports management from Missouri in 1985.

Clemson's Alumni Center
Isn't What It Used To Be...
It's Better!

We've remodeled, and we're open before and after each home football game. Our new look is comfortable, updated and available for your enjoyment.

We also have a new mobile Alumni Center. Our Alumni Association van is your Alumni "on the road" headquarters. You'll find the van at away football games, Clemson Club meetings and near the football stadium at home games. The van brings Clemson to you wherever you are.

We may look different, but we're still dedicated to serving, informing and involving you in the ongoing life of Clemson University.

We look different . . . both on campus and on the road . . . and we're looking for you.

It takes drive, commitment, and ability to be a leader. That's what brought Sanders Bros., Inc. to the front. And that's what will keep us there.
In addition to the success enjoyed by the 12th-ranked 1989 football squad, nine other Clemson sports ranked in the final top 25 nationally for the 1989-90 sports year. Clemson was the only school in the nation that won a bowl game, an NCAA Tournament basketball game and an NCAA tournament baseball game in the 1989-90 year. It marked the second straight year that Clemson has pulled off this triple play. Clemson and Illinois were the only schools in the nation to participate in all three of those postseason events.

Three Tiger sports programs won conference championships as the men's indoor and outdoor track teams won the ACC Championship and the Tiger golf squad tied for first in the conference. The Tigers boasted 82 first-team All-ACC players last year, a new school record, and 20 Clemson athletes won All-America honors.

Both of Clemson's basketball teams advanced to the Sweet 16 of their respective NCAA tournaments. Clemson was one of only three programs to have both teams in the Sweet 16. Clemson also had two conference MVPs in spring sports as centerfielder Brian Kowitz won the honor in baseball and James Trapp was the MVP of the outdoor track season. Philip Greyling was the Tigers' third conference MVP, winning honors for indoor track.

Three Clemson coaches were named ACC Coach-of-the-Year in four different sports, as Bob Pollock won honors for the indoor and outdoor track seasons, along with Jim Davis (women's basketball) and Cliff Ellis (men's basketball).

THE SKY'S THE LIMIT FOR AIR FORCE ROTC CADETS.

No matter what your plans for a career, there's a way to give them even greater potential. Join Air Force ROTC in college. The rest is summed up in one word: opportunity...

Opportunities to apply for scholarships that will help you pay for college. Opportunities to expand your horizons in different technical areas. Opportunities to learn leadership skills that will enhance your whole career.

From there, a vast wealth of opportunities continues to open for those who seek an outstanding career.

When it comes to the excitement of Atlantic Coast Conference Football, the next best thing to being there in person is watching our complete, comprehensive and state of the art production on television.

For the seventh consecutive year, JP Sports brings you the up-close action of twelve ACC games. No wonder ACC Football is the most watched regional collegiate TV network in the U.S.

In addition to ACC Football, look for other JP Sports programming, such as ACC Basketball, SEC Basketball and Great American Independent Football, a coalition of some of the strongest independent football teams in the country, just to name a few.

Just clip this ACC schedule and check local listings for the station carrying the games you want to see.

Then, if you don't get tickets to the game, you can get great reception at home.

Just before Jess Neely left for Rice University, he gave Clemson a message. “Don’t ever let them talk you into building a big stadium,” he said. “Put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That’s all you’ll ever need.”

Instead of following Coach Neely’s advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing—there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work: clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally, on September 19, 1942, Clemson Memorial Stadium opened with the Tiger football team thrashing Presbyterian College, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow... and grow and grow.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40’s, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron moved on to be a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young football player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, however, the boy was swollen to twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the building of the stadium including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete was being poured. The story claims the tobacco is still there.

Howard says that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. “About 40 people and I laid the sod on the field,” he says. “After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through. I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more weeks’ pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through.”

“After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons.”

Howard says that on the day of the first game in the stadium, “the gates were hung at 1:00 and we played at 2:00.” But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,568 West end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone “Green Grass” section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the stadium as crowds swelled—the first one in 1978 and the second in 1983. This increased capacity to approximately 80,000 which makes it one of the 10 largest on-campus stadiums in the country.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as “Death Valley.” It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian College coach, Lonnie McMillian. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillian said the place was like Death Valley.

A few years later, the name stuck.

On November 16, 1974 the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Athletic Director Bobby Robinson says that Memorial Stadium has many features which make it a top facility. “One thing that makes it so good is the number of sideline seats,” he says. “We don’t think there is a bad seat in the house. “We also have outstanding dressing rooms, press facilities, and ample parking nearby. A unique feature of the stadium is the number of private boxes.”

Rick Brewer, an official in the University athletic ticket office says that despite the stadium’s large size, there are still season ticket problems. “When the second upper deck was built, we thought it would take care of everything,” he said. “To our dismay, it hasn’t. We’ve filled the upper decks and have moved season ticket holders into the end zone, which are not permanent seats.”

Despite the apparent ticket crunch, Robinson says there are no immediate plans to further expand the stadium. “Before we expand we’ll have to show over an extended length of time—we’ve had five to seven years— that we can sell out what we have now.” he said. “We don’t want supply to greatly exceed demand. Even though it’s hard to get tickets now, we still get people in our stadium. The ticket means more if its harder to get.”

But, if Memorial Stadium is expanded again and capacity is pushed closer to 100,000, there will be room for the construction over the west stands, enclosing that end like a horse-shoe.

Luckily, the stadium wasn’t built behind the Y.

Going into today's game, junior linebacker Ed McDaniel is on track to break the century mark in total tackles for the second time in his career.
After 10 games this season, junior place kicker Chris Gardocki ranks fourth in the nation in punting and sixth in field goals per game.
Redshirt freshman Brentson Buckner picked up his first career sack in Clemson's 34-3 victory over the University of Georgia.
Clemson Football can be heard on the Clemson Sports Network, one of the largest networks in the country.

It takes all the extras to build a winning team.

Reaching goals requires teamwork and extra effort. SCE&G's goal is to make the energy we all use go further in the 90s. So we've put together an all-star lineup of Energy Extra products and services to help you get the most out of your energy dollar.

Our team of energy-saving programs includes our Good Cents home building program and low interest loans for weatherization. Both work to heat and cool your home more efficiently. Our Great Appliance Trade-Up assists you with the cost of a new, high-efficiency heat pump or air conditioner. And our bright, energy-efficient outdoor lighting helps protect your home after dark.

SCE&G's team of experts also helps residential customers, businesses and industries identify ways to conserve energy and maintain productivity.

Through the use of Energy Extras, you'll help conserve energy resources and reduce the need to build new electric generating plants.

Join our team effort to help manage future energy use. Call toll-free, 1-800-868-0147, or visit your local SCE&G office and put our all-star team of Energy Extras to work for you.

Clemson's All-Around Sports Program

By Tim Bourret

Clemson is known around the country for its excellence in football. Clemson had the fifth best winning percentage in the nation over the decade of the eighties and Clemson's 38 wins in the last four years is also the fifth highest victory total in the nation. Top 20 seasons and bowl wins have been prominent in Clemson history.

But Clemson athletics have been outstanding as an all-around program, not just in gridiron conquests. The following are some facts and figures concerning every sport at Clemson.

Clemson's all-around sports program has been ranked in the top 15 in the nation in nine of the last 12 years, including a third-place finish in 1979-80 and sixth-place in 1988-89.

Clemson won 45 men's ACC championships in the 1980s, more than any other school.

Twice Clemson's men's basketball team has won the ACC regular season title in 1989-90 and has been to the NCAA tournament three of the last four years. Coach Cliff Ellis has been ACC Coach of the Year twice in the last four years.

Clemson has had more ACC baseball championships than any other school and has finished in the top 25 of the final poll 14 times since 1958.

The Clemson soccer team has won the national championship in 1987 and 1984 and has been in the final top 20 17 times in the last 19 years. Coach I.M. Ibrahim is one of the top five winningest coaches in the history of the game.

Clemson's men's tennis program has been to the NCAA tournament and finished in the top 15 of the final poll 11 of the last 12 years. Seven former Tigers are currently on the pro tennis tour. Chuck Kriese was national Coach of the Year in 1981, Clemson's first national Coach of the Year.

Clemson's men's track and cross country program won five ACC titles between 1987 and 1989 and had four top 25 finishes in this time.

The Lady Tiger cross country program has finished in the top 20 nine straight years, something only one other school in the nation can claim.

Clemson's volleyball program has won at least 20 matches four straight years and head coach Linda White became the first Lady Tiger volleyball coach to win 100 matches. The program has had two academic All-Americans within the last three years.

Clemson's wrestling team has had three top 30 team finishes within the last five years and has had 13 straight winning seasons. Noel Loban became Clemson's first NCAA champion in any sport when he won the 190-pound division in 1980.

Clemson's women's swimming team had four straight top 10 finishes between 1985-89 and won three ACC regular season and team championships during that time.

Coach Bob Boettner has won six ACC Coach of the Year awards, more than any other Clemson coach in history. The men's swimming program has had an ACC regular season championship and a conference meet championship within the last five years.

Clemson's women's basketball team has been to the NCAA tournament and won 20 games each of the last three years. Barbara Kennedy still ranks as the ACC's career scoring leader.

Clemson's women's tennis program has 11 top 20 national finishes in the last 14 years. Clemson won the ACC tournament six straight seasons between 1982 and 1987.

James Trapp was named the ACC's MVP of the 1990 outdoor meet. Besides running track, Trapp is also a member of Clemson football's special teams.

FALL 1990 SELECTIONS

In today’s world of high pressure collegiate athletics, where a last second field goal can be worth $4 million dollars, it is refreshing to hear a college football coach tell you how thankful he is that someone taught him to look beyond the honors, awards and recognition. One such man who places more emphasis on the player as an individual is Clemson defensive line coach Les Herrin.

“I really don’t care if I have any All-Americans, or how many All-ACC players I have,” said Herrin. “I strive for them to be a ‘total person’, because if they can be that ‘total person’, athletically, academically, socially and mentally, usually they can be a pretty darn good football player. That is the way I was brought up and I believe it was the best for me, so I try to pass it along to my players, just like I do for my son.”

Herrin developed this basic philosophy when he was growing up in Waycross, GA where he was a three sport standout for Waycross High School. Athletics were a big part of his life, but his family was responsible for teaching him this ‘total person’ philosophy.

“The first time I played in an organized athletic event, I knew I wanted to be a coach. To be honest, that is the one reason that I stayed in school. At the time, school was not important to me. But I knew if I wanted to be a coach, I needed to at least graduate from high school. I knew that you had to have an education to be involved in athletics and along with my family, the two combined to motivate me the most.”

Following his prep days at Waycross, he was convinced that he could take his athletic, as well as his academic abilities on to Western Carolina. There, he was named the defensive MVP his junior season and team MVP his senior season. As Herrin admits, his academics were not the top priority on his list once more, but his life as a football player gave him that extra little to , strive to do his best.

“Probably the biggest drawback when I was growing up was that I did not spend much time studying as I should have done at the time. I could have been a much better student in college. Now I realize that and I try to pass that along to my players. But as my parents would always tell me, if you keep on pushing and trying, there will be an opportunity for you to succeed. There is no other way that I would have had the opportunity to see the places that I have seen or meet the people that I have met without athletics. That is why I just appreciate all the motivation and backing that my family gave me.”

“The bottom line is my family is the most important thing in my life. It is just like when I was in college, my wife Shirley was the one who really helped me through my last couple of years at Western Carolina. She was the driving force and the motivation that kept me going and eventually gave me the opportunity to receive an undergraduate and master’s degree.”

Herrin’s wife, Shirley, also received her master’s degree from Western Carolina and is currently teaching first grade at Morrison Annex, devoting as much time to her students as coach Herrin does with his players.

“Shirley spends a lot of time being the best teacher she can be, just like I spend a great deal of time trying to be the best coach I can be. We both have similar jobs in as much as both of us have the opportunity to influence the lives of others. She has in the palm of her hands the lives of 28 students. I know that she is going to try to help those young kids make the right decisions down the road.”

The other individual in Herrin’s life that is very special to him is his son Deke. Deke plays football, basketball and baseball for Edwards Junior High School. It would be easy for Herrin to push his son into athletics with thoughts of Deke becoming a star, but both Les and his wife Shirley have other ideas.

“Both his mother and I support him in his endeavors. If it is learning how to play the piano or doing anything else, I want just him to be able to be involved in outside activities. There is an incredible amount of knowledge that can be learned from extracurricular activities. If he is going to take the time to participate in both outside activities as well as school, he is going to work both. There is no substitute for work. If you have a good work attitude, you are going to be successful. I am not just talking in the sports world, I am talking about life in general.

“It is just like in football, when you get knocked down, you have to get back up. I think it happens in life all the time. There are going to be times when things don’t always go your way, but you need to go right back at it. You are not going to win every battle. If you have a great attitude and you give your best, you are going to make it in this world.”

The same philosophies which Herrin shares with his son, he shares with his players as well.

“I want all of my players to do well, but not because I coach them. That has nothing to do with it. I look at my players and tell them the same things I tell my son. No, sometimes I am a little bit tougher with the players, but the point is the same. I want them to end up being successful in life. That is the bottom line. When those guys turn around and look at me when they are 25 or 35, I want them to say that I tried to do the best I could for them and that I was fair with them. And that I strived for them to be the best they could be, on or off the field. That is my goal in life. “

It is evident that athletics, especially football, has influenced the life of Les Herrin, but in turn Les Herrin is about so much more than just football.

Many things will probably be going through the minds of Tiger seniors today as they arrive to take on the guys in garnet and black who have invaded their valley. Some will be thinking about becoming the winningest class in the history of the Atlantic Coast Conference. Others will remember that this will be the last time they will ever make that celebrated trek down the famous hill. And each senior will undoubtedly be thinking of each and every thing he has to do to make sure the Tigers end up on top when the last second clicks off the clock today. But senior defensive back and special teams demon Mitch Belton will probably be thinking about another South Carolina football game five years ago that he never made it to, and how not making it to that game may be the reason he is wearing orange today.

It was autumn of 1985 and Belton was halfway through his senior football season at Richland Northeast High School in Columbia, S.C. He was beginning to think about the future and the possibility of continuing to play the sport he loved on a higher level. The University of South Carolina had shown interest in Belton and he had planned to make an official visit there later in the season.

One Saturday, Belton and a couple of buddies got their hands on some tickets to a Gamecock football game and were on the way to the stadium where Belton thought he may one day play when the car they were driving ran hot. After waiting a while for the engine to cool, Belton got out to take the radiator cap off. Instead, the cap exploded off, sending scalding water and antifreeze showering onto Belton's face and arm. Suddenly Belton's future changed dramatically as he was faced with the task of healing from second and third degree burns.

"I wasn't even thinking about football for a long time after the accident," Belton remembers. "I got real sick and lost a lot of weight. My arm and face were covered with blisters and I had bandages around my face and ear. I was too sick to go to school for a long time and I had to go have the burns cleaned every day to make sure there was no infection. It was really painful to even try to move my arm, so the thought of trying to play football didn't come up too much."

By the spring of 1986, the burns had healed enough for Belton to get back to school and concentrate on the books. Although football seemed to be out of the picture, college was not. He decided to come to Clemson and was even given an academic scholarship. He arrived when the rest of the student body arrived, without the worry of two-a-day practices. He continued to love the game of football, but this time from a spectator's standpoint, as he attended all of the Clemson games in 1986.

But being a fan just wasn't quite enough for Belton, so in the spring of 1987, he decided to give football one more shot, as a walk-on. "I wasn't in any kind of shape after being sick and then not playing football for so long, but I just wanted to play," he says. "I found out pretty quickly that this walk-on business is some tough stuff. It's just like going to a party without an invitation. A walk-on has to try three times harder and really go the extra distance to be able to play. I was determined to play."

And Belton did play. After two excellent spring outings, he impressed the Clemson coaches enough to earn a scholarship. By 1988, he had become a vital member of the Clemson special teams, playing in all 12 games for the 1988 ACC Champions. Last season, the former spectator went that extra distance by making his mark in the Clemson record books, setting the new single season record for blocked punts with three, including two in one quarter of play versus Maryland.

Belton has also gone the extra distance by working extra hard in the Tiger strength training room. His bench press mark of 335-pounds, 770-pound leg sled mark, and 275 power clean are among the top-three for Tiger DBs. And only three players on the entire Clemson squad boast a better power ratio, which measures pound-for-pound strength.

"I'm not fast, but I'm quick on my feet. I'm not smooth, but I will hit somebody hard. I'm not great at technique, but I get the job done. Working on my strength has helped me in those areas and have helped make me a better football player."

The 5-8, 182-pound Belton has used those attributes to become known as an aggressive member of the Tiger special teams. "I don't understand why people don't get more excited about special teams," Belton says with vehemence. "The special teams have so much to do with the game. If you do a great job, you back 'em up and give your defense an advantage. If you don't do a great job, you give the other team good field position and risk giving up points. It changes the whole outlook of the game."

Belton says he has learned a lot about adversity since that day five years ago when his future changed because of an overheated car. "It was tough for me to come back and play football, but I did it and I accomplished what I wanted to accomplish. I didn't want to just be on the team, I wanted to play. But I didn't do it by myself, I had a lot of support and a lot of help. I don't know if I would have made it without Coach Barney Farrar's help. Barney got me fired up the first time I met him and helped me push myself on the field and in the weight room. He's always been there to talk to me about things that didn't have anything to do with football too."

Just as it was five years ago, Belton's future is a bit up in the air right now. He does know that he will graduate with a degree in management in just a little over a month. Right now, he is contemplating coming back to school for an MBA or maybe even trying his hand at coaching. And perhaps, as he stands next to Howard's Rock waiting to run down the hill, he will be thinking about how not making it to a South Carolina game five years ago has made making it to this one even better.

In today’s unpredictable and everchanging world, it is comforting to know that there are still some things that one can count on. For example, the sun will rise and set tomorrow, death and taxes, and the Clemson Tigers will field one of the top defenses in the country year in and year out. As for the latter, many preseason prognosticators, including the Sporting News, named Clemson’s linebackers (inside and outside) as the best in the nation, and up to this point, they have not disappointed.

Going into today’s game with the University of South Carolina, the Clemson Tiger defense leads the nation in total defense, allowing just 213.8 yards per game. Clemson is also second in that nation in scoring defense, first in rushing defense and 8th in pass defense. No Clemson team has ever finished the season ranked in the top 10 in all four categories. What is more impressive is that the Clemson defense has dominated throughout the entire game. The Tiger defense has allowed just one touchdown by the opponent offense in the fourth period in 31 opponent possessions and that was just a 13-yard drive. Well behind every great group of linebackers must stand a great coach.

Clemson’s Wally Ake is just that person. Coach Ake is responsible for coaching the Tiger inside linebackers, the same position he held at Arkansas in 1989. Ake, a native of Hawthorne, Virginia, may be a new face in Tigertown, but he is a veteran when it comes to coaching defenses. For the record, Ake has coached in nine bowl games, with the hopes of a 10th later this season. He also was a three-year letterwinner at William & Mary and earned All-Southern Conference honors as well. He has also coached the likes of three All-America players.

“Coaching is something that I have wanted to do since college,” said Ake. “I knew in college that I was not the type player who would be a pro prospect, so I set my sights on the next best thing, the coaching ranks.”

Wally Ake and Clemson head football coach Ken Hatfield have been together now for nine years. So how did these two men meet?

“I went down to a convention at a hotel in Miami where I knew Coach Hatfield would be. I met him in the lobby and we spoke for about 30 minutes. About a month later, he gave me a call and informed me that a position had just come available and asked me if I would be interested. Without any hesitation I said yes, and as the saying goes, the rest is history.”

“Wally and I have been together for nine years and our defense has consistently ranked in the top 10 nationally,” said Coach Hatfield. “I think that fact says a lot about Wally Ake.”

As far as coaching philosophies go, Ake knows how to get the most from his players. “We have an excellent group of linebackers here at Clemson,” said Ake.

It is obvious that Ake has some talented individuals to work with as his two starters, Ed McDaniel and Doug Brewster are ranked as two of the top three tacklers on the team this season. McDaniel has 87 stops, including 10 for lost yardage and Brewster has 71, including six for lost yardage.

“Their overall speed is tremendous, and that makes things a little bit easier,” continues Ake. “At Clemson the team speed enables us to do more of the things that we would like to do, even things we could not do at Arkansas. However it still takes a lot of hard work and concentration. I have learned that you can’t make people do something that they don’t want to do. You have to help each player and put his best interest first. I try to motivate the guys in a positive way and have them seek perfection only in the things which they have control over. The greatest thrill for me as a coach is not so much any individual performance, but the overall development and improvement week in and week out of the linebackers. Most of all, I have to earn the respect and trust of my players.”

Up to this point in the season, it would appear that Ake has done just that. Inside linebacker Doug Brewster says of his coach, “He’s a really nice guy and has really helped improve my overall game.” Teammate Kenzil Jackson concurs with Brewster saying, “He is like a father to us, and he wants all of us to do well, not just a few of us.”

It has been quite a busy year for Wally Ake. “Packing up and moving the family to a new place is never easy, however the transition from Arkansas to Clemson has gone very smoothly.” For wife Chris and four year old son Aaron, the move eastward represents a homecoming of sorts. “Chris is from Pennsylvania while I am from Virginia, so we are now closer to our families. As for my son, he knows how impressive the Tigers can be. Clemson is a great place too because the whole atmosphere here is electrifying, plus 80,000 fans in the stands, game in and game out just adds to the excitement. Death Valley is an awesome stadium.”

From the looks of things to this point in the season, it would appear that coach Ake and his linebackers have a successful marriage. This of course will come as bad news for Clemson opponents, but great news for the Tiger faithful.
Senior Spotlights

By Chris Metzler and Sanford Rogers

REGGIE DEMPS
A native of Orlando, Florida, Reggie Demps was recruited as a tailback by Clemson. Demps, a graduate of Oak Ridge High School, gained 1,018 yards, just seven yards short of a school record, even though he missed two games due to injury. Due to his accomplishments he was named to the “Sweet 16” in Florida and played in the Georgia-Florida All-Star game. He was also an outstanding sprinter in track and was an all-state selection.

During the 1988 season at Clemson he was switched to a defensive back. In 1989, he returned to his familiar position at tailback and played against Wake Forest and South Carolina. Entering the 1990 season he found himself at home again in the offensive backfield for Clemson. A true power back, Demps was the first Clemson running back to bench press 400 pounds. This season Demps has seen action in the Appalachian State and Long Beach State games and has carried the ball three times for 14 yards.

ROBIN EAVES
A reserve fullback, Robin Eaves hails from Linganore, Maryland where he was named all-county in football. While attending Linganore High School he lettered twice in football and three times in track.

In 1989, Eaves saw action in the last three games of the regular season versus Wake Forest, North Carolina, and South Carolina. During the three contests, Eaves carried the ball three times for 13 yards, including a seven yard run versus Wake Forest. Going into the 1990 season, he had the second-best leg-sled mark among running backs at 815 pounds. He has a +9” flexibility mark, meaning he can sit flat on the floor and reach that far past his feet, the top mark for a Tiger fullback.

This past spring he saw a limited amount of action in scrimmages due to injury. Fully recovered, Eaves played in the 1990 Appalachian State game and carried the ball once for three yards. Eaves is majoring in parks, recreation and tourism management and is expected to graduate this spring.

REGGIE LAWRENCE
Reggie Lawrence, a two year letterman at Clemson, ended the 1989 season playing in the last five games, including the Mazda Gator Bowl versus West Virginia. In 104 plays from scrimmage, Lawrence carried the ball 36 times for 140 yards, including touchdowns versus Wake Forest and North Carolina. He has compiled 177 yards in 54 attempts at Clemson in two years for a 3.3 yard average per carry. One of the most memorable plays in Lawrence’s career was a pass play versus South Carolina in 1989 in which he was not the recipient, but the passer. In what turned out to be the longest pass in the game, Lawrence connected with Gary Cooper for a 42 yard gain.

This past spring Lawrence injured his shoulder which limited him to 17 carries for 41 yards in five scrimmages. Entering the 1990 season he led all tailbacks in the 40-yard dash time and vertical jump. In the Appalachian State game this season Lawrence carried the ball three times for six yards.

CHUCK LYNCH
Chuck Lynch is a punter that plays behind one of the best in the country. He is listed as the second team punter, a tough position to move up in when you are playing behind All-America candidate Chris Gardock.

Lynch came to Clemson from Chestnut Hill Academy in Philadelphia where he earned four letters in football, three in baseball, four in golf and one in basketball. His senior season he received all-league honors and finished his career listed as the third best punter in the state according to the Pittsburgh Press.

One of Lynch’s favorite hobbies has been the game of golf and with a five-handicap, he is looking into a career in the golf marketing business. He is on schedule to graduate this spring with a degree in Spanish and international marketing.

Lawrence rushed for 43 yards in 11 attempts and scored a touchdown on a two-yard run at North Carolina.
ERIC MADER
Eric Mader is a walk-on outside linebacker from Plymouth, Wisconsin. Mader is the third walk-on from Plymouth to play at Clemson in the last 10 years.

Due to his hard work in the spring practice in 1988, he won the Carlton Box Walk-On Award for the defense. During the 1988 season, Mader saw action in one game and in 1989 he played in seven games including six plays against West Virginia in the 1989 Mazda Gator Bowl. During spring scrimmages this year he had 10 tackles including a 10-yard sack and another tackle for a loss. Due to his performance he found himself third on the depth chart. As an outside linebacker, Mader finds himself behind Butkus Award finalist Levon Kirkland and the talented Wayne Simmons.

He graduated from Plymouth High where he won all-conference honors two years for football. Mader lettered in track and football four years and once in wrestling.

DANNY SIZER
This defensive tackle from Fletcher, North Carolina has played in nine games for the Tigers this season, tallying five tackles, including a tackle for loss against N.C. State.

Sizer, a two-year Tiger letterman, also came away with a quarterback pressure in Clemson's win over Wake Forest. Sizer has the top power-clean figure on the Clemson team with a 339 total, the best by a Tiger defensive lineman since 1985. In 1989, Sizer was a reserve defensive tackle, and saw action in nine games and was in for 83 snaps. He participated in a season high 16 plays in the win over Wake Forest. During the spring workouts this year, Sizer came away with 15 tackles, including a six-yard tackle for loss.

Sizer played for coach Carrol Wright at West Henderson High where he received prep honorable mention All-America honors and was tabbed as Western Carolina's Lineman of the Year his senior season. Sizer is majoring in management.

ROBBIE SPECTOR
A two-year Tiger letterwinner from Calhoun, Georgia, Spector has spent the season as a backup to Terry Smith and Doug Thomas at the wide receiver position. Although he has not caught a pass this year, he has played in seven of Clemson's 10 games this season. Going into the 1990 campaign, Spector had caught two passes for 33 yards. In 1989, he played in every game, but the Florida State, Duke and N.C. State contests as he played backup to Gary Cooper and Doug Thomas. During the spring workouts of 1990, Spector caught eight passes for 119 yards.

Spector also has deceiving speed as he has been clocked at 4.38 in the 40-yard dash, the fourth best time on the Clemson team. He is majoring in industrial management, expecting to graduate this spring.

BRUCE TAYLOR
Taylor came to Tigertown after a tremendous high school career in which he lettered in football, basketball, and wrestling at Cedar Shoals High School. Taylor was named most valuable player in both football and basketball his senior season. He has spent his career in the Clemson receiving ranks, spending time at both the tight end and wide receiver positions. Taylor has really improved his strength conditioning and recorded a bench press of 365 pounds, the most by a Clemson wide-out since 1985.

He did not see action in a game at tight end during the 1988 season and moved back out to wide receiver in the spring of 1989. In 1987, he saw action in eight plays in the season opener against Western Carolina and caught a pass for seven yards in that contest. Taylor is majoring in industrial education.

The Clemson University Athletic Department provides the following for your safety and emergency medical needs:

1. Advanced cardiac life-support stations in four locations (North stands, Upper North deck, South stands, Upper South deck). These units are staffed with skill-care nurses, physicians, cardiologists, internists, paramedics, and EMTs.

2. Mobile units of EMTs and paramedics are strategically located throughout the entire stadium.

3. Ambulances with life-support equipment are available in North stand and South stand areas and have prearranged routes for evacuation to local hospitals.

Learn to recognize these personnel and facilities.

WHAT TO DO IF EMERGENCIES ARISE

Please step back and give the organized stadium EMS personnel room to work. Well-intentioned attempts to help by untrained persons interfere with the efficiency of the EMS system. If you have basic or advanced training in specific life-support methods, make your qualifications known and offer your help. Untrained personnel can be frequently more harmful than helpful.

Most emergencies occurring at the stadium result from pre-existing medical conditions. Bring your medical identification card or wear medical identification jewelry. Moderation is the key with dress, food, beverage intake and physical exertion. Our two more frequent serious medical problems at football games are allergic reactions to insect stings and heart attacks.

INSECT STINGS: Common at outdoor events. Treat immediately with ice. Seek medical advice. If allergic, carry a kit from your physician with you.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE A HEART ATTACK: The symptoms of a heart attack vary, but the usual warning signs are:

1. Uncomfortable pressure, fullness, squeezing or pain in the center of your chest lasting for two minutes or more.

2. Pain spreading to the shoulders, neck, jaw, arms, or back.

3. Dizziness, fainting, sweating, nausea and/or shortness of breath.

Expect a Denial

Frequently heart attack victims deny they’re having a heart attack. The event is frightening or they don’t want the embarrassment of a false alarm. Therefore, they delay getting help by ignoring their symptoms or rationalizing, “it’s just indigestion.”

Find out what’s really wrong. Prompt response can dramatically increase chances of survival and recovery.

New therapies have been developed that can minimize heart damage and save lives if treatment begins within the first few hours of symptom onset. “Time is muscle.” Get help or get to a hospital immediately.

The stadium emergency phone number is (803) 656-2999.

This may come as a shock, but the average American home is loaded with hazardous wastes.

The fact is, a lot of that seemingly harmless stuff we've all got lying around the garage or the basement could be incredibly dangerous.

Like the old jars of paint from the kids' model airplane years. The pesticides from some long-forgotten experiment in home gardening. And the brake fluid and motor oil from the days when do-it-yourself seemed like a good idea.

The memories may fade away, but the hazardous chemicals won't.

However, in city-after-progressively-cleaned up, people are waking up to the fact that we can't continue to treat our homes like hazardous waste dumps, and we can't continue to throw toxic chemicals out with the rest of the garbage.

In hundreds of cases, Laidlaw Environmental Services has been called in to help communities manage a series of Household Hazardous Waste Collection Days.

Which makes a lot of sense, because Laidlaw Environmental Services is one of the nation's leading companies in the management, movement, treatment and disposal of chemical wastes. And one of the leading consultants in helping people clean up their cities.

So, if you'd like to know more about establishing a household cleanup program for your community, give us a call at Laidlaw Environmental Services today.

And we'll help you get the troublemakers out of town by sundown.

QUESTION: A high school football star is also on the basketball team. He is being recruited for football only. Does that mean during the basketball season you can talk to him, etc., about Clemson?

ANSWER: NO. It does not matter when you talk to him that he is playing a sport other than the one he is being recruited for.

RESERVE OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS

MY DEGREE GOT ME THE INTERVIEW.

ARMY ROTC GOT ME THE JOB.

Things got pretty competitive for this job. I'm sure my college degree and good grades kept me in the running. But in the end it was the leadership and management experience I got through Army ROTC that won them over.

You can begin to develop impressive leadership skills with an Army ROTC elective. Register now without obligation.

Clemson University Commemorative Pin Set

FRAME SIZE 18 1/2 X 14 1/2

This historic set of pins is the first to commemorate Clemson University participation in major collegiate bowl competition, beginning with the 1940 Cotton Bowl played January 1, 1940 in Dallas, Texas.

Each pin displays that year's distinctive Bowl Logo and the helmets of the Tigers and their opponent, with the points scored under each team's helmet. Each pin has a hanging drop piece that proclaims the name and emblem of the Bowl Champion.

This Commemorative Pin Collection is limited to 15,000 sets. Each set is numbered, with the production of the 15,000 set the molds will be destroyed, thus assuring set owners that this Commemorative Pin Collection is truly a collectors piece that will appreciate in value year after year.

Commemorative Pins for future bowls will be available to set owners 60 days after the completion of the bowl.

OUR GUARANTEE

Keep your set for 15 days if you are not 100% satisfied with your Clemson Commemorative Bowl Pin Set, for any reason, return the set to Sports Mint, Inc. and we will refund the full purchase price plus UPS freight charges.

One of the most unique approaches to remembering Clemson's Bowl History that I've seen in my 81 years. Owning one of these should be a must for every Tiger fan.

Coach Frank Howard

This is one of the classiest remembrances of Clemson's bowl history ever assembled. The workmanship and thought put into these 16 post-season pins is authentic in every detail.

THE PERFECT GIFT
We’re bringing on the Carolina Pride Hot Dogs.

The Official Hot Dogs of CLEMSON TIGERS.
During the past two decades, South Carolinians and their referring physicians have known of our commitment to provide the very best in cardiovascular care. In each and every year since 1974, Providence physicians have performed more cardiac catheterizations and open heart surgeries than any other hospital in the state. As we start this decade, confidence in Providence continues to grow. Already this year, we have performed more open heart surgeries than for any like period in our history.

We're proud of our cardiovascular team — the cardiologists who diagnose and treat patients, the cardiovascular surgeons who do open heart procedures, the skilled technicians who operate state-of-the-art equipment, and the dedicated nursing staff who provide both specialized professional care and exceptional TLC.

Thank you, South Carolinians, for this trust. We will continue our commitment to offering the highest level of cardiovascular care, and to maintaining our reputation as the state’s preferred hospital for mending broken hearts. At Providence Hospital technology, experience and caring go hand-in-hand.
In a year that saw many changes in the Clemson University Athletic Department, one thing remained a constant, the success of IPTAY. Despite the destruction and financial loss caused by Hurricane Hugo, as well as an increase in the minimum IPTAY donation from $30 to $100, faithful Clemson supporters were still able to make this another record-breaking year for IPTAY. As the nation's largest fundraising organization, IPTAY was able to raise $5.6 million towards its commitment to the student-athlete. Due to these efforts both on the part of the IPTAY staff, and the generosity and support of the Clemson community, Clemson was one of only two schools in the nation (the only other being Illinois) to have teams participate in a bowl game (1989 Mazda Gator Bowl), the NCAA Basketball Tournament (advanced to the Sweet Sixteen in the East Regional), and the NCAA Baseball Tournament (Central Region).

Clemson was the only school to gain at least one win in each of these post-season events. Clemson also produced 82 first-team ACC athletes, 20 All-Americans, captured three ACC Championships, and won two regular-season ACC Championships, including its first-ever in men's basketball. Nine teams finished in the final Top 25 of their respective sports.

The success of the Clemson athletic program comes during a time when the integrity and accountability of the academic progress of student-athletes are receiving national attention. IPTAY has been a large part of this success by being committed to the student-athlete.

IPTAY is recognized as one of the oldest, largest and most successful athletic fundraising organizations in America. IPTAY was the first athletic fundraising organization in the country to top the two, three, four, and five-million-dollar marks in annual donations. The 1989-90 academic year marks the 26th consecutive year of increased contributions to the IPTAY scholarship fund.

In 1934, Dr. Rupert Fike founded IPTAY with a very simple purpose in mind: IPTAY provides funds for athletic scholarships. Clemson continues to be one of the few schools in the nation to award the maximum number of scholarships allowed by the NCAA for 18 men's and women's varsity sports. Since 1934, IPTAY has provided scholarships for over 5,000 student-athletes, trainers, and managers.

IPTAY currently provides the funds for tutorial programs staffed by trained academic advisors assisted by graduate and undergraduate students. This support is intended to assure that all student-athletes are given the opportunity to earn their degree while participating in athletics.

IPTAY is currently playing an intricate role in the Campaign for Clemson, a long-range fundraising project of the University. IPTAY has been asked to raise $2.5 million of the University's overall goal of 62 million dollars for the construction and development of the Learning Center, a new academic building on East Campus. The funds for this project come via IPTAY donors and IPTAY has already raised over one million dollars for the project.

The Learning Center is presently on schedule to open in the spring of 1991 and its construction is well under way. The Learning Center is a 29,000 square-foot facility and it will house the tutoring and advising programs for student-athletes. The building will contain various-sized study and tutoring rooms to be used for individual study as well as for small group instruction.

Computer facilities, an office/reception area for the advising staff and an auditorium will also be contained in the center.

The generous support of 18,200 loyal donors to IPTAY has allowed the organization to go beyond the funding of athletic scholarships by providing the financial basis for many of the unparalleled athletic facilities at Clemson.

Since 1978, IPTAY has provided the funding for $32 million of capital improvements in the area of athletics. These improvements include the expansion of the football stadium, the newly renovated baseball facility (Tiger Field), the indoor tennis facility, the soccer stadium, the new outdoor track, the weight room, the new golf practice area, a new cross country course, and the IPTAY/Ticket office facility.

IPTAY is also proud to provide funding for the Tiger Band. Each year IPTAY budgets financial support for travel, uniforms and equipment for this integral part of the Clemson athletic program.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. IPTAY was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for non-athletes who are highly qualified academically. This scholarship endowment is funded by certain company gifts which are made as a result of employee contributions to IPTAY. In addition, the athletic department has made generous contributions to the endowment from athletic revenues.

The IPTAY Academic Fund is presently the largest scholarship endowment of any kind at Clemson, providing $1.38 million in funds, currently benefiting more than 50 students. IPTAY's support extends to all of the student body.

The tremendous success of IPTAY is due, in large part, to the organizational makeup which allows members to be as close to IPTAY as they are to their local IPTAY leadership. Each of South Carolina's 46 counties has an IPTAY County chairman, and every county is allotted an IPTAY representative for every 35 members.

This year's IPTAY speaking circuit was highlighted by Clemson's new football coach, Ken Hatfield. A man of character and integrity, as well as a proven winner, Hatfield stressed the importance of IPTAY and its mission. Hatfield commented on his first impressions of IPTAY.

"The IPTAY organization and the people involved far surpassed the tremendous reputation that they had before I had arrived here. Allison Dalton, Bert Henderson, and Bob Mahony and all of the rest who are involved, organize and coordinate the program as well as I have seen. Every local meeting was precisely managed."

Hatfield continued, "I guess the thing that stuck out most though, was the atmosphere of love and support for Clemson exhibited by all of the people I met."

IPTAY donors are kept up-to-date with Clemson athletics through the Orange and White. This is an official IPTAY publication which is distributed exclusively to IPTAY donors in appreciation of their support.

Clemson University will continue to be recognized and respected on the national level athletically and academically with the full support of IPTAY. IPTAY will continue to be successful because of their loyal, commitment to Clemson University's way of life in the hearts of Clemson alumni and friends.

For a few short weeks last season, Jim Davis's Lady Tigers brought the future to the present.

The 1989-90 season was a year that had all the billings of a rebuilding campaign—no returning starters, seven newcomers, and a handful of reserves to start the season. However, Davis down-played the term rebuilding and formed a team that was destined for the future into a team that set milestones in the present.

The accomplishments included a school-record 10 ACC wins, a NCAA final 16 appearance, a third consecutive 20-win season, and a ranking of 19th in the final USA-Today poll.

With a year of successful experience, the Clemson camp has to be looking forward to the 1990-91 campaign with enthusiasm and positive wonderment as to what the future will bring.

The successful experience returning includes 12 letterwinners and all five starters from a team that finished with a 22-10 record and a 10-4 slate in the ACC. However, Jim Davis is cautiously optimistic and states that consistency, maturity and the team concept are the keys to another successful season.

"First of all, we were very fortunate last year. I do not want to take anything away from the players and their accomplishments, but I felt things fell in place for us last year," said Davis, who will be entering his fourth year as the head mentor at Clemson.

"We did not play as well as we could have played as a basketball team consistently all season long. We would play well for a half and not play well for a half in many games. Consistency is one thing we have to strive for this year. We want to go out every game and play fundamentally sound, consistent, winning, basketball. In order for us to do that we must have players to go out and want to excel—give their very best effort in practice and game situations. Everyone must do their part.

Secondly, Davis also emphasizes that the team concept must be included in the Lady Tigers' scheme to improve on last year's accomplishments.

"The concept of team play will be one of the most important factors this season. We must learn to play well together and compliment one another on the court. No one should care who scores the points or who gets the rebounds," said Davis. "It should not matter who sets the good screens or who draws the defensive charge as long as they have a Tiger Paw on their uniform. In other words, success will depend on how well we forsake self for the good of others and the accomplishment of our team."

The other major element that concerns Davis is the area of maturity. The Lady Tigers had seven newcomers on last year's roster and how well these players matured and improved during last season will be a key to this year's team.

"I don't think there is any question that last year was a growing period for our basketball players. They should have matured not only as players but as people. Hopefully, they found out if they make sacrifices, good things will happen with the right attitude. If they learned that last year, then certainly there was a maturity process that went on and because of this process, we will be a better basketball team," said Davis.

"We may not win as many games as we did last winter, but we will be a much improved team. Competition will be excellent again in the ACC. What we want to achieve as a team this season will be to continue maturing mentally, technically, physically, and emotionally as players and coaches.

FRONTCOURT

The Lady Tigers' 1990-91 frontcourt should solidify Davis's philosophy that basketball games are won inside the paint and on the free throw line. The Lady Tigers return seven veterans in Jackie Farmer, Shandy Bryan, Imani Wilson, Melissa Miller, Courtney Johnson, Kim Stephens, and Donna Forrest.

Heading the list of returning players is center, Jackie Farmer. The 6-4 Philadelphia, PA native was second on the team in scoring (10.7 ppg.) and led the squad in rebounds (8.9 rpg.). Farmer led the ACC in blocked shots and was third in rebounding.

Shandy Bryan had an excellent freshman year as she was third on the team in scoring (9.7 ppg.) and third in rebounding (5.3 rpg.). She also led the team in free throw pct. (.819) as she hit 59-72 free throws.

The other sophomore forward, Imani Wilson, was a standout for the Tigers in her first year of play. She was second on the team in rebounds (6.7 rpg.) and fifth on the team in scoring (6.9).

Melissa Miller returns for her senior year of play. Miller fought off knee and leg injuries throughout the 1989-90 season but is expected to play a major part of the inside game for the Lady Tigers this season.

Courtney Johnson enjoyed a tremendous sophomore season last year as she was the team's fourth leading scorer (8.3 ppg.) and the squad's leader in steals (67). She was also second on the team in assists (105).

Kim Stephens returns after a much improved sophomore season. She can contribute to the success of the team with her scoring ability.

Donna Forrest should challenge for a major role on the team and with her scoring ability.

BACKCOURT

The backcourt is one reason Davis feels the offense will be a solid weapon for Clemson. The Tigers will have depth in this position as the Lady Tigers boast of five returnees, Peggy Sells, Kerry Boyatt, Jackie Mattress, Shanna Howard and Angie Peters in the backcourt.

Senior Peggy Sells led the 1989-90 team in assists (116) and started in 25 games. The Knoxville, TN native averaged 25 minutes per game last season.

Senior Jackie Mattress started seven games at point guard last season and averaged 13 minutes per game. "After not playing the point guard position since high school, she performed well. She is an excellent athlete and provides us quickness which makes her a great penetrator. She knows how to get the job done."

Kerry Boyatt was named the ACC's Rookie-of-the-Year for her fine freshman year. She led the team in scoring (15.3 ppg.) and proved to be a force on the defensive end as well. She was second on the team in steals (64). Boyatt also proved to be an effective shooter from the three point line as she hit 40-85 three point field goals.

Shanna Howard played in 26 games as a dependable reserve in 1989-90, and she should see more playing time this winter with her scoring ability.

Sophomore Angie Peters played 27 games last year, but injuries and the recuperation from knee surgery from a year ago forced her to miss some action last season.

The two newcomers that will join the Tigers include junior college transfer Cherlon Wells and Dana Puckett.

Wells had an excellent career at Kilgore Junior College (Kilgore, TX). During her sophomore year at Kilgore, she averaged 26.4 ppg. and 10.2 rpg.

Puckett is the only freshman Clemson added to its 1990-91 roster. The Kingston, TN native averaged 20.0 ppg. and seven assists per contest during her senior year.

Kerry Boyatt was named ACC Rookie-of-the-Year in 1990 as she led the team in scoring with a 15.3 average.

"To stay young in mind and spirit, teach young people."
— Alumni Professor Emeritus Harold Cooledge, December 1987 commencement address

As an industrial engineer, Dr. Bevlee Watford analyzes production systems to enhance quality and performance. In teaching, her outlook is similarly no-nonsense. But students know her door is open and she's available to help. South Carolina's 1989 Young Engineer of the Year, Watford is one of the new generation of faculty members carrying on Clemson's tradition of undergraduate teaching excellence.

"Study. Block out time and study. As bright as you are, you should get As and Bs. If you don't, it's because you're not doing enough. You're smart, but smart does not get you good grades. Studying gets you good grades."

Clemson vs. South Carolina. The rivalry goes all the way back to year one, 1896, when South Carolina defeated Clemson in the first meeting between the two. During the past century, the competition between these two teams has grown with each passing year. They compete to see who will hold the “State Championship” for the next year.

Two years ago, Clemson began a biannual event called Barnyard Burn to prepare the students and fans for home games against South Carolina. Barnyard Burn II was this year’s contribution to the tradition. The festivities began Thursday night with a pep rally. Coach Hattfield and the senior football players joined the cheerleaders in the beginning of a drum beat that was kept around the clock by Clemson the ROTC until the Tigers’ run down the hill prior to the game.

Friday the activities continued. The Clemson Tigers had a afternoon workout in Death Valley that was open to the public. The actual Barnyard Burn II involved the introduction of the team and a Torch Ceremony initiated by Coach Hattfield and the Tiger team captains. This was followed by the Barnyard Burn II Laser Light Show and a concert by Tiger Band.

Pregame festivities will begin today as Tiger Band takes the field with “Sock it to ‘em” and “TIGER RAG!” Dotting the “I” is the Tiger Band Commander, Dawn Corley. She is a senior Sociology major from Lexington, SC. Corley plays the clarinet. The band will continue with “Washington Post March.” Professor Mark Greer will direct “America the Beautiful” as the University Chorus sings.

The invocation will be given by Pastor Tim Willis. He is the campus minister for the Baptist Student Center.

Dr. Richard Goodstein will conduct “The Star-Spangled Banner” as Clemson’s Pershing Rifle Company C4 presents the colors. Under the direction of Dr. Dan Rash, the chorus and band will present the Clemson Alma Mater.

Anticipation will mount with the sounds of “Sock it to ‘em”, knowing that the ultimate finale of the pregame show is approaching. As the first notes of “TIGER RAG!” echo through Death Valley, all expectations will be fulfilled as the Clemson Tigers run down the hill for the 217th time!

Today’s halftime show will begin with a special Russian show by the University of South Carolina Marching Band, under the direction of James Copenhaver. The show will begin with “Ruslan and Ludmila” and “Russian Sailor’s Dance.” The show will then salute “Russian Transportation.” “Comedians Gallop” and “The Great Gate of Kiev” will close the show.

Tiger Band will feature a recap of its 1990 season in today’s halftime show. The Highlight Show will begin in “Brazil” as the band remembers its Caribbean Vacation show. The band will then “Shake a Tail Feather” from its Blues Brothers Show. “Somewhere,” from the Westside Story Show, will be the final number for the Tiger Band.

As the minutes of halftime tick down to seconds, Tiger Band will bring us back to Death Valley with “Sock it to ‘em” and “TIGER RAG!” For Clemson seniors in the stands and on the field, this is the last time that they will experience Clemson football in Death Valley as Clemson students.

For 27 senior band members, today is the last time which they will perform as Clemson students in Death Valley. We would like to thank them for giving their last four years in support to the Clemson Tigers. The seniors include Ian Bailey, Alto Sax, financial management; Rene Bennett, Piccolo, language & international trade; David Brown, Clarinet, industrial management; Clyde Calhoun, Piccolo, ceramic engineering; Vickie Casseen, Twirler, psychology; Robert Carter, Baritone; forest management; Dawn Corley, Clarinet, sociology; Robyn Grosjean, Flag, elementary education; David Jilson, Trumpet, chemical engineering; Susan Lampe, Cymbals, marketing; Sean Mann, Snare, psychology; Derek McFarland, Tenor Sax, management; Kate Myrick, Alto Sax, political science; April Newell, Twirler, marketing; William Powell, French Horn, computer engineering; Michael Quattlebaum, Trombone, financial management; Chip Rauch, Alto Sax, poultry science; Kevin Robinson, Clarinet, pre-med; Bob Roeder, Trombone, electrical engineering; Jeff Schmersal, Trumpet, ceramic engineering; Elizabeth Sherrer, Flag, mechanical engineering; Beth Slattery, Flag, electrical engineering; Dana Smith, Flag, elementary education; Scott Tollison, Snare, finance; Michelle Wagner, Flag, mathematical science; Brad Wardlaw, Trumpet, PRTM; and David Weinberger, Trumpet, mechanical engineering.

Today is the final home game for 27 senior band members.

I have had the privilege of writing 'The Last Word' ever since this feature was added to the Clemson game program. Most often, it's been used to recall a game from the past between the Tigers and that day's opponent.

Today, I am turning the story telling over to the master story-teller, Coach Frank Howard. As I am sure you know, the 'Clemson Legend' recently wrote a book. Among the many stories in the book are a chapter full of recollections of the South Carolina series during his 30 years as Clemson's head coach. Here are a few of them.

One South Carolina game that stands out in my memory was in 1948 when we were undefeated going into the game. They had us 7-6 late in the game. We had scored first, but missed the extra point. They finally scored and made the kick.

But, with just a little time left, we stopped them deep in their own territory. A boy named Phil Prince broke through and blocked a punt, and a guy named Rabbit Thompson picked it up and ran it in for the touchdown and we beat them 13-7.

That kept our streak going. After the game we beat Boston College and went ahead for that undefeated season, climaxing by the win over Missouri in the Gator Bowl. That was the first undefeated season for Clemson since 1900 when Coach John Heisman, for whom the famous trophy is named, had one. But in 1900 they only played six games.

One of the strangest plays I've ever seen in football came in our 1966 game with South Carolina. The game was played at our place in Death Valley.

We were leading 21-10 and had just gained possession when one of the D uczworth boys recovered a fumble at the Gamecock 12-yard line.

On the first play, our quarterback, 'Needle' Addison—he got that nickname because he was so skinny—called for a sweep on the right. That particular play looked like Southern Cal's famous 'Student Body Right' because everybody was going that way.

One of the key blocks was supposed to be laid by our guard Harry 'O' (Olzewski). As the ball was snapped, Harry 'O' pulled from his position and looked for the man he was supposed to block.

Instead, he found the ball in midair right in front of him.

Harry reached up and grabbed the ball, cut up field off right guard and headed for the 'alumni line.' I don't think a hand was laid on him as he went all the way into the end zone. In fact, I don't think anybody realized he had the ball until he had scored the touchdown—not even his teammates.

The movies later showed that when Wayne Mulligan centered the ball it came right up through Addison's hands. Before 'Needle' had time to grab it, Harry 'O' already had the ball and was on his way to six points.

Jack Lindsay, who was one of our better officials in the conference and who had called a number of Clemson-South Carolina games, was the referee. He said later that what happened was perfectly legal. He said everything was 'bang-bang' and that the quarterback just couldn't handle the snap.

Anyway, Harry 'O' got to do something as a guard that I never got to do and that was score a touchdown in a college game as an offensive lineman.

We ended up winning that South Carolina game, 35-10.

Another South Carolina game that created an interesting situation came when Warren Giese was their coach. He's a state senator. We had shut him out the first two years that he had been there. We were getting ready to go down there and play them again in 1958 on Big Thursday when he comes out with a statement that only God and Howard knows what goes on with the IPTAY funds.

Anyway, some reporters ask me what I thought about what Giese had said. I told the reporters that since we had shut them out for two straight years, 'Giese knows about as much about IPTAY as he does about crossing our goal line.'

Then I added, 'The first time that a young fellow scores on me, I'm going to tip my hat to him.'

Well that didn't turn out to be the smartest thing I ever said.

We scored and missed the extra point and they scored just before halftime and also missed the extra point. Well, at intermission, it was tied, 6-6.

Marvin Bass, who is now an assistant coach at Denver for Dan Reeves, was an assistant coach at South Carolina then. I heard later that he gave the best pep talk you have ever heard to those Gamecocks at halftime. Their players almost tore down the door coming out of the locker room on the way back to the field.

And they scored 20 points on us in the second half and beat us 26-6.

After the game I opened the dressing room door and told the press to 'come in and claim the body.' I reminded them that I'd promise to tip my hat to Giese every time they scored, but I didn't realize how sunburned my head was going to get from the hot sun during the second half.

But things got back on track down there the next year. That was the last Big Thursday game and we wore them out—shut 'em out again 27-0.

After Giese quit coaching, he called me one day and said he wanted to come up and talk. We got together and he said, 'Coach, I wanted to ask what you thought my chances would be if I ran for governor?'

I said, 'Good God, Warren, I don't think I could be elected and I know damn well you couldn't.'

But you know, that sucker might make it now. He got a Ph. D. and was the head of the Physical Education Department at South Carolina for a good while before he was elected a state senator.

The Clemson-South Carolina series has always been a hotly-contested one. And the rivalry has been a good for athletics in the state.

(Howard was part of 39 Clemson-South Carolina games—nine as an assistant coach and 30 as a head coach. During that time there were 19 Tiger wins, 18 Gamecock wins and two ties.)

When Santens of Belgium decided to locate a towel manufacturing plant in the United States, they selected Yeargin Enterprises to design and build their new facility.

Utilizing the Design/Build concept and the latest planning, scheduling, and estimating technology, Yeargin assembled "The Building Team" to work with Santens toward satisfying their specific needs and technical requirements.

Through Value Engineering and their Project Control Management system, Yeargin was able to minimize the total cost of the project while maintaining the desired aesthetic and functional values for the facility, which allowed Santens to maximize the return on their investment.

The result—a first-class, top quality, cost effective facility completed on time and within budget.

Let "The Building Team" show you how to bring your project to reality.
