John Leake ........................................... 6,7
Senior Spotlight

"Super Freak" grew up far from the rolling hills surrounding Clemson, in a suburb of Dallas, TX, where few players escape the recruiting arms of the Big XII Texas schools. But Leake took a chance, going far from home to become one of the nation's top backers and the unsung leader of the Tiger defense.

Gregory Walker .................................... 10,11
Senior Spotlight

Locks can be deceiving. The last thing many would think a 6-5, 325-pound offensive tackle would be is a soft-spoken, charismatic singer who believes strongly in his faith. But Gregory Walker, a five-year graduate student at Clemson, has earned the respect of both his fellow classmates and campus officials and has spent much of his free time volunteering to youth in the area.

Rod Gardner ......................................... 13
Former Tiger All-America Receiver

Mention the name Rod Gardner to a Clemson fan and you'll undoubtedly evoke the same response: Gardner, the guy who caught "The Catch" in 1981. Gardner, the guy who beat South Carolina two years ago for the right to play with the big catch every time the Tigers needed it. Now he's doing the same in the NFL.

Clemson Homecoming .................................. 15
History of Homecoming at Clemson

There's something in those hills where the spirit of the Tigers comes alive each fall as students, alumni, faculty, and fans rally to celebrate the Tiger Homecoming. It's not just about the orange and black. It's about the legacy of a great program, a great university, and the story of a community that celebrates the past and looks forward to the future.

This Day in Tiger Football ............... October 11

Clemson vs. Virginia

This date has provided the Tiger faithful with several exciting moments over the years. From games at Fenway Park, the home of Major League Baseball's Boston Red Sox, to thrilling last-second victories, this date has been a part of the program's history.

Jim Phillips ........................................... 115-120
"Voice of the Tigers" Remembered

Read quotes from the eight other ACC "Voices" in memory of the late Jim Phillips, the "Voice of the Tigers" for 38 years. Phillips, who passed away at the age of 63 on September 8, brought the voice of the ACC to broadcasters and fans alike.

2003 Clemson Football
Clemson Successful on Homecoming

Over the years, Clemson has had great success on Homecoming and Tiger fans hope that continues today. The first Homecoming game at Clemson was in 1922, a 21-0 loss to Centre. Clemson was 0-4-1 through its first five Homecoming games, so it is almost surprising that the tradition continued. But, Clemson defeated Auburn in 1927 by a 3-0 score for its first Homecoming victory.

There is no record of a Homecoming game in 1930 or 1938, but the event has been held in conjunction with a football game every year since 1939, even through the war years. Clemson has a 57-19-3 overall record in Homecoming games, a 74.1 winning percentage.

The Tigers are 27-3-2 on Homecoming since the 1971 season. The only three losses have been to Georgia Tech in 1989, Virginia in 1997, and North Carolina in 2001. Clemson defeated Wake Forest 31-23 in a thrilling Homecoming game last year.

Clemson has an 8-1-1 record against Virginia on Homecoming. The only Cavalier win took place in 1997 by a 21-7 score. That was the last time Virginia was the opponent on Clemson’s Homecoming.

Virginia enters this game with a #24 ranking in the USA Today poll and a #25 ranking by AP. This is the first time since 1996 and just the third time since 1971 that a ranked team has been Clemson’s opponent on Homecoming. Clemson defeated Georgia Tech 26-25 in 1996 when the Yellow Jackets were ranked #22 entering the game. In 1998, Clemson defeated a 5-0 and #22-ranked Duke team on Homecoming 49-17. Clemson also defeated a 15th-ranked Virginia Tech team 21-6 on Homecoming in 1956. Overall, the Tigers are 3-3 against ranked opponents on a Clemson Homecoming.

Clemson-Virginia Series

Clemson holds a commanding 34-7-1 lead in the series with Virginia, but the Cavaliers hold a 7-5-1 advantage since 1990, including a 22-17 victory at Charlottesville last year and a 26-24 win at Clemson in 2001. Clemson won the first 29 games of the series before Virginia cracked the win column with a 26-7 victory in Charlottesville in 1990. Ironically, Clemson's first win in the history of the series (in 1965) was also by a 20-7 score.

Clemson's 29-game winning streak between 1955-90 is tied for the fourth-longest winning streak in NCAA history for one team over another. The record is 39 in a row held by Notre Dame over Navy, a streak that is still active heading into the meeting between the two schools in South Bend this year on November 8.

Virginia has gained its most success against Clemson when the game has been in September, an example of the Cavaliers' traditional good start to a season. Virginia has celebrated five of its seven wins over the Tigers in the month of September, including its last trip to Death Valley in 2001, a game it won with just one second left. Virginia is 5-1 against Clemson in the month of September since 1990, but just 2-4-1 in October and November since that year.

Overall, Clemson is 24-2-1 against Virginia in October and November all-time, but just 10-5 against the Cavaliers in September. Clemson is 18-3-1 against Virginia in Death Valley and 15-4 in Charlottesville. Clemson won in Richmond in 1971 by a score of 32-15, the only neutral-site game in the history of the series.

The only tie in the series took place in 1991, a 20-20 score at Clemson that was also played on Homecoming. The Tigers had 511 yards of total offense in that game and did not win, the only game in Clemson history in which Clemson piled up at least 500 yards yet did not win the game.

Clemson is 2-2 against Virginia under Tommy Bowden. Bowden picked up his first win as a Clemson head coach in 1999 against George Welsh and the Cavaliers by a score of 33-14 in a game at Clemson. Clemson led that game 33-0 just 35 minutes into the game. In 2000, Woodrow Danzlizer led the Tigers to victory with a dazzling performance. Danzlizer rushed for 220 yards and passed for 154 in leading Clemson to a 31-10 victory.

The two teams have been ACC rivals since that first meeting in 1955, but the two teams have not played every year since the league was formed in 1953. The two teams did not play in 1961, 1962, 1967, 1968, 1975, and 1976.

Ranked Virginia Team Comes to Death Valley

A #24-ranked (USA Today) Virginia team on a three-game winning streak will come into Clemson Memorial Stadium today for a contest that will kick off at high noon and will be televised by the Jefferson Pilot television network.

Clemson hopes history repeats itself on Saturday. Each of the last two meetings between Clemson and Virginia at Death Valley have featured an unranked team upsetting a top-25 team. In 1999, Tommy Bowden's first year at Clemson, the Tigers upset a 19th-ranked Virginia team coached by George Welsh by a 33-14 score. That was Bowden's first win as Clemson's head coach. Two years later, Clemson was ranked #19 in the nation, but was upset by the Cavaliers 26-24 on a touchdown pass with just one second remaining in the game.

Virginia has won four of five games this year, with the only loss coming in the state of South Carolina to the University of South Carolina on September 6 in Williams-Brice Stadium by a 31-7 score. Virginia was without the services of starting quarterback and reigning ACC Player-of-the-Year Matt Schaub, who missed the game with a shoulder injury. Marques Hagans, the backup quarterback, also did not play in that game.

Schaub has had outstanding statistics over his career and this season. In 2003, he has completed 54-73 passes for 694 yards and four scores. He has completed 74 percent of his passes and has an efficiency rating of 163.7. He would be among the national leaders in those categories, but has not played enough games (must play in 75 percent of your team's games) to be ranked in the NCAA stats.

It will not be long before he returns to the rankings.

Another in a long line of great quarterbacks from the state of Pennsylvania (Dan Marino, Joe Montana, Johnny Unitas, etc.), Schaub finished the 2002 season sixth in the nation in passing, including first in the ACC. He led the ACC in completions, touchdown passes, and completion percentage in addition to his first-place ranking in efficiency. He completed 19-22 passes for 283 yards in a 38-13 win over North Carolina last week.

What is especially troubling to Clemson's coaching staff about Virginia is the presence of an outstanding running attack. In addition to completing passes at a 65-percent rate, the Cavaliers lead the league in rushing with 184 yards per game. Wali Lundy leads the ACC and ranks 21st in the nation in rushing with a 102.4 average. He has only six catches this year, but is a gifted receiver as shown by his 56 catches last year. He had four touchdowns, 127 yards rushing, and 76 yards receiving in Virginia's win over West Virginia in the Continental Tire Bowl to conclude 2002, his freshman season.

According to the NCAA statistics, Virginia has a bend but don't break philosophy on defense. The Cavaliers allow 352 yards of total offense per game, just 55th in the nation, but rank 21st in the nation in scoring defense, allowing just 16.8 points per game. We could have a close, low-scoring game if the two teams play up to their capabilities defensively. Clemson allows just 17 points per game.

Virginia's defense is led by Jermaine Hardy, the team's top tackler from a linebacker position. Darryl Blackstock, a sophomore from Newport News, VA, was a thorn in Clemson's side last year when he had a career-high 11 tackles. He led the nation's freshmen in sacks last year with 10. The sack total was an ACC record for a freshman.

Alondo Curry leads the ACC in interceptions with three in just five games and has returned those for 62 yards and one score. The 5’8” senior from Hampton, VA is one of the captains of the Virginia team along with Schaub. The Honorable Mention All-ACC comeback had three sacks to go with his 59 tackles a year ago.

Clemson Has Come Back Against Virginia

Clemson has come back from a deficit of 13 points or more to win seven times in its history and four of the victories have come against Virginia. Two of those wins have taken place in Charlottesville and two in Clemson.

Clemson's greatest comeback in history took place at Virginia in 1992 when it overcame a 28-0 deficit with 32 minutes left to win 29-28. Louis
Today's Game
Clemson vs. Virginia

Solomon, now a high school coach in New Jersey, led that comeback with an option offense. His 64-yard run just before halftime gave Clemson some momentum going into the lockerroom at halftime. Nelson Welch bootied a 32-yard field goal with 55 seconds left to provide the winning margin. Virginia was undefeated and ranked #10 in the nation heading into that game. That remains the greatest comeback in ACC history involving two conference teams.

Clemson's greatest comeback in Death Valley also took place against Virginia. Clemson trailed Virginia by 17 points at home in 1966, but came back to win 40-35. That was the first game that Howard's Rock was present in Death Valley. Coincidence?

Clemson also overcame a 14-point deficit to Virginia in 1988 to win 27-24 in Charlottesville. Bill Smith, now on the Clemson Board of Trustees, returned a blocked punt for six to provide a key play in the comeback. Obed Arik from booted a 52-yard field goal with six seconds left to win the game.

Clemson also overcame a 13-point deficit in 1973 to win 32-27.

Clemson Looks for 200th ACC Win

Clemson will strive to become the first ACC school to win 200 conference games when the Tigers meet Virginia in Death Valley today. Clemson was a charter member of the ACC in 1953 and is now in its 51st season in the conference.

Clemson has a record of 199-108-6 (.645) in conference play for its 51 seasons. Clemson's 39-3 win over Georgia Tech on September 20 was the program's 199th win. Clemson ranks first among league teams in conference victories. North Carolina is second with 177, while Maryland is third with 176. N.C. State holds the fourth position with 171. Clemson has a winning record against every other ACC team since the league began with the exception of Florida State.

Clemson also leads the ACC in conference championships (13). Florida State is second (10), followed by Maryland (9). Every current league member has won the league title at least once.

Bowden Won 50th Game at Georgia Tech

Clemson Head Coach Tommy Bowden won his 50th career game when the Tigers defeated Georgia Tech in Atlanta on September 20. He enters the Virginia game with a 50-26 overall record, a .658 winning percentage. Given a minimum of five years as a head coach, Bowden is currently ninth among winningest active coaches in Division I.

Bowden is in his seventh season as a head coach. He had an 18-4 record in two seasons at Tulane (1997-98), including a perfect 11-0 season in 1999. He is in his fifth year at Clemson and has a 32-22 record. Prior to becoming a head coach, Bowden was an assistant coach on a part-time or full-time basis for 19 years (1978-96) at Florida State, Auburn, Duke, Alabama, and Kentucky.

Now in his 26th year in college coaching, he has been to 12 bowl games, been a part of 10 top-25 seasons, five of which have been top-10 teams. Teams he has coached have been to a bowl game each of the last five seasons and seven of the last eight.

Bowden is now just 287 wins behind his father, Bobby, who has a record of 337-96-4 in his 38 years as a head coach. Florida State plays Miami (FL) today.

Clemson Improved on Defense

Clemson continued to show improvement on defense in the game at Maryland. The Tigers allowed the Terrapins just 134 yards rushing and 338 yards total, well below their averages entering the game and under Ralph Friedgen. In the three years Friedgen has been the head coach at Maryland, the Terrapins have averaged 34 points and 447 yards per game.

Clemson's defense has made a steady improvement since John Lovett became the defensive coordinator at the beginning of the 2002 season. The Tigers allowed 365 yards and 28 points per game in 2001, then Lovett improved those numbers to 354.5 yards per game and 27 points per game in 2002. This year the numbers have dropped again to 316 yards per game and 17.0 points per game.

Clemson is now approaching the top 25 in the nation in various statistical categories. According to this week's NCAA stats, the Tigers are 28th in the nation in total defense, 23rd in scoring defense, and 27th in pass defense. On the conference level, Clemson is third in the ACC in total defense, third in pass defense, and fourth in scoring defense.

The Tigers made a slow start defensively against Maryland, as the Terrapins scored on each of their first two drives. But, Clemson held Maryland to just one score over its final 11 possessions and that came on a fake play when a Maryland wide receiver came back into the field of play after running out of bounds along the Tiger sideline. Maryland tailbacks Josh Allen and Bruce Perry combined for 33 rushes for 98 yards, just 2.9 yards per carry.

The following is a chart that shows how Clemson has improved in many areas this year as compared to 2002 and 2001, the year before Lovett became Clemson's defensive coordinator.

Hamilton Records Second-Best Yardage Game

Junior wide receiver Derrick Hamilton had seven receptions for 175 yards and a touchdown at Maryland on October 4. That was the second-greatest reception yardage game in Tiger history. The only performance that was better was a 182-yard game by Rod Gardner at North Carolina in 2000.

Hamilton's total was boosted by a 70-yard touchdown catch and run from Charlie Whitehurst in the second quarter. Hamilton caught the ball about 20 yards up field near the Maryland sideline, ran to the middle of the field, then made his way back to the sideline before diving the final five yards to the endzone. It was the longest reception of Hamilton's career.

The all-around performer now has a 100-yard kickoff return (also at Maryland in 2001), a 79-yard punt return (against Georgia Tech in 2002), a 77-yard run (against Georgia Tech in 2002), and the 70-yard pass reception. They have all contributed to Hamilton's current ranking as the #3 all-purpose runner in Clemson history. With his 207-yard game at Maryland, Hamilton now has 3,804 all-purpose yards in his career. It was his fifth game of at least 200 yards in his Clemson career. His career high is 256 yards against Georgia Tech in 2002.

Hamilton is just five games into his junior season, so he is on his way to putting up some all-purpose numbers that will stand for a few years. He entered this season in sixth place on the list, but is now third with his 3,804 figure. He needs just 588 yards to break Travis Zachery's Tiger record of 4,391, set between 1998-01. He needs just 196 yards to become the third Tiger to reach 4,000 career all-purpose yards.

Hamilton is the first Tiger receiver in history to have at least 100 catches through the end of his sophomore season. His performance at Maryland now gives him 131 catches for 1,724 yards. He is now sixth in total receptions and seventh in reception yardage in Clemson history.

Every Clemson football player has a game program article written on them sometime during their last season as a Tiger. Most of the articles tell the story of how that particular player started playing football as a child in the neighborhood, played all through high school, probably played some other sports, probably broke a bone or something, and ultimately made it to the Division I ranks of Clemson University, overcoming certain adversity along the way.

This article is different.

Yes, John Leake did start playing football as a child in the neighborhood. He did play football throughout high school. He did play other sports. He did break a bone. Leake has also overcome hardships on his way to becoming one of the best linebackers Clemson has ever seen (witness his #9 ranking in tackles in Tiger history even though he never played a snap on defense as a freshman).

Despite the fact that Leake fits the mold of what should be the usual game program story, we are doing this one a little differently. The Plano, TX native has had a plethora of newspaper articles and television features devoted to him and his “Super Freak” nature on the field. Given that, we thought we would shed some light on the personal side of Leake. So, we are still going to give a brief version of the typical story, but that will be followed by the focus of this article - a question-and-answer session with the only Texan active on Clemson’s football team.

Leake was all everything at Plano East High School outside of Dallas. He had 140 tackles and 10 sacks his senior year. He also had 900 yards rushing and 11 touchdowns as a running back as a senior. He was a unanimous all-district selection on offense and defense. He helped Plano East to an 11-3 record in 1999 and the Final Four of the state AAAAA playoffs. His season included a 160-yard rushing performance against Plano High and a 17-tackle performance against North Mesquite High. He was a two-year starter at linebacker, recording 85 tackles on the 1998 team that went 9-3.

Leake also played basketball, averaging seven points and 10 rebounds on his varsity team. He competed in the triple jump, long jump, high jump, and sprints for the track team. Leake played on the baseball team as a high school junior. What has this guy not done? Well, probably not synchronized swimming, but we’ll get to that.

The last signee in his class, Leake was the first Clemson signee from Texas dating to Darrell Stephens in 1991.

Leake almost was not a Clemson signee at all. Clemson’s coaching staff had not heard of him until Todd Graham got involved in February of 2000. Graham, the head coach at rival Allen High School, told Leake that he could contact some college for him. One of Graham’s phone calls was to friend and former Tiger offensive coordinator Rich Rodriguez, now the head coach at West Virginia.

The response from the Clemson coaching staff was simple: put together a highlight tape with 20 offensive and 20 defensive plays and send it to Clemson. Oklahoma’s Bob Stoops had also gotten wind of Leake and began pursuing the Plano East athlete. The Leakers put together the tape for Clemson, made visits to both Clemson and Oklahoma, and ultimately accepted the Tigers’ offer to play Division I college football.

Leake’s freshman year saw him play on special teams only and he earned a letter as a first-year freshman. He was the only defensive player to earn a letter as a true freshman that season. He was fifth on the team in special teams tackles (9), a number that ranked him second among freshmen. Leake also won the 2001 Hustle Award among defensive players in a vote by the Clemson coaches.

Leake’s sophomore campaign was significantly more productive. He ranked 11th in the ACC in tackles per game (11.0). He was second on the team in tackles (134), including the Humanitarian Bowl game when he led the Tigers with 13 tackles.

Last season saw Leake starting every game and garner a team-best 169 tackles. His 13.0 average ranked fourth in the nation. Leake was Clemson’s leading tackler and the second-leading tackler in the ACC, posting double figures in tackles in 11 of the 13 games. He had a career-high 21 tackles against Maryland in just 66 plays. That was only the 15th game in Clemson history in which a player recorded 20 tackles or more and just the ninth time in a conference game. Thanks to his production the past two seasons, he was ranked among the top-50 tacklers in the nation and was listed as the #23 linebacker in the nation by Sporting News in its 2003 preseason magazine.
It goes without saying that Leake's production on the defensive side of the ball has been worthy of praise. Considering the fact that he almost never knew that Clemson University existed, seeing Leake in a Clemson jersey is a pleasant surprise.

OK, so now that we have covered the perludatory tasks associated with these articles, it is time to move on to some different information. The following is a transcript of a question-and-answer session with Leake. All anyone knows of Leake is that he is a good linebacker from Texas whose name seems to be called out a lot over the public address system at football games. So now we are going to introduce you to the more personal side of John Leake.

What is your nickname? "Freak" or "Super Freak".

Why do people call you that? "At my high school, people called my older brother (Mike Leake, Jr.) that. When I came around, they either called me the same thing, or they added on the 'Super.' I don't really know why."

What, to you, is the best thing about Clemson? "The best thing about Clemson would have to be the people. Not that people aren't nice in Texas, but it's hard to match the personalities and all of the people here."

What is your favorite food? "I love crab legs and fried calamari. Those are my favorites."

What is the best advice your mother ever gave you? "My mother has always taught me to be thankful for what I have. I have been blessed with so much in my life and she has always kept me grounded in that way. She reminds me that everything could be taken away from me at any time. Anytime we talk about success or accomplishments or anything like that, Mom always makes sure that I'm thankful."

What do you do when you want to get away from sports? "I like to just relax. I'm a down-to-earth guy who enjoys relaxing. I'm going to movies or hang out with friends some, stuff like that. But mostly, I just like to hang out and relax."

What is your dream vacation? "I would have to say that my dream vacation is probably a trip to the Bahamas or some island like that. I would take my family and some friends, and we'd hang out on some island.

What, thus far, has been your favorite moment at Clemson? "Well, I know this is sort of supposed to be not about football, but I can't help but say that my favorite moment at Clemson is more than just a moment, it's what I do. I love playing football. I love the fact that I have the opportunity to get out there and play major college football. I'm so fortunate to have the chance to play, and that's something I cherish every day. Not many people get this chance, and that goes back to what my mom always told me about being thankful. I'm so thankful that I've been given this opportunity. But playing football - that's got to be my favorite moment or moments."

What advice do you have for young people? "To young people I would say always give 110%. You can always accomplish anything if you give it 110% and you put your mind to it. I didn't get here by giving 70% or 80%; I got here by giving my all, and that's what you have to do. I'm not the biggest guy in the world, so I had to work extra hard to be successful on the football field. That just goes to show that anybody can accomplish anything."

What is your opinion on President Bush? "I think President Bush is a great president. I think he represents our country well, and I'm glad he's in office."

What do you think about the war in Iraq? "I was going to go with whatever President Bush decided. He was voted to represent our country and to make decisions like that, and so I'm in agreement with what he does. I know I'd go to war for him."

What is your opinion on the Dixie Chicks' statement concerning the President and being from Texas? "Well, everyone has their own opinion, but I feel proud to be a Texan. I love it there, I'm glad I was raised there, and I'm proud to say that that's where I'm from."

What is one thing you could not live without? "I couldn't live without God. Without Him, I would be nothing."

Here's the proverbial deserted island question - if you had to be on a deserted island for a month and could only take three things with you, what would they be? "That's a tough one. First, I would probably take a girl, because I would need someone to talk to, and I'd rather be a girl than a guy, obviously. Second, I would probably take something to drink and some food, if those two things together count as one. Third, I would take a video recorder, because if I had a month on an island away from everything, I would want something to remember it by, because I'd probably never believe it."

What is your favorite CD that you own? "Metallica."

What has been your favorite class at Clemson? "Speech 150 has been, without a doubt, my favorite class at Clemson. That's probably because the professor was Eddie Smith. He's a cool professor because he communicates well with the students. We learned and had fun at the same time. Everybody should take Speech 150 from Eddie Smith."

What do you want to do after your football career is over? "I want to own my own business. I like the stock market and that sort of thing, so I would be interested in being a stockbroker. I'd also like to buy a bunch of acres of land, and have all my family and friends live in the same neighborhood."

If you could play another sport every day, what would it be? "Golf. I love to play golf. I used to shoot in the mid-80s, but I don't really have all that much time now, so I'm not as good anymore. Charlie (Whitehurst) and I play some. He's pretty good. We beat him sometimes, and other times I have to give him strokes."

What is your favorite fast-food restaurant? "Chick-fil-A. I could eat Chick-fil-A every day."

Have you ever broken a bone? "Yeah, I broke my fibula and tibia in my right leg. It was the last game of my sophomore year. It was in the fourth quarter and I was returning a punt. My foot got caught when I was tackled. It was the worst pain I've ever felt."

Have you ever been interested in synchronized swimming? "No."

TOP 10 TAILGATING ESSENTIALS

1. Grill. Game day just isn't game day without the mouth-watering smell of a big ol' pile of meat on the grill.

2. Gold Star Steak. Game day calls for thick, juicy steaks. And if you want to be sure you're buying the best, buy Gold Star steaks - the choice of true meat lovers everywhere.

3. Fried Chicken. Our fried chicken is crispy on the outside, tender and juicy on the inside. You'll feel like a real turkey if you forget the chicken!

4. Deli Trays. Stop by the deli and pick up a delicious tray of ham, turkey, roast beef and assorted cheeses. It'll make you look like you went to a lot of effort, even if you really didn't.

5. Beer. We have a great selection of all your favorite beers. Just remember to be responsible - choose a designated driver the day BEFORE.

6. Extra Ice. If your friends have to drink warm beverages because you forgot the ice, well, that's a tough one to live down.

7. Paper Products. To keep things neat and tidy, make sure you have plenty of paper towels, paper plates and toilet paper.

8. Trash Bags. Littering is unlawful, unsanitary and unsportsmanlike. Keep your tailgating area clean, so everyone can enjoy it.

9. Sun Block. Make sure you have plenty of protection so you don't look like a lobster by half time!

10. Antacid. No matter who's winning, it's hard to enjoy the game when you feel like you've been drinking lighter fluid.
by Christine Long

"Why should I feel discouraged and why should the shadows come... when Jesus is my portion, my constant friend is He?" asks the first verse from the Christian hymn His Eye is on the Sparrow. "His eye is on the sparrow and I know He watches me."

Charles H. Gabriel's lyrics describe Clemson's starting offensive tackle Gregory Walker's views on life to perfection.

The graduate student has performed the song on various occasions during his Clemson career. Gregory (he prefers Gregory instead of Greg) first sang in a Student-Athlete Talent Show early in his Tiger career. He also entertained the crowd when former Minnesota Vikings All-Pro and NFL MVP (1971) Alan Page visited Clemson's campus during Black Culture week in January of 2001. Most recently, Walker displayed his talents on the stage of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority's 2003 Big Man on Campus pageant, a competition between male representatives of university organizations. The choice song has special meaning to Walker.

"The song is close to my heart," said Walker. "It's an easy song for people to understand and it has a great point. If God can take care of a bird, even like a sparrow, then I know He's going to take care of me."

Singing and Walker's relationship with God have evolved simultaneously and have been evident since his childhood. He began singing at his church, Grace Cathedral, in Sumter, SC when he was in elementary school. With his mother's assistance, Walker formed a singing group with his brother and some friends in middle school called Anointed Voices With Grace. Although the boys were talented, they were also active in sports and thus were too busy to continue with the group once they started high school athletics.

Nonetheless, Walker's artistic abilities are not limited to just singing. He also writes poetry, composing a vast collection over the years. He hopes to put the verses to music one day. Walker's musical gifts also include playing the trombone. He also participated in Sumter High School's marching band during his freshman year, but he only marched that first year in order to give his injuries time to heal. During the season, Walker gained a new appreciation for the game of football.

"The team made the state championships that year and lost. That's when I realized I couldn't stay away from football. I love it too much."

The summer before his freshman year was a big turning point in Walker's life, capped off by the success of his high school team that year.

Over the summer break, he lost control twice within a short period of time. He punched a balance beam after his team lost a basketball game at the local YMCA and broke his hand. He broke his ankle two weeks later while chasing his cousin at a church camp. "At that point, my temper had just reached an all-time high," he confessed.

However, Walker saw that something was missing in his life and, with the help of God, learned his lesson.

"That's really when I decided that my life needed to change, and I accepted God into my life. My temper was gone immediately. Certain things you ask the Lord to get rid of at that time, He'll fix and make provisions for you."

Walker admits that his relationship with God, still an ongoing process, is the most important thing in his life. Every day he tries to live his life by faith and through Christ. His acceptance of God did not facilitate instantaneous changes - he is the first to declare imperfection - but throughout the years, his belief has grown and made him a better person.

The support of Walker's family has helped him in this revelation. He shares a very close, unique bond with his sister Selena, brother Thadius, and their mother. The death of their father forced the family to come together.

Gregory Walker, Sr. drowned in a fishing accident on February 15, 1995. Walker regrets that he was too young to remember much about his dad. He could not fully acknowledge and understand his father's death until a visit to the grave when he was 12 years-old. He had always hoped for a fairy-tale ending, that his father would one day walk back into his life. Once the reality hit, Walker turned to his family to ease his disappointment.

"Everybody on my dad's side and on my mom's side would just tell me how good of a man he had been. It gave me comfort to know that my father was such a good man and that his family was raising me to be like him, and to an extent, a better man."

Lawrence Walker, Gregory's grandfather, played a big part in his youth and influenced the Clemson student-athlete's life greatly. His death last season hit Walker hard. The elder had wanted nothing but success for his grandson. After the funeral, Walker's uncle, Cleitus Walker, told him that he would have to grow up and into an even better man. To cope with the death, Walker focused on the good things and turned his loss into strength.

Most people would read the statistics and see that an African-American male growing up in a single-mother household has very few chances of success. The Walker children were inspired to defy those stereotypes. Through the support of their family and the church, the three siblings believed in themselves and beat the odds.

"We had such a great Christian upbringing and so much love in our house that I don't see how, with that support, you can't be successful in life."

Gregory Walker, a native of Sumter, SC and a starter at offensive tackle, earned his undergraduate degree in health science in May.

Walker has carried the Christian doctrine of service throughout his life. He has dedicated much of his free time at Clemson to serving others in the community, especially working with children. He loves helping them grow as people. Once his playing days are over, Walker hopes to put his undergraduate degree in health science, which he earned in May of 2002, to use in child health care.

"I just want to work with children. I'd even be a baby-sitter. Kids are so much fun and you can be yourself around them."

Walker's efforts have not gone unnoticed. The ACC named him one of the Top Six Award winners from Clemson for 2003. The conference honors each member school's top six student-athletes in terms of hours dedicated to community service. Clemson also nominated him for the American Football Coaches Association Goodworks, which recognizes starting players who are actively involved and committed to working with community service activities.

Clemson also recently nominated Walker for the Jefferson Pilot Sports Community Service Award. During each of their 2003 ACC football telecasts, the television network honors players who have performed a significant amount of community service. Walker will be the Clemson player featured in the broadcasts.

As a sophomore, Walker was Clemson's representative at the NCAA Foundation Leadership Conference in May of 2001. He was one of 300 student-athletes to be selected from 1,084 nominations. The convention teaches participants various skills in communication, decision-making, and problem solving, as well as helping the athletes to become better leaders on their campuses and in their communities.

Last year, Walker attended a National Conference held at Clemson called "The Best Practices in Black Student Achievement." The seminar educated administrators and admissions staff on how to best assist black students on their campus. He worked with many top campus professionals from around the country and offered a student's opinion on the various issues.

Walker was also one of only 10 student-athletes to participate in a Minority Student Leaders/Stu- dent-Athletes meeting for the university. They discussed existing problems between minority student-athletes and minority students, and ways to bridge the gap.

A proven leader off the field, Walker also contributes heavily on the field. He is one of only six active Tigers entering this season who have played in three bowl games. He started at offensive guard last season as a junior and is a starter at offensive tackle this year.

Walker's football career began when he was around four or five years old, after his mother enrolled him in "Pee Wee" leagues.

"He and his brother were tearing up the house, taking things apart that I couldn't put back together," she said. "They used to bring frogs into the house and hide them. I had to find something constructive for them to do, to run off all that energy. As soon as he was old enough, I sent him out there."

She also said that Walker enjoyed the game more as he grew older, but at first, he just liked the uniform, not necessarily playing.

At Sumter High School, Walker earned all-area and all-region honors, and was a Southeastern Recruiting Alliance Honorable Mention All-American his senior year. He helped the team to an 11-3 record and to the state semifinals that same year, while paving the way for a 2,000-yard rusher.

Walker thanks his junior varsity coach (James Robinson) for recruiting him back to football for his sophomore year. "Coach Rob" went out of his way to acquire a copy of Walker's birth certificate from Kansas, where he was born, and as the offensive line coach prepared Walker for the varsity level.

"He was definitely someone I looked up to as far from a coaching standpoint. He would rather you play football or some sport instead of being out on the street, no matter your talent level."

As a Tiger, the 6'5", 325 pounder has experienced similar success. He had a season-high 11 knockdown blocks against both Duke and South Carolina in 2002. In seven of the 12 games last season, he had at least eight knockdown blocks, including double-figures in the Georgia Tech, Ball State, and Florida State games.

Walker was second on the team in total knockdown blocks (93).

He recovered a fumble in Clemson's 42-12 win over North Carolina in Chapel Hill last year. His 89-percent average grade in overall performance over the season, given by the coaches, was the best among Tiger starters, and his 887 snaps played for the year were second only to Gary Byrd's 901 on the entire team.

This season, Walker has made the move to tackle, showing his versatility, something NFL scouts like. With only 53 players on an NFL roster, it is important to be versatile in the offensive line. Walker again leads the Tigers in knockdown blocks through five games.

Walker described the challenge involved in football as his favorite part of the game. The test is learning a new opponent every week, what he does differently, and how he is going to do it. He thrives on those intricacies of the game and the preparation for them. He believes training is the key to victory.

"It's not just the will that's going to win the game, it's the preparation and the determination. Sometimes preparation will beat out the talent. It's the x-factor. No matter what you're capable of doing, if you didn't prepare for that moment and particular game, the other guy is going to beat you."

Offensive Line Coach Ron West reiterated Walker's views and said that his star tackle backs up his statement on the practice field. "He is a very conscientious player and studies a lot of film. He has played several positions over the years and has worked hard to learn each one."

"Football is not the only organization Walker is involved with at Clemson. He joined the Omega Psi Phi fraternity during the spring of 2001. The fraternity's motto, "friendship is essential to the soul," and main statutes of manhood, scholarship, perseverance, and uplift were principles Walker followed even before his initiation. Because of these values, he knew his members would support and further his faith in Christ.

"The pledging experience allowed me to see what type of man I am. It let me see two possible paths, and I definitely chose the one less traveled. After starting on the common trail, I had to turn back and seek God's face. I came back to help somebody and to do something uplifting."

The trail Walker has paved for himself will be a difficult one for others to follow. With his numerous accomplishments on and off the field, the graduate from Sumter, SC has plenty to sing about.

"I sing because I'm happy. I sing because I'm free. His eye is on the sparrow and I know He watches me."

Mention the name Rod Gardner to a Clemson fan and you'll undoubtedly evoke the same response. Gardner, the guy who caught "The Catch II," the guy who burned South Carolina two years in a row, the guy who came up with the big catch every time the Tigers needed it. But the former Tiger is trying to make a name for himself outside of Clemson as a big-time receiver in the NFL.

"Right now, I'm still in the growing phase," said the third-year receiver for the Redskins. "I'm trying to make progress every year. I had a good season last year, but I'm trying to get better and better, and become one of the premier receivers in the league."

After four weeks of the NFL season, Gardner's growth continues to accelerate. He had collected 19 catches for 194 yards and two touchdowns while ranking eighth in the NFC in receptions per game. But his most valued statistic is 0-1, the team's record.

"I haven't been a part of a team that's been to the playoffs," he said. "The last two years we've hovered around the 500 mark, but my goal is to do whatever it takes to help the team win and get into the playoffs."

One could hardly blame Gardner for the team's record the last two years. After a dazzling Clemson career in which he led the school with single-season records for catches and receiving yardage, and the career record for total receptions, Gardner was the 15th pick of the 2001 NFL Draft by Washington. His transition to the professional ranks from the collegiate level was a bit eye-opening, and Gardner estimates the pro game is three times faster than college. Each NFL team has a roster full of good players instead of just two or three, which added to the learning curve.

"It was a struggle at first because you really have to learn how to study film and get in the game," he stated. "In college, you might watch tape a little bit, but here, you've got to get down to the details. You've got to learn what to do and how to do it in case the defense is playing you a certain way. It's more than just going out there and playing."

Washington began 2001 with an 0-5 record, but a rookie turned in one of the NFL's best performances of the season to get the Redskins their first win. Against the Carolina Panthers, Gardner had six receptions for 208 yards, including a Redskins-season long 85-yard touchdown reception to tie the game and a 47-yard catch in overtime to set up the game-winning field goal. The game was the NFL's best single-game performance by any receiver in 2001 and earned him NFC Offensive Player of the Week honors for Week 6.

"That was a big game for me, and we really needed it because we were 0-5 at the time. They called my number and all I had to do was make some plays. I got into one of those zones where I thought I couldn't be stopped. The quarterback at the time (Tony Banks) had no problems throwing the ball up and letting me make a play. That's one thing I liked about him, that he would take a chance. That game let me know I can make it in the NFL."

Gardner started all 16 games as a rookie and then improved for his sophomore campaign. He led the team with 71 catches for 1,006 yards and eight touchdowns with 16.1 yards per catch in 2002. He was the first Redskin to gain 1,000 yards receiving in a single season since 1999. He ended the season ranked 13th in receiving in the NFC and also finished third on the team in scoring with 48 points.

The offense installed by new Coach Steve Spurrier for 2002 seemed to be a match for Gardner, but the two did have a rough moment early in the season. Spurrier benched Gardner for the start of a game in an effort to challenge his best wide receiver and jump-start the offense.

"We had a bad game and he felt I wasn't playing up to my potential," said Gardner. "We had it out over one little play and I guess he had to make a statement to motivate me. Ever since then we've been cool and haven't had any problems."

Gardner has since regained Spurrier's trust, so much so that the former Rainies High School (Jacksonville, FL) quarterback is listed as the third-string quarterback for Washington. Although he has no dreams of unseating starter Patrick Ramsey any time soon, Gardner would be excited to get some snaps as an NFL quarterback.

"Coach has faith in me. They see me at practice throwing the ball, so they know I have the arm strength to get it done. I hope it would never get to that point, but if it happens, I have to go out there and do it. And I got it... I still have a little bit in me."

Gardner's success on the field has allowed him to help others off of it. He is very active in the D.C. community and is currently the spokesman for the Leadership Council's Redskins Read program. He donates money and promotes literacy by reading to kids. Last year, he established the Frederick Gardner Foundation to help underprivileged kids in single-parent homes. It is a subject very dear to the Jacksonville, FL native.

"I grew up in a single parent home with just mom, and she never had any time because she was always working to support me," said Gardner. "We raise money to help parents and set up programs in the school system. If it wasn't for the Lord, I wouldn't be here in this position, so I always love to give back."

With all his activities, Gardner still keeps close tabs on the Tigers. He chats often with Kevin Youngblood (who also went to Rainies High School in Jacksonville) among other Tigers and is "always talking to them, making sure they're on top of their game, because that's what you have to do to make it to this level." The wideout has not had a problem with Clemson's recent air-attack philosophy.

"I know Coach Bowden wanted to run the ball more, but you still gotta throw it," he said. "You still gotta give those boys a chance to go out and make plays that can help you win the game."

And if there's something Gardner knows about, it's making plays.

Louis Garmentid is an Assistant Sports Information Director in his second year in that position at Clemson. He previously worked as a graduate assistant at Clemson for two years.

Gardner is a starting receiver in Steve Spurrier's potent Redskin offense and is coming off a 1,000-yard year in 2002. He also holds the Clemson record for career receptions (166).

"There's something in these hills that brings together and binds together and holds together men and women of all persuasions, of all heights, sizes, weights, and cultural backgrounds - something that cuts across every difference, spans every gap, penetrates every wall - something that makes a man or a woman stand taller, feel better, and say with high pride to all within ear-shot, 'I went to Clemson.'

"There's something in these hills and I suspect that's what it is - the ability of an institution through the unending dedication and greatness of its people - its administration, its faculty, its staff, its students, and its alumni - to impart to all it touches a respect, admiration, an affection that stands firm in disguising times when things around it give impressions of coming unglued.

"Yes, there's something in these hills where the Blue Ridge yawns it greatness."

Joe Sherman, Class of 1934

There's something in these hills where the spirit of the Tigers comes alive each fall as students, alumni, faculty, and families unite in celebration of Homecoming.

Clemson Homecoming was not always about the game. In 1914, Tiger brothers returned to Clemson for the first Homecoming, which resembled more of a reunion. That first Homecoming weekend was not held on a football weekend.

But, eight years later, on September 30, 1922, Clemson played in its first Homecoming football game against Centre. Although the Tigers lost that first game 21-0, the idea caught fire. There have been 73 Homecoming football games overall since that first one in 1922 and the celebration usually carries over to the field. Clemson has a record of 53-17-3 on Homecoming games, including victories in all but four games since 1971.

In 1956, Joe Sherman, the retired Director of the Clemson News and Director of Alumni Relations, returned to Clemson from the University of Florida. In Gainesville, he had witnessed a large student talent show the night before Homecoming called "Gator Growl." This inspired a new idea that has become a long-standing tradition at Clemson... Tigerama. When Sherman came back he convinced the Clemson alumni council to fund a show like it for the next year. Blue Key became responsible for sponsoring and coordinating the show, and things started rolling from there.

The inaugural performance of Tigerama took place on November 8, 1957. The crowd of that evening was braved by about 10,000 fans, who were treated to a show that included a fire-eater, a juggler specialist, and majorettes. Later during the evening, a student with the last name Austin was chosen as the first Miss Tigerama.

Stan Kenton and his Modern Jazz Orchestra provided musical entertainment for the event. It also included competitive skits by student organizations, student specialty acts, and official student groups.

And of course, Tigerama would not be complete without a fireworks display. The fireworks carried the show during the first three years and were a real crowd pleaser despite the expense.

Today, Tigerama, once called the world's largest pep rally, is one of the few true and traditional Homecoming pageants still in existence. While other college pep rallies have been swallowed up by the sands of time, the Clemson tradition marches forward. As Clemson graduate Jane Robelot once told the Greenville News, "It's beauty queens and skits and fireworks and rah-rah - things that Clemson is unapologetic for."

As Tigerama had evolved through the years, there are still some staples the audience can count on. The hit of the first Tigerama, the fireworks, has continued to keep the crowds coming year after year.

Student skits, where anything is fair game when it comes to this display of talent, particularly if you are the football coach at Clemson or the opposition, have remained as well. This year's Tigerama was celebrated last night with the Tiger Band, Rally Cats, Cheerleaders, Tigerama, Preshing Riffles, and the crowning of Miss Homecoming, all to the theme of "Where the Tigers Play."

Another indicator that Homecoming has arrived, Bowman Field is suddenly crowded with large telephone polls, construction materials, and pamp. The tradition of building displays on Bowman Field as we know them today did not take form until 1966.

According to Dr. Jerome V. Fleet, Dean of Undergraduate Studies and professor of The History of Higher Education at Clemson, prior to that year, local fraternities, clubs, and organizations built small displays around campus, some containing movable parts. In 1966, Kappa Sigma Nu built the first display that hung from a telephone pole like the ones we see today. The first display had Thomas Green Clemson on top of Tillman Hall. There was a Tiger hanging off the side of Tillman and it was throwing lighting bolts down at that year's Homecoming opponent, the Duke Blue Devil, who was climbing up the other side of Tillman. The display read, "Strike-em Tigers." Clemson won the game against Duke 9-6.

All of the displays we see today on Bowman are built like Kappa Sigma Nu's float of 1966. They too are built on or around large telephone polls, and made with pamp and chicken wire. The average display total cost is typically over a few thousand dollars. At halftime of today's football game with Virginia, the competition winners will be announced. Kappa Sigma Nu earned first place in 1966.

And what would Homecoming be without its queen? Each year, the Clemson student body maintains the custom of selecting a woman to represent the Tigers. During the fall, fraternities, sororities, and campus organizations nominate women who encapsulate the ideals and values of Clemson to compete in the Homecoming pageant. Although once announced at halftime of the football game, the Homecoming Queen and her court are now presented at Tigerama and are featured in the Homecoming halftime parade.

There have been some outstanding selections over the years. One, Shawn Weatherly, went from Clemson Homecoming queen in 1977 to Miss Universe in 1980. She later went on to star in various television series.

These rich traditions have become a part of what "brings together and binds together" the brothers and sisters of this institution. Sherman put it best as he put into words the nostalgia of Clemson, Homecoming, and the tradition of the Tigers; "There's something in these hills where the Blue Ridge yawns its greatness."

Kelly McGinity, a second-year graduate student from Temecula, CA, is a graduate assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

Kappa Sigma Nu's 1966 display was the first of its kind built on Bowman Field. It won the contest that year and started the trend of displays we see today.
James F. Barker
Clemson University President

Building a Future for Clemson

Clemson University President James F. Barker is first and foremost an architect. So it is no surprise that he came to the office with a clear blueprint of Clemson’s future in mind - a future built around such ideas as collaboration, community, and quality.

A 1970 Clemson graduate, the former dean of the university’s College of Architecture, Arts, and Humanities was named president in October of 1999 and embarked on a goal of making Clemson one of the nation’s top public universities. From that vision came the development of a set of 10-year goals adopted in 2001 - goals that are already showing results, including:

- a 70-plus percent increase in research support over two years, earning Clemson a ranking as one of the nation’s top 100 research universities and surpassing $100 million dollars in annual research support;
- an academic plan that identifies eight emphasis areas where Clemson hopes to build nationally recognized programs;
- the recruitment of more outstanding young faculty, including 16 National Science Foundation CAREER award winners, given to the nation’s most promising faculty;
- the enrollment of Clemson’s brightest freshman class, with an average SAT exceeding 1265;
- recognition as Time Magazine’s Public College of the Year for its innovative Communication Across the Curriculum program.

Barker earned his bachelor of architecture degree from Clemson and his master of architecture and urban design degree from Washington University in St. Louis, MO. Before returning to Clemson in 1986 to serve as dean of the College of Architecture, he was dean of the School of Architecture at Mississippi State University. In 1995, he became dean of the new College of Architecture, Arts, and Humanities, which was created after a comprehensive reorganization and has received national attention as a new model in education.

He is a recipient of the National Distinguished Professor Award of the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture and served as president of that organization. Barker was named Fellow of the American Institute of Architects. He also has been a partner in an architectural practice.

He has been awarded honorary doctoral degrees from S.C. State University and Mars Hill College, and has served on the Truman Scholars selection committee. He currently serves on the Commission of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, the region’s accrediting agency. In 2003, he received the Greenville Chamber of Commerce Buck Mickel Award for Community Service and was named one of Greenville Magazine’s 50 most influential people in the area.

As chair of the ACC’s Council on Presidents in 2003, Barker played a key role in the conference’s expansion as well as the development of collaborative academic initiatives.

Barker co-founded Clemson’s S.C. Design Arts Partnership to support community design outreach projects, initiated the Charleston Architecture Center, established the university’s "Arts in April" program, and developed a Mayors’ Institute to help city leaders learn how to manage issues related to growth and development.

Despite his responsibilities as president, Barker remains committed to the classroom. Each spring, he is part of a team that teaches an undergraduate course exploring “a sense of place” in architecture, literature, and history.

Barker’s Goals By 2010

Academics, Research, & Service
1. Excel in teaching, at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.
2. Increase research and sponsored programs to exceed $100 million a year in research support.
3. Set the standard in public service for land-grant universities by engaging the whole campus in service and outreach, including a focus on strategic emphasis areas.
4. Foster Clemson’s academic reputation through strong academic programs, mission-oriented research and academic centers of excellence, relevant public service, and highly regarded faculty and staff.
5. Seek and cultivate areas where teaching, research, and service overlap.

Campus Life
1. Strengthen our sense of community and increase our diversity.
2. Recognize & appreciate Clemson’s distinctiveness.
3. Create greater awareness of international programs and increase activity in this area.
4. Increase our focus on collaboration.
5. Maintain an environment that is healthy, safe, and attractive.

Clemson’s National Reputation
1. Promote high integrity and professional demeanor among all members of the University community.
2. Establish a Phi Beta Kappa chapter.
3. Have at least two Clemson students win Rhodes Scholarships.
4. Send student ensembles to perform at Carnegie Hall.
5. Have at least two Clemson faculty win recognition by national academies.
6. Publicize both national and international accomplishments of faculty, staff, and students.
7. While maintaining full compliance, achieve notable recognition with another national football championship, two championships in Olympic sports, and two Final Four appearances in basketball.

Educational Resources
1. Campaign goal surpassed by 40 percent.
2. Rededicate our energy and resources to improving the library.
3. Increase faculty compensation to a level competitive with top-20 public universities.
4. Increase academic expenditures per student to a level competitive with top-20 public universities.
5. Manage enrollment to ensure the highest quality classroom experiences.

Student Performance
1. Attract more students who are ranked in the top 10 percent of their high school classes and who perform exceptionally well on the SAT/ACT.
2. Promote high graduation rates by increasing freshman retention, meeting expectations of high achievers, and providing support systems for all students.
3. Promote excellence in advising.
4. Increase the annual number of doctoral graduates to the level of a top-20 public research university.
5. Improve the national competitiveness of graduate student admissions and financial aid.

2003 Clemson Football
for Clemson athletics to work toward becoming a model program, one that can compete at the highest levels in all sports. To become a model program, Clemson must be able to, not only compete at the highest levels, but do so with academic integrity, concern for the student athlete, financial responsibility, and in full compliance.

"There is nothing worse than trying to maintain status quo," said Phillips, who became Clemson's 10th athletic director on July 1, 2002.

That motto has been a basic tenet that has characterized his career as an administrator and his pursuit to develop Clemson into a model athletic program in the 21st century. His beliefs are in line with the University's overall goal of making Clemson one of the top 20 public universities in the nation.

Strides were made toward those goals in his first year through facility improvements and the development of concepts that will serve the entire program. Littlejohn Coliseum and Doug Kingsmore Stadium completed renovations that now make them very competitive nationally. A new indoor track was completed in the summer of 2003 as well.

Phillips also introduced the West Endzone plan for Clemson Memorial Stadium. It is planned that in 2004, Clemson will begin construction at Death Valley that will add 2,000 premium club seats in the west endzone and create a new revenue stream for facilities at Clemson. After the completion of the club seats, future plans call for a new comprehensive football building at Memorial Stadium. The building will benefit the entire department, as it will create additional updated facilities for Clemson's Olympic sports program in the McFadden Building. A "One Clemson Center" to include the history of Clemson University and athletics is also a planned part of the project.

On the field of competition, Clemson won its first ever national championship in golf, with a landmark victory at Oklahoma State's Karsten Creek. Larry Penley's team was the #1 ranked team in the nation for the entire season and became the first golf program in history to win its conference, NCAA Regional, and NCAA National Tournaments. According to Phillips, this feat is a great tribute to Penley and Bobby Robinson, who laid the foundation for the Clemson golf program.

It was an iconic first national title at Clemson for Phillips in that he had been at Oklahoma State for eight years prior to his arrival at Clemson. He has now been the athletic director for three national championship golf programs in the last 10 years.

In terms of personnel, Phillips made national news when he hired Oliver Purnell as Clemson head basketball coach. Purnell had led Dayton to 20-win seasons each of the last four years, including a 24-6 campaign in 2002-03 that included a top-four national seed for the NCAA Tournament and the championship of the Atlantic 10 Conference. Departmental diversity was further enhanced with the hiring of two outstanding individuals - former NCAA administrator Phil Grayson and former Clemson All-American football player Jeff Davis - to assistant athletic director positions.

Phillips is also known around the Clemson athletic department for his love of Clemson traditions and spirit. He instituted a "Solid Orange" day in the department that encourages athletic department employees to wear Clemson school colors every Friday. The plan has spread across the state, as Clemson fans, where possible, wear orange to work on Fridays. School children have also adopted the plan across the state. He has also instituted the playing of the alma mater at all athletic events.

"While we're working on infrastructure and strategy, we're working just as hard on school spirit and re-energizing the pride we all have in Clemson," said Phillips in Clemson World, Clemson's Alumni magazine summer of 2003 issue. "When it (our sport and pride) really flows - as it can at Clemson - it's an amazing testament from every alumnus, student, and supporter, and a tremendous boost to every Clemson effort. That is the case in recruiting, not only athletic recruiting, but academic as well."

Phillips has an undergraduate degree from Arkansas (1970), a master's degree from Virginia Tech (1974), a doctorate from Virginia Tech (1978), and a law degree from the Arkansas School of Law (1996). He is a member of the Arkansas Bar, American Bar Association, and the Sports Lawyers Association.

From an experience standpoint, Phillips has worked in nearly all phases of college athletics. He served as an assistant football coach at Virginia Tech, supervised spring sports and student-athlete enrichment at the University of Florida, handled athletic fundraising and facility enhancement at Missouri and Arkansas, and had extensive experience as an athletic director, including 13 at the Division I level prior to his appointment at Clemson.

When it came to success on the field and in the classroom at Oklahoma State, Phillips' programs were among the best in the Big XII Conference. The achievements of the Oklahoma State program during his tenure (1994-02) included a pair of national championships in men's golf, a men's basketball Final Four, two trips to the College World Series, a Men's Softball World Series, 13 Big XII Championships, and 11 individual national champions. Academically, it had 53 academic All-Americans.

Very importantly, Phillips notched four football victories over arch-rival Oklahoma during his tenure, including an upset of a fourth-ranked Sooners team in 2001 that knocked Oklahoma from the national championship race. Before his arrival in 1995, the Cowboys had just three wins over Oklahoma in the previous 48 years and had won only a total of 14 games in the previous five years. The year in which he left, Oklahoma State won three more Big XII championships, a national championship in wrestling, and put nine teams in NCAA postseason play. The Oklahoma State football team again defeated the Rose Bowl Champion Sooners, making OSU's wins over OU five out of the last eight years - something no other team in the Big XII has done. The football program also produced a 100-percent graduation rate based for the 1997 recruiting class, as well as winning the Houston Bowl.

From a facilities enhancement standpoint, the Oklahoma State program compiled a long list of successful projects, including the completion of approximately $56 million in new construction. The projects included a new athletics center complete with a strength-conditioning complex, locker facilities, player lounges, offices, meeting rooms, sports medicine area, an academic center, and the Gallagher-Iba Arena, the Cowboys' basketball facility, was expanded from 6,000 to 13,611 seats, and 14 suites were added. CBS Sportsline named it the best college basketball venue in the nation.

Phillips also supervised the planning of a $50-million renovation to the Oklahoma State football stadium that will add 2,300 club seats, 14 suites, and rebuilt concession, restrooms, press box, and concourse areas. All facilities were supported through new revenue streams and capital.
fundraising, as construction began in the spring of 2003.

Before leading Oklahoma State, Phillips served as senior associate athletic director at Arkansas from 1988-94. He ran the daily operations and had oversight of facility projects for the men's programs, and was president of the Razorback Foundation.

Phillips was also athletic director at the University of Southwestern Louisiana from 1983-88 and Liberty College from 1980-81. He was an assistant athletic director at Missouri from 1981-83, where he supervised athletic fundraising. Phillips began his administrative career in 1978 as an assistant athletic director at Florida, where he worked with spring sports and student-athlete enrichment.

Phillips began his career in college athletics coaching football. He started as a graduate assistant at Arkansas from 1970-71. He then moved on to Virginia Tech as an assistant coach from 1971-78 before joining the ranks of athletic administration. During his coaching career in Blacksburg, he served with former Clemson Head Coaches Charley Pell and Danny Ford.

Winning has been in Phillips’s résumé since his playing days. At Arkansas, Phillips lettered on Frank Broyles teams of 1966, 1968, and 1969. The Razorbacks were a combined 27-5 in those three seasons and played in two Sugar Bowl games. Phillips played for the Razorbacks in the famous 1969 Arkansas-Texas game that decided the National Championship. During the spring of 2003, the book Hogs, Hogs, and Nixon’s Coming chronicled that historic game. One of the assistant coaches on the 1968 and 1969 Arkansas teams was former Clemson Head Coach Hootie Ingram.

Phillips is the Chair of the NCAA Division I Infractions Appeals Committee, which serves the appellate role for all University and individual appeals arising from the Committee on Infractions. He also works with the NCAA Certification Program. He currently serves on the following ACC Committees: Finance Committee, Committee on Infractions and Penalties, Television Committee, the Men's Basketball Committee, and the Football Committee.

Phillips has two children - John Dennis (26) and Sarah Jane (22). He has three stepchildren - Meagan (14), Marshall (13), and Madison (11). He is married to Tricia Phillips, who earlier had an athletic administration career in marketing at Southwestern Louisiana and is a graduate of the University of Missouri School of Journalism.

Phillips was a three-year letterman at Arkansas under Frank Broyles and played in the 1969 National Championship game against Texas.
When Clemson was selected for the Mazda Tangerine Bowl on December 1, 2002, it meant that Clemson would be making its fourth-consecutive bowl appearance — the fourth under Head Coach Tommy Bowden. With that selection, Bowden became the first head coach to take Clemson (and just the third in ACC history) to a bowl game in each of his first four years. In fact, no coach had ever done so more than twice to open their career at Clemson. That is also something that prominent predecessors Jess Neely, Frank Howard, Charley Pell, Danny Ford, and Ken Hatfield failed to do. Under Bowden’s direction, Clemson appeared in the Peach Bowl in 1999, the Gator Bowl in 2000, and the 2001 Humanitarian Bowl prior to its Tangerine Bowl appearance.

Clemson’s appearance in the Tangerine Bowl meant that it was the first time since the senior class of 1991 that Clemson went to a bowl game four straight years. The 2002 Tiger seniors were the first group Bowden recruited to Clemson, so it is an indication of the firm foundation that group set for the program.

The 2002 season included victories over bowl teams Georgia Tech and Wake Forest, and a third victory in four years over arch-rival South Carolina. Clemson gained 434 yards of total offense in the 27-20 win over the Gamecocks, the most yards against Lou Holtz’s defense all season. The 2002 Tigers featured balance on offense and defense. Clemson’s receiving trio of J.J. McKelvey, Kevin Youngblood, and Derrick Hamilton combined for 163 receptions for nearly 2,000 yards and eight scores. Running backs Yusel Kelly and Bernard Rambert collectively gained over 1,000 yards rushing, while quarterbacks Willie Simmons and Charlie Whitehurst threw for over 3,100 yards (a school record) and 16 scores.

The Clemson defense featured two of the top 21 players in the nation in interceptions per game. Justin Miller had eight interceptions, best among all freshmen nationally, and Brian Mance had six in an All-America season. Clemson’s defense was one of the most improved units in the ACC and ranked in the top 10 in the nation in total interceptions (21).

Clemson had another record-setting season in 2001, a season that culminated with a bowl win over Louisiana Tech. Clemson set school bowl records for points scored, touchdowns, and total offense in a bowl game in the win. The Tigers threw five touchdown passes, a record for any Tiger game. It was a record-breaking performance for the Tigers in Boise, ID, something that surprised no one who has followed the team during the last four seasons. In that short period of time, Clemson has set over 150 school records on an individual and team basis. Three of the top six total-offense seasons in Clemson history have been recorded under Bowden, including the 2001 season when Clemson averaged over 30 points and 432 yards of total offense per game.

Bowden now has a record of 29-20 as Clemson’s head coach and is 47-24 overall. He ranks 10th among active Division I coaches on a winning-percentage basis. He has recorded six losses against a difficult schedule. His first year, Clemson’s schedule was ranked in the top 10 in the nation. In 2001, his team defeated five teams that finished the season with a winning record, tied for the third-highest single-season figure in school history. One of the victories was a 47-44 overtime triumph at #9 Georgia Tech. It was the highest-ranked road win in 20 years for the Clemson program. In 2002, Clemson’s schedule strength once again ranked in the top 15 by the Sagarin rating.

When Bowden came to Clemson in 1998, he inherited a team with a 3-8 record. By late October of 2000, just 14 months after his first game, Clemson was ranked third in the nation in the USA Today poll after an 8-6 start. That ranking was the highest for the program in 16 years. The final #14 ranking in that same poll was the highest final listing for the program since the 1990 season.

Making a swift improvement is nothing new for Bowden. In 1997, he took over a 4-7 Tulane program and brought the Green Wave to a 7-4 mark in his first year. In 1998, the improvement continued with an 11-0 regular season and #7 national ranking. In 1999, Bowden elevated the Tigers from 3-8 to a bowl game and a 6-6 final record. The 2000 Tigers concluded the season with a 9-3 record, its highest win total since 1993.

As one can see, considerable improvement is a common phrase for Tommy Bowden coached teams. In each of his first four years he coached at the Division I level, his team showed at least a three-win improvement over the previous year, believed to be a first in Division I college football history. Bowden is just the third coach in Clemson history to bring his team for a three-win improvement in consecutive years and was one of just two Division I coaches (John Robinson of UNLV) to do it over the 1999 and 2000 seasons.

In 2000 and 2001, his dynamic offense produced a Heisman Trophy contender in quarterback Woodrow Dantzler, who placed his name next to 52 school records as the Tigers’ signal-caller. The hefty total included eight single-game marks, 23 season records, and 22 career records. He is the school’s career leader in total offense, passing yards, and touchdowns responsibility, and set single-season marks in 2001 for total offense, passing yards, and touchdowns passed. In 2001, he became the first quarterback in Division I history to accumulate 2,000 yards passing and 1,000 yards rushing in a single season. Dantzler was named the Davey O’Brien Award in 2000 and 2001.

Center Kyle Young was a finalist for the Rimington Award in 2000 and 2001, and won the ACC’s Jim Tatum Award, presented to the league’s top student-athlete. He was one of eight players nationally to receive a National Football Foundation Scholarship and became just the second offensive lineman in college football history to become a three-time first-team Academic All-American. Linebacker Chad Carson also performed well in the classroom and on the gridiron. He and Young were first-team Academic All-Americans selections in 2000 and 2001.

Bowden’s second Clemson team was one of the most decorated in history. Six different Tigers were finalists of semifinalist for national position awards, including linebacker Keith Adams, who was one of the three finalists for the Butkus Award.

Young and Carson were both named first-team Academic All-Americans, making Clemson the only Division I-A school in the nation to have a pair of first-team selections. For the second straight year, the football team had its highest team GPA on record in 2001 and a record number of ACC Academic honor-roll recipients. Nineteen of the 22 seniors on the 2001 team have already earned their degrees. The top-five semester GPAs on record have taken place under his eight-semester watch. Carson brought pride to the entire University in 2002 when he reached the final stage of the Rhodes Scholarship selection process, the only Division I college football player to hold that distinction.

When Bowden came to Clemson, he had one simple goal — improvement. Bowden warned Clemson supporters that the Tigers were unlikely to be bowl participants in 1999, but his main focus was to improve. Bowden’s goal of improvement was reached and he was happy to be wrong about his preseason prediction, as the Tigers were invited to the 1999 Chick-fil-A Peach Bowl.

In 1996, Bowden accomplished a personal milestone that no Clemson coach had attained since 1981, the year the Tigers won the National Championship. He became the first Clemson coach since Danny Ford to be named ACC Coach of the Year.

Bowden led the Tigers to a 6-6 record and 5-3 mark in the ACC against the nation’s third-toughest regular-season schedule according to the Sagarin rating. The Tigers finished tied for second with Georgia Tech and Virginia in the final conference standings, a six-place improvement over the previous season, the greatest one-season jump in ACC history in league play.

The Tigers also made a four-game ACC win improvement in 1999. It was the fifth time in ACC history that a team made that big of a league victory jump. Bowden had taken over a team with a losing record and brought it to a bowl game in his first season, just the sixth coach in ACC history to accomplish that feat.

The Clemson program set or tied 41 school records in Bowden’s first year, including 26 on offense. Ironically, Bowden’s first Tulane team set or tied 26 offensive school records. Under Bowden, Clemson continued its strong defensive tradition. With 47 sacks, Clemson was first in the ACC in that category for the second straight season, and the final total established a school record. Three players (Keith Adams - 15.5, Chad Carson - 12.0, Robert Carswell - 10.8) all had nearly 11 tackles per game in 1999 to rank among the top-four tacklers in the league.

Adams, a sophomore that season, finished with 186 tackles, highest in the nation, and broke the Clemson single-season tackle record held by Anthony Simmons. They all contributed to the 17th-best pass defense efficiency in the country, a unit that had 19 interceptions, ninth highest in the country.

Thanks to the wide-open offensive attack, several Clemson players made their presence felt in the national rankings and the Clemson record book. Junior wide receiver Rod Gardner became the school’s first 1,000-yard receiver. Gardner had 80 receptions for 1,084 yards, Tiger single-season records in both areas. He was 17th in the nation in receptions per game, with a 6.6 mark. He had another 1,000-yard season in 2000 when he was a first-round draft choice of the Washington Redskins.

For the first time in Clemson history, two Tiger quarterbacks threw for more than 1,000 yards in a season. Woodrow Danzinger passed for 1,506 yards, while Brandon Streeter passed for 1,466 yards during the season. The two diametrically opposite quarterbacks had total-offense games more than 350 yards, a testimony to Bowden’s offensive system. Four of Clemson’s losses in 1999 came against teams ranked in the top 15 of the final AP poll. Bowden Bowl I, the first ever meeting between father and son head coaches in college football history, took place on October 23, 1999. Bowden faced his father Bobby’s top-ranked Florida State team in Death Valley in front of a national television audience. The Tigers lost a tough battle to the eventual National Champions, 17-14, the closest margin of victory for the Seminoles and the fewest points they recorded all season by two touchdowns.

Making strong improvement in his first year with a program was nothing new for Bowden. In the two seasons he was the head coach at Tulane, Bowden took a team that had been 4-18 in the two years previous to his arrival, and emotionally and numerically reversed the team’s fortunes with an 18-4 record, posted an 11-1 conference mark, and finished the 1998 season ranked seventh in the nation by both polls. Tulane and Tennessee were the only undefeated teams in college football in 1998.

It didn’t take Bowden long to put Tulane back on the college football landscape. In his first year, Tulane was picked last in the preseason polls of Conference USA. But he led the New Orleans-based school to a 7-4 record, a second-place conference standing with just one league loss, and set 33 school records in the process, including 26 on offense.

The 1998 season saw the program post a perfect 11-0 regular season under Bowden, its first perfect regular season since 1931. The Green Wave won Conference USA, its first league title since Tulane won the SEC in 1949. Bowden was named Conference USA Coach-of-the-Year.

Bowden’s team ranked seventh in the final AP poll and was a mainstay in the polls from the third week of the season on. Tulane had not been ranked at any time since 1979, and had not been ranked in a final poll since 1973. After Bowden accepted the job at Clemson, Tulane defeated Brigham Young in the Liberty Bowl, 41-27.

A look to the list of coaches who had undefeated seasons in the 1990s shows two other men named Bowden. His father, Florida State Head Coach Bobby Bowden, had a perfect regular season in 1990. Obviously, the Bowdens are the first family of college coaching and this “Wonder Years” environment had a lot to do with Tommy Bowden’s decision to enter coaching.

The fatherly influence of a college coach who reached 300 career wins against his son in 1999, also had an influence on other members of the family. Terry has been a head coach at Samford and Auburn, posting a 47-17-1 record at the latter. Terry serves as an in-studio commentator for ABC’s college football package. Jeff Bowden is in his ninth year as wide receivers coach at Florida State, his third as offensive coordinator.

Tommy Bowden began his college football experience as a walk-on wide receiver at West Virginia. He played for his father between 1973-75 and then for Frank Signetti during the 1976 season. As a junior, he caught 15 passes for 189 yards and one score. Bowden remained at West Virginia for the 1977 and began his coaching career, serving as a graduate assistant on Signetti’s staff. His interest in coaching only became more intense after that first year as a graduate assistant. His father then hired him as a secondary coach at Florida State for the 1978 season.

That experience confirmed to Bowden that he was in a profession that would be his life’s work. The Seminoles posted a 19-4 mark in his two seasons at Florida State.

In 1980, Bowden joined the staff at East Carolina, where he coached for the spring-practice session of 1980. Later that spring, he moved to Auburn and served as the Tigers running backs coach for the 1980 season. Among the players he coached was James Brooks, who went on to a 13-year NFL career and is still second in Auburn history in rushing.

In 1981, Bowden returned to Tallahassee as the tight ends coach. In two more years at Florida State, the Seminoles posted a 15-8 mark. The 1982 team ranked 13th in the final poll, claimed a 9-3 record, and won a Gator Bowl championship.

From 1983-86, Bowden served under Steve Sloan at Duke as the quarterbacks coach. He was named coordinator in 1985. It was as a Duke assistant that Bowden made his first trip to Death Valley as a coach. Among the players Bowden tutored was Anthony Dilweg, who went on to the NFL.

After four years at Duke, Bowden became the wide receivers coach at Alabama under Bill Curry. It was there that Bowden refined his offensive coaching prowess under noted offensive mind Homer Smith, then the Tide offensive coordinator.

In 1990, he returned to a coordinator role, serving Kentucky as its offensive coordinator and wide receivers coach. That year, he helped the Wildcats to their first upper division SEC finish since 1984.

In 1991, Bowden joined Pat Dye at Auburn. He would remain with Auburn for six years, his longest stint as a college assistant coach. During his tenure, Auburn was a combined 46-20-2, including a perfect 11-0 season in 1993. Auburn had four Associated Press top-25 seasons, including a #4 final ranking in 1993 and a #9 final ranking in 1994. The Tigers were 20-1-1 in 1993-94 combined. Bowden worked under his brother, Terry, for his last four years at Auburn and the Tigers had a 36-9-1 record with both Bowdens on the staff.

Born on July 10, 1954 in Birmingham, AL, Bowden is married to the former Linda Joan White, whom he first met when the two were in school together at Morgantown High School in West Virginia. The couple has two children, Ryan (21), a senior at Clemson, and Lauren (18), a freshman at Clemson.
Construction on Clemson’s WestZone Club will begin after the 2003 season and will create a unique facility that benefits Clemson players, coaches and fans. The Club will include new “game day” locker room facilities, a comprehensive team weight training area, coaches offices, football administration, recruiting area, and media area that will enhance the quality of the football experience for the student-athlete and staff. A comprehensive 14,000 square foot museum that documents Clemson’s history is also part of the project. The addition of 2000 Club Seats will provide a continuous revenue stream to help finance the WestZone Club. The Club Seating area will include enclosed and outside seating that is complete with associated lounges and amenities. The Club Seats are already on sale at the Clemson Ticket Office (1-800-CLEMSON).

Clemson Memorial Stadium has been held in high esteem for many years. Whether it be players from the 1940s and 1950s, opposing players from the 1970s and 1980s, or even professional players in the 1990s, the ambiance of this special setting is what college football is all about.

The storied edifice added to its legend when the first meeting of father and son head coaches (Bowden Bowl I) took place before a sellout crowd of more than 86,000 fans in 1999. Clemson has ranked among the top 20 in the nation in average attendance 20 consecutive seasons. That includes 2001 when Clemson set an ACC record for total attendance. Last year, the streak continued when Clemson averaged over 77,500 fans.

In the 70s, 80s, and 90s, various publications named top-10 stadiums in college football and Memorial Stadium, affectionately known as “Death Valley,” has been a common denominator on those lists.

The facility’s mystique is derived from its many traditions, which date to its opening in 1912, the legendary games and players, and Clemson’s corresponding rate of success. Clemson has won 216 games in 61 years (216-86-7) and has won over 71 percent of the contests. Thirty-eight times since 1983, a crowd has exceeded 80,000.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before head coach Jess Neely left for Rice University after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message. “Don’t ever let them talk you into building a bigger stadium,” he said. “Put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That’s all you’ll ever need.”

Instead of following Coach Neely’s advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build a new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing—there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crew went to work, clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally on September 19, 1942, Memorial Stadium opened with Clemson thrashing Presbyterian, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for opening day would soon grow and grow.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40’s, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the cleaning of the land, one young football player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, however, the boy was swollen twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the stadium, including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each comer of the stadium as the concrete poured.

Howard said that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. “About 40 people and I laid sod on the field,” he said. “After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through.”

I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more weeks’ pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons.”

Howard said that on the day of the first game in the stadium, “the gates were hung at 1:00 and we played at 2:00.” But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and in 1960, 5,658 west endzone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large endzone, “Green Grass” section, this expansion increased capacity to 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the crowds swelled—the first in 1978 and the second in ’83. This increased capacity to over 80,000, which makes it one of the largest on-campus stadiums.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as “Death Valley.” It was tagged by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

Luckily, the stadium wasn’t built behind the Y.
What Visitors Are Saying About Death Valley

There is no place louder or more picturesque than Death Valley. There, where Clemson looks see magic in a Hill and a rock, orange gets more respect than anywhere this side of Gainesville, Florida. Terence Moore, Atlanta Journal-Constitution

"I remember being nervous before the game because there were 80,000 people dressed in orange. It's intimidating. I even threw up before the game. It's the only time I've ever done that."
Former Duke Quarterback Dave Brown

"I came here knowing it would be loud and that Clemson would hit hard, but to me, the noise was the biggest factor. I knew I didn't concentrate as well because of it." Georgia Running Back Herschel Walker after Clemson's 13-3 victory in 1981, his only regular-season loss as a Bulldog

"Death Valley really lives up to its image. I was impressed with this stadium. When you put 80,000 people in there, it really feels like they are on top of you. I would hate to be Georgia Tech or whoever else comes in here." San Francisco 49er Quarterback Steve Young

ESPN's Gameday made an appearance at Clemson for a Thursday night game in 2002. Clemson was on either ESPN or espn2 eight times during the 2002 season, including four times at Death Valley.
What has been described as, "the most exciting 25 seconds in college football from a color and pageantry standpoint," actually started out as a matter-of-fact entrance, mainly because of necessity. The first 50,000 seats in Memorial Stadium were built and ready for use before the 1942 season. Less than a year before Pearl Harbor was bombed and the United States was at war.

The shortest entry into the stadium was a short walk down Williamson Road from Fike Fieldhouse's dressing rooms to a gate at the top of the Hill, which is located behind the east endzone. There were no dressing facilities in the west end zone — there was only a big clock where the hands turned and a scoreboard, which was operated by hand.

The team would dress at Fike, walk down Williamson Road, come in the gate underneath where the big scoreboard now stands and jog down the Hill for its warm-up exercises. There was no fanfare, no cannon shot fired, no Tiger Paw flag, no Tiger Rag played...just the team making its entrance and lining up to do the side-straddle hop.

That's pretty much the way things went for the next 25 years.

Either in 1964 or 1965, S.C. Jones, a member of the class of 1919, made a trip to California. He stopped at a spot in Death Valley, CA, and picked up this white flint rock.

He presented it to Coach Frank Howard as being from Death Valley, CA, to Death Valley, South Carolina.

The rock laid on the floor in Howard's office in Fike for years. One day, he was cleaning up his office and he told Gene Willimon, who was executive secretary of IPTAY, "take this rock and throw it over the fence, or out in the ditch...do something with it, but get it out of my office!"

Willimon didn't think that was the way a rock should be treated. After all, it had been brought 3,000 miles by a very sincere Tiger fan.

By the mid-sixties, Memorial Stadium was pretty well living up to its moniker, Death Valley, because of the number of victories that had been recorded there. Actually, the name was first used by the late Lonnie McMillian, head coach at Presbyterian College in Clinton in the 1940s.

McMillian and the other Blue Hose coaches before him used to open the season each year by coming to Clemson. Seldom scoring (24 shutouts in 39 games) and with only three wins and four ties to show for it, his teams were getting killed by the Tigers regularly. In 1948, McMillian made the comment to the press that he was taking his team to play Clemson in Death Valley.

An occasional reference to Memorial stadium by that name could be heard for the next three or four years, but when Howard started calling it "Death Valley" in the 1950s, the name took off like wildfire. The Tigers celebrated the 50th season in the 'Valley in 1991.
Running Down the Hill
“The most exciting 25 seconds in college football”

But getting back to Howard’s Rock.

The rock was mounted on a pedestal at the top of the Hill. It was unveiled September 24, 1966, on a day when Clemson played Virginia. The Tigers were down 18 points with 17 minutes to play and came back to win (40-35) on a 65-yard pass play from Jimmy Addison to Jacky Jackson in the fourth period. That was quite a spectacular debut for that rock.

The team members started rubbing the rock prior to running down the Hill September 23, 1967, a day when Clemson defeated Wake Forest, 23-6. Prior to running down the Hill that day, Howard told his players: “If you’re going to give me 110 percent, you can rub that rock. If you’re not, keep your filthy hands off it.” Howard told of the incident the next day on his Sunday television show and and the story became legend.

When Hootie Ingram succeeded Howard as head coach prior to the 1970 season, Ingram decided that the team would make its final entrance on the field out of the dressing room in the west end zone. In all home games in 1970 and 1971 and the first four of 1972 when the Tigers did not run down the Hill, their record was 6-0. The team decided it wanted to come down the Hill once prior to the South Carolina game in 1972. The result, in a cold, freezing rain, was a 7-6 victory when Jimmy Williamson knocked down a two-point conversion attempt which preserved the win.

The Tigers have made the entrance for every home game since 1942, except for the seasons mentioned above - 293 times heading into the 2003 season.

After final warmups, the team goes back into its dressing room under the west endzone stands for final game instructions. About 10 minutes before kickoff, the team boards two buses, rides around behind the north stands to the east endzone, and debarks to the top of the Hill behind Howard’s Rock.

At the appointed time, the cannon booms and led by a high-flying Tiger Paw flag, the band forms two lines for the team to run between and strikes up “Tiger Rag”... the frenzy starts in all sincerity and usually lasts for three hours.

It is a tradition that has inspired Clemson players for many years.

“The Rock has strange powers. When you rub it, and run down the Hill, the adrenaline flows. It’s the most emotional experience I’ve ever had.”
Six-time All-Pro and former Tiger All-American Michael Dean Perry

Traditionally, rich aesthetics, cost-effectiveness, performance and color haven’t gone hand in hand. If you wanted fashion color, you had to go to a specialty boutique and it wasn’t going to be cheap. With Voridian’s Chromspun™, Estron™ and Estron Plus™ yarns, you can have your cake and eat it too.

Estron Plus™ is the newest member of the Voridian acetate yarn family. Estron Plus™ is a combination of acetate and nylon, and provides improved fabric performance in a variety of applications.

Chromspun solution dyed acetate yarn is available in a wide range of fashion colors and can also be produced in custom colors. In keeping with our tradition, we make all Voridian yarns in the USA. As a matter of fact, Chromspun is the only colored acetate yarn made in America. That’s a tradition we’re proud of.

In football, it’s always a thrill when your team is considered a pre-season favorite. But being ranked #1 at the end of the season is an even greater honor — an achievement you earn through teamwork and determination. That’s why Regions Bank is proud to be ranked #1 in the nation in friendliness to small businesses by the U.S. Small Business Administration.*

We’re proud of this achievement, but not surprised by it. Taking care of small businesses and the people and communities they serve has been the foundation of our business since 1865.

Let us show you why Regions Bank truly has the strength to help you do more.

ChuckWagon Gas Grill

Kitchen On The Go!

BUY YOUR LAST GRILL FIRST.
THE DUCANE CHUCKWAGON is a real beauty on the outside! 18-gauge black powder-coated steel or optional stainless steel cabinetry will make you the envy of the road. But when you stop to grill you'll realize the true beauty. Ducane ChuckWagon comes with all the Ducane features you've grown to love and trust. TOP-PORTED® Stainless Steel Burners are efficient and long lasting. Stainless SEAR GRIDS® are made of high-quality stainless steel which sear meat quicker and more evenly to hold in more juicy flavor. Ducane’s double-tiered LA-VA-GRATE® system features overlapping runners to hold and revaporize drippings, which means more flavorful food! The Ducane ChuckWagon 7200R model features our patented Open Flame Rotissing® System to hold that cook-out flavor. Meats stay moist because juices drip into the pan, rather than a flame, and are revaporized. And we haven’t even mentioned the Norcold refrigerator yet!

A GRILL YOU CAN TAKE WITH YOU.

From backyard to your next away-from-home event, our sure-lock mounting system assures a perfect fit and secure ride for the ChuckWagon grill. Made of heavy-duty, hand-welded structural tubular steel, the hitch adapter fits any standard 2” receiver. Our electric lift operates with a simple push of a button and will raise your grill over 18”. Another push will gently lower the grill onto the hitch adapter and retract the wheels into the transport position. The Ducane ChuckWagon comes with a 14’, 7-way trailer harness. This harness draws the power for the electric lift from your vehicle. It also provides the built-in grill tail lights with stop and turn signals. Our 2-plug inverter allows you to plug in a television, blender or other small appliances!

Convenience is all yours with the Ducane ChuckWagon! You won’t have to mess with wiring and mounting a tail light kit, or have to deal with temporary auxiliary lights—because the Ducane ChuckWagon comes fully equipped with tail lights!
TAILGATING, CAMPING AND MORE—AT HOME OR ON THE ROAD—DUCANE’S CHUCKWAGON IS THE PERFECT ALL-INCLUSIVE GAS GRILL AND REFRIGERATION SYSTEM. THIS PORTABLE KITCHEN IS A GREAT VALUE WHEN YOU CONSIDER IT DOUBLES AS A BACKYARD GRILL, TOO!

Kitchen On The Go!™

STANDARD FEATURES WORTH BRAGGING ABOUT.

Ducane ChuckWagon 7200

- 625 sq. in. cooking surface (481 sq. in. primary and 144 sq. in. secondary)
- 33,000 BTU
- Optional rotis system 17,000 BTU

• Norcold® Refrigerator
  Our 2.7 cubic ft. refrigerator by Norcold offers a small freezer compartment, adjustable, removable shelves with easy-to-operate manual controls and an adjustable thermostat. It operates on propane, 12 volt and 110 AC power.

• Sink With Running Water and Drainage System
  This 10” x 14” stainless steel sink offers two alternatives for running water. The faucet features a self-priming pump that connects to a 2.5 gallon fresh water holding tank, or you can simply connect to city water via a standard water hose (not included). For drainage, there is a second 2.5 gallon waste water container included.

• Counter Space
  The Ducane ChuckWagon comes equipped with handy food preparation and serving centers with stainless steel countertops and self-supporting pop-up side and rear tables.

• Heavy-duty Casters
  These heavy-duty, roller bearing casters feature Zerk fittings and tough urethane outer edges for extremely smooth mobility and maneuvering.

• Heavy-duty Cover
  Our heavy-duty, full-length, weather-resistant covers are made of durable fabric to protect your grill from the elements and road debris.

Our metal cabinetry is the perfect place to display your favorite team logos. Purchase interchangeable magnetic team signs locally and show your support, whether you’re at a NASCAR race or at an NFL/NCAA outdoor event!
OPTIONS TO DRESS UP YOUR TAILGATING PARTY!

- Optional Market Umbrella
  Relish the shade with a stylish fabric market umbrella that's easy to use and almost maintenance-free. The fabric is durable all-weather acrylic so it cleans easily and can withstand years of sun and rain. And the ChuckWagon even has its own umbrella storage area.

- Optional Beer Tap
  A self-contained beer tap system is available with jockey box, CO2 tank, beer tower and tap. Hoses run out of the rear of the grill to connect to a keg. Once connected, it's an easy self-serve beer dispenser with the simple pull of the tap.

- Optional Wunder-Bar™ Beverage Service System
  Made by the same company that provides beverage service systems for bars and restaurants the world over, this easy-to-use dispenser will make you look like a pro whether you're mixing scotch and sodas for the guys or making root beer floats for your kids!

- Optional Rotisserie
  Ducane pioneered rear-burner rotissing with our 17,000 BTU Open-Flame Rotissing™ System. No flare-ups. Less charred foods. Dinner tastes better!

- Optional Stainless Cabinetry
  Ducane Gas Grills are built to last a lifetime. Shiny and sturdy 18-gauge stainless steel cabinetry stays beautiful year after year. Double-wall hood construction prevents discoloration from heat.

This date has provided Tiger faithful with several exciting moments over the years. From games at Fenway Park, the home of the Boston Red Sox, to thrilling last-second victories, triumphs on October 11 have contributed to the program’s outstanding heritage. Clemson has enjoyed success on this date, winning three of the last four games, and twice the Tigers have scored the game-winning points with less than 10 seconds remaining on the clock. Today’s game could be just as exciting.

Here is a review of three of the most exciting Tiger triumphs on this day in Tiger history:

The Tigers invaded Fenway Park on October 11, 1941 to face the Boston College Eagles, who had finished the 1940 season ranked #5 in the final Associated Press poll. Fenway Park is known for the “Green Monster,” but on this day, Clemson Orange would shine through as bright as ever.

Booty Payne’s 51-yard punt pinned the Eagles early, allowing Clemson to take over on its next drive at the Eagle 28. Charlie Timmons rushed for 17 of the 28 yards and scored the go-ahead touchdown.

The Tiger defense helped Clemson win the field-position battle in the third quarter. Clemson’s offense took advantage of the good field position when Payne connected with Joe Blalock for 44 yards down to the Eagle 10. Payne and Blalock would hook up again two plays later for a nine-yard touchdown strike and a 14-6 Tiger lead.

The fourth quarter began with one of the most amazing plays of the game. Payne, who had been terrorizing Boston College all day, punted the ball 49 yards to Kissell, who was standing at the Eagle 33. Kissell fumbled and incredibly Payne, who had punted the ball, recovered it at the Boston College 38.

Later in the drive, Payne found Blalock in the endzone for a 26-yard score. The extra point was missed and Clemson led 20-6. After the kickoff was returned to Boston College’s 40, a 13-yard lateral and a 37-yard scoring pass from Connolly to Ed Zabiski cut Clemson’s margin to seven.

Boston College got the ball back with a chance to tie, but Charlie Wright intercepted a Connolly pass and returned it to the Eagle 37. On a drive that featured three Tiger trick plays, Harry Franklin scored the final points of the game on a nine-yard reverse, clinching the 26-13 victory.

On a chilly October 11 day in 1958, a crowd of over 23,000 fans filed into Nashville to see Clemson face Vanderbilt in what would be an epic struggle.

Tourniers were the story of the first half. Twice, the Tigers drove inside the Commodore 20 and twice they came away with nothing. In the first half, each team recovered a fumble in the opponent’s endzone for a touchdown. The half ended scoreless.

Vanderbilt came out firing in the second half and drove 56 yards on 10 plays to take the lead 7-0 with 6:21 left in the third quarter. After Clemson’s first string rested for a series, it came out determined to even the score. Starting from its own 24, the offense moved the ball down the field 76 yards for a touchdown. Harvey White ran in a sneak with 7:58 left in the fourth quarter, but an interception on the two-point attempt left Clemson trailing 7-6.

On Vanderbilt’s next drive, the Commodores punted the ball to Clemson with seven minutes left in the game. The Tigers started from their own 31 and methodically forced their way down the field. Clemson had 13 rushes on a 15-play, 69-yard drive.

With the game on the line, White was ready to make history. He took the ball from the center, swept around right end, and scored the game-winning touchdown with just nine seconds remaining. The two-point conversion attempt failed, but Clemson won the game 12-7 behind the timely running of White. He had 104 rushing yards on the day, but none were more important than his two touchdown runs. White’s touchdown with only nine seconds remaining is still the latest Clemson has ever scored a game-winning touchdown.

On October 11, 1980, the Tigers made the trip to Charlottesville, VA, where two middle-of-the-road ACC teams competed in one of the best games of the early 1980s.

Virginia took command early and held a 24-10 lead entering the fourth quarter. Clemson’s only highlight was a 56-yard touchdown pass from Homer Jordan to Perry Tuttle.

But, the end of the third quarter meant the end of hard times for the Tigers and a swing in momentum. On the last play of the third quarter, Jordan connected with Jerry Gaillard for 51 yards, setting up a Tiger score. On the first play of the fourth quarter, Jordan pitched to Brendan Crite, who raced around left end for 26 yards and a touchdown, which cut the Cavalier lead to 24-17.

Clemson squandered opportunities in the final period until the last three minutes. Willie Underwood, who would later make a name for himself against South Carolina, made one of the greatest plays of his 47-game career. Virginia was set up to punt from its own 30, but Underwood blocked the punt and Bill Smith, now a member of the Clemson Board of Trustees, recovered it in the endzone for six points. Arikki kicked the extra point to pull the Tigers even with Virginia 24-24.

The Tiger defense flexed its muscles once again on the next drive, forcing a Virginia punt. On the next set of downs, Clemson’s drive for victory stalled at the Virginia 35 with just 11 seconds left.

The Tigers’ senior kicker, Obed Ariri, who had come to Clemson on a soccer scholarship and had been a member of the Nigerian National soccer team, had been consistent all day, but a 52-yard kick into a 12-mile-per-hour cross wind would be quite a challenge. As Ariri set up to kick the game winner, Virginia called a timeout in an attempt to ice him. Instead of concentrating on the upcoming kick and practicing his fellow-through, as most kickers would, Ariri walked up to the line of scrimmage and started talking trash to the Virginia players.

After the timeout, Ariri kicked the field goal with plenty to spare, giving Clemson a 27-24 victory. It marked the first time in 14 years that Clemson had overcome a two touchdown deficit to win.

When asked if he felt any pressure before the kick, Ariri said, “Pressure? Pressure? That’s not pressure. Playing (soccer) for your country in front of 100,000 people is pressure. This was not pressure.”

Nicholas Skinner, a senior from Early Branch, SC, is a student assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

Ann Whitley

Tiger Brotherhood Mother-of-the-Year

by Heath Mills

Ann Whitley admits that she did not know much about the Clemson area when she and her husband, Col. Alton Whitley, moved here in 1992. For the previous 25 years, she had lived all over the country, following her husband’s military career. The family had moved between Las Vegas, Tucson, Langley, and Washington before Col. Whitley was assigned to the job of P.A.S. at Clemson.

“We had the chance to come back to a few football games over the years,” Mrs. Whitley explained. “Still, I didn’t know too much about the area except for its beauty. It has turned out to be Heaven, though.”

Clemson education students seem to have fallen in love with Mrs. Whitley more than she has this place. She currently works in the Academic Advising Center of the College of Health, Education, and Human Development, where she advises education majors. For the past eight years, most education students have had the chance to work with Mrs. Whitley in their first two years of college.

After her students move to another advisor, Mrs. Whitley makes sure to keep in touch with them by visiting classes and informing the students about upcoming test requirements to keep them on track to become teachers. Finally, her office is responsible for processing the paperwork that each student must complete to receive his or her teaching certification.

When asked how she felt about her job helping students, Mrs. Whitley replied, “I feel like my work is complete when a student comes to Clemson, makes the most of what Clemson has to offer, and then leaves knowing that he or she is prepared for a fulfilling future. That makes me feel great because I know that I have done my job.”

“I had a few friends who had my mother as an advisor,” recalled her son, A.C. “They always had great things to say about her and looked forward to going in for a meeting. It always made me wish I had the same kind of advisor that my mother was while I was in school.”

Mrs. Whitley first began working at Clemson University while working on a grant for the Military Teacher Certification Program. The grant provided a program for military personnel who were affected by the government cuts at the time to return to college and become critical needs teachers. The critical needs stretched from special education to science and mathematics.

The program was extremely successful, and when the money from the grant ran out in 1995, Clemson University kept Mrs. Whitley on staff and moved her to her current position. Even with all of the work she handles in her current position, Mrs. Whitley finds time to talk with graduates who are considering a return to school to become a teacher. At the moment, 70 students have returned to Clemson to work for their teaching certification.

Still, she and Col. Whitley manage to find time to enjoy the area that they decided to settle down in. “It’s a little piece of Heaven for them,” said A.C. “It’s somewhere that they have finally been able to put some roots down after staying on the move for so many years and it is a place for which they both hold a special place in their heart.”

In May of 2003, Mrs. Whitley received another honor for her work at Clemson University. She was recognized as the College of Health, Education, and Human Development’s Outstanding Academic Advisor for the year. In addition to everything else she does for the school, she also serves on a number of committees in the Eugene T. Moore School of Education and is a member of the National Academic Advising Association.

Her support of Clemson education students is only one of the reasons why Mrs. Whitley was named Tiger Brotherhood’s 2003 Mother-of-the-Year. The award is given annually in recognition of a mother’s contributions to her family, her community, and Clemson. While Mrs. Whitley’s work for Clemson has been amazing, she is still most dedicated to her family.

Her husband is a 1968 Clemson graduate. He retired from the Air Force 10 years ago to start the Junior ROTC program at nearby Daniel High School. Mrs. Whitley has been known to help the group as often as possible, serving as a chaperone for competition trips or supplying snacks and drinks.

The two met during their time in college. Mrs. Whitley graduated from Winthrop and spent three and a half years teaching in the upstate before she and Alton decided to ‘tie the knot.’

Their two children developed orange blood long before the family settled in Clemson and, according to Mrs. Whitley, both only sent off one college application. A.C. was the first to become a Tiger and graduated with an undergraduate degree in accounting in 2001. A short 18 months later, he received a master’s degree in accounting from Clemson as well. He is currently working at an accounting firm in Columbia, where he is studying for the CPA exam.

Their daughter, Liz, is on schedule to graduate in May with a degree in Language and International Trade from Clemson. She is currently serving as the attorney general of the student body, participating in the ROTC program, and will enter the Air Force as a second lieutenant.

“Mom loves Clemson with all her heart,” said Liz about her mother’s passions. “Next to her family, Clemson University is the #1 thing in her life. She really enjoys what she does and knows she has made a difference in so many lives. We are all so proud of her and know she is humbled by this special bit of recognition.”

Mrs. Whitley also committed herself to serving her family by becoming a devoted and loving caregiver for both her and Alton’s parents upon returning to Clemson. With the passing of her mom last year, she has found both the time and opportunity to once again enjoy the many wonderful things that both Clemson University and the town of Clemson have to offer.

According to A.C., “She has been the perfect role model. She has been an example of devotion, grace, and humility my whole life. I can’t imagine anyone better to look up to and she is still also my best friend.”

“I would have to say that she is one of the greatest examples of selflessness and unconditional love that I have ever seen,” said her son. “There are so many of her qualities that I hope I have inherited. As my dad says, ‘they broke the mold when they made her.’”

Ann Whitley is the 2003 Tiger Brotherhood Mother-of-the-Year. She works in the Academic Advising Center and has been a trusted advisor to countless Clemson University students.

Bringing the past to life

Jeff Burden sees the future in the past, and he sees South Carolina as the best place in America to bring historic preservation to life. Burden joined the Clemson faculty this year to direct the University’s emerging Graduate Center in Historic Preservation, which will be based in the University’s Architecture Center, the College of Architecture, Arts, and the School of the Building.

Burden is strategically placed to become a leader in research and development of the trillion-dollar-a-year U.S. restoration economy—and to bring more of those resources to South Carolina.

Mission Statement

The Department of Athletics offers nationally prominent athletic programs. Through a dedicated commitment to educational interests, a competitive athletic program, and integrity in all areas, the student-athletes, coaches, and staff strive to bring credit and recognition to Clemson University. The mission of the Athletic Department is to sponsor a broad-based athletic program that provides educational and athletic opportunities for young men and women to grow, develop, and serve the interests of Clemson University by complementing and enhancing its diversity and quality of life. Furthermore, the Athletic Department seeks to be a source of pride for the citizens of the State of South Carolina and to be recognized as a nationally prominent program, through consistently high levels of performance and accomplishment in athletic competitions. The Athletic Department strives to develop student-athletes academically and athletically with the total commitment of aiding their efforts to graduate from Clemson University and advance to careers that will enable them to be productive members of society. The Athletic Department will act in an ethical and honest manner, dedicated to compliance with all Federal, State, NCAA, Conference, and University rules and regulations.

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties supplies Tiger fans with a full day of broadcast each football Saturday. Each broadcast day has three programs, "Tiger Tailgate Show," "Game Day Broadcast," and the "Fifth Quarter Show.

A tradition since the 1970s, the "Tiger Tailgate Show" is a two-hour entertainment and interactive program produced from the stadium. It is produced on the lawn (at the corner) closest to Death Valley.

The program begins three hours prior to kick off, Bubba Britton, Duane Evans, Don Munson, and Whitney Walters play host to the show. It is the gathering place on gameday. Interviews with former Clemson players, games, display items, and pre-game excitement are all part of the program.

| FSNS - Fox Sports Net South | CC - Comcast Cable | CSS - Comcast Sports Southeast/Charter Sports Southeast - Note: All times are Eastern; Clemson’s games replays will be aired on Wednesdays at 7:00 PM on Comcast Sports Southeast/Charter Sports Southeast.

The game broadcast is anchored by Pete Yanity. The sports director at WSPA-TV in Spartanburg, SC took over this year after the passing of Jim Phillips on September 9, 1999. He had been the long-time voice of the Tigers since 1968. He has been a part of the broadcast team since 2001 as the host of the pregame, halftime, and postgame shows, and as the sideline reporter during games. Yanity has been the sports director at WSPA-TV in Spartanburg the last 13 years. He has also been a sideline analyst for eight years on Carolina Panther preseason football games and has considerable play-play-experience for Comcast Sports Southeast, covering various college events, including Clemson football and basketball. Joining Yanity in the broadcast booth is former Clemson offensive lineman Will Merritt, who played for the Tigers from 1986-91. He was a starter in 2000 and 2001 when he was named Second-Team ACC.

Merritt worked on the Clemson radio network pregame and postgame shows last year. He also provided color commentary on the television tape-delay broadcasts of selected 2002 games. The native of Easley, SC is the host of "The Morning Drive," a sports talk show that airs from 6:00 AM to 9:00 AM each morning on WCCP (104.9 FM) in Clemson.

As has been the case in the past, the game day broadcast begins with the Tommy Bowden Pregame Show - Bowden meets with Clemson Sports Information Director Tim Bourret to provide Clemson fans with the latest lineup and strategy information as his Tigers prepare for another competitive contest. Yanity and Merritt also provide a last-minute scene-setter that will include the latest lineup and weather information. A special guest is added to each broadcast as a sideline reporter, and this person is introduced during the pregame show.

After the game, fans can tune into the "Fifth Quarter Show," hosted by Ralph Patterson and Yanity, or attend the show live from the Wild Wing Cafe in downtown Greenville, SC. Interviews with Coach Bowden and Assistant Coaches Brad Scott and John Lovett are also included. An added feature includes locker room interviews with Clemson’s top players that day. A rundown of the game stats and audio highlights are provided. Scores and reports from the day’s top games are also provided.

Fans can follow the Tigers by listening to "Tiger Calls," hosted live on location by Mike Hudson ('84) of Roper Ford in Seneca and Herb Tyler ('82) of the Chick-fil-A of Seneca. This one-hour program with Bowden and Don Munson airs live each Thursday evening from 7:00 PM to 8:00 PM. It can be heard on most of the sports networks.

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties also produces the Tommy Bowden Show, a recap of the previous game's highlights. Yanity serves as the host of this program that gives fans insight into the coaches' decisions during the previous game and takes an up close and personal look at your favorite players. For more information, contact David Hubbard (General Manager) or Don Williams (Sales & Operations) at Clemson Tiger Sports Properties, P.O. Drawer 552, Clemson, SC 29633-0552. They can be reached via phone at (864) 654-5544 and via fax at (864) 654-5509.

Broadcast Team

Pete Yanity, Play-By-Play
- Named the Play-By-Play announcer after the sudden passing of Jim Phillips on September 9, 2003. Phillips was the Voice of the Tigers for 36 years.
- In his third year with the network. He served as sideline commentator during 2002 and 2003.
- Other duties include being sports director at WSPA-TV (Spartanburg/Greenville) since 1990, sideline work on the Panthers' preseason television network, and play-by-play and color analysis on selected games on Comcast Sports Southeast.
- 1985 graduate of Ohio University.
- Married to wife Kelly. The couple has two children, Paige (6) and Trey (4).

Will Merritt, Color
- In his second year with CTSP first as color commentator.
- Worked pregame and post-game shows in 2002, his first fall out of school.
- Provided color commentary on tape-delay broadcasts of selected Clemson games in 2002.
- Host of "The Morning Drive," a sports talk show that airs from 6:00 AM to 9:00 AM each morning on WCCP (104.9 FM) in Clemson.
- All-ACC offensive guard at Clemson (1999-01).
- Member of All-ACC Academic team for three seasons.
- 2000 graduate of Clemson University.
- Married to wife Melissa.

Jim Phillips, "Voice of the Tigers"

Jim Phillips, the legendary "Voice of the Tigers" for 36 years, passed away on Tuesday, September 5, 2003 at the age of 69. The dean of all broadcasters in the ACC, Phillips came to Clemson in 1968 and broadcast his first Tiger football game on September 11, 1968 for Wike Forest. The Georgia game on August 30, 2000 was his 400th football broadcast.

At 69-years-old, he was the only ACC play-by-play announcer to broadcast his school’s football, men’s & women’s basketball, and baseball games. Over his career, he broadcast over 7,000 Tiger sporting events.

Phillips also served as one of the Clemson football and basketball coach’s shows, including the first two shows of 2003. He broadcast his 1,000th men's basketball game at the 2002 ACC Tournament.

Phillips was one of several legendary broadcasters in his field. He was a five-time recipient of the South Carolina Broadcaster-of-the-Year award. In 1992, he was presented the Master Broadcaster Award by the South Carolina Association of Broadcasters.

Phillips was inducted into the Clemson Athletic Hall of Fame in 1992. In 1998, he received the Skeeter Francis Award from the ACC Sportswriters Association.

A Message to Our Boosters

Tiger fans, thank you for your support! As a fan, NCAA rules could define you as a "representative of our athletics' interests" or a "booster". Once identified as one, you hold this identity forever.

NCAA rules limit our booster's actions. Boosters may not try and persuade prospects, their family members or their coaches to attend a particular school. Additionally, boosters may not provide or arrange financial assistance, transportation or living expenses for a prospect, their families or friends.

There are some NCAA rules that do allow boosters to help Clemson. For example, if you know of any outstanding prospects in your area, send information such as newspaper clippings to our coaches and let them contact the prospect on Clemson's behalf. You can also join IPTAY. IPTAY helps provide scholarship costs for Clemson's 10 men's and nine women's teams.

Once a prospect becomes a college athlete, NCAA rules prohibit anyone other than their family to provide benefits. A full scholarship covers basic educational needs, and these student-athletes with severe financial need can receive Pell grants up to $4,000 and they also can use funds from NCAA special assistance. NCAA rules strictly prohibit booster involvement with prospects and student-athletes.

The penalties for ignoring these rules are too great. Help Clemson athletics operate free of booster problems. If you suspect a violation or have questions about a particular NCAA rule, call Clemson's compliance services office.

Gambling

The Clemson athletic department asks for your cooperation in protecting intercollegiate athletics from the perils of gambling. Not only does the NCAA and Clemson oppose all forms of legal and illegal sports gambling, but it's against the law!

Did you know that sports wagering or gambling activities by Clemson athletic administrators, coaches and student-athletes are violations of NCAA rules and regulations? Please refuse to engage in these activities since penalties for these violations are severe. Violating these rules can result in permanent dismissal, suspension or loss of eligibility for your beloved Tigers.

The NCAA defines wagering and gambling activities as:

- Providing information to individuals involved in organized gambling activities involving NCAA events.
- Soliciting or accepting a bet for cash or prizes on Clemson or any NCAA team.
- Placing bets on any NCAA or professional athletic events through a bookmaker, parlay cards or other means used by organized gambling.

Amateurism & Agents

NCAA rules require student-athletes to maintain their amateur status if they want to participate in NCAA competition. Student-athletes will lose their amateur status if they use their skill for pay or accept promise of future pay while still competing for Clemson. Additionally, student-athletes may not sign a contract with a pro team, receive a salary or expenses from a pro team, compete on a pro team or ask to be placed in a pro draft, or enter into an agreement with an agent.

Once a student-athlete's intercollegiate athletic career is over and the student-athlete has interest in playing professionally, an agent is hired for the purpose of marketing their athletics ability. However, if a student-athlete with eligibility remaining enters into a verbal or written agreement with an agent before their eligibility is complete, they will no longer be able to compete for Clemson. In addition, student-athletes may not accept transportation, clothing, meals, lodging, or any benefit from an agent or agency without jeopardizing their eligibility. Please do not contact our athletics on behalf of any agent or agency.

Conclusion

NCAA rules are complex and at times may seem confusing. If you have questions or would like additional information regarding NCAA rules, contact Clemson compliance services through our e-mail, compliance@clemson.edu, or through our website at www.clemsonpanthers.com/compliance/clem-compliance.html. Again, thank you for your support of Clemson and its athletics' program!
The Atlantic Coast Conference

Consistency. It's the mark of true excellence in any endeavor.

However in today's intercollegiate athletics, competition has become so balanced and so competitive that it is virtually impossible to maintain a high level of consistency.

Yet the Atlantic Coast Conference has defied the odds. Having celebrated its 50th year of competition during the 2002-03 academic year, the ACC has long enjoyed the reputation as one of the strongest and most competitive intercollegiate conferences in the nation. And that is not mere conjecture; the numbers support it.

Since the league's inception in 1953, ACC schools have captured 88 national championships, including 44 in women's competition and 44 in men's. In addition, NCAA individual titles have gone to ACC student-athletes 114 times in men's competition and 51 times in women's action.

History

The Atlantic Coast Conference was founded on May 8, 1953 at the Sedgefield Inn near Greensboro, NC with seven charter members (Clemson, Duke, Maryland, North Carolina, N.C. State, South Carolina, and Wake Forest) drawing up the conference by-laws.

The withdrawal of seven schools from the Southern Conference came early on the morning of May 8, 1953, during the Southern Conference's annual spring meeting. On June 14, 1953, the seven members met in Raleigh, NC, where a set of by-laws was adopted and the name officially became the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Suggestions from fans for the name of the new conference appeared in the region's newspapers prior to the meeting in Raleigh. Some of the names suggested were Blue-Gray, Colonial, Dixie, East Coast, Mid Atlantic, Mid South, Piedmont, Seaboard, Shoreline, Southern Seven, and Tobacco.

Duke's Eddie Cameron recommended that the name of the conference be the Atlantic Coast Conference, and the motion was passed unanimously. The meeting concluded with each member institution assessed $200 to pay for conference expenses.

On December 4, 1953, conference officials met again at Sedgefield and officially admitted Virginia as the league's eighth member. The first and only withdrawal of a school from the ACC came on June 30, 1971, when South Carolina tendered its resignation.

The ACC operated with seven members until April 3, 1978, when Georgia Tech was admitted. The Atlantic school had withdrawn from the Southeastern Conference in January of 1964.

The ACC expanded to nine members on July 1, 1991 with the addition of Florida State. On July 1, 2003, Virginia Tech and Miami (FL) were accepted into the league and will begin competition in the 2004-05 academic year. This will give the ACC 11 members, its highest total at any time in its history.

ACC Football

The Atlantic Coast Conference had an immediate impact on the national college football scene in the fall of 1953 when Maryland captured the first of what would eventually be five national football titles for the ACC within its first 50 years. Clemson laid claim to the league's second national title in 1981, while Georgia Tech followed suit in 1990. Florida State pocketed national titles #4 and #5 in 1993 and 1999.

The nine schools that take to the field this fall under the ACC banner have produced 386 first- or second-team All-Americans and 61 first-team academic All-Americans. ACC teams have had 1,520 players selected in the annual professional football draft, including 113 first-round selections. A year ago, the nine ACC member institutions had 145 former players on NFL rosters during the regular season or playoffs.

If success is best measured in terms of wins and losses, then the ACC over the years has proved itself to be among the elite in Division I-A football. The ACC is the nation's winningest bowl conference, as the nine current league teams are a combined 92-82-5 (.526) in postseason play.

A year ago, the ACC set an NCAA record when seven of its nine teams (78 percent) received bowl bids. Over the past two years, 13 of a possible 18 ACC teams (72 percent) have received bowl bids. Conference bowl participants posted a 4-3 mark and tied a league record, all having finished the regular season with winning records.

Two ACC teams (Georgia Tech and Florida State) rank among the nation's winningest bowl teams. Among teams with 20 or more bowl appearances, the Yellow Jackets stand third behind only Southern California and Penn State with a 20-11 (.645) postseason mark, while the Seminoles are fifth at 18-11-2 (.613).

This past season, the ACC had a consensus All-American, and over the past six years has produced 25 consensus All-Americans. For the third-straight year, the ACC set new football attendance marks. Over 58 home games, ACC teams drew 2,194,930 fans, breaking the previous record of 2,776,724 set in the 2001 season. In addition, in its 50th season, the league eclipsed the 50,000 per-game mark for the first time, averaging 50,775 per game. That mark surpassed the previous single-season record of 49,673 established in 2001.

The ACC set an NCAA record for percentage of teams participating in bowl in 2002 when seven of its nine teams (78 percent) earned bowl bids. ACC teams who participated in bowls in 2002 were Clemson (Tangerine Bowl), Florida State (Sugar Bowl), Georgia Tech (Silicon Valley Classic), Maryland (Peach Bowl), N.C. State (Gator Bowl), Virginia (Continental Tire Bowl), and Wake Forest (Seattle Bowl).

The current nine ACC teams have a combined record of 92-82-5 (.519) in postseason play, the winningest conference mark with at least 50 bowl appearances.

2002 ACC Football Facts

- The ACC set a conference attendance record, drawing 2,944,936 fans and averaging 50,775 per contest.
- For the second time overall, the ACC had four teams ranked in the final Associated Press and Coaches' polls.
- The ACC had 17 football All-Americans (first-team through honorable mention), including Clemson's Brian Mance.
- The ACC was 13-9 (.591) against BCS conference foes, the second-best record among the six BCS conferences.
- The ACC played 47 percent of non-conference games against BCS conference opponents, the best percentage among BCS conferences.
- The ACC had 20 first- or second-team All-ACC players return in 2003.
- Clemson sophomore cornerback Justin Miller led the ACC and tied for fifth in the nation in interceptions (8). He tied the ACC freshman record for interceptions and led the league in kickoff return average. He was the first ACC player since 1985 to lead the league in both categories in the same year, and the first freshman to do it.
- The ACC has two of the nation's top three returning tacklers for the 2003 season, North Carolina safety Dexter Reid and Clemson linebacker John Leake.
- The ACC has 141 starters from the 2002 season returning in 2003.

Tiger Athletic Director Dr. Terry Don Phillips and ACC Commissioner John Swafford were significantly involved in the league's expansion process.

Clemson fans look forward to seeing tough, hard-nosed football when they come to Death Valley or travel to other schools to watch their Tigers in action. But some of the Tigers’ most intense competition and action doesn’t take place on autumn Saturday’s and it doesn’t take place on a field. Take a peek into the Clemson Strength Training Room at almost any time of day, almost any day of the week, at any time of the year, and you will see the Tigers building the foundation for their pursuit of a championship.

Perhaps the most impressive characteristic of the facility is its size. Several years ago, it was enlarged to an astounding 11,000 square feet, making it one of the largest in the nation. In 1998, it was expanded to 14,000 square feet. The facility boasts two full lines of Nautilus machines and over 12 tons of weights. The large number of machines and free weights allows the weight room to be used by athletes from several other sports at the same time, without anyone having to wait in line at a particular station.

Within the last four years, the dumbbell area and leg development areas were expanded as well as the nutrition and hydration area known as the Power Station. The Power Station features the energy and recovery drink to aid each athlete’s recovery from intense training.

The plush atmosphere provides an interesting contrast to the physical exertion that takes place in the facility. When an athlete enters the etched glass doors, he is greeted by plush, wall-to-wall carpeting, walls lined with mirrors, ceiling fans, and music from a 26-speaker sound system - a worthy backdrop for well over $500,000 worth of state-of-the-art equipment.

Color television monitors are also positioned throughout the facility. These monitors are used for training and instruction, as Tiger strength coaches film the athletes and work with them on form correction.

The large staff of five full-time coaches, four graduate assistants, numerous student assistants, and volunteers ensures that each football player receives proper instruction on the fundamentals of strength and speed development. Training programs at Clemson are position specific and designed to meet the needs and demands of each athlete. Also, each position is appointed a full-time strength coach that serves as a personal trainer throughout his/her career.

Hard core training and competition in the weight room and the annual Ironman Classic will help each athlete reach optimal levels in strength and speed development. The Tiger Strength Training and Nutrition Program help each athlete to become a complete player.

Since its inception in 1991, the five-faceted Student-Athlete Enrichment Program has provided its student-athletes a continued commitment to excellence. Our approach is to address the total student-athlete, and we are committed to coaching our student-athletes to success (C.A.T.S.) not only in the athletic arena, but in the academic, personal growth, career, and service arenas as well. As an original member of the NCAA Life Skills/CHAMPS Program, we provide opportunities and services to address the changing needs and skills of student-athletes in the years during college and after graduation.

Clemson University’s commitment to provide its student-athletes with the very best of facilities is evident in many ways. From the soaring upper decks of Memorial Stadium, to “The New Littlejohn Coleseum,” to the state-of-the-art strength training facility; young men and women from all 19 of Clemson’s varsity sports have the very best in facilities for training and competition.

Vickery Hall is no exception, as the $3-million structure is as impressive aesthetically as any of the other facilities. But the importance of Vickery Hall to the Clemson University Athletic Department is not found in the structure itself, but in the many programs that the building houses.

Vickery Hall opened in the spring of 1991 and was the first facility in the nation built solely for the all-around academic support of student-athletes. The two-story, 27,000 square-foot building is open all day and into the evening to accommodate the student-athletes’ extended schedules.

The mission of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Program is to monitor, guide, and encourage Clemson’s student-athletes to fulfill their long-term goals, and to achieve their academic and career potential.

Vickery Hall focuses on five primary areas to meet the student-athlete’s needs.

Academic Commitment
A record eight Clemson athletic teams earned an overall 3.0 GPA for the spring semester of 2003. A record 221 student-athletes were named to the Academic Honor Roll for the semester. Student-athletes had a combined GPA of 2.84, second highest for a semester on record behind a 2.85 mark set in the spring of 2002. At least 200 student-athletes have made the Academic Honor Roll in eight straight semesters.

Thirty-six student-athletes had a perfect 4.0 for the semester, one short of the semester record of 37 set in the spring of 2002. A total of 101 student-athletes were on the dean’s list, the fourth-straight semester the 100 mark had been exceeded.

These outstanding statistics have been a habit in recent years. The cumulative GPA of the athletic teams has improved 18 of the last 24 semesters, making a steady rise from 2.33 to 2.84 over the last 12 years.

Forty-eight student athletes went through graduation exercises last May. Fifteen times in the last five years a Clemson student-athlete has been named to a Verizon Academic All-America team, more than any other five-year period in Clemson history.

One of the most prestigious programs that has received recognition essential to the growth of Vickery Hall is the tutoring program. Of 450 tutoring programs certified by CRLA, the Clemson Student-Athlete Enrichment Program was one of the first three student-athlete programs in the country to be granted all three levels of certification from the College of Reading and Learning Association, International Tutor Certification Program. The program was also honored with the National Champs Skills Excellence Award in 1999, one of only six schools across the country to be honored.

Having tutor certification allows student-athletes to be provided the highest quality of academic assistance possible. Approximately 80 tutors are hired to provide academic support in the many subject areas offered.

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has recognized the need for students to have access to high-quality computing equipment and has made a commitment to provide the student-athletes at Clemson with one of the largest computer labs in the country.

Located on the first floor of Vickery Hall is the Dick Hendley Microcomputer Laboratory. The lab is open seven days a week, for 16 hours on Monday through Thursday, and a limited time on the weekend. Vickery Hall is now a “wireless facility” which allows students in the building with laptop computers to access the campus mainframe without physically plugging into the system.

The lab staff has a full-time computer manager, and is also graduate students, many of whom are pursuing advanced degrees in computer science. Lab staff members are available for tutoring of any Computer Science course, as well as the many management, engineering, and business courses that deal with personal computers.

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is committed to providing state-of-the-art computing facilities. New computers have recently been purchased bringing the lab to a state of the art facility. More than 50 computers are available for student-athletes.

All computers are fully connected to the internet allowing for access of computers throughout the world for research and communication.

The Dick Hendley Computer Lab is one of the areas of Vickery Hall that makes it one of the top facilities of its kind in the nation.
Career Development Commitment
The Career Assistance Program provides student-athletes an opportunity to fulfill career aspirations by participating in various career seminars offered by the Vickery Hall staff. The philosophy of this program is to provide student-athletes with job-searching skills and strategies, internships, practical experience, and summer employment. These programs are designed to address specific career opportunities and channel information about the student-athletes for each year.

By using the resources available to the University, Alumni Center, and the Athletic Department, the staff is working to establish a network of businesses, companies, and executives who will help assist with the Summer Employment Assistance Program. The program’s main goal is to provide the student-athletes with job experience and a work history, which he or she can apply to his or her academic discipline.

The Career Assistance Program is coordinated from the academic colleges, the Placement Center, and through the Athletic Department contacts. This program is designed to better prepare the student-athlete for full-time employment and focuses on resume writing and interview techniques.

The SAEP career assistance program has a full-time career counselor housed in Vickery Hall. Unique to our program, the career counselor is a member of the Michelin Career Center staff as well as the Student-Athlete Enrichment staff. This link between athletics and the Michelin Career Center provides student-athletes the most up-to-date information and resources in career development and preparation for entrance into the job market upon graduation.

Personal Development Commitment
One of the most important programs that helps student-athletes reach their full potential and engage successfully in this college experience is the Personal Growth and Development Program.

One of the key components of this program is the first-semester freshman transition class designed to assist the student-athlete in making a successful transition into his/her university and athletic life.

All first-semester freshmen attend a semester-long series of workshops targeting the transitional issues of time management, organizational strategies, health and wellness issues, athletic issues, diversity issues, career orientation, and service training. Throughout the academic year, all student-athletes are required to attend four large-group programs, which focus on pertinent social, health, and athletic issues.

Service Commitment
Providing community and outreach service to student-athletes and the surrounding community by engaging the student-athletes in hands-on interactive programs is an important aspect of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs. The staff of SAEP coordinates various activities each year to engage student-athletes in community outreach projects along with academic programs.

Another aspect of the service commitment is that of community service. The purpose of community service is to allow student-athletes to become involved with the happenings of the community while giving back at the same time. Each year, every team is required to perform at least two community outreach projects. Recently implemented was a new community service program entitled “Success Away From the Game.”

The purpose of this program is to combine athletes of different sports in community outreach programs. Each outreach program participates, thus creating a diverse group of athletes with new and different ideas. At the end of each year, six student-athletes who have demonstrated outstanding commitment and contributions to the community are recognized as the Top Six by the ACC.

To assist our student-athletes in becoming effective service leaders and communicators, we provide service and speaking training, which anticipates the demands placed on a student-athlete when he/she might be speaking with a group of young people with members of the media.

Clemson’s “Rock” solid tradition includes having its student-athletes earn their degrees even before their eligibility is finished. The 2003 Clemson football team has eight players who are playing as graduate students. Left, J.J. Howard, Kevin Youngblood, DeJuan Polk, Chad Jasmin, Gregory Walker, Khaled Vaughn, and William Henry have all made significant contributions on the field. Above, Tony Elliott receives his diploma from President Jim Barker.
FOCUSED ON EMERGENCY CARE

Your son slides into home and you’re sure he’s broken his arm. Your husband sprains his ankle acting like a 10-year-old at the bowling alley. Your mother mentions symptoms you believe could be a heart attack.

The things that bring us to a hospital Emergency Department are as varied as our community and, when you’re the one with the emergency, every visit is serious business.

That’s why we’re committing a great deal of time, attention and resources to creating an Emergency Department our community can count on – the best people and the best technology, all to provide the best emergency treatment possible.

We sincerely hope you never need our services. But we promise to be here when you do, with care you can believe in.

IPTAY Endowment Program

IPTAY is widely regarded nationally as the father of Athletic Fundraising. It all started in 1934 and from a private meeting of a small group of Clemson supporters has sprung into an organization that raised a record $16 million in 2001. The organization plays a major role in ensuring that all of the varsity sports at Clemson are given the maximum amount of scholarships offered by the NCAA.

The organization also has helped finance facilities that contribute to the well-being of student-athletes on and off the field. Vickery Hall is a 27,000 square-foot facility that houses the tutoring and advising programs. It's a major reason Clemson student-athletes have had their highest cumulative GPA on record for five consecutive semesters.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Endowment was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for non-athletes who are highly qualified academically. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Fund is presently the largest scholarship endowment of its kind at Clemson, helping more than 40 students at Clemson.

Executive Director George Bennett has continued to keep Clemson among the best in the nation in terms of fundraising by the establishment of the IPTAY Endowment Program. In 1994, he kicked off the beginning of the endowment of positions program at the 85th birthday celebration for Frank Howard. The endowments are secure with a $100,000 donation paid over a five-year period.

"This is a chance to broaden the horizons of IPTAY," said Bennett. "It gives an individual or a group of people an opportunity to endow a position that meant something during their college days, or to honor a person at a position. The money being endowed is going to secure our future as the interest is used to carry on our program forever."

The first endowment was for the head football coach position to honor the legendary Frank Howard. He coached at Clemson 39 years, 30 as the head coach. During his tenure, the Tigers won 165 games, 100 of which were against conference foes.

"Former players and friends of Coach Howard made donations over the cost of attending the celebration program and that was enough for the endowment. Their gifts were a way of permanently thanking Coach Howard for all that he did for Clemson."

"Following Coach Howard's birthday party, we began to look for an individual to help us support and promote the program, and Bill Hudson's name came up. He was an outstanding player at Clemson who has been equally successful in the business world. We went to him and explained the program and its goals, and that we were looking for his leadership to help get the program going, and he accepted."

Hudson, a 1956 Clemson graduate, was a three-year letterman at tackle who played professionally for the Montreal Alouettes, San Diego Chargers, and Boston Patriots. He earned Pro Bowl honors in 1962. Hudson sees this program growing into a large part of Clemson's athletic funding.

"When other people see information on the endowment program and learn what it is about this program will grow. Success builds on success. People who are looking to honor a friend or family member now have a great means to do that."

Besides the Hudson's family endowment, four other football endowments were made, and one managers position in the first year. Now there are more than 100 positions endowed. The goal of the program is to get every position endowed.

"From the free safety to the #3 player in women's tennis, we hope to have every position endowed," said Bennett. "We will likely use the Avenue of Champions as a physical place to honor these people further for the positions they have endowed. That will have plenty of space, so we will be working to have as many endowments in all of our sports."

"The personal satisfaction that they helped Clemson University, specifically the athletic department, and that they are securing its future are the main reasons for becoming involved."

And with more involvement, Clemson University will have a secure future for generations to come.

The Clemson Athletic Department would like to thank the following donors for their generous and loyal support of the Tigers!

Clemson fans and ACC media are interested to follow Purnell's approach. One of the most respected coaches in the nation, he was a finalist for the Naismith Award last year and has been selected to be one of the United States Olympic Team coaches for 2004. Opposing coaches have given testimony to his abilities, especially when it comes to pregame preparation and strategy against a more talented opponent. He is a coach that has a history of adapting his styles to his personnel, but he does have some basic tenets for success that will be impressed upon his first Tiger team.

"We will be a team that will depend on defense and rebounding. We are going to look to run every time we get the numbers. We want to be a team that makes a good decision when to run and when not to run."

"A key will be taking care of the basketball, not beating ourselves with turnovers or by taking bad shots. There are some good transition teams in this league, so it will be important to get back on defense. We played Duke last year (as Dayton's coach) and we know how they can get up and down the floor, so transition defense will be important."

"We will work on our press defense the first week of practice. That is like throwing guys into the water to see what kind of swimming instincts they have. Pressing instinct is important in determining whether or not we will press. We will determine early in preseason if we have players who have the quickness and instincts as anticipators. We won't be able to determine that until we go through practice."

One of the most obvious changes in Clemson offensively will be its basic offensive set. Purnell teams use an inside-out passing game, a change from recent Clemson teams that were perimeter oriented in their attack, focusing on the talents of guards Will Solomon and Edward Scott. Clemson frontcourt players had just 47 assists in 28 games a year ago. In Purnell's system, that group could have that many assists by midseason.

"I have always played the game in the halfcourt from an inside-out approach. You throw the ball in, you draw the defense in, you put pressure on the defense, draw double teams, and create open shots. When the ball goes up, you hit the offensive glass. Over the course of a 40-minute game, it causes defensive problems."

From the defensive standpoint, the Tigers will be multiple. "We will use zone defenses, but it will not be the basis of what we do. People want to run from a zone a few years ago, but it is becoming more and more prominent. Syracuse's success with a zone defense in its drive to the national championship last year probably will put it in vogue this year. We like to use a man-to-man when possible from a matchup standpoint."

From an overall team goals standpoint, Purnell's approach to bringing Clemson back to postseason play for the first time since 1998-99 will begin from the mental aspect of the game. "I want this team to be mentally tough, the kind of team that can sustain toughness for 40 minutes. We want a team that fights for every loose ball and rebound."

"I am going to tell our guys that our goal is to win every game we can. I want them to go into every game with the idea that we can win and that we are going to do everything we can to achieve that victory. Overall, I want this team to show improvement over the course of the season. If we are mentally tough and show improvement as the season progresses, then everything will take care of itself."

While Clemson returns four starters from the 2002-03 season, it must replace its top player (Scott). Clemson's first point guard to make First Team All-ACC in 43 years, Scott's leadership and court savvy will be missed, as will his 17.7 points and 5.8 assists per game, figures that ranked in the top five in the ACC in both categories. He concluded his career with 1,226 points, 595 assists, and 433 rebounds, one of nine players in ACC history with 1,000 points, 500 assists, and 400 rebounds in a career.

"Replacing Edward Scott is one of our biggest question marks heading into the season," said Purnell, who had a history of developing outstanding point guards during his career at Dayton.

"We have a few possibilities we will experiment with in the preseason. Shawan Robinson could start there and we could rotate him with Chey, who has played some point here and in high school. Vernon Hamilton is a freshman who has some outstanding credentials. Rarely do you have a Kenny Anderson or a Phil Ford come into your program, but I am not against playing a freshman at point guard."

Christie is Clemson's leading returning scorer after connecting at a 11.5 rate as a sophomore, starting 27 of the 28 games a year ago. The 6'4" guard played 31.6 minutes per game as Scott's running mate, hitting 60 percent from the foul line and 40.1 percent from the field. He has been working hard in the offseason on his shooting and looks to improve on his 29 percent three-point accuracy of a year ago.

Christie, the brother of Tony Christie, who played on three Clemson NCAA Tournament teams under Rick Barnes and an NIT finalist under Larry Shyatt, has some defensive quickness and ranked seventh in the ACC in steals per game. He had brilliant games at times last year, including a 25-point performance in a victory over Georgia Tech and an efficient 16-point outing in a victory at Virginia. He had just 59 turnovers in 28 games.
Babalola was voted the team's top defensive player last year and was a big reason Clemson improved its scoring defense in conference games by 14 points per game last year as compared to the 2001-02 season. Assigned to a variety of players of all shapes and sizes, Babalola finished with 34 steals from his small forward position, a starting role he held in 26 of the 28 games last year.

The 6'6' powerful athlete has lost 20 pounds since last season and was third on the team in scoring last year with a 7.6 points per game average. He also contributed 5.7 rebounds per game and scored 42.3 percent from the field. His offensive game improved over the course of the season, including a 17-point performance at Georgia Tech in the final regular-season game when he made 7 of 9 field goals. His top moment of the season came at home against Virginia, when he made two free throws with 5.7 seconds left to give Clemson a 78-77 victory.

Beko scored 1.9 points per game last year when he played just 10 minutes per game. A streak shooter in practice and at times in games, Beko could see significant playing time if he shows consistency in making shots. The native of Slovakia played his high school basketball in Sharon, PA.

Rice has been at Clemson since last January, but is an unknown quantity. He sat out last season after two successful seasons at Mott Community College near Detroit. He averaged 16 points and seven rebounds per game, and shot 57 percent from the field in his final season. An honorable mention junior college All-American, Rice was named to the National Junior College All-Tournament team each of his two years at Mott, who finished 65-8 for the two seasons Rice was in the lineup.

Two starters and four lettermen return to lead the post players. Based on his coaching history, Purnell hopes to use all four on a rotating basis. "We used a four-player scheme in the frontcourt at Dayton and I would love to continue that at Clemson," said Purnell.

Hobb's and Ford are returning starters at strong forward and center, respectively. They both had a significant impact on Clemson's 9-0 start last year, but were less prominent in the second half of the season when the offense revolved around Scott.

Bobb, the only senior on the Tiger roster among scholarship players, averaged 6.3 points and 5.5 rebounds per game as a junior. A double-digit scorer as a freshman, Hobbs shot 51 percent from the field last year, but took just 4.7 shots per game from the field. For his career, he has made 54 percent of his shots from the field, 118th best in Clemson history.

He enters his senior year with 745 career points and 379 career rebounds.

Ford led the team in field-goal percentage and rebounding, and finished fourth in scoring in 2002-03. A 56.4 percent field-goal scorer for the year, he averaged 7.5 points per game. He led Clemson in rebounding in 13 games and finished sixth in the ACC in offensive rebounds per game, including eighth in overall rebounding. For his career, the 6'9" junior has made 58 percent of his shots, a figure that would rank fourth in Clemson history if he had enough made field goals to qualify. He needs 52 more to be included on the list.

Akinnobola is a sophomore who played just 65 minutes as a reserve behind 2002-03 seniors Playtisford, and Tomas Nagys. He made six of his nine field goal attempts and scored 14 total points in his 13 games. He has the build and timing of a shot blocker, and could be a defensive force on the inside. Steve Allen red-shirted last season after playing in five games as a freshman in 2001-02.

The 2003-04 schedule is one of the most challenging in school history, certainly the most challenging for a first-year Tiger coach. The ACC will return 21 double-digit scorers from the 2002-03 season and 35 of the 45 players who were considered starters during the season, tying the league record for the most starters returning for one season.

The Purnell era will open on Friday, November 21 when Gardner-Webb comes to Littlejohn Coliseum. The Tigers will have 11 non-conference contests, including meetings with nationally re-ranked programs Cincinnati, Boston College, Georgia, South Carolina, and Purdue. The Tigers will travel to Cincinnati and Purdue (ACC-Big Ten Challenge), and play both Boston College and South Carolina in Littlejohn Coliseum. The Georgia game will be played at Phillips Arena in Atlanta, GA.

"This is obviously a very challenging schedule," said Purnell. "When you look at the quality of our non-conference opponents along with the normal difficulty of the ACC schedule, we will have to be at a high level every night out. I believe it is a schedule that will force our team to improve as the year progresses. It is the kind of schedule that will challenge our players and excite our fans."

Tim Bourtou is Clemson's Sports Information Director and is in his 26th year at Clemson.
"Listen, I learned a long time ago that if you’re gonna be successful, you got to work with folks who are willing to go the extra mile, people who always do whatever it takes. I was lucky to find football players who weren’t scared of the extra mile. Kind of surprised me to find a bank that feels the same way. Everybody — and I mean everybody — at Carolina First is real familiar with the extra mile. Hey, I ask them to do a lot for me, and they’ve never let me down. That’s why Carolina First is such a good bank.

They spend a lot of time on the extra mile."

by Mark Spede, Director of Bands

At halftime of today’s Homecoming game against #24 Virginia, Tiger Band will present a musical tribute to one of the greatest bands to come out of the 1970s. Combining elements of funk, rock, jazz, gospel, blues, soul, Motown, and a rhythmic vitality from their African-American heritage, Earth, Wind, and Fire is still entertaining audiences 30 years later. The Tiger Band medley features four of Earth, Wind, and Fire’s greatest hits: “In the Stone,” “Getaway,” “September,” and “Fantasy.” We then present the Homecoming Queen and her court to their ballad, “After the Love is Gone.”

To conclude today’s Homecoming show, Tiger Band alumni get a chance to dust off their old instruments and once again play “Tiger Rag.” The 21st annual “Blast from the Past” will bring close to 200 Tiger Band alumni on the field to perform with the 2003 edition of Tiger Band.

“Dotting the i” today during pregame festivities will be Ann Whitely, named Tiger Brotherhood’s Mother-of-the-Year. Pregame concludes with the “most exciting 25 seconds in college football.”

The sponsor of the Tiger Band alumni band is an organization called CUTBA. The Clemson University Tiger Band Association exists to provide support and to promote the interests of Tiger Band, to provide support for other music activities and programs at Clemson, and particularly, to provide funds and support of music scholarships and awards.

CUTBA was founded in 1978 by alumni and friends of Tiger Band. The CUTBA Board of Directors meets regularly, along with the Director of Tiger Band and the Tiger Band Commander, to determine means of accomplishing its objectives and enhancing the Tiger Band experience for the students. The early vision of CUTBA was to make scholarships and awards available for Tiger Band members. The CUTBA Scholarship and Award Endowment was established through the University Foundation in 1987. Each year, CUTBA allocates a portion of its operating funds to this endowment. These funds and the investment growth have taken the CUTBA Scholarship and Award Endowment to over $170,000. This endowment provides funds for scholarships, grants-in-aid and the Tiger Band Leadership Awards (cash awards to Tiger Band staff members and section leaders).

Other than profits from CD sales, CUTBA is funded by contributions from Tiger Band alumni, parents, and friends who care about the growth of music at Clemson University and want to actively participate in its advancement. As Tiger Band reaches for the next level of excellence, it is critical that our fundraising efforts keep pace with other university band programs in order to attract talented high school instrumentalists to Clemson.

If you wish to support Tiger Band in its efforts, please consider joining CUTBA. For more information, visit www.clemson.edu/tigerband. Thank you!

Tiger Band CD

Remember that you can take home the sounds of Tiger Band by purchasing the group’s CD, “Shakin’ the Southland.” The CD features 30 famous Tiger fan favorites from previous football seasons. It includes “Sock It To ’Em,” “Tiger Rag,” and the Clemson Alma Mater. The CD is available at the Tiger Band Office (119 Brooks Center) for $15. To order by mail, send a check payable to CUTBA for $17 ($15 plus $2 shipping and handling) to CUTBA c/o Clemson Tiger Band, 119 Brooks Center, Clemson, SC 29634-1925.

Tiger Band’s new CD, “We’re an American Band,” was released in late September and is now available. It contains all the Clemson favorites, plus a special emphasis on patriotic songs.

With the passing of Jim Phillips on September 9, Clemson lost one of its great treasures. He was one of the most respected broadcasters in the business. Every play-by-play announcer in the ACC called the Clemson athletic department to express their condolences and celebrate Phillips’ impact on their lives. Below are testimonies to his friendship from the league’s other “voices.”

“For those of us who are a little bit younger, men like Jim Phillips were the reason that many of us got into broadcasting. We wanted to do what he did and be like him. When I met Jim in the fall of 1996, my first year at Wake Forest, my decision to try to be a broadcaster was validated. We’ll all miss his work, but most of all I’ll miss the smile on my face that broke out instantly when I saw him. I’m smiling now just thinking of him.”

Stan Cotton, Wake Forest

“While waiting in the hotel to leave for our basketball game with Clemson a couple of years back, I was drinking a cup of coffee and reading the Tigers’ basketball press guide. In the bio on “Voice of the Tigers,” Jim Phillips noted that he was born in Youngstown, OH. I was born in Warren, OH, which is located about eight miles from Youngstown, and when I arrived at Littlejohn Coliseum, I stopped to visit with Jim and mentioned the hometown similarities.

“Jim sort of apologized about listing Youngstown as his hometown. He said, “Gene, I really didn’t grow up in Youngstown. I grew up in a real small town that nobody ever heard of...a little town just outside Youngstown called Mineral Ridge.

“Not only had I heard of Mineral Ridge, but that was my father’s hometown, and the place where I was raised from birth to the second grade. My grandfather had a farm in the Ridge and had built his family home there in 1919 after returning from Europe at the end of World War I. My father graduated from Jim’s alma mater, Mineral Ridge High School, and I attended Mineral Ridge Elementary School in the same building as the high school in the first and second grades.

“Further, Jim delivered newspapers in the Ridge and remembered my grandparents address - 25 West Liberty Street. Can you believe it? While I was living in Mineral Ridge, Jim was delivering papers to my house! I called my father, he called his sister. All were amazed at the incredible coincidence. Two of the nine radio voices of the Atlantic Coast Conference were from the same hometown!

“Although we had been friends and part of the unique broadcasting fraternity of ACC announcers, we seemed to become best of friends - almost family. And every time we crossed paths...in the press box at Memorial Stadium or Doak S. Campbell Stadium, Littlejohn or Tallahassee-Leon County Coliseum, our conversation always started with the latest from the Ridge.”

Jim Phillips, Georgia Tech

“It must be a hell of a day going on in Heaven with Bob Bradley, Frank Howard, and Jim Phillips up there. This guy truly was a man for all seasons at Clemson. I feel very lucky to have met Jim with my dad at a young age, and then get to know him as a col-

"I first met Jim 35 years ago at the Kemper Open golf tournament in Charlotte. I was working at a very small radio station in Albemarle, NC and Jim was already working at Clemson. He gave me some great advice and some very valuable information.

"Schools may be rivals, but we broadcasters are more like a fraternity. Jim always had a joke for you or something to lift your spirits no matter what was going on. You liked to be around Jim Phillips. I am just so proud I was one of his friends."

Bob Harris, Duke

"The thing that sticks out most about Jim Phillips was that he wasn't a broadcaster, he was a regular guy. He did not act big-time, he never took himself to be more than he was. That's probably one of the reasons everyone loved him so much.

"The first time we met (1979), Jim impressed me as being one of the nicest and most helpful of all the ACC broadcasters. Since I was the new kid on the block, Jim went out of his way to visit with me before and after the game with Clemson. He wanted to make sure I had everything I needed on the Tigers.

"I'm sure one reason for his success and longevity was his accessibility to his listeners. Time after time when I was getting together with Jim before a game, there seemed to be a steady stream of Clemson fans that would stop by to say hi. Jim would always take time to trade stories with them, and naturally would introduce me to them. In the early 80s, on one occasion, when introduced by Jim to a Clemson fan, I was told by that fan...good luck with broadcasting the Terps, hope you are as good as Jim Phillips...and last as long as Jim. I can honestly say, I am not as good as Jim, but hopefully will be able to last 36 years as Jim did.

"Jim's personality both on the air and off left no doubt, he came across as loving his Tigers, loving what he did, whether it was radio or television, football, baseball, or basketball, men or women. His love of the game was obvious to all.

"There are few broadcasters this day and age that can stay with one university 36 years. That in itself says so much about Jim.

"During last year's visit to Clemson, I brought along a copy of my book to give Jim during the football season. At the same time, Jim had brought along his scrapbook to show me how much our careers had taken the same path. I had such a great time looking at his photos and stories, I never got around to giving him the book. All we did was sit in the press box and laugh our heads off as we slowly went through his scrapbook. I will miss him terribly."

Johnny Holliday, Maryland

"Jim was the kind of guy you liked from the first minute you met him. He never talked down to anyone, and as a young broadcaster in the early 80s, I remember how important he made me feel. Jim's spring baseball broadcast schedule did not allow him to participate in my charity golf tournament, but he made a cash donation (to the UVA Children's Medical Center) anyway. That's just how he was...he cared about so many people other than himself. I'm going to miss him terribly."

Mac McDonald, Virginia

"Jim was a broadcaster's broadcaster. Jim was always very much under control. He let the game carry the broadcast. It wasn't 'I'm Jim Phillips, hear me roar.' It was 'Let the Tigers roar.' He was always so very respected by his peers.

"I'm sure one reason for his success and longevity was his accessibility to his listeners. "Jim was the kind of guy you liked from the first minute you met him. He never talked down to anyone, and as a young broadcaster in the early 80s, I remember how important he made me feel. Jim's spring baseball broadcast schedule did not allow him to participate in my charity golf tournament, but he made a cash donation (to the UVA Children's Medical Center) anyway. That's just how he was...he cared about so many people other than himself. I'm going to miss him terribly."

"Jim was a broadcaster's broadcaster. Jim was always very much under control. He let the game carry the broadcast. It wasn't 'I'm Jim Phillips, hear me roar.' It was 'Let the Tigers roar.' He was always so very respected by his peers.

"I'm sure one reason for his success and longevity was his accessibility to his listeners. Time after time when I was getting together with Jim before a game, there seemed to be a steady stream of Clemson fans that would stop by to say hi. Jim would always take time to trade stories with them, and naturally would introduce me to them. In the early 80s, on one occasion, when introduced by Jim to a Clemson fan, I was told by that fan...good luck with broadcasting the Terps, hope you are as good as Jim Phillips...and last as long as Jim. I can honestly say, I am not as good as Jim, but hopefully will be able to last 36 years as Jim did.

"Jim's personality both on the air and off left no doubt, he came across as loving his Tigers, loving what he did, whether it was radio or television, football, baseball, or basketball, men or women. His love of the game was obvious to all.

"There are few broadcasters this day and age that can stay with one university 36 years. That in itself says so much about Jim.

"During last year's visit to Clemson, I brought along a copy of my book to give Jim during the football season. At the same time, Jim had brought along his scrapbook to show me how much our careers had taken the same path. I had such a great time looking at his photos and stories, I never got around to giving him the book. All we did was sit in the press box and laugh our heads off as we slowly went through his scrapbook. I will miss him terribly."

When I wrote my pregame dedication to Jim Phillips for the opening of the Clemson Middle Tennessee broadcast a month ago, there was one story I left out. I knew if I started to tell it live on the air, I might not get through the segment.

The day after Jim’s death I got a call from Jeff Jeffers, sports director of WNDU-TV in South Bend, IN, who has been with the NBC affiliate since 1975. He had met the “Voice of the Tigers” in 1979 when Clemson made its only trip to Notre Dame Stadium, a game Clemson won 16-10.

Nearly every time I had talked with Jeff since then he always asked how Jim Phillips was doing. When he called on September 10 to ask me if I thought Notre Dame would one day be in the ACC, I told him of Jim’s sudden passing and he immediately expressed his condolences. At the end of the conversation, he said he would go over to the Grotto on Notre Dame’s campus and light a candle for the “Voice of the Tigers.”

I wish that I had told that story at some point during the broadcast because it speaks volumes about Jim Phillips, his character, and his level of respect among his peers, locally and nationally. Here was a broadcaster 800 miles away who spent time with him over just one weekend in 1979, and he felt compelled by his passing to go out of his way to spiritually honor him at one of Notre Dame’s most famous landmarks.

Why was Jim Phillips so revered by fans, players, coaches, and media colleagues?

He was a blue-collar worker with no ego. That was a common thread in testimonial letters on the previous two pages of this program from his ACC colleagues. Whether he was stopped by Brent Musburger, Dick Vitale (who ranked him on his website just last year as one of his top 20 college basketball announcers), or a young announcer with a visiting student radio station, Phillips always gave the person the time of day and some even.

Though he was never a state employee, he probably did as much for Clemson public relations as anyone this side of Bob Bradley over the last four decades.

And speaking of Mr. B, there were a lot of common denominators between Clemson’s longtime sports information director and Phillips. They worked together for 33 years in the SID/broadcaster roles, so they learned from each other. Bradley was respected nationally in his field for his ability to represent Clemson in a professional manner with unparalleled credibility. Like Phillips, Bradley treated a media member for Sports Illustrated or the student paper with the same patience and decorum. Both men never met a stranger.

Both had incredible streaks of attendance that ended in the middle of a football season. Bradley worked 501 consecutive football games between 1955-1999. Phillips worked 401 Clemson football games and passed away just three days after doing the Clemson-Furman game on September 6. Both were well known for their contributions to Clemson football and basketball, but the truth is their favorite sport was baseball. I wish I had a tape recorder for some of those pregame baseball discussions when I was surrounded in the dugout by Bradley, Phillips, and Coach Bill Wilhelm.

Clemson fans are hard-working, down-to-earth people, and that is a reason both Bradley and Phillips fit in at Clemson. Even though Jim grew up in Ohio and never had a southern accent, he had a way with Clemson people. I do not know how many people told me they would just turn the radio on and scan the dial until they found Jim’s voice, then they knew they had found the Clemson game.

I remember one baseball game a couple of years back when Jim was on his way to the field to do a postgame interview with Coach Jack Leggett. He was stopped by a fan in a wheelchair who started to ask Jim questions about the game. Another fan interrupted and said, “Let Jim go. He needs to get to the field.” But, Jim responded, “No, Coach Leggett can wait a couple of minutes, I’m going to answer these questions.”

When I think of Jim Phillips, the words that come to my mind are credibility, professionalism, and enthusiasm. At age 69, he was the only ACC broadcaster who worked football, basketball (men and women), and baseball. He might have been the only play-by-play announcer in the nation to do all four sports at the same time.

But, he still worked as hard for a women’s basketball broadcast as he did for a football game. Perhaps no one benefited from his overall love of Clemson athletics more than women’s basketball (and my late husband Dave). Davis was away when the first to tell you that Jim brought instant credibility to his program. When the Lady Tigers won the ACC Tournament.
