Today's Features

5 Al Richard
Graduate student Al Richard attended all of his high school's football games when he was in the ninth grade. But, he never played in a game because he was a member of the school's Band.

7 Les Hall
This fifth-year senior does not concern himself with individual statistics. Reaction and teaching from coaches and friends are the important matters to this native of Columbia, SC.

49 Rudy Harris
This bruiser from Boston learned to be aggressive in his own home. One of 13 children, Harris's family could have fielded their own team. Now he is the leading touchdown scorer for the Clemson team.

51 Howard Hall
Natives of North Carolina have come to Clemson to run around back for years. Howard Hall is continuing the tradition that was started by Chuck McSwain, Tracy Johnson, and Kevin Mack over a decade ago.

61 Clemson Golf
With the return of four players who have won a tournament at one time or another in their careers, Larry Penley's club will challenge for the national championship this year. Nicky Gootze, Danny Ellis and Bobby Doolittle might be the best senior trio in the nation.

64 Today's Band Program
Welcome to homecoming! You won't forget the color and pageantry provided today by Tiger Band members of today and yester-year.

73 Lady Tiger Basketball
Coach Jim Davis's team has a good chance of reaching the NCAA's for the sixth straight year thanks to the return of 1,000-point scorers Shandy Bryan and Kenny Boyatt-Hall.

77 Paulette Russell
This Clemson swimmer did not join the team until mid-season, but she still earned All-America honors and led the Lady Tigers to a top 20 finish.

107 Roger Hutchins
The snapper position is important to any team. But, at Clemson, the snapper provides more than just expertise on the gridiron. Roger Hutchins provides comic relief through his imitations.

109 Jim Goodman
Clemson's recruiting coordinator has done it all. From assistant coach to head coach to athletic director to recruiting coordinator, Jim Goodman has been a success at every stop.

111 Tigers in the Pros
Larry Nance has been regarded as one of the top forwards in the NBA for many years. Recently, he has received awards for his work off the court.

112 Great Tiger Wins in Death Valley
While it was not a battle of top 20 teams, the 1959 Clemson-Wake Forest game might have been the most exciting in the history of Memorial Stadium. It was also a showcase for running back George Usry, who did everything but self tickets.

On the Cover: Today, Clemson celebrates another Homecoming and the presentation of the Homecoming Queen is always a highlight of Saturday's activities. Also featured on today's cover are senior linemen Al Richard and Les Hall, five-year veterans of the Tiger team, and Howard Hall and Rudy Harris, senior fullbacks who have taken part in many key Clemson wins.

The Greatest Comeback in Clemson History

Clemson scored the last 29 points of the game in defeating Virginia last week, 29-28. It was the greatest comeback in Clemson football history in terms of gaining victory after trailing by the largest deficit at any time in a game. In fact, it was just three points away from tying the national record for the greatest comeback in college football history. Maryland came back to collect a 42-40 victory after trailing 31-0 at Miami in 1985, while Ohio State overcame a 31-point deficit to beat Minnesota 41-37 in 1989.

With 32 minutes left in the game in Charlottesville, VA, Clemson trailed the Cavaliers 28-0. Louis Solomon then scored on a 64-yard rush with just 1.53 to go before halftime to cut the margin to 28-7. The Tigers then got rushing touchdowns from Rudy Harris and Rodney Blunt in the third period to make it 28-20 heading into the final period.

With just 5:31 left in the contest, Harris, who had 12 carries for 96 yards and two touchdowns in the game, bulled his way for a score from 27 yards out. A two-point conversion failed, but it was now 28-26.

A Darnell Stephens interception, just the second of his career, gave Clemson possession at the Virginia 35 with 3:53 left. A 45-yard pass from Solomon to Larry Ryan put the ball at the Virginia nine. Three plays later Nelson Welch completed the comeback with a 32-yard field goal and a 29-28 Tiger lead with 55 seconds left.

Clemson's defense stiffened on Virginia's last possession, and when Robert O'Neal leaped above a crowd of 12 players in the endzone and deflected a "Hail Mary" pass attempt, Clemson had registered the second greatest comeback in ACC history.

Clemson outgained Virginia 375-93 in the second half and finished the game with 490 yards total offense, including 402 yards rushing. Blunt led the Tigers with 141 yards rushing in just 16 attempts, the second best game of his career. He had 163 yards rushing against Duke last year at the Coca Cola Bowl in Tokyo, Japan.

The previous Clemson record for the greatest point deficit overcome to gain victory also took place against Virginia. In 1966, Clemson trailed the Cavaliers 35-17 with 17 minutes to go in the game. The Tigers came back to win that season opener, 40-35.

The Clemson victory marked the sixth time in the last three years that Clemson has scored the last points of the game to erase a fourth-quarter deficit or tie, and win or tie a game.

Rock on the Road

Howard's Rock is one of the most famous images of college football in the United States. Clemson players rub the rock prior to running down the hill and entering Memorial Stadium. Last Saturday, Clemson took a part of that heritage with it to Virginia when Equipment Manager Doug Gordon brought a rock from Death Valley, CA to Charlottesville. This rock is the size of a deliated football and was complete with a debossed Tiger paw.

The Tigers rubbed the rock prior to the game and at halftime on their way out to the Scott Stadium turf. "We told the players we were going to make it feel like home as much as possible," said Ken Hatfield. "The locker room and the sideline we had were the same as when we play at home, and they even have a hill at Virginia, although we knew we could not run down the hill to get to the field. So, we thought this rock would make it even more like playing at home." Did it contribute to the magic of Clemson's come-from-behind victory?

Well, there is a bit of irony and history involved here. The previous record for the greatest comeback in Clemson history was an 18-point deficit overcome to gain victory in 1966. That September 24, 1966 game was against Virginia in the first game the original Howard's Rock was installed at the top of the hill in Clemson Memorial Stadium. The next greatest comeback was against the in-state rival South Carolina in 1964 by a 17-point deficit over 20 minutes.

Most Difficult Schedules

Clemson has had quite a difficult schedule to open the 1992 season. According to the October 12 USA Today poll, Ken Hatfield's Tigers have already played three of the top 16 teams in the nation. The Tigers have already played #6 Florida State, #15 Georgia Tech and #16 Virginia. Clemson has a 3-2 ledger so far this year with the only blemishes being a pair of four-point losses to Florida State and Georgia Tech.

Clemson is one of just three teams in the nation who have met three teams currently ranked among the top 16 teams in the nation. The other two are Arkansas and Maryland. The Razorbacks have met #5 Alabama, #11 Georgia and #13 Tennessee. Maryland has played #9 Penn State, #15 Georgia Tech and #16 Virginia.

Clemson Rushing vs. Duke Passing

For the last decade the Clemson-Duke game has been a battle of teams who like to move the ball through different means. Entering the Duke game Clemson ranked second in the nation in rushing offense with an average of 294.6 yards per game. Clemson is coming off consecutive plus-400 yard rushing performances, the first time in Clemson history that the Tigers have had back-to-back 400-yard rushing games.

Duke on the other hand, ranks 24th in the nation in passing offense, averaging 243.6 yards per game. Blue Devils quarterback Spin Fisher is eighth in the nation in passing efficiency. Last week he led Duke to a 27-17 win over East Carolina by hitting 20-29 for 222 yards and three touchdowns.

Although Clemson has won nine of the last 10 meeting between the two teams, both teams have moved the ball. And, they have moved the ball in opposite means. Since 1981, Clemson has averaged 313.8 rushing yards, 3.1 rushing touchdowns and 5.58 yards per carry against Duke. Over these 11 years, Clemson has had 11 individual 100-yard or better rushing performances. This includes last year when the Tigers got 163 yards from Rodney Blunt and 126 yards from Rudy Harris, still career highs for both players.

Duke has completed 23.5 passes in an average of 42.8 attempts over the last 11 years against Clemson. The Blue Devils have averaged 277 yards a game through the air against the Tigers since 1981. A highlight for the Blue Devils came last year when Dave Brown hit 23-48 for 385 yards and three scores. Brown, now with the New York Giants, also guided Duke to a 21-17 victory over Clemson in 1989. Clemson entered that game ranked seventh in the nation. Duke has lost seven straight games against ranked teams since then.

Solomon Has Been Productive

Red-shirt freshman quarterback Louis Solomon has been productive off the bench the last two Saturday's. The native of Somerset, NJ has quarterbacked the Tigers for an even 100 plays so far this year and Clemson has gained 749 yards on those plays. That is an average of 7.5 yards a snap and it does not take a football expert to know that is an impressive figure. In the 17 possessions he has run the offense against UT Chattanooga and Virginia, Clemson has scored seven touchdowns and kicked two field goals. That is nine scores in 17 possessions.

Solomon gained 116 yards rushing in 16 attempts against Virginia, just the second quarterback in the last 11 years to pick up 100 yards or more on the ground in a game. DeChane Cameron is the only other Tiger QB since the days of Homer Jordan to gain over the century mark in terms of rushing. Included in the 116 yards was a 64-yard touchdown run that turned the game around.
That 64-yard run was the second longest touchdown run by a Tiger quarterback in history. Only a 75-yard run by Steve Fuller against Virginia Tech in 1978 is longer. For the season, Solomon has an 8.0 yard average on 23 carries and has each of the top two longest runs this season.

Solomon gained 204 yards in total offense at Virginia, the most by a Tiger freshman since Willie Jordan had 259 yards of total offense against Duke on 32 plays in 1975. Jordan also has the freshman record for total offense in a game with 288 yards on 39 plays against Georgia Tech in 1975. Jordan was a first-year freshman that year and that was the only season he was a quarterback. He became a return specialist and starting defensive back between 1976-78.

Hall Has Career Day
Clemson senior offensive tackle Les Hall had the game of his life in the 29-28 victory over Virginia. The 6-7 native of Columbia, SC had a coach's grade of 94 percent and a career high 12 knockdown blocks. That 94 percent grade was not only a career high for Hall, it was the highest grade ever awarded by Tiger offensive line coach Larry Beckman, who has been an assistant coach at the Division I level since 1976. In fact, Beckman can remember only one other instance in which he awarded any grade in the 90s. It was the highest offensive lineman grade awarded by a Clemson coach since John Phillips graded 95 percent against Virginia in 1987.

The 12 knockdown blocks by Hall rank as the second most ever by a Clemson offensive tackle. The record is 13, held by current Tiger Brent LeJeune, who had that total this year against Florida State.

Stacy Seegars gave considerable aid to Hall in terms of offensive line blocking. The junior had 11 knockdown blocks in helping Clemson to that 402-yard rushing performance. It is interesting to note that there have been 13 400-yard rushing games in Clemson history, four of them have come against Virginia and two of those took place on the same day, October 10th (1987 and 1992).

Tiger Defenders Establish Career Highs
When Clemson gave up 28 points in the first 28 minutes of the Virginia game we didn't think we would be writing many notes about the Clemson defense. But, the Tigers shutout the Wahoos over the last 32 minutes of the game and there were some standout performances.

Three members of defensive coordinator Ron Dickerson's unit established career highs for tackles and were key reasons Virginia gained just 93 yards total offense in the second half. They held Virginia to just six first downs after halftime.

Brentson Buckner and Warren Forney both had 11 tackles and combined for a sack at Virginia. The total was a career high for both players, who are underclassmen, yet leaders of the front line. Defensive back Norris Brown had 10 tackles in the game, double his previous career high of five. Brown was a valuable member of the Clemson defense because he played three different positions during the course of the game due to injuries and strategy changes. He saw time at strong safety, free safety and cornerback during the course of the Virginia game.

Welch Boots Game Winner
Nelson Welch, currently ranked ninth in the nation in field goals per game, provided the winning points in the thrilling victory over Virginia. Welch booted a 32-yard field goal with just 55 seconds to culminate Clemson's comeback. Welch is now 9-12 for the season on field goals and is 28-40 for his career.

The nature of Greenville, SC was the first Tiger field goal kicker to boot the winning field goal with less than a minute left since the 1987 North Carolina game when David Treadwell kicked a 30-yard field goal with 32 seconds left in Clemson's 13-10 win.

It was, however, the second time Welch had booted a clutch field goal inside the last minute of a game against Virginia. In 1991 Welch kicked a 40-yarder with 46 seconds left to tie the Cavaliers 20-20. Clemson then went on a six-game winning streak to close the regular season. Welch hopes his boot in Charlottesville will trigger the same streak this year.

Last year, ARA served thousands of meals to people away from home. College students, hospital staffs, industrial personnel. Why, right here in Clemson, ARA serves over 15,000 breakfasts, lunches and dinners to students, parents and faculty daily.

But you may not know our full story. ARA chooses only the freshest and most wholesome ingredients. Bright, crisp vegetables. Ripe, firm fruits. The choicest meats and dairy products. Ingredients that are chopped, steamed, broiled, baked and blended into luscious menus. For banquets or birthdays. Cocktail parties or tailgate feasts. In your home or in one of our private dining rooms in the Clemson House. No matter what your special occasion, ARA can fill the bill of fare.

So the next time your calendar is marked with a red letter day... call ARA for that special service.

Al Richard

By Heather Czeczok

Whoever said nice guys finish last must not have met Clemson's Al Richard. He's a nice guy who is at the head of the pack and far from finished. Richard is a starting defensive tackle for the Tigers who describes himself as, "a really nice and easy-going guy, who wants to be known as a good person who has always tried hard to do what is asked of him." He wouldn't want his personality to be any other way except maybe on the football field. "Sometimes I'm too nice. On the football field, it sometimes takes me a little while to really get going and get the juices flowing."

Defensive line coach Les Herrin says that he has to challenge Richard on occasion. "He realizes that he's too nice on the field. At times you have to say things that you really don't want to say (to him) because he is a good person, but you have to say it to get him motivated. He understands that. That can be hard to do as a coach."

Richard has had to overcome more than just being "too nice." He has hurtled some major obstacles in his efforts to make it to where he is today. The first obstacle postponed his football career until middle school. "I tried out for little league football at the YMCA, but I was too big. I waited until my seventh grade year and played on the middle school team."

His football career was temporarily derailed in his ninth-grade year of high school when he decided to play the bass drum in the band. "After my first year of band, I decided to try my hand at football and I never looked back. I enjoyed the band, but I knew that I wasn't going to get a band scholarship to go to college. I knew that if it wasn't for football I wouldn't be here at Clemson. My parents couldn't afford to send me to a college like this so I knew I wanted to do something for myself as far as going to school and football was it."

But there was more to college football than getting a scholarship. Richard had to adjust to the new challenges of college life and college football. "The Al Richard that first stepped foot on Clemson's campus was a momma's boy who had never really been anywhere except home," says Richard looking back at himself. "He didn't really know how to work hard because he never really had to work for anything in his life. I've learned to be respectful more of adults, peer groups and people older than me."

"I've learned to not take things so seriously. When I first got here I had a problem with taking things too seriously. Football players joke a lot and I didn't want anybody to say anything out of the way to me. I wouldn't put up with that. I have learned to let things (like that) go in one ear and out the other."

Next he had to survive a career-threatening knee injury. "It was a very serious injury. I had torn ligaments in my left knee. It was a damper to me. My parents told me not to let it get me down. I could have easily just put my head down and said 'I'm not going to play football anymore.' But I rehabbed really hard and was able to come back and play. I feel as if I've done pretty well because a lot of guys who have knee injuries never play again. I've been fortunate enough and prayed enough to be able to go back out on the field and play."

Once he got back on the field, Richard began to face his final obstacle, working hard enough to earn, and keep, a starting spot. "I feel like I have always tried to contribute to the team. I didn't mind being behind a Chester McClockton or a Vance Hammond because in order for them to be good, they had to have someone behind them who was also good and able to go out there and be able to play."

"Right now I don't feel like I have it made out there. I feel like each day I need to go out there and get better because there is a guy behind me that's always pushing me. If I don't do what's asked of me, he'll be right there to get that starting position. Really, Pierre Wilson and I rotate so much there is really not much to a starting position. We're both going to play so it really doesn't matter."

One advantage that Richard has this year is that he will have more time to concentrate on football. He received his degree in management in August, allowing him to focus on his game. "Having graduated takes a lot of pressure off of a person. You still go to class and have work to do, but just knowing that you have a degree really means a lot. That was the big thing for me coming here. I wanted to get my degree. I wanted to be able to say that I came to Clemson and got my degree. I did that and this year I have more of an opportunity to concentrate on football."

Richard sees this extra time as an opportunity to contribute even more to the team. "This season my role is one of trying to be a leader for the young guys. I try to motivate the young guys to get them ready to play. It's a role of both playing and helping out the team."

Richard has shown exemplary strength through adversity. But he couldn't have done it alone. His parents have been very supportive of him. "I have a lot of respect and a lot of love for my mother and father. I'd say that they are my idols because anytime that anything has gone wrong in my life, they have been there for me."

His fiancée, Helen, has been very influential as well. "She's been a good motivational person for me. She has motivated me as far as my schoolwork is concerned as far as being a well-rounded person, and even on the football field. I'll come in after some game and she may say, 'you could have played better out there today.' She doesn't pull any punches and just tells me straight what she feels and I really respect her a lot for that."

The experience of college football has been educational, to say the least, for Al Richard. "The greatest thing I have learned being at Clemson is to be independent and to work hard for the things I want in life. The time that we live in now (being in college) is probably the best time of our lives, but its not going to last forever. We're going to have to go out there and get a job and be providers for our families. The most important thing I've learned is to set goals for myself and work hard to obtain them."

It just goes to show you that nice guys don't have to finish last. Just look at Al Richard.

Richard has gone from a bass drummer in the ninth grade to a starting defensive lineman as a graduate student.

Les Hall

By Chris Metzler

Teamwork.
This is a term Les Hall, Clemson's starting right tackle, truly understands. "Linemen are five people learning their assignments, making their blocks and working as a team. The rewards come from teammates and coaches telling you that you did a good job. There are no personal stats that mean as much to a lineman as the entire offense having a successful game."

For an offensive lineman there is a great need to rely on one another. In order for a play to be successful, each lineman must block his assigned man. If one of the linemen miss a block, the play will have little chance to be successful. The lineman must also have his timing down pat on various plays. There are times when a lineman must wait a fraction of a second to allow another lineman to cut in front of him. If one of them is too fast or too slow the play can not develop properly. Precision is the key.

Because linemen depend on each other, a special bond is formed, one that often extends beyond the playing field. "We are like a family. We support each other on the field. We spend a lot of time working side-by-side relying on each other. Off the field we hang out together, at times going out to eat together or just sitting around as a group watching a game."

In order to make a contribution the line's success Les Hall relies on self motivation. "I have to want to do it. Guys can try to get me pumped up by yelling and things like that, but to make me become a better player it has to come from within."

To date there have been many games where Les has done his part in making the Clemson offense successful. For example, in Clemson's 40-7 ACC title clinching victory versus Maryland last year Les Hall was given a grade of 88. In this year's Georgia Tech and UT-Chattanooga games, Hall was Clemson's highest graded offensive lineman with scores in the 80s.

As Coach Larry Beckman acknowledges much higher grades are hard to come by. "I have been coaching for some time now and have never seen anyone grade out at 100. It is even very rare that someone gets a score in the nineties."

Last week at Virginia, Hall pulled off a rarity when he graded 94 percent, the highest grade ever awarded by Beckman in his 16 years as an assistant coach. In fact it was only the second time in his career that Beckman had ever scored anyone in the nineties.

Another stat that is kept on linemen is knockdowns. For Hall the best game concerning knock downs was this year's Virginia contest when he recorded 12. He has had at least six such blocks in every game so far this year.

While that statistic seems impressive, and it is really the most demonstrative statistic an offensive lineman can boast of, Hall does not put much credence in it. "You could have several knockdowns in a game and still not have a good game as far as grading goes." Although Hall entered the 1992 season with 57 knockdowns and had graded at 80 or more seven times in his career, he finds the most satisfaction from friends and coaches compliments. "It is rewarding when a coach or a friend of mine tells me that they saw me make a good block. Stats don't mean as much as that."

Coach Larry Beckman feels that throughout his career Les Hall has been a solid player who has been helpful in Clemson offensive success, statements that should mean something to Hall. "Les is a good tackle. He is big, strong, and fairly mobile. He leads by example, which is important since he and Stacy Seegars are the only returning linemen with any kind of experience."

"He is a consistent player and that is what we look for on the line. You don't want someone who is up and down each week. You want someone who plays consistently and you are confident that you know what he will do week in and week out."

Ironically, for Les Hall, a native of Columbia, SC, his most memorable games as a Tiger took place at Williams-Brice Stadium in 1989 and 1991. "I have always enjoyed going to Columbia and walking onto the field. I would look into the stands and hear people yelling at me claiming I was the bad guy. But there was nothing that they could do about it. It was great to come back and play before them, especially since we left with wins following each trip to Columbia."

It was in the 10th grade in Columbia where Les Hall began his football career. He played for Spring Valley High in Columbia as a lineman. After a strong senior season, in which he recorded a school record 75 knockdowns, Hall was named SuperPrep Magazine's mid-Atlantic Offensive Player-of-the-Year and All-American. He also was an honorable mention selection for USA Today and a member of the USA Today top 100.

Hall may return to the Columbia area next year to attend graduate school or he could continue to play football. He is hoping to get another degree and perhaps teach or work with his father. But the ultimate dream would be to play in the NFL. "I would like to play in the pros some day, but if that doesn't work out I will begin to work and get another degree."

Coach Beckman feels Hall may get a chance to play football for a professional team. "I think the professional teams are going to look at him since he is a big kid coming from a major program. He is going to have to work hard and improve, but he should have a good chance."

Les Hall also understands that in order to play in the pros he will have to improve. "I will have to get in better shape and become stronger to get a chance to play in the pros, but I think I will do that and have a shot. It is something that does not occupy all my plans, but I would like to get an opportunity."

But for now Les Hall is teaming up with 10 other players and together they will work together in hopes of maturing into a solid offensive unit.

Hall has gone from a reserve to an ironman in one season.

Clemson University President Max Lennon's ambition is to be president of the nation's top technologically-oriented land grant university. And he doesn't plan to leave campus to achieve that goal. Because that's the vision Lennon has for Clemson: not to be "one of the best," but to be better at what it does than any other school.

To achieve the vision, Lennon has brought the business world's concepts of total quality management and strategic planning to the academic arena. He hopes these concepts will help reduce bureaucracy, increase involvement of students, faculty and staff in the management of the university, increase diversity, and create an atmosphere of a community of scholars.

"The vision statement that has emerged from the strategic planning process -- to become the nation's leading technologically-oriented land-grant university -- sets a challenging course for this institution's development: to become the best in our league," he has said.

It is this commitment to excellence that has enabled Lennon to lead Clemson to new heights during his six years as president. The Lennon presidency has seen the completion of the most successful campaign in the university's, and the state's, history; unprecedented growth in research, topping $90 million in annual expenditures last year; and an ongoing program of campus revitalization that balances the university's desire for technological excellence, cultural awareness, and historic preservation.

Lennon came to Clemson from Ohio State University, where he had been president for agriculture administration and executive dean for agriculture, home economics and natural resources. He also served on the Ohio State Faculty Senate and co-chaired the Governor's Commission on Agriculture.

Previously, he had served as dean of the College of Agriculture at Ohio State, director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at the University of Missouri, and as associate dean and director of research in the College of Agricultural Sciences at Texas Tech University.

Lennon is a native of Columbus County, NC, and earned his bachelor's degree and doctorate from N.C. State University, where he began his teaching career.

The Clemson president has been active in a number of civic and professional groups, ranging from the local Rotary Club and Chamber of Commerce to the Board of Directors of EARTH in Costa Rica, which through education and investments aims to improve Third World agriculture.

Lennon has served as chairman of the Foreign Assistance Act Committee of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges (NASULGC), Chairman of the South Carolina Public Colleges and Universities Council of Presidents, and member of the boards of the S.C. Research Authority, Greenville Urban League, Farm Foundation, Duke Power, First Union, and Delta Woodside.

In the fall of 1987, Lennon was named to the board of trustees of the Farm Foundation, a national organization devoted to improving research and education to benefit rural areas. In 1988, he was appointed to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Policy Advisory Committee for Science and Education Research Grants Program by Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lyng, and was a keynote speaker at the AgBiotech 88 international conference in Washington.

Lennon also was appointed to chair a committee of top administrators and federal officials from 11 universities across the nation to work with congress on legislation relating to foreign assistance and international development. The committee is a project of the National Association of State Universities and land-grant colleges.

Lennon is married to Ruth Carter Lennon. This past year, they joined an elite group of people who can call themselves "Clemson Parents" when both children, Daniel Ray and Robin, received degrees from the university.

Dr. Max Lennon hopes to make Clemson the top technologically-oriented land-grant university in the nation.
When Clemson recorded its 1991 victory over Duke halfway around the world in Tokyo, Japan, Tiger head coach Ken Hatfield celebrated not just his first-ever Atlantic Coast Conference regular season title, but also his 100th victory as a head coach. Even though Hatfield has been in coaching only since 1979, he has placed his name among the top mentors in the nation.

Heading into the 1992 season, Hatfield is tied for third with Florida State's Bobby Bowden in wins among active coaches who have coached at a Division I school each of the last 10 years. He posts a 92-28-2 record in that time frame. And Hatfield's .762 winning percentage over the last 10 years ranks fourth among active coaches who have coached at Division I schools in each year of the last decade.

When Hatfield took over the Clemson program prior to the 1990 season, he was faced with the challenge of continuing the tradition of excellence set in the eighties (only Nebraska and Miami had fewer losses in that time frame than Clemson). Hatfield has more than met the challenge, posting a 19-4-1 mark for the Tigers in his first two seasons.

The victory over Illinois in the 1991 Hall of Fame Bowl made Hatfield the first Clemson coach to win 10 games in his first year and his .833 winning percentage is the best for a first-year Clemson coach since 1900 when John Heisman was 6-0. The 1990 season included six wins over teams with winning records. Only national champion Georgia Tech had more.

Hatfield was just the eighth coach in the last 13 years to take a team to a Top 10 AP final ranking in his first year with the program. He was the first ACC coach in history to take a team to a final AP top 10 ranking in his first year at a school.

But Hatfield's impressive debut at Clemson was no big surprise to those who have followed his career. He has enjoyed success throughout his involvement with the sport of football, as a player and coach.

As a player, he helped Arkansas face every challenge in 1964, when the Razorbacks had an 11-0 season and won the national title. As an assistant coach at Tennessee and Florida, he molded countless players into top-notch athletes who competed for Southeastern Conference titles, played in seven bowl games in a 10-year period, and ranked in the final top-20 five times. As a head coach, he took a dormant Air Force program to a number-13 national ranking and a pair of bowl wins. He continued to meet the challenges at Arkansas, his alma mater, guiding the Razorbacks to back-to-back Southwest Conference titles, something that had not been done at Arkansas since Hatfield was a player.

Hatfield has had five 10-win seasons in his career and has accomplished that task at three different schools. He is the only active coach and one of just two in the history of the game to have taken three different schools to a 10-win season.

Hatfield has taken his teams to 10 consecutive post-season bowls, including January 1 appearances five of the last six years. He is one of just four active coaches to take a team to a bowl each of the last 10 years. He is in noteworthy company as the other members of that exclusive club are Tom Osborne (Nebraska), LaVell Edwards (BYU), and Bobby Bowden (Florida State).

Hatfield has an overall record of 100-53-3 (.651), but he has won 78 percent of his games over the last eight seasons (84-23-2). At Arkansas, he posted a record of 55-17-1 over six seasons, a .760 winning percentage. That percentage is second best in Southwest Conference history as only Darrell Royal (Texas 1957-76) had a better percentage.

The native of Helena, Arkansas, played in two bowl games with the Razorbacks, coached in seven post-season games as an assistant and the 1992 Citrus Bowl marked the 10th in which he has been the head coach. Seven times he has coached a team to a top 20 final ranking in the AP poll, and he played on two other top 15 teams. The 9-2-1 ledger and #18 AP ranking in 1991 gave him seven top 20 finishes in the last 10 years.

Hatfield-coached clubs have excelled offensively and defensively, but they have been particularly successful in rushing offense and defense. Each of his last 10 teams has finished in the top 20 nationally in rushing offense, including seven top 10 finishes. This includes last year's team, which averaged 252 yards a game.

Two of his last four Arkansas teams finished in the top three in the country in turnover margin, including his 1988 team that was first in the nation (Clemson was second that same year). Defensively, his clubs have finished in the top 15 in the nation in rushing defense six of the last seven years. The Tigers were ranked first in the nation in total defense, second in rushing defense, and second in scoring defense at the end of the 1990 regular season. Clemson ranked first in the nation in rushing defense and fourth in total defense in the 1991 season.

Hatfield has coached in four major conferences and with independent schools, giving him a diverse background in the finer points of the game. It is one reason he was named the third best teaching coach in college football by Inside Sports magazine in 1990.

Hatfield began his coaching career immediately after graduation. In the fall of 1965, he served as an assistant coach at Helena-West Helena High School in Arkansas. In 1966, he moved to West Point, where he served as freshman coach for two seasons.

After the two-year stint at Army, he served as an assistant coach at Tennessee for three years (1968-70). The Volunteers went to post-season bowls all three seasons (including two major bowls), won a conference title and ranked in the final top 20 of the AP poll all three seasons, including a number-four ranking in 1970.

In 1971, Hatfield began a seven-year stint at the University of Florida, spending four seasons...
Clemson won the ACC in 1991, Ken Hatfield's second year at Clemson. He has guided Clemson to a pair of Top 20 seasons in his first two years.

as a defensive backfield coach and three as an offensive backfield mentor. Florida played in four bowl games during his career in Gainesville and two more Gator teams finished in the AP top 20, including the 1974 team that played Nebraska in the Sugar Bowl.

Hatfield became offensive coordinator at the Air Force Academy under former New York Giants Head Coach Bill Parcells in 1978. A year later, Parcells was wooed to the Big Apple and Hatfield became the Falcons' head coach. The Air Force program had not had a winning season since 1973. But by his fourth season, Hatfield had an eight-game winner, led Air Force to its first-ever victory over Notre Dame, and had taken the Falcons to a post-season bowl for the first time since 1971.

In 1983, Hatfield was named national Coach-of-the-Year by the Football Coaches Association (Bobby Dodd Award) after leading Air Force to a 10-2 season that included wins over Notre Dame, Navy and a bowl victory over Mississippi. It was the Academy's first-ever win over Notre Dame in South Bend.

The next year, Hatfield succeeded Lou Holtz at Arkansas, where he would take his alma mater to 55 wins in six seasons, six bowl appearances and four final top-15 rankings. His 1985 club finished with a 10-2 mark and number-12 national ranking, the Razorbacks' first Top 20 finish since 1982. Four times the Razorbacks rallied from fourth quarter deficits to gain victory.

The 1986 campaign was another year of success with highlight victories over a nationally ranked Texas A&M club and the Razorbacks' first win in 20 years at Texas. Arkansas advanced to the Orange Bowl and finished 15th in the final AP poll.

Arkansas won the 1988 and 1989 Southwest Conference Championships and the Razorbacks never finished lower than second in his six years at Fayetteville. He was named Southwest Conference Coach-of-the-Year in 1988 as he took the Razorbacks to the league title and a 10-0 start. Miami (FL) defeated Arkansas 18-19 in the Orange Bowl to stop the streak. Seven players off the 1988 club (all recruited by Hatfield) were drafted by the NFL, an Arkansas single draft record.

After the 1989 team's 10-2 ledger and second straight SWC Championship, Hatfield was named Southwest Conference Coach-of-the-Decade by the Houston Post. Included in the victories was a triumph over a top-15 Houston team and Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware.

Hatfield has also had success off the field. A recent release by the CFA cited his 1989 Arkansas class for excellence in terms of graduation rate (over 80 percent), one of the top 10 figures in the nation.

Hatfield played for three years at Arkansas (1962-64) and he was a starter on the National Championship team of 1964. A defensive back by trade, he earned his fame as the nation's top punt returner in 1963 and 1964. He also finished as the runner-up as a sophomore and is still the only college football player to finish in the top two in the nation in punt returns three straight seasons.

His most memorable play took place against Texas in 1964 when he raced 81 yards with a punt return for a touchdown in Arkansas' thrilling 14-13 victory. It was the key victory in the Razorbacks' championship season. Altogether, Hatfield scored five TDs via punt returns in his career, including an Arkansas record 95-yard return against Tulsa in 1963.

An accounting major who earned his diploma in the spring of 1965, Hatfield was an Academic All-American in 1964 and was the recipient of the Schwartz Award, presented annually to the top student-athlete at Arkansas. The 1964 All-SWC selection was inducted into the Arkansas Sports Hall of Fame in 1989.

Eric attends a Homework Center - a place that helps him when Mom and Dad can't. And when he works especially hard, he can win wonderful prizes - like tickets to a Clemson home game that he might otherwise never get to see.

Hundreds of Homework Centers across the nation focus on keeping struggling students from becoming dropouts. In actuality, they're doing a lot more than that. Many hardworking students are bringing their grades up from Fs to As, and in one South Carolina elementary school expulsions declined from 38 to 4 after the centers opened.

Duke Power is proud to help support such an important and effective program. We invite you to help too. Simply donate football or basketball season tickets you're unable to use or purchase extra tickets to contribute to the Homework Centers for use as prizes. Send them at least two weeks before game day to: John Geer, Duke Power Company, P.O. Box 1745, Clemson, SC 29633.

If you do, you'll be helping students like Eric tackle the books today so that tomorrow they can tackle the world.

The 1991-92 Clemson all-around sports program finished another successful year, as 13 of the 18 programs ranked in the top 25 of their respective final sports. Included in that 13 were 10 programs that were ranked in the top 20, tying the Clemson record for top 20 teams in an academic year. The highest ranked teams were the men’s indoor track team (second) and baseball squad (seventh). The men’s all-around sports program finished the year ranked 25th nationally.

Clemson teams laid claim to three ACC Championships last year as the football team won its first championship since 1988. The women’s indoor track team won the ACC Indoor Track Meet giving the team its first ever ACC indoor championship. The men’s track team also won the ACC indoor title for the fourth straight year. Clemson had 64 All-ACC selections and 27 All-Americans, tying the all-time record for All-America selections in a single academic year.

Men’s spring sports and women’s sports had an outstanding year. All four of Clemson’s men’s spring sports teams finished in the top 20 of their respective sports, the first time since 1987-88 that all four spring teams ranked in the final top 20. Baseball finished seventh, golf and men’s track finished 12th, while the men’s tennis team finished 20th. Five of Clemson’s seven women’s teams finished in the top 25. The women’s outdoor track team finished 17th, the women’s basketball team was 19th, the women’s swimming team was 20th, the women’s indoor track team was 22nd, and the women’s tennis team was 23rd.

Clemson also excelled in the classroom during the 1991-92 campaign. Clemson student-athletes had a record semester in the spring, when 109 competitors made a 3.0 or better. Former football player Bruce Bratton and women’s swimmer Liz Dolan won two of the highest academic awards distributed by the ACC. The Bob James Award was given to Bratton, while Dolan was presented with the Marie James Award. These scholarship awards are given to the top student-athletes, regardless of sport in the ACC.

Clemson had one National Coach-of-the-Year and two coaches were named the best in the ACC. Bob Pollock received both National Coach-of-the-Year and ACC Coach-of-the-Year honors after leading the track team to its best finish ever at the NCAA indoor meet. Wayne Coffman, women’s indoor track coach, was named the ACC and District III Coach-of-the-Year.

Three members of the ACC rank among the top seven schools in the history of college football in bowl game winning percentage (given a minimum of 15 bowl games). Georgia Tech is first with a 17-8 record, for 88 percent, while Clemson is sixth at 11-7, a 61.1 percent mark. Florida State, who will compete for the ACC crown for the first time in 1992, is seventh with an 11-7-2 record, good enough for 60 percent.

*ACC football attracted a league record 2,519,127 fans to its games last season. Over a 55-game schedule of home contests, that is an average of 45,802 per game. The previous records of 2,068,558 total fans and an average of 43,095, were established in 1985.

Six of the nine ACC schools have been listed in various top 35 rankings of preseason polls for the 1992 season.

The 1991 season marked the second straight year that the ACC placed five teams in postseason bowls. The ACC has had 14 bowl invitations over the last three seasons, a record for any three-year stretch in league history.

Only four coaches in the nation have taken a team to a postseason bowl game each of the last 10 years. Two of them, Ken Hatfield of Clemson and Bobby Bowden of Florida State, coach in the ACC.

The ACC is second only to the Pac 10 in terms of bowl game winning percentage over the years. The ACC members have a combined mark of 64-56-5 for a .532 figure, while the Pac 10 is 73-58-6 for a .555 mark.

Last year, 27 different ACC players made honorable mention All-American or better. This includes five players from Clemson, Rob Bodine, Ed McDaniel, Jeb Flesch, Levon Kirkland and Nelson Welch.

Nine ACC players were chosen by at least one first-team All-America squad. Four of the nine players were from Clemson. This was the most first-team All-America players from Clemson in the school's history.

Clemson and Florida State both rank among the top three in the nation in winning percentage over the last five years. Since 1987, Florida State is second only to Miami, while Clemson is third.

The ACC had the second best non-conference winning percentage in the nation last year with a 15-9-1 record, a 62 percent mark. In 1990 the ACC ranked first, winning 25 of 32 games.

Six of the nine ACC teams had winning records in 1991, tying a league mark for a single season.

The ACC could be termed a coach's league. Five of the nine league coaches have 100 career wins or more entering the 1992 season. Those five coaches are Bobby Bowden of Florida State (206), Bill Dooley of Wake Forest (154), George Welsh of Virginia (121), Dick Sheridan of N.C. State (112) and Ken Hatfield of Clemson (100).

Bowden, Sheridan and Hatfield are all among the top 15 winningest active coaches on a percentage basis. The ACC and the SEC are the only two conferences with three coaches ranked among the top 15 winningest active coaches.

The ACC was the only conference in the nation that featured five different teams that won at least eight games in 1991. Florida State, Clemson, N.C. State, Georgia Tech and Virginia all hit the eight-win mark. The ACC was also the only conference in which at least half of its teams won at least eight games. The Pac-10 and the SEC each had four teams with at least eight wins.

In 1991, the ACC had five teams ranked in the top 35 in the nation in total defense, more teams in the top 35 than any other conference in the nation. Clemson led the way with a fourth-place finish and a figure of 263.2 yards per game. The league also had five members among the top 30 teams in the nation in scoring defense.

The ACC also has a reputation for outstanding field goal kickers. In 1991, six of the top 44 field goal kickers in the country were from the ACC. Clemson's Nelson Welch led the way with an average of 1.55 per game, good enough for fourth in the nation. Only five kickers booted five field goals in a game last year across the country. Two of the five, Clemson's Nelson Welch, and Mike Green of Wake Forest, played in the ACC.

The ACC was also the top conference in the nation for nationally ranked punt returners in 1991. Seven of the top 45 punt returners in the nation were from the ACC. Clemson's Darnell Stephens led the conference and finished eighth in the nation.

Traditions are something that don't happen overnight, they evolve over a number of years. One tradition at Clemson that is going strong and heading into its 58th year is IPTAY. The IPTAY Scholarship Foundation, is known throughout the country for its faithful and generous contributions by its supporters. A recent USA Today article calls IPTAY the best-known organization of its kind in the nation. The article noted that at a time when college athletic costs are rising IPTAY continues to lead the way in supporting athletic scholarships at Clemson. IPTAY plays a major role in insuring that all 18 of the varsity sports at Clemson are given the maximum amount of scholarships allowed by the NCAA.

Thanks in part to IPTAY's contributions the 1991-1992 academic year proved to be one of the most successful ever for Clemson athletics. Thirteen of the 18 athletic teams at Clemson finished the year ranked in the top 25 in their respective sports. Ten of those teams were ranked in the top 20, which ties for the most top 20 teams at Clemson in an academic year.

An even more impressive fact was that Clemson had 27 All-Americans in 1991-1992, tying the record that was set during that 1990-1991 academic year. Clemson also had 64 first-team All-ACC selections, the third most in Clemson history for an academic year.

Over the last five years, 16 of Clemson's 18 teams have been ranked in the top 25 in the country at one time or another. During this time the Clemson football, women's cross country, women's basketball and golf teams have been in the top 25 all five years, while the men's indoor track, baseball, women's track and women's swimming teams have had four top 20 seasons.

The success of the Clemson athletic program comes during a time when the integrity and accountability of the academic progress of student-athletes are receiving national attention. IPTAY has been a large part of that success by being committed to the student-athlete.

IPTAY is recognized as one of the oldest, largest and most successful athletic fundraising organizations in America. IPTAY was the first athletic fundraising organization in the country to top the two, three, four, and five-million dollar marks in annual donations. It has had a record-breaking total for 28 straight years.

In 1934, Dr. Rupert Fike founded IPTAY with a very simple purpose in mind: IPTAY provides funds for athletic scholarships. Since 1934 IPTAY has certainly met Fike's goal, providing scholarships for over 5,000 student-athletes, trainers, and managers.

IPTAY currently provides the funds for tutorial programs staffed by trained academic advisors, assisted by graduate and undergraduate students. This support is intended to insure that all student-athletes are given the opportunity to earn their degree while participating in athletics.

IPTAY donors have also played an intricate role in the "Campaign for Clemson," a long range fund-raising project of the University. The University's original goal of $62 million dollars was surpassed with the next goal of $78 million also being surpassed in the campaign that ended on June 30, 1992. IPTAY provided three million dollars with ongoing opportunities for donors to be part of the Vickery Hall Academic Learning Center.

Vickery Hall, located on East Campus is a 27,000 square foot facility that houses the tutoring and advising programs for student-athletes. The building contains various sized study and tutoring rooms used for individual study as well as small group instruction. Computer facilities, an office/reception area for the advising staff and an auditorium, also are contained in Vickery Hall.

The generous support of 18,200 loyal donors to IPTAY has allowed the organization to go beyond the funding of athletic scholarships by providing the financial basis for many of the unparalleled athletic facilities at Clemson.

Since 1978, IPTAY has provided the funding for $34 million of capital improvements in the area of athletics. These improvements include the expansion of the football stadium, the newly renovated baseball facility (Tiger Field), the new outdoor track, the indoor tennis facility, the soccer stadium, the weight room, the new golf practice area, a new cross country course, and the IPTAY/Ticket office facility.

IPTAY is also proud to provide the funding for Tiger Band. Each year IPTAY establishes financial support for travel, uniforms and equipment for this integral part of the Clemson athletic program.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Endowment was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for non-athletes who are highly qualified academically. This scholarship endowment is funded by certain company gifts that are made as a result of employee contributions to IPTAY. In addition, the athletic department has made generous contributions to the endowment from athletic revenues.

The IPTAY Academic Fund is presently the largest scholarship endowment of its kind at Clemson providing $1.8 million in funds, currently benefiting more than 50 students. IPTAY's support extends to all of the student body.

The tremendous support of IPTAY is due, in large part, to the organizational makeup that allows donors to be as close to IPTAY as they are to their local IPTAY leadership. Each of South Carolina's 46 counties has an IPTAY County chairman, and every county is allotted an IPTAY representative for every 35 donors.

One important way IPTAY keeps in touch with its membership is the annual Clemson Club meeting held in April and May of each year. These meetings, which feature different coaches and administrators, are just one of the ways of making the local IPTAY members feel close to Clemson.

Clemson University will continue to be recognized and respected on the national level athletically and academically with the full support of IPTAY. IPTAY will continue to be successful because a loyal commitment to Clemson University is a way of life in the hearts of Clemson alumni and friends.

A long time ago, Jacqueline Harris told her husband Robert, that one day she would bring a star into the world. And by the time that James Larry, Onzell, Sharon, Mario, Rico, Ricky, Lonnie, Cody, D’Angelo, Jocko, Robbie, Onzell Andrea, and Roger (also known as Tyga) came along, the odds were that there would be a star among them.

Although all of the Harris children may be stars in their own right, Onzell Andre, the 12th child and 11th son of Jacqueline Harris’ brood of 13, has certainly fulfilled his mother’s prophecy, even though she might not have been thinking about football when she made the statement. He became a prodigy on the fields of little league, went on to a successful high school career, and has since made a name for himself on the major college level.

But that should be no surprise to anyone in the Harris family, because Onzell Andre Harris first made a name for himself before he could walk. “When I was little my parents tried to feed me baby food,” Harris laughs, “and I would spit it out every time. So they tried to crush up table food or whatever they were eating and I would spit it out. They tried fruits, vegetables, spaghetti, everything and I would spit it out. The only thing that they could find that I would eat was ratabagers. So they started calling me Rudy.”

It would seem that it wouldn’t be easy to carve a niche for yourself in a family of 13 children, but Harris says that getting attention was never a problem growing up. “Believe it or not, I was spoiled,” he remembers. “I was a Papa’s boy. The only problem I ever had with having so many brothers (and sister) was when it was Christmas. I would want to take my savings and buy everybody a gift, but once I would start counting my money, there would never be enough for everybody. We are still a very close family, even though our ages are very spread out.” (The oldest Harris child is 43, while Rudy’s younger brother is 17).

With so many boys in the family, it seems logical that sports would play a major role. But that wasn’t the case at the Harris household. In fact, Harris began playing football at the encouragement of his schoolmates, not his siblings. “I had never felt the need to play sports before because I always had someone to play with and something to do at home,” he recalls. “But when I was about eight years old, I would hear my friends at school talking about playing football. They would talk about scoring touchdowns and how much fun that was and I wanted to play. I didn’t know little kids could play football.

“So one day I decided to go out for the team. The coaches were real excited because I was big and fast. They gave me my uniform and told me to put my pads in and I had no idea how to do it. I walked out on the field and all of the little cheerleaders were there and everything, and I had my knee pads on my thighs and my thigh pads on my knees. The coach’s eyes just popped out. He had to take me over to the side and tell me how to put pads on. Once I figured out what I was doing, I loved it. I was really good at that age, nobody could catch me. But I had no clue what I was supposed to do on the field when I started, I just did it because my friends made scoring a touchdown seem like a lot of fun.”

The enjoyment of scoring touchdowns is something that Harris definitely caught on to and he has carried that with him ever since those first days of pee wee league. There aren’t any records of how many times he crossed the goaline in those early years, but since he began playing football in high school, he has reached paydirt an incredible 83 times (67 TD’s in high school, 16 at Clemson). “I loved football from the first day I started playing it,” says Harris. “When you’re little, everybody wants to be a doctor or a lawyer, but all I ever wanted to be was a football player. My family always encouraged me to follow my dreams.”

By the time he reached Brockton High School, it was obvious that Jacqueline Harris had fulfilled her prophecy in her son Rudy and that his dream of being a football player was a reality. At the tailback position, he was a USA Today, Parade, Street & Smith, and SuperPrep All-American as a prepper. His stats in his senior year alone included 1,821 yards rushing, 27 touchdowns, 174 points, a 38.5 yard punting average, two kickoff returns for touchdowns, three punt returns for touchdowns, 30 receptions for 460 yards, and eight receiving TD’s. At the end of such a stellar season, he was a top recruit of many major college programs.

It may have been somewhat of a surprise to those who had followed Harris’ career that he would go as far away as South Carolina to follow his dream, just as it may surprise many of the South Carolinians Harris comes in contact with when they hear his staunch Boston accent. “I wanted to say I had lived in the south and I knew that Clemson had the kind of program I wanted to play for,” says Harris. “I’m glad I have had the experience of living down here. The weather is great, the people are nice for the most part, and the food is great. That’s why I’ve gained my weight!”

The fact that Terry Allen, now the starting tailback for the Minnesota Vikings was entrenched at tailback, and that good Southern cooking had added a few pounds to Harris’ physique, led the Tiger coaches to move him to fullback when it came time for him to play. “I never thought I would play fullback, but now I’m glad I have,” says Harris. “I was good at tailback, so I carry a lot of things with me to the fullback position that make me special. I think I’m a tailback in a fullback’s body and that helps me do a lot of things.”

“I was good at running the ball when I got here and I was good at scoring, but I didn’t know much about blocking. I thought the way to show my talent to make a move, or try to make-and-bake somebody, or just run over them. I had to train myself that blocking was just showing my ability in a different way.”

Because he was so eager to fulfill his lifelong dream of becoming a professional football player, Harris decided last year to forego his last year of eligibility and signed with an agent. But after further consideration, he changed his mind. As a result, he was forced to miss the Tigers’ first three games of 1992. “It was really hard to sit back and watch,” he says. “Seeing my team going to battle, seeing them out there fighting and knowing I couldn’t contribute was tough. I know they can win without me, they have proven that, but it was hard to see them going to war and not be able to carry my load. It was going into a big battle and carrying nothing but a broom.”

In his first game back, against UT-Chattanooga, Harris picked up where he left off in 1991, as he came off the bench and scored two touchdowns. “I’ve missed three key games, so when I go out there, I can’t give 95 percent or even 99 percent. I have to give 100 percent on every play. My attitude is to go out there and execute and help our team win. I can’t go out there thinking in the back of my mind that I have to do well because the NFL is watching. I have to stay focused.”

Finally being so close to fulfilling his dream is exciting, but Harris admits that it is also a little scary. “A lot of people have followed me throughout my career and have had high expectations of me. It’s been hard to live up to my reputation. People are happy about what I have accomplished, but they still want me to conquer the world. I haven’t won a lot of honors in college, but I think that my ability and my desire will help me get what I want. I also have to work hard and get in shape. If I can do that, there is no reason why I can’t fulfill my dreams.”

When asked if he thinks he is the fulfillment of his mother’s prediction that she would bring a star into the world, Rudy Harris stops to think. “Well I made a name for myself up in the north, in the Boston area. Now I’ve made a name for myself here in the south. But I don’t think I’m a star yet because they don’t really know me out west. Maybe I will get to play pro ball out west somewhere, and then I can say I’m a star!”

Harris scored more touchdowns than any other Tiger over the last two years.

When Howard Hall was eight-years-old, he cried a lot. It wasn’t that he was an unhappy child. In fact, he was probably just as carefree as any other eight-year-old boy growing up in a town like Gastonia, NC. Except for one thing: even at that age, Howard Hall hated to lose. And that was the year that his Pee Wee football team posted an 0-10 record.

“I was only eight-years-old,” Hall remembers, “and you weren’t supposed to be able to play Pee Wee football until you were nine. But I went to practice with my uncle one day and the Junior Midget coach saw me on the sidelines and told me to go and talk to the Pee Wee coach and they let me play. I wanted to play real bad so they made me a defensive end. In my first game I had three interceptions, but we lost. We lost every game we played that season and I cried after every game.”

A decade and a half later, Howard Hall still hates to lose. “I still get in tears when we lose now and I’m a senior in college,” laughs Hall. “It hits me hard when we lose. I’m trying to get over that, because there are going to be some tough times when you are a member of a football team. But I don’t think I’ll ever accept losing.”

Hall ought to know about tough times when it comes to football, as he has definitely had his share. And if it hadn’t been for that intense hatred of losing, or at least of not succeeding, he might not have made it to his senior year at Clemson. The 6-1, 240-pounder signed with the Tigers in 1988, after a highly successful prep campaign at Ashbrook High School, where he earned Parade All-America honors. He followed in the footsteps of two other fullbacks from the Tar Heel state who had come to play for Clemson and would go on to play in the pros: Kevin Mack (Cleveland Browns) and Tracy Johnson (Seattle Seahawks). Hall would red-shirt his first season behind Johnson.

“I learned a lot that year, even though I was on the scout team,” Hall recalls. “The next year, Tony Kennedy and I played backup to Wesley McFadden, and when Wesley got hurt, I played a lot in the North Carolina and South Carolina games. I felt like I was right where I wanted to be. After we changed coaches during the offseason, Tony and I were battling for the starting position in spring practice. I won it in the fall and I was the starter at the beginning of 1990.”

Hall started his first contest in Ken Hatfield’s first game as the Tiger head coach against Long Beach State and had an auspicious beginning. He carried the ball 10 times in Clemson’s 59-0 blowout, gaining 78 yards and scoring a touchdown. As the starting fullback in the first four games of the season, he carried the ball 40 times for 189 yards and a very impressive 4.7 yard average. “Things were going my way there for a while,” remembers Hall. “I had a couple of good games and thought I was making improvement every week, then in the third quarter of the Appalachian State game I took a freak hit on the knee and was out for the next four weeks.”

After undergoing arthroscopic surgery, Hall missed the Tigers next three games, and although he started the last five games of the season, he carried the ball only 20 times and averaged a yard less per carry than he did before his injury. “The rest of that season, I was just trying to get by and trying to protect my knee,” he says. “I knew I wasn’t going to get the ball much, I mostly blocked for the tailback.” But even though he didn’t carry the ball as much, Hall did manage to score the winning touchdown in his first game back against N.C. State, and he caught five passes over the next five games, including a touchdown reception in the Hall of Fame Bowl win over Illinois.

Heading into 1991, Hall once again found himself battling for the starting position, and he started two of the first four games of the season, averaging 3.75 yards per rush. But the week before the Tigers’ key conference matchup with Virginia, Hall went down in practice with a sprained knee. “I thought it was over for me,” he says with a grimace. “I still had that competitive attitude, but it is hard to be competitive when you aren’t out there competing. When I came back, I didn’t play as much. I was over the injury physically, but I used to worry about getting hit from the side and I would try to square up and keep out of traffic. I didn’t want to be in a situation where I had to go in a hole and have people falling on my leg. They kept me out of the middle.” Although he came back and played in five games, his rushing averaged dropped to almost two yards per carry and he did not start another game in 1991.

Hall underwent another arthroscopic knee surgery in the spring of this year, and missed time in preseason workouts due to a pull and a sprained ankle. “I would get over one injury and then I would get another one,” he says. “I was getting real depressed because this was my senior year and I knew my knees were stronger and I wanted to stay away from injuries. So I started reading the Bible a lot and that helped me. Now I’m healthy and feeling better. But I’m still reading the Bible and knocking on wood.”

That may not be very sound theology, but Hall did earn his starting job back in the third game of 1992 and was averaging just under four yards per carry and 17 yards per reception heading into the Virginia game. And although the Tigers have lost some games in 1992, Hall has definitely learned how to be a winner. “My number-one goal this year is to stay healthy,” he says. “I want to prove that I can go a full season without missing a game because it really gets you out of the flow of things. I’m tired of missing games. I want to be a complete back and put the whole picture together: blocking, running and catching. I have to practice hard and listen to the little things that the coaches tell me. I have to perfect the little things. I’ve never been able to do that before because I was always trying to overcome an injury.”

The goals of becoming that complete back and having an injury-free season are parts of Hall’s larger goal for the future. “I love playing football,” he says. “I have loved it since that first game I played when I was eight-years-old. I want to keep playing football. Even when I kept getting injured, I couldn’t wait to get back because I love the game. Hopefully I can get a shot in the NFL, but if not, I want to play in Canada or any where.”

Hall turned in a big touchdown in the 1991 Hall of Fame Bowl win over Illinois.
Out of respect for the Clemson football team, please wait until after the game to run to your Jeep and Eagle dealer.

We realize that it could be difficult to sit through an entire game knowing that you could be driving one of these tempting new vehicles. Jeep Grand Cherokee’s optional new 220 horsepower V8 engine is enough to send even the most die-hard fan to one of the exits. And as if that weren’t enough, there’s the totally new Eagle Vision TSi with a 214 horsepower engine and dual air bags standard. So please, be polite, look at the pictures, root for the home team and, if you must, leave at halftime. Your local dealer will have the game on the radio.

This new classic videotape highlights the 60 years of Coach Frank Howard at Clemson.

Every Clemson fan will want this video classic... featuring the Coach's famous wit and common-sense wisdom. The video traces the development of Clemson's athletic department from its rural origins to the national powerhouse it is today.

The Coach is a treasury of stories... as he recounts the founding of IPTAY, the building of Death Valley, the story behind Howard's Rock...plus dozens of other stories that have made Coach Howard a legend. It even features rare footage of the Coach's 1930 appearance on Alabama's winning Rose Bowl team.

- Action footage of famous athletes, rivalries and Bowl Games
- Historic scenes around the campus
- Reminiscences of the Tigers' first All-American, Banks McFadden; IPTAY's, Allison Dalton; and legendary, Bob Bradley.

One of the hallmarks of John Wooden’s great UCLA teams of the 1960s and 1970s was depth. In 1972, when the Bruins had Bill Walton as their starting center and Sven Nater as his backup, Sports Illustrated stated in its preseason issue that Wooden’s team could put two top-10 teams on the court. Over time the magazine proved to be prophetic as both Walton and Nater became multiple season all-stars in the NBA.

Clemson golf coach Larry Penley has some of the same problems Wooden had 20 years ago. While the Tiger mentor does not have a superstar of Walton’s proportions, he does have his deepest team ever. The Clemson roster features three returning All-ACC players who have 313 career rounds of college golf experience between them. Four players on the roster have won at least one tournament in their respective careers.

“Our depth is obviously going to be a strength,” says Penley, who has taken the Tigers to the NCAA tournament every year he has been the head coach (since 1984). “I have more good players than in any season in the past. Out of this group of 12 players on our roster I think we could fill two teams that could finish in the top 20. It will be tough to keep everyone happy because some outstanding players will be sitting at home at times this year.

The 1992 Clemson squad is led by seniors Nicky Goetze, Danny Ellis and Bobby Doolittle. All have been All-ACC at one time or another, all have played at least 96 NCAA rounds of golf, and all three rank in the top 12 in Clemson history in career stroke average. In the Golfweek preseason All-America ratings Goetze was listed as a second-team All-American, Ellis as a third-team choice and Doolittle as an honorable mention nominee. Never before has Clemson had three preseason All-Americans on the same team.

“Our seniors work well together,” said Penley. “Each one of them is capable of being the leader of this team. Every one has the game and the desire to excel. It will be my challenge to keep those three guys focused on college golf this year. All three have a bright future in the game. We hope to challenge for a national championship and the play of the three seniors will be the key.”

Goetze has a career average of 73.35 for his 117 rounds of play, the third best career stroke average in Clemson history. That 73.35 figure trails only Chris Patton and Kevin Johnson and is ahead of current PGA pro Dillard Pruitt.

Goetze, whose sister is the defending NCAA women’s champion, is also in the top five in Tiger annals in rounds of par-or-better (47), top 10 finishes (13), rounds in the 60s (9), and rounds of 75-or-under (92). He began his senior year in superb fashion at the Ping/Golfweek Invitational October 2-3 when he captured the individual title. He was the only one of the 90 golfers to score under par (214) on the Champions Course in Lexington, KY. It is the site of the NCAA championships this coming June.

Ellis is considered to be the home run hitter of the 1992 Tiger team. Clemson’s number-seven ranked golfer in history in terms of stroke average (73.98) showed his abilities when he won the ACC Tournament last year with an eight-under 208. He became just the third Clemson golfer in history to win the ACC Tournament. He then followed that with a number-four finish at the NCAA regionals.

Doolittle, the number-12 ranked golfer in Clemson history in terms of stroke average (74.64), is a veteran of 102 career tournaments and has shown the most improvement over the course of his career of the trio. He averaged 76.19 for his freshman year, but posted a 73.47 figure as a junior when he posted three top 10 finishes. The native of Delray Beach, FL showed his clutch, shot-making abilities in the last round of the ACC Tournament last year when he fired a 67.

Junior Mark Swygert is the number-four man on the squad. He is the only one of the three senior leaders who has not played for the Tigers in a ACC tournament. That could change this season, as Penley said he is off to a tremendously fast start.

Goetze, Ellis and Doolittle give Clemson one of the most experienced teams in the nation. All three have won tournaments and been chosen All-ACC over the last three years.
HOW DO SOUTH CAROLINA HIGH SCHOOLS PLAY TAG WITH THE TIGERS AND WIN?

Every high school in South Carolina comes out a winner when you buy an official South Carolina license tag designed especially for Clemson.

All tag proceeds support the Clemson Scholars program, which offers scholarships to the brightest high school students in South Carolina. Visit your Highway Department Field Service Office to purchase a tag, or contact the Clemson Alumni Association, 803/656-2345, for more information.

Clemson Football '92
Tiger Band

by Beth McInnis

At Clemson, the very mention of the word "Homecoming" fills the heads of alumni and undergrads alike with thoughts of colorful floats, changing leaves, Tiger football and most of all, old friends and family.

Homecoming at Clemson is a fun, heartwarming time for Tiger fans of all ages. Alumni look forward to seeing their beloved college friends and reliving campus memories. Undergrads are found daily (and nightly) on Bowman Field building magnificent displays and "catching up" on news and gossip.

Friday night of Homecoming week brings the "world's largest pep rally," Tigerama with its skits and frolics by campus groups. The night is capped off with a spectacular fireworks display. Homecoming day is filled with more fellowship, great food and great football, as everyone packs into Memorial Stadium for the game. Halftime sees the introduction of Clemson's Homecoming queen and her court.

Homecoming is a time of tradition at Clemson. What better group to highlight such a week than Tiger Band?

Every year Tiger Band alumni look forward to returning to their alma mater to participate in the annual Alumni Band. The 10th annual Alumni Band is led this year by Rhonda Redding, a 1988 Clemson graduate.

The alumni band will rehearse early on game-day morning with Tiger Band. There's nothing like predawn practice to jog college memories! In addition to practices, a breakfast will be held before the game and a reception will host the group after the game at the Alumni Center. Video and films from years past will be shown at the reception.

Over 100 Tiger Band alumni are expected to attend activities. The Alumni Association is providing T-shirts for the group to wear during its performance.

According to Redding, this year's alumni band features an overwhelming number of married alumni who met while playing in Tiger Band.

"My roommate met her husband by throwing acorns at him during band practice," said Redding. Not only are several band couples already married, there are two weddings scheduled in the next few weeks.

(That's fair warning for current Tiger Band members!) At any rate, the annual Alumni Band gives undergrads something to look forward to in years to come.

Currently, the 210-member band practices on weekday afternoons. Tiger Band auditions are held in the spring. There are 178 instrumentalists, three drum majors, 22 flag corps members and seven twirlers in the band.

The 22-member flag corps is one group that works extra hard during the week. In addition to regular practices, the corps has other required practices.

Sara Weeks is in her first year as Flag Captain. She has been in Tiger Band for three years as a member of the flag line. A native of Rock Hill, SC, she is a graduate of Northwestern High School. The junior is majoring in Industrial engineering.

Cheryl Hosler, wife of Tiger Band director Dr. Mark Hosler, is in her first year as coordinator and choreographer of the flag line. She is a native of Columbus OH, and holds a degree in dance from Ohio State. She served as twirler/flag instructor for two Columbus area high schools.

The Flag Corps and Tiger Band will march into Memorial Stadium today and perform the traditional pregame show. The band will take the field in the traditional script "Tigers."

Dotting the 'i' today is Don Golightly, the current President of the Clemson University Alumni Association. A Clemson graduate, Golightly is employed with Design Collaborators in Columbia. That firm most recently designed the new Vickery Hall athletic/academic learning center, and the renovation of the recruiting room in Memorial Stadium.

Tiger Band's halftime show carries on the theme of this year's Homecoming week, "Tiger TV Classics." The first number is a medley of classic TV showtunes, including themes from "Andy Griffith," "Green Acres," and "Mr. Ed." Another medley will feature classic cartoon themes, including the "Bugs Bunny" theme. All of the medleys will feature the flag line and twirlers.

As the new Homecoming queen and her court are introduced, Tiger Band will perform the Bob Hope theme, "Thanks for the Memories." The court will ride around Frank Howard field on the 36th Homecoming float, designed and built by the brothers of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Tiger Band is under the direction of Dr. Mark Hosler. Director of University Bands is Dr. Rick Goodstein.

Homecoming at Clemson is a time of tradition, memories, friends and happy times. As alumni from places near and far converge on Clemson's campus, all appreciate the beauty and memories of college days at Clemson.
One of Clemson's most impressive athletic facilities is not quite as visible as the mammoth Death Valley, even though it may be an even more important reason for the Tigers' success. Clemson's strength training facility, located in Jervey Athletic Center, provides Clemson athletes with the very best in equipment, supervision and atmosphere, as the Tiger strength training staff knows that success in the area of strength training will mean success on the football field.

Head Strength Coach Gary Wade and his staff work constantly to ensure that their facility is one of the nation's best. Several renovations made over the last several years have ensured that it is among the best, on the collegiate and professional levels. It is no accident that the Tigers have posted a 63-18-3 record, won four ACC Championships, had 16 first or second-team All-Americans, and 48 first-team all-conference selections since Wade joined the Clemson staff in 1985.

Wade and his assistants, Scott Bennett, Al Caronia, Jeff Fish, Jeff Looney, and Scott Hines personally supervise the individual weight programs of hundreds of athletes. The strength training staff spends long hours working around the various schedules of each sport and even takes the facility on the road when the Tiger football team plays in a bowl game.

Join Coach Ken Hatfield and staff at the 1993 Clemson Fightin' Tiger Football Camp on the beautiful Clemson University campus. Camp sessions available for boys in grades 4-12.

3-Day Camps    6-Day Camp
The Clemson University Athletic Department provides the following for your safety and emergency medical needs:

1. Advanced cardiac life-support stations in four locations (North stands, Upper North deck, South stands, Upper South deck). These units are staffed with skilled caregivers, nurses, physicians, cardiologists, interns, paramedics, and EMTs.

2. Mobile units of EMTs and paramedics are strategically located throughout the entire stadium.

3. Ambulances with life-support equipment are available in North stand and South stand areas and have prearranged routes for evacuation to local hospitals. Learn to recognize these personnel and facilities.

WHAT TO DO IF EMERGENCIES ARISE

Please step back and give the organized EMS personnel room to work. Well-intentioned attempts to help by untrained persons interfere with the efficiency of the EMS system. If you have basic or advanced training in specific life-support methods, make your qualifications known and offer your help. Untrained personnel can be frequently more harmful than helpful.

Most emergencies occurring at the stadium result from pre-existing medical conditions. Bring your medical identification card or wear medical identification jewelry. Moderation is the key with dress, food, beverage intake and physical exertion. Our two more frequent serious medical problems at football games are allergic reactions to insect stings and heart attacks.

INSECT STINGS: Common at outdoor events. Treat immediately with ice. Seek medical advice. If allergic, carry a kit from your physician with you.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE A HEART ATTACK:
The symptoms of a heart attack vary, but the usual warning signs are:

1. Uncomfortable pressure, fullness, squeezing or pain in the center of your chest lasting for two minutes or more.
2. Pain spreading to the shoulders, neck, jaw, arms, or back.

3. Dizziness, fainting, sweating, nausea and/or shortness of breath.

Expect a Denial
Frequently heart attack victims deny they're having a heart attack. The event is frightening or they don't want the embarrassment of a false alarm. Therefore, they delay getting help by ignoring their symptoms or rationalizing, "it's just indigestion."

Find out what's really wrong. Prompt response can dramatically increase chances of survival and recovery.

New therapies have been developed that can minimize heart damage and save lives if treatment begins within the first few hours of symptom onset. "Time is muscle." Get help or get to a hospital immediately.

The stadium emergency phone number is (803) 656-2999

In the first 50 years of Death Valley, the Tigers have won 74 percent of their games.

In 1991, two very special anniversaries in the Clemson football tradition were observed. Not only did the 1991 season mark the 10th anniversary of Clemson's National Championship season, but it also marked the 50th season of the place where the Tigers won five games that year: Memorial Stadium.

In the first 50 years of Memorial Stadium, Clemson has a record of 170-62-6, including a 12-0-1 ledger over the last two seasons. Clemson has a 15-game unbeaten streak at home and has a career winning ratio of 74 percent entering 1992.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers who call it home, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before head coach Jess Neely left for Rice University after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message. "Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That's all you'll ever need'.

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing (there were many trees), but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work: clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally, on September 19, 1942, Clemson Memorial Stadium opened with the Tiger Football team thrashing Presbyterian College, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow...and grow and grow. This year Clemson celebrates its 51st year in this outstanding facility.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young football player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, however, the boy was swollen twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the stadium including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete was poured.

Howard says that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he says. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through. I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more weeks' pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard says that on the first day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 PM and we played at 2:00 PM." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,656 West end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the stadium as crowds swelled - the first one in 1978 and the second in 1983. This increased capacity to over 80,000, which makes it one of the 10 largest on-campus stadiums in the country.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original foundation of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The most recent upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $86 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

On November 16, 1974 the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Athletic Director Bobby Robinson says that Memorial Stadium has many features that make it a top facility. "One thing that makes it so good is the number of sideline seats," he says. "We don't think there is a bad seat in the house."

"We also have outstanding dressing rooms, press facilities, and ample parking nearby. Another unique feature of the stadium is the number of private boxes."

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.
CONFERENCE CHAMPIONS

When you're in charge of kicking off your company's big conference, you want to make sure no one fumbles the ball or misses the goal. That's why meeting planners all across the country are choosing the Palmetto International Exposition Center for conferences, conventions, and trades shows. With more than 512,000 square feet of meeting and exhibit areas, we have the space and services you need to tackle a full season of business meetings, corporate parties, banquets and special events, no matter how large or small. You won't find us sitting on the sidelines making you call all the plays — our team scores extra points by arranging catering and decorating services and operating our new light and sound system.

Plus, we're moving up in the rankings for the Spring '93 season. That's when we open the doors to our new full-service Conference Center, featuring 30,000 square feet of additional meeting space, a fully equipped kitchen, and banquet seating and service for up to 2,500 people.

So put the conference champions on your team. Plan your next conference at the Palmetto International Exposition Center. It's sure to improve your standing.

Here's A Marketing Opportunity Worth Cheering About

If your marketing takes you to the Southeast, then follow the paw prints to Clemson, South Carolina. Here you'll find unique sponsorship marketing opportunities involving Clemson University's highly successful athletic program.

Tiger fans are famous for their enthusiastic support — setting new attendance records every year, and contributing more money to their athletic scholarship fund (over $5,800,000 in 1990) than any other college support group in the USA. And their support and loyalties extend to the companies who sponsor Clemson athletics.

So call Clemson today, and we'll show you how the Tigers can put some teeth into your marketing program.

Please call Associate Athletic Director Len Gough at (803) 656-2095.

The balancing act will return to Clemson in 1992-93. This does not mean a high-wire show will come to Tigertown. Instead, it implies the Lady Tigers will be more balanced this season with added height and inside power to compliment a perimeter game that features three-point sharp-shooters who carried Clemson to a second-round appearance in the NCAA tournament and a 21-10 record a year ago.

The 1991-92 Tigers lacked a solid inside game with their tallest players being 6-2. Last season, the Lady Tigers had to rely heavily on outside shooting, an uncharacteristic trait for Clemson compared to Jim Davis' teams in the past.

"We had some talented players last year, but we had to rely too much on perimeter shooting," said Davis, who has taken the Lady Tigers to five NCAA Tournaments since his arrival at Clemson.

"As a team, we did not have scoring or rebounding balance inside or outside. We did not have the power game last year that we have had in the past. We are going to stress that more this season. We have some talented frontcourt players with Shandy Bryan, Rhonda Jackson, and Ade Kwange returning for their senior seasons. We should have an even more potent inside game with the addition of our 6-6 signee, Tabitha Chambers, and 6-2 transfer Jessica Barr.

"We did not have a 'go-to' player last year. If you have to rely on a perimeter game there are going to be nights when the shots will not fall. We will have a more sound inside game than we had last season, as we had so many new faces operating in the paint."

Clemson returns three of its top four scorers from last season, including two 1,000-point plus scorers in Shandy Bryan and Kerry Boyatt-Hall.

Bryan has scored 1,070 points during her career or 11.0 points per contest. Boyatt-Hall has scored 1,159 points or 12.6 points per game during her career. Boyatt-Hall is 11th on the all-time Clemson scoring list, while Bryan is 12th.

The Tigers will be an even better outside shooting team than last year according to Davis. Clemson broke the school's record for most three-point field goals made (159), attempted (395) and percentage (.403) in 1991-92. The Lady Tigers also led the ACC in three-point field goal pct with a .403 mark. This figure was also 12th in the nation last season.

"We should be a better shooting team than last year. With the return of Tara Saunooke, Kerry Boyatt-Hall, Rema Miller, and Dana Puckett, I think our perimeter shooting is in good shape with another year of experience." Boyatt-Hall is the school's and the ACC's all-time career leader in three-point field goal pct. with a .420 mark. Saunooke was fifth in the nation in three-point goal pct. with a .469 figure, and she was also the highest ranked freshman in this category last year.

The Lady Tigers only averaged 39.6 rebounds per game last season, the lowest figure ever by a Davis-coached team at Clemson. The Lady Tigers' leading rebounder, Shandy Bryan, returns. Bryan averaged 7.9 rpg. last year, which was sixth in the league. The senior from Morristown, TN is eighth on the school's career list for most rebounds with 616. She could possibly become the Lady Tigers' third all-time rebounder this season. Rhonda Jackson, the Tigers' second leading rebounder in 1991-92, is also back with a 5.7 mark.

"Our rebounding has to improve, and I am not just talking about post-player rebounding. Our perimeter people must improve their rebounding abilities. We will stress rebounding in early season workouts, especially offensive rebounds by our inside people. Even though we are a good outside-shooting team, we have to be able to get the second and third shots.

"When you lose a player like Cheron Wells you lose explosiveness, especially in the open court. Speed and quickness allow a team to be able to push the ball down the floor. I think we will have adequate speed and quickness this season. We run a controlled fast break anyway and it is not necessarily the initial thrust of the fast break that we are trying to convert. We usually convert our fast breaks from the second or third person filling the lanes."

Clemson did add height to the roster this year with the addition of Tabitha Chambers. At 6-6, she becomes the tallest player to ever play for Clemson. The Tigers also added height to the small forward position with 6-1 Alison Rhoad joining the Tigers.

"We will be a taller team with Tabitha Chambers in the post. With freshman Alison Rhoad being able to play the small forward, this gives us a bigger lineup. We can put the tallest team in my career on the floor this year.

"Defensively, we have a lot of new faces last year, and our defensive principles are not easy to learn. It takes time to master the techniques. The new people last season understand our defensive system better now. We had some players make some big defensive strides last year. Rhonda Jackson came a long way in terms of her post defense. Kerry Boyatt-Hall has improved her defense during her career. Dana Puckett has shown improvement since her arrival at Clemson. Solid defense has been our forte and we have been solid every year and I expect it to remain this way.

"Our goals have remained the same. These goals include winning the ACC championship, winning 20 or more games, participating in the NCAA tournament, and competing for the national championship. To accomplish these goals, a team has to be very good and very lucky. We do not want to put undue pressure on our players, but they know it takes hard work to reach these goals throughout the season."

"We have a solid nucleus with seven players returning. One of the keys this season will be how well our young people learn the system. Barr is a veteran, having played at Georgia. We have four veterans in the backcourt and four in the post area. I think we can afford to give our young players time to develop with our veterans returning. If we can receive early contributions from them, it will be a plus.

"By the end of the year, we will be a solid basketball team. We may not win as many games, but we will be a better basketball team. I have high expectations for this team."

You Make The Call

NCAA Football '92
by Sanford Rogers

In sports, as well as life, desire plays an important role in what a person accomplishes. There have been numerous occasions in sports when an athlete has been injured and not expected to be able to compete at the level that they are accustomed to. But time and time again, an athlete’s desire proves the odds wrong.

Paulette Russell, a returning All-America swimmer for the Tigers, has done just that in her time at Clemson, with the 1991-92 swimming season being a perfect example. Russell was able to swim just four weeks prior to the ACC Swimming and Diving Championships after suffering from an injury. At the time of the comeback it was not known just how much of an impact Russell would have on the season.

While the Clemson team had been competing for over three months, Russell now had precious little time to get ready for the championships. “It was kind of different having so little time in the water before getting ready for the ACC’s,” said Russell. “The hardest aspect of the whole experience was making myself believe that I could do it. Fortunately for me, Coach (Jim) Sheridan and the whole staff made me believe in myself.”

Russell did more than just compete at the ACC Championships, she excelled. The Oceanport, NJ native left the championships capturing first place in the 500 freestyle and 200 breaststroke. She was also a member of the 800 freestyle team that won the conference title. Russell was a major reason the Clemson team, which had struggled during the regular season, finished as ACC runner-up. The Clemson women went on to a number-20 finish nationally. Russell went on to finish seventh nationally in the 500 freestyle and earn an All-America certificate. She joined Pam Hayden and Mitzi Kremer as Tigers who have won All-America honors in that event.

“It was such a good feeling for the team to do so well,” recalled Russell. “We had struggled some during the regular season, but Coach Sheridan kept telling us that we would be ready when the ACC’s came along and that we would be faster. He was right.”

Sheridan recalls how Russell and his Clemson team responded to the challenge. “There is no question that Paulette made an impact on our team,” stated Sheridan. “Not only did she come back from an injury, but she more importantly gave us the quality that we needed to compete for the ACC Championship. Granted, we did not have a great dual-meet season, but you have to look at the broader picture. It is where you finish up at the end of the season, not where you start.”

Russell has finished the campaign strong during her entire career at Clemson. She garnered a second-place finish at the ACC Championships in the 500 freestyle during her freshman campaign, then won the event as a sophomore and a junior. It is no surprise that she views the 500 freestyle as her favorite event. “The 500 is the event that I enjoy the most,” noted Russell. “I guess that I am so used to the event that it is almost second nature. The only thing left for me to do in that event is to win the NCAA’s.”

Sheridan, who is just the third Clemson coach, regardless of spot, to lead a team to a Top 20 finish in his first season, thinks that Russell can accomplish that goal. “Paulette is such a competitor. What she did last season was amazing. Her coming back in such a short time last year and doing so well is a compliment to her ability and dedication. If she stays healthy this season, good things will happen for Paulette Russell and Clemson.”

Russell sees the 1992 Clemson team as an exciting one. “We have a real strong group of swimmers. After last season the team can see just what hard work can accomplish. If this team stays healthy and has a positive attitude, there is no reason why we can’t take the next step up to being conference champions.”

Sheridan agrees with Russell’s positive vibes about this year’s squad. “I believe that our team was the best team at the conference meet last season, we just were not accustomed to the success. After last year there should be no self-doubt about our abilities. We need to set our goals beyond just being the runners-up.”

A positive attitude, along with leadership ability, would have to be two of Russell’s best qualities. At the beginning of the academic year in August, Russell and men’s swimmer Henry Faris addressed the incoming group of talented freshmen. “Both Paulette and Henry are people that our freshman should look up to,” stated Sheridan. “I wanted our new people to hear from two people who have worked hard to achieve their goals.”

Russell also views senior leadership as an important ingredient to any successful team. “I think every team that is a success has good senior leadership. I know that when I came in as a freshman, I looked up to the seniors. But we can’t make the younger people on the team look up to us, they have to respect our hard work. I think if they see us working to be the best that we can, they will do the same.”

Russell views the swimming training schedule as an important factor in the success of the program. Both the men’s and women’s team’s practice together, with the first practice of the day coming at 6:00 AM. “Practicing with the guys makes us a better team. They are faster than the women, but you try to work harder to keep up with them. By doing things together, you become closer to the entire team.”

Sheridan thinks that the group practice concept is important. “I have been in swimming programs that did things together, and I have been in programs that do things separately. To me, practicing together really makes a difference. You are showing the women that they are just as important as the men’s program. The motivation from this is certainly a positive.”

With Paulette Russell’s desire, motivation should be no problem for the Clemson team. She has proven just what hard work can accomplish, even if it took just four weeks.

Nature, our most valuable resource, is a delicately balanced ecosystem entrusted to all of us. At Laidlaw Environmental Services, we take seriously our responsibility to manage, protect and restore the environment.

As the first statewide sponsor of South Carolina Waterfowl Association’s Adopt-A-Habitat program, we helped provide nesting areas for many of our state’s wood ducks. We helped spur a new industry by turning a clay mine in Clarendon County into a new crawfish farm; and our exciting, multimedia educational program, Earth Academy, is teaching children and adults how they can be part of the solution to recycling and hazardous waste problems.

Managing and protecting the environment is an art and a science. We will continue to search for ways to involve all of us, as partners, through education, reclamation, and conservation.

Helping Preserve Our Resources Through Conservation, Land Reclamation, and Education.

The South Carolina Waterfowl Association's award for Corporate Sponsor of the Year 1991-92 was given to Laidlaw Environmental's dedication to the conservation and enhancement of South Carolina's wetlands and wetland wildlife resources.

Clemson Football '92
Clemson University’s commitment to provide its student-athletes with the very best of facilities is evident in many ways. From the soaring upper decks of Memorial Stadium, to the state-of-the-art strength training facility, young men and women from all 18 of Clemson’s varsity sports have the very best in facilities for training and competition. But Clemson’s commitment to provide its student-athletes with awesome facilities doesn’t apply only to areas of athletic competition, but to academic life as well.

The most convincing evidence of this commitment is Clemson University’s Academic Learning Center, Vickery Hall, which opened in the spring of 1991. The $3 million facility is among the first in the nation devoted entirely to the athletic-academic advising program. The two-story, 27,000-square-foot building is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of student-athletes, and consolidates a variety of academic services for their use.

The goal of the facility is to function as a support system in providing the student-athlete the opportunity to reach his or her full potential. Vickery Hall is a commitment by the Clemson University Athletic Department to give each student-athlete a meaningful opportunity to make his or her Clemson experience a fulfilling one, not only during his or her years at Clemson, but long after the student-athlete enters the professional world.

"Vickery Hall is one of the most important facilities the Clemson University Athletic Department has ever built or will ever build. It makes a philosophical statement about the institutional commitment - giving our student-athletes the same opportunity to achieve their full potential academically that we give them athletically. We’re very serious about that," said Athletic Director Bobby Robinson.

Given the time pressures of athletic participation and practice, student-athletes face a difficult balancing act in trying to perform well both on the playing field and in the classroom. With respect to this, the Clemson academic advising program has provided one of the best academic tutoring and advising programs in the nation over the last several years. The completion of Vickery Hall gives the Academic Advising Program an even greater opportunity to help student-athletes reach the short-term goal of graduation and the long-term goal of success in the world.

Vickery Hall is located in the mainstream of east campus, behind Jordan Hall at the top of Bryan Mall. The facility is impressive aesthetically, but even more so for the many purposes it serves. The main entrance to the building is a 1,570-square foot reception/office area, comprised of five advisors’ offices, two graduate student offices, and a conference room. Also located on the bottom floor is the office of Bill D’Andrea, the director of Clemson’s student-athlete enrichment program. The building also boasts a 175-seat auditorium to be used for classes, team meetings, review sessions, and seminars. The various speakers and lecturers who will come to work with Clemson student-athletes as part of the student-enrichment program will also use this facility. The auditorium is equipped with a projection booth and state-of-the-art audio and video equipment and is available to other campus groups when not in use for athletic advising.

The 13,000-square-foot study and tutoring area on the second floor comprises the majority of the center and is used primarily during the evening hours. A large 65-seat study room and nine 20-seat study rooms are designed as classrooms with freestanding desks. One-on-one or small group instruction takes place in 28 small tutoring rooms accommodating eight to 10 students each, two medium tutoring rooms for 20 people each and three large tutoring rooms for 40 people each.

Computing Facilities

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Services has recognized the need for students to have access to high-quality computing equipment and has made a commitment to providing the student-athletes at Clemson with such equipment. Located on the first floor of Vickery Hall, the Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Services Microcomputer Laboratory, the lab is open six days a week, for 16 hours a day on Monday through Thursday.

The lab staff consists of mostly graduate students, many of whom are pursuing advanced degrees in computer science. Lab staff members are available for tutoring of any Computer Science course as well as the many management, engineering and business courses that deal with personal computers. Student-athletes may also arrange tutoring sessions outside normal lab hours any time during the school year.

Computers in the lab can reach many of the other machines on campus, including the NAS mainframe, and are in turn, connected to a world-wide internetwork, allowing lab machines to access computing resources throughout the world. This also allows access to lab resources from computers throughout the world.

The following is a list of some of the equipment available:

- 18 Macintosh personal computers
- 15 IBM personal computers
- 5 Laser Printers
- 2 Novell Netware Servers (allows users to access and share files from different computers around campus.)
Student-Athlete Career Assistance Program

The Student-Athlete Career Assistance Program is one of the most important programs provided by the staff of Vickery Hall. The philosophy of this program is to provide help in securing summer employment and to aid in meeting long-term career goals.

By using the resources available to the University, Alumni Center and the Athletic Department, Bill D’Andrea is working to establish a network of businesses, companies, and executives who will help assist with The Summer Employment Assistance Program. The program’s main goal is to provide the student-athlete with a job experience and a work history, which he or she can apply to his or her academic discipline.

The Long Term Career Assistance Program will be coordinated with the academic colleges, the Placement Center, and through the Athletic Department contacts. This program is designed to help prepare the student-athlete for full-time employment and will focus on resume writing and interviewing techniques so that each student-athlete will be competitive and aggressive when dealing with companies who visit the Clemson campus.

Personal Growth Program

Another aspect of Clemson University’s commitment to help student-athletes reach their potential in all areas of their life - academically, athletically, and socially, is the recently implemented personal growth program. This program is one of the many purposes of Vickery Hall. This particular area of student development is designed to enhance and support the lives of student-athletes during their enrollment in college as well as in their life experiences after graduation.

Bobby Douglas, the Development Coordinator, and the Vickery Hall staff realize that student-athletes have more obligations than a regular college student. The personal growth program seeks to eliminate some of the stresses of adjustment to the higher level of academics and athletics. It is the group’s special task to assist the student-athlete by creating a finely tuned balance of all areas to insure success in obtaining a Clemson University degree, by supporting successful athletic practice and competition, enhancing personal growth, and helping with the transition to life after college.

A series of personal growth programs will be offered to student-athletes throughout each semester. Some programs may accomplish their objectives in one session, while others may be ongoing throughout the academic year. Some of the personal growth programs are as follows:

Alcohol and Drug Issues:
The intent of this program is to provide the student-athlete with an overview of the disease of addictions and chemical dependence. Emphasis will be placed on providing basic awareness of how substance abuse effects individuals, families and athletic teams.

Current Topics of Concern:
The idea behind this segment of the Personal Growth Plan is to address issues that effect students such as human sexuality, birth control, date rape, etc.

Career Preparation:
The Career Preparation Plan is to encourage all student-athletes to think about life after sports and after graduation. Many sources of information will be available, from career testing to self-paced computer programs, and even with resume preparation and interview skills.

Nutrition and Eating Disorders:
Eating habits and proper diet are very important in maintaining a sound body and mind. The focus of this program revolves around presenting information so that student-athletes can analyze their own eating habits and carefully choose a balanced diet with enough calories to maintain good health.

Personal Finance:
Student-athletes on athletic scholarships are not allowed to have jobs during the academic year. Therefore, it is important to budget personal finances so they do not run out before the semester. This program not only discusses budgeting but also the responsible use of credit.

Stress Management:
All student-athletes face additional concerns during their college days than normal students. Many times these add stress to the everyday lives of student-athletes. The object of this program is to teach the student-athlete ways of identifying and handling personal stress so it does not interfere with the maintenance of good mental and physical health.

Study Skills/Time Management: These two topics are combined because a major part of developing good study skills involves having the time to delegate to studying. Objectives of this program are to expose student-athletes to different types of study techniques that are proven effective.

Motivation/Self Esteem:
The objective of this program is to improve the level of self esteem for student-athletes to positively impact their productivity in all areas of campus life.

We live in a world filled with stress, whether imposed by outside forces or that of the self-imposed variety. Experts have many different prescriptions for the prevention of stress, but for the Clemson football team, deep snapper Roger Hutchins may be just what the doctor ordered.

Hutchins, a graduate-student who is working on his master's degree in business administration, is known for his imitations of Clemson coaches and other players when times are tense. "I started doing imitations when I was little," recalled Hutchins. "It all came about when my mom would tell my sister and I to clean our rooms as kids. When we were a little slow about cleaning up she would get kind of mad. As soon as she would leave the room, I would imitate her. I have been doing them ever since. I started doing imitations to people other than my family in pep rally's at Shelby High School, just to make everybody forget about the game coming up. It worked then so I started doing them at Clemson for the same reason."

Tiger placekicker-punter Nelson Welch thinks the imitations make for a lighter atmosphere. "Roger just takes some of the jitters out of getting ready to play a game. The biggest thing that it does is make the guys relax."

The Shelby, NC native has not had too much time to relax during his stay in Tigertown. He came to Clemson as a walk-on, being invited by Clemson offensive Coordinator, Larry Van Der Heyden to try out for the team's long snapper position. "Coach Van Der Heyden was watching Shelby High School play when he noticed my snapping. He told me that if I came to Clemson I would get a chance to compete for the position."

Hutchins, who had not been a Tiger fan growing up, decided Clemson was for him after visiting the campus. "The first time I came to Clemson I knew it was the place for me. I just fell in love with the campus and the people."

The first three years would be a time of learning and hard work for Hutchins. The life of a walk-on in college football is not a glamorous one. But even in this time Hutchins found positives. "The way I looked at that time as a walk-on was something that most people never had the chance to do. I was able to be around a top 20 football program on a daily basis, which is something that most people never have the opportunity to do."

Tiger Head Coach Ken Hatfield recognizes Hutchins's good attitude and hard work. "I think Roger coming in as a walk-on makes his accomplishments that much more meaningful. He is a guy who was doing everything he could to help the team, and he was willing to sacrifice, to stay in the fight. He certainly epitomizes just what a walk-on can achieve when willing to give it their all."

Hutchins still remembers the day when he found out that he had received a scholarship. "At the end of spring football practice in 1991, I met with Coach Hatfield and he told me that I was on scholarship and was going to be the starting deep snapper. That was such an exciting time for me. It made me see that the hard work that I had done was worth it."

His excitement nearly made Hatfield late for a speaking engagement. "The day that Coach Hatfield told me that I was on scholarship, ironically he told me that he was going to Shelby for a speaking engagement that evening, and needed directions. I was so excited about the scholarship that I gave him the wrong directions. He said he was heading towards Charlotte, NC, before he realized I had gotten him lost."

Luckily the deep-snapping has gone better for Hutchins than those directions did. Since he has taken over the reigns as a deep snapper, the Tigers have not had a punt or a field goal blocked when he has been in the game. He has earned the praise of players and coaches alike. "Roger makes my job so easy," stated ACC placekicker Welch. "With Roger I know the ball is going to be right where it is supposed to be. Punting or placekicking, I want Roger out there to get the ball to me." Hatfield has also been pleased with Hutchins's progress. "Roger is one of the best snappers we have ever had. The deep snapper position is not one for the weak at heart. There is pressure every time you step on the field. I just can't say enough about the job that Roger has done."

Hutchins does not see the snapping as difficult. "I have been doing deep snapping since little league. It is not something that difficult, you just have to practice it over and over to feel comfortable." There is no doubt that Hutchins gets enough practice. It was not an uncommon sight at fall workouts to see Hutchins take over 100 snaps during a practice. "If hard work is the key to getting something done, I don't see that as a hindrance. Hard work has never bothered me," he said.

There are times, however, when the opposition makes the deep snappers job a tough one. "Most teams usually rush from the outside on a field goal or a punt," noted Hutchins. "But last year's Georgia Tech game (Clemson came out on top in that contest 9-7) was a game in which their entire rush came from up the middle. I remember Stacy Seegars and I talking about that game. It seemed as if they were bringing everybody but the drum major in the band on the rush."

Hutchins still has some goals left to accomplish before leaving Clemson. "I was able to finish my undergraduate degree in textile management in four years. Now I have the opportunity to get my master's degree in that fifth year. Hopefully, with me going through job interviews on campus, I will have a job right after finishing up."

This year's Tiger football team still has a great deal to accomplish, according to Hutchins. "We have had a couple of tough losses, games which could have gone the other way. With so many young guys on this team it is important for the seniors to handle a difficult situation the right way. If they see us with the right attitude, they can have the same type of leadership when they are the leaders."

This young Clemson team may learn excellent leadership from the current group of seniors. But they probably won't be able to duplicate Roger Hutchins's feats, or his imitations.

Over the last two years, Clemson has not had a punt or a field goal blocked when Hutchins has served as the snapper.

Hutchins already has his undergraduate degree and hopes to receive his master's before he leaves Clemson.

Jim Goodman

By Brett Sowell

When the name Jim Goodman comes to mind, the term “Jack-of-all-trades” is not far behind. During his career Goodman has done just about everything when it comes to the operations that surround the game of football.

Goodman presently serves as Clemson’s Associate Athletic Director for Football Operations as well as the Tigers’ Recruiting Coordinator. He joined the Clemson staff in 1991 after a brief stint at his alma mater, the University of Florida, where he worked in a similar capacity.

Goodman began his tour of football duties after graduating from Florida in 1974. He joined the high school ranks as an offensive line coach and outside linebacker coach at Vanguard High School in Ocala, Florida. He even served as head track coach at Vanguard. Goodman himself could be considered quite a star during his days in high school as he was a three-year letter winner as a quarterback and linebacker at Blountstown (FL) High School. In basketball he earned two varsity letters, as well as four in track.

After two years at Vanguard, Goodman was contacted by Mickey Andrews, a former Clemson assistant, about going to the University of North Alabama. Goodman filled dual roles as the school’s outside linebacker coach and recruiting coordinator from 1976 until 1978. While at North Alabama, he continued his education as he earned his Masters in Education Administration in 1977.

In 1979 at the age of 26, Goodman became the athletic director and head football coach at Marion Institute Junior College. It was at Marion that his abilities as a top notch recruiter began to surface.

“It was really funny, I took that job expecting to have 30 freshmen and 30 sophomores, but the coach who left before me had taken all of the players with him to a four-year school,” Goodman said. With the departure of all the players, Goodman found himself all but restarting the Marion football program.

“I started out that year with five players and myself as the only coach on staff. It got worse when I had to kick one of the players off the team for a bad attitude, so I literally started with only four human bodies.”

Goodman made the best of a bad situation as he took those four sophomores and 79 freshmen that he recruited entirely by himself to an 8-3 record. The Marion Tigers finished off Goodman’s inaugural season with a victory in the Wool Bowl over the New Mexico Military Institute and ranked 13th in the nation, which is quite an accomplishment after starting with only four players.

In 1980 he returned as the Marion head coach and the Tigers finished the year at 9-1 and ranked 10th nationally. It was after this season that a certain head coach from the Air Force Academy named Ken Hatfield offered Goodman a position as receiver coach. Goodman accepted and worked at that position for the 1981 season.

Coach Hatfield and Goodman met while both were at Florida. Hatfield was an assistant coach for the Gators and Goodman was working on his undergraduate degree. Hatfield was teaching a class on coaching football and Goodman was one of his pupils.

“One day I asked the class how many students were interested in pursuing a football coaching career. About 20 raised their hands and I told them they should take advantage of the opportunity to watch some practices. Out of the 20, only Jim Goodman showed up for practices. I knew then that he was going to be a good coach,” Hatfield recalls.

With the 1981 season finished, Valdosta State College announced it was going to start a football program. After a friend talked with the Valdosta State president, Goodman was contacted by the search committee. Goodman met the committee and was offered the position as the pioneer coach of the new Valdosta State football program. Goodman was announced as head coach on December 2, 1981, but his expectations of the first year were a little different from what actually occurred.

“I thought I was going to have a year to travel and speak to area clubs about the new program before we actually played a game, but at the press conference the president unveiled an 11 game schedule that we were going to start playing in September of 1982,” Goodman said.

Once again, Goodman found himself staring a great challenge in the face. Like at Marion, Goodman was without the necessary personnel to field a football team, but he was missing many other things as well. “I had to recruit the entire team by myself, I had to build the facility and even the rest rooms. We had no practice fields and I had to take the team in my pick-up truck to another facility so we could conduct some spring drills.”

Times were tough for Coach Goodman, Goodman’s wife, and their two small children those first few months at Valdosta State. The family spent the first 108 days of Goodman’s tenure in a Holiday Inn, because they didn’t have time to purchase a house. Goodman and his family persevered, and in the second game of its opening season Valdosta State beat Troy State, 24-21.

“That was our first home game and all the people in town came out that night. I think that game set the tone for Valdosta State football and got the program off the ground,” he said.

After three years as a head coach, Goodman came off the field to fill the role of athletic director for Valdosta State. “In 1985 I became athletic director and at age 33 I was ready to follow that type of career,” Goodman said.

Goodman’s career track took a turn back towards Division I football when Ken Hatfield contacted Goodman about coming to Arkansas after the 1985 season. Goodman joined Hatfield as Arkansas’ receiver coach and off-campus recruiting coordinator. It was at Arkansas that Goodman decided which direction his career in football should take.

“I made the decision in 1989 that recruiting and football operations were becoming a full-time job. In other words you couldn’t do service to both coaching and football operations. In 1988 I was coaching on the field as well as serving in other capacities. I was in and out of meetings, and I became too strung out,” Goodman says.

In July of 1989 Goodman was contacted by Florida about a position as recruiting coordinator. Goodman didn’t want to leave coach Hatfield, but his ties in Florida were very deep, considering both he and his wife Jennie graduated from the home of the Gators. By now the couple also had another child, named Tyler, to join their other two children, Jeff and Nancy. Goodman served two years as the Gators’ recruiting coordinator before Hatfield once again contacted him about joining his staff, this time at Clemson.

“I told Coach Hatfield that this was three times that he has hired me. I think we have a special understanding between us and I have a special understanding of him and what he expects of football. On top of that, he’s a great friend,” Goodman said.

Now that Goodman is at Clemson and he has done just about everything when it comes to football, including signing a consensus top 10 recruiting class in 1991, is there anything left that he would like to do if called upon?

“I’m real proud of my accomplishments both on-the-field and off. I feel like if someone else called, I could do something else, but I am very happy to be here with Coach Hatfield and with what we have going here at Clemson.”

Why some teams have a stronger bench than others.

Transition...Transmission. Two words that have a similar sound. Two words that have a similar meaning to former Clemson Star Larry Nance.

Transition. Think about your job. You perform a task for a number of years. You take pride in what you do. What steps do you take to get better at your job over the years?

Now, think about an NBA player of the caliber of Cleveland Cavaliers forward Larry Nance, an established 1-year pro, a two-time NBA All-Star, a man of impeccable pride on and off the floor. You take steps to make the transition in your game, to keep getting better.

"I think the main thing as I'm getting older is to just take care of my body," says Nance, who helped Clemson to the NCAA regional finals in 1980. "I work with the strength coach over the summer and just make sure I'm staying in good shape and staying prepared."

Ah yes, but what about the artistic side? After all, the vivid memories and sights to see of Larry Nance are of sky-walking acts of slam dunks, one-hand stabs of rebounds and, oh, those re-sounding blocked shots. Who can forget his rejection of 7-foot-6 Manute Bol in 1991 at The Coliseum, and his Cav-record 11 swats vs. the New York Knicks on January 7, 1989?

The cover of the Phoenix Suns' 1983-84 media guide says it all—a scissored-legged Nance with a firm grip of a ball at what seems to be the apex of the BACKBOARD, in flight, for one of his special dunks.

Larry Nance still does all of that. The 6-10, 235-pound Nance, who plays both the power and small forward positions, does it in the realm of a team environment. His points (18 ppg) and rebounds (9 rpg) come in clutch situations. His blocks (3.0 bpg, first among NBA forwards last year) come in help-defense situations. His dunks are sometimes simple two-hand stuffs. The vintage Nance knows how to protect and preserve his strong upper body and pogo-jumping legs.

The Nance of the Nineties, however, has added a dimension that gives fits to frontlines around the league. A consistent medium-range jump shot. One that draws a similar 6-10 forward to the wing and creates another inside passing lane for teammates like Brad Daugherty.

"The jumper has always been there," says Nance, who has scored over 14,000 points in his NBA career. "It just took the guidance and encouragement of the (Cavs) coaches to bring it out.

"I came from Phoenix (via trade on February 25, 1988) as more of a post-up player," says Nance, who was the NBA's first Slam Dunk Champion at the 1984 NBA All-Star Game. "Working with (Head) Coach Lenny (Wilkens), and (Assistant) Coach (Dick) Helm the most, they really helped develop my jump shot and they showed a lot of confidence in me in taking the jump shot." Nance is now one of the top 20 field goal percentage leaders in NBA history with a career mark near 55 percent.

The transition to a confident jump shooter has paid dividends for Nance. A recent USA Today statistical survey of the NBA's power forwards, ranked Nance as the second-best at his position among the 27 starters. Only Utah's Karl Malone was rated higher.

What truly ranks as number-one to Larry Donell Nance is his family. The former 1981 All-ACC player nods in agreement with a preseason feature story in the Akron Beacon Journal that proclaimed in a headline, "For Nance, It's a Wonderful Life." Larry, wife Jaynee, 2-year-old daughter Casey Marie, and the family dog Ninja recently moved into a house that has a pond for one of his favorite pastimes, fishing.

"My wife and I are getting along gr-rrreeeaat," says a grinning Nance. "And, I think my daughter is the best in the world. Right now, my personal life...I don't think I could be happier."

Nance gets a pleasure and a confidence boost just before tip-off at home games when he goes behind the bench to give Casey a kiss.

"Just having Casey around means a lot, and I just like to give her a little kiss before the game," Nance says. "It just makes me feel comfortable having her here, and anytime she's around, I'm comfortable and feel happy."

"I think she's still too young to recognize that (her dad is quite an athlete). But, when she's up in the stands, she can pick me out on the court, and she can pick me out on TV. She doesn't know what it's all about yet."

Former Clemson star Larry Nance, seen here winning the 1984 NBA Slam Dunk contest, has received honors for his community service in the Cleveland area.

The transition to a family life has had a profound effect on the Anderson, South Carolina native, who was the 20th pick of the first round by the Phoenix Suns in 1981.

"As a person, it makes me want to be around home more," Nance says. "I love being around Jaynee and Casey, and during the course of the summer when I go to the (car racing) track, I want them with me all the time."

Transmission.

The "course of the summer" for Nance means the race track for his dragster—a two-year-old electric blue, white and orange Camaro. Larry's appropriately named "Catch 22" Racing Team is entered at the Norwalk Raceway. While his contract forbids him from driving in races, you can find No. 22 under the hood of No. 22, working on such tedious tasks as, say, the transmission.

Nance uses his race car to help promote his campaign against drug abuse. The Camaro sports the message, "Just Say No To Drugs" along the side, and it's there for a reason.

"I have a poster that I made that says 'No to Drugs,' and it's on the race car," says Nance, who has been involved in the NBA's "Don't Foul Out" campaign, and as a spokesperson to school children in Northeastern Ohio.

"There's a lot of kids who hang out around the track and a lot of kids who hang around my trailer. I think it is important for them to see that message. I think we do a pretty good job of getting it out in the NBA, but when I'm at the track, I don't think the job should stop. I try to get the message out there."

A pretty good job? Well, how about recognition from the Federal Bureau of Investigation for a fight he believes in as much as a blocked shot?

In November of 1991, Larry was presented with the FBI Director's Community Leadership Award in a special ceremony at the Federal Building in Cleveland. The honor was bestowed by FBI Director William Sessions, and was given to Nance for his work in urging Greater Cleveland children to stay away from drugs and to remain in school.

"Mr. Nance is not only an outstanding athlete, he is an all-star in the game of life," the FBI said in a statement. Nance was one of 56 recipients of the award nationally.

"It meant a lot," says Nance. "A lot of people recognized what I've been doing and that's working with kids and getting them to say no to drugs. It meant that some people really appreciate the work I've been trying to do."

Larry Nance continues to make the transition in basketball and life and continues to work on the transmission of his race car. It's easy to "appreciate the work" of No. 22 on the court, and Larry Nance off the court in his campaign against drugs. Larry Nance is just appreciative of his life.

"With my wife and daughter, my fishing pond, and when I build my race shop, I can't think of anything else I could ever need."
by Bob Bradley

Anyone who witnessed the game certainly won't forget it. Possibly, it was the most exciting ever played in 'Death Valley' in its first 50 years...from the spectator point of view anyway.

Furman Bisher, writing in the Atlanta Journal called it an "auditor's dream", and said that "both teams should have been arrested for indecent offense." And Bruce Phillips in the Raleigh Times penned: "Years from now when Fabian grows bald and daily commercial flights to the moon are commonplace, football fanatics will assemble to talk about the Wake Forest-Clemson game, vintage 1959."

This game was played before the annual Youth Day audience (34,000). When such a game was so designated, all members of the FFA, MYA, BSU, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, midget football, Mickey Mouse Clubs—just about any organization with a youth connotation—was admitted for a dime. They usually spend 10 times that much on soda pop, hot dogs and pop corn.

But this was the day defense was forgotten. Clemson coach Frank Howard bragged that the game was just typical of the kind of shows we put on for our customers out here in the country, and then nearly put a fresh chew of tobacco in his ear instead of his mouth. But he said that he wasn't nervous.

Even the most steel-nerved would probably have come unnerved watching this game. Clemson won the game, 33-31, but never led in the first half, although there was a 14-14 tie before the Deacons took a 17-14 halftime advantage. And the Tigers fell behind by 24-14 count early in the third quarter. Two come-from-behind in the fourth quarter brought Clemson back from the grave, and saved the 'Valley' from becoming a graveyard.

One writer said that "there was enough excitement in the final 30 minutes for six games." And another one said that "no amount of tranquilizers would have kept the nerves from being jangled."

Clemson entered the game with a 5-2 overall mark and 5-1 record in the Atlantic Coast Conference and looking for its second straight ACC title. The Deacons of coach Paul Amen were 5-2, and would end 6-4 with Amen being named ACC Coach-of-the-Year, while the Tigers claimed the championship.

Bobby Robinson of the Deacs (no relation to the current Clemson Athletic director) started the scoring after Clemson had moved to the Wake 35 in the opening drive, as he picked off a Harvey White pass and raced 69 yards for a score. Neil MacLean's extra point made it 7-0. Clemson still trailed 7-6 after Ron Scrudato's interception of a Norman Snead pass and a 36-yard return to the one because Lowndes Shingler missed the extra point against Doug Daugnaught had scored.

Jerry Ball took a three-yard pass on fourth down for a score from Snead on the first play of the second quarter and MacLean tacked on the extra point for a 14-6 Deacon lead. Clemson then ate up 8:16 on the clock with a successful drive as Doug Cline went over from the two. White passed to Sam Anderson for the conversion to tie, but MacLean kicked a 22-yard field goal with 3:27 remaining in the first half and that gave Wake Forest a 17-14 margin at the break.

Bob Allen's 22-yard reception of a Snead pass and Ed Bost's 23-yard catch from Shingler left the Tigers behind another missed two-point conversion. But Cline scored again to give Clemson its first lead of the game with 8:16 left to play.

Johnny Morris returned the ensuing kickoff 58 yards to the Tiger 27 and four plays later, Morris scored from two yards out and the Deacs regained the lead, 31-27 at 6:40.

And the worst of all things then happened to the Tigers...Cline fumbled and Wake recovered. But, because of a crazy substitution rule where a player could only enter the game once in a quarter, the Deacs could not get Snead in, so Chuck Reiley was quarterbacking.

Reiley passed out in the flat and George Usry intercepted and returned 73 yards to the Deacon 10. Bill Mathis made eight, a personal foul put the ball on the one and Usry dived over for what proved to be the winning score at the 4:24 mark. Harry Pavlik ended the Deacon comeback bid by intercepting Snead at the 50 just after Bob DeBardel Hank sacked Snead for a 13-yard loss. The Tigers ran the clock out by getting two first downs.

There were a few statistical oddities in this thriller. It stands as the only game in Clemson history in which the Tigers had over a 100 yards in interception returns, punt returns and kickoff returns. Clemson won the first down battle 22-10, yet it was a two-point game. Finally, George Usry had an all-around performance that has not been topped since. He gained 73 yards in interception returns, 77 yards rushing, five yards receiving, 18 in punt returns and 18 in kickoff returns.

Even Hollywood hasn't topped this game but a couple of times.

When Ivester, Inc., one of the region's leading electrical and HVAC contractors, decided to build a new headquarters, the Yeargin Enterprises Construction Team was their choice.

As a registered builder/dealer for American Building products, Yeargin selected their pre-engineered metal building system to best meet Ivester's needs. Critical features included unequaled color retention in the roof and wall panels, a standing seam roof with a 20-year warranty, and timely delivery and installation of all building components.

The result? An attractive, cost effective new headquarters building with ample office, shop, and customer service space for Ivester's future growth, all completed within schedule and budget.

That's the Yeargin story
Success through Teamwork

"We were extremely impressed with Yeargin Enterprises' attention to detail in building the solution to our needs. Their expeditious construction methods, gave us an outstanding new facility on a very workable schedule and budget."
