On the Cover

Today is a landmark day as Clemson plays its 1,000 football game of all time. Since the Tigers first faced Furman in 1896, Clemson Football has developed a tradition that is one of the best in all of college athletics. SID Emeritus Bob Bradley, who has witnessed 497 consecutive Clemson games and nearly 600 total, offers us a look at his top 15 most memorable victories in today's commemorative program.

Clemson Has 100 Points in Two Games

Clemson is one of the top scoring teams in the nation with 100 points after just two games. Clemson opened the season with a 38-0 win over South Carolina, then defeated Missouri in the second game 62-9. This is the first time since 1929 that Clemson has scored 100 points over the first two games of the season. Clemson outscored Newberry and Davidson by a combined 100-14 over the first two games of 1929.

The 100 points scored in the first two games this year rank in the tie for third most over the first two games of any Clemson season. The record is 128 points scored against Guilford and Tennessee in 1901, a team coached by the legendary John Heisman. Clemson also scored 102 points in the first two games of 1903 (Heisman's last team) and had 100 points in the first two games of 1915.

In case you are looking ahead, the Clemson record for points scored in the first three games of the season is 157, set by the 1901 team. Clemson's 1901 team outscored the opposition 157-11 over the first three games of the season. The 1900 team put 136 on the board for the first three games, while the 1903 and 1929 teams had 126 points apiece. The 1984 team outscored its first three opponents 118-33 and that ranks fifth best as far as scoring points in the first three games of a season.

Clemson's 62 points scored against Missouri last week rank as the most by a Tiger team in any game since the National Championship 1981 season when the Tigers defeated Wake Forest 82-24, still the highest point total by one team in any game involving two ACC teams. Clemson's 53-point victory margin was the best by a Tiger team since the season opener of 1990 when Clemson defeated Long Beach State, 59-0.

Scoring Points Nothing New for Bowden Teams

Scoring a lot of points is not a new experience for Tommy Bowden coached teams. Between his 22 games at Tulane and his 14 games as Clemson head coach, he has had 16 games in which his team scored at least 40 points in a game. Even the 62 points the Tigers scored against Missouri were not the most by a Bowden coached team. His Tulane team of 1998 defeated Southwestern Louisiana, 72-20. The last game he coached at Tulane, the Green Wave scored 62 in a 62-30 win over Louisiana Tech.

Overall, Bowden coached teams have scored in the 70s on one occasion, scored in the 60s three times, scored in the 50s on four occasions and scored in the 40s eight times. For his 36 games as a Division I head coach his teams have scored 1295 points, an average of 36 points per game.

Wake Forest Contest is 1,000th Clemson Football Game

As you can see by the cover of this program, Saturdays game with Wake Forest will be the 1,000th in Clemson history. It is a day of numbers because Clemson has also played 100 neutral site games. Clemson has played 501 games on the opponent's home field and today's game will be the 399th on Clemson's home field.

Pages 10-11 review some of the top victories over the first 997 games. The list is the work of Bob Bradley, who has seen nearly 600 games overall, 497 in a row heading into today. I can't think of anyone more qualified to select 15 memorable victories.

Here are some facts about Clemson's program over the first 997 games:

| Overall Record | 998 (564-390-15) |
| Home Field Record | 398 (277-106-15) |
| Neutral Site Record | 100 (53-42-5) |

| Clemson Points Scored | 18,449 |
| Opponents Points Scored | 13,825 |
| Games Decided by 7 points or less | 156-144-45 |
| Conference Record | 256-151-12 |
| Aug./September Record | 121-68-11 |
| October Record | 216-168-18 |
| November Record | 213-140-16 |
| Dec./Jan. Record | 14-14 |
| Bowl Record | 12-11 |

Clemson Looks for 3-0 Start

Clemson is looking for its first 3-0 start to a season since 1991, the last time Clemson won the ACC Championship. Clemson has been 3-0 just four times in the last 39 years. The other seasons in addition to 1991 were 1989 (4-0), 1987 (6-0), 1981 (12-0). It is an accomplishment to be 2-0, something Clemson has done just eight times in the last 30 years. In recent years Clemson has not gotten off to a great start, yet has been resilient, making improvement over the course of the season. Clemson has been to a bowl game 16 of the last 23 seasons, yet has been 2-0 just four times in that era. Clemson had a 12-0 season in 1981 of course, and was 6-0 to start 1987. Clemson was last 2-0 in 1997. That year and 1991 were the only two seasons in the 1990s that Clemson started 2-0.

Carswell Chasing Kinard's Record

Senior safety Robert Carswell will eclipse a record held by one of Clemson's all-time greats in today's game. Carswell has 293 career tackles entering the Wake Forest contest, just one behind the career total recorded by former All-American Terry Kinard. Kinard was a two-time consensus All-American at Clemson, including a unanimous selection in 1982 when he was National Defensive Player of the Year. Kinard was named Clemson's greatest player of the 20th Century by Sports Illustrated earlier this summer.

That said, Carswell certainly should take pride in this record. He had 129 tackles last year to set the Clemson record for stops by a Tiger defensive back. But, Carswell can do more than just tackle, he had six interceptions last year to tie for the ACC statistical championship in that category.

Clemson Leads ACC in Many Areas

Clemson leads the ACC in nine different statistical areas. Such dominance is usually something you see from Florida State in the ACC stats, but the Tigers are off to quite a start when it comes to offensive and defensive statistics.

Clemson leads the ACC in scoring offense (50.0 PPG) and scoring defense (4.5 PPG). The Tigers also rank first in rushing offense, pass defense, total defense, passing efficiency offense, pass efficiency defense, first down defense and turnover margin. The last statistic might be regarded as the most important. Clemson is +7 in terms of turnover margin so far this year. In other words, Clemson has forced seven more turnovers than it has committed on offense.

Coach Tommy Bowden will tell you that is the most important indicator of a good team. Last year Clemson improved 92 spots in the national turnover margin statistics compared to the 1998 season. Clemson’s offense has not had a turnover this year. The one miscue by Clemson this year was a fumble by Joe Don Reames on a kickoff return against Missouri.

Two individuals have the lead in ACC statistics. Travis Zachery is the top scorer and top touchdown scorer in the ACC. Woodrow Dantzler paces the conference in passing efficiency with a 212.3 figure.

Points Off Turnovers Impressve

While turnover margin is important, points off turnovers might be even more important. If you force more turnovers than your opponent, what good does it do if you can’t score when you have received this gift from the opponent. Clemson was about as productive as you can get in terms of converting turnovers into points in its 62-9 win over Missouri.

Clemson forced six turnovers in the game, most forced by a Tiger team since 1995 when Clemson forced seven in a win over NC State in Raleigh. Clemson scored 34 points off those six Missouri turnovers. When you figure the maximum you can score (assuming you try to kick the extra points and not go for two) is 42 points, that is good production. Missouri scored just three points off Clemson’s one turnover.

This year, Clemson has a 48-3 advantage when it comes to points off turnovers. In the 14 games Tommy Bowden has coached at Clemson the margin is 148-47. Clemson forced six turnovers against Missouri, three fumbles and three interceptions.

Mance Ties Clemson Record
Clemson sophomore Brian Mance had a very productive 16 plays of action against Missouri in the second game of the season. For those 16 plays, Mance had two interceptions and a fumble recovery. In addition to those three takeaways, he also had four tackles and two passes broken up. He also contributed a 28-yard punt return on special teams in the fourth quarter, second longest punt return by a Tiger under Tommy Bowden.

Mance, a backup cornerback, became just the seventh Clemson player in history to have three takeaways in the same game. He was the first to do it since Brian Dawkins had three interceptions against Duke in 1995.

Halley Has Best Performance
Junior safety Charles Halley had his best single game performance as a Clemson Tiger in the 62-9 win over Missouri. Making just his third career start, the native of Pompano Beach, FL had a career high 11 tackles, including eight first hits. He also had a 27-yard interception return for a score early in the third period. He also had a touchdown saving tackle at a key juncture in the first half. He did that in just 51 plays of action.

Halley, who was named the defense’s 12th man award recipient last year, had eight tackles in 47 plays as a freshman against South Carolina in 1998. He had an interception and touchdown saving tackle in the first half of that game in 1998, a Clemson victory in the season finale.

Tigers Open ACC Schedule
Clemson opens its ACC schedule against Wake Forest on Saturday. This is the first of eight straight league games on eight consecutive Saturdays for Tommy Bowden’s team. Clemson won its first ACC game under Bowden last year, a 33-14 victory over #19 Virginia.

Clemson had struggled in the first ACC game of the year recently. Prior to last year’s win over the Cavs, Clemson had lost six of its last seven conference openers. Clemson broke a five-game ACC opener losing streak when it defeated NC State in the opener in 1997 in Raleigh.

Overall, Clemson is 28-16-1 in ACC openers, 13-9-1 on the road, 14-9 at home and 1-0 at neutral sites.

Tiger Mascot Getting a Workout
After each Clemson score the Tiger mascot does pushups equal to Clemson’s new point total. That has been a tough job for Clemson mascot Jon Potter so far this year. The senior from Anderson, SC tied one Tiger mascot pushup record and set another in Clemson’s season opening win over The Citadel. First, he tied the record for pushups in a first quarter (42), then set the home night game record with 135.

Potter more than doubled that total in the Missouri victory, a 62-9 Clemson triumph. He did 310 pushups on the afternoon, a game that was played in 82 degree heat. That was the most pushups by a Clemson mascot since 1981 when Ricky Gapps did 465 in Clemson’s 82-24 win over Wake Forest.

Potter, who had to get an IV in the Clemson locker room after Saturday’s game, now has 445 pushups in two games this year. He has made a good start toward the single season record of 1124 by Zack Mills in 1978. The tradition of the mascot doing pushups dates to the 1978 season.

Potter follows the Clemson team very closely. He actually lives with Clemson starting defensive lineman Jason Holloman and starting punter Jamie Somaiin.

Young Leads O-Line
Center Kyle Young was Clemson’s highest graded offensive lineman in the win over Missouri. The junior first-team Academic All-American had an 80 percent grade from the Clemson coaches for his 55 plays. Young was Clemson’s highest graded lineman in eight of the 12 games last year. The native of Clemson is the grandson of Ed McClendon, who was a member of Clemson’s 1939 Southern Conference Championship team. His brother, Will Young, was an All-ACC player for the Tigers in 1995.

The offensive line, which also features gradate students Thad Mougros and John McDermott, had a strong game against Missouri, helping Clemson to eight touchdowns and 481 yards of total offense. The line, which also included second-time starter Brady Washburn, combined to keep Missouri All-American candidate Justin Smith in check most of the day. At one point, Clemson scored 34 points in 8:33, production you don’t see from many NBA teams these days.

Wake Forest Update
Wake Forest enters today’s game with an 0-2 record. The Demon Deacons are coming off their top season in seven years, a 7-5 campaign that included a top 15 win over Georgia Tech in their final home game, and a bowl win over Arizona State. Coach Jim Caldwell must replace 17 starters in 2000 from that team. That very impressive 1999 team allowed Clemson just 12 points last year, the best scoring defense by an ACC team against the Tigers last year.

Wake Forest had a 14-10 lead at halftime against North Carolina in its most recent game. But the Tar Heels went on a 25-0 run in the second half to gain the victory. Wake Forest lost the season opener to Appalachian State, 20-16.

C.J. Leak is the leader of the Wake Forest offense. The sophomore has completed 24 of 55 passes for 289 yards. He has been sacked many times however, including eight by North Carolina’s outstanding defense. The top rusher for Wake Forest is Tarence Williams, a sophomore, who has gained 54 yards in 21 attempts. Ira Williams is the top receiver with 9-116.

The young Wake Forest defense is led by Tehran Carpenter and Nathan Bolling, who both have 14 tackles so far this year. Boiling leads the team in tackles for loss with five. Nick Bender, one of the few seniors in the Wake Forest lineup, has 12 stops. Wake Forest’s defense has 18 tackles for loss, including seven sacks in just two games, better totals than Clemson’s defense has so far this year.

Adams on Display at College Football Hall of Fame
Clemson linebacker Keith Adams is one of 10 active players featured in the “Race for the Pantheon 2000” exhibit at the College Football Hall of Fame in South Bend, Indiana. The display, located in the main exhibit hall, includes
Dantzler Continues Efficient Passing

Clemson's quarterback Woodrow Dantzler is ranked third in the nation in passing efficiency this week, a rating formula that takes into account a quarterback's all-around passing abilities. Dantzler is an impressive 28-36 for 380 yards and five touchdowns so far this season. He has not thrown an interception and is now ranked first in Clemson history in interception avoidance.

Dantzler broke two Clemson records in the season opener won over The Citadel. His .941 completion percentage broke a 41-year-old Clemson record. The previous best was a .90 percent turned in by Harvey White against South Carolina (9-10) in 1959. Dantzler also broke the Clemson record for passing efficiency given a minimum of 15 attempts. His efficiency rating of 247.2 for that game was also a Clemson record, breaking the mark of 240.4 by Jimmy Addison against Virginia in 1966.

Dantzler has been very effective in terms of total offense in this Clemson offense. He has been at the controls of the Clemson offense for the majority of the snaps in nine games (seven as a starter, two games off the bench when Brandon Streeter was hurt) in his Clemson career. In those nine games he is 132 for 221 passing, a 59.7 percentage. He has 13 touchdown passes and just five interceptions in those nine games. He has passed for 198 yards a game and rushed for 72 a game, giving him a total offense average of 270.6.

The junior quarterback has been effective getting Clemson into the endzone. In those nine games he has passed or rushed for 16 touchdowns. Only one team has kept Dantzler out of the endzone...Wake Forest. Dantzler was 22-32 for 201 yards passing and rushed for 50 more against the Deacs, but he did not get Clemson into the endzone, a trend he hopes to change today.

Dantzler is now 18th on Clemson's career total offense list with 2749 yards. He needs just 251 against Wake Forest to become the 13th Tiger in history to accumulate at least 3000 yards in a career.

Tigers On Opening Day NFL Rosters

Clemson had 17 players on active opening day NFL rosters this year, plus an 18th player on a practice squad. The list of players includes 14 players on defense. The veteran of the list is Chris Gardocki, who is in his 10th year as an NFL punter and is now with the Cleveland Browns. Levon Kirkland, Ed McDaniel and Chester McGlockton, all members of Clemson's 1990 defense that led the nation in total defense, are in their ninth seasons in the league. James Trapp, who was inducted into the Clemson Hall of Fame last weekend, is in his eighth season and is also a former member of that 1990 defense.

The Cleveland Browns have the most former Tigers with three. In addition to the veteran punter Gardocki, Jim Bundren and Rahim Abdullah are two more former Tigers on the Browns roster. The Browns also have Jerry Butler as wide receivers coach and Dwight Clark as the General Manager. They were starting wide receivers on Clemson's 1978 team that finished 11-1 and ranked sixth in the nation.

The list of active Tigers in the NFL includes six who have been chosen to the Pro Bowl at one time or another in their careers. That list includes Chester McGlockton, Trevor Pryce, Brian Dawkins, Chris Gardocki, Levon Kirkland and Ed McDaniel. Tony Horne made second team All-Pro last year as a kick returner, but was not chosen for the Pro Bowl.

No one off last year's Clemson team made an NFL active roster for the 2000 season. Wide receiver Brian Woford is playing professionally in Canada with Saskatchewan. O.J. Childress, who played for the Giants last year, is listed on the practice squad for the Giants at the opening of the season. Donald Broomfield, not on the list above, is on injured reserve with the Arizona Cardinals and is out for the season.

Today is Clemson's 1,000th game in history, its 399th game at home.

Clemson’s First Game

By Sam Blackman
Associate Sports Information Dir.

One thousand games ago, dating back to an 1896 game between Clemson and Furman, Clemson Football was born.

On a still, balmy, September night on the young and undeveloped Clemson College campus a group of cadets met in the barracks to discuss the feasibility of organizing a football team to represent the all-male military school. Other state schools had football, and the question was raised—why not Clemson?

A total of 30 students met that night and from this group 20 players would make the varsity squad that year. From this group three students were appointed to consult engineering professor Walter M. Riggs as to the management of a football team and to ask his aid as coach. Legend has it that only one of these 30 players had ever seen a football.

It was only appropriate Riggs would coach the Clemson Tigers. Riggs played football at Auburn during his student days at left end. He was captain and catcher of the baseball team and graduated with top honors in 1892 with a B.S. degree in electrical and mechanical engineering. After starting the Clemson program and coaching the team in 1896 and 1899 he headed the Clemson Athletic Association (Athletic Director) and was a key administrator of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association (an early southern athletic conference with several schools as members). He later became president of Clemson College in 1911.

There is something to be said about the “old college try.” On October 5, 1896, Clemson began practice on a 50 x 200 foot field in front of the college. It is believed that this field was located in front of the old student union building. (The area between Tillman Hall and the Trustee House).

Also the first football team had training rules to be followed to the letter:

1) Will report promptly to all practices and will not be absent without a legitimate reason.
2) That in any of the above instances, we will report the facts beforehand, when possible to the coach.
3) That we will not, without the consent of coach and trainer, eat anything at any time except at training table; will not drink an alcoholic or spirituous liquors or soda water.
4) Will not use tobacco in any form or engage in any form of dissipation.
5) Will retire not later than 11:00 PM. unless permission is granted by coach and trainer or prevented by college duties.
6) Will obey the directions of the coach and captain on the field of play as before specified, and use our influence to promote discipline both on and off the field of play.

Another oddity about Clemson’s early beginnings is that Professor Riggs was one of two men among who had ever played football and only a few had ever seen the game.

Practice continued and as one description put it “a hardy group of early Tigers who cared little for their skin and bones turned out for practice and began enthusiastically slamming each other to the rock strewn practice field.”

Without any capital, the team’s first equipment was personal property, but other necessary equipment was purchased with money which was willingly contributed by members of the faculty and student body.

Equipment in the early years consisted of very little padding except at the knees and elbows. Tightly fitting and faced leather or canvas jackets were the main bodily protection against the crashing effects of mass plays and left little for a tackling to grab. A few had nose and shin guards. Due to the lack of helmets and head protection they wore long hair to protect the head.

After grueling practices, the first-ever Clemson game day finally arrived.

On October 31, 1896, Clemson traveled to Furman (probably by train). This was the first time that many of the Clemson players had seen a full-sized gridiron.

George Swygert, center on the first Clemson football team, recalled the Furman game and the first season as follows:

“With Professor Riggs as our coach we got in shape fairly well. Our first game was with Furman, the biggest men I have ever seen, and believe it or not we won that game. We had a few trick plays. One was when the play ended near the side lines, our lightest end would hide the ball under his sweater and as the two teams moved toward the center of the field for the next play, he appeared to be injured, then when things were clear, he made a bee-line for the goal. This worked maybe once a game; it worked against Furman our first game.”

Very few details of the Clemson-Furman game are known, but it is known that Charlie Gentry scored Clemson’s first touchdown in history. The Tigers defeated Furman 14-6 at Greenville, SC.

Clemson’s upset win over Furman was a monumental milestone for the school. Furman was considered at the time an experienced team having played the game since 1889, (the year Clemson was founded).

A member of Clemson’s first football team, Shack Shealy was the head coach of the Tigers in 1904. He holds the distinction of being the only Clemson player to have coached his alma mater. Shealy coached Clemson one year and guided the Tigers to a 3-3-1 record overall, which included wins over Alabama, Georgia, and Tennessee.

In 1896, a football field was 110 yards long and a touchdown counted only four points: whereas a field goal, and that was either a drop kick or through placement, counted five points, and the goal after touchdown counted two points, as also did a safety.

Little did this group of 30 students know, meeting 100 years ago in a tiny barrack’s room, they would set the foundation of one of the most successful football programs in the nation.

Memorable Victories

By Bob Bradley
Sports Information Director Emeritus

Editor’s Note: Bob Bradley has seen nearly 600 Clemson football games, more than half of all the games in this University’s history. The total includes 497 in a row heading into today’s Wake Forest game. We can’t think of anyone more qualified to select the top 15 memorable victories in Clemson history. The games are not ranked in any special order, just the order in which they came to Bradley’s still fertile mind.

Clemson 31, South Carolina 27
Nov. 19, 1977 at Columbia, SC

We jumped out ahead 24-0, but South Carolina came back and scored, and scored and scored. They took a 27-24 lead with less than three minutes left.

We took over for one last drive and Steve Fuller came into the Clemson huddle after we got possession and told the team, “boys we are going down the field and score a touchdown to win this game.” His first two passes weren’t very good and it looked like we weren’t going anywhere.

But he finally completed a pass to Rick Weddington to keep the drive alive.

He got hot after that. He hit Dwight Clark with a pass on a key play. Then the culmination of the drive was a 20-yard touchdown pass to Jerry Butler, something we refer to around here as “The Catch.” Butler made a diving backwards catch with just 49 seconds left in the game, giving us a 31-27 victory.

There might have been an extra motivation for our players on that last drive. That year, Coach Charley Pell would give cigars to the team after a Clemson victory. He started it after we beat Georgia in Athens by stopping the bus at a convenience store on the way back. We hadn’t won in Athens since 1914, so it was a special occasion.

That year, someone at South Carolina printed up t-shirts that said “No Cigars Tonight.” A lot of the South Carolina players wore them under their uniform. When they scored to go up 27-24, a lot of them raised up their jerseys and showed the Clemson players and the television audience those t-shirts. I am sure Coach (Jim) Carlen wanted to wring their necks...especially after Butler made that catch.

Clemson 22, Nebraska 15
Jan. 1, 1982 at Miami, FL (Orange Bowl)

This game was for the national championship. Nebraska had future Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier, Dave Rimington, the Outland Trophy winner and many other talented players. But we had some pretty good players in our own right with Jeff Davis, Perry Tuttle, William Perry and many others.

Nebraska scored and cut the lead to seven points, 22-15 when they converted a two-point play from the eight yard line in the fourth quarter.

But, we held the ball about the last five minutes. Homer Jordan was the key to running out the clock and not giving Nebraska another chance. He made a great run with about two minutes left that gave us a first down. What a run that was, he made so many cut backs. We held the ball to the final seconds. Nebraska had one last play with six seconds left, but Andy Headen knocked down a long pass attempt. Homer made it to the dressing room, but he passed out once he got there from dehydration. All the press wanted to talk to Homer after the ballgame, but he was in there for a long time getting IVs. By the time he got out of the training room it was past deadline for the writers. That is why all the accounts of that game don’t have any quotes from Homer. He didn’t do any interviews until the next day.

That was certainly a magic night in Miami.

Clemson 40, Virginia 35
Sept. 24, 1966 at Clemson, SC

We were down 16 points with 17 minutes to play in this game. We came back on the passing of Jimmy Addison. He passed 65 yards to Jacky Jackson for the touchdown that put us in front. Jackson took off down the sidelines and “Needle” hit him in stride.

That game was memorable because it was the first time that Howard’s Rock was in Death Valley. Coach Howard went on his television show the next day and said he told his players prior to the game that if they rubbed that rock they would receive magical powers. But, if they weren’t going to give 110 percent, to “keep your filthy hands off that rock.” A legend was born on that day.

Virginia had a quarterback named Bob Davis. He and Needle put on quite a passing show, even by today’s standards. Both teams threw for over 300 yards, the only game that happened in Clemson history over the first 90 years of play. In fact both were named National Players of the Week by some services.

We went on to win the ACC Championship. We wouldn’t have done it if we didn’t pull off that comeback against Virginia.

Clemson 33, Wake Forest 31
Nov. 21, 1959 at Clemson, SC

This was the first very exciting game in Death Valley that I remember after the time I became sports information director (1955). This was just like a tennis match, up and down the field.

The Deacons had us beat in the fourth quarter, but in those days, maybe just that year, the NCAA had a crazy substitution rule stating that you could not reenter a game until the next quarter. Wake Forest substituted its quarterback late in the fourth quarter. We turned the ball over, so they had to put a substitute quarterback into the game. On a third-down play, Chuck O’Reilly, the substitute quarterback, threw the ball into the flat and George Usry intercepted.

Usry returned the interception about 75 yards. Two plays later, he ran it in for the touchdown. So, Usry made the interception and then scored the winning touchdown. You wouldn’t see that today because no one plays both ways anymore.

When we scored that last touchdown to go ahead, 33-31, Furman Bisher of the Atlanta Constitution asked jokingly, “Does anyone remember how the first touchdown (of this game) was scored?” It seemed like it had been a week ago. Of course, games weren’t as high scoring in those days because offenses were much more conservative. Today high scores are a lot more common.

Clemson 24, Missouri 23
Jan. 1, 1949 at Jacksonville, FL (Gator Bowl)

Clemson’s 1948 team was undefeated, but we had the lucky horseshoe all year long. We had so many close games that year, but we won them all.

I hate to leave out some games from that season in this list. We beat NC State 7-0 on a 90-yard punt return by Bobby Gage. Phil Prince blocked a punt at South Carolina that Rabbit Thompson returned for a touchdown, giving us a 13-7 win over South Carolina. And the last game we humiliated Auburn 7-6 in a driving rainstorm.

We kept the horseshoe for the Gator Bowl against Missouri. This game was voted the best Gator Bowl game of the first 25 that were played.

We had them 24-16 and they scored a touchdown to cut the margin to one point with

We got the ball back and were trying to run out the clock and come home with a one-point win. We had a fourth-and-three near midfield. Coach (Frank) Howard decided to go for it because he felt we had not stopped their offense all day. He called a play that gave the ball to Fred Cone on a running play. He hit a stone wall, but he kept his legs churning, bounced outside a little and gained six yards for the first down. We ran the clock out for the victory. Cone was as strong as an ox...he still is today.

Coach Howard never would tell me his most memorable game, but he always told me that run by Fred Cone was his most memorable play. The previous season a group of students had come over to see Coach Howard to try to get him to resign. We were 1-5 at the time. He told those boys we were going to win the final three games of the 1947 season, then have a very good season the next year. He didn't know what he was talking about, but he proved to be correct. We won 14 straight games after he met with those students.

Clemson 12, Vanderbilt 7
Oct. 11, 1958 at Nashville, TN

We scored two touchdowns in the fourth quarter, including the last one on a short run by Harvey White with just three seconds left. It is still the latest Clemson has ever scored a touchdown to win a game. This was a key victory in a bowl season for Clemson.

This was another year we had the horsehoe. We won four games with touchdowns in the fourth quarter that year and it took us to a bowl game.

We almost beat #1 LSU in the Sugar Bowl that year, but Billy Cannon threw a touchdown pass to beat us.

Clemson 28, Maryland 24
Nov. 18, 1976 at College Park, MD

This game was for the ACC Championship and both teams were ranked in the top 11 in the nation.

This was an incredible game of big plays. I can't remember another game with as many long plays. Maryland had a runner named Steve Atkins who had a 98-yard run, which is still an ACC record. Dwight Clark caught a 62-yard touchdown pass from Steve Fuller and Jerry Butler caught an 87-yard touchdown pass, the longest of his career.

They kicked a field goal to make it 28-24 in the fourth quarter and got the ball back. They drove into our territory, but couldn't get any closer and we won.

When we got back to the Greenville Airport there were 7,000 people waiting. Cars were parked all the way to I-85. People were all over the place to welcome the team. It was quite a scene. This victory gave us a 9-1 record and moved us into the top 10 in the polls for the first time since the 1980s, so it was quite a big win, not to mention the clincher for the ACC Championship.

Clemson 29, Virginia 28
Oct. 10, 1992 at Charlottesville, VA

The greatest comeback we ever had. Virginia was up on us 28-0 with 32 minutes left in the game. Right before the half Louis Solomon made a 64-yard touchdown run to give us some momentum going into halftime. The second half our defense made some adjustments and shut Virginia out.

We made the comeback by running the ball. We had over 400 yards rushing for the day, an unusual way to make a comeback. Rudy Harris had a big day and Rodney Blount scored a key late touchdown. They just couldn't stop us.

We got the ball back in the final minutes, down 28-26. We drove the ball up the field, again on the ground. Nelson Welch made a 32-yard field goal to win the game. It was a phenomenal comeback because we did it on the road against a top 10 team. It is still the greatest comeback by an ACC team against another ACC team.

Clemson 10, North Carolina 8
Nov. 7, 1981 at Chapel Hill, NC

The thing I remember about this game was the play that Jeff Bryant made in the closing moments. We had a 10-8 lead in the closing minutes and Dale Hatcher punted the ball out of bounds at the North Carolina two.

They hadn't driven for a touchdown against us all day, so it looked good for the Tigers.

But, Scott Stankavage started to lead North Carolina up field.

With 57 seconds left they had the ball on their 40 and Stankavage threw a swing pass to the right flat. It was incomplete and every player relaxed...except for Bryant. He chased after the ball and pounced on it.

Sure enough, the referees said it was a lateral and it was Clemson ball.

We ran out the clock and kept our perfect record.

That one play might have helped him become a first-round draft choice because it

When Freddie James was recruited in 1996 by Coach Tommy West and his staff, Clemson gained a student-athlete, who not only excels on the football field, but also in the classroom and in the community. James was also recruited by North Carolina A&T, but he chose Clemson instead of North Carolina A&T because of the, “rich football tradition, especially on the defensive side of the ball.”

“I knew that I would have a chance to play against the best. I also chose Clemson because of the chemical engineering program, and my oldest sister, Latonia, graduated from Clemson.”

His sister graduated in 1993 with a bachelor's of science degree in Computer Science. His school-first, football-and-fun-second attitude has allowed him to become one of the top student-athletes on the Clemson campus.

A 1996 graduate of Saint Stephen High School, in Saint Stephen, SC, James was a defensive leader on the football field, where he started at defensive tackle for three years and at inside linebacker his senior year. He graduated with 134 tackles and fourteen sacks. He also exceeded in the track and field event of shot put, in which he was the 1996 South Carolina State Champion.

In high school, he also starred in the classroom. He was the top student-athlete in 1996, graduating third in his class, and scoring 1160 on the SAT. He was awarded the Academic Scholar Award by the High School League. While at Saint Stephen High School, James maintained a 4.0 grade point average every semester.

James is the son of Freddie and Mary E. James. In addition to his sister Latonia, he has another sister, Fredreka, 26. His actual name is Frederick James, after coming to Clemson he “wondered about going by Frederick or Freddie,” said James. But after talking about it with his former position coach Les Herrin, ‘“we decided that Freddie sounded more like a football player’s name.”

Football is a family activity for the James’ James’ cousin, Garen Williams, played for The Citadel in the late ’80s. Also playing football currently is his cousin, Lance Legree, who is also a fifth-year senior and a starting defensive tackle at Notre Dame. James and his cousin share the same college number, 90.

“My family is very supportive,” James added. “They have never missed a game, home or away. They have been following me around since I was in the eighth grade.”

Upon arriving at Clemson, James was redshirted and he began the extremely difficult task of becoming a graduate of the Clemson chemical engineering program. In the engineering program, he currently has an impressive 3.0 grade point average.

Director of Student-Athlete Enrichment Bill D’Andrea said, “Freddie has always demonstrated responsibility, determination and maturity in the classroom. He works his classes like a business, treating each one as an important and valued customer.”

This past summer he interned with GE Plastics in upstate New York. He was enthusiastic about leaving Clemson for the summer because he did not want to miss summer work outs in order to prepare for his last season.

“I was able to work out while I was in New York and I came back in better condition than when I left Clemson in the spring.”

And that may also be in part to his dedication in the weight room. James is third on the team with his 452-pound bench press and he can do 31 repititions of 225-pound bench press, which is also third-best on the team.

“Freddie is an extremely strong athlete,” said Russ Patterson, assistant strength coach. “He always has a great attitude and puts forth top effort every day in practice. He’s very accountable to himself and to the team.”

After graduation in December he said he would love the opportunity to play beyond the college level somewhere, but he also has a few job offers that he is looking at.

Outside of his life on the field and in the classroom, James plays a vital role in improving the Clemson community. He is the current vice president of LIFELine, which stands for Leaders In Football and Education. He was voted the vice president by his teammates that are members of the organization. D’Andrea started LIFELine in 1996.

James was chosen as one of the original members because of “his ability to lead by example, his excellent academic record, and his ability to balance academics and athletics,” D’Andrea said. During his four years on the LIFELine team, James has met hundreds of children from the Clemson area. One of his most memorable times was when he spent time with a little girl at a local elementary school who was having trouble with her math homework. “I helped her understand an easy way to approach the problems.”

“A year later, I visited her school with the team to sign autographs and she was there. She had a football game program and she asked me to autograph my picture for her. She then went on to tell me how well she was doing and all the activities she was involved with inside and outside her school. When she remembered me and told me I had made a difference, I knew that I would never forget her,” remembered James.

On the football field, James is a defensive tackle under the supervision of Coach Thielen Smith.

“Although he has never started in a football game, Freddie James is very important to the depth and rotation of the Clemson defensive.” Coach Smith said, “Freddie is a strong contributor to the team. He is a salt of the earth type of person, a person you need to be around. Being around him makes you a better person, knowing him has made me a better person and a better coach.”

His most memorable game thus far in his Clemson football career was the 1998 home football game against the South Carolina Gamecocks.

“I remember making more plays in that game than in any other game,” James recalled.

In the game he helped lead Clemson to a 28-19 victory over South Carolina, with a career-high for five tackles, his first college sack and two quarterback pressures. He had his best season thus far at Clemson with 22 total tackles and 210 plays in 1998, but fans can be sure to see more from James in his senior campaign.

In the season opener against The Citadel he had four tackles and played on 25 plays. It is apparent that James is going to be a key part of one of Clemson’s top defensive lines in several years. He joins forces with four other seniors who have high goals for their final season. Stopping the run is the key to any successful defense and the five seniors on this year’s team are some of the team’s top leaders. That includes James.

James would like to thank his parents for helping him become the person he is today. With their guidance and encouragement to keep God first in his life, he has become an outstanding football player, student-athlete and friend.

Freddie James is one of four seniors on the defensive line who have high goals in their final season in Tiger Town.

When thinking of a student-athlete, we sometimes overlook the student and instead focus on the athlete. Chad Carson, first-team middle linebacker, is the epitome of a college student-athlete. However, you don’t hear much about the Chad Carson’s of college football.

“He is an outstanding person on and off the field, a model person, and he is a great competitor in the classroom as well as on the field,” said Defensive Coordinator and Carson’s position coach Reggie Herring.

“For him to excel the way he does on and off the field is a true testimony to his character, maturity, and discipline.”

Carson, a member of Clemson’s outreach program LIFELine, attended Woodward Academy, a private school in Atlanta, GA. Woodward is a college prep school that prepares high school students to go to college.

“Everyone went to college from there,” says Carson. “Many people in my classes went to Ivy League schools.”

“At ninth grade, #46 decided he wanted to play college football.”

“I decided I was going to work as hard as I could to be a college football player and get a scholarship,” Carson said. Midway through his senior year he narrowed his choices to Georgia Tech and Clemson.

“It was a hard decision because I had always been a Tech fan. The main thing was that Clemson had a really good football tradition. Clemson was a nice fit for me all around.”

When he arrived in Tiger Town, coaches were concerned with Carson’s development and how soon he would mold into the type of linebacker Clemson needed to be competitive. He worked extremely hard in the weight room and did the little things that it took to gain recognition from the Tiger coaching staff, including playing on many of the special teams.

Throughout Carson’s two seasons at Clemson he has proved to the coaches he can withstand the caliber of division I college football. During Carson’s freshman year, he played on special teams and 17 snaps at linebacker. He was a top special teams tackler with 10 stops. During his freshman season, Carson set his goals for the future.

“When I came here, I had a goal to play special teams my freshman year and work my way into a starting role my sophomore season. I figured I could get used to college ball my first year and then I would be ready to become a starter by my second season.”

Last season, Carson went from a special teams player who played only 17 snaps at linebacker to a starter who finished third in the ACC with 144 tackles.

“I was thrown in the fire in ’99, but it was a good opportunity because it forced me to become experienced fast.”

And Carson did grow up, faster than many thought he could. Many sophomores have been known to be starters, but most true sophomores don’t have the experience to gain a starting role because of the inexperience factor, especially at tradition-rich Clemson, which has produced some of the top linebackers in the NFL in recent decades.

“You can see him improve each day,” Herring said. “There is no doubt that he is establishing himself as a solid, productive football player at this level. He has taken on the demands and pressures put on him to become a tough, hard-nosed individual.”

Carson grew up fast along with fellow linebacker Keith Adams. Adams and Carson both had breakout sophomore seasons a year ago. Carson recorded the 10th highest single-season total for tackles in Clemson history. However, the figure did not receive that much attention in light of Adams’ record-breaking 186 for the season.

“All of the linebackers are close like a family and the team chemistry makes playing a lot better,” Carson said. “If the other linebackers received all of the accolades for the season, I would be happy for them.”

His attitude tells coaches, teammates, and fans alike a lot about his character. “I feel like I could be labeled as a guy other players can lean on and depend on to make all the calls and keep everyone straight. I like to think I am someone everyone on the team can depend on.”

Carson opened the season proving he can be depended upon. With career best 18 tackles (eight primary and 10 assists), he led the team in tackles in the opener Sept. 2 against The Citadel.

Carson is considered the prototype of what you would want a college student-athlete to be. He has a bright future ahead of him at Clemson and hopefully in the future we will hear more about the Chad Carson’s of college football.

Clemson University’s 14th President, James F. Barker, is first and foremost an architect. So it comes as no surprise that after one year in office, he is already designing a blueprint for Clemson’s future – a future built around such ideas as collaboration, community, and quality.

A 1970 Clemson graduate, the former dean of the university’s College of Architecture, Arts and Humanities was named president in October 1998, bringing to the job a clear vision of Clemson’s future. Barker has outlined a 10-year goal for Clemson to become one of the top 20 public universities in the country.

“South Carolina students deserve to have access to a top-tier education without leaving their home state,” he said. “Building Clemson’s academic, research and service programs to the level where we can compete with anyone will benefit our state, our students, and our alumni.”

Specifics of the 10-year plan include:

• Continuing to excel in teaching;
• Increasing research support to at least $100 million a year;
• Setting the standard in public service by engaging the whole campus in service and outreach;
• Completing the current capital campaign and a subsequent one, exceeding goals in both;
• In athletics, winning another national championship in football and two other sports, and making it to the Final Four at least twice in basketball;
• Sending student performing groups to Carnegie Hall;
• Establishing a thriving Phi Beta Kappa chapter;
• Seeing at least two Clemson students win Rhodes Scholarships;
• Building a greater sense of community and diversity;
• Increasing international programs and activities;
• Seeking out areas where teaching, research and service overlap;
• Focusing on collaboration, with partners both inside and outside the university;
• Improving essential academic resources such as the library.

They are ambitious goals, but goals that Barker believes Clemson can achieve.

“The charge that I have been given is to ensure that the idea of Clemson will be stronger at the end of my service than it is now,” he said at his inauguration. “I am convinced that there is no university in America stronger than Clemson when we are ‘one Clemson.’ A united Clemson is unstoppable.”

Barker earned his bachelor of architecture degree from Clemson and his master of architecture and urban design degree from Washington University in St. Louis. Before returning to Clemson in 1986 to serve as dean of the College of Architecture, he was dean of the School of Architecture at Mississippi State University. In 1995, he became dean of the new College of Architecture, Arts and Humanities, which was created after a comprehensive reorganization and has received national attention as a new model in education.

He is a recipient of the National Distinguished Professor Award of the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture and served as president of that association. Barker was named fellow of the American Institute of Architects. He also has been a partner in an architectural practice.

At Clemson, Barker co-founded the S.C. Design Arts Partnership to support community design outreach projects, initiated the Charleston Architecture Center, established the university’s “Arts in April” program, and developed a Mayors’ Institute to help city leaders learn how to manage issues related to growth and development.

Despite his new responsibilities as president, Barker remains committed to the classroom. As dean, he taught at least one class per year. Last spring, he was part of a team teaching an undergraduate course exploring “a sense of place” in architecture, literature, and history.

“I think it’s important that a president never lose touch with the classroom,” he said.

The Barkers — Jim and Marcia — have two sons: 16-year-old Britt, a sophomore at Daniel High School, and Jacob, 26, who graduated from the University of North Carolina, attending on a baseball scholarship, and is now enrolled in graduate school at Clemson working in the sports information office.

President Barker (first row, second from right) was a member of the Clemson Track & Field team as a pole vaulter.

Head Coach Tommy Bowden

When Tommy Bowden approached the 1999 season, he had one simple goal for his first Clemson team: Improvement. Bowden warned Clemson supporters that the Tigers were unlikely to be bowl participants in 1999, but his main focus was to improve. Bowden’s goal of improvement was reached and he was happy to be wrong about his preseason prediction, as the Tigers were invited to the 1999 Chick-fil-A Peach Bowl.

Unfortunately, Clemson lost the bowl game 17-7 to Mississippi State, which finished the season ranked 12th in the nation, Clemson’s fourth loss to a team ranked in the top 12 of the final AP poll. That loss did not tarnish the great accomplishments the Clemson football team achieved in its first season under Bowden. In 1999, Bowden accomplished a personal milestone that no Clemson coach had attained since 1981, the year the Tigers won the National Championship. Bowden became the first Clemson coach since Danny Ford to be named ACC Coach of the Year.

Bowden led the Tigers to a 6-6 record and 5-3 mark in the ACC against the nation’s third toughest regular season schedule according to Jeff Sagarin. The Tigers finished tied for second with Georgia Tech and Virginia in the final conference standings, a six-place improvement over the previous season, the greatest one season jump in ACC history in league play. The Tigers also made a four-game ACC win improvement in 1999. It was just the fifth time in ACC history that a team made that big of a league victory jump. Bowden had taken over a team with a losing record and brought it to a bowl game in his first season, just the sixth coach in ACC history to accomplish that feat.

The Clemson program set or tied 38 school records in Bowden’s first year, including 26 on offense. Ironically, Bowden’s first Tulane team set or tied 26 offensive school records.

The improvements in the ACC standings were thanks in large part to an improved offensive attack. The Clemson offense ended the season averaging 402.6 yards per game, nearly a 100-yard per game improvement over 1998. The Tigers scored 26.8 points per game in 1999 compared to 19.8 in 1998. Clemson’s 42 touchdowns in 1999 ranked fifth best in school history.

Bowden’s first Clemson team averaged 67.1 more yards a game through the air than in 1998, as the Tigers passed for 3019 yards, an all-time Clemson record. Clemson quarterbacks made good on 59.6 percent of their pass attempts in 1999, third highest percentage in school history.

In 1998, Clemson ranked 103rd in the nation in turnover margin, but in 1999 the Tigers were 11th, an incredible 92-place improvement in the rankings. Clemson scored 100 points off turnovers, while opponents only scored 44 in the same statistical category.

Under Bowden, Clemson continued its strong defensive tradition. With 47 sacks, Clemson was first in the ACC in that category for the second straight season, and the final total established a Clemson record. Three players (Keith Adams - 15.5, Chad Carson - 12.0, Robert Carswell - 10.8) all had nearly 11 tackles per game in 1999 to rank among the top four tacklers in the league. Adams, a sophomore, finished the season with 186 tackles, highest in the nation, and broke the Clemson single season tackle record held by Anthony Simmons. They all contributed to the 17th best pass efficiency defense in the nation, a unit that had 19 interceptions, ninth highest in the country.

Thanks to the wide open offensive attack several Clemson players made their presence felt in the national rankings and the Clemson record book. Sophomore running back Travis Zachery had 16 touchdowns, to rank ninth in the country in scoring. He was injured in the first quarter of the Peach Bowl and did not get a chance to tie or break Lester Brown’s single season Clemson record for touchdowns.

Junior wide receiver Rod Gardner set two Clemson single-season records and became the school’s first 1000-yard receiver. Gardner had 80 receptions for 1084 yards, Clemson single season records in both areas. He was 17th in the nation in receptions per game with a 6.6 mark. His yards per game average of 91.7 was 23rd best in the nation.

For the first time in Clemson history two Tiger quarterbacks threw for over 1000 yards in a season. Woodrow Dantzier passed for 1506 yards, while Brandon Streeter passed for 1466 yards during the regular season. The two diametrically opposite quarterbacks had total of-

The Bowden Family: Tommy, Linda, Lauren and Ryan.
His Tulane team had a 22-game average of 39.7 points, 5.1 touchdowns, 463 yards of total offense, 270.5 yards passing, and 192.6 yards rushing. The Green Wave averaged 6.34 yards per play, and converted on third down 47 percent of the time.

Some say the most telling statistic in terms of wins and losses and the most telling statistic when it comes to coaching ability is turnover margin. The Green Wave ranked fifth in the nation in turnover margin each of his seasons at Tulane.

It didn’t take Bowden long to put Tulane back on the college football landscape. In his first year, Tulane was picked last in the preseason polls of Conference USA. But, he led the New Orleans based school to a 7-4 record, a second-place conference standing with just one league loss, and set 33 school records in the process, including 26 on offense.

Tulane’s accomplishments on offense were noteworthy in 1997, but their offensive charts reached uncharted areas in 1998. Tulane stood as the only school in the nation that averaged over 300 yards per game passing and 200 yards per game rushing. The team ranked fourth in the nation in total offense (507.1 per game) and second in scoring (45.4 points per game).

The Green Wave scored 40 or more points in eight contests in 1998, including each of the last seven games. In one game the Green Wave scored 72 points and rolled up 704 yards of total offense. They converted 52 percent of their third-down opportunities for the season and had just 11 turnovers in over 800 plays.

The 1998 season saw the program post a perfect 11-0 regular season under Bowden, its first perfect regular season since 1931. The Green Wave won Conference USA, its first league title since Tulane won the SEC in 1949. Bowden was named Conference USA Coach of the Year.

Bowden’s team ranked seventh in the final AP poll and was a mainstay in the polls from the third week of the season on. Tulane had not been ranked at any time since 1979 and had not been ranked in a final poll since 1973. After Bowden accepted the job at Clemson, Tulane defeated BYU in the Liberty Bowl, 41-27.

Bowden’s 11-0 record at the time was the 17th perfect regular season in college football in the decade of the 1990s.

A look to that list reveals two other coaches named Bowden. His father, Florida State Head Coach Bobby Bowden, had a perfect regular season in 1996 and 1999, while his brother, Terry, posted a perfect regular season in 1993. Obviously, the Bowdens are the first family of college coaching and this “Wonder Years” environment had a lot to do with Tommy Bowden’s decision to enter the coaching world.

The fatherly influence of a college coach who reached 300 career wins against his son in 1999, also had an influence on other members of the family. Terry has been a head coach at Samford and Auburn, posting a 47-17-1 record at the latter. Terry serves as an in-studio commentator for ABC’s college football package. Jeff Bowden is in his sixth year as wide receivers coach at Florida State.

Tommy Bowden began his college football experience as a walk-on wide receiver at West Virginia. He played for his father between 1973-74-75 and then for Frank Signetti during the 1976 season.

As a junior he caught 15 passes for 189 yards and one score. Bowden remained at West Virginia for the 1977 season and began his coaching career, serving as a graduate assistant on Signetti’s staff. His interest in coaching only became more intense after that first year as a GA.

His father then hired him as a secondary coach at Florida State for the 1978 season.

That experience confirmed to Bowden that he was in a profession that would be his life’s work. The Seminoles posted a 19-4 mark in his two seasons at Florida State.

In 1980, Bowden joined the staff at East Carolina, where he coached for the Spring practice session of 1980. That spring, he moved to Auburn and served as the wide receivers coach for the 1980 season. Among the players he coached was James Brooks, who went on to a 13-year NFL career and is still second in Auburn history in rushing.

In 1981, Bowden returned to Tallahassee as the tight ends coach. In three more years at Florida State, the Seminoles posted a 23-12 mark and played in a pair of bowl games. The 1982 team ranked 13th in the final poll, claimed a 9-3 record and a Gator Bowl championship.

In Tommy’s five years as an assistant coach under Bobby Bowden at Florida State the Seminoles were 42-16. In 1984, Bowden accepted his first job as a coordinator. He served under Steve Sloan at Duke as the Blue Devils’ quarterbacks coach and offensive coordinator. It was as the Duke offensive coordinator that Bowden made his first trip to Death Valley as a coach. Among the players Bowden tutored was Anthony Dilweg, who went on to an NFL career.

After three years at Duke, Bowden became the wide receivers coach at Alabama under Bill Curry. It was at Alabama that Bowden refined his offensive coaching prowess under noted offensive mind Homer Smith, then the Alabama Offensive Coordinator.

In 1990, Bowden returned to a coordinator position, serving Kentucky as its offensive coordinator and wide receivers coach. That season he helped the Wildcats to their first upper division SEC finish since 1984.

In 1991, Bowden joined Pat Dye at Auburn. He would remain with the SEC Tigers for six years, his longest stint as a college assistant coach. During his tenure, Auburn was a combined 46-20-2, including a perfect 11-0 season in 1993. Auburn had four Associated Press top 25 seasons, including a number-four final ranking in 1993 and a number-nine final ranking in 1994. The Tigers were 20-1-1 in 1993-94 combined.

Bowden worked under his brother Terry Bowden for his last four years at Auburn and the Tigers had a 36-9-1 record with both Bowdens on the staff.

Born on July 10, 1954, in Birmingham, AL, Bowden is married to the former Linda Joan White, who he first met when the two were in school together at Morgantown High in West Virginia. The couple has two children, Ryan (18), a freshman at Clemson, and Lauren (15), a student at Daniel High.

With a strong lineup of great affiliates, the Clemson Tiger Network can be heard throughout the state of South Carolina as well as nationwide on the internet through ClemsonTigers.com. CTN's coverage of Clemson football begins 120 minutes prior to kickoff with the "Countdown to Kickoff" show, a 90 minute program hosted by Dan Cagle and Whitey Jordan. Veteran broadcaster Jim Phillips will handle the play-by-play, with Mike Eppley as color analyst and Rodney Williams on the sidelines. A one-hour "Locker Room Report" follows the game featuring commentary from Coach Tommy Bowden, exclusive player interviews and live fan call-in participation.

"Tiger Calls", a one-hour call-in show will air Monday nights at 7:00pm on all CTN affiliates. "Tiger Calls", hosted by Jim Phillips features Clemson coaches and athletic staff members and will provide in-depth coverage of Clemson Athletics throughout the playing seasons. To participate, fans can call a toll free number (1-800-676-8433) and e-mail (ask@tigerquestions.com) allows fans from around the country to be a part of the program.

But that’s not all. Beginning this fall Clemson fans can catch Coach Tommy Bowden on "Tiger Bytes", a one-hour internet show that allows Coach Bowden the opportunity to answer questions and e-mails (ask@tigerquestions.com) from Clemson listeners. The show is expected to air every Thursday at noon throughout the 2000 season and can be accessed by logging onto www.clemsonigers.com.

Clemson Memorial Stadium has been held in high esteem for many years. Whether it be players from the 1940s and 1950s, opposing players from the 1970s and 1980s, or even professional players in the 1990s, the ambiance of this special setting is what college football is all about.

The storied edifice added to its legend when the first meeting of father and son head coaches (Bowden Bowl I) took place before a sellout crowd of more than 86,000 fans.

In the 1970s, 1980s and 1990s, various publications named top 10 stadiums in college football and Clemson Memorial Stadium, affectionately known as “Death Valley,” has been a common denominator on those lists.

The facility’s mystique is derived from its many traditions, which date to its opening in 1942, the legendary games and players, and Clemson’s corresponding rate of success. Clemson has won 202 games in the previous 58 years there (202-80-7) and has won over 70 percent of the contests. Thirty times since 1983, crowds have exceeded 80,000.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers who call it home, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before head coach Jess Neely left for Rice University after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message. “Don’t ever let them talk you into building a big stadium,” he said. “Put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That’s all you’ll ever need”.

Instead of following Coach Neely’s advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing: there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work: clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally, on September 19, 1942, Clemson Memorial Stadium opened with the Tiger football team thrashing Presbyterian College, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow; and grow and grow. This year Clemson celebrates its 59th year in this outstanding facility.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40’s, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young football player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, however, the boy was swollen twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the stadium, including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete poured.

Howard said that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. “About 40 people and I laid sod on the field,” he said. “After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through.

“I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more week’s pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have
50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons.”

Howard said that on the day of the first game in the stadium, “the gates were hung at 1:00 pm and we played at 2:00 pm.” But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,658 West end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone, “Green Grass” section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the stadium as crowds swelled—the first one in 1978 and the second in 1983. This increased capacity to over 80,000 which makes it one of the 10 largest on-campus stadiums in the country.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as “Death Valley.” It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

On November 16, 1974 the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Luckily, the stadium wasn’t built behind the Y.

Running Down The Hill
“Mark Richt (assistant coach) was talking to Jeff Bowden (assistant coach) telling him what to call. Jeff was screaming at a player not five yards away and that guy couldn’t hear him.

“When we went out to warm up it felt like a National Championship game. When I went back to the team (in the locker room) before the game, I said this is going to be great practice for playing at Florida because this is as loud as it gets.”

Florida State Head Coach Bobby Bowden

“Death Valley really lives up to its image. I was impressed with this stadium. When you put 80,000 people in there, it really feels like they are on top of you. I would hate to be Georgia Tech or whoever else comes in here.”

San Francisco 49ers Quarterback Steve Young

“The rock has strange powers. When you rub it, and run down the hill, the adrenaline flows. Its the most emotional experience I’ve ever had.”

Six-time All-Pro and former Clemson All-American Michael Dean Perry

“Running down the hill is still talked about everywhere I go. Players who played against Clemson when I was in college remember us running the hill and thinking we would gain some type of spirit. The adrenaline rush was unbelievable for a Clemson player and quite a shock for the opponent.”

Former Clemson All-American Jerry Butler

“Last spring (1999), New York Knicks Head Coach Jeff Van Gundy came to Clemson for a coaching clinic. One of the first things he said was, ‘before I leave I’ve got to rub Howard’s Rock’. So, we brought him to the rock about midnight one night. He rubbed the rock, but he wouldn’t run down the hill. He was a little afraid of that.”

Clemson Head Basketball Coach Larry Shyatt

“It has always been a dream to run down that hill. You get to the top and it’s emotional because you think of all the players that have done the exact same thing that you are doing. When you get to the bottom you look up and see 80,000 people hollering and you realize you have a tradition to live up to.”

Clemson Junior Center Kyle Young

FIRST FRIDAY PARADE

The Clemson football season kicks off each year with the annual First Friday Parade. The once-a-year event takes place on the Friday afternoon prior to the first home football game. Floats from various fraternities and sororities and other campus organizations are represented in the parade that rolls down highway 93 in front of the President’s house in Clemson. The parade culminates at the Amphitheater in the middle of campus where the first Pep Rally of the year takes place.

The Grand Marshal of the Parade is featured at the Pep Rally. Recent Grand Marshals have ranged from former PGA professional Dillard Pruitt, to College Football Hall of Fame legends Jess Neely and Frank Howard, to noted television announcers Brent Musburger and Ara Parseghian.

The first homecoming game played at Clemson took place on September 30, 1922 when Clemson met Centre. Clemson has a 55-18-3 record on Homecoming games over the years, a 74 winning percentage, and has outscored the opposition 1,609-996 in those previous 76 games. The average margin of victory is 21 to 12. Clemson has been especially successful on Homecoming in recent years, posting a 25-2-2 record since 1970.

HOWARD’S ROCK

When the Clemson team gathers to run down “The Hill”, the players first rub Howard’s Rock because of the mystical powers it is supposed to give Clemson players. The rock is mounted on a pedestal at the top of the hill and was given to Coach Frank Howard by a friend (S.C. Jones ’19) who picked it up in Death Valley, CA. The Rock was first placed on the pedestal at the top of the hill on September 24, 1966, for a game Clemson won 40-35 over Virginia. In that game, the Tigers rallied from 18 points down with 17 minutes to play. The team started rubbing the rock for the first game of 1967, a 23-6 win over Wake Forest on September 23, 1967.

HOMECOMING

Clemson holds a classic homecoming every year. Displays by fraternities and sororities that are months in the making, are built on Bowman Field the week prior to Homecoming weekend. It is an event that draws alumni and friends of Clemson from all over the country.

The Friday evening prior to the game, Tigerama is held in Death Valley, which is an event that attracts over 35,000 fans. It is widely known as the largest pep rally in the world. The Homecoming Queen and her court are presented in addition to Homecoming skits, a pep rally, and a large and loud fireworks display.

The Tiger Paw logo has become synonymous with the University’s athletic teams since its invention by John Antonio. Antonio was an innovative account executive with Henderson Advertising in Greenville, and prior to the 1970 season, unveiled the Paw as Clemson’s new logo. It has shown up all over the country on items owned by Clemson fans from shirts to hats to the now famous “two-dollar bills”. Many institutions with a feline as a mascot have used the logo, or an impression of it.

Antonio also came up with the phrase, “Fly the friendly skies of United,” when he worked for the Leo Burnett Agency in Chicago. “I’ve never had a logo or an emblem copied as much as the Tiger Paw,” said Antonio, now 69 and living in Greenville.

Antonio still remembers the day he made the presentation of the Tiger Paw to Frank Howard, then the Clemson Athletic Director. “He wasn’t saying much at all,” recalled Antonio in an article in the Greenville News by Alyce Atkinson on Feb. 16, 1997. “I kind of thought I was losing this fight.” At this point Antonio pulled out an orange football helmet with a tiger paw painted on the side.

“Coach Howard’s eyes got as big as saucers and he smiled. From there it was downhill. Coach Howard wanted that helmet.” Those Tiger paws are still on the Clemson helmets today.

Wake Forest Series History

By Bernie Merritt
Clemson Sports Information

Anyone who's anyone has heard the expression, "You can throw the record book out when these two teams meet." However, how many of the "anyone who's anyone" really understands the phrase. First and foremost, why would you throw the record book out when two teams meet? Do the teams share some secret that they have yet to tell the thousands of fans that will witness the contest? Better yet what is in the record book that would warrant throwing it out? Even with all the questions though, anyone who's anyone knows that throwing out the record book in today's game featuring Clemson and Wake Forest would be more than a 10-year penalty.

The first statistic that sticks out the most is the fact that today is the 1,000th game in Clemson football history. It has taken the Tigers 105 years of football, including 564 wins, 390 losses and 45 ties to play 999 games.

Of those 999 games, the Tigers have faced Wake Forest the third most times with 65 games against the Demon Deacons. The 65 meetings rank behind South Carolina, which ranks first all-time with 97 games, and N C State, which is second with 68 games. Of the 564 victories in school history, the Demon Deacons account for 50 wins, the second highest total against an opponent. The Tigers have beaten South Carolina a record 58 times.

The Clemson/Wake Forest series dates back to Nov 4, 1933, when Clemson defeated Wake Forest 13-0 in the seventh game of that season, in a contest played in Charlotte, NC. The teams would not face each other again until the 1935 season, but since then, the Tigers and the Demon Deacons have faced each other every year. Clemson won seven of the first eight games against Wake Forest, outscoring the Demons Deacons 153-20. Wake Forest rebounded though, reeling off six straight wins starting in 1942 with a 19-6 victory in Winston Salem, NC, the third time ever the two teams had played in the city. The Demon Deacons however, have only won consecutive games once, in 1992 and 1993, since that six-game winning streak. Before the 1992 and 1993 seasons, the Tigers were victorious in 38 of the 43 contests played, including a 15-game winning streak dating from 1971 to 1991.

Also notable is the fact that Clemson has won 20 of the last 23 games against Wake Forest. Making matters worse for the Demons Deacons today, Clemson has beaten Wake Forest more than any other team in Death Valley since the facility was opened in 1942. In that first game at Death Valley in 1943 though, Wake Forest claimed victory with a 41-12 defeat of the Tigers. That game coincidentally is also the largest Wake Forest win in the history of the series. While most people necessarily won't remember that game in 1943, it is almost guaranteed though that everyone will remember Clemson's largest win.

It took place during the National Championship season of 1981 in a game that will probably never be matched. At the time the Tigers were 7-0, ranked third in the country and were one week away from facing #8 North Carolina, in a game that would pit two top-10 ACC schools for the first time in league history. The Tigers however were doing anything but looking ahead. Clemson offense would explode that Halloween day, breaking 21 school, stadium and conference records, including 536 yards rushing and 756 yards of total offense, in the 82-24 Clemson victory. Eleven different players had rushing yardage and nine different Tigers scored.

When Craig Crawford scored on a 72-yard run, no one in the 80,000 plus in attendance or in the press box knew who he was because he was not even on the pre-game roster. During the game Clemson was 12-12 on third-down conversions. Quarterback Tommy Jordan passed for 180 yards, including 7-161 to Perry Tuttle, whose 75-yard touchdown reception on the first play of the third period gave Clemson a 55-14 lead in probably the most famous Clemson/Wake Forest contest.

While Clemson dominated most every year from 1950-1990, Wake Forest has stepped up the competition during the 1990's. Most every game from 1987-90 was a double digit Tiger win, with Clemson winning 37 games and sustaining streaks of 15, 10, six and five games. However, the '90's saw the trend turn a bit. Since 1992, single digits have decided three of the eight games, while eight of the previous nine before 1992 were decided by more than two touchdowns. Wake Forest won three of the games in the 1990's, the most in any decade since the 1940's.

Since Wake Forest's resurgence, the Tigers have made a point to step up their defensive play. In 10 of the last 11 games, Clemson has held Wake Forest to less than 10 points including last year's 12-3 victory, the 50th victory for Clemson against Wake Forest. It was in that defensive struggle that Clemson had to use injured relief quarterback Brandon Streeter to preserve the win and hold off the pesky Demon Deacons. Clemson has also kept up their impressive play at home as they have gone 28-7 overall versus Wake Forest including a 24-7 mark in games played at Death Valley.

While football fans may consider the Clemson/Wake Forest game insignificant in terms of records, it still quite possible to consider this series played every year since 1935 a great tradition. So, on the 66th anniversary of Clemson/Wake Forest and the 1,000th game in Tiger football history, remember the records. If anyone says "you can throw the record books out on this one," make sure he or she is reminded that Clemson/Wake Forest is nothing more than just a football game without the record book.

Starting in 1998, the Bowl Championship Series (BCS) determined the Division I-A National Champion in football. In the BCS's first season, Tennessee defeated Florida State, 23-16, in the Fiesta Bowl to claim the national title. Last year, it was Florida State's turn as the Seminoles topped Virginia Tech 46-29 in the Sugar Bowl for their second national title in seven years.

The BCS Series consists of the Rose Bowl, Sugar Bowl, Orange Bowl and the Fiesta Bowl. Conferences with automatic berths include the Atlantic Coast, Big East, Big Ten, Big 12, Pac-10 and the Southeastern Conference.

This past January, BCS members voted to extend the BCS agreement with ABC through the 2005 regular season and 2006 bowl season allowing each of the four bowls to host two national championship games.

The BCS also notes the importance of regional consideration regarding team selection. Specifically, as a member of the BCS, the Rose Bowl will host the Big Ten and Pac-10 champions in those years in which either the Rose Bowl does not have the national championship game or the Big Ten and Pac-10 champion is not ranked No. 1 or No. 2. Other "regional consideration" tie-ins include the SEC champion in the Sugar Bowl, the ACC or Big East champion in the Orange Bowl and the Big 12 champion in the Fiesta Bowl.

Any Division I-A independent team or the champion of any Division I-A conference which is ranked sixth or higher in the BCS standings, will also be eligible for the Bowl Championship Series. A year ago, more than 1.2 million fans attended college football's 23 bowl games. This season, there will be 25 post-season bowl games, from the 87th Annual Rose Bowl, to the first-year galleryfurniture.com Bowl in Houston, Texas and the Silicon Valley Bowl in San Jose, Calif.

Who Will Inherit Your Assets? Your Heirs, Or The IRS?

Prudential can help put you in control.

Did you know that, depending on the size of your estate, current estate taxes can run as high as 55%? That means your loved ones may inherit less than half of what you’ve spent a lifetime building. Let Prudential help you preserve your assets by funding your estate plan.

Learn strategies to help minimize estate taxes. As your Prudential Agent, I can show you how charitable giving and other tax-efficient options can help avoid estate taxes.

Find out why life insurance can serve such a vital role in your estate plan. Did you know that life insurance can provide ready funds for paying estate taxes or help in the equitable distribution of assets among your heirs? I can show you how.

HERFF JONES
The Ultimate Swiss Timepiece.
Clemson fans look forward to seeing tough, hard-nosed football when they come to Death Valley or travel to other schools to watch their Tigers in action. But some of the Tigers' most intense competition and action doesn't take place on autumn Saturday's and it doesn't take place on a field. Take a peek into the Clemson Strength Training Room at almost any time of day, almost any day of the week, at any time of the year, and you will see the Tigers building the foundation for their pursuit of a championship.

Perhaps the most impressive characteristic of the facility is its size. Several years ago, it was enlarged to an astounding 11,000 square feet, making it one of the largest in the nation. In 1998, it was expanded to 14,000 square feet. The facility boasts two full lines of Nautilus machines and over 12 tons of weights. The large number of machines and free weights allows the weight room to be used by athletes from several other sports at the same time, without anyone having to wait in line at a particular station.

Within the last two years the dumbbell area and leg development areas were expanded as well as the nutrition and hydration area known as the Power Station. The Power Station features the energy and recovery drink to aid each athlete's recovery from intense training.

The plush atmosphere provides an interesting contrast to the physical exertion that takes place in the facility. When an athlete enters the etched glass doors, he is greeted by plush, wall-to-wall carpeting, walls lined with mirrors, ceiling fans, and music from a 26-speaker sound system - a worthy backdrop for well over $500,000 worth of state-of-the-art equipment.

Color television monitors are also positioned throughout the facility. These monitors are used for training and instruction, as Tiger strength coaches film the athletes and work with them on form correction.

The large staff of four full-time strength coaches, four graduate assistants, numerous student assistants, and volunteers ensures that each football player receives proper instruction on the fundamentals of strength and speed development. Training programs at Clemson are position specific and designed to meet the needs and demands of each athlete. Also, each position is appointed a full-time strength coach that serves as a personal trainer for that particular athlete throughout his career.

Hard core training and competition in the weight room and the annual Ironman Classic will help each athlete reach optimal levels in strength and speed development. The Tiger Strength Training and Nutrition Program help each athlete to become a complete player.

Vickery Hall

Since its inception in 1991, the five-faceted Student-Athlete Enrichment Program has provided its student-athletes a continued commitment to excellence. Our approach is to address the total student-athlete, and we are committed to coaching our student-athletes to success (C.A.T.S.) not only in the athletic arena but in the academic, personal growth, career, and service arenas as well. As an original member of the NCAA Life Skills/CHAMPS Program, we provide opportunities and services to address the changing needs and skills of student-athletes in the years during college and after graduation.

Clemson University’s commitment to provide its student-athletes with the very best of facilities is evident in many ways. From the soaring upper decks of Memorial Stadium, to the state-of-the-art strength training facility, young men and women from all 19 of Clemson’s varsity sports have the very best in facilities for training and competition.

Vickery Hall is no exception, as the $3 million structure is as impressive aesthetically as any of the other facilities. But the importance of Vickery Hall to the Clemson University Athletics Department is not found in the structure itself, but in the many programs that the building houses.

Vickery Hall opened in the spring of 1991 and was the first support facility in the country built solely for the all-around education of student-athletes. The two-story, 27,000 square foot building is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of student-athletes.

The mission of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is to monitor, guide, and encourage student-athletes to fulfill their long-term goals, and to achieve their academic and career potential.

Vickery Hall focuses on five primary areas to meet the student-athlete’s needs:

ACADEMIC COMMITMENT

The academic commitment aspect of Clemson’s Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has provided one of the best academic support and advising programs in the nation.

The proof is in the statistics. A record 227 Clemson student-athletes made the academic honor roll in the fall of 1999. The student-athletes had a record 2.76 GPA in the spring of 2000, just .02 from the overall student body GPA of 2.78. Records were also established for number of President’s List and Dean’s List students.

In the spring of 2000 the Clemson football team posted a team GPA of 2.49, highest on record. A record 21 players were named to the ACC Academic Honor Roll for 1999-2000.

The Academic Counselors perform a variety of duties to track academic progress. These duties include providing assistance in registration and priority scheduling, contacting faculty, personally checking classes, recording information, counseling sessions with student-athletes, providing diagnostic testing, and directing career aspirations.

One of the most prestigious programs that has received recognition essential to the growth of Vickery Hall is the tutorial program.

Of the 160 programs certified by CRLA, the Clemson Student-Athlete Enrichment Program was one of the first three student-athlete programs in the country to be granted a Level 1 certification from the College of Reading and Learning Association, International Tutor Certification Program. The program was also honored with the National Champs Life Skills Excellence Award in 1999, one of six schools from across the country to be honored.

Having tutor certification allows student-athletes to be provided the highest quality of academic assistance possible. Approximately 80 tutors are hired to provide academic support in the many subject areas offered.

Many post-graduate scholarships and internships are also available to student-athletes continuing their education through postgraduate studies. Our student-athletes are provided timely information regarding these opportunities and the resources necessary to assist in the application process for either scholarships or internships.

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has recognized the need for students to have access to high-quality computing equipment and has made a commitment to provide the student-athletes at Clemson with one of the largest computer labs in the country. Located on the first floor of Vickery Hall is the Microcomputer Laboratory. The lab is open seven days a week, for 16 hours on Monday through Thursday, and a limited time on Saturday and Sunday. During exam periods the lab hours are extended.

The lab staff has a full-time computer manager, and also graduate students, many of whom are pursuing advanced degrees in computer science. Lab staff members are available for tutoring of any Computer Science course, as well as the many management, engineering, and business courses that deal with personal computers.

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is committed to providing state-of-the-art computing facilities. New computers have recently been purchased bringing the lab to a state of the art facility. More than 50 computers are available for student-athletes.

All computers are fully connected to the internet allowing for access of computers throughout the world for research and communication.

PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT COMMITMENT

One of the most important programs that helps student-athletes reach their full potential and engage successfully in this college experience is the Personal Growth and Development Program.

One of the key components of this program is the first-semester freshman transition class designed to assist the student-athlete in making a successful transition into his/her university and athletic life. All first-semester freshmen attend a semester-long series of workshops targeting the transitional issues of time management, organizational strategies, health and wellness issues, athletic issues, diversity issues, career orientation, and service training. Throughout the academic year, all student-athletes are required to attend four large-group programs, which focus on pertinent social, health, and athletic issues.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT COMMITMENT

The Career Assistance Program provides student-athletes an opportunity to fulfill career aspirations by participating in various career seminars offered by the staff at Vickery Hall. The philosophy of this program is to provide student-athletes with job-searching skills and strategies, internships, practical experience, and summer employment. These programs are designed to address specific career opportunities and acquire information about the student-athletes for each year.

By using the resources available to the University, Alumni Center, and the Athletic Department, the staff is working to establish a network of businesses, companies, and executives who will help assist with the Summer Employment Assistance Program. The program's main goal is to provide the student-athletes with job experience and a work history, which he or she can apply to his or her academic discipline.

The Career Assistance Program is coordinated from the academic colleges, the Placement Center, and through the Athletic Department contacts. This program is designed to better prepare the student-athlete for full-time employment and focuses on resume writing and interview techniques.

SERVICE COMMITMENT

Providing community and outreach service to student-athletes and the surrounding community by engaging the student-athletes in hands-on interactive programs is an important aspect of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs. The staff of SAEP coordinates various activities each year to engage student-athletes in community outreach projects along with academic programs.

Another aspect of the service commitment is that of community service. The purpose of community service is to allow the student-athletes to become involved with the happenings of the community while giving back at the same time. Each year every team is required to perform at least two community outreach projects. Recently implemented was a new community service program entitled Success Away From the Game. The purpose of this program is to combine athletes of different sports in community outreach programs. By doing this, each outreach program participates, thus creating a diverse group of athletes with new and different ideas. At the end of each year, six student-athletes who have demonstrated outstanding commitment and contributions to the community are recognized as the Top Six by the ACC.

LIFELINE another aspect of community service, consists of chosen football players who work together in specific community outreach projects. LIFELINE has approximately 20 members along with a president, vice president and secretary. Once a month, these young men meet to discuss future projects. To date, they have sponsored Hi-Five Day, planted a garden at Helping Hands Children Shelter, and held reading programs at elementary schools. These young men have vital roles in both the community and the athletic arena.

To assist our student-athletes in becoming effective service leaders and communicators we provide service and speaking training, which anticipates the demands placed on a student-athlete when he/she might be speaking with a group of young people or also speaking with the media.

ATHLETIC COMMITMENT

Under the direction of athletic director Bobby Robinson, Clemson is undoubtedly one of the elite programs of Division I athletics.

Five Clemson teams ranked in the final top 10 of their respective sports last season, including three spring sports. Last year marked the fifth straight year Clemson has had at least seven top 25 teams. Eleven of Clemson's 19 teams advanced to postseason play during the 1999-2000 academic year. Sixty Clemson student-athletes earned first-team All-ACC honors, the highest number since 1991-92. With a generous funding base from Clemson's booster organization, IPTAY, and the forward-thinking of our athletic administration, the Clemson Tigers will continue to be a dominating athletic force, not only in the ACC, but nationally as well.

Break From Tradition.

Traditionally, rich aesthetics, cost-effectiveness and color haven’t gone hand in hand. If you wanted fashion color, you had to go to a specialty boutique and it wasn’t going to be cheap. With Eastman’s Chromspun® and Estron® yarns — you can have your cake and eat it too.

Chromspun solution dyed acetate yarn is available in a wide range of fashion colors and can also be produced in custom colors. It complements our popular Estron line of white yarns. Plus, we make all Eastman® yarns in the USA. As a matter of fact, Chromspun is the only colored acetate yarn made in America. That’s a tradition we’re proud of.

When the Federal Emergency Management Agency and the state of Florida needed accurate information about what happens to low-lying structures during a hurricane, they came to Clemson University for help.

So last year, as Hurricane Floyd charged toward the Florida coast, engineers from Clemson, the University of Florida and Florida International — led by Clemson associate professor of engineering Tim Reinhold — were scrambling to deploy mobile data-acquisition units squarely in its path. The “wind towers” were designed to gather data about wind speed and direction, which would in turn help local agencies develop better building codes for coastal areas.

It wasn’t the first time Clemson’s wind engineering expertise had been put to the test. For more than a decade, Clemson has been working to develop better building techniques to make low-lying structures (homes, shopping centers, schools, etc.) more wind-resistant. Clemson’s research provides the basis for many of the retrofit options selected by the Florida Wind Pool for premium credits in their new rate filing.

showed his alert play. That play was shown on the Saturday night news all over the country because it was the big game of the day in college football. We were ranked second in the nation and North Carolina was eighth, the first time in history two top 10 ACC teams faced each other.

The headline in the Greenville News the next day read Tigers are "10-8-cious".

Clemson 17, Ohio State 15
Dec. 30, 1978 at Jacksonville, FL (Gator Bowl)

Ohio State had a freshman quarterback named Art Schlichter who was a terrific player as a runner and passer. He completed 16-20 passes in that game.

Of course the thing everyone remembers is Woody Hayes hitting Charlie Bauman after Bauman made an interception in the final minute.

Charlie wasn't even suppose to be in that passing lane on that play. He got knocked backwards, enabling him to make the interception. That was the only interception of his career. He was run out of bounds in the middle of the Ohio State bench, right in front of Hayes and Hayes struck him. I never saw it because I was on the Clemson sideline at the time.

When we got in the locker room everyone was talking about it.

Coach Ford felt bad for Coach Hayes and told the players not to comment, just talk about the game.

I remember telling Coach Ford before the game that we needed to have a press conference the morning following the game, because the game was scheduled for 9:00 PM. Coach Ford's press conference was scheduled for 10:00 AM. At 9:40 AM the Associated Press reporter came into our press conference to tell us that Hayes had been fired.

Charlie felt badly about the whole situation because he had grown up an Ohio State fan and thought a lot of Coach Hayes. For years he refused to do interviews about the incident because he didn't want to rekindle the incident and hurt Coach Hayes' legacy. Coach Hayes called him to apologize after it happened. Charlie, who was a sophomore when the play happened, invited him to come down to spring practice, but he never came.

Clemson 21, Georgia 20
Sept. 19, 1987 at Clemson, SC

We were down 20-16 with about five minutes left in this game.

Rusty Seyle hit a punt that was downed by Chinadu Ohan on the half-yard line. A couple of plays later, our defense swarmed on Georgia quarterback John Jackson and we tackled him for a safety.

We took the ensuing punt with about five minutes left and drove the ball down the field behind the running of Terry Allen and Wesley McFadden.

We drove it to the three yard-line and called on David Treadwell for the winning kick. It got a little hairy at the end because we were out of timeouts. We got the field goal team on the field and Treadwell got the kick through the uprights with two seconds left.

Treadwell was amazing with those winning kicks. He had done the same thing the year before at Georgia, kicking a 46-yard field goal to win 31-28 in Athens. That game should really be on this list also. We only won in Athens twice since I have been watching Clemson football.

Clemson 16, Notre Dame 10
Nov. 17, 1979 at South Bend, IN

I really put this game on the list because Tim Bourret would disown me if I didn't. But, anytime you go to Notre Dame and beat them it is an accomplishment. Notre Dame had beaten us at Clemson two years before and went on to win the National Championship.

They weren't as good in 1979, but still had a good ball club. Notre Dame had a 10-0 lead in the first half and was in control of the game. Then a Notre Dame player, Tyree Dickerson fumbled a punt that we recovered. It changed the momentum of the game.

Tim told me later that after Dickerson fumbled the punt, he left the sideline, went to the locker room, got dressed and went back to his dorm, quitting the team in the middle of the game. He watched the rest of the game on TV in his dorm room and never played again.

Anyway, Billy Lott led the comeback in the second half. He had a 26-yard run that put us up and Obed Ariri kicked three field goals and we won 16-10.

That was quite a first 11 games as head coach for Danny Ford. He beat Woody Hayes, Vince Dooley and Dan Devine all within that time. All three are in the College Football Hall of Fame.

Clemson 34, Florida State 23
Sept. 9, 1989 at Tallahassee, FL

This might have been the best performance we ever had. We had them 21-0 in the first quarter behind two 73-yard plays. Wayne Simmons had a 73-yard interception return and Terry Allen had a 73-yard run for a touchdown. Allen's run was amazing because it took place right before the half. We were just trying to run out the clock on a sweep and went all the way.

We controlled this game the entire night. We had a 34-17 lead with six seconds left before Florida State scored a late touchdown. This was a Florida State team that ended the season number-2 in the nation in the final Coach's poll. If you talk to Clemson fans, this might have been the most fun they have had at a road game. This was the year after the "puntrookie Game" so our fans were pretty fired up.

Clemson 26, North Carolina 21
Sept. 27, 1958 at Clemson, SC

This was the second game of the 1958 season. We had to come from behind twice the week before to beat Virginia. We had to come from behind three times to win this game against North Carolina. This was Coach Howard's 100th win as head coach. It was the only time that Howard beat Jim Tatum, who was also a Hall of Fame coach. Coach Tatum died prior to the next season.

This victory was important for Coach Howard and for Clemson football. Up until this game North Carolina always seemed to beat us, they had the lead in the series. But, this win started a string of six straight wins for Clemson over North Carolina. We still lead in the series today.
Offense of the Future

By Todd Lamb
Assistant Sports Information Dir.

When current Clemson coach Tommy Bowden and his staff were at Tulane, their offense received one of the highest compliments from one of the greatest football coaches of all time.

Former Stanford University and San Francisco 49ers’ head coach Bill Walsh had seen Bowden’s offense in action in November 1998 in a game at the U.S. Military Academy between Tulane and Army.

“We knew he was at the game, but we didn’t get a chance to talk with him,” remembered Rich Rodriguez, who served as the offensive coordinator for the Green Wave and now conducts the offense for Clemson.

The following Monday morning, Bowden received a call from the man that guided the 49ers franchise to five Super Bowl victories.

“He was at the game and didn’t get a chance to come to the dressing room after the game,” Bowden said. “He liked the things we were doing on offense. The conversation was related to what we were doing at Tulane and our offensive philosophy — our running attack, how we attack defenses and things like that.”

“Coach Walsh has said some nice things since then that have been very flattering and we’ve had a lot of good comments on it,” Rodriguez said. “It was nice to see our offense being recognized on the highest level.”

Walsh had just written a book — “Finding the Winning Edge” — and told Bowden that his offensive tendencies were similar to where he thought that offenses in the NFL were headed:

• Teams will huddle only when the clock is stopped.
• Team will use single-word audibles.
• The timing between the quarterback and the receiver will be more defined.
• The quarterback will receive direction from the coach at the line of scrimmage. Because the ball can be put into play at any moment, the defense must commit itself with its front and coverage.
• Substitutions will enter the game when the whistle blows and go immediately to the line of scrimmage.
• The quarterback will look to the sideline the instant the whistle blows on the previous play to see which personnel combination is entering the game. The designated coach indicates the formation to the quarterback and whether he should audible his own play or will receive a play call from the coach.
• The quarterback will have more latitude in audibbling at the line of scrimmage.
• The need to protect the quarterback will be even greater because of the fact that the defenders will be larger, stronger and faster and able to hit harder.

Less than one month after that conversation and guiding Tulane to an undefeated regular season, Bowden accepted Clemson’s offer to become coach of the Tigers.

As Clemson fans have come to realize, the offense employed by Bowden in Tiger Town, which is essentially the same one viewed by Walsh in the Tulane-Army game, shares many of these traits.

Clemson’s up-tempo, no-huddle offense has created problems for opposing defenses and has kept them on edge.

“You want to put as much pressure on the defense as possible and the way to do that is to make them defend the width and length of the field,” Bowden indicated. “The best way to make them defend the width of the field is to put guys outside.”

The Bowden offense typically puts three, four and sometimes five receivers on the outside of the field and Bowden half-jokingly says the only option his team will employ is the choice of the quarterback to which receiver will get the ball.

In almost contradictory fashion to how the offense appears, Bowden insists he wants the team to run the football.

“We’ll try as hard as we can to look for a running play every down and if the running opportunity is not there then we have to have the ability to throw,” he said.

Rodriguez, who has been working with this type of offense since his days as the head coach at Glenville (WV) State College in the 1990s, echoed coach Bowden.

“We work as hard or harder on the running game,” he said. “The difference with us is that we are not afraid to go ahead and throw it 60-70 times if that is what we need to move the ball. On the flip side, we’ll run it 60-70 times as well depending on how the defense plays us.

“Nowadays, defenses are pressure oriented and like to blitz a lot, so we are going to throw it a bunch. That is the difference between us and other teams that try to get balance. They don’t want to throw it and don’t like to throw it. We don’t mind throwing it every snap. We are flexible enough to be able to do it.”

Defensive coordinators across the country say their primary objective is to stop the run, so offenses must be able to throw the ball to be able to move the ball down the field.

Bowden said to look at Penn State in its first

Rod Gardner had 80 receptions last season for 1,084 yards, both of which are Clemson records.
two games this season or look at what Clemson did in its season opener to see what he was talking about.

"Penn State's running game was stopped, but could they throw it?" Bowden asked. "Defense dictates the flow.

"I wasn't going to throw the ball against The Citadel when they gave us all those running opportunities. We ran for 236 yards and passed for 222 yards. We could have sat there and thrown the ball 50 times and gone for 400 and rushed for 50, but that is what they gave us."

"I do feel like if you can run the football when the opportunity presents itself, you are going to win football games, but to win, you can't run when the numbers aren't there to run."

Bowden insists there is no ideal balance between rushing and passing yardage he wants his offense to shoot for during a game.

"There is only one statistic we are interested in and that is the score," he said. "Offenses score and defenses stop the score. How you score is irrelevant whether you run or pass. The defense dictates whether you run or pass, not the offense."

\[Image\]

\[Image\]

\[Image\]

"I feel very comfortable with what we are doing and I like what we are doing," Bowden said. "I think we will eventually get better at it as we recruit players to fit this system and our players become knowledgeable enough with it."

The promise of taking a step towards the next level has everyone in Clemson excited.

"What I'm excited about is when we get the highest talent level to match our system, I think we will be something special," Rodriguez said. "We have talented players, but many were recruited for a different system."

As for the Clemson offense being the offense of the future...

"I think we have enough flexibility and have researched the offense enough that it can be successful at all levels," Rodriguez said. "I don't know if we are ahead of the game. I think we are ahead of where we were last year and where we were two years ago. I think we have to constantly try to keep it on the cutting edge, but you still have to have players that will execute."

"I don't know," Bowden added. "I think that is better for someone else to decide. Someone like Coach Walsh."

BYU threw for 447 yards and beat Virginia while only running for 93 yards while Florida State only ran for 57 yards against BYU in the Pigskin Classic yet took to the air for 318 yards.

The Clemson offense features multiple wide receivers and yields a productive rushing game. Last year, in the first year of the Bowden-Rodriguez offense, the Tigers passing attack averaged 403 yards a game, while the ground game averaged 151 yards. The improvement in passing yardage bettered the previous year's output by nearly 160 yards per game.

It is an offense that in the staff's final year in New Orleans posted the nation's only 300-yard passing and 200-yard rushing attack on its way to an undefeated season. Tulane scored 40 or more points in seven games that season, including each of the last five regular season games.

Rodriguez said that with so many multiple defenses, offenses must go with the numbers.

"If the numbers are there to run it, you've got to run it. If the numbers are there to throw it, you've got to throw it," he said. "A lot of people talk about it, but do they do it? We try to do it on every snap. It is easier for us to adhere to that because we call our plays so quickly and our tempo is so fast. Our kids understand our tempo and that is a big plus for us."

The Tigers were learning the offense last year and the philosophy helped Clemson improve six spots in the ACC standings from 1998 to 1999 and earn a trip to the Peach Bowl. Clemson was the first school in ACC history to jump six places in the league standings. After a 6-6 finish that earned Tommy Bowden ACC Coach of the Year accolades, expectations are high at Clemson for even greater success.

Tiger Band

By Shipp Daniel
Clemson Sports Information

Early this morning, as the players, coaches and fans prepare themselves for the game, the Tiger Band was already meeting – going over last minute tasks, reviewing their assignments, and most importantly, making sure everything is in check so that they will be able to entertain Death Valley as the plays its 1,000th football game.

For today's game against Wake Forest, Tiger Band will make its trek around the North side of the stadium and enter the field sounding Tiger Rag. The band will then take the field and begin its pre-game festivities. It will begin by playing the "Orange Bowl March" which leads into "Tiger Rag." At this point, the band forms the script Tigers, and the "i" is dotted.

Holding the distinct honor of dotting the "i" today is Dr. Larry LaForge, Dr. LaForge, a graduate of Clemson University (70), and currently a professor at Clemson University, is the recipient of the 2000 Prince Award for Innovation and Teaching. This award is presented at Convocation and is funded from an Endowment from Athletics.

Dr. LaForge was named 1995 South Carolina Professor of the Year by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. In addition, he is a recipient of the Class of 1939 Award for Excellence, the highest faculty honor at Clemson University. In 1996 Dr. LaForge was named a Fellow of the Decision Sciences Institute for his scholarly contributions to the field of operations management.

Dr. LaForge has been at Clemson since 1981, and is married to the former Mary Bratkiewicz of Mobile, Ala. The couple has two children: Ryan, 26, a 1995 Clemson graduate and Scott, 16, a junior at Daniel High School.

The remainder of the pre-game routine, which consists of "The Washington Post," "God Bless America," the "Star-spangled Banner" and the Clemson University Alma Mater, will then be carried out. Immediately following the alma mater, the band will play the "Orange Bowl March," form its tunnel and burst into "Tiger Rag" as the football players run down the Hill and complete the "most exciting 25 seconds in college football."

At halftime, Tiger Band will salute three successful rock bands of the early 1980s in a show entitled "Rockin' 80s." Music selections will include "Only Time Will Tell" by Asia, "Don't You Want Me" by The Human League and "Call Me" by Blondie.

On a special note, today is Tiger Band Parents Day. Clemson University would like to say a special "Thank You!" to all Tiger Band parents in attendance. Their support of, and interest in, the Clemson University Band program is greatly appreciated.

Tiger Band is under the direction of Dr. Mark Hosler. He is assisted by Paul Buyer (Percussion Instructor), Cheryl Hosler (Flag Line/Twirler Instructor), and Tim Willis (Announcer).

The Tiger Band Student Staff is comprised of some of the most talented and dedicated young men and women on the Clemson campus. The student leadership structure is unique among major college marching bands. Since Clemson does not have Graduate Assistants found in most college bands, our student leaders are given more responsibilities in the day-to-day operations of Tiger Band than students in most other bands.

The members of the student staff are: Tarik Pierce, Band Commander; Wesley Moore, Vice Commander; Verdale Benson, Sergeant-Major; Brandy Smith, Uniform Officer; Matt Goldrick, Equipment Officer; Leigh Roberson, Librarian; Gresham Barker, Drum Major; Ginny Browning, Drum Major; Becky Graham, Drum Major; Andrea Randolph, Drum Major; Shannon Finnegan, Flag Captain; Meredith Robillard, Flag Captain; Jamie Wood, Flag Captain; and Allison Labate, Twirler Captain.

These students, along with the rest of Tiger Band, encourage you to purchase their new CD, which is now on sale. The Clemson University Tiger Band Association (CUTBA) is offering its most recent CD—Tiger Rag! The CD features 26 Tiger fan favorites from the 1997 and 1998 seasons.

Proceeds benefit the band scholarship fund as well as help finance equipment purchases and awards. The CD is available for $15 at the Tiger Band Office (119 Brooks Center). To order by mail, send a check (payable to CUTBA) for $17 ($15 + $2 for shipping and handling) to: CUTBA c/o Clemson Tiger Band, 119 Brooks Center, Clemson, SC 29634-1505.

Howard's Rock

By Jacob Barker
Clemson Sports Information

The events of August 24th would have made the late Frank Howard, Samuel C. Jones, Sr., and Gene Willimon very proud to be Clemson Tigers. On that warm summer afternoon, at the top of the hill in the east end zone of Memorial Stadium, a new granite pedestal carved by John Fernandez was unveiled for Howard's Rock that will add even more to one of the most exciting traditions in all of college football.

In the early 1960's, Jones brought the rock to Clemson from Death Valley, CA with the hopes that legendary coach Frank Howard could use it in the football stadium. The two and a half pound rock sat in Howard's office for more than a year until finally one day the coach ordered long time IPTAY chief Gene Willimon to take it out of his office. Willimon was told he could do whatever he wanted with it, so after driving around campus for several hours he decided to place the rock at the top of the hill in the east end zone. On Sept. 24, 1966, with the rock in place for the first time, the Tigers came from an 18-point deficit to defeat Virginia 40-35.

A year later, Howard told his players they could only rub the rock for good luck before they ran down the hill if they planned to give maximum effort.

"Coach Howard told them if you're going to give 110 percent you can rub my rock," said longtime sports information director Bob Bradley. "If you're not, keep your filthy hands off of it."

Howard's motivational strategy worked and the Tigers defeated Wake Forest 23-6 on Sept. 23, 1967.

While Howard, Jones, and Willimon will always be remembered as the masterminds of what is known today as Howard's Rock, Fernandez's name will now also be forever linked with the rock's storied history.

As a junior at Clemson in 1967, Fernandez was in the crowd when the Clemson team rubbed Howard's Rock for the first time.

"It was so exciting to see those players rub the rock for the first time and then run down the hill. It is something that I will never forget," Fernandez recalled.

He finished his degree requirements at Clemson in December 1968, but because the university did not have a December commencement at that time and because he relished being a Clemson student, he waited until the spring of 1969 to receive his degree.

"I loved being a student and my mom really wanted to watch me walk across that stage and get my degree so luckily I got to remain at Clemson for another semester," Fernandez said.

Today, Fernandez and his wife Rhoda own a granite-sawing company—Stone Mart, Inc.—in Elberton, GA. Ever since his graduation from Clemson, Fernandez's love for the university has led him to volunteer his time and materials to many projects on campus. He has carved and shaped granite signs for the Walter Cox Plaza, the Military Heritage Plaza, and the Madison Center just to name a few.

"I love Clemson and I am always looking for ways to give back to the university in any way I can," stated Fernandez.

Then earlier this year, while flipping through an issue of the Orange and White, Fernandez noticed a picture of the original concrete pedestal of Howard's Rock being sawed down.

The rock was removed because of the concrete in which the rock had previously set had to be removed to make way for the construction of the east endzone. The project was part of the Tiger Pride campaign.

The removal marked the first time Howard's Rock had been moved since it was first placed in Memorial Stadium in 1966.

"It has been right there in that same spot," Bradley said.

George Jones, who served as director of facilities at Clemson for many years, constructed the first pedestal in 1966 but Fernandez knew he would love to be the one to create what would be only the second pedestal in the history of Howard's Rock. Because no one had contacted him about the job, however, he went on with the daily work of his company in Elberton.

As the rock sat inside the IPTAY offices upon removal from Death Valley, Fernandez continued to hold on to his vision of constructing a new pedestal in Memorial Stadium. Several months later his dream became a reality.

In early June, Sam Zanca of Clemson University construction services called Fernandez... and asked him if he would be interested in creating a new granite pedestal for Howard’s Rock. As always, Fernandez was extremely eager to volunteer his services and materials to such a special project.

“I was so thrilled when Sam called that I told him of course I would be interested,” remembered Fernandez. “I had wanted the project ever since I saw the picture in the Orange and White, but I could not believe that I was actually going to be a part of such a great thing.”

In mid July, Les Jones, Clemson’s Associate Athletic Director for Capital Improvements, visited Fernandez and toured the quarry and the granite mining, cutting, polishing and engraving operations. From that day on, the completion of the project and the safety of the rock took main priority in Fernandez’s life.

“When I first received the rock, I was in awe,” said Fernandez. “Every time I looked at it, I could not help but think about all the people that had touched it and the tradition that it stood for.”

During the construction process, Fernandez carried the rock with him to and from work and the only time he took his eyes off it was while he was sleeping.

“With all the Georgia fans in Elberton, we really live in enemy territory,” Fernandez chuckled. “I was paranoid that something was going to happen to it, so I did everything I possibly could to ensure its safety.”

His concern for the rock even led Fernandez to take it with him to a family cookout at his oldest son Danny’s house. “I think people really begin to think I was crazy then,” Fernandez stated.

After cutting and shaping the 1,000-pound jet black granite to the exact size he wanted, Fernandez and his crew fitted Howard’s Rock into its setting and sandblasted the lettering and tiger paw onto either side of the pedestal.

“I thought that it would be good to have something carved into the field side of the pedestal for the television cameras to see when the team ran down the hill so that is why we decided to put the tiger paw on that side,” said Fernandez.

Even though he only began working on the project in late June, the pedestal was delivered and dedicated to the Clemson Family on Aug. 24.

“We did not have any problems whatsoever during the construction process,” recalled Fernandez. “Everything just seemed to fall in place and it turned out exactly like we wanted.”

The impressive looking pedestal has already made a big impression on the Clemson football team.

“When I went to rub the rock against The Citadel, I could not believe how fancy it looked,” said starting linebacker Altroy Bodrick. “With the way the rock looks now, I definitely think that touching it and running down the hill is the best tradition in all of college football.”

So while the names Howard, Jones, and Willimon will be forever linked with the famous rock now known as Howard’s Rock, John Fernandez’s name will also now be remembered for many years to come. Through his pride and dedication for this great university, Clemson’s most famous rock has a new resting place that all Tigers fans and football players can enjoy and be proud of.

The Clemson golf team returns three All-Americans to its starting five. Two of the three have been first-team All-Americans at one point or another in their respective careers. The one player in that threesome who has not been a first-team selection will play in the Master's next April.

That is the best documentation of the talent level Larry Penley has in his lineup as he enters his 18th season as Clemson head coach. In the first 17 he has won 45 tournaments, including four NCAA Regional titles and six ACC Championships, including three of the last four.

Last year his team won three tournaments against strong fields and his club was under par for a school-record nine straight events and 10 of 12. The squad finished second and third in the respective final major college golf polls and concluded the season with a fourth straight top 10 NCAA Tournament finish, something no Clemson program has done since the 1980-83 era.

What does he do for an 18th encore? Make an 18th straight NCAA Tournament and challenge for the National Championship according to the preseason prognosticators. Both Golf World Magazine and the College Golf Foundation list Clemson as the preseason national number-one team in the nation.

“We are a very solid team at the one-two-three spots, as good as any in the country," said Penley, who once played as an All-ACC golfer on the Clemson team in the early 1980s. The only question mark surrounding the team is replacing four-time first-team All-ACC golfer Jonathan Byrd. Out of all the athletes in Clemson history, he is the only one to be a first, second or third-team All-American on the field of play and in the classroom in the same year, twice. That speaks volumes of his abilities and his leadership.

“It gets harder and harder to see these guys go,” said Penley. "We will miss Jonathan’s stability, his consistent play and leadership. But, we have to move on and it is an opportunity for our seniors to step up into that leadership role. I have already seen evidence of that. John Engler, Lucas Glover and Jani Saari realize they have to show the younger players what it takes to be successful.”

When you talk about the top of the Clemson lineup you really have to consider it as a two-headed monster. It is virtually impossible to separate the success Lucas Glover and John Engler have had in their first three years at Clemson.

“Both have been first-team All-Americans, both have been two-time All-ACC, both are at the top of our scoring average list. John and Lucas have seen a lot already. They were starters on our 1996 team that finished second in the nation. Then they were on a team (1999) that had the lead at the NCAAAs after 36 holes their sophomore years. Last year they were disappointed in our team’s performance at the NCAAAs in that we really didn’t challenge for the National Championship.

“They both told me after we finished second in 1998 that they were going to win it before they left Clemson. Their time has come,” said Penley with a chuckle.

Glover had the top stroke average on the Clemson team last year with a 71.24 figure, best in Clemson history. He had 25 rounds at par or better, second best on the Clemson record books, and he finished the year with a number eight national ranking by the Saragin ratings and was seventh by MasterCard.

Glover, who is good friends with current Tiger football players Kyle Young, Will Merritt and Chad Speck, (all of whom travelled to tournam-ents last spring to watch the Tigers play), was a first-team All-American last year. He is ranked number-two in the nation in the MasterCard preseason individual rankings for this year after an outstanding summer. He won the South Carolina Amateur for the third straight year, the only person in history to do that.

Engler was a second team All-American last year and ranked ninth in the nation by MasterCard and 12th by Saragin. His 71.33 stroke average last year was second on the Clemson team, but third best in school history. Entering his senior year, his 72.10 career stroke average is best on the Clemson record books. He is also in the top five in school history in rounds under par, round at par or better and rounds in the 60s. He and Glover will break those existing all-time records this year.

D.J. Trahan is a sophomore who had a record breaking freshman year, capped only by an incredible summer. Trahan had a 72.48 stroke average, a Clemson freshman record, and was ranked 22nd in the nation in the final MasterCard ratings, the second highest freshman rating in the nation. He was Clemson’s top golfer at the NCAAs with a 282 score, good enough for 15th in the event.

He trumped those accomplishments by winning the United States Public Links Championshi- p in July, with the trophy comes an automatic invitation to the Master's in April. "D.J. had the most glamorous summer of our golfers," said Penley. "Winning the US Public Links shows D.J.'s mental toughness. He is an awesome ballstriker. But, there is room for improvement. He knows he can become a more consistent player and improve his short game.”

One golfer who has the short game is senior Jani Saari, who figures to be in the Clemson starting lineup this year. Saari is the consistent player who is always a counter in the lineup. Clemson fans saw that last year when his score counted all four days of the NCAA Tournament at Auburn. He finished with an even par 288. He finished 23rd at the NCAAs in 1999. Saari has been a member of three Clemson top 10 teams, so he knows what it takes.

There will be a battle for the fifth spot in Clemson’s starting lineup. Ben Duncan is the front runner and has the most experience. The native of Inman, SC played in four events last year and had a 75.17 average. But, a strong summer and strong play in the first weeks of school had him in the lineup in Clemson’s opening tournament.

Red-shirt freshman Gregg Jones, the South Carolina Amateur Match Play Champion, along with classmates Matt Hendrix and Michael Sims, also figure to be in the picture. Upperclassmen Tripp James and Brennen King will also challenge for playing time.

Again, Clemson faces a challenging sched-ule. Every tournament includes at least 8-10 top 20 teams. Among the highlights will be Clemson’s appearance in the Ping Preview, which will be held at the Duke University Course in Durham, NC. That is also the site of the 2001 NCAA Championships. Clemson is ranked number-one now and hopes to be when it steps off the Duke course on June 3.

John Engler (left) and Lucas Glover (right) rank one-two in Clemson history in career stroke average and are major reasons Clemson is ranked number one in two preseason polls for 2000-2001.

Assistant Sports Information Dir.

As head coach Susie Lueck begins her third season at the helm of the Clemson rowing program, she is looking forward to another outstanding season on the water and in the classroom.

“The experience from the past two years combined with the leadership from this year’s upperclassmen have created a foundation for success. Our challenge will be to build speed and find even more success both academically and athletically,” said Lueck.

In just its second year, the 2000 Clemson rowing program continued to build on its first season’s successes as they recorded a second-place finish at the inaugural ACC Championships held at the University of Virginia. They followed up that performance with a fourth-place finish at the regional regatta, narrowly missing a berth to the NCAA National Championships. Clemson placed two rowers, Lauren Henne and Katherine Sloan, on the All-ACC team, the first all-conference rowers in school history. Lucy Doddilte was selected as a second-team all-region honoree.

The Tiger rowers also excelled in the classroom last year, posting a 3.27 GPA in the spring semester. That was the highest GPA in the program’s history, and the second highest by any Clemson program in any spring semester.

Despite losing 14 seniors, Lueck, along with assistant coaches Kelly Lynch and Laura Sice, is excited about the possibilities for this year.

The Tigers return 29 rowers from last year’s team, including eight of nine in last year’s top novice boat and six from last year’s varsity boat.

“There is a lot of depth in the returning upperclassmen, and this year’s junior class has a tremendous amount of potential. They went undefeated as novices their freshman year and several of them were in our first varsity boat last year. It will also be exciting to see what this year’s sophomore class will do with the success and experience they gained last year,” said Lueck.

Clemson will begin its non-traditional fall season next Saturday at the Seneca Water Festival where it will compete in an intersquad race and a celebrity row.

“This will give our local fans and other people who are interested in rowing an opportunity to come out early in the year and show their support of Clemson rowing and the sport in general,” said Lueck.

The Tigers will travel to Pittsburgh, PA, for the Head of the Ohio Regatta on Oct. 7 where they will likely face some of the top Division I programs. Virginia, Ohio State, Brown, Cornell, Princeton, Michigan, Kansas, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Michigan State participated last year’s regatta and several of those teams advanced to the NCAA Championships last season.

The first opportunity for Tiger supporters to see this year’s team in action at home will be at the Head of Lake Hartwell on Oct. 14. ACC-rival Duke as well as Tennessee will face Clemson in this year’s regatta. On Oct. 15, Clemson will participate in its annual Class Day Regatta on Lake Hartwell where the classes will compete against each other.

On Oct. 28, the novice teams will go to the Head of the Tennessee before the novice and varsity teams travel to the Head of the Chattahoochee on Nov. 4.

“The Hootch is a big regional regatta and will give us an opportunity to see who is showing good speed,” Lueck said. “There is always a good level of competition at this regatta.”

Clemson will wrap up its fall season with the Rivanna Romp, held Nov. 14 on the Rivanna Reservoir in Charlottesville, VA. This race will feature traditionally strong Division I women’s programs. The Rivanna should be the best indicator of what we need to work on and where we are heading into the spring season,” Lueck said. The Tigers will likely face both ACC and non-conference opponents such as Ohio State, Virginia, Duke, Miami, North Carolina and Georgetown.

The first preseason poll will be published in February 2001 based in part on the fall results.

Clemson will open its traditional spring season with two regattas at home on March 17 and March 24.

The Tigers will have an opportunity to race many of the top teams at the San Diego Crew Classic April 7-8. Last year, seven of the top-10 teams in the nation competed in that regatta.

On April 14, Clemson will race Ohio State, Texas, Kansas, Iowa, Southern California, Michigan and Michigan State in Columbus, OH, before coming home to host the Clemson Classic, their last event before the ACC Championships, which will be hosted by Clemson on Lake Hartwell on April 28.

“This will be a great opportunity for local supporters to see some great races. We are really excited about hosting this event and are looking to compete for the conference title,” Lueck said. There will be four events at the ACC Championships as both varsity 8+ and varsity 4+ boats will compete in the regatta.

The Central and Southern Region Championships will be held in Oak Ridge, TN, May 13-14, followed by the NCAA Championships May 25-27, on Lake Lanier in Gainesville, GA.

So you are getting married and your entire family schedules its fall activities around Clemson football home games. You call the Clemson Sports Information office to get the 2001 schedule so you can plan this major event. Much to your disappointment, you can't get an answer to this question. You are told the schedule won't be released until December 15 or even later.

This is probably the most confusing issue we deal with in the sports information office, hence this article to explain why we can't give you much of an answer.

Seven years ago the ACC began meeting in December to determine each team's conference schedule. The reason for the delay... television. The television networks want a schedule that creates competitive conference games each week. Obviously, for the ACC to be competitive with the other conferences when it comes to TV ratings, it is imperative that there are marquee games each week.

To have a competitive game each week, you really can't make a schedule until the previous year is over. Even then it is a guessing game, but it is certainly easier than scheduling three or four years in advance. With ABC and ESPN and ESPN2 expanding their coverage, almost every conference in the country is waiting until the December or January prior to the season to release its schedule.

So, those of you who think a full schedule exists, hidden in some vault in Greensboro, you are wrong. Up until 1996 the Clemson SID office would tell a wedding planner a “tentative schedule” for a future season. We were emphatic about the possibility of changes, but when the changes were announced in December, we had some angry people who still went ahead and scheduled their events based on the tentative schedule.

You can see by the chart on this page, that the 1996 schedule published in the 1995 Clemson Football Guide and the actual 1996 schedule are dramatically different. Thus, it is senseless to publish a tentative future schedule.

Thus, the ACC does not even try to make a tentative conference schedule until the meeting of athletic directors in December.

We will be able to give you games and dates for the next season's non-conference schedule. That should not change, although it could.

Four years ago I wrote a similar article stating that Sept. 16, 2000 should be national wedding day for Clemson graduates. That day was supposed to be the day Clemson played at Texas A&M.

Well, as you can see, Clemson is playing a home game today against Wake Forest.

The non-conference games change also. Next year Clemson is tentatively scheduled to play on Sept. 1 at home against Central Florida. Tulane is scheduled to come to Clemson on Oct. 6 and the Tigers will go to South Carolina on Nov. 17. Also, Clemson would be eligible for an exempt preseason game. Those games are not determined until the winter before the season begins.

Speaking of non-conference games, there are contracts in place for some attractive games in the coming seasons. In addition to the two games with Texas A&M, Clemson also has multiple game contracts for contests with Georgia and Auburn over the next seven years. Clemson and Auburn have not met on the gridiron since 1971. The first three coaches in Clemson football history were Auburn graduates. Walter Riggs, Clemson's first head coach and later University President, was Clemson's coach in 1896 and 1899 and was an 1893 Auburn graduate. William Williams, Clemson's mentor in 1897, was an 1896 Auburn grad, while John Penton, Clemson's head coach in the fall of 1898, had graduated from Auburn in the previous spring.

Clemson and Georgia have agreed to a two-year renewal of their 100-year football rivalry. The two teams first played in 1897 in Athens and last met in 1995 at Clemson. The 2002 game is tentatively scheduled to be played on Aug. 31 in Athens, and the 2003 game is scheduled for Aug. 30 at Clemson.

Georgia leads the series 39-17-4, but the Bulldogs hold just an 8-6-1 advantage since 1977. Three of Clemson's most thrilling victories in recent memory have taken place against Georgia. In 1981 Clemson defeated a fourth-ranked Georgia team 13-3 in Death Valley on the way to a National Championship. It remains the highest ranked win in Clemson history in Memorial Stadium. The Tigers won consecutive games in 1986 and 1987 on last-second field goals by David Treadwell.

When Precision Weaving, Inc., a division of the Marmon Group of Chicago decided to build a new 80,000 sq. ft. manufacturing plant in South Carolina, they chose Yeargin Construction, Inc. to manage their design and construction.

Yeargin's design/build experience, client-focused win-win attitude, and cost effective approach to the job were deciding factors.

The fast-track partnering effort between all the team members resulted in a first-class facility for Precision Weaving, Inc., built on schedule and within budget. A true win-win relationship for all.

"Building a strong relationship starts with trust. Trust that is earned. Yeargin did what they said, on time, on budget. We are impressed and so are our customers. Thanks!"
