This senior has an appreciation for the Clemson linebacker tradition, a tradition that has motivated him for five years. Tim Jones's contributions have been extensive and what he has accomplished on the field and in terms of leadership will help Clemson teams for years to come.

40 Tiger Wrestling
Clemson Athlete of the Year Sam Henson will be honored today, but this two-time NCAA champion has graduated. He was the major reason Clemson has been ranked in the top dozen in the nation each of the last two years. Now Head Coach Gil Sanchez faces new challenges in a new era.

49 Rich Bisaccia
When the Tigers travel to Virginia and Maryland Rich Bisaccia has many ticket demands. The Clemson running backs coach comes from a large family, a group that has adopted the Clemson Tigers.

51 Lewis Usher
While Clemson's four starting senior linebackers have received a lot of attention this year, a fifth senior linebacker has quietly made an impact on Clemson's outstanding defensive statistics. Brent Coleman takes a look at the career of rapidly improving Lewis Usher.

61 Bruce Warwick
Any football program needs an organized person to run the behind the scenes activities. Bruce Warwick is that person and the Clemson assistant athletic director does an outstanding job in a myriad of areas.

73 Senior Sponsors
Each year Clemson's senior football players, managers and trainers honor a lady who has made a significant contribution to their success at Clemson.

76 Spring Sports
Clemson had one of the top spring sports programs in the nation last year as no less than four sports ranked in the top 20 in the nation. We reviewed the Clemson baseball prospects in an earlier program. Turn to page 76 for an outlook for Clemson's track, tennis and golf teams.

78 Personal Growth Program
There is more to life than just on the field activities for a Clemson student-athlete. The Personal Growth Program recognizes this and helps young student-athletes learn lessons that will last a lifetime.

79 Senior Spotlight
Head coach Tommy West will be the first to tell you that this 1994 Clemson football team has had outstanding senior leadership. Here is a rundown on some of the less publicized Tigers who will be performing in their final game for the Tigers.

112 The Last Word
The late Frank Jervey probably gave more of his time, effort and advice to Clemson University than anyone. Clemson's goodwill ambassador would have been 100-years-old this year. Bob Bradley reviews Mr. Clemson's career.

Tigers try to close with a four-game winning streak for the first time since 1990.

Altogether, the group has made over 800 tackles for the last four seasons.

Clemson on Three-Game Win Streak
Clemson has won its last three games, all by double figure margins. Clemson has played well defensively all season, but the major reason for Clemson's improvement has been on the offensive side of the line of scrimmage. The Tigers have averaged nearly 350 yards a game over the last three games, after averaging just 253.7 yards a game for the first seven. The rushing attack has made the biggest gain, by over 100 yards a game. Clemson has gained 261.3 yards a game on the ground over the last three games, including 283 in the win over Georgia Tech last Saturday. Clemson averaged just 143.9 yards a game on the ground for the first seven contests.

Here is a rundown of Clemson's improvement over the last three games:

Tigers #1 in Nation in Turnover Margin
Clemson ranks first in the nation in turnover margin.
margin heading into the season finale with South Carolina. Clemson has just nine turnovers on offense, including just one in the last five games, and has forced 27 on defense. That computes to a +1.8 turnover margin for the season. ACC member Duke is actually second in the country with a +1.7 mark.

The Tigers have never won the national turnover championship, but Clemson tied for first second twice. The Tigers were second in 1988 with a +1.82 mark and second in 1989 with the same +1.82 figure. It is interesting to note that current Clemson head coach Tommy West was an assistant coach on both of those Clemson teams.

Clemson has set a school record as far as fewest turnovers per game in a season if it has a turnoverless game against South Carolina. Clemson has gone without a turnover four of the last five weeks. The 1940 Clemson team had just eight turnovers in nine games, a 0.88 turnovers per game figure. If Clemson goes without a turnover Saturday, it would give them a 0.81 figure and the record.

One of the prime reasons for Clemson's low turnover total is a lack of fumbles. Clemson has lost just one fumble all year, fewest in the nation. Duke is actually second with just three lost fumbles. The Clemson record for fewest fumbles over the course of the season would be set by the 1938 team. The one lost fumble is an incredible stat when you look at Clemson football history. Since 1960 Clemson has had just five seasons when it did not have at least double figures in terms of lost fumbles.

One of the reasons for this lack of fumbles has been the concentration of Clemson's first-year freshmen. Tiger first-year freshmen have handled the ball on a rush, reception or return 352 times without a lost fumble. Clemson's only lost fumble took place at year.

South Carolina Update
South Carolina enters today's game with a 5-5 record, the same as the Tigers. But, unlike Clemson, a victory will make the Gamecocks eligible for a post-season bowl game. The NCAA requires six Division I victories and one of Clemson's wins was against Division I-AA member Furman. All of South Carolina's games have been against Division I teams.

South Carolina jumped off to a 4-1 start, including conference wins over Arkansas, Kentucky and LSU. The Gamecocks have played very well on the road, posting a 3-1 record so far. Their only road loss was at top 10 Florida.

The Gamecocks have some outstanding data on offense. For the season South Carolina has averaged 24.3 points per game, gained 343 yards a game in total offense and thrown for over 217 yards per game. Steve Tanevich, who led South Carolina to a 24-13 victory over Clemson in Death Valley in 1992, has had an outstanding season with 217 completions in 342 attempts, a 63.5 completion mark. He has thrown for 2033 yards, and has an outstanding 31/3 ratio in TDs/interceptions (18/6).

Brandon Bennett leads the Gamecocks in receptions and rushing, a rarity in college football. We don't know how many South Carolina backs have done that, but no player in Clemson history has pulled off that double.

Antwuan Wyatt had a chance until he was injured. Bennett has 678 yards rushing and a 4.4 average, and has 40 catches for 283 yards. Additionally, he has 325 yards in kick returns, giving him a 128.6 average in terms of all-purpose yards per game.

Stanley Pritchett is an outstanding running back with a 4.6 average and seven rushing touchdowns. He has also caught two TD passes and is South Carolina's leading scorer with 56 points. Toby Cates is the second leading receiver with 38 receptions for 504 yards and six touchdowns. South Carolina has 32 touchdowns for the year, 11 on the ground, 20 in the air and one on a return.

Clemson-South Carolina Series
Clemson holds the all-time lead in the series with South Carolina, 54-33-4. With the fervor of the fans in this series, one would think it would be tough to gain a road win, but that has not been the case of late. Each of the last three seasons the road team has won this contest. That includes last year when Clemson won in Columbia, 16-13. This is the first time the road team has won three in a row since 1983-84-85.

Clemson has won five of the last six games in this series and has a 3-0 record against South Carolina in 4 games played on November 19th over the years. The Tigers have an 11-5-1 advantage in the series against Clemson, at playing at Mount Pleasant, an 8-2-1 margin since 1972.

Both Clemson Coach Tommy West and South Carolina coach Brad Scott are in their first game as head coach in this series, but West is certainly no stranger to the series. He served as a Clemson assistant between 1982-89 and a South Carolina assistant between 1991-92. He is 6-3-1 in the series, 5-2-1 as a Coach coach and 1-1 as a South Carolina coach. The last time he coached in the Clemson-South Carolina series in Death Valley, he was a defensive assistant with South Carolina.

Brad Scott will be trying to be the first South Carolina coach to win his first game in the Clemson-South Carolina series since 1975 when Jim Carlen downed the Tigers 56-20 in his first year. The last Clemson coach to win his first game in the series was Ken Hatfield, who defeated the Gamecocks in 1990, 24-15. The record for the first time that the two teams have entered the game with 5-5 records, or a battle for a winning season. Clemson won that game to go to the Independence Bowl. Clemson has a 6-1 record against South Carolina when the two teams enter the annual battle with the same record. The record is 6-0 in games of this nature since 1903. The last time Clemson and South Carolina entered the game with the same record was 1988. Both squads were 8-2 and Clemson came away with a 29-10 victory.

South Carolina has not entered its game with Clemson with a better record than the Tigers since 1984 when the Gamecocks were 9-1-1. Clemson was 7-3. South Carolina won that day at Clemson, 22-21.

And, before we leave our last game today, a game, a special thank you must be offered to Bob Fulton, who will be broadcasting his final Clemson-USC game today. He has been the voice of the Gamecocks for 43 years and has made a significant contribution to Gamecock athletics in this state. We wish you the best in your retirement.

Hardee's
by Tim Bourret

It is virtually a Sunday ritual for Tim Jones. Go to Jervey Athletic Center for meetings around 3:00 PM, participate in the Sunday afternoon practice, grab something to eat, return to the room and wait for former Clemson All-American and current Minnesota Vikings linebacker Ed McDaniel to call.

On November 6, Jones was especially anxious for the phone to ring, because he couldn't wait to review Clemson's victory over #12 North Carolina, certainly the highlight of the Clemson season. "I talk with Ed McDaniel just about every Sunday night," said Jones with a smile. "He wanted to know how we held North Carolina to 11 yards rushing. We always talk about how Clemson played, how everyone is doing. He gives me a hard time when we lose, but you can tell he really cares about this program."

These Sunday night phone calls are all part of the tradition, the tradition of outstanding linebackers at Clemson. One foot soldier carries it on to the other. It really goes back to the 1950s when Wyndie Wyndham knocked out three Missouri players on three consecutive plays. All-American Jeff Davis captured Clemson to the 1981 National Championship and made an incredible 175 tackles in the process. Johnny Rembert followed Davis, leading the Tiger defense before moving on to an All-Pro career in the NFL.

The tradition has reached its zenith in the 1990s as five linebackers (Ashley Sheppard, John Johnson, Ed McDaniel, Levon Kirkland and Wayne Simmons) have gone on to play in the NFL. All were members of Clemson's number-one ranked defense of 1990, the year Jones was a first-year freshman. It is a tradition that Clemson linebackers feel everyday.

"Those guys motivate us every day," said Jones, who was a teammate at one time or another with all five former Tigers now in the pro ranks. They set a tradition to have great inside and outside linebackers at Clemson and now we have to carry it on. It is something that gets me going every day in practice.

"I watched those guys play my first two years and they taught me what it is all about. Doug Brewster was a player that took care of me when I was a first-year freshman. I played behind him and he took the time to help me. There is a bond there and it is great to be a part of it. They set the tone for us and now we have to set the tone for future Clemson linebackers."

Brewster was the perfect mentor for Jones. "When he came to Clemson he was just about 205 pounds, about the same weight for me when I first came. They told him he could not play, he wasn't big enough. But, he showed me and everyone else what he could do with hard work and dedication." Brewster went on to a successful career in the CFL, and like McDaniel and the other linebackers, comes back to Clemson whenever he can and still follows the program closely.

Jones served his apprenticeship under Brewster and the other Tigers in 1990 and 1991, learning the trade and preparing himself for the 1992 season. The Mc Daniels, Kirklands etc were gone to the pros and it was time for Jones to carry on the tradition. It did not take long, as he had a dozen tackles against Ball State in his first career start, then was the dominating defensive player in the epic battle with Florida State on September 12.

"I think the Florida State game in 1992 was a big game for me. It was on national TV (ESPN), it was at night, (first Clemson night game since 1956), and the crowd was awesome (over 84,000). I had 12 tackles in that game and we won a prime time game at Florida State."

Brewster's death was a big blow to the Tigers. "He gives us confidence as well. I feel we can play well as a defense. We lost the game, but I gained confidence in myself that I could play well in a big game against good competition." Jones went on to pick up a team best 89 tackles for the season, more than first-round draft pick Wayne Simmons and current NFL linebacker Ashley Sheppard.

Jones has been playing well in big games ever since. He has been playing well in all games for that matter. Entering the South Carolina game Jones has 326 career tackles, fifth highest total in Clemson history and higher than such Clemson greats as Terry Kinard, William Perry and Levon Kirkland. With his 106 tackles he is assured of leading the Tigers for the third straight season, a first in Clemson history. Not even McDaniel, Davis or Brewster led the Tigers in tackles for three straight seasons.

Additionally, he has shown his ability in pass coverage over the years, recording six interceptions and 16 pass deflections, more than any other active Tiger.

In 1994 the senior inside linebacker has rung up double figures in tackles six times and has twice been chosen ACC Defensive Player-of-the-Week, both for performances that took place in the North Carolina Triad. The native of Rock Hill, SC turned in what might have been his top effort at Duke when he had 20 tackles, most by a Clemson player since 1985. Jones had 10 first hits and 10 assists, the most since inside linebacker Henry Walls had 21 total tackles against Georgia Tech on September 28, 1985 at Death Valley. It was the most tackles by a Tiger in a road game since 1983 when Walls had 20 at Boston College.

What was especially impressive about his 20 tackles against Duke was that he reached the total by playing just 57 snaps. That computes to a tackle every 2.85 plays. He became just the fifth different player in Clemson history to record at least 20 tackles in a single game. The players who have had at least 20 tackles in a game are Jeff Davis (3 times including Clemson record 24 against North Carolina in 1980), Bubba Brown (twice over 20), Walls (twice) and Willie Anderson (the first to do it with 21 against South Carolina in 1974).

At North Carolina two weeks ago Jones was Clemson's leading tackler with 10. His activity was a prime reason the Tar Heels gained just 11 yards on the ground, the fourth best Clemson rushing defense in an ACC game in school history. It was an especially gratifying victory for Jones, whose leadership has kept the defense together all year.

"The North Carolina game has been a highlight this year, no doubt," said Jones. "They were ranked, it was their senior's last home game and they were coming off a good performance, needing a win to go to a big bowl. But, we played hard and took a way their ground game. It was a game in which we (the four senior linebackers) stood up."

Jones is part of a quartet of linebackers who are Clemson's only senior defensive starters and four of the five total seniors starting this year. Jones, Mike Barber, Wardell Rouse and Darnell Stephens are four of Clemson's top five tacklers on a defense that ranks in the top 15 in the nation in rushing defense, scoring defense and forcing turnovers, leading to a number-one ranking in

Jones has carried on the tradition of great linebackers at Clemson.

"We have come together to be a pretty good unit this year," said Jones. "We spend a lot of time together at home and on the road. We get together and play SAGA (video football game) every Friday night. We stretch out before the game together. We have stressed all year that it was important for all four of us to play. We feel it has been our job to keep the young guys focussed."

"Last year Wardell was in his first year and Darnell was in his first year at outside linebacker. That year together and the fact that it is our last go-around, has made a difference."

This leadership quality by Jones might be more important to the 1994 Clemson team than his tackle total, because Jones has the future of Clemson football in his hands, something he understands. "Tim Jones is a perfect example of a Clemson football player," said Head Coach Tommy West. "He is a guy who loves to practice and play the game. That is great to see in a player."

"The best example of his love for the game might have been last Spring. He suffered a knee injury in the middle of spring practice. He came to me the week of the Spring Game and begged me to play in the Spring Game...he just loves to compete."

He has been the consumate leader. He understands the Clemson football tradition and what it stands for. "Tim Jones did not come to Clemson to be a part of the tradition, he came to Clemson to pick it up and carry it along. And, he has done that," continued West. "Playing for Clemson means a lot to Tim Jones."

"Playing in the NFL also means a lot to Tim Jones, but it does not seem to be the only option in his life. Jones will graduate in May and has the right attitude about his future in the game. "I was like every other kid growing up, dreaming of playing in the NFL. I was a big fan and still am of the Pittsburgh Steelers."

When I was a kid that was the team, with that Steel Curtain defense."

Even when Jones was a kid he loved to play the game. His mother, Lorena, still remembers when her son was playing midget ball as a fourth grader and his leg gave out in the middle of a game. "They took him off the field and he wouldn't stop crying," she said. "But he wasn't crying from the pain, he was crying because he wanted to get back onto the field."

Football was important to Jones at that early age and on into high school. That is natural growing up in Rock Hill, SC a hotbed of high school football. "High School football is very big in Rock Hill," said Jones. "There are only two schools and the rivalry is fierce."

Jim Ringer, Jones's high school coach, says one play stands out in Tim's career. "Whenever anybody mention's his name the first image I have is him covering a kickoff against York. We had just scored and he came down on the kickoff and hit the player on the return at about the 26-yard-line. It was like an explosion. The ball flew all the way back to the end-zone. ...You could hear that hit all over the stadium."

"There have been some good players out of Rock Hill of late," said Jones. "People get after it there." Among Jones's high school rivals was former Notre Dame and current Buffalo Bills defensive back Jeff Burris. Jones would like to continue his rivalry with Burris in the NFL, but it would not be the end of the world if he doesn't. "I would like a shot at the pros, but I really haven't thought that much about it this year. I have plenty of time to worry about that after the season. I just want to keep working hard and finishing off this season with the best possible record we can have."

That is Tim Jones for you. With just one game left in his Clemson career, he is seeing it through. He is a player who wants to give his all for the Clemson tradition, right up until his last play. Ed McDaniel wouldn't let him do it any other way.

Acting President Phil Prince was a starter on Clemson's undefeated 1948 team.

Prince made one of the biggest plays of his career against South Carolina that season. Trailing 7-6 with less than two minutes to play, the story goes that a man stood up in the stands and waved a $100 bill and said: "I bet Clemson scores on the next play," and Tigers didn't even have the ball.

On the next play Prince broke through and blocked a punt. Oscar "Rabbit" Thompson scooped up the ball and ran it in for a score and a 13-7 Clemson win. That success story was followed by many more by Prince.

He rose through the ranks of Milliken and Company over nearly a 30-year period to become vice president for personnel and management development before going with American Express in 1978.

In addition to his past service on the Board of Trustees since 1989, Prince has served Clemson as a member of the Alumni National Council and as a former president of the Clemson University Foundation Board of Directors. He chaired the Campaign for Clemson fund-raising drive and was a major donor to that effort. He and his wife established the Prince Presidential Scholars Endowment for academic recruiting scholarships. They have also contributed a life scholarship to the Clemson Athletic Department.

Prince is a recipient of the Alumni Association's Distinguished Service Award and the first President's Award, which recognizes outstanding service to the university. He was also presented the Clemson Medallion, the university's highest honor, in 1989. During his tenure as acting president, Prince plans to return his earnings to the school as a personal contribution to the Clemson University Foundation.

Philip Hunter Prince and Celeste Orr Prince are parents of two sons, Kevin and Jim. They also have two grandsons—the reason for moving from Pawleys Island to Mt. Pleasant. On the night he was named acting president, Prince called the four-year-old grandson, Philip Hunter Prince, II, to say that he was going to move away (to Clemson) for awhile. "I don't want you to move, grandpa," Philip said.

In the background, Prince heard his son, Jim, tell Philip: "Tell grandpapa how proud you are of him." To which Philip replied: "I'm not."

Sorry young Philip, but you're greatly outnumbered.

Phil Prince became Clemson's Acting President last Summer. The former Tiger gridder won the Clemson Medallion in 1989.
We’re bringing on the Carolina Pride Hot Dogs.
Tommy West, a mainstay of a Clemson coaching staff that led the Tigers to a 69-20-4 record and six Associated Press Top 20 finishes between 1982-89, was named the Tigers' Head Football Coach on November 29, 1993. During his first tour of duty with the Tigers as an outside linebacker coach, Clemson played in five bowl games (winning four) and claimed four ACC Championships, including three in a row from 1986-88.

Clemson had a 44-10-1 record against ACC competition during his era on the Tiger staff, an 81 percent winning mark. Additionally, five of those Clemson teams ranked in the top 15 in the nation in rushing defense and scoring defense, and three ranked in the top 12 in the nation in total defense.

Clemson's 1989 defense ranked fifth in the nation in total defense, rushing defense and scoring defense and West's outside linebackers had a lot to do with that success. His top four outside linebackers that year are all currently in the NFL.

Levon Kirkland (Pittsburgh Steelers), Wayne Simmons (Green Bay Packers) and John Johnson (Cincinnati Bengals) are all currently starters in the NFL, and Ashley Sheppard (Minnesota Vikings) is a top reserve. Simmons was a first-round draft pick, Kirkland and Johnson second-round selections and Sheppard was a fourth-round choice. In addition to the four players listed above, Andy Headen (New York Giants) and Terence Mack (St. Louis Cardinals) are former Tigers West helped guide to an NFL career.

West began his coaching career as a graduate assistant at Tennessee (his alma mater) in 1977. He coached one year of high school football at White County High in Sparta, TN in 1978, then became an assistant at Mississippi in 1979. For the 1980 and 1981 seasons he served as an assistant coach at Appalachian State.

After his career at Clemson (1982-89), West became the running backs coach at Tennessee. During that 1990 season Tennessee won the Southeastern Conference and captured the Sugar Bowl with a win over Virginia. The Volunteers scored a school record 442 points that year and averaged over 400 yards a game in total offense, 205.7 rushing and 205.4 passing. He served as Co-Defensive Coordinator at South Carolina in 1991 and 1992.

In 1993 West began his college head coaching career, as he took over a UT-Chattanooga team that had won just two games in 1992. He doubled that total in 1993 and guided the Mocs to one of the landmark wins in school history, a 33-31 win over #1 ranked Marshall. He culminated the regular season with a 45-42 victory over Furman, ironically, his first regular season opponent as Clemson coach.

His first game as head coach of the Tigers was in the Peach Bowl against Kentucky. West became the fifth coach in NCAA history to make his debut with a program in a bowl game. However, he was just the second coach in history to make his debut in a bowl game without previously coaching his new team as an assistant coach earlier in the season.

The debut was a rousing success as his Tigers downed the Wildcats 14-13 at the Georgia Dome. The Tigers drove 83 yards for the winning touchdown on their last possession. Patrick Sapp hit Terry Smith from 21 yards out with 20 seconds left to conclude the closest game of the 1993-94 bowl season. It was the latest winning touchdown drive by a Clemson team since 1958.

West earned three letters in his four-year career at Tennessee (1972-75). The Vols played in three bowl games and were ranked in a final Top 20 in three seasons. He was the co-captain of Tennessee's 1975 football team and played in the Blue-Gray All-Star game that same year.

He began his college career as a running back, but saw most of his playing time as a tight end. He caught 37 passes for 575 yards in his career with the Vols, including 16 passes for 233 yards as a senior. As a junior he caught an 81-yard pass from Condredge Holloway, still the longest non-scoring play in Tennessee history. He earned a bachelor's degree from Tennessee in 1976 and was drafted by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers that same year.

West played two years (1974-75) of baseball at Tennessee and had a career batting average of .305. He hit .367 in 1975 and was named All-SEC Eastern Division. Rick Honeycutt, now with the Oakland A's, was a teammate of West on that 1975 Tennessee team that finished 32-16.

West was a multi-sport standout in high school. He was an outfielder in baseball, a guard in basketball and a running back in football. In 1972 he was named a High School All-American in football and was a fifth-round draft choice in baseball by the Chicago Cubs. Willie Randolph, who went on to an all-Star career with the New York Yankees, was one of 77 future Major League players drafted after West in the regular phase of the June 1972 draft. But West turned down the Cubs offers and went to Tennessee. He played his prep football at Gainesville High in Gainesville, GA for Coach Bobby Gruhn. He was an all-state back as a junior and was also named to the All-Southern team.

Born Thomas Cleveland West on July 31, 1954, he is married to the former Lindsay Watkins of Forest City, NC. The couple has one son, Turner, 5.
Eric attends a Homework Center - a place that helps him when Mom and Dad can't. And when he works especially hard, he can win wonderful prizes - like tickets to a Clemson home game that he might otherwise never get to see.

Hundreds of Homework Centers across the nation focus on keeping struggling students from becoming dropouts. In actuality, they're doing a lot more than that. Many hardworking students are bringing their grades up from F's to A's, and in one South Carolina elementary school expulsions declined from 38 to 4 after the centers opened.

Duke Power is proud to help support such an important and effective program. We invite you to help too. Simply donate football or basketball season tickets you're unable to use or purchase extra tickets to contribute to the Homework Centers for use as prizes. Send them at least two weeks before game day to: John Geer, Duke Power Company, P.O. Box 1745, Clemson, SC 29633.

If you do, you'll be helping students like Eric tackle the books today so that tomorrow they can tackle the world.
Les Herrin
Assistant Head Coach/Defensive Line
The Clemson football program has seen a lot of success during Les Herrin’s tenure as an assistant coach. In 1981, Herrin arrived at Clemson as a linebacker coach, and the Tigers won the National Championship that season. In his first tour of duty with the Tigers (1981-84) Clemson had a 37-6-2 record during that span. After a brief stint away from Clemson at East Carolina (1985-87) and North Carolina (1988), Herrin returned to the Tiger program in 1989 as defensive line coach. In 1989 Clemson ranked fifth in the nation in scoring, rushing, and total defense. The team followed that performance with a number-one ranking in total defense in 1990.

Herrin, in his first year as Assistant Head Coach, has coached several players who have had successful NFL careers. Herrin coached 1981 ACC MVP Jeff Davis, who went on to be captain of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and 1989 All-Pro Johnny Rembert (New England Patriots), who was a linebacker under Herrin’s watchful eye in 1981 and 1982. Chester McGlockton, now one of the top young defensive linemen with the Los Angeles Raiders, and 1993 All-ACC selection Brentson Buckner of the Pittsburgh Steelers also benefitted from Herrin's teachings.

Miles Aldridge
Defensive Coordinator/Secondary
Now in his second stint at Clemson, Miles Aldridge will be the Tigers’ defensive coordinator and work with the defensive backs in 1994. He first came to Clemson in 1985 as an inside linebacker coach. From 1986 thru 1989 the Tigers were ranked in the top 20 in all defensive categories. This included the 1989 season when Clemson ranked fifth nationally in rushing, scoring and total defense.

Clemson won three consecutive ACC titles during Aldridge’s first stay at Clemson, 1986-87-88 and was ranked in the final AP top 25 in 1986-87-88-89. Clemson has been to a bowl game every year Aldridge has been affiliated with the program. And Clemson has been successful in those bowl appearances, as the Peach Bowl win over Kentucky gave Aldridge a 5-1 ledger in bowl games as a Clemson coach. Aldridge has coached several players who have gone on to have successful pro careers. Three linebackers have gone on to the NFL, Andre Townsend (Mississippi), Freddie Joe Nunn (Mississippi), and Ed McDaniel (Clemson). Another former Clemson LB, Doug Brewster, went to the CFL, where he was a member of the Grey Cup Championship team, the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Clyde Christensen
Co-Offensive Coordinator/Quarterbacks
An All-American quarterback in junior college, Clyde Christensen comes to Clemson after two years at Maryland. He knows the ACC well as he also played for the University of North Carolina in 1977 and 1978.

At Maryland he coached quarterbacks John Kaleo and Scott Milanovich. Kaleo ranked second in the nation in total offense as a senior, while Milanovich ranked fourth nationally in that category. Christensen's offense at Maryland was explosive, as the Terps ranked fourth in the country in 1992 with an average of 466 yards per game, and 16th last year when they averaged 440 yards per game. The Terps also ranked second in the country in passing offense in 1992 and third in passing offense in 1993.

While Christensen is in his first year as a coach at Clemson, he has known Clemson head coach Tommy West for over 15 years. The two were graduate assistant coaches together at Mississippi in 1979. He is only 36-years-old, but already has college experience at Mississippi, East Tennessee State, Temple, East Carolina, Holy Cross, South Carolina and Maryland. Christensen was a part of two successful teams at North Carolina, as the Tar Heels played in the 1977 Liberty Bowl and the 1978 Peach Bowl during his career. He was also a junior college All-American at Fresno City Junior College in California. He is a native of Corvina, CA.
Rick Stockstill
Co-Offensive Coordinator/Wide Receivers

Rick Stockstill has been around successful programs and record setting offenses his entire coaching career. In his first year as quarterback coach at Clemson (1989), the Tigers set a school record for completion percentage (60%). The Tigers led the Atlantic Coast Conference in total offense for the 1991 season, and Clemson gained the second most yards in school history in the process.

Stockstill also tutored productive offenses at Central Florida and Bethune-Cookman in his early years as a football coach. As a player, he was the starting quarterback for Florida State. He guided the Seminoles to a pair of Orange Bowl appearances, a pair of top 10 rankings, and was the team captain in 1981.

Stockstill is in his sixth year with the Clemson program and the Tigers have been to a bowl game in four of the five previous seasons. He joins Les Herrin and Whitey Jordan as the only full-time assistant coaches in Clemson history to serve under three different head coaches.

Richard Bisaccia
Running Backs/Special Teams/Recruiting Coordinator

This Yonkers, NY native was a four-year starter and team captain at Yankton College. He was a free agent with the Philadelphia Stars of the USFL after his college career.

While the 1983 Spring season saw the end of his football career, the 1983 fall was the beginning of his coaching career. He was named the offensive coordinator at Wayne State in Nebraska his first year out of college and he has been in college coaching ever since.

Unlike many Division I full-time assistant coaches, Bisaccia has not made a lot of moves. He spent five seasons at Wayne State, then six seasons at South Carolina. He has experience coaching on defense and offense, but will concentrate on the running backs position at Clemson.

The 34-year-old Bisaccia is a coach who enjoys challenges. That is fortunate for Clemson because he must work with a very young group of running backs in his first year. There are no junior or senior backs on the Clemson roster.

Bisaccia probably wears more hats than any other Clemson coach. In addition to his time with the running backs, he is also the special teams coach and the recruiting coordinator.

In addition to Bisaccia's changes on the gridiron the last year, he has had a family addition. Last August, his wife Jeanne gave birth to their first son and fourth child, Richard Oakley.

James Earle
Tight Ends

James Earle holds the distinction of being the only former Clemson player on the 1994 Clemson Coach staff. There are many former Clemson players in coaching this year, but he is the only former Tiger serving his alma mater in a full-time capacity.

If Earle can make as many contributions as a coach as he did as a player, Tommy West will be very proud of his former player. Earle was a starting outside linebacker for the Tigers in 1986 and 1987 and West was his position coach.

As a player, Earle was named the nation's #6 outside linebacker by the Sporting News in the preseason of 1987. He led the Tigers in tackles that year with 79, outdistancing Michael Dean Perry for that honor. Clemson was fifth in the nation in total defense that year. Earle finished his career with 213 tackles, 15 tackles for loss and 16 pass deflections. He played in 47 straight games and had 27 starts. The versatile ath-
Reggie Herring
Inside Linebackers
Reggie Herring is another example of an outstanding player who has gone on to become an outstanding coach. A teammate of Rick Stockstill, an All-American quarterback who later starred for the Atlanta Falcons, Herring left his own mark with the Seminole program as a player.

Herring was captain of the 1981 FSU Orange Bowl team and earned AP All-America honors that year. The Seminoles played in the Orange Bowl and ranked in the top 10 in the nation his junior and senior seasons, and he was recently inducted into the Florida State University Athletic Hall of Fame. He was a three-year starter at Florida State and the Seminoles played in three bowl games during his four-year career. Florida State also had three double-figure victory seasons during his career.

Like many of Clemson's assistant coaches in 1994, Herring has a diverse resume. He has sold plans over the Christmas holidays for quite some time. He has been a part of college football as a player and coach since 1977. In those 17 seasons he has been to 13 bowl games, 10 as a coach and three as a player. He has coached in bowl games for Oklahoma State, Auburn, and Clemson and of course played in three bowls at Florida State.

Ellis Johnson
Outside Linebackers
Ellis Johnson is another successful Tiger assistant who has ties to the area. Johnson attended The Citadel, but he grew up a Clemson fan. He was raised just outside of Columbia, but he had many relatives who were Clemson alumni. He has coached in the state at The Citadel as a graduate assistant, at Gaffney High as an assistant coach and at Spartanburg High as an assistant coach and head coach. He went back to the Citadel in 1982.

His most remarkable experience in coaching so far took place in Alabama. In 1992 Johnson served as an assistant coach at Alabama. The Crimson Tide experienced a perfect season and defeated Miami (FL) in the Sugar Bowl to win the National Championship. He is one of two Tiger assistant coaches on this year's staff with a National Championship ring. Les Herrin, a member of Clemson's 1981 staff, is the other.

Johnson was a part of four outstanding defenses as Alabama. During his tenure (1990-93), Alabama ranked in the top five in the nation in total defense and pass defense three times. The 1992 Alabama defense led the nation in total defense and rushing defense, and ranked second nationally in passing defense and scoring defense.

John Latina
Offensive Line
John Latina has been an offensive coach for a Division I program every year since 1979. He might have his greatest challenge this season, however, as he has just three of the top 10 offensive linemen from last year's 9-3 squad returning.

But, if any coach can handle a situation devoid of experience it is John Latina. The Virginia Tech graduate who once played against Clemson as an offensive guard (1978) has worked at Virginia Tech, Pittsburgh, Temple and Kansas State. He has already coached in a bowl game with four different schools. Virginia Tech, Pittsburgh, Kansas State and Clemson.

During his career he has worked with Dan Marino, who led the Panthers to a 9-3 ledger and the Cotton Bowl in 1982. Paul Palmer, one of the top rushers in NCAA history with Temple, was also a member of Latina's offense in the 1980s.

Over the last five years Kansas State's program in general and offense in particular, has shown as much improvement as any in the country. In Latina's second season at Kansas State as offensive line coach and running game coordinator, the Wildcats set a school record for total offense with 4,231. Kansas State advanced to a bowl game in 1992, just the second bowl appearance in school history.

Clemson Coaches

Clemson finished 16th in the National Sears All-Sports poll in 1993-94.

Clemson had nine teams rank among the final top 25 in either the final poll, or NCAA meet/tournament events. The highest ranked team was the baseball team, which finished fourth in the final Baseball America poll. The Clemson soccer team advanced to the NCAAs and was fifth in the final poll, the wrestling team was seventh, the golf team was ninth, the men's track team was 11th, the Lady Tiger tennis team was 16th in the final poll, the women's basketball team was 22nd (USA Today poll), the football team was 24th.

The final Sears All-Sports poll ranked the Clemson all-round sports program 16th in the nation. Clemson's fine spring of top 11 finishes in baseball, track and golf had a lot to do with that fine ranking. Clemson defeated the number-one team in two different sports in 1993-94. The Tiger soccer team defeated number-one Virginia in Charlotteville on a goal at the buzzer by All-American Jimmy Glenn. The Clemson baseball team defeated Georgia Tech (ranked number-one by Baseball America) twice in Atlanta in May. It was just the second time in Clemson history that the Tigers had beaten the number-one team in two different sports in the same year.

Nine different sports that compete in dual meet or match competition had at least one win over a top 25 opponent during the 1993-94 academic year.

It was a showcase year for Clemson's facilities. For the first time in history, Clemson played host to NCAA Championship events in three different sports. Clemson played host to the volleyball and soccer tournaments in the Fall, the women's basketball tournament in the Winter and the baseball tournament in the Spring.

Clemson had a solid year in football, basketball and baseball, the school's oldest and most traditional sports. Clemson went to postseason play in all three sports and was one of just two schools in the nation to win at least nine football games, 18 basketball games and 36 baseball games. Florida was the only other school in the nation to do it. It was just the eighth time in Clemson history and the first time in five years that Clemson has been to postseason play in all three of its oldest sports in the same academic year.

All but two of Clemson's teams had what would be termed a winning season and five of the teams that participate in head-to-head competition won at least 70 percent of their games.

Clemson football player Warren Forney was the recipient of the Sullivan Award, one of the top honors bestowed upon a Clemson student. It is presented for service to others.

Jaro Zawislan won the ACC's Jim Weaver Award as one of the top all-around student-athletes in the ACC.

The ACC has sent at least four teams to bowl games each of the last five years.

The ACC has sent at least four teams to bowl games each of the last five years.

*Over the last 13 years the ACC has captured more college football national championships than any other conference. Clemson won the title in 1981, Georgia Tech in 1990 and Florida State in 1993. The Big Eight is second with two national championships over the last 13 years, while the Pac-10, the Western Athletic and Southeastern have one apiece. Maryland also won the national championship in 1953, the first year of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

*Over the last five years the ACC is the only conference in the nation to have each of its schools play in a bowl game.

*The nine ACC schools that will take to the field this fall have produced 296 first or second-team gridiron All-Americans and 47 first-team Academic All-Americans. ACC teams have had 1,253 players selected in the annual NFL draft, including 78 first-round selections.

*In 1993 the ACC boasted its first Heisman Trophy winner, Charlie Ward. He was one of eight different ACC players to be selected first or second-team All-American by at least one service. The list included Clemson guard Stacy Seegars.

Clemson and Florida State are two of just four teams nationally who have won at least 75 percent of their games in seven of the last eight years. Clemson and Florida State are also the only two teams in the nation to win six bowl games since 1986.

*For the third consecutive year the ACC drew more than 2.3 million fans. Over 54 home dates, ACC schools attracted 2,416,728 fans. ACC teams played to 87 percent of their stadium capacities. Clemson ranked 15th in the nation in average attendance, its 12th straight year in the top 15 in the nation in attendance.

*If success in postseason play is a barometer of excellence, the ACC is among the best leagues in the nation. ACC teams have a combined 70-65-5 record in bowl games over the years, a .537 winning percentage. That is second only to the Pac-10's .551 success rate. Three ACC teams are among the top eight in NCAA history in terms of bowl winning percentage. Georgia Tech is second with a 68 percent mark, Florida State is fourth with a .636 mark and Clemson is eighth at .632.

ACC teams received bowl bids in 1993. Two ACC teams are committed to the 1994 Football Bowl Coalition. The league champion is guaranteed a spot in one of four Tier One Bowls, the Orange, Sugar, Cotton and Fiesta, and a second team will be available for the Tier Two Bowls, the Gator and the John Hancock. For the third year of a three-year contract, the ACC is committed to sending a third team to the Peach Bowl. The ACC is in the second year of a two-year contract to have a fourth league team compete against a Big Ten team, also a number-four team, in the Hall of Fame Bowl.

*The ACC also stands at the forefront of intercollegiate athletics in terms of academic achievements of its student-athletes. That accomplishment is certainly shown in the list of schools who have won a CFA Academic Achievement Award, which is presented to the CFA member institution with the highest graduation rate of its football team. Eight times over the past 14 years an ACC member school has claimed the award. In 1994, the ACC had six of the 20 CFA members who reported a graduation rate of 70 percent or better.

*The ACC excelled in more than just football in 1993-94. The conference captured five national titles and participated in the national title game in four other sports. The ACC has won 18 national team championships over the last four years. In 1993-94 the ACC claimed the national champion in football, women's basketball, women's soccer and field hockey. The ACC held the runnerup spot in men's basketball, baseball, men's lacrosse and women's lacrosse.

*The ACC placed at least one team in the top 10 nationally in 14 of the 23 sports sponsored by the league. In 1993-94 a league record 82 teams competed in NCAA championships, five teams were in football bowl games and 29 teams were ranked in the final top 10 of their respective sports.

*At one time or another, an all-time high 12 ACC teams in eight different sports, representing seven of the nine institutions, held a number-one ranking in 1993-94.

*The ACC Academic Honor Roll record was broken for the eighth straight year as 1,151 student-athletes were recognized for their work in the classroom.

*ACC teams made an all-time record 29 national television appearances last fall and an ACC team participated in the highest rated game in 10 years.

In 1991, two very special anniversaries in the Clemson football tradition were observed. Not only did the 1991 season mark the 10th anniversary of Clemson's National Championship season, but it also marked the 50th birthday of the place where the Tigers won six games that season: Memorial Stadium.

In the first 52 years of Memorial Stadium, Clemson has a record of 180-65-7, including a 22-3-1 ledger over the last four seasons. Clemson had a 16-game unbeaten streak at home between 1990-92 and has a career winning ratio of 72.8 percent.
The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers who call it home, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before head coach Jess Neely left for Rice University after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message. "Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "Put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That's all you'll ever need."

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing—there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.
The crews went to work: clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally, on September 19, 1942, Clemson Memorial Stadium opened with the Tiger Football team thrashing Presbyterian College, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow, and grow and grow. This year Clemson celebrates its 53rd year in this outstanding facility.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.
The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young football player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants up and down. The next day, however, the boy was swollen twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the stadium including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete poured.

Howard says that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he says. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through."

"I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more weeks for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard says that on the first day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 and we played at 2:00." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sidelin seat were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,658 West end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the stadium as crowds swelled—the first one in 1978 and the second in 1983. This increased capacity to over 80,000 which makes it one of the 10 largest on-campus stadiums in the country.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

Clemson has the ninth largest on campus stadium in College Football.

Clemson has the most unique and famous stadium entrances in sports.

On November 16, 1974 the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Athletic Director Bobby Robinson says that Memorial Stadium has many features which makes it a top facility. "One thing that makes it so good is the number of sideline seats," he says. "We don't think there is a bad seat in the house.

"We also have outstanding dressing rooms, press facilities, and ample parking nearby. Another unique feature of the stadium is the number of private boxes."

If Memorial Stadium is expanded again and the capacity is pushed closer to 100,000, there will be room for construction over the west stands, enclosing that end like a horseshoe.

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.

The Opponents Say:

"The biggest thing is dealing with the noise once the game starts. Clemson fans are among the most enthusiastic in all of football."
Bob Ross, Head Coach
San Diego Chargers, 1991

"When they (Clemson) ran down the hill, I got so excited I could hardly breathe."
Marco Coleman
Georgia Tech, 1991

"Games at Clemson are unreal. You can stand next to each other and talk and can't hear what the other guy is saying. The offense and defense of the opposing team better get used to using hand signals to set formations and get plays off."
Bobby Houston
N.C. State backer, 1989

"I came in here knowing it would be loud and that Clemson would hit me hard, but to me the noise was the biggest factor. I know I didn't concentrate as well because of it."
Herschel Walker
Georgia tailback, 1981

Death Valley will be the home of the Carolina Panthers in 1995. It will be the largest stadium in the NFL that year.

Clemson wrestling team looks for third straight top 15 finish, but must replace 1994 IPTAY Athlete of the Year Sam Henson.

1994 Clemson Athlete of the Year

Today Sam Henson will be honored as he is named the 1994 Clemson Athlete-of-the-Year. The following is a list of some of Henson's accomplishments at Clemson.

- Two-time National Champion winning in 1993 and 1994 at the 118 pound weight class.
- Completed his two-year career at Clemson with a 71-0 record.
- Captured the 118-pound championship at the NCAA Tournament the last two years.
- Clemson's MVP the last two years.
- Won the 118 pound weight class championship at the 1992 Navy Classic, the 1993 St. Louis Open, and the 1994 Great Plains Open.
- Won the 118 weight class at the NCAA National All-Star meet.
- Holds the ACC top spot in winning percentage during a career with a 100% mark.

In 1992-93 recorded 11 pins, the most ever by a Clemson wrestler at the 118 pound weight class.

A three-time All-American with two seasons at Clemson and one at Missouri.

by Chris Metzlerr

The 1994-95 season will feature many new faces in the Tiger lineup as seven of the 10 starters from last year's top 10 team have graduated.

"We will be a very young team this year, but we are also very talented," said third-year head coach Gil Sanchez, who has taken Clemson to its only top 12 national finishes in the program's history. "We lost two All-Americans in Sam Henson and Tim Morrissey who won a combined 68 matches last season. Also, we will miss four other wrestlers with NCAA experience. Last year's group was the most successful class of wrestlers ever at Clemson, but this year's group has the tools and we expect big things from them in the future."

The 1994 recruiting class was ranked 12th by Amateur Wrestling News, but Sanchez feels that the ranking was low because of geography.

"This is definitely one of the most talented groups to come to Clemson in some time. Our recruiting class was ranked only 12th because several of the guys came from lesser known wrestling states. The talent is definitely there. Technically they may need work and they must mature, but physically they are extremely talented athletes. To work with a group like this is great because they pick things up quickly and they develop twice as fast."

Heading the freshman class are high school All-Americans Clay Cavanaugh from South Carolina, Rob Daly from Florida, Scott Kurtz from Pennsylvania, James Short from North Carolina and Charlie Higdon from Florida. Cavanaugh, Daly, and Short were all named their state's Wrestler-of-the-Year, making this year's class one of the most recognized groups ever at Clemson. Kurtz will see action at 150 this year, while the other newcomers will be red-shirted.

This year's freshman class joins six red-shirt freshmen from last year, making this year's squad an inexperienced group at the college level. "Last year we had a large group of seniors so we could red-shirt eight wrestlers. That allowed those red-shirted athletes to train with the older wrestlers, gain experience and skill. You can tell that last year has paid off because they have a better work ethic and an understanding of what it takes to be successful at the college level."

Outlook by weight class:

118- The Tigers lost the most successful Tiger wrestler in the team's history with the departure of two-time national champion Sam Henson at the 118-pound weight class (see box). This year Clemson will look to Academic All-American Jeff Stephens (30-25-2 career record) to take over the weight class as he moves down a division. "We will look for Jeff Stephens to be the 118 pounder. We feel that the move down from 126, will help him be nationally competitive. Tim Ninninger and James Jones will also see time at the 118 pound weight class.

126- With the move of Stephens to 118 pounds, red-shirt freshman Brent Taney will see a lot of time at a 126 pounder. "Brent Taney showed a lot of improvement thanks to a red-shirt year last season. He has made great strides since coming to Clemson and we hope to see that continue. We will use Jeff Stephens in certain situations at 126 depending on the matchups."

134- Jason Wheeler, a veteran of 46 matches the last four years, returns to the 134-pound weight class after his 1993-94 season was cut short for personal reasons. He is Clemson's lone senior starter in the projected lineup. "Jason Wheeler is probably one of the most athletic individuals on the team and he is one of the strongest athletes at Clemson. He is a front runner and an All-America candidate in our eyes."

142- National All-Rookie team member Brendan Buckey (18-15 last year) will again hold this weight class. Buckley was outstanding as a freshman winning more matches than any freshman in three seasons. "Brendan Buckley is an All-America candidate. He was successful last year and we look for him to build from that this season. He has shown great leadership and even though he is only a sophomore he was elected one of this year's captains."

150- The Tigers will go with true freshman Scott Kurtz at the 150-pound weight class. "Kurtz is a blue chip recruit with a ton of potential. Because we are very young at this weight class he will be asked to step in right away and learn on the job. It will be a challenge for him, but we feel he will be ready."

158- Paul Seim, who finished fourth in the ACC at the 167 weight class, will move to the 158 division this season. "We decided to drop Paul down a weight class because he is better suited as a 158 pounder. Last year he was young and inexperienced, which made for a long season for Seim, but he matured a lot and is still developing as a wrestler."

167- Derek Strobel is the front runner at the 167 pound weight class. "We are so young from the 167 weight class on up that we are not sure what will happen from week to week. At 167 Derek has shown improvement and is a tough competitor."

Back up Strobel at 167 will be James Patterson, a true freshman who may also red-shirt.

177- Scott Engel will be the Tigers' 177 pounder after red-shirting last season. Engel has seen time as the Tigers' 190 pounder and at heavyweight (21 matches in 1992-93) during his career, but has settled into his more natural weight class of 177 this year. "Scott did not have the size that was really needed at the top weight classes, but he gave 100 percent for us. Now we have him at his true weight class and we feel that he will be successful as a 177 pounder."

Challenging Engel will be Brian Collier who was red-shirted last year.

Aaron Strobel (who was in just two matches in 1993) will be the Tigers' 190 pounder this year, as he takes over for ACC Champion and All-American Tim Morrissey. Strobel is the older brother of Clemson's 167 pounder Derek Strobel. "It will be difficult to replace Tim, but Aaron has worked hard in the off season and has really improved."

HWT- Matt Kim, a red-shirt freshman from Pennsylvania, will be the Tigers' heavyweight. "Matt is very talented. He knows how to wrestle, but like most of our team, he is inexperienced. We feel that he will develop into a very good heavyweight at Clemson."

PREREQUISITE: ADRENALINE

Dave Dumont: Those aren't words you're likely to see in many course requirements. This year, Army ROTC is unlike any other course. It's hands-on excitement. ROTC will challenge you mentally and physically through intense leadership training. Training that builds character, self-confidence and decision-making skills. Again, words other courses seldom use. But they're the credits you need to succeed in life. ROTC is open to freshmen and sophomores without obligations and requires about 4 hours per week. Register this term for Army ROTC.

Clemson running backs coach has a large family of Tiger fans.

Rich Bisaccia

by Jessica Reo

Today, it seems like most families are relatively small, one or two kids and that's it. For monetary reasons, many people in this day and age can't afford a lot of children, but it seems that football families tend to be the exception to that rule; take, for example, the Bisaccia family. Running backs coach Rich Bisaccia, comes from a family of six children; he and his wife, Jeanne, just had their fourth child, a boy, on July 21, and Bisaccia's father is one of 14.

“I have five younger sisters,” says Bisaccia, the Yonkers, NY native. “I never got to use the bathroom in my house when I was growing up. I always had to go to the high school to take a shower. There were six of us going to school together for a nine-year span, so if I went in and turned on the shower, there was a possibility that I could get electrified.”

From Yonkers, the family moved to New Fairfield, CT, where Bisaccia went to high school. He then matriculated to college in South Dakota. “I wanted to get as far away from any city as I could.” The Yankton College graduate is in his third coaching job with his arrival at Clemson. After graduating from Yankton college in 1983 with a degree in health and physical education, Bisaccia became the offensive coordinator at Wayne State, where he coached from 1983-87. From there he moved on to the University of South Carolina where he stayed from 1988-December of 1993 and where he met current Tiger coach Tommy West.

“Coach West and I worked together at South Carolina. I was coaching the running backs and he had just come from Tennesse where he had coached the running backs for a year,” says Bisaccia. “He passed a lot of knowledge on to me. I was still considered young to be coaching at this level. He was the guy that I could always talk to about different things. Miles (Aldridge) and Clyde (Christensen) were also there with us.”

This prior association has made the transition easier on Bisaccia and his family. Bisaccia, who moved to Clemson on a semi-permanent basis in April of this year, was joined by his family in their new home in August. His son, Richard Oakley, was born in Columbia, SC, where his family was stationed until the move. “It was tough when Jeanne was pregnant, but I was fortunate to just be two hours away. A lot of coaches were really commuting long distances.”

When fans watch football coaches and players, many of them think, ‘what a cool job’ and ‘I would kill to do that’, but many don’t realize the demand on the coaches, their families, and the players. Coaches put in a lot of man hours, and sometimes it is at the expense of spending time with their wives and children. And with three daughters, Michele (10), Elizabeth (5), Madeline (1), and a newborn, Bisaccia comments on how he relates to them.

“I think my kids think its neat and exciting (to be in coaching). They see their dad on TV now and then. My children get to go to the games and I think it’s a good place for them to grow up, on a college campus, around student-athletes,” states Bisaccia. And as both a dad and a coach, Bisaccia wants to have some kind of control over how he is perceived by his children and his players.

“I believe that it’s not so much as what you say as what you do. I’m really proud of what I do for a living, I take pride in being a good assistant, and just being someone that’s a good person. I think I have set a good example for kids and I think my kids see that from some of the players that they get a chance to meet, whether they come to the house or just talk to my kids,” says Bisaccia.

And having been a player, Bisaccia knows about the pressures and the time commitments involved. He has taken what he learned as a player and transformed it into what he teaches as a coach. “I would much rather have been a good player and would have liked to continue playing for a long time, but I knew that if I wasn’t good enough to be a player, I wanted to be a coach. I just coach the way I would like to have been coached. I take the best parts of every coach that I have worked for and put the pieces together. That’s how a personality develops anyway; people take on the best parts of people around them in order to make themselves better. That goes for past and present coaches I’ve been around.”

One of the people he’s learned the most from since he’s been at Clemson is Reggie Herring, the Tigers inside linebacker coach. “I had never met Reggie Herring before I came here,” said Bisaccia. “He’s a phenomenal teacher on the field and he’s always enthusiastic and exciting to be around. So there’s a lot of things about him that I see and I learn from.”

Had he not been a coach, there are a few places that Bisaccia could see himself. “I wanted to play in the NFL, but when I figured out that wasn’t going to happen, things changed. My dad was in construction so during the summers I was around, brick masonry, building houses. If I didn’t do that, I would have liked to do that, working outside and with my hands, and be around kids. I could also see myself as a teacher. I like to be around kids.”

Perception, on the whole, is very important to Bisaccia, whether it’s the impression given to his own children or his players, or just the outside world. He always wants to make the proper impression because he is aware of the impact he can have on young people and the impact his players can have on young people. Coach West and the staff have stressed to the student-athletes that their appearance, comments, and ‘role model’ status is extremely important because youngsters are always looking up to athletes.

“I think the main reason I wanted to be a player is because of kids. They look up to great players. They listen to what the athletes have to say and some of them end up being great role models. I think it’s a great power and a great responsibility to have the attention of youth.”

Bisaccia has had a positive influence on a lot of players and a lot of his family members. And, the large family has had a positive effect on Bisaccia. “My family is very close and they are all over. Since my dad is one of 14, I have a lot of cousins all over. They rented a Greyhound for the Virginia game. The least amount of kids is four in all my dad’s brothers and sisters families, so I have over 100 first cousins.”

And they are all college football fans, so, no matter where you’re sitting in today’s game, introduce yourself to someone around you. He or she might be a Bisaccia.
Come To Your Dodge Dealer And See The Car That Changed Everything...

Dodge Intrepid ES

It's called Dodge Intrepid. And it's like no other car you've ever driven. Its remarkable cab-forward design gives more room to people and less to machinery. Although the machinery itself is remarkable. Like a 4-speed automatic that adjusts shift quality based on your driving habits. Plus other technological wonders too numerous to mention. Dodge Intrepid. This changes everything.

...And The Truck That Changed All The Rules.

Dodge Ram Pickup

The Dodge Ram Pickup. It's the first full-size pickup with available anti-lock brakes at all four wheels. And every pickup we sell comes with a standard driver's-side airbag.* While, under the hood, there's a choice of powerful Magnum engines including an awesome 500 horsepower V-10. Ram pickup also changes the rules about the way a truck ought to look. Dodge Ram. The rules have changed.

Then Say Hi To Neon.

Dodge Neon

Don't let its small size fool you. Our Neon is full of big ideas. Like cab-forward design. So there's more room inside than you might think. And more power, too. A generous 132 horses to be exact. Plus four-wheel independent suspension and available quick-ratio power steering make it a ball to drive. Say hello to Neon and you could be saying hello to your next new car.

As a young child in Decatur, Georgia, Lewis Usher did not grow up cheering for the home-state Bulldogs of Georgia or Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech. Instead he was a Clemson Tiger fan.

"I remember watching Clemson on TV with my grandfather as a kid and I've been a fan ever since. I remember when Herschel Walker played against Clemson and how Clemson's defense shut him down," said Usher. With those childhood memories of a swarming defense led by All-American linebacker Jeff Davis, Usher signed with the Tigers in 1990.

Usher was originally recruited by Danny Ford and Tommy West out of Southwest DeKalb High School. He was a co-captain and played linebacker, offensive guard, and fullback for a team that was ranked as high as number-five in the nation according to USA Today his senior season. He was named DeKalb County Player-of-the-Week three times and was named All-Atlanta and honorable mention all-state by the Atlanta Constitution.

Usher is one of a few Tiger players who can compare the styles of Clemson's last three head coaches. "Coach Ford and Coach West are the two guys who recruited me to come to Clemson and they are real similar. They are both laid back and promote a family-type atmosphere where Coach Hatfield is more of a conservative person. All three are fine coaches and successful in their own style."

On the playing field, Usher has been hampered by injuries in his senior year. He had a hand injury in the preseason that forced him to miss the first three games and a stress fracture of his fibula in the spring. However, In the second half of '94, he has come on strong to add depth, experience, and leadership to the defense from an outside linebacker position. He played a dozen plays at North Carolina and had his first career tackle for loss in the Tigers 28-17 win over 12th-ranked North Carolina. It was a key stop on a third-down play that kept the momentum on Clemson’s side of the field. He had two more tackles in just 10 plays in the win against Georgia Tech.

After being red-shirted in 1990, Usher was a leader on special teams for the 1991 team, a 9-2-1 squad that won the ACC championship. Usher is one of the few players on the current Clemson team with an ACC Championship ring.

He played in all 12 games and had eight tackles. In 1992, Usher had seven stops including a career-high three in the win over Duke. Last season, Usher continued to excel on special teams. He had 12 tackles including 10 on special teams, which ranked him second on the team. Two of the tackles took place in the Peach Bowl victory over Kentucky. That was a game played at the Georgia Dome, certainly a special night for the Georgia native.

Usher entered 1994 as the only senior who had played in all 35 games three previous seasons, but his streak stopped when he suffered the hand injury, then he missed another game due to a death in the family.

In the weight room, Usher has worked hard to increase his total pounds lifted (bench press + leg sled + power clean) by 317 pounds since arriving at Clemson. The 6-1, 235-pounder benches 385 pounds, the best at his position in 1994. Ellis Johnson, Clemson's outside linebacker coach, lauds Usher's leadership and attitude qualities. "Lewis is a fifth-year guy who has done a good job for us. He has a great attitude, a lot of experience and he has been critical to the success of our defense. He could start for some schools."

Usher credits his parents for installing these qualities in him as a youth. "My parents have been the biggest influences in my life. My father is the one who got me interested in football. My mom wanted me to be an artist and really didn't want me to play football, but my father would sneak me down to the park to play ball as a kid." Usher added, "I'm fortunate to have a father like mine. There are many young men who don't have their father there for them and I'm proud to say mine was there for me and I love him to death."

In the spring of 1992, Usher hit the crossroads of his young life. Academic problems had forced him out of school for a semester and he had to regroup himself as a student, a man, and a citizen. Usher described his ordeal. "I went home and I had to reevaluate everything about myself. I had to decide what I wanted to do with my life. I had friends who tried to tell me that I didn't need to go back to school, but they were just trying to pull me down into the rut they were in."

When Usher decided to return to Clemson for the second time, he was more dedicated, focused, and determined than ever before. Usher's new academic commitment landed him on the Academic Honor Roll for three consecutive semesters. He credits his family and his girlfriend, Kim Love, for staying behind him and never giving up on him. "Without their support, I would probably have gone crazy."

When Usher walks across the stage in December and receives his industrial education degree, it will be the biggest moment of his Clemson career. Usher then plans to enter graduate school at Clemson in the spring and someday obtain his master's degree. After graduate school, Usher hopes to start a career as a personnel trainer or a trainer at a human resources development office.

The calm, confident Usher says the one thing that people do not know about him is how he is constantly thinking of new ways to do things. "My mind is always spinning and nobody has any idea what I'm thinking. I have my own idea of how to do everything," said Usher.

Usher does not plan to pursue a professional football career. "I've given Clemson five years of my life and I've devoted myself to this football team. I think the time has come for me to hang up my shoes."

So today will be Lewis Usher's final football game. If Clemson fans are lucky, there are more kids across America like Lewis Usher who are keenly watching today's game on television and dreaming that they will one day play for the Tigers.
What we mean by putting South Carolina first.

We founded Carolina First because, well, because we felt we had to.

- South Carolina's community banks were being bought up and run to serve absentee owners.
- Being South Carolinians, we didn't care to do without a strong bank dedicated to our state's well-being.

Being bankers, we created this bank. • If we understand South Carolina's needs, it's because they're the needs of our own friends and neighbors. We invest in South Carolina businesses because it's good business for all concerned. After all, when our home communities grow and prosper, we grow and prosper. And because we treat our customers as the individuals they are, their good feelings spark our own. • We'd treat any customer from anywhere this way. But by design – and in conscious contrast to the multi-state megabanks – our customers are South Carolinians. So are we. Is it any wonder we put South Carolina first?

Bruce Warwick

By Jessica Reo

Bruce Warwick comes to Clemson by way of the University of Maryland in the position of Assistant Athletic Director for Football Management. In his first few months as a Tiger, Warwick has defined his job duties many times over, to the common practice in the varied, busy and important position.

"I'm in charge of the organization and administration of day-to-day activities of the football office," said Warwick.

I channel the work flow to the secretaries, whether it be recruiting mail-outs, making sure they go out in a timely manner, or information that needs to be distributed throughout the building.

"Because of NCAA rules changes, there's a lot about recruiting that I can't do. I can still be involved in unofficial visits during the games, official visits in December — making sure that everything is set with the itineraries." He is also significantly involved in the planning and administration associated with the building and move to the McFadden Building. He has established a new computer system in every phase of the office, something that has made the office more efficient and more professional in general. Warwick has direct contact with Coach Tommy West to try and make the general efficiency of the football office smooth. He also entails serving as the liaison with the sports information department, the compliance office and other departments in the building.

Warwick is well suited for the position based on his experience at other schools. "I grew in Syracuse and worked for a life insurance company for a little while, but I didn't like it. I asked myself what I wanted to do, what job would really interest me. I decided that I wanted to hold an administrative role in a football office at this point in my life. So I went back to school and earned my masters degree. I did my internship with Syracuse." He obviously did an outstanding job with the Orangemen because he became an administrative assistant and assistant recruiting coordinator.

There's change in a position like this, from staff to student-athletes to cities, but it's something that Warwick has handled rather well in the last few years. "I've worked for three brand new coaches in four years and been involved in the construction of three new buildings in that time," says Warwick.

"My first year at Syracuse, Coach Paul Pasqualoni and the whole staff were new, we were building a brand new complex and I had the responsibility to oversee the complex. Then I moved to Maryland. They hired a brand new staff from Coach Mark Duffner to the secretaries. Then they built a new building and I had some responsibility with that. In 1993, I had my second year at Maryland and that was a lot easier because everything wasn't so new.

"Now I'm at Clemson and it's a new staff and we're building a new building." All this experience and new beginnings can be stressful at times with all the change, but it has enhanced his resume. The position is an extremely mobile one, but Warwick states, "Once you get your system in place, it all works out."

The Syracuse, NY native had the same title at Maryland as he has at Clemson, but he had some different duties. "I had more true administrative tasks there. I handled all of the team travel, budget, all of the recruiting travel. There's nothing more stressful than handling travel for all of the groups that travel with football. I had to do administrators, cheerleaders, the football coaches and the football players.

"It was good though, it was like fitting together the pieces of a puzzle when it all came together. A lot of things were channeled through me. But I do some of the same things here that I did at Maryland. Compliance, for one. If there's ever a question, I'm the liaison between the football office and Steve Nelson (Clemson Compliance Director)." While at Maryland from 1992-93, Warwick was also responsible for administering all special events, including clinics and summer camps.

After his second season at Maryland was finished, and the opportunity to move to Clemson materialized, the newly married Warwick decided that he wanted to try something new. "I had a great job with great people, but I don't like big cities. I grew up in a town and the size of Clemson.

"In the 1980s, the years that I really started watching college football, Clemson was on top. Clemson was on (TV) every week, so you didn't have to tell me a whole lot about that place. It looked like a place that would be great from a football perspective, but now being here, the quality of life and the people that are here make it a great place to live."

Movement from place-to-place isn't always easy, but the job opportunities are hard to come by in collegiate athletics. For Warwick, the job search is something that is on hold for a while, but future plans, as with anyone, are always in the process. "I'd like to do what I'm doing for at least a couple of years. I don't have a time deadline. Eventually, I'd like to become an athletic director. I don't want to be a coach, that's just something I've never wanted to be. I like doing what I'm doing. I like working in the administrative end of sports. I like going out to practice because that gets you away from everything and you get to see the athletes compete, but for a job, I'd rather remain in an office setting," observes Warwick.

Married on June 12, 1993, Bruce and wife Cynthia made the move to Clemson in March. She is currently working in the basketball office at Clemson, with new coach Rick Barnes. "When Cynthia and I first moved down here, she missed Maryland. She gets more emotionally attached to places than I do. But it has worked out well for both of us," states Warwick.

And his impressions of Clemson and the rich, football tradition, small-town in the south? "It's a perfect place to live. For some reason, if you live in the north, you want to live in the south. The people in the south are a lot more loyal to their communities, their businesses, especially in Clemson. People will channel their business through Clemson graduates."

Helping Tiger football players gain employment and become successful in business in the community or on the gridiron is another area of concern for Warwick. It is all part of a list of job responsibilities that seems to grow every day.

Bruce and his wife Cynthia are both employed by the Clemson Athletic Department.

Traditions are something that don’t happen overnight, they evolve over a number of years. One tradition at Clemson that is going strong and heading into its 51st year is IPTAY. The IPTAY Scholarship Foundation, is known throughout the country for its faithful and generous contributions by its supporters. A recent USA Today article called IPTAY the best-known organization of its kind in the nation. The article noted that at a time when college athletic costs are rising IPTAY continues to lead the way in supporting athletic scholarships at Clemson. IPTAY plays a major role in ensuring that all 19 of the varsity sports at Clemson are given the maximum amount of scholarships allowed by the NCAA.

IPTAY completed another record breaking year in 1993-94 when it went over the $6 million mark for the first time. The total number of members reached over 18,000. The Tiger Cub Club was also introduced for the first time, giving Clemson fans from birth to age 22 a chance to become involved in Tiger athletics.

Thanks to this support on the field, Clemson enjoyed another banner year in 1993-94. The program ranked 16th among all-around programs in the nation according to the Sears NCAA rankings, and had nine teams ranked among the top 25 in the respective final rankings. Clemson was especially successful in the Spring when the baseball, golf and track teams were all ranked among the top 11 in the nation. Clemson's traditional sports of football, basketball and baseball were also successful. Clemson and Florida were the only teams in the nation to win at least nine football games, 18 basketball games and 36 baseball games.

It was also a banner year academically. Soccer goal keeper Jaro Zawiasan was the recipient of the ACC's Jim Weaver Award as one of the outstanding all-around student-athletes in the league. In the Spring semester of 1994, 43 student athletes were on the dean's list and 14 had a perfect 4.0. Tiger football player Warren Forney was the recipient of Clemson's Algonquin Sydne Sullin Award, which is given to a Clemson student for outstanding service to others.

IPTAY is recognized as one of the oldest, largest and most successful athletic fundraising organizations in America. IPTAY was the first athletic fundraising organization in the country to top the two, three, four, and five-million dollar marks in annual donations.

In 1934, Dr. Rupert Fike founded IPTAY with a very simple purpose in mind: IPTAY provides funds for athletic scholarships. Since 1934 IPTAY has certainly met Fike's goal, providing scholarships for over 5,000 student-athletes, trainers, and managers.

IPTAY currently provides the funds for tutorial programs staffed by trained academic advisors, assisted by graduate and undergraduate students. This support is intended to ensure that all student-athletes are given the opportunity to earn their degree while participating in athletics.

IPTAY donors have also played an intricate role in the "Campaign for Clemson", a long range fund-raising project of the University. The University's original goal of 62 million dollars was surpassed with the next goal of 78 million also being surpassed in the campaign that ended on June 30, 1992. IPTAY provided three million dollars with ongoing opportunities for donors to be part of the Vickery Hall Academic Learning Center.

Vickery Hall, located on East Campus, is a 27,000 square foot facility that houses the tutoring and advising programs for student-athletes. The building contains various-sized study and tutoring rooms used for individual study as well as small group instruction.

The generous support of loyal donors to IPTAY has allowed the organization to go beyond the funding of athletic scholarships by providing the financial basis for many of the unparalleled athletic facilities at Clemson.

Since 1978, IPTAY has provided the funding for $34 million of capital improvements in the area of athletics. These improvements include the expansion of the football stadium, the renovated baseball facility (Tiger Field), the outdoor track with new stadium facilities, the indoor tennis facility, the soccer stadium, the weight room, the new golf practice area, a new cross country course, and the IPTAY/Ticket office facility.

The facilities are among the best in the country, at least that must be the opinion of the NCAA. Over the last two years Clemson has hosted to NCAA events in four different sports, including three in 1993-94.

IPTAY is also proud to provide the funding for Tiger Band. Each year IPTAY establishes financial support for travel, uniforms and equipment for this integral part of the Clemson athletic program.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Endowment was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for non-athletes who are highly qualified academically. This scholarship endowment is funded by certain company gifts that are made as a result of employee contributions to IPTAY. In addition, the athletic department has made generous contributions to the endowment from athletic revenues.

The IPTAY Academic Fund is presently the largest scholarship endowment of its kind at Clemson providing $1.9 million in funds, currently benefitting more than 50 students. IPTAY's support extends to all of the student body.

The tremendous support of IPTAY is due, in large part, to the organization's excellent reputation for being one of the top athletic fundraising programs in the nation. IPTAY's leadership, in that respect, is unique. Each of South Carolina's 46 counties has an IPTAY County chairman, and every county is allotted an IPTAY representative for every 35 donors.

One important way IPTAY keeps in touch with its membership is the annual Clemson Club meeting held in April and May of each year. These meetings, which feature different coaches and administrators, are just one of the ways of making the local IPTAY members feel close to Clemson.

Clemson University will continue to be recognized and respected on the national level athletically and academically with the full support of IPTAY. IPTAY will continue to be successful because a loyal commitment to Clemson University is a way of life in the hearts of Clemson alumni and friends.

Tommy West spoke to a record 38 IPTAY meetings last spring. The organization is the reason Clemson offers a full complement of scholarships in each sport.
The Clemson Tiger Football Camps are non-contact instructional camps. There are two camps to choose from. The Tiger Cub Camp is for boys in grades 4-8. The Tiger Camp is for boys in grades 9-12. The Clemson University Athletic Department provides the following for your safety and emergency medical needs:

1. Advanced cardiac life-support stations in four locations (North stands, Upper North deck, South stands, Upper South deck). These units are staffed with skill-care nurses, physicians, cardiologists, internists, paramedics, and EMTs.
2. Mobile units of EMTs and paramedics are strategically located throughout the entire stadium.
3. Ambulances with life-support equipment are available in North and South stands areas and have prearranged routes for evacuation to local hospitals.

Learn to recognize these personnel and facilities.

WHAT TO DO IF EMERGENCIES ARISE:

Please step back and give the organized EMS personnel room to work. Well-intentioned attempts to help by untrained persons interfere with the efficiency of the EMS system. If you have basic or advanced training in specific life-support methods, make your qualifications known and offer your help. Untrained personnel can frequently be more harmful than helpful.

Most emergencies occurring at the stadium result from pre-existing medical conditions. Bring your medical identification card or wear medical identification jewelry. Moderation is the key with dress, food, beverage intake, and physical exertion. The two most frequent medical problems at football games are allergic reactions to insect stings and heart attacks.

INSECT STINGS:

Common at outdoor events. Treat immediately with ice and seek medical advice. If allergic, carry a kit from your physician with you.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE A HEART ATTACK:

The symptoms of a heart attack vary, but the usual warning signs are:

1. Uncomfortable pressure, fullness, squeezing or pain in the center of your chest lasting for two minutes or more.
2. Pain spreading to the shoulders, neck, jaw, arms, or back.
3. Dizziness, fainting, sweating, nausea, and/or shortness of breath.

EXPECT A DENIAL:

Frequently heart attack victims deny they are having a heart attack. The event is frightening or they don’t want the embarrassment of a false alarm. Therefore, they delay getting help by ignoring their symptoms or rationalizing, “It’s just indigestion.”

Find out what’s really wrong. Prompt response can dramatically increase chances of survival and recovery.

New therapies have been developed that can minimize heart damage and save lives if treatment begins within the first few hours of symptom onset. “Time is muscle.” Get help or get to a hospital immediately.

Men's Track

Speed in sprints and hurdles is one of the greatest constants of the Clemson men's track program, but this year, the Tigers are looking to show excellence in the field events as well. After one of the top recruiting classes in the country last season, the men's program is well stocked with talent and should compete for the conference and national championship both indoor and outdoor this year. With the men's outdoor program predicted to finish in fifth nationally by December's Track & Field News, the Tigers are riding on the hopes that this season will be one of their most successful ever.

"Based on last year's indoor and outdoor performances, we've got a much more mature team," said Head Coach Bob Pollock who is a 10-time ACC Coach of the Year. "We've added some young, talented freshmen who have been ranked among the top 10 in their events by Track & Field News. Several of them have been on the Junior National team, several have been on the All-America team. We've added a lot of good quality young people to our much more mature and balanced group of upperclassmen. The upperclassmen are used to our coaching staff. We increased the intensity of our indoor and outdoor practice schedule this season so that we'd see a better quality of preparation, and with the added depth of our incoming freshmen, our strength lies in the sprints and hurdles."

Clemson returns ACC Champions in Eric Lander (pole vault), Tony Wheeler (200m, 4x100m relay), Duane Ross (4x100m relay), and Enayat Oliver (4x100m relay). Five All-Americans in six different events return to the Tiger team as well. Six Tigers travelled to the Indoor and Outdoor NCAA Championships last season, four of whom return to the Clemson squad for another season.

The 1994 World Junior Champion in the 200m is Tony Wheeler, who returns to Clemson for his sophomore year. Wheeler is joined by senior Mitchel Francis, the runner-up in the 400m dash at the NCAA Indoor Championships. Francis, the Jamaican National Champion in the 400m, will be depended on for his leadership abilities this year.

Duane Ross, a senior this year, had a record breaking performance and a first-place finish in the 110mH this past outdoor season at the 100th Penn Relays, one of the most historical and difficult track and field competitions in the country. Eric Lander returns as a senior leader as well. He was a top performer for the Tigers in the field events last season and looks to take the helm of the decathlon once again this year.

The recruiting class features 11 athletes who won the state championship in their respective specialty event. "I think that we should have an exceptionally fine year in both indoor and outdoor competition," states Pollock.

Women's Track

The Lady Tiger track program returns it's six 1994 ACC Champions this year, making for a promising outlook to the indoor and outdoor track season. Coach Wayne Coffman enters his 14th season at the head of the Lady Tiger program. Coffman saw improvement at the end of last year, including a third-place finish at the indoor ACC Championships. Year in and year out the ACC is one of the toughest conferences in the country.

Coach Coffman signed 19 newcomers this season, balancing out the track and field events for the year. Treshell Mayo, an NGAA Outdoor Championship participant, returns for her second season of competition with the Lady Tigers in the 200m dash. She will be a featured returnee and one who will be looked upon to lead the team along with returning All-American Mareike Ressing, who heads up the distance events for the Clemson women, and Tina Jensen, a 1993 All-ACC cross country performer and another top distance runner for the Lady Tigers. Nikki Sims, a sophomore on the women's squad and an ACC Champion in the shot put, returns for her second season with the Tigers as well. She will be counted on for her strength in the throws to lead the Lady Tigers in that category.

Jumps is the area of most concern for the Lady Tigers. After the loss of strong jumpers to graduation last year, the long jump will not have as much depth and strength that it has had in past years. Taking control of the event for Clemson is sophomore Trent Frazier, who saw limited but important action last year. Sharia Clinkscales is also an important returnee in the jumps for the Tigers this year. After breaking school records in the high jump and triple jump, the sophomore will add leadership and strength to this event.

Says Coffman, "We have depth in the high jump. I'm not that worried about that event. We don't have it in the long and triple jumps. We will have to look to our newcomers for immediate help."

Not all of the Lady Tiger expertise lies in their ability on the track. Last year, half of Coffman's team had a 3.0 GPA or better, and four women hold GPAs of 4.0 in their major return this year. "The sole purpose of why student-athletes attend Clemson University is academics," states Coach Coffman. "At Clemson, everything we do revolves around academics, how the kids perform in the classroom shows how they will perform on the track."

That philosophy has given Wayne Coffman's athletes a 92% graduation rate over his 13-year career at Clemson. And, judging by the 13 honor roll students and Academic All-American selection for Mareike Ressing in both cross country and track, the student-athletes feel the same way about their education.

Can Clemson's Spring Sports improve on four top 15 finishes from the 1993-94 Academic Year?

Jensen and Ressing will be the leaders of the distance events for the Lady Tiger Track team.

Couglan, Biershenk and Byrne are all pre-season golf All-Americans.

Men's Tennis

After a 21-12 finish (5-3 ACC) last year, Chuck Kriege's men's team, looks toward 1994-95 with a conference championship on their mind, and a strong shot at a Top 20 national finish. The Tiger team, which has competed in 12 NCAAAs since 1979, more than any other ACC school, has strength and depth returning to its roster this season.

Three seniors, Frank Salazar out of Las Vegas, NV, Bryan Twente from Malibu, CA, and Cris Robinson, who hails from Richmond, VA, return to lead the squad from last year. Robinson is the top senior returnee. His strength for the Tigers lies in his doubles play, where he finished with a 14-5 record in dual matches and was 19-7 overall last year. Salazar, who played the number-three singles spot for Clemson last year, had a record of 12-12 in dual matches, but was 25-7 overall in doubles play. Robinson, solely a doubles player last season, was 3-1 in dual matches, 6-2 overall, and 0-1 in the ACC.

Strength for the Tigers will come from underclassmen as well. Mitch Sprengelmeyer, a sophomore out of Florence, SC, is the only returning All-ACC player from last season. Sprengelmeyer was also the number-four singles flight champion in the league last season. He had a 21-12 dual match record in singles, was 25-12 overall, and was 7-3 in ACC competition. He was 25-7 in doubles dual match competition and 31-10 overall.

Charly Rasheed, a local sophomore out of Greer, SC, had an outstanding freshman year last season after playing in the number-six slot for the Tigers. He tallied a 17-6 dual match singles record, was 26-10 in singles overall, and was 5-0 in ACC singles play.

Clemson men's tennis teams have claimed 10 ACC titles in the past, and are striving to take an 11th home at the end of the year. Chuck Kriege led his Tigers to nine of those ACC titles, the second highest number of championships in the conference for one coach. The Tigers have also landed 40 singles champions and 21 doubles champions in past years.

Kriege enters his 20th season at Clemson, and has posted a 418-224 record overall, one of the top 15 victory totals among active coaches in the country. He is 102-28 in conference play, and looks to add another ACC title to his list of accolades at the end of the season.

Women's Tennis

The 1994-95 Clemson Lady Tiger tennis team, coached by veteran Andy Johnston, strives for the ACC title and stronger national recognition this year after finishing second in the ACC regular season standings, and third in the ACC tournament last season. The team, which finished ranked 18th by the ITA Rankings, returns depth and a contingent of All-ACC performers from last year. The Lady Tigers finished out last season with a 6-2 record in the ACC and a 15-11 mark overall after participating in the NCAA Championships. The Lady Tigers had four women named to the All-ACC team last year, two of whom return for action in 1994-95. Emma Peetzt, the number-three singles ACC flight champion, returns for her third season with the Lady Tigers as a two-time All-ACC selection.

The junior out of Sydney, Australia, played in the number-three spot for the team last year, and ranked 95th in the nation with a dual match record of 12-11 in singles play. She was 23-14 overall and 7-3 in the ACC.

Joining Peetz to lead the Lady Tigers is junior veteran Jan Barrett out of London, Ontario, Canada. Barrett, another All-ACC performer for the Lady Tigers, finished out her season ranked 101st in the nation after a dual match record of 21-5, 30-9 overall, and 7-3 in the ACC. The player in the number-four spot for the Lady Tigers tallied a 9-8 doubles record and a 14-11 doubles record overall.

Another strength of the returning class for the Lady Tigers is Shannon King. King, a senior for Clemson this year, played the number-six slot last season. The Acworth, GA native's major contribution to the team was in her doubles play with teammate Janice Durden. The pair finished out the season ranked eighth in the country. They had a match record of 11-7 overall, and a 2-1 record in ACC play.

Johnston, who enters his 13th year as the coach of the Clemson Lady Tiger tennis team, has garnered an outstanding 219-121 record in his career at Clemson. He has taken home four ACC Coach-of-the-Year honors and has coached his teams to five ACC Championships, the most of any coach in the ACC.

Men's Golf

There is a youth movement at Clemson, and it is coming from Coach Larry Penley's Clemson golf team. The team has three red-shirt freshmen and four true freshmen, to go along with one sophomore, two juniors, and Steve White of Decatur, GA, the team's only senior. Even with the loss of All-American Mark Swygert and such a young team, the Tigers are ranked 15th in the nation in both the Golfweek and Golf World magazine polls. That is quite a testimony to Clemson's program, which has been to the NCAA Tournament every year since 1982.

So far this season sophomore Richard Coughlan has emerged as Clemson's leader. He has been the Tigers top finisher in all three of the Fall tournaments. In the Ping/Golfweek preview Coughlan shot a 69 in the first round of the tournament and finished the event at +1 and in fourth place. That event had 10 of the top 15 teams in the nation so a number-four finish among that level of competition is a feather in the cap of the sophomore Irishman.

Coughlan, an Offally, Ireland native was named to the Walker Cup team as an Irish representative in September. He is the second Tiger to be named to the Walker Cup team, as Kevin Johnson was on the 1990 team as an American representative. The Walker Cup is a competition between European and American amateurs.

Two Spartanburg, SC natives are among the top returnees for the Tigers this season. Juniors Tommy Biershenk and Mike Byrne were also selected as pre-season All-American selections by Golfweek. Biershenk was named to the third team, while Byrne was named to the honorable mention team. Byrne was an integral part in Clemson's ninth-place finish at the 1994 NCAA Nationals last season with his two-under 70 in the third round. Biershenk fired a three-under 67 in the third round of the NCAA East Regional last season which helped Clemson win its second straight regional title.

Even though the Clemson roster is filled with youth, a few of the freshmen have garnered pre-season honors. Paul Dickens (Roanoke Rapids, NC), Elliot Gealy (Salisbury, NC), and Sean Thornton (Easley, SC) were all named as freshmen to watch by Golfweek.

Last season Penley became only the second Clemson coach to guide a team to 11 consecutive NCAA tournament appearances. Chuck Kriege guided the Clemson men's tennis program to 11 straight NCAA Tournaments between 1979-89. Even with the youth of this year's team, Larry Penley should get his 12th straight invitation to the NCAA Tournament.

With the newness of college life comes the responsibility of making life for oneself. For most incoming freshmen, managing time for classes, study time, and social life is confusing and demanding as it is, but tack on the responsibility of practice time, travel days, and meeting with coaches, and it is easy to see that time is something a lot of student-athletes are short on. Life, at that point, can make many freshmen too overloaded to continue with schoolwork, with their sport, or with college itself.

That's where Clemson's Vickery Hall and its Personal Growth Program come in. Vickery Hall itself was the first facility in the nation to be built solely for the purpose of responding to the special needs of student-athletes. The Personal Growth program was formed at Vickery specifically to help student-athletes deal with issues of time, stress, responsibility, and how to deal with them. Vickery Hall is a place that can help student-athletes manage their time and helps them deal with difficult issues. It was designed with the intention of encouraging athletes to actively pursue a degree while working for excellence in a sport. Tutors are on staff at Vickery Hall full-time, there are computers, athletic counselors, and a dependable structure that draws athletes in and teaches them the hows and whys of the system.

The personal growth program demands that every athlete tackle their individual sporting responsibilities head on, but gives the student the help needed to adjust to the sometimes overwhelming circumstances of balancing student life. After talking to former athletes, the program was set in motion with a specific intent.

"Those people who seemed to struggle academically in the past were people who weren't connecting in areas of time management and responsibility," said Bill D'Andrea, director of student-athlete enrichment at Clemson. "We needed to give them some guidance, direction, and some coping skills to deal with what they face as freshmen. How you start out in college is extremely important. If students get behind, sometimes they get discouraged and frustrated. They think they shouldn't be here (in college), and perhaps they're not college material. We wanted to give them the opportunity to transfer a lot of the athletic skills to the academic side: perseverance, determination, goal setting, hard work, effort."

D'Andrea, currently in his fifth year at Vickery Hall, is the director of many of the programs in place at the facility. He spoke about the personal growth program and its benefits to student-athletes. "We think that this is something they (the students) need to be told. They have to face transition and change, roommates, peer pressure, being away from home, those kinds of things. We're here to help them with that."

The need for this type of program arose after discussions with former athletes and incoming athletes who talked about things that faced them on an everyday basis. "In evaluating and talking to students who have been through the Clemson experience, it became apparent that we needed to offer more than just the academic support," continued D'Andrea. "We needed to give them the competitive edge, not only for the classroom, but in the job world as well. And it's not good enough to just graduate anymore. You have to have some kind of requisite skills, some personal skills. Adjusting that freshman year is crucial to connecting socially, personally, athletically, and academically. It's such a blend of different components and issues that we felt that it was important to address them."

Meetings concerning topical issues, such as time management, alcohol and drugs, sexually transmitted diseases, eligibility rules, and personal time, alcohol and drugs, in addition to personal time, alcohol and drugs, are held three times a week. Says D'Andrea, "We're trying to address transitional issues and I think it's really important that they (students) get this kind of extra help because so much of their time is spoken for."

Maintaining a normal classroom workload, along with practice and travel is difficult, so study hall is an important part of the Personal Growth Program as well. Freshmen attend study hall five days a week and during that time are given access to computers, tutors and a quiet place to study. The structure of an environment as that of Vickery Hall is precisely what many freshmen need in order to succeed in a university setting.

And, Clemson is not the only school to recognize the special assistance that student-athletes need. The NCAA is also aware of the challenges that new athletes face and the organization is going about trying to make transition a little easier with a new program called CHAMPS (Challenging Athletes Minds with Personal Success) that is being instituted in different universities around the country.

"The NCAA has gotten behind this personal growth with its CHAMPS program," is a program that is endorsed by the NCAA that has 50 pilot schools around the country. Clemson is one of the 50. "We have followed their agenda — and we think that is very important for us."

The personal growth program is the center of life for Vickery Hall in the sense that all of the programs, all of the study time that the athletes are required to log, all of the student advisors, and all of the tutors, are at Vickery Hall to better the student-athlete. "We think that Personal Growth is the center facilitating everything at Vickery Hall," says D'Andrea. "Every contact that our student-athletes have with a personal counselor shows that they are growing, achieving, and striving for success." Ginty Porter, a counselor for the student-athletes at Vickery Hall, has the primary responsibility of making sure the program runs smoothly and progresses from year to year.

Bobby Douglas, the development coordinator and one of the original founders of the program, has this to say about the program and how it has developed over the past four years. "Each year the program is evaluated and we change topics considerably from the responses of our student-athletes. Right now, Vickery Hall is at its peak because we've had four classes opinions on what the personal growth program should be about, so we are improving from year to year through their input."

Vickery Hall, developed for student-athletes in need of support during high stress times, is one of the most advanced programs of its kind on the national front. Dedication to making the student a success not only on the playing field, but in the classroom as well, must be the best investment the Clemson athletic department has made in its near 100 years of service to Clemson University.

By Brent Coleman

Matt Bulman

Matt Bulman had been a backup punter to Nelson Welch for the first 43 games of his career, but will finish 1994 as Welch’s holder on placekicking duties. Bulman saw his first action as a holder at Chapel Hill and helped Welch break the all-time Clemson career scoring record in the Tigers 28-17 victory. Welch finished the day perfect 5-5 on five field goals and 1-1 on extra points and was a significant contributor in Clemson’s road win over the #12 team in the nation.

In 1992, Bulman also saw action against the Tar Heels. He had a 34-yard punt, the only one of his career, in Clemson’s 40-7 win. Thus, heading into today’s game, Bulman has played in just three games, but two have been against a top 20 North Carolina team.

In high school, Bulman was an all-area, all-region, and second-team all-state punter for Spartanburg’s Dorman Cavaliers. He participated in the North-South All-Star Game in Myrtle Beach his senior year. He also played basketball and baseball, and saw the discus in track. In the classroom, Bulman is a dean’s list student in human resources management. He plans to get a managerial job at a large corporation after he graduates from Clemson.

Mike Kunz

Mike Kunz is one of only two Tigers (classmate Darnell Stephens is other) from the state of Texas. Kunz signed with Clemson in 1990 out of Lee High School in San Antonio. He has seen action in Clemson victories in each of the last four seasons and was the only freshman interior offensive lineman to appear in a game in 1991, Clemson’s last ACC Championship team. Kunz has increased his bench press by nearly 100 pounds since arriving at Clemson.

In high school, Kunz was a member of Bill Buchalter’s Dandy Dozen in Texas and was listed among the Texas stars section of Tom Lemming’s recruiting report. He was also rated as the third best prospect in the San Antonio area. Kunz lettered in football, basketball, and baseball during his prep career.

Kunz received his management degree in August and is currently enrolled in graduate courses at Clemson. He and kicker Nelson Welch are both in graduate school. At the end of the season, he plans to start a job in law enforcement in the state of South Carolina.

“I have enjoyed my time at Clemson. Clemson’s loyal fans and my friendship with Nelson Welch stand out in my memories here.”

Coby Peeler

Coby Peeler is the only non-scholarship senior to have lettered in 1993. He saw action in all 12 games on special teams. Peeler is one of the strongest Tigers on a pound-for-pound basis with a power ratio of 7.52, fourth on the ‘94 squad. The 190-pound safety benches 350 pounds and leg sleds 830.

At Spartanburg’s Dorman High School, Peeler was a teammate of Tiger holder/punter Matt Bulman and lettered in football, track, and wrestling. Peeler and Bulman have been teammates since sixth-grade. He was an all-area choice in football his senior year and broke the school record in the pole vault.

“I appreciate the opportunity Coach Hatfield and Coach West have given walk-ons,” Peeler said. “My years playing for Clemson will help me tremendously when I pursue my career as a football coach.” Peeler is majoring in secondary education/history.

Tiger seniors have made significant contributions to the Clemson program, especially this season.

Tim Schiebel

Tim Schiebel, a native of Trumbull, CT, is in his fourth season on the Tigers defensive front. The 6-6, 265-pounder has had success in the weightroom at Clemson as he leads all down linemen in the power clean with a lift of over 300 pounds.

He saw action in the 54-3 win over Tennessee-Chattanooga in 1992 and registered a quarterback sack, certainly a moment he will cherish through the years.

At Trumbull High School, Schiebel lettered in football, basketball, and track. He was a state finalist in the shotput and javelin his senior year. The next year, he went to St. Thomas-Moore Prep School in Oakdale, CT and played all three sports.

Schiebel says, “I have earned an awful lot from my Clemson football experience and my experiences at Clemson University. I plan to remain in the south after graduation and enter the business world. There are a lot of opportunities in this area.”

Brian Tillotson

Brian Tillotson walked-on at Clemson in 1991 and has worked hard in practice and the weight room to earn playing time in his senior year. Tillotson has played in every game in 1994 on special teams and had a tackle from his outside linebacker position against Florida State.

He is tied for the Clemson all-time record in flexibility. He can sit flat on the floor and reach past his toes 13.5 inches. Tillotson power cleans 306 pounds, one of the best marks on the team, and has improved his bench press by 130 pounds since 1991. He originally walked on as a wide receiver before switching to defensive back and then to outside linebacker. He has been Clemson’s second-team outside linebacker behind Wardell Rouse since midseason.

Tillotson was the captain of Greenville’s Berea High School his senior year earning honorable mention all-region and all-county honors. He earned letters in football, basketball, track, and tennis.

“Playing football at Clemson has prepared me for the real world and taught me to make hard work pays off,” Tillotson said. “I thank the Lord and my girlfriend for keeping me going.” Tillotson plans to pursue his MBA after graduating in December.

David Zeiler

David Zeiler walked-on the Clemson squad as a wide receiver in 1992 and has worked extremely hard ever since. The Bethel Park, PA native has seen action on special teams and at wide receiver in ‘94 and had two tackles against North Carolina in the 28-17 win over the Tar Heels. He also forced Tar Heel punter Mike Thomas to fall on a fumbled snap that set up a Clemson score in the first half of Clemson’s win in Chapel Hill. He added two more stops against Georgia Tech.

Zeiler has had success in the classroom while at Clemson. He has made both the dean’s list and the Tiger athletic honor roll in his mathematics major. In the weight room, Zeiler has one of the best power ratios on the team.

At Bethel Park High School, Zeiler was named the Red River Bar-B-Que Conference Player-of-the-Year in football and all-conference in wrestling. He played wide receiver and strong safety. A secret service job in the northeast is in Zeiler’s future.

UNDER THE SOUTH STANDS
AT DEATH VALLEY
Today, in Clarendon County near upper Lake Marion, Laidlaw Environmental’s commitment to the lasting glory of the natural world is taking wing.

In partnership with the South Carolina Waterfowl Association, we have restored a clay mine to create a premier Wetland Wildlife Education Management Center. Specially designed to showcase waterfowl in their own habitat, it will provide children and adults with a unique chance to better understand the beauty and responsibility of the world around them. And as home to a Clemson University study of plant and animal life on bottom-land hardwood forest, the center is a model for corporate environmental responsibility.

For all that changes in this world, one thing is certain: Nature must endure. At Laidlaw Environmental, we’re doing our part to make that happen. For our state. For our children. For everyone.
Environmental Landscaping is proud to be a part of the winning team at Clemson.

Environmental Landscaping has installed Toro Automatic Irrigation Systems and provided our professional turf services for all areas of Clemson University Athletics.

"Excellence in Athletic Turf"
Toro....your source for automatic irrigation and sprinkler systems.
Clemson University’s commitment to provide its student-athletes with the very best of facilities is evident in many ways. From the soaring upper decks of Memorial Stadium, to the state-of-the-art strength training facility, young men and women from all 19 of Clemson’s varsity sports have the very best in facilities for training and competition. Vickery Hall is no exception, as the $3 million structure is as impressive aesthetically as any of the other facilities. But the importance of Vickery Hall to the Clemson University Athletic Department is not found in the structure itself, but in the many programs that the building houses.

Vickery Hall opened in the spring of 1991 and is the first facility in the nation originally constructed for the purposes of meeting the comprehensive needs of student-athletes. The two-story, 27,000-square-foot building is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of student-athletes, and consolidates a variety of academic services for their use.

The philosophy behind Vickery Hall is to provide the Clemson student-athlete with a program that will meet his or her needs academically, in personal growth and development, and with career assistance. Vickery Hall is tangible evidence that, at Clemson, the athletic department has made a commitment to make the student-athlete’s total experience a rewarding one, even after he or she enters the professional world.

“Vickery Hall is one of the most important facilities the Clemson University Athletic Department has ever built or will ever build. It makes a philosophical statement about the institutional commitment - giving our student-athletes the same opportunity to achieve their full potential academically that we give them athletically. We’re very serious about that,” said Athletic Director Bobby Robinson.

Given the time pressures of athletic participation and practice, student athletes face a difficult balancing act in trying to perform well both on the playing field and in the classroom. With respect to this, Clemson's Student-Athlete Enrichment Services (SAES), has provided one of the best academic support and advising programs in the nation over the last several years. The completion of Vickery Hall gives SAES an even greater opportunity to help student-athletes reach the short-term goal of graduation and the long-term goal of success in the world. The facility is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of the student-athlete.

Vickery Hall is located in the mainstream of east campus, behind Jordan Hall at the top of Bryan Mall. The main entrance to the building is a 1,570-square foot reception/office area, comprised of five advisors' offices, two graduate student offices, and a conference room. Also located on the bottom floor is the office of Bill D'Andrea, the director of Clemson's student-athlete enrichment program.

Vickery Hall operates under the guidelines and policies of the university and the center’s staff adheres strictly to the rules and ethical conduct standards of the university. In addition to the director, the staff also consists of six full-time advisors, two graduate assistants, and 50 tutors.

The building also boasts a 175-seat auditorium to be used for classes, team meetings, review sessions, and seminars. The various speakers and lecturers who come to work with Clemson student-athletes as part of the student-enrichment program also use this facility. The auditorium is equipped with a projection booth and state-of-the-art audio and video equipment and will be available to other campus groups when not in use by Student-Athlete Enrichment.

Another area of the main floor, the computer resources area, consists of a general computer tutoring room and a computer science tutoring room. The computer room contains 30 personal computers for hands-on computer tutoring, word processing and other general uses.

The 13,000-square-foot study and tutoring area on the second floor comprises the majority of the center. This area contains 11 classrooms and 28 tutorial rooms, including a large 65-seat study room and nine 20-seat study rooms, which are designed as classrooms with freestanding desks.

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Services has recognized the need for students to have access to high-quality computing equipment and has made a commitment to providing the student-athletes at Clemson with such equipment.

Located on the first floor of Vickery Hall is the Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Services Microcomputer Laboratory. The lab is open six days a week, for 16 hours a day on Monday through Thursday.

The lab staff consists of mostly graduate students, many of whom are pursuing advanced degrees in computer science. Lab staff members are available for tutoring of any Computer Science course as well as the many management, engineering and business courses that deal with personal computers. Student-athletes may also arrange tutoring sessions outside normal lab hours any time during the school year.

Computers in the lab can reach many of the other machines on campus, including the NAS mainframe, and are in turn, connected to a world-wide internetwork, allowing lab machines to access computing resources throughout the world. This also allows access to lab resources from computers throughout the world.

The Dick Hendley Computer Room is one of many outstanding aspects of Vickery Hall, Clemson's state-of-the-art Academic Learning Center.

1994 Clemson Football
By Brenda Rabon

As the doors close on the 1994 Tiger Football season, we take a step back and reflect on accomplishments. It has been a year of changes as Clemson football took a "new direction" under first-year head football coach Tommy West, but these changes have brought growth, improvement and success to the 1994 Tiger Football Team.

This football Saturday proves to be an exciting climax as Clemson's biggest rival, the South Carolina Gamecocks, travel to Death Valley in attempt to win "bragging rights" for the next year. However, it will be an emotional day as the door slowly closes on the seniors' college years, yet another one waits to be opened that is full of promise of future success. Even though a few months remain before graduation, these students realize they are participating in activities they will never do again as college students.

This is the last game not only for senior students associated with Tiger football but for Tiger Band members as well. Countless hours have been contributed over the years by these students as they make certain every fan has that Tiger spirit. Whether it was the First Friday parade, Homecoming, or any other exciting day in Tiger football, the seniors led other members of the band as they made Memorial Stadium explode with spirit.

As today marks the final performance of Tiger Band's graduating seniors, Dr. Mark Hosler, the director of Tiger Band, expresses gratitude to these students. "The years of dedication and effort by these young men and women are very much appreciated by all the members and staff of Tiger Band, and the football fans as well. Thank you seniors for a job well done!"

The last day of the Tiger football season is an emotional one for all fans as they realize another season of Tiger football is months away. Today brings mixed emotions for all of the Tiger Band members and their families, as it will be the last time that they will have an opportunity to perform as a member of "The Band That Shakes the Southland." Imagine, if you will, playing "Tiger Rag" just one last time in Death Valley surrounded by 84,000 Clemson faithful. What an emotional day it must be for the seniors of Tiger Band.

Today as Clemson fans, we salute the senior Tiger Band members for the dedication and leadership they have provided through their years at Clemson University. This last performance on Frank Howard field will be a special memory in the minds of these band members and they deserve to be honored.

Tiger Band's traditional sideline entrance today is marked by the sound of the famous "Sock It To 'Em/Tiger Rag." Fans everywhere begin to feel the famous Tiger spirit as they anxiously anticipate the invasion of the Tiger team into Death Valley.

Attention is then directed to the 25 yard line where Richard Leigh and Ed Kilby have the honor of dotting the "i" in the script Tigers. Kilby married Captain Frank Jervey's daughter, Jervey Athletic Center is named for Captain Jervey for his years of service to Clemson University. Kilby and his wife Mary moved to Clemson to care for her parents and fell in love with Clemson. Leigh is the grandson of Captain Frank Jervey and the son of Mary and Ed Kilby. He is an accomplished country music songwriter. In 1974, his first recorded song was a number-one hit and was nominated for the Country Music Association Song of the Year. Leigh is President of the Nashville Songwriters Association International. Leigh is also director of the board of Country Music Association and president of the Nashville Songwriters Foundation.

Pregame festivities continue with one of John Philip Sousa's most renowned marches, "Washington Post." The colors are presented by the Clemson University Percussion Rifles Company C4. Everyone then stands and joins Tiger Band, under the direction of Dr. Mark Hosler, to honor America in singing "God Bless America."

The invocation is delivered and the crowd is asked to join in the Pledge of Allegiance and the singing of our National Anthem, conducted by Clemson University Director of Bands, Dr. Richard Goodstein. Tiger Band then performs the Clemson University Alma Mater and asks all to join in singing.

Tiger Band then takes part in the greatest stadium entrance in college sports as they play "Sock it to 'Em/Tiger Rag" as they march to the end of Memorial Stadium to form the tunnel for the players to run through. As the cannon booms, the team rubs Howard's Rock and charges down the hill to face the Yellow Jackets.

Today's halftime show is entitled "The Sound of Music" featuring selections from one of the most famous musicals of all time, which opened on Broadway 35 years ago this past week. Music selections include "The Sound of Music," "Do-Re-Mi," "My Favorite Things," "Edelweiss," and "Climb Every Mountain."

The Tiger Band staff includes Dr. Mark Hosler, marching band director, Dr. Rick Goodstein, director of University Bands, Cheryl Hosler, Flag Line Instructor, and Hazel Martin, Twirler Instructor.

As another year of Clemson Football comes to an end, we salute people like the Tiger Band members who keep Clemson spirit in the hearts of all Tiger fans. Today, we especially wish to thank the graduating seniors for their dedication and effort through their years at Clemson University. We also wish them the best of luck in the future.

Until Tiger Band strikes up again, fans, keep whistling the tune of "Tiger Rag" and thank them for another spirit-filled season!

When completed early next year, the newest kid on the College of Engineering's campus 'block' will be the Fluor Daniel Engineering Innovation Building. The $18 million project was made possible by $2.75 million in contributions from employees of Fluor Daniel and the Fluor Foundation, plus another $14.5 million in state bonds. Twelve other organizations or individuals are providing nearly $1.4 million in laboratory equipment and other donations to complete and outfit the facility. Housed in the 100,000-square-foot building will be faculty and laboratories of the departments of mechanical engineering and electrical and computer engineering and the Center for Advanced Manufacturing. This is the first new engineering facility on the Clemson campus in 24 years. The facilities at Clemson are ever changing...

One of my all-time Clemson favorites, who would have been 101 later this month, was remembered last night over at the Brooks Center—a black tie affair, complete with valet parking.

Frank Johnstone Jervey probably gave more of his time, effort, expertise and advice for Clemson’s cause than any other graduate. There have been others who have given more money, some who have put in more years with the university, and many other Clemson diehards.

But, when it came to being a par delux confidant—one whose thoughts were always positive—one who saw nothing but good in Clemson—one who felt as much at home with a first day freshman as a four-star general... that was Capt. Jervey... Mr. Clemson... the university’s Ambassador of Good Will.

What he meant to Clemson can only be measured by what Clemson meant to him.

Captain Jervey was in on the very first talks about the formation of IPTAY. That was in 1931 after The Citadel game in Florence. This was Coach Jess Neely’s first year at Clemson and that loss left the Tigers at 1-2-1, which eventually went to 1-6-2.

The Captain recalled once that he, Neely, Joe Davis (former Clemson and Rice coach) and Captain Pete Heffner were sitting in a car outside the stadium talking following the 6-0 Citadel triumph over the Tigers. Heffner was a member of the military staff at Clemson, vitally interested in athletics, and assisted with the coaching in his spare time.

Heffner suggested that alumni might contribute some money to assist with the football team. Captain remembered picking the figure of $50.00 as the amount of the contribution to form a “50 Club”. Neely believed if he could get $10,000 a year, he could give Tiger fans a winning football team.

Nearly three years later (August 21, 1934), IPTAY was formed and the Captain lived to see Clemson win a national football championship and become competitive in all sports on a regional and national basis.

The Summerville, SC native graduated from Clemson in 1914, then spent nearly 31 years in Washington before moving back to Clemson in 1953. In 1922 he joined the Ordance Corps in a civilian capacity as assistant ordance engineer and rose through the ranks to become chief engineer and one of the world’s foremost authorities of incendiary and small arms ammunition.

The Captain beat me back to Clemson by a year and already had an office in Fike Field House when I was appointed alumni secretary in 1954. Fifteen months later I moved over to sports information and became a ‘Frank Jervey Fan’ for real. Anytime the ox got in the ditch, the Captain usually had the wherewithall to get it out. And my ox was off the road constantly back then.

Whether it was to identify a vintage photograph, recall some game or individual accomplishment, or talk about an event 50 years ago, the Captain would always honor my presence. Likely as not, I would interrupt him working a crossword puzzle, but that did not matter because he was a ‘puzzleholic’ which helped sharpen his already-keen mind.

Captain would always have a smidgen of tobacco in his mouth. He had to have that taste. But if everybody chewed as little (amount) as Captain did, all tobacco companies would be broke by Saturday night.

But he, Coach Frank Howard and myself all had cuspidor equipped offices which we shared when we visited each other everyday.

The Captain had a fierce loyalty and devotion to Clemson. He worked for his alma mater every day in some way, serving in a capacity seldom seen before or since. Everytime he retired, or tried to retire, somebody would find something else that would catch his fancy, and to my knowledge, he never turned a challenge down.

After he came back to the campus he accepted the newly created vice president for development title in 1959. With his friendship built through the Ordance Department with Olin Industries, he was greatly instrumental in obtaining two grants totaling over $2 million from the Olin Foundation, Inc., for the construction and equipping of the ceramic (Olin Hall) and chemical engineering (Earle Hall) buildings.

He was later appointed as a life member of the Clemson Board of Trustees. Earlier he served two terms as national president of the Clemson Alumni Association, he was a recipient of the Alumni Distinguished Service Award and was a tireless worker for the Holy Trinity Episcopal Church in Clemson. No matter what he did, everything revolved and involved something about Clemson.

It’s with pride and joy that I come to work everyday in the Jervey Athletic Center, named and dedicated to this tireless servant over two decades ago (1973).

Captain Jervey was proud of many things, but his family was his top priority.

One of his own came back last night to remember and honor Captain Jervey. Richard Leigh, a son of Ed and Mary (Jervey) Kilby of Clemson, and the Captain’s grandson, brought three of his friends from Nashville to the Brooks Center for a ‘Celebration of Remembrances’.

All four are composers of Top 10 country and western hits in the past. Richard is best known for his “Don’t It Make My Brown Eyes Blue,” recorded by Crystal Gayle. The song earned a Grammy Award for Country Music Song-of-the-Year and a Grammy nomination as the pop song-of-the-year.

Richard deemed it an honor to come to Clemson and remember, “one of the greatest gentlemen I have ever known, my grandfather.”

The Captain might not have gone along with all the fuss being made over him had he been present last night. Except for the fact that one of benefactors was the IPTAY Scholarship Fund. And since the Captain was in on the first fund raising talks 63 years ago, he no doubt would have given his okay.

It seems ironic that Clemson opened its doors to students for the first time in 1893, which was the same year Captain Jervey was born. Seventeen years later he entered Clemson as a freshman.

And he has never left.
