NO RETREAT. NO SURRENDER.

A great strategy for winning football games.
Not so great when it comes to your weekend home.

Just 17 miles from Death Valley, there's a place to get away from it all. To retreat from the crowds. To surrender to the pleasures of lakeside living. At The Reserve, we've created an extraordinary community with spectacular Jack Nicklaus Signature Golf, boating, and an array of amenities for the entire family. And while the pleasures of living — and playing — on the lake are endless, the opportunity is limited. Call us after the game to reserve your place in this one-of-kind year round retreat.

And surrender to the charms of mountain lake living

What's Inside

Banks McFadden ............................................. 6,7
Clemson's Greatest Athlete
The late Banks McFadden was tagged "Great" by the likes of Tiger legend Frank Howard. That moniker was not universally sold, but it could have been - and perhaps should have been. He rests near Howard, who watched greatness develop in the string-bean-like teenager McFadden of the late 1930s.

Cole Downer ............................................. 9
Senior Spotlight
This senior tight end is a fall-year typical college football player. He has taken a very different road than most to earn a place on the Clemson football team. His hard work and dedication led him to a starting spot during this, his senior year. But he faces one more obstacle due to his recent injury.

Tigers in the NFL ........................................ 49
18 Former Tigers on NFL Rosters
Read brief bios on the 18 former Tigers who are on NFL rosters, including Keith Adams, Alireza Currie, Nick Eason (pictured right), Rod Gardner, Derrick Hamilton, Leroy Hill, John Leake, Justin Miller, Khaled Vaughn, Donnell Washington, and Kevin Youngblood, who all played under Tommy Bowden.

Vic Koenning ........................................... 49
First-Year Tiger Assistant Coach
The first-year defensive coordinator coaches from the Death Valley sidelines, and has declined the opportunity to run down the Hill. It is not Koenning's fear of heights that has led him to take the short walk from the locker room to the field. He is just waiting to earn the privilege.

Boston College Series History .................................. 117
Clemson vs. Boston College
Clemson and Boston College have met 14 times prior to this year's meeting, but have not faced each other since 1983 when Doug Flutie was the third-most prominent athlete in Boston behind Larry Bird and Carl Yastrzemski. Only Miami (FL) has played Boston College more among ACC foes than the Tigers.

Gary Barnes .............................................. 127
Former Tiger & Current Judge
Barnes, who played football at Clemson from 1959-61 and this year was inducted into the South Carolina Athletic Hall of Fame, has served as a judge in Clemson's Municipal Court for nearly 20 years. His affiliation with Clemson dates to the mid-1950s when he was recruited to Clemson by Frank Howard.
Tigers, Eagles Look To Return to Win Column

Clemson and Boston College will both look to return to the victory column after difficult losses last weekend when the two teams meet at noon today. Both lost home games as top-25 teams to teams from the state of Florida, who were also ranked in the top 15.

The Tigers had the more thrilling game, as Miami (FL) drowned Clemson 36-30 in triple overtime, the first overtime loss in Tiger history after five victories. It was the longest game in Clemson history in terms of overtime periods and in terms of game duration. The game took 4:10 to play, 12 minutes longer than the double overtime game against Wake Forest in the season opener of 2004.

Boston College had a 17-14 lead in the second half, then dropped a 28-17 decision to Bobby Bowden and the Seminoles. It was the first ACC game for Boston College, who had been in the Big East Conference prior to moving to the ACC.

Clemson has been playing a lot of close games of late. In fact, nine of its last 14 games have been decided by seven points or less, and all nine have been decided by a play inside the last minute. That includes all three games so far this year. Jad Dean kicked a 42-yard field goal with two seconds left to beat Texas A&M. Reggie Merriweather raced 38 yards for a score with 2:58 left at Maryland, then the Clemson defense stopped the Maryland offense with 47 seconds remaining.

While Clemson has had nine games in the last two years decided by seven points or less, Boston College has had just three. A year ago, Wake Forest beat the Eagles in Winston-Salem, NC 17-14, and Pittsburgh defeated Boston College 20-17 in overtime. The other close game was a 24-23 win at Notre Dame last year.

Boston College has not had as many heartstoppers in recent years. The Eagles of Tom O'Brien have won just four games by seven points or less over the last 39 games, and three of those victories have come against Notre Dame. The other was a 34-27 win over Virginia Tech in 2003.

Boston College has not had a game decided by 10 points or less yet this year. The Eagles started the year with a 20-3 win at Brigham Young, then defeated Army 44-7 at home. Then, Florida State took an 11-point win in the third game of the year.

When one looks at Clemson's stats for this year, one can see why all three games have come down to the wire. Clemson has been outscored by the opposition by one point (84-83), there has been just a 17-yard total offense differential between Clemson and the opposition (1,066-1,049), and both Clemson and the opposition have the same number of rushing first downs (24).

Whitehurst Aims For Win Over 10th ACC Team

Charlie Whitehurst is already the first quarterback in ACC history to defeat nine different ACC teams. He turned the trick last year when he was victorious at Miami (FL). He will get a chance to defeat a 10th different ACC team when the Tigers take on Boston College today. This will be the first opportunity for Whitehurst against the Eagles, who are playing just their second ACC game, including their first ACC road game.

Whitehurst has a 12-9 record against ACC teams, and the 12 wins have come against nine different teams. The native of Duluth, GA is 2-1 against Duke, 2-2 against Maryland, 2-0 against North Carolina, 1-1 against Florida State, 1-1 against Georgia Tech, 1-1 against Miami (FL), 1-1 against N.C. State, 1-1 against Wake Forest, and 1-1 against Virginia.

After Saturday, the only ACC team Whitehurst has not started against will be Virginia Tech. To have an opportunity to defeat the Hokies, the Tigers will have to be matched up with them in the ACC Championship game on December 3.

In terms of records in various situations, Whitehurst is 13-4 at home, 6-7 in away games, 1-1 at neutral sites, 8-3 in non-conference games, 12-9 in ACC games, 7-3 in ACC home games, and 5-6 in ACC road games. The 8-3 non-conference record includes a 3-0 mark against South Carolina. On November 19, he will have a chance to become the first quarterback in Clemson history to defeat the Gamecocks four times.

Whitehurst already owns or co-owns 38 Clemson records, and another should move to his column at the start of today's game. Whitehurst has started 32 consecutive games as Clemson's quarterback, tying the record held by Tommy Kendrick, who started 32 in a row from 1969-71. Whitehurst has a 20-12 record as a starting quarterback in the previous 32 games.

Clemson gained 378 yards of total offense against Miami, and Whitehurst had 346 of them on his stat line, including 288 passing and a career-high 58 rushing. It marked the first time Whitehurst had led the Tigers in rushing in a game. The 346 yards rank as his second-best, single-game figure of his four-year career. The only total that is higher is the 414 yards of total offense Whitehurst accumulated at Duke in his first college start in 2002.

Boston College Update

Boston College played its first ACC game against Bobby Bowden and Florida State in Chestnut Hill, MA last weekend, and now must play its first ACC road game against Clemson and Head Coach Tommy Bowden today. It will be Boston College's first trip to Death Valley since 1982, when Doug Flutie quarterbacked the Eagles to a 17-17 tie against a Tiger team that finished the year with a 9-1-1 record and a #8 final AP ranking.

The Eagles have a 2-1 record this year, and the key for the Eagles has been a strong defense. One stat to watch today will be rushing. The Eagles rank third in the nation in rushing defense, allowing just 93 yards per game, a figure that also leads the ACC. Boston College has allowed just 38 points in three games, 15th best in the nation, and has given up just 281 yards per game, 22nd best in the country.

The leader of the Boston College defense is 6'-7", 262-pound defensive end Mathias Kiwanuka. Kiwanuka was the Big East Defensive Player-of-the-Year in 2004, and his statistics were enough to impress many of the ACC sportswriters in the offseason, as he was named the preseason ACC Defensive Player-of-the-Year. Last year, the native of Indianapolis, IN had 25.5 tackles for loss among his 57 tackles. He earned his 2005 reputation among the ACC media off an incredible performance in the Continental Tire Bowl last year, when he had five tackles for loss against North Carolina. He led the Big East in sacks (11.5) last year as well.

The Boston College offense has been strong via the run over the years, especially under Head Coach Tom O'Brien. In fact, Boston College has had six 1,000-yard rushers in the last seven seasons, and last year a committee of three running backs combined for over 1,500 yards. L.V. Whitworth is carrying on the tradition this year with 238 rushing yards in three games on 56 carries, and he will be a player the Tiger defense will key on today.

Will Blackmon is an outstanding all-around receiver who leads the club with 13 catches for 172 yards and two touchdowns to go with 57 kickoff return yards and 29 punt return yards. He has 279 all-purpose yards, just one less than Whitworth.

Quarterback Quinton Porter and Matt Ryan are a combined 76-105 for 761 yards and five touchdowns. That is a 145.2 pass efficiency rating, which is 27th best in the nation. Porter sat out last year with an injury, but he was playing well this year until he suffered an injury against Florida State.

If this game comes down to a field goal, both coaches will be set. Clemson's Jad Dean is third in the nation with 9-10 made. Boston College's Ryan Oliger is 4-5 on field goals, and is the team's leading scorer with 20 points.

Tiger Defense Solid vs. Miami

The NCAA overtime rule can play havoc with the evaluation of various statistics. That is the case with Clemson's defensive performance against Miami in the most recent game, a 36-30 Hurricane triple overtime win. Miami scored 16 of its 36 points in the three overtime periods, which will hurt Clemson's scoring defense stats all year. The same goes for total offense and yards per game, as Miami gained 73 yards in the overtime.

Through the 60 minutes of regulation, the Hurricanes gained just 264 yards of total offense, 49 yards less than they totaled against Florida State's famed defensive unit. The Hurricanes threw for just 109 yards on 23 pass attempts during regulation.

Charlie Whitehurst will try to earn a victory against a 10th different ACC team when he takes the field against Boston College.
as Vic Koenning’s defensive unit allowed less than five yards per pass attempt. Clemson allowed just 5-14 third-down conversions in regulation, and allowed just 15 first downs.

Clemson’s top tackler so far this year has been junior linebacker Anthony Waters, who has 30 stops in three games, including 5.5 tackles for loss. Nick Watkins, in his first year as a starter, has added 26 tackles, including a team-best 18 first hits. C.J. Gaddis, also in his first year as a starter, has 23 tackles, including double figures in each of the last two games. Clemson’s defense had five sacks by five different players in the triple-overtime setback to Miami.

Clemson Limiting Mistakes

One hallmark of Clemson’s offense under Offensive Coordinator Rob Spence has been efficiency and a lack of mistakes. Clemson did not commit a turnover in its first 213 offensive snaps of the season until Charlie Whitehurst threw an interception on the last play of the third overtime loss to the Hurricanes. Clemson is ranked 19th in the nation in turnover margin entering this week’s game. That is dramatically improved over last year, when Clemson ranked 99th in the nation in turnover margin.

Another area that shows the discipline of this Tiger team is penalty differential. Clemson leads the ACC in fewest penalties committed with 11 for 87 yards in the first three games. The opposition has had 31 penalties for 285 yards. That is 20 more penalties for 198 more penalty yards for the opposition so far this year. The NCAA does not keep a stat for penalty differential, but one would think Clemson leads the nation in that category.

O’Brien Familiar With Death Valley

As stated above, Boston College has not played at Clemson since the 1982 season, but that does not mean this will be the first appearance in Death Valley for Boston College Head Coach Tom O’Brien. From 1982-96, O’Brien was an assistant coach at Virginia under Head Coach George Welsh.

During that time, Clemson had the upperhand in games in Memorial Stadium by a 5-1-1 margin. The tie came in 1991, when the two teams played to a 20-20 draw. The NCAA overtime rule did not come into effect until 1996, and as long as the overtime rule exists, that 1991 game with Virginia will be remembered as the last tie in Tiger football history.

O’Brien was a part of two firsts in Virginia football history when it came to the series with Clemson. In 1980 at Charlottesville, Virginia defeated Clemson 20-7, ending the Tigers’ 29-game winning streak in the series. In 1995, Virginia defeated Clemson in Death Valley 22-3, the first win for the Cavaliers in Memorial Stadium.

So, one can see O’Brien has a strong ACC background. He played for Welsh at the U.S. Naval Academy and graduated from that institution in 1971. He joined the Navy staff under Welsh in 1975, and moved with Welsh to Virginia in 1982. He then took the Boston College head coaching position prior to the 1997 season, and has been with the Eagles program ever since.

O’Brien’s list of accomplishments includes a five-game bowl winning streak, the only Division I college football coach who has won a bowl game each of the last five years.

Current Carolina Panther linebacker Vince Ciurciu has special interest in today’s game. He played fullback at Clemson in 1998 and 1999, then transferred to Boston College and played linebacker in 2001 and 2002.

Clemson in Top 15 of Sagarin Ratings

Clemson is one of just three schools in the nation to rank among the top-15 teams in the nation in the Sagarin overall rating and in schedule ranking. Clemson, 2-1 through the first three games, has a team rating of 85.69, 14th best in the nation. Clemson has a schedule rating of 81.83, good enough for 11th in the nation. Clemson, Miami (FL), and Louisiana State are the only schools in the nation to rank in the top 15 in both areas.

The Tigers have finished in the top 25 of both the Sagarin overall rating and the Sagarin schedule rating twice under Head Coach Tommy Bowden. That took place in 1999, when Clemson was 24th in the overall rating and seventh in the schedule ranking, and in 2003, when Clemson was 17th overall and had the 23rd-toughest schedule. Clemson is one of just three schools with a loss that is among the top-15 teams in the nation by Sagarin this week. Miami, who defeated Clemson last week in triple overtime, and Arizona State, also 2-1 with a loss to Louisiana State, are the other schools with a loss to rank in the top 15.

Spen¢e Has Failed Boston College

Offensive Coordinator Rob Spence will match wits with the Eagle defense and its defensive coordinator (Frank Spaziani) this afternoon. While it will be the first time Clemson has played Boston College since 1983, it will not be the first time these coordinators have faced off against each other.

When Spence was the offensive coordinator at Toledo in 2002, his first year with the program, he helped the Rockets to a berth in the Motor City Bowl. The opponent in that game was Boston College. While the Eagles won that game 51-25, Spence’s offense did have success, gaining 433 yards of total offense, including 331 yards passing. Toledo quarterback Brian Jones was 27-41 passing for all 331 yards in the contest.

One of the defensive players on the field for Boston College was then-freshman Mathias Kiwanuka, who is ranked among the top defenders in the ACC entering this season.

Ciurciu Common Denominator for Both Teams

There have not been many common denominators between Clemson and Boston College. But, one player has played for both coaches in this afternoon’s game - Vince Ciurciu. The current linebacker for the Carolina Panthers played at Clemson during the 1998 and 1999 seasons, and at Boston College during the 2001 and 2002 seasons.

Ciurciu was a running back at Clemson as a freshman and sophomore. He gained 99 yards on 27 carries as a freshman under Tommy West, and was the fourth-leading rusher on the team. Then in 1999 under Tommy Bowden, he had just three rushes for five yards and four receptions for 22 yards.

His top play as a Tiger took place in 1999 at Virginia Tech. Ciurciu was the receiver on a nine-yard scoring pass from Tony Lazzara on a fake field goal on a Thursday night game that was televised by ESPN. That was the first true “trick play” of the Bowden era at Clemson. Boston College is the newest addition to the ACC and ironically, Ciurciu’s most famous play as a Tiger took place against another new ACC addition, Virginia Tech.

After two years at Clemson, the native of Paramus, NJ decided to play closer to home and at a school where he thought he would get more playing time as a fullback. Bowden wanted to move Ciurciu to linebacker, but Vince wanted to remain at running back.

After a year at Boston College as a red-shirt due to the NCAA transfer rule, Ciurciu became a starting linebacker with the Eagles. All Ciurciu did was lead the Eagles in tackles (87) in 2001 and ranked second on the club in tackles (102) in 2002.

Boston College won 17 games in the two years he played there, including a pair of wins over rival Notre Dame. A tri-captain as a senior in 2002, his final college game was against Toledo. The defensive coordinator of that Rocket team was current Clemson Offensive Coordinator Rob Spence.

Ciurciu has been successful in the NFL with the Panthers. He is now in his third year with that NFL team after signing as a free agent out of Boston College. Last week, he had two tackles in Carolina’s win over the New England Patriots. Therefore, last week he helped the NFL team closest to his first college (Clemson) defeat the NFL team closest to his second college (Boston College).

Nicknames were big at Clemson in its military years. A couple of my favorites were "Goat" for one-time, passing-record-holder Covington McMillan of Saluda, and "Mule" for tackle Jesse Yarborough of Chester. They were Tiger teammates on the 1929 team. I met them for the first time in the late 1940s. "Goat" was backfield coach at Clemson during the single-wing bowl years of 1939, 1948, 1950, and 1951; "Mule" built Miami High's football team into possibly the nation's finest in the 1930s and 1940s. I never learned exactly why they carried the names "Goat" and "Mule" with them to their graves.

Then there was Banks McFadden, who was tabbed "Great" by the likes of Tiger legend Frank Howard. That moniker was not universally used, but it could have been - and perhaps should have been. Of course, nicknaming someone "Great" smacks of that person's being "not-so-great," and I guess that is why McFadden did not take that name with him to his grave behind Clemson's Memorial Stadium this past spring. He rests near Coach Howard, who watched greatness develop in the string-bean-like teenager McFadden of the late 1930s.

To me, a transplanted South Carolina living in Pennsylvania in the late fall of 1939, McFadden was not only great, but also a godsend - a real honest-to-goodness football hero from back home with write-ups of his exploits on the gridiron in all the newspapers and magazines.

Even the movie newsreels depicted him alongside fellow All-America greats "Jarring John" Kimbrough of National Champion and Sugar Bowl-bound Texas A&M, future #1 NFL Draft pick George Cafego of Rose Bowl-bound Tennessee, and quarterback Paul Christian of Orange Bowl-bound Missouri. McFadden, until lastest member of the consensus all-star backfield, would lead Clemson to the "other" postseason bowl, the Cotton Bowl in Dallas, TX, then in its fourth year.

All serious Tiger fans of my vintage know the rest of the story. Clemson defeated the nation's #11-ranked Boston College team by a score of 6-3 on New Year's Day of 1940 behind the final-quarter defensive heroics of McFadden, the game's MVP, who had four pass breakups in the fourth quarter when the Eagles were desperate to score a winning touchdown. It was one of only two games lost by Boston College under Hall-of-Fame Coach Frank Leahy from 1939-40. Leahy is still second to Knute Rockne in winning percentage in college football history.

I struggled to keep up with my hero after the Cotton Bowl, but this was not all that easy in a small Pennsylvania town. I knew McFadden played basketball and was on Clemson's track team in 1940, because a story on his versatility toward the end of his college career brought national acclaim, and he was named the nation's "Most Versatile Athlete" for the 1939 calendar year.

Then there was the College All-Star Game in Chicago, IL in August of 1940 that matched the 1939 All-Americans, who had finished their football eligibility against the 1939 NFL champions, in this case the Green Bay Packers. McFadden was one of the game's standouts. A week later, he joined Brooklyn's NFL Dodgers, whose games were going to be broadcast on a New York radio station (WOR) that could be picked up loud and clear in Pottstown, PA, my hometown.

Most Sundays in the fall of 1940, I listened to the Brooklyn games. New NFL Coach Jock Sutherland, the University of Pittsburgh single-wing guru, had led his Panthers to three AP top-10 finishes from 1936-39, including the national title in 1937. Dodger millionaire-owner Dan Topping, whose first six years in the NFL failed to produce a winner, personally signed McFadden, Brooklyn's first draft pick (fourth overall in the NFL), traded for NFL first-draft-pick George Cafego, and allowed Sutherland to bring along his All-American tailback Dick Cassiano. All had played the key tailback position in college and would join veteran All-Pro Ace Parker, whose Duke teams of 1934-36 had all trounced Clemson. McFadden proved to be one of the new-comers, a fact I enjoyed relaying to my friends at school each Monday.

Brooklyn defeated a favored New York Giant team in the final game of the NFL season to finish tied with the Chicago Bears for a second-best record of 7-3 behind the Washington Redskins. Two of the Dodgers losses had been early in the season to the Giants and Redskins, both of which had been avenged in the latter half of the year.

McFadden had led the league in rushing most of the season, but was beaten out by Detroit's Whizzer White (later U.S. Supreme Court Justice) and New York's Tuffy Leemans, each of whom had more than twice his number of carries. Parker, who held on to his role as starting Brooklyn tailback, with McFadden moving to wingback, as he did at Clemson in 1937, was named NFL MVP. McFadden's 6.3 yards per carry was far-and-away best in the league. But, the defensive play of Parker and McFadden (players went both ways in those days) was perhaps the most impressive factor in the Dodgers' success.

In the summer of 1941, before McFadden had decided whether to play a second season in Brooklyn, he dozed behind the wheel of his car while returning from an evening in Manning, SC at the home of his fiancé (and future bride) Aggie Rigby, and rammed into a bridge outside Great Falls, SC. His doctor warned him that a hard blow in football might paralyze him for life. That, along with the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor on December 7 and his ensuing four years in the Army, ended his playing career and launched for good his service to Clemson as head basketball coach and assistant football coach - and in 1970, Clemson director of intramural sports.

So move ahead to February 1947. I have served a year in the Navy and am now a senior at Washington & Lee as student sports information director. My idol (McFadden) is bringing his first Tiger basketball team to Lexington, VA to play Washington & Lee, and I am covering it for the Associated Press.

We meet, and I am impressed with his modesty. I had read in the W&L Yearbook of 1937 how he had scored two field goals in the final minute of play to eliminate the defending Southern Conference Champion Generals in the semifinals of that year's conference tournament.

It would be hard for me to pull against his Clemson team. I thought; however, another friend from Spartanburg (senior co-captain Clancy Ballenger) made it easy by leading the way in a 101-56 Washington & Lee victory. Ballenger had something to prove. Upon discharge from the military in 1946, he planned to finish his senior year at nearby Clemson. New Tiger Coach McFadden did not have any scholarship money available, so he returned to W&L.

Now one might ask, "Who cares about what happened in Clemson athletics in the 1930s, 1940s, 1950s, and 1960s? That's ancient history."

My response was, "Only partly true. A long time ago, yes! But these were the days a small-town boy came from nowhere to resurrect a college football program that had lain almost dormant for more than a quarter-century."

In addition to Clemson men who played with and for McFadden from 1936-70, and fans of the Tigers during this period, there are perhaps an equal number of former students who benefited from his assuming responsibility for a moribund Clemson intramural program in the 1970s and 1980s. And surely, there must be a few thousand fans of... today wondering why the name and image of McFadden appears seemingly everywhere!

For the record, college football was not in its infancy in 1939. Take away television (nonexistent at the time) and over half of today's 290,000,000 population (down to 1940's 132,000,000), and college football was even bigger 66 years ago than it is today. Except for Major League Baseball, no spectator sport had more fans.

So how could this little South Carolina college compete against the nation's best, finish #12 in the final Associated Press poll, and receive one of only eight invitations to play in major bowl games on January 1, 1940? And how could a scrawny basketball player from tiny Great Falls, SC provide the spark to make it happen?

I idolized McFadden as a far-away fan in 1939-40, met and wrote about him as a sports editor-columnist from 1948-52, and was a colleague as Clemson sports publicist from 1952-55. More recently, as a sports historian of sorts, I have pondered the above questions and concluded that it all began with his upbringing in a loving, religious environment tempered by discipline administered at school by a much older half-brother Tom Wallace, Jr. Tom taught, coached, and served as high school principal in Great Falls. Kid brother Banks (the baby of the family) was the team waterboy before he grew up to lead Great Falls High to state championships in football and basketball from 1934-36.

On a historic note, high school football in South Carolina during the 1930s left much to be desired. The talent pool was limited, and coaching at the smaller schools left much to be desired. In the seven seasons from 1920-26, Clemson went 20-38-4; Josh Cody took over the coaching reins in 1927 and compiled a 29-11-1 in four seasons, but 19 of his wins were against in-state teams. When Jess Neely arrived in 1931 from Alabama, where he had helped Wallace Wade win mythical national championships in 1925, 1926, and 1930, his early aspirations of national glory were seemingly shattered, as the Tigers went 7-11-1 from 1931-33.

Enter IPTAY, money for scholarships, and recruitment of some key talent from out-of-state. Winning seasons in 1934 and 1935 bode well for the future, but the big recruiting prize in 1936 was tailback Shad Bryant out of the state of Florida. McFadden, known more for his basketball skills than football, was also a 1936 recruit. He played end on the Tiger Cub team that fell and excelled in Cub track and basketball.

Neely's 1-4-1 record against Furman persuaded him to hire that school's backfield coach, Clemson alumnus and former quarterback star McMillan. He would play a key role in developing single-wing backfields at Clemson, and he was quick to return McFadden to the backfield in 1937, where he saw limited action at the wingback position and as a punter. It was another .500 season, but the schedule included Army, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Tulane, and Florida - and there were no "blowouts."

Clemson's 1938 team really turned the corner, finishing in the top 25 and winning their returning lineup over a strong Tulane 11 that was #19 at season's end. The Tigers' only loss was to undefeated and #2 Tennessee. McFadden contributed greatly as a junior halfback, but trailed teammates Don Willis in rushing, Bob Bailey in passing, and Bryant in kickoff and punt returns. He and Bryant did tie for touchdowns scored (5). He won no postseason honors. So what happened in 1939-40?

McFadden joined the basketball team immediately after football, and led Clemson to its first and still only conference tournament championship, beating four teams that outranked them in the conference seeding.

Charlotte/Atlanta sports editor-columnist Furman Bisher recalled in a column on McFadden in the early 1960s how his North Carolina roommate at the time, a New Jersey boy, just could not understand how a small-town South Carolina boy could take such liberties with the Tar Heels' big city all-American George Glamack in eliminating UNC. "Bish", who got to know McFadden over the years, concluded his column with the ultimate compliment, "If I had a son, I'd want him to be coached by Banks."

It was March of 1939. McFadden was all-tournament for the second time and also tournament MVP. Clemson had unofficial invitations as one of eight invitees to either the first-ever NCAA Tournament or the second-ever NIT event in Madison Square Garden. But, as noted earlier, football was king, and Clemson Coach and Athletic Director Neely was in his final two weeks of spring football practice. He wanted McFadden and two or three other members of the championship basketball team to participate - at least as observers in shorts.

Fortunately, Clemson had done a great job of recruiting in 1937, so that McFadden and the other Tiger veterans off the good 1938 team had the likes of Joe Blalock at end, George Fritts at tackle, and Charlie Timmons at fullback to complete the fine 1939 starting 11.

On a personal note in closing, I have often observed over the years that Banks McFadden never fell off the pedestal I had placed him on in 1939. He, to me, was not only an All-American in three sports and a superb coach, he was also an All-American dancer with his diminutive wife Aggie, an All-American husband and father to daughters Patsy, Lill McCormack, and Jan, and an All-American human being. He never wanted to disappoint.

Cole Downer is not your typical college football player. He has taken a very different road than most to earn a place on the Clemson football team. His hard work and determination have led him to a starting spot during this, his senior year.

However, Downer has not always been a football player. "I wasn’t a little league guy or anything like that," said Downer. His parents said he was too small to play football growing up, hard to imagine of the now 6’4”, 260-pounder who is among the strongest players on the Tiger squad.

So, Downer had to find another sport. Lacrosse was his sport of choice, so many of his younger years were spent excelling on lacrosse fields. Besides backyard football games with his father, Downer did not play competitive football until his junior year of high school, and he never started a football game until his senior year at Chantilly High in Virginia.

As a result of his limited playing experience, Downer was not heavily recruited coming out of high school. Therefore, he decided to attend Hampden-Sydney College, a Division III school in Virginia. He had the opportunity to play both lacrosse and football, so it was a perfect fit for the well-rounded athlete. In 2002, Downer caught six touchdown passes as a tight end, earning all-conference honors. However, after two years at the small school, he felt that it was time to move on.

"I knew I could play at the next level, so I started sending out tapes," he recalled.

The work ethic that Downer possesses has been a key factor in his ability to make it as far as he has. While other athletes were being actively recruited, he took the responsibility of doing all the work to get recruited on his own. He spent hours putting together and sending out tapes, hoping to earn a chance at a Division I school.

"I had to work really hard to get where I am, so I think that sets me apart from other people. It wasn’t as easy for me to get here."

After being encouraged by Assistant Head Coach Brad Scott, Downer decided that Clemson was the right place for him. "I really liked Coach Scott. He was very encouraging and was one of the big reasons I wanted to come here."

However, there were still many obstacles to overcome when he arrived at Clemson. Downer joined the Tigers as a walk-on in 2003, and spent a year practicing with the offensive line due to transfer rules. But his hard work and perseverance have helped him to earn a scholarship and a significant amount of playing time.

"The time involved has been a lot of work on and off the field, but the 80,000 fans and national television make everything worth it."

Last year, Downer’s commitment paid off when he made the first start of his career in front of many proud members of his family and friends at Virginia.

"That was one of the best moments of my career here at Clemson," said Downer with a smile. "It was really awesome to have my friends and family there to support me."

That will be Downer’s only opportunity to play against an ACC team from his home state, as the Tigers do not play Virginia or Virginia Tech this year.

to a local hospital, where his spleen was removed. He is likely to miss the rest of the regular season. Despite the devastating injury, he was named Clemson’s Player-of-the-Game by the Tiger coaching staff thanks to his first career touchdown catch.

Off the field, he is one of the strongest Tigers in the strength room. He is ninth in total weight in all categories combined with 1,620 pounds. He is also ninth on the team in power clean (330), 10th in the bench press (385), and 11th in the squat (505).

Downer believes his greatest strength is his ability to work hard and push himself. "I feel like I have a great work ethic and I am not one to give up. I try to push myself to the max."

Downer credits his parents for setting a good example and having the biggest impact on his career. The Downers can be seen at all home games and are able to travel to most of the road games.

"They have both helped me push myself through the obstacles that I have come across throughout my trek to Clemson, and once I got here, they have given me guidance for success."

Downer also has enjoyed the friendships he has made with his teammates during his time at Clemson, both on and off the field.

"Cole and I spend a lot of time together away from the field, and he is one of my golfing buddies," said Proctor. "I think our friendship has helped us on the playing field. I know where he likes the ball to be placed when I throw it to him, and he trusts that I will be able to put the ball in that spot."

With graduation near, this sport management major would like to continue working in the sports industry. He plans to pursue a career in sports administration. He enjoys living in the South and plans to stay here in the future. His hard work and commitment to success will undoubtedly lead to a prosperous career when his playing days come to an end.

Building a Future for Clemson

Jim & Marcia Barker

Clemson University President James F. Barker came to the office in 1999 with a clear vision of Clemson's future. A 1970 Clemson University graduate, Barker has established a goal of making the university one of the nation's top-20 public universities - an institution that draws outstanding faculty and students, provides an unmatched academic experience, and helps drive the state's economic development.

Clemson has made significant strides in this area and reached a #34 ranking among public institutions according to U.S. News & World Report in 2006. That represents a five-position jump in the last three years and a 38-position improvement since 1997.

"South Carolina needs a top-tier research university, and our students deserve to have access to a top-tier education without leaving their home state," he said. "Building Clemson's academic, research, and service programs to the level where we can compete with anyone will benefit our state, our students, and our alumni."

Clemson, already South Carolina's top-ranked public university, is making strides toward that goal. During Barker's presidency, the university has:

- been recognized as TIME Magazine's Public College-of-the-Year;
- developed an academic strategic plan with eight emphasis areas aligned with the state's economic needs;
- implemented an enrollment management plan to protect the quality of classroom teaching and allow for more student/faculty interaction;
- redesigned the general education curriculum to focus on learning outcomes, and give undergraduates more opportunities for study abroad, service-learning, and research activities;
- more than doubled external research funding; and
- completed Clemson's largest capital campaign.

Working with private industry and state leaders, Barker also has steered Clemson into a greater economic development role. In a span of just six months, Clemson broke ground for the Clemson University International Center for Automotive Research (Clemson-ICAR) in Greenville, SC, dedicated a state-of-the-art biosystems research complex, and constructed a state-of-the-art Advanced Materials Research Laboratory at the Clemson Research Park. All three projects represent substantial investment in areas related to South Carolina's most promising economic clusters.

Barker also is becoming a leading voice in higher education in South Carolina and beyond. He chaired the Commission of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, the regional accrediting body, during a period that included the search for a new president, and served as chair of the ACC Council of Presidents for three consecutive years, including the 2003-04 academic year when he was significantly involved in the expansion of the league with the addition of Boston College, Miami (FL), and Virginia Tech.

He also has earned recognition as a community leader, receiving South Carolina's Order of the Palmetto, induction into the Boys & Girls Club Hall of Fame, the Greater Greenville Chamber of Commerce's Buck Mickel Award for Business and Community Leadership, and Anderson Independent-Mail's "Pointing the Way" Leadership Award for Community Service.

Barker earned his bachelor of architecture degree from Clemson in 1970 and his master of architecture and urban design degree from Washington University in Saint Louis, MO in 1973. Before returning to Clemson in 1986 to serve as dean of the College of Architecture, he was dean of the School of Architecture at Mississippi State University. In 1995, he became dean of the new College of Architecture, Arts, and Humanities, which was created after a comprehensive reorganization and has received national attention as a new model in education.

Barker's Goals by 2010

Academics, Research, & Service
1. Excel in teaching, at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.
2. Increase research and sponsored programs to exceed $100 million a year in research support.
3. Set the standard in public service for land-grant universities by engaging the whole campus in service and outreach, including a focus on strategic emphasis areas.
4. Foster Clemson's academic reputation through strong academic programs, mission-oriented research and academic centers of excellence, relevant public service, and highly-regarded faculty and staff.
5. Seek and cultivate areas where teaching, research, and service overlap.

Campus Life
1. Strengthen our sense of community and increase our diversity.
2. Recognize and appreciate Clemson's distinctiveness.
3. Create greater awareness of international programs and increase activity in this area.
4. Increase our focus on collaboration.
5. Maintain an environment that is healthy, safe, and attractive.

Clemson's National Reputation
1. Promote high integrity and professional demeanor among all members of the University community.
2. Establish a Phi Beta Kappa chapter.
3. Have at least two Clemson students win Rhodes Scholarships.
4. Send student ensembles to perform at Carnegie Hall.
5. Have at least two Clemson faculty members win recognition by national academies.
6. Publicize both national and international accomplishments of faculty, staff, and students.
7. While maintaining full compliance, achieve notable recognition with another national football championship, two championships in Olympic sports, and two Final Four appearances in basketball.

Educational Resources
1. Campaign goal surpassed by 40 percent.
2. Rededicate our energy and resources to improving the library.
3. Increase faculty compensation to a level competitive with top-20 public universities.
4. Increase academic expenditures per student to a level competitive with top-20 public universities.
5. Manage enrollment to ensure the highest quality classroom experiences.

Student Performance
1. Attract more students who are ranked in the top-10 percent of their high school classes and who perform exceptionally well on the SAT/ACT.
2. Promote high graduation rates by increasing freshman retention, meeting expectations of high achievers, and providing support systems for all students.
3. Promote excellence in advising.
4. Increase the annual number of doctoral graduates to the level of a top-20 public research university.
5. Improve the national competitiveness of graduate student admissions and financial aid.

Barker, Clemson's 14th President, is a recipient of the National Distinguished Professor Award of the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture and served as president of that association. He was also named Fellow of the American Institute of Architects. The Barkers, Jim and Marcia, have a son and daughter-in-law, Jacob and Rita Bolt Barker, and another son, Britt.

Since Phillips' arrival at Clemson, many highlights toward being a model program have occurred on the field as well, beginning with Clemson's first-ever national championship in golf. His second year included an incredible run on the gridiron to end the season, as Tommy Bowden's Tigers defeated #3 Florida State in November and #6 Tennessee in the Peach Bowl. The women's tennis team was one of three programs to win ACC Championships in the same weekend and advanced to the Final Four of the NCAA Tournament, the first women's athletic team in Clemson history to reach the Final Four in any postseason tournament. Nancy Harris' team duplicated the accomplishment in 2004-05.

In the most recent school year, 15 of Clemson's 19 sports programs advanced to postseason play. The list included six which were chosen for NCAA Tournament competition (baseball, golf, rowing, women's soccer, men's tennis, women's tennis). The Tiger sports program had 62 All-ACC selections, 14 All-America selections, and seven student-athletes who were named at least academic all-region.

In terms of personnel, Phillips made national news when he hired Oliver Purnell as Clemson's head basketball coach in 2003. Purnell has had a history of rejuvenating basketball programs, and it appears he is continuing that trend at Clemson. He led the Tigers to postseason play in 2004-05, their first postseason appearance in six years.

Phillips also enhanced his department's diversity by naming former NCAA Administrator Phil Grayson and former Clemson All-America football player Jeff Davis to athletic director positions. He also promoted Barbara Kennedy-Dixon, one of the greatest ACC women's basketball players in history, to the associate athletic director/senior women's administrator position when Linda White retired in 2005.

Clemson has also continued to raise standards when it comes to the school's overall mission of academics. In the spring of 2005, a record 245 student-athletes were named to the Academic Honor Roll, including a record 121 who were named to the President's List. Additionally, a record-tying eight athletic programs had over a 3.0 semester GPA.

Excellence in academics has been a constant on his resume. He has an undergraduate degree from Arkansas (1970), a master's from Virginia Tech (1974), a doctorate from Virginia Tech (1978), and a law degree from the Arkansas School of Law (1996). He is a member of the Arkansas Bar, American Bar Association, and the Sports Lawyers Association.

From an experience standpoint, Phillips has worked in nearly all phases of college athletics. He coached on the football staff at Virginia Tech, supervised spring sports and student-athlete enrichment at Florida, handled athletic fundraising and facility enhancement at Missouri and Arkansas, and had 15 years experience as an athletic director, including 13 at the Division I level, prior to his appointment at Clemson, coming from Oklahoma State.

Football was transformed from a perennial losing status, defeating Oklahoma during five of the eight years he was associated with Oklahoma State. For this, he received the National Football Foundation Oklahoma Chapter Outstanding Contribution to Amateur Football Award in 2002.

When it came to success on the field and in the classroom, OSU's programs were among the best in the Big 12. The achievements of the Cowboy program during his tenure (1994-02) included a pair of national titles in men's golf, a men's basketball Final Four, two trips to the College World Series, 13 Big 12 titles, and 11 individual national champions. It had 53 academic All-Americans as well.

Before leaving Oklahoma State, Phillips served as senior associate athletic director at Arkansas from 1988-94. He ran the daily operations and had oversight of facility projects for the men's programs, and was president of the Razorback Foundation.

Phillips was athletic director at Liberty (1980-81) and Louisiana-Lafayette (1983-88). He was also an assistant athletic director at Missouri (1981-83), and began his administrative career in 1979 as an assistant athletic director at Florida.

Phillips began his career in college athletics coaching football. He started as a graduate assistant at Arkansas from 1970-71. He moved on to Virginia Tech as an assistant coach from 1971-78 before joining the ranks of athletic administration.

Winning has been on his resume since his playing days. At Arkansas, he lettered on three Frank Broyles' teams (1966,68,69). The Razorbacks were 27-5 in those three years and played in two Sugar Bowl games.

In addition to Phillips' leadership with the NCAA Infractions Appeals Committee, he also works with the NCAA Certification program. He currently serves on several ACC Committees: Finance Committee, chair of the Committee on Infractions and Penalties, Television Committee, the Men's Basketball Committee, and the Football Committee.

Phillips has two children, John Dennis (28) and Sarah-Jane (25), and three stepchildren, Meagan (16), Marshall (14), and Madison (12). His wife Tricia is a graduate of the University of Missouri School of Journalism, and earlier enjoyed a career in athletics and development. She is now active in the Clemson and Seneca communities.

The Awesome Power Of Outdoor
When one looks at Tommy Bowden’s resume, the first thing that comes to mind is consistency. Clemson’s head football coach has completed eight seasons as a Division I head coach, and all eight of his teams have been bowl eligible at the conclusion of the regular season. Bowden has also shown consistency in terms of improvement over the course of seasons. In both 2003 and 2004, his teams have won five of its last six games. The 2003 team won its last four, including wins over top-10 teams Florida State and Tennessee to finish the year in the top 25 of both polls.

There has also been consistency in terms of success against Clemson’s in-state rival (South Carolina). The Tigers have won five of the six meetings with the Gamecocks since Bowden became head coach in 1999, and the 83.3-percent winning percentage is the best of any Tiger head coach in history against the Gamecocks given a minimum of five games. He has an average victory margin of 13.7 points per game in the state-rivalry game, all against future Hall of Fame Head Coach Lou Holtz.

Through eight seasons as a Division I head coach, Bowden has a 62-33 record, a 65.3-percent winning percentage that ranks 10th among winningest active coaches. In conference games, he has never had a sub-.500 record, and his overall conference record stands at 39-21 for a 65.0-percent winning percentage.

Through six years at Clemson, he has a 44-29 mark and five bowl appearances. He has 28 ACC wins as well. The only program with more ACC wins during this time is Florida State. The 44 overall victories rank third in Clemson history in total wins. The 29-7 victory over South Carolina in the 2004 season finale was not only the 600th win in Clemson history, it moved Bowden ahead of Hall of Fame Coach Jess Neely into third place on Clemson’s coaching victories list. Only Frank Howard and Danny Ford are ahead of Bowden.

Twice Bowden has been named ACC Coach-of-the-Year (1999, 2003), joining Howard, Charley Pell, and Ford as the only two-time recipients of that award in Tiger history.

Consistency in his approach is one reason Clemson went from a 1-4 start to bowl eligibility in 2004. It marked the first time since 1963 that a Tiger team had overcome such a deficit to finish with a winning season.

Clemson played a complete game at #10 Miami (FL) on November 6, 2004 and defeated the Hurricanes in the Orange Bowl by a score of 24-17 in overtime. It was the second overtime win of the season for the Tigers, who are 4-0 in extra-session games under Bowden and an NCAA record 5-0 for the history of the program.

The win over Miami gave Bowden and the Tigers three wins over top-10 programs in the last 13 games, something that had been done at Clemson just once previously (1981 National Championship team). All three of those programs (Florida State, Tennessee, Miami) have won the national championship within the last seven seasons.

Over the last two seasons, Bowden has won five games over coaches who have won the national title (Bobby Bowden, Phillip Fulmer, Larry Coker, Holtz (twice)). These big wins have stimulated interest in the program. The Tigers averaged nearly 79,000 fans per home game in 2004, the sixth-highest average in Clemson history. Clemson has ranked in the top 20 in home football attendance each of the six seasons Bowden has been at Clemson.

With Clemson’s selection to the 2003 Peach Bowl, Bowden became the first head coach in Clemson and ACC history to take a team to a bowl game in each of his first five seasons. In fact, no coach had ever done so more than twice to open his career at Clemson. That is also something that prominent Tiger predecessors Neely, Howard, Pell, Ford, and Ken Hatfield failed to do. Under Bowden’s direction, Clemson had also appeared in the Peach Bowl in 1999, the Gator Bowl in 2000, the 2001 Humanitarian Bowl, and the 2002 Tangerine Bowl prior to its 2004 Peach Bowl invitation.

The 2004 Peach Bowl appearance meant that it was the first time since the senior class of 1991 that Clemson went to a bowl game five straight years. Clemson’s red-shirt seniors of 2003 were the first group he recruited, so it is an indication of the firm foundation his first group set. In December of 2003, Bowden cemented his place at Clemson by signing a seven-year contract, which will go through 2010.

The 2003 season was a breakthrough year in many ways. Clemson earned its highest-ever win over a ranked team with a 26-10 victory over #3 Florida State. The Tigers also defeated #24 Virginia in a thrilling overtime game. The 39-3 win over a bowl-bound Georgia Tech team was Clemson’s largest victory margin in the series since 1900 as well.

The victory over Florida State, Clemson’s first in 12 tries since the Seminoles joined the ACC, was the beginning of a four-game winning streak to close the season. In those four games, Clemson outscored its opponents 156-48, an average score of 39-12. Clemson defeated arch-rival South Carolina in Columbia by a score of 63-17. It was the most points ever scored by a team in the 101-game series and the Tigers’ largest victory margin in the series since 1900. It was also Bowden’s fourth win in five tries against the Gamecocks.

The season concluded with a 27-14 win over #6 Tennessee, the highest-ranked team Clemson has defeated in a bowl game since 1981, when the Tigers defeated #4 Nebraska in the Orange Bowl to claim the national championship. As a result, Clemson finished the season with nine wins and a #22 final national ranking.

Off the field, Clemson has graduated nearly 75 percent of its scholarship seniors in his six years. In 2003, Clemson ranked #11 in the nation, including second among public institutions, in the NCAA graduation-rate study for scholarship football signees who entered Clemson in 1996. Clemson was first in the nation in graduation rate among African-Americans (100 percent). Nine of Clemson’s current seniors are slated to graduate in December. Charlie Whitehurst already has his undergraduate degree.

The 2002 season included victories over bowl teams Georgia Tech and Wake Forest, and a third victory in four years over arch-rival South Carolina. Clemson gained 434 yards of total offense in the 27-20 win over the Gamecocks, the most yards against Lou Holtz’s defense all season.

The 2001 season demonstrated Bowden’s ability to win in the long run, as he had the second-youngest “two-deep” in the ACC. Thirty-four of his top 44 players were underclassmen. Only Duke had a younger group of top 44 players. Fourteen different freshmen saw action in 2001, including 10 who played in at least 10 games.

Bowden has a record of 44-29 (.603) as Clemson’s head coach and 62-34-4 (.650) overall. He ranks 10th among active Division I coaches on a winning-percentage basis. He has recorded that ledger against a difficult schedule. His first year, Clemson’s schedule was ranked in the top 10 in the nation. In 2001, his team defeated five teams that finished the season with a winning record, tied for the third-highest single-season figure in school history. One of the wins was a 47-44 overtime triumph at #9 Georgia Tech. It was the highest-ranked road win in 20 years for the program. In 2003 and 2004,
Clemson’s schedule strength once again ranked in the top 25 by the Sagarin rating.

When Bowden came to Clemson in 1998, he inherited a team with a 3-8 record. By late October of 2000, just 14 months after his first game, Clemson was ranked #3 in the nation in the USA Today poll after an 8-0 start. That ranking was the highest for the program in 16 years. The final #14 ranking in that same poll was the highest final listing for the program since the 1990 season.

Bowden’s 2000 Clemson team was one of the most decorated in history. Six different Tigers were finalists or semifinalists for national position awards, including linebacker Keith Adams, who was one of the final three finalists for the Butkus Award.

Chad Carson and Kyle Young were both named first-team Academic All-Americans, making Clemson the only Division I-A school in the nation to have a pair of first-team selections. For the second straight year, the football team had its highest team GPA on record in 2001 and a record number of ACC Academic Honor Roll recipients. Nineteen of the 22 seniors on the 2001 team earned their degrees.

The top-six semester GPAs on record have taken place under his 12-semester watch. Carson brought pride to the entire University in 2002 when he reached the final stage of the Rhodes Scholarship selection process, the only Division I football player to hold that distinction.

In 1999, Bowden accomplished a personal milestone that no Clemson coach had attained since 1981, the year the Tigers won the National Championship. He became the first Clemson coach since Danny Ford to be named ACC Coach-of-the-Year.

Bowden led the Tigers to a 6-6 record and 5-3 mark in the ACC against the nation’s seventh-toughest schedule according to the Sagarin rating. The Tigers finished tied for second with Georgia Tech and Virginia in the final ACC standings, a six-place improvement over the previous season, the greatest one-season jump in ACC history in league play.

Under Bowden, Clemson continued its strong defensive tradition. With 47 sacks, Clemson led the ACC in that category for the second-straight year, and the final total established a school record. Three players (Adams - 15.5, Carson - 12.0, Robert Carwell - 10.8) all had nearly 11 tackles per game in 1999 to rank among the top-four tacklers in the league. Clemson also led the ACC in sacks in 2000.

Making strong improvement in his first year with a program was nothing new for Bowden. In the two seasons he was the head coach at Tulane, Bowden took a team that had been 4-18 in the two years previous to his arrival, and emotionally and numerically reversed the team’s fortunes with an 18-4 record, posted an 11-1 conference mark, and finished the 1998 season ranked seventh in the nation by both polls. Tulane and Tennessee were the only undefeated teams in college football in 1998.

The Green Wave scored 40 or more points in eight games in 1998, including each of the last seven games. In one game, the Green Wave scored 72 points and rolled up 704 yards of total offense. They converted 92 percent of their third-down opportunities for the season and had just 11 turnovers in over 800 plays. The 1998 season saw the program post a perfect 11-0 regular season under Bowden, its first perfect regular season since 1931. The Green Wave won Conference USA, its first league title since Tulane won the SEC in 1949. Bowden was named Conference USA Coach-of-the-Year.

Bowden’s team ranked seventh in the final AP poll and was a mainstay in the polls from the third week of the season on. Tulane had not been ranked at any time since 1979, and had not been ranked in a final poll since 1973. After Bowden accepted the job at Clemson, Tulane defeated Brigham Young in the Liberty Bowl, 41-27.

A look to the list of coaches who had undefeated seasons in the 1990s shows two other coaches who made first trips to the 1990s. His father, Florida State’s Bobby Bowden, had a perfect regular season in 1996 and 1999, while his brother, Terry, posted a perfect regular season in 1993. Obviously, the Bowdens are the first family of college coaching and this “Wonder Years” environment had a lot to do with Tommy’s decision to enter coaching.

Tommy Bowden began his college football experience as a walk-on wide receiver at West Virginia. He played for his father between 1973-75 and then for Frank Cignetti during the 1976 season.

As a junior, he caught 15 passes for 189 yards and one score. Bowden remained at West Virginia in 1977 and began his coaching career, serving as a graduate assistant on Cignetti’s staff. His interest in coaching only became more intense after that first year as a graduate assistant. His father then hired him as a secondary coach at Florida State in 1978.

In early 1980, Bowden joined the staff at East Carolina, where he coached for the spring-practice session. That spring, he moved to Auburn and served as the Tigers’ running backs coach in 1980.

In 1981, Bowden returned to Tallahassee as the tight ends coach. In two more years at Florida State, the Seminoles posted a 15-8 mark. The 1982 team ranked #13 in the final poll, claimed a 9-3 record, and won a Gator Bowl championship.

From 1983-86, Bowden served under Steve Sloan at Duke as the quarterbacks coach. He was named coordinator in 1985. It was as a Duke assistant that Bowden made his first trip to Death Valley as a coach. Among the players Bowden tutored was Anthony Dilweg, who went on to the NFL.

After four years at Duke, Bowden became the wide receivers coach at Alabama under Bill Curry. It was there that Bowden refined his offensive coaching prowess under noted offensive mind Homer Smith, then the Tide offensive coordinator.

In 1990, he returned to a coordinator role, serving Kentucky as its offensive coordinator and wide receivers coach. That year, he helped the Wildcats to their first upper division SEC finish since 1984.

In 1991, Bowden joined Pat Dye at Auburn. He remained with Auburn for six seasons, his longest stint as a college assistant coach. During his tenure, Auburn had a combined record of 46-20-2, including a perfect 11-0 season in 1993. Auburn had four AP top-25 seasons, including a #4 final ranking in 1993 and a #9 final ranking in 1994.

Born on July 10, 1954 in Birmingham, AL, Bowden is married to the former Linda Joan White, who he first met when the two were in school together at Morganstown ( WV) High. The couple has two children, Ryan (23), a 2004 Clemson graduate and currently a law student at Regent University, and Lauren (20), a junior at Clemson.
What's better than a Clemson victory?
Well, nothing really. But hot dogs this good come in a close 2nd.

Dear ACC Football Fans,

This is an exciting time to be a part of the Atlantic Coast Conference! With the addition of Boston College on July 1, 2005, the ACC will compete with 12 of the finest academic and athletic institutions in the country.

As we begin this new chapter of Atlantic Coast Conference competition, I hope you not only enjoy the excitement as you cheer on your respective school, but that you will also take advantage of the many exciting destinations that are available in the newly expanded ACC footprint. From the historic Boston Harbor to the beaches of Miami – each of the 12 ACC campuses and surrounding areas have many great attractions to offer.

ACC Football will also take on a new look this year as each conference team will compete in either the Atlantic or Coastal division.

At the conclusion of conference competition, the winner of each division will square-off in the inaugural Dr Pepper ACC Football Championship Game on Saturday, December 3. This historic event is set to kick off at 8:00 p.m. in Jacksonville, Fla., and will be aired nationally on ABC. We hope that all ACC fans will make plans to share in this memorable experience.

The ACC, and its 12 member institutions, has a tradition of tremendous academic and athletic balance. As a conference, we are extremely excited to once again turn the attention to what has made this league so strong throughout its history – our student-athletes, coaches and fans.

We sincerely hope that all the dedicated followers of the ACC will continue to bring meaning to the ACC’s promise - A Tradition of Excellence ... Then, Now and Always.

Sincerely,

John D. Swafford
Atlantic Coast Conference Commissioner

Clemson Memorial Stadium has been held in high esteem for many years. Whether it be players from the 1940s and 1950s, opposing players from the 1970s and 1980s, or even professional players in the 1990s, the ambiance of this special setting is what college football is all about.

The stoned edifice added to its legend when the first meeting of father and son head coaches (Bowden Bowl I) took place before a sellout crowd of more than 86,000 fans in 1999. Clemson has ranked in the top 20 in the nation in attendance 22 straight seasons. In 2004, the streak continued when Clemson averaged nearly 79,000 fans per game.

The facility's mystique is derived from its many traditions, which date to its opening in 1942, the legendary games and players, and Clemson's corresponding rate of success. Clemson has won 227 games in 63 years there and has won over 71 percent of the contests (227-88-7). Thirty-nine times since 1983, a crowd has exceeded 80,000.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before Head Coach Jess Neely left for Rice after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message.

"Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "Put about 10,000 seats behind the YMCA. That's all you'll ever need".

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing—there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work, clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally on September 19, 1942, Memorial Stadium opened with Clemson thrashing Presbyterian by a score of 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow; and grow and grow.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, the boy was swollen twice his size and was hospitalized.

There are many other stories about the stadium, including one that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner as the concrete poured.

Howard said that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he said. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through."

"I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more weeks' pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard said that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 and we played at 2:00." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and in 1960, 6,558 west endzone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large endzone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of as crowds swelled - the first in 1978 and the second in '83. This increased capacity to over 80,000, which makes it one of the largest on-campus stadiums.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $860 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

In 1974, the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.

Running Down The Hill
“The Most Exciting 25 Seconds in College Football”

What has been described as, “the most exciting 25 seconds in college football from a color and pageantry standpoint,” actually started out as a matter-of-fact entrance, mainly because of necessity.

The first 20,000 seats in Memorial Stadium were built and ready for use before the 1942 season, less than a year after Pearl Harbor was bombed and the United States was drawn into World War II.

The shortest entry into the stadium was a short walk down Williamson Road from Fike Fieldhouse’s dressing rooms to a gate at the top of the Hill, which is located behind the east endzone. There were no dressing facilities in the west endzone - there was only a big clock where the hands turned and a scoreboard, which was operated by hand.

The team would dress at Fike, walk down Williamson Road, come in the gate underneath where the big scoreboard now stands and jog down the Hill for its warm-up exercises. There was no fanfare, no cannon shot fired, no Tiger Paw flag, no Tiger Rag played...just the team making its entrance and lining up to do the side-straddle hop.

That’s pretty much the way things went for the next 25 years.

Either in 1964 or 1965, S.C. Jones, a member of the class of 1919, made a trip to California. He stopped at a spot in Death Valley, CA and picked up this white flint rock. He presented it to Coach Frank Howard as being from Death Valley, CA to Death Valley, South Carolina.

The rock laid on the floor in Howard’s office in Fike Fieldhouse for years. One day, he was cleaning up his office and he told Gene Willimon, who was executive secretary of IPTAY, to “take this rock and throw it over the fence, or out in the ditch...do something with it, but get it out of my office!”

Willimon didn’t think that was the way a rock should be treated. After all, it had been brought 3,000 miles by a very sincere Tiger fan.

By the mid-1960s, Memorial Stadium was pretty well living up to its moniker, Death Valley, because of the number of victories that had been recorded there. Actually, the name was first used by the late Lonnie McMillian, head coach at Presbyterian College in Clinton in the 1940s.

McMillian and the other Blue Hose coaches before him used to open the season each year by coming to Clemson. Seldom scoring (24 shutouts in 39 games) and with only three wins and four ties to show for it, his teams were getting killed by the Tigers regularly. In 1948, McMillian made the comment to the press that he was taking his team to play Clemson in Death Valley.

An occasional reference to Memorial stadium by that name could be heard for the next three or four years, but when Howard started calling it “Death Valley” in the 1950s, the name took off like wildfire. The Tigers celebrated the 50th season in the “Valley in 1991.
Running Down The Hill
"The Most Exciting 25 Seconds in College Football"

But getting back to Howard’s Rock. The rock was mounted on a pedestal at the top of the Hill. It was unveiled September 24, 1966, on a day when Clemson defeated Virginia. The Tigers were down 18 points with 17 minutes to play and came back to win (40-35) on a 65-yard pass play from Jimmy Addison to Jacky Jackson in the fourth period. That was quite a spectacular debut for that rock.

The team members started rubbing the rock prior to running down the Hill September 23, 1967, a day when Clemson defeated Wake Forest, 23-6. Prior to running down the Hill that day, Howard told his players: “If you’re going to give me 110 percent, you can rub that rock. If you’re not, keep your filthy hands off it.” Howard told of the incident the next day on his Sunday television show and the story became legend.

When Hootie Ingram succeeded Howard as head coach prior to the 1970 season, Ingram decided that the team would make its final entrance on the field out of the dressing room in the west endzone. In all home games in 1970 and 1971 and the first four games of 1972 when the Tigers did not run down the Hill, their combined record was 6-9. The team decided it wanted to come down the Hill once prior to the South Carolina game in 1972. The result, in a cold, freezing rain, was a 7-6 victory when Jimmy Williamson knocked down a two-point conversion attempt which preserved the win.

The Tigers have made the entrance for every home game since 1942, except for the seasons mentioned above - 307 times heading into the 2005 season.

After final warmups, the team goes back into its dressing room under the west endzone stands for final game instructions. About 10 minutes before kickoff, the team boards two buses, rides around behind the north stands to the east endzone, and debarks to the top of the Hill behind Howard’s Rock.

At the appointed time, the cannon booms and led by a high-flying Tiger Paw flag, the band forms two lines for the team to run between and strikes up “Tiger Rag”...the frenzy starts in all sincerity and usually lasts for three hours.

It is a tradition that has inspired Clemson players for many years.

"The Rock has strange powers. When you rub it, and run down the Hill, the adrenaline flows. It’s the most emotional experience I’ve ever had." Six-Time All-Pro and former Tiger All-American Michael Dean Perry

Manhattan Construction Company is the proud builder of Clemson’s WestZone project. We are also proud to have constructed Clemson’s Advanced Materials Research Laboratory, South Carolina’s very first state funded LEED Certified building. Our Clemson experience doesn’t stop there. Manhattan was presented the “Honor Award” from The Palmetto Trust for Historic Preservation, The South Carolina Department of Archives and History, and the South Carolina Governor’s Office for our exceptional preservation and restoration of Fort Hill - Calhoun Mansion, located on the campus of Clemson University.
Here are some facts about your builder...

- National Associated Builders and Contractors “Excellence In Construction” Multiple Award Winner

- Recognized by the Associated General Contractors of America for having the Nation’s Best Safety Program in the building division with “Over One Million Work Hours.”

- Over the last 109 years in business, Manhattan Construction Company has managed the construction of national landmarks, including Houston’s Reliant Stadium, the United States Capitol Visitor Center in Washington D.C., the Oklahoma State Capitol Dome in Oklahoma City, The Bush Presidential Library Complex in College Station, Texas and The Texas Rangers Ballpark at Arlington, Texas.

Clemson Defensive Coordinator Vic Koenning has had the opportunity to be on the sidelines of some of college football's greatest venues. Whether it is Louisiana State, Michigan, Tennessee, or Florida, Koenning has seen pageantry that is the best college football has to offer.

Clemson's Death Valley is another one of those special places for college football, and the spectacle we will see today with a top-25 Boston College team, as the opponent will be no different. But Koenning, by his choice, has not experienced one of the most unique entrances in all of sports.

Koenning, in his first year directing the Tiger defense, coaches from the Death Valley sidelines but has declined the opportunity to run down the Hill, called by many "the most exciting 25 seconds in all of college football." It is not Koenning's fear of heights that has led him to take the short walk from the locker room to the field. He is just waiting to earn the privilege.

"I just don't think I have done anything yet to earn the right to rub Howard's Rock and run down the Hill," he said. "A player has earned that right by coming here. I have a set of goals for this defense to achieve. When we have achieved those goals, I look forward to taking part in the run down the Hill."

Spend just a few minutes watching the Owasso, OK native, be it on the practice fields or on the sidelines at Death Valley, and it is easy to see and hear how he works to make this Tiger defense the best it can be. Determined and fiery would be two adjectives used to describe his coaching style. But as this defensive unit adapts to his style of play, the fiery side of Koenning will be less apparent.

"I like to be calm and laid back when I'm on the field," stated Koenning. "Many times, players are on such an emotional roller coaster, it helps to be even-keeled. But at this point and time, there needs to be a hammer. If I have to be that hammer, I will. But with that hammer, you have to be there to hug as well."

Senior cornerback Tye Hill has seen both the hammer and hug-coaching style displayed by Koenning. The Saint George, SC native has enjoyed the experience.

"He does yell and scream, but he also is the first guy to slap you on the back when you do something well," said Hill. "Coach Koenning is what a player makes him. One of the things I really like about him is that he will not only tell you what you did wrong, but how to correct it."

Koenning's hammer and hug approach appears to be taking hold. In fourth quarter wins over #17 Texas A&M and Maryland, the Clemson defense forced a key stop that afforded Jad Dean and Reggie Merriweather the opportunity to complete fourth-quarter comebacks against the Aggies and Terrapins, respectively.

"Our defense can be very good, or it can be very average," said Koenning. "We have talent and ability to do great things. It is just a matter of working hard and doing the right things in preparation."

When Koenning talks of hard work and dedication, he speaks from experience. Following a stellar high school career in Owasso, he earned a scholarship and was a three-year starter at linebacker for Kansas State. He served as team captain for the 1982 Wildcat squad that earned a bid to the Independence Bowl, the first postseason bid in school history. He was the recipient of the Paul Coffman Award, which is presented each year to the Wildcat who displays the most outstanding leadership.

Koenning went on to pursue a pro career with the Denver Broncos, Oklahoma Outlaws (USFL), and Green Bay Packers from 1983-86 before starting work on his master's degree at Memphis.

"I learned the value of hard work and dedication at an early age," recalled Koenning. "I had parents and coaches who pushed me to be the best I could possibly be. I was very blessed to be brought up in an environment that demanded responsibility and attention to detail. From high school all the way to professional football, I was always one of those guys who was chosen as captain. That is due to how I was brought up."

Following his playing days, Koenning served first as a graduate assistant at Memphis. He was then a defensive back coach for the Tigers before becoming a defensive coordinator for the first six years at Southern Miss and the next three years at Wyoming in 1997. In his three years as the defensive coordinator in Laramie, his Cowboys were ranked nationally twice in total defense.

After a successful stint as a defensive coordinator, Koenning was named the head coach at Wyoming, a position he held for three seasons. He then moved to Troy, where he served a two-year stint as defensive coordinator for Larry Blakeney's squad.

Koenning's 2004 Trojan squad forced 32 turnovers to rank second in the nation behind National Champion Southern California. It marked the third time in his five years as a defensive coordinator that his defense ranked in the top six in the nation in turnovers forced.

His experience as a head coach has proved valuable in his role of defensive coordinator.

"I don't think there is any doubt it helps you," said Koenning. "Before I had the opportunity at Wyoming as head coach, I think we should be doing this or we should be doing that. After being a head coach, it opened my eyes to the rigorous and stress the head coach goes through. Any experience you can learn from is a good thing."

Following the 2004 season at Troy, Koenning had several opportunities to move up in the college ranks. In fact, one day after he accepted his current job at Clemson, Louisiana State called to inquire about a move to the other Death Valley.

"You try to make good decisions in life, and I felt coming to Clemson and working for Coach Bowden was a great one," said Koenning. "LSU calling tested my integrity and decision making a little bit, but I know I made the right decision. As much as I hated leaving very good friends at Troy, including a great head coach, Clemson is a great place to coach and a great place to raise a family. I could not be happier with the decision my family and I have made."

When Koenning speaks of family, it is easy to see what little spare time brings. With wife Tracey and three sons - Brady (9), Camden (5), and Jackson (4) (the couple also has a 25-year-old daughter Kimberly) - there is not a great deal of down time.

"I have three awesome boys at home and a wife who has an awesome heart," said Koenning. "The Lord has blessed me very much. My job is very important and very time consuming, but I want to make sure I don't lose sight of their importance at any time."

There will be little relaxation this afternoon as Tiger Band plays "Tiger Rag" and the team prepares for its trip into Death Valley to face Boston College. If Vic Koenning has made his way there, Tiger fans will know that some of the goals he has set for his first defensive unit at Clemson have been accomplished. If he is not there today, there is little doubt he will make such a trip sometime during the fall of 2005.

Clemson University is home to big ideas — ideas that fuel the economy, improve health and safety, and educate students for life.

Teaching America’s best scholars in a unique learning environment

Clemson students are among the nation’s best. Their SAT scores, freshman retention rates and graduation rates rank among the top public research universities. Clemson students think critically through individual research, collaborative work, laptop innovations, cutting-edge laboratories, studios and other hands-on challenges. Students gain lifelong communication skills through the Pearce Center for Professional Communication and the new Class of 1941 Studio for Student Communication. Clemson’s Rutland Center for Ethics helps students manage ethical issues now and in the future.

Meeting today’s business needs with a century of know-how Clemson’s International Center for Automotive Research (Clemson-ICAR®) in Greenville positions South Carolina to become a hub of the nation’s automotive and motorsports industry. Its Center for Optical Materials Science and Engineering Technologies’ spinoff companies have already generated more than $3 million. Clemson’s advanced materials research has a new state-of-the-art facility at the Clemson Research Park in Anderson County, making the Upstate a magnet for related industries. Its Biosystems Research Complex serves as a focal point of biotechnology research, the promising field to create new products and processes in medicine, agriculture and industry.

Solving life-threatening situations with life-altering research

Clemson attracted more than $125 million in externally funded research and sponsored program awards last year. Its scientists are working to stop breast cancer, heal ailing hearts, reverse bone loss, decrease diabetes and address a host of other health issues. Clemson engineers are working to make safer and “smarter” vehicles through automotive and transportation technology. Researchers are aiding soldiers on the battlefield, revolutionizing wireless communication and advancing security.

Mission Statement

The Department of Athletics offers nationally prominent athletic programs. Through a dedicated commitment to educational interests, a competitive athletic program, and integrity in all areas, the student-athletes, coaches, and staff strive to bring credit and recognition to Clemson University.

The mission of the Athletic Department is to sponsor a broad-based athletic program that provides educational and athletic opportunities for young men and women to grow, develop, and serve the interests of Clemson University by complementing and enhancing its diversity and quality of life.

Furthermore, the Athletic Department seeks to be a source of pride for the citizens of the State of South Carolina and to be recognized as a nationally prominent program, through consistently high levels of performance and accomplishment in athletic competitions.

The Athletic Department strives to develop student-athletes academically and athletically with the total commitment of aiding their efforts to graduate from Clemson University and advance to careers that will enable them to be productive members of society.

The Athletic Department will act in an ethical and honest manner, dedicated to compliance with all Federal, State, NCAA, Conference, and University rules and regulations.
Information

Concession Stands

Concession stands are located beneath all stands and can be reached from any portal.

Emergencies

First Aid stations are located at: South side - under Section J; North Side - under Section T; North Top Deck - under Section K; South Top Deck - under Section E. Trained nurses are on hand. Should a doctor be needed, ask any usher. Ambulances are located at Gates 1, 5, 9, and 13. Emergency calls (864) 659-2999 are received in the Security Booth.

Handicapped

Special entrances have been provided at Gates 1 and 3 for the handicapped.

Lost & Found

If any article is lost or found, please report it to the Gate 1 information booth.

Notice

Solicitation for any purpose is prohibited at an athletic contest in Clemson Memorial Stadium.

Pass Outs

Pass outs are allowed, however fans will have to go through the same level of security screening as they did upon entering the stadium.

Prohibited Items

Umbrellas, folding chairs, chaise lounges, food, and beverage containers of any type, including alcoholic beverages, thermos jugs, and ice chests.

Public Address System

The public address system is intended for spectators’ information concerning the game. Do not request the use of the P.A. system to make social contacts.

Season Ticket Holders/Other Visitors

Season ticket holders and other visitors to the stadium are requested to enter Gates 1, 5, 9, 11, or 13.

Persons with top deck tickets must enter the stadium via the ramps, which are located behind the North and South Stands. Ramp entrances are adjacent to Gates 1 and 13 (South) and Gates 5 and 11 (North).

Telephones

Pay telephones are located at the stadium ticket offices at Gates 1, 5, 9, 13, and top decks.

Will-Call

Will-call tickets are at the ticket office at Gate 9.

Clemson Memorial Stadium, known to Tiger faithful as “Death Valley,” seats more than 81,000 loyal fans. It is located on the western side of the Clemson University campus, while the campus is only a two-hour drive from Atlanta, Charlotte, and Columbia. The beaches of coastal South Carolina are only four hours away, while the awe-inspiring sights of the Blue Ridge Mountains can be viewed just a few miles northwest of Clemson.

Teaming up to Meet Your Goals

For over one hundred years, The National Bank of South Carolina has championed teamwork. All of our team members work together to make your financial dreams a reality. It's just one of the many ways we're honoring our past by helping you invest in your future.
The Clemson Tiger Sports Network supplies Tiger fans with a full day of broadcast each football Saturday. Each broadcast day has three programs, "Tiger Tailgate Show," "Game Day Broadcast," and the "Fifth Quarter Show." A tradition since the 1970s, the "Tiger Tailgate Show" is a two-hour entertainment and interactive program. It is produced on the lawn of Littlejohn Coliseum (at the corner) closest to Death Valley.

The program begins three hours prior to kickoff. Bubba Britton, Duane Evans, Don Munson, and Whitney Walters play host to the show. It is the gathering place on gameday. Interviews with former Clemson players, games, display items, and pregame excitement are all part of the program.

The game broadcast is anchored by Pete Yanity. The sports director at WSFA-TV in Spartanburg, SC, took over in September, 2003, after the passing of the legendary Jim Phillips, who had been the longtime voice of the Tigers since 1968. Yanity has been a part of the broadcast team since 2001 as the host of the pregame, halftime, and postgame shows, and as the sideline reporter during games.

Yanity has been the sports director at WSFA-TV in Spartanburg the last 15 years. He has also been a sideline analyst for nine years on Carolina Panther preseason football games and has considerable play-by-play experience for Comcast Sports Southest, covering various college events, including Tiger football and baseball. Yanity is also the voice of Tiger basketball and the host of the Tommy Bowden and Oliver Purnell Television Shows.

Joining Yanity in the booth is former Clemson offensive lineman Will Merritt, who played for the Tigers from 1998-01. He was a starter in both 2000 and 2001 when he was named Second-Team All-ACC.

Merritt worked on the Clemson radio network pregame and postgame shows in 2002. He also provided color commentary on the television tape-delay broadcasts of selected 2002 games. In 2003, he became the color analyst of the gametime broadcasts.

The native of Easley, SC, is the host of "The Morning Drive," a sports talk show that airs each morning on WCCP (104.9 FM) in Clemson.

Former Clemson Academic All-American linebacker Chad Carson completes the broadcast team as the sideline commentator. Carson served in that capacity for the final two games of 2003 and all of 2004. Carson is fourth in Clemson history in career tackles and was a starter on Tommy Bowden's first three Tiger teams.

As has been the case in the past, the gametime broadcast begins with the Tommy Bowden Pregame Show. Bowden meets with Sports Information Director Tim Bouteil to provide fans with the latest game lineup and strategy information. Yanity and Merritt also provide a last-minute scene-setter that includes the latest lineup and weather information.

After the game, fans can tune into the "Fifth Quarter Show," hosted by Ralph Patterson and Munson, or attend the show live from the Wild Wing Cafe in downtown Greenville, SC. Interviews with Coach Bowden and Associate Coaches Rob Spence and Vic Koenning are also included. An added feature includes lockerroom interviews with Clemson's top players that day. A rundown of the game stats and audio highlights are provided.

Fans can follow the Tigers by listening to "Tiger Calls" each Thursday evening with Bowden and Don Munson from 7:00 PM to 8:00 PM. The shows will air live from Chick-fil-A in Seneca, SC or one of four local Tri-County Ace stores.

The Clemson Tiger Sports Network also produces the Tommy Bowden Television Show, a recap of the previous game's highlights. Yanity serves as the host of this weekly program that gives fans insight into the coaches' decisions during the previous game and takes an up close look at your favorite players.

For more information, contact Rob Gahagan (General Manager), Don Williams (Sales & Operations), or Burt Jenkins (Account Executive) at Clemson Tiger Sports Properties, P.O. Box 552, Clemson, SC 29633-0552. They can be reached via phone at (864) 654-5544 and via fax at (864) 654-5509.
This brief NCAA rules education is aimed at outlining basic recruiting rules to help potential Tiger students-athletes and parents better understand the extensive process. Clemson University is committed to recruiting and conducting our athletic program with the highest level of integrity. If you have questions about NCAA rules, please contact Clemson's compliance services at (864) 656-1580 or through our website at ClemsonTigers.com and click on compliance. You can also visit the NCAA's website at NCAA.org.

Important NCAA Terms

Academic Credentials - A prospect should check with his high school guidance office to see if he is taking classes that will meet NCAA eligibility standards. A prospect should do this early - prior to his sophomore year - and keep track of core courses. A prospect will need to take either the ACT or SAT for NCAA certification.

Contact - NCAA rules define a contact as a face-to-face interaction with a prospect and/or his parents off Clemson's campus by a coach. The NCAA sets a contact period for football prospects from late November through the end of January. That is the only time coaches can meet with a prospect away from the Clemson campus.

Core Courses - Courses at a prospect's high school that are considered college preparatory. For the class entering Clemson in 2006, 14 core courses are required, including four in English, two in math, two in science, one additional from English, math, or science, two social sciences, and three additional courses. For the class entering Clemson in 2008, 16 core courses are required, including four in English, three in math, two in science, one additional from English, math, or science, two social sciences, and four additional courses. A high school prospect's guidance counselor will have a list of the school's core courses, or you can visit the NCAA Clearinghouse's website at NCAAClearinghouse.net for more information.

Dead Period - Recruiting period when coaches may not have face-to-face contact with prospects on or off Clemson's campus. Coaches may continue to telephone and write a prospect.

Evaluation - In April and May of a prospect's junior year, coaches will come to a prospect's high school, and review his athletic and academic credentials with his coach. In the fall, they may watch a prospect compete one time, but they will not have any contact.

Home Visit - During the contact period, a senior prospect may invite college coaches to his home to meet his parents, and to talk in detail about the football program and academic offerings at any college the prospect is considering.

Receiving Mail - When a prospect is in the ninth and 10th grades, NCAA rules allow Clemson to mail a questionnaire, NCAA educational information, and a summer-camp brochure to a prospect. After September 1 of the prospect's junior year, coaches can provide a prospect with the following: written personalized letters, send a media guide and copies of newspaper articles, and a schedule card. A prospect can receive a football game program when he visits the Clemson University campus.

Recruiting - A term used to describe the process of acquainting a prospect with a college and the coaches of that college, who are striving to learn more about a prospect. Only coaches can recruit - no one else is permitted to persuade a prospect to play sports at a particular college.

Prospect - Any student who has entered the ninth grade. Once a person becomes a prospect, NCAA rules define how college coaches can interact with that prospect.

Telephone - Clemson football coaches can call a prospect once in May of the prospect's junior year. After September 1 of a prospect's senior year, a coach can call a prospect once a week. A prospect can expect unlimited calls during the contact period, before his official visit and once the prospect has signed a National Letter of Intent.

Frequently Asked Questions

- Are a prospect's parents invited for an official visit? Yes. NCAA rules allow a school to provide lodging and meals for parents or legal guardians who accompany their child. However, NCAA rules do not allow schools to provide transportation for parents unless they drive with their son.

- Can a prospect visit Clemson anytime during his high school career? Yes. A prospect can have his high school coach call Tiger coaches to set up an unofficial visit. He can attend a football game and talk with Tiger coaches, and it does not count as a contact when it is on Clemson's campus. There are times a prospect cannot visit - NCAA rules refer to them as "dead periods," and coaches will not schedule to meet with a prospect during that time period.

- Can IPTAY members help recruit me? No. NCAA rules are clear; only Clemson coaches can telephone, contact, and evaluate a prospect. Only college coaches can offer unofficial/official visits.

- What is a National Letter of Intent (NLI)? It is a contract; a prospect and his parents sign a promise that the prospect will attend a particular college. In return, that college promises a prospect financial aid. A prospect signs it during his senior year (in February for football). Once the prospect signs it, he cannot be recruited by any other school, and it is a binding contract for the prospect's first year in college at the school that provides the national letter of intent.

- What is IPTAY? IPTAY is an organization of Clemson fans. It has over 23,000 members. It generates financial support for the athletic department, and it is the best in the country!

- What is an official visit? A prospect can take five official visits, which are expense-paid. Before the visit, the prospect must present a high school transcript and proof of an SAT, ACT, PACT, or PSAT test. Official visit invitations are extended by Tiger coaches only. Official visits may not occur prior to the first day of class of the prospect's senior year in high school.

- What is the NCAA Clearinghouse? It is the agency that certifies a prospect's eligibility for NCAA Division I and Division II. A prospect should register with the NCAA Clearinghouse at the end of his junior year in high school. Applications are available in the prospect's guidance office. Cost is $32.

One of the most important facilities on the Clemson athletic landscape is the strength training facility. Located in the Jarvee Athletic Center, it has continued to keep up with one of the most progressive areas in college sports. Head Strength Training Coach Joey Batson, who is in his ninth year as the director, makes sure Clemson student-athletes in all sports are ready for competition physically.

In the summer of 2004, he oversaw a third major facility enhancement. When he came to Clemson, the facility covered 11,000 square feet. It has continued to grow and now covers nearly 15,000 square feet. It is one of the most modern all-around facilities in the country.

The following improvements were made:

- State-of-the-art sound system
- Eight flat-screen plasma televisions
- State-of-the-art ventilation system
- New lighting system
- 10 new multi-functional Clemson power racks
- Mondo-rubber flooring throughout entire weight room
- New orange upholstery on all weightlifting equipment
- New paint on surrounding walls and columns
- Carpeting in entrances and offices
- Front entrance drop ceiling
- Metal overlay for awards displays
- Reconstruction of entryway walls

The plush atmosphere provides an interesting contrast to the physical exertion that takes place within the facility. When a Tiger student-athlete enters the etched-glass doors, he is greeted by nearly $700,000 worth state-of-the-art equipment.

The eight plasma televisions are positioned throughout the facility and are used for training and instruction, as strength coaches film athletes and work with them on their form.

Clemson has a staff of five full-time strength coaches along with four graduate assistant coaches, and numerous student assistant coaches who ensure a Tiger football player receives as much individual attention as possible. Training programs are position specific, and are designed to meet the specific needs of each student-athlete.

Batson is one of the most highly-regarded strength coaches in the country. In his nine years directing the program, he has coached 11 All-Americans. He is a major reason Clemson has been to a bowl in six of his eight years. Also, seven of his assistants at Clemson are now strength training directors at NFL or college programs.

When Clemson's football players returned to campus for the second session of summer school of 2004, they reported to a new football locker room and player lounge area within the Jervey Athletic Center. The 4,200-square-foot facility has all the modern conveniences, including a player lounge that includes seven plasma televisions and four computer work stations. The lounge also features murals that document Clemson's greatest players, greatest victories, and prominent former players who have gone on to the NFL.

The following is a rundown of the some of the features of Clemson's new lounge and locker room area:

- The locker room area is divided into eight sections, with the lockers corresponding to each player's uniform number. There are 115 lockers in all. Each section of the locker room is highlighted by a logo and picture of historical significance from a bowl game Clemson has played in. Each section also features large interchangeable action photos of recent Clemson players.
- Each player has a new mahogany locker that features a helmet storage area and a storage compartment below a padded seat. There is also a private lock box for personal items.
- Each locker features a large Tiger Paw that introduces the helmet storage area and a personalized name plate.
- The lounge area features seven plasma televisions, complete with split-screen capabilities. All are tied to a central video hub. The television area also contains an Academic Hall of Fame, complete with photographs and accomplishments of Clemson's academic All-Americans and award winners.
- The lounge also features four computer work stations to enhance communications capabilities with professors or advisors at Vickery Hall.
- One wall of the lounge contains a complete list (by team) of every former Tiger who has played in an NFL game. Another wall is a mural of Clemson's All-Century team (chosen in 1996 in conjunction with the 100th year of Clemson football).
- The entrance is dominated by a 30'x9' picture of Death Valley taken at night from Howard's Rock.
- The locker room and lounge areas also feature pictures from Clemson's 13 ACC Championship teams and the 1981 National Championship team.
- The back of the locker room, which has a new exit to the practice field, features a picture of Clemson players running down the Hill and rubbing Howard's Rock. It is the last image seen by each Clemson player as he heads to the practice field.

Since its inception in 1991, the five-faceded Student-Athlete Enrichment Program has provided student-athletes a continued commitment to excellence. Our approach is to address the total student-athlete, and we are committed to coaching our student-athletes to success not only in the athletic arena, but in the academic, personal growth, career, and community service arenas as well. We provide opportunities and services to address the changing needs and skills of student-athletes during college and after graduation.

Vickery Hall is a $3-million structure that is as impressive aesthetically as any of the other Clemson facilities. But the importance of Vickery Hall to the Clemson athletic department is not found in the structure itself, but in the many programs that the building houses.

Vickery Hall opened in 1991 and was the first facility in the country constructed solely for the all-around academic support of student-athletes. The two-story, 27,000 square-foot building is open all day and into the evening hours to accommodate student-athletes' extended schedules. It is a vital reason that the number of student-athletes on the ACC and Clemson Academic Honor Roll has shown continuous improvement since its opening.

Vickery Hall Values
We believe that you can win ACC and National Championships with men and women who strive for academic and athletic excellence, and who share values of honesty, open communication, fairness, balance in the personal life, integrity, life-long learning, accountability, and commitment.

Vickery Hall Staff Members:
- are honest in their dealings with athletes, coaches, parents and administrators.
- are technically sound in their approach to advising
- are committed to developing expertise that is recognized nationally.
- are committed to helping each other meet the challenges of motivating student-athletes toward their best academic efforts.
- are known for treating athletes consistently and with concern for their future.
- are chosen for Clemson and demonstrate a commitment to decision-making that is in the best interest of Clemson.
- are committed to retention, graduation, and life-long connection for student-athletes.

Our Student-Athletes:
- are able to communicate with peers and with adults.
- are exposed to the best in academic support.
- understand that they are expected to perform at their highest level in the classroom and on the playing field.
- understand that they are obligated to follow rules, train for championships, and graduate.
- realize that in exchange for their participation in athletics, they receive a college education, a network of support, and life-long relationships.

2006 Clemson Opponents

Clemson will play road games in major markets Boston and Philadelphia in addition to having ACC road trips to Florida State, Virginia Tech, and Wake Forest according to the list of opponents the Tigers will play in 2006.

Clemson only announced the list of opponents and game sites it will play in the 2006 season. The dates of all games will be determined and released in January of 2006.

Clemson and the other 118 Division I teams will play 12 regular-season games in 2006. The Tigers non-conference foes include South Carolina, Louisiana Tech, Temple, and Florida Atlantic. All but the Temple game will be played in Clemson Memorial Stadium.

The Tigers will play ACC home games against Georgia Tech, Maryland, N.C. State, and North Carolina in 2006, while league road games will be at Boston College, Florida State, Virginia Tech, and Wake Forest.

Florida Atlantic, who finished with a 9-3 record under Howard Schnellenberger in 2004, will come to Clemson for the first time ever. Schnellenberger coached Miami (FL) to the 1983 National Championship. Louisiana Tech will travel to Clemson for the second time. Clemson has a 2-0 lifetime record against Louisiana Tech, a 49-24 victory in the Humanitarian Bowl to close the 2001 season, then a 33-15 win at Clemson in the second game of the 2002 season.

Clemson and Temple begin a three-year series in 2005 when the Owls come to Clemson on October 22. The two teams will meet in Philadelphia, PA at Lincoln Financial Field, the home of the Philadelphia Eagles, in 2006.

North Carolina returns to Clemson's schedule for the first time since 2003 when the Clemson and North Carolina between 2004 and 2009.

The Tigers travel to Wake Forest in 2006, the second consecutive year Clemson will play in Winston-Salem, NC. Clemson plays at Wake Forest this year on October 1. When Clemson plays at Boston College in 2006, it will be Clemson's first trip to Boston since the 1983 season, when the Tigers suffered their only loss of the year to a Doug Flutie led Eagle team.

Clemson will not play ACC teams Virginia, Duke, or Miami (FL) in 2006.

The Clemson University Tiger Band - “The Band That Shakes the Southland” - is showcased on an upcoming episode of “Blue Ribbon,” a program on the Turner South television network.

The show, which has already aired several times and will air again on October 14 (9:30 PM) and October 27 (2:15 PM), travels the South in search of the very-bester college marching bands and stops in Tigertown, SC, Tuscaloosa, AL, Grambling, LA, and Durham, NC. The program’s host (Sandra Pinckney) visits Clemson’s Tiger Band, Alabama’s “Million Dollar Band,” Duke’s Marching Band, and “The Best Band in the Land” at Grambling.

“The Best Band” episode is scheduled to air later today at 6:30 PM.

“Last season and earlier this summer, a ‘Blue Ribbon’ production crew visited the Clemson University campus to tape footage of the band and our host,” stated Turner South spokesperson Julie Fetzer-Gill.

Tiger Band, the official marching band of Clemson University, is nationally known for its dynamic sound, precision marching, entertaining shows, and famous Clemson spirit. Tiger Band performs before more than one-million football fans each year. In recent years, the band has performed at many televised events, including appearances at bowl games.

“Blue Ribbon” is an original production of Turner South television that takes viewers across the region in search of the best the South has to offer. From pecan pie to barbecue sauce, diners to drive-ins, and spas to breweries, “It’s a treasure hunt filled with one-of-a-kind competitions and real Southern characters,” Fetzer-Gill said.

Viewers can log onto TurnerSouth.com to submit what they consider the best in the South. “This is a tremendous chance for fans to tell the region that Tiger Band has a tradition of excellence and is beloved by the Clemson community,” said Mark Spede, director of bands. “We would like Tiger fans everywhere to tune into the program and then log onto the Turner South website.”

Turner South, Turner Broadcasting System, Inc.’s 24-hour regional entertainment network, presents a mix of original programming, movies, regional news, and sports to cable and digital broadcasting system affiliates in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee, and regions of North Carolina.

Turner Broadcasting System, Inc., a Time Warner Company, is a major producer of news and entertainment around the world, and the leading provider of programming for the basic cable industry.

Today’s Show
Tiger Band will set the field ablaze with a dramatic introduction taken from Igor Stravinsky’s “Firebird Suite” and a thrilling new arrangement of Billy Joel’s “We Didn’t Start the Fire.” Tiger Band will continue to bring the heat with Michele Canio’s exciting “On Fire!” Finally, the band will close the show with Allen Vizzutti’s sizzling trumpet feature “Fire Dance” and an encore from the “Firebird Suite.”

You can take home the sounds of Tiger Band by purchasing the group’s CD, “We’re An American Band.” The CD features more than 30 tracks of favorites from previous football seasons. It includes “Sock It To ‘Em,” “Tiger Rag,” the Clemson Alma Mater, and a special emphasis on patriotic songs. The CD is available at the Tiger Band Office (119 Brooks Center) for $15. To order by mail, send a check for $17 payable to CUTFBA c/o Clemson Tiger Band, 119 Brooks Center, Clemson, SC 29634-1505.

The approximately $34 million WestZone initiative is underway, and soon the west end of Clemson Memorial Stadium will be transformed into a unique campus landmark. As the new “front door” to Death Valley, the WestZone will welcome fans, student-athletes, coaches and friends of Clemson University in an unprecedented fashion.

The WestZone Club, featuring excellent premium seating, will eventually cater to approximately 1,000 Clemson fans starting with the 2006 season. Boasting stylish amenities, comfortable seats and upscale cuisine, the WestZone Club combines indoor elegance and outdoor excitement. Private elevators will take patrons to the exclusive club, which includes a buffet dining area, along with lounge areas overlooking the Clemson campus and Lake Hartwell.

The WestZone initiative also will include great benefits to future Clemson Tiger gridders, including new locker rooms, team lounge areas, media interview rooms, training room, weight room, team and position meeting rooms and coaches offices. The overall project also will include the One Clemson Center, which will feature its history and traditions of Clemson University from an athletic, military and education standpoint.

Construction on the project began after the 2004 season and will continue during the 2005 season. Clemson will play its fall 2005 home schedule, as the general seating area will be functional by the opener on September 3 with Texas A&M.

Clemson and Boston College have met on the gridiron 14 times prior to this year’s meeting, but have not faced each other since 1983 when Doug Flutie was the third-most prominent athlete in Boston behind Larry Bird and Carl Yazstremski. Only Miami (FL) has played Boston College more among ACC foes than the Tigers.

The two schools played a two-game series from 1982-83, and both were thrillers. The two teams tied 17-17 in the 1982 game at Clemson, then the Eagles won in Boston in 1983 by a score of 31-16 after trailing 16-3 with 25 minutes left in the game. Clemson had a 30-2-2 record from 1981-83, so two of those four blemishes were to Flutie, who would win the Heisman Trophy as a senior in 1984.

Many of the previous games have been pivotal. The 1948 Tigers defeated the Eagles 26-19 at Braves Field (home of the then Boston Braves’ Major League franchise), and the 1950 Tigers won 35-14 at Braves Field. Both of those wins were important in undefeated seasons for Frank Howard’s team.

But, the most important game in the series from a Clemson standpoint and certainly one of the most important wins in Tiger history took place on January 1, 1940 in Dallas, TX, when Clemson defeated the Eagles 6-3 in the fourth Cotton Bowl game. This was the first meeting between the two schools, and it featured a pair of future Hall of Fame Coaches, Clemson’s Jess Neely, who was coaching his last game with the Tigers, and Boston College’s Frank Leahy, who was in the first year of a two-year stint as the Eagles’ coach before moving to Notre Dame.

Sixty-six years ago, Banks McFadden was an All-America running back for Neely’s Tiger team. He had led Clemson to an 8-1 record after a season-ending 14-3 win over Furman the Saturday after Thanksgiving. Clemson was ranked #15 in the nation after the victory, but there were only four bowl games in those days. The Clemson senior athlete hung up his Tiger cleats, he thought for good.

But on a December day 10 days after the end of the football season, McFadden was pulled out of basketball practice, an event much to his delight and much to the chagrin of basketball Coach Joe Davis.

“In those days, there was no television, and the bowls did not send out representatives to scout games,” said the late McFadden in an interview in the 1980s. “The committees took a long time to decide who they would pick, because it took a while to get all of the information together, so we had to wait a week before we found out if we were going.

“We had never been to a bowl before, and although we knew Coach Neely and Coach Howard were politicking for a bid in Dallas, we weren’t real confident. So I went to basketball practice.”

Clemson had won the Southern Conference Tournament title the year before, so the outlook for the 1939-40 basketball season was bright.

“In the middle of practice, one of the football players ran over to tell me we got the Cotton Bowl bid. There were three of us playing basketball and football, and we immediately left for football practice. We were very excited, but poor Coach Davis was not very happy. We were opening the season with Kentucky, and ended up losing our first five games before I joined the team on January 7.”

McFadden and his teammates were especially excited about the bowl bid, because they were off to see a part of the country they’d never been close to.

“Most of us had never been farther west than Georgia,” said McFadden.

“On the other hand, not too many people in Dallas had heard of Clemson. One of the paper’s headlines was ‘Who is Clemson?’ Boston College was about as foreign, but the combined pull of Coach Neely and Frank Leahy, made the difference.”

In reviewing the accounts of the 1940 Cotton Bowl, one might believe the fans didn’t get what they bargained for. It was a defensive struggle with only one touchdown scored, but according to McFadden, it was a classic of the era.

“Fans of that day appreciated defense more, and that was what we gave them. Everyone used a seven-man front and tried to move the other team off the line with brute force. People loved to see it.”

On the last play of the first quarter, Bru Trelxer punched to Boston College’s Charlie O’Rourke at the Clemson 40, and he returned it to the 27. Three plays later, Alex Lukachik kicked a 34-yard field goal to put the Eagles up 3-0.

Clemson scored the only touchdown of the game in the second quarter. The Tigers drove 67 yards behind Charlie Timmons’ rushing and a 16-yard pass from McFadden to Wistar Jackson, one of only two completions for the Tigers all day. Timmons ran over from two yards out for the scored and a 6-3 Clemson lead.

A stout Tiger defense, McFadden’s punting, and the communication systems of the day were the keys to Clemson’s shutout of the Eagles in the second half and eventual victory.

“Boston College passed nearly every down in the fourth quarter, but nearly every attempt was a bomb’s,” said McFadden of the Eagles, who completed only four of 23 passes all day. “Charlie O’Rourke, like all quarterbacks of the day, was calling the BC plays and was not aware of our weakness. We dared them to throw over the middle, but they just threw the ‘bomb’ all the time. Shad Bryant and myself must have set a record for knocked down passes in the fourth quarter.”

In fact, McFadden was credited with four pass deflections in the fourth quarter alone according to newspaper accounts of the game.

“In those days you could not substitute and there were no phones to the press box to other coaches,” recalled McFadden. “Anyone from up top could have seen we were leaving the middle open, but it was hard to see on the sidelines, and when they figured it out, O’Rourke had already panicked. They did not know how to come back, because they had not been behind much all year.”

Clemson could not move the ball either, but McFadden’s punting (44-yard average on 11 boots) kept the Eagles in bad field position. “Every time the safety would cheat up, I would call a quick-kick at the line of scrimmage, and it worked all day.”

That win put Clemson football on the college football map, as it was the first time the Tigers had defeated a top-20 team. The Eagles were ranked #11 in nation entering the game with a 9-1 record.

It was actually Leahy’s last loss at Boston College, as he went on to lead the Eagles to an 11-0 record the following year and a #5 final ranking. He is still #2 in NCAA history in career winning percentage, trailing only Knute Rockne.

Altroy Bodrick
1998-00, 02
A linebacker for Clemson from 1998-02, Altroy Bodrick was one of the most well-liked players on the team according to his teammates. He started every game for the Tigers in the 2002 season, and played in three bowl games. Bodrick returned for his senior season after missing 2001 with a torn ACL, and recorded at least five tackles in nine of the Tigers’ 13 games that season. He had two tackles for loss at Virginia, and his second-half interception against Wake Forest was a key play in Clemson’s 31-23 come-from-behind victory. A 2002 Clemson graduate, Bodrick is currently working his way up the corporate ladder.

“Currently, I am living in Wisconsin, but I am in the process of moving to Minneapolis,” said Bodrick. “I have taken a new job with the Best Buy Corporation as an assistant manager. I am very blessed to be with Best Buy, and the corporate office is actually in Minnesota. Hopefully, I will be a head manager one day.”

Bodrick misses Clemson and the time he spent with his teammates. “I miss going with the guys to dinner after practice, or maybe going to the movies,” explained Bodrick. “The time I spent with my teammates is what I miss the most. From a football standpoint, I miss the Hill. Every time I see the Tigers on top of the Hill on television, I get chills just as if I was up there with them again. That feeling is indescribable.”

With some former teammates still playing in the NFL, Bodrick looks forward to when he can see them play in person. “I get to see Nick Eason play this week, and I get to see Keith Adams play later this season,” said Bodrick. “Along with Nick and Keith, I’m still close with Chad Carson, Rodney Thomas, and Bryant McNeal.”

This is an exciting time in Bodrick’s life. Along with his new job, he is now engaged. Bodrick’s fiancé is his long-time college sweetheart Heather Falzetta.

“All of my friends know Heather, and she made sure that I mention that we are now engaged,” laughed Bodrick. “We are very excited about it!”

Fred Cone
1948-50
Inducted into the Clemson Ring of Honor in 1997, Fred Cone was the first Tiger in history to rush for 2,000 career yards (1948-50). He ranks fourth on the Tiger career list for touchdowns (31). He was a starter on two undefeated teams, one of two players in Tiger history to do that. He was drafted by the Packers and had a lengthy career in pro football.

Cone currently resides in Blairsville, GA with his wife Judy. The couple has lived there for 16 years, and they enjoy the relaxed environment.

“We like Blairsville very much; it’s a beautiful area and we are still only two hours away from Death Valley,” said Cone.

His days in Green Bay will always stick out in his mind, as will the overall experience of professional football. He played for the Packers from 1951-57 and is a member of the Packers Hall of Fame.

“I did not know much about Green Bay when they drafted me,” explained Cone. “I had always liked the Philadelphia Eagles, because of the insignia on their helmet, and they were one of the first teams to have a design on their helmet. I was very glad to go to Green Bay, though, and it was a small town and a great experience for me.”

Cone is one of Clemson’s most celebrated players, and he still holds one of his alma mater’s lasting traditions close to his heart. “When I played, we dressed in the basement at Fike Fieldhouse,” he said. “We would walk down the street from Fike and to the Hill. I’ll never forget the first time I came to that Hill and heard ‘Tiger Rag.’ It was the first time I had ever heard it. We did not have Howard’s Rock to rub yet, but it was still very special to run down the Hill. I will always remember that moment.”

Playing for Coach Frank Howard was an honor for Cone, and he was quick to compliment the teammates he played with. “As a fullback, we always got the ball down on the goal line to score, so I got too much credit,” admitted Cone. “We had some great players on those teams, and our success was the result of a total team effort.”

Cone said he and his Tiger teammates loved playing the game and for Howard. “I still talk to Jack Brunson, Jackie Calvert, Don Wade, and Glenn Smith when I get the opportunity. I wish I could name everyone, because I enjoyed all of my teammates,”

Kyle Young
1998-01
There really is not much Kyle Young did not accomplish during his days as a Tiger football player. A three-time, first-team Academic All-American, he started at center for the Tigers from 1998-01. He was a big part of a special night for Clemson football in New York City on December 11, 2001. That evening, Terry Kinard was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame, and Young was a recipient of a National Football Foundation Scholar-Athlete Award. Clemson was the nation’s only school with one of each in 2001.

Today, Young works as an administrator in the Clemson Athletic Department. “I currently work with sports supervision under Dwight Rainey,” he said. “We work with men’s and women’s soccer, men’s and women’s swimming, baseball, and golf. I help them with game management issues, as well as budget issues. It has been an educational experience.”

After his playing days, Young spent one year at Virginia Tech. “I left Clemson for the only time in my life after I graduated,” he said. “I spent one year as an administrative intern in the Virginia Tech Athletic Department. I worked with supervision up there, but not quite as involved as I am here at Clemson.”

Young then returned to his hometown as a graduate assistant football coach. “That was a good experience for me,” recalled Young. “I got to work with Ron West on the offensive line one year, and then Brad Scott the next. I thought I knew a lot about football as a player, but after the hours I put in as a graduate assistant, I realized all of the intricacies that are involved with the game.”

When asked about his favorite memory as a Tiger, Young gave an answer that may be surprising to some. “Obviously some of our bigger wins stuck out in my mind, but what I miss most about being a player is the workouts and running we did in the offseason,” recalled Young. “It was during those times that you became a cohesive unit, and I miss those times we got to spend together.”

A big day is also on the horizon for Young and his wife Jamie, as they are expecting their first son (Watson McLendon) to be born around today’s game date.

Kyle Young was a three-time, first-team Academic All-American at Clemson.

The sprint-freestyle events will be led by talented sophomore Mark Vahle, who recorded the third-fastest time in Clemson history in the 50 free," stated Ip. "He will be accompanied by a group of upperclassmen and freshmen that can range from the 50 to the 500, including Brian Regone, Stephen Russell, Bryce Herrington, Brian Possee, Matt Baldorston, and Daniel Mengering. Our other pure sprinter is freshman Eric Pinno from Maryland.

The Tigers have a solid core of returning swimmers for the distance events. Clemson will be led by Mengering, an ACC triple scorer. Mengering, who is coming off of his best season as a Tiger, will look to again be a force in the tough ACC distance events. Geary broke out in Clemson's meet against Georgia Tech, when he posted a team-season-best time in the 1000 free (9:22.87). They will be joined by seniors Jordan Raynovich and Greg Middleton, junior Brett MacLennan, and freshman Pal Toth will back them from the 1560 down to the 200 free.

The butterfly events will be manned by Kanoy. Kanoy earned a 10th-place finish at the ACC Championships last year, his best finish at the meet as a Tiger. Freshman Thomas Niemeier and Eric Pinno will back him up in the butterfly. Vahle will also come over for the sprint fly events.

Returnees Andy Bergren and Attila Ruszka will lead the breaststrokers. Bergren posted the sixth-fastest time in Clemson history in the 200 breast, and combined with Ruszka to post the fifth- and sixth-fastest times in the 100 breast. This should help the Tigers with their depth for all of the breaststroke events as well as the medley relays.

In backstroke, Clemson will look to Johnson in the sprint backstroke and Dillon for the 200. Johnson was the backstroke leg of the Tigers' 200 medley relay that recorded the second-fastest time in school history. Dillon, on the other hand, posted a 12th-place finish in the 200 back (1:49.53) at the ACC Championships, and will look to improve on that as he makes his way up the Clemson all-time list.

In the individual medleys, Raynovich will lead the way. He placed 11th in the 200 IM (1:51.26) and 15th in the 400 IM at the 2005 ACC meet. Those were the highest places by any returning Tiger.

Clemson will look for strong relays in the 2005-06 season. The Tigers return 75 percent of their 200, 400, and 800 freestyle relays, as well as in the 200 medley. Vahle, Russell, and Regone are all returning for the sprint relays. Johnson, Ruszka, Bergren, and Vahle all return for the Tigers in the medleys. The 800 free relay could prove to be the strongest one, though, as Mengering, Middleton, and Dillon return from the relay, and Russell breaking out in the 200 freestyle could be key for the Tiger squad.

"Our big goal is to have one of our relays make it to NCAAs," said Ip. "We have a little more depth in the past with our medley relays, but we are stronger now at the top when we put our best medley relay out there."

Senior Marsh Lindley will lead the Tigers on the boards this year. Lindley finished 13th in the three-meter and 18th in the one-meter at the ACC Championships last year. Diving Coach Leslie Hisselbach has added new faces Brian Miller (Germantown, MD) and Paul Berger (Sandusky, OH).

Clemson added Jonathan Kaplan to an already outstanding staff of coaches. He will work with the swimmers' technique and use innovative types of training that will help the Tigers become an elite team in the ACC.

"Jonathan has a great passion for the success of our student-athletes, and is a student of the sport," stated Ip. "He is 100 percent an educator. His background in sports administration has super charged our recruiting efforts, and he is a great fit for the program."

Mark Heny, a first-year graduate student from Denver, PA, is a graduate assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

In the 2005-2006 season, the Clemson Women's Swimming & Diving team will look to keep building from a strong finish to the 2004-05 season. The Tiger women won three out of their last four meets to post a 6-7 duel meet record, a seventh-place finish at the ACC Championships, and a tie for 34th place at the NCAA Championships.

The Tigers were led by Kim Routh (Sandusky, OH) at the ACC Championships, as she was a double-gold medalist in the 500 free and the 1650 free. Routh was also able to lead the Tigers at the NCAA Championships, as she recorded a 15th-place finish in the 500 free and a 15th-place finish in the 1650 free. This earned her an honorable mention All-America honors for the second straight year.

Depth will be the main strength for the Lady Tigers this year. "We only lost two seniors last year, so we have a full squad coming back with the addition of our freshman," said fourth-year Head Coach Chris Ip. "I am looking forward to hitting a lot of different events from a lot of different angles."

However, it will be important for the freshmen to step up right away. "The biggest challenge that we will encounter is youth," admitted Ip. "We need to get those women on board so that they know what college swimming is all about."

Two current swimmers hold team records in their respective events. Routh, a senior, set the record in the 1650 free (16:18.26) at last season’s ACC Championships, and senior diver Shastin Leathers set the mark on the one-meter board (271.65) at the Nike Cup.

In addition to the two recordholders, the Tigers will return four other swimmers that are currently in the Tiger all-time top 10. Senior Nicole Carlton ranks eighth in the 1650 freestyle (16:49.16), senior Ashley Shafer ranks third in the 100 breast (1:03.76) and 10th in the 200 breast (2:19.05), and junior Sarah Cefalu recorded the eighth-fastest time in the 200 breast (2:18.91) at the 2005 ACC Championships. Sophomore Jen Grove swam her way to the sixth-fastest time in Tiger history in the 100 fly (55.80), also at the ACC Championships.

With these returnees, coupled with a talented incoming freshman class, the Tigers should be a formidable foe against ACC competition.

"Our freshman class picked up a lot of swimmers that were plugged in to different events," stated Ip. "Rachel Regone and Cassy LaRusza are versatile in the freestyle events, ranging from the 50 to the 500. The Kroll sisters, Casey and Toni from Tennessee, bring us a lot of variety and a lot of depth in multiple of events. The big challenge for them will be to get them used to the college program and the intensity of all our dual meets. If they are able to do that, they will do very well."

Ip is excited about his squad batting the full cycle, as the squad will have all the swimmers and divers believing in his philosophy for success.

In the sprint freestyles, returnees Kallie Deturs, Amanda Provit, and Bethany Meeuwsen will lead the way. Deturs finished off the season with a 23rd-place finish in the 50 free (23.95) and a time of 53.08 in the 100 free at the ACC Championships.

"We have strengthened our sprints by signing Rachel Regone, who was the Texas state runner-up in the 50 and the 100," remarked Ip. "We also added Pennsylvania natives Lauren Sindall from Lancaster and Cassy LaRusza from Emmaus. LaRusza is a versatile swimmer who can swim the 50 up to the 500. They will join Claire Ouda and Jayme VanErden, who look to add to the depth of the sprint events."

Honorable Mention All-American and ACC Champion Kim Routh will lead the distance group. She will team up with fellow senior Nicole Carlton and sophomore Whitney Sandison. As a team, the Tigers took first place on nine occasions in the 1000 freestyle and seven times in the 500 freestyle in 2004-05. To add to this already strong group, Ip added Carlyn Sanders, Summer O’Donnell, and Toni Kroll.

In 2004, the backstroke events suffered due to key injuries. However, Ip believes that backstroke is where the Tigers have improved the most. Senior captain Kelly Urso, who is returning from a back injury, swam career-best times in 2003-04 in the 100 back (58.44) and 200 back (2:04.22). The Tigers also signed Michelle Parkhurst, a freshman from Virginia. She was honored as the Rookie-of-the-Meet at USA Senior Nationals this summer. She placed sixth in the 100m backstroke to earn the honor. Senior Nikki Deering and freshman Ashley Clay will join them in the backstroke events.

Senior Ashley Shafer and junior Sarah Cefalu will take key roles for the Tiger breaststrokers. At the 2005 ACC Championships, Shafer recorded 11th-place finishes in the 100 breast (1:03.94) and the 200 breast (2:19.12). Cefalu swam her way to the eighth-fastest time in Clemson history in the 200 breast (2:18.91) in the ACC Preliminaries. Freshman Katie Aggas, from The Bolles School in Florida, and South Carolina native Sara Anderson will round out the group.

The butterfly events will be covered by Mary Paulson and Jen Grove in the 100, and Peg Carter and Kate Hicks in the 200. Grove, a sophomore, swam the sixth-fastest time in the 100 fly in Clemson history (55.80). Carter was the top finisher for the Tigers at the ACC Championships, coming in 19th with a time of 2:05.19. Ip added incoming freshmen Toni Kroll, Sara Poni, and Lisa McKain to strengthen the squad.

The individual medley events will be handled by a number of the Tigers. Ip believes that a combination of experience and young talent will prove to be a successful formula for this year’s IMers.

“We have Sarah Cefalu and Jill Allen to tackle IM events for the upperclassmen. Our versatile freshman swimmers in Toni and Casey Kroll, Cassy LaRusza, Aggas, and Sanders will see action in the IM events."

Depth will prove to be valuable in the relays for the Tigers this year. They lost only two seniors from last year and added 16 new faces to the program.

“We look for some strong relays and depth in all our events during the dual-meet season,” said Ip. “We will have strong medley relays with Michelle Parkhurst leading off, and we picked up a lot of sprint freestylers for those relays as well.”

In the diving events, Clemson returns a lot of depth. Leathers, who is the school recordholder on the one-meter board, will look to score big at the ACC meet this year and qualify for NCAAs. She will be backed by returnees Jess Watcke, Jen Miata, and Dani Kazilionis.

Clemson added Jonathan Kaplan to an already outstanding staff of coaches. He will work with the swimmers’ technique and innovative types of training that will help the Tigers become an elite team in the ACC.

“Jonathan has a great passion for the success of our student-athletes, and is a student of the sport,” stated Ip. “He is 100 percent an educator. His background in sports administration has supercharged our recruiting efforts, and he is a great fit for the program.”

Proudly supporting Tiger Football
By Philip Sikes

The Clemson women’s track & field program is ready for the challenges that lie ahead in the 2005-06 season. To make the next step and challenge for ACC Championships, the team must do so without decorated seniors from 2005, namely Gisele Oliveira and Silja Ulfarsdottir.

But Marcia Noad, now in her sixth season as Clemson’s head coach, remains confident in the Lady Tigers’ ability to compete at the highest level. A major reason for her confidence is the hire of Larry Clark to aid with Clemson’s cross country, distance, and middle distance runners. Clark, a Tiger letterwinner from 1987-90, was a three-time All-ACC honoree in cross country.

“The staff is all on the same page and that is going to make a huge difference in the success we will have this year,” Noad said. “The girls have the mentality that they can get the job done.”

Clark and Noad have the luxury of an experienced group of cross country performers to help lead an exciting, talented class of newcomers. The team got off to a strong start by winning the Gamecock Invitational in Columbia on September 2. Jenny Barton and Casey Phillips finished 1-2 in that race, and the senior duo is expected to provide leadership for the group this fall. Both were all-state performers a year ago.

Thea Dix and Patrice McMillan, a pair of middle distance runners, also excel in cross country. Both will solidify Clemson’s lineup this fall. Among the newcomers Clemson coaches are counting on should be Sunday Ford (Piedmont, SC), Candice Johnson (Duncan, SC), and Lauren Marriott (Atlanta, GA).

In the distance events, Barton returns as a mainstay in the 3000m steeplechase. She holds the Clemson record in that event, and also had the team’s top times in the 5000m and 10000m last season. Phillips returns as the top 1500m runner on the team. Ford and Marriott could contribute in either distance area this season according to Noad.

Both have been impressive with their work ethic. Noad expects senior Jennifer Hooton and a pair of freshmen, Caroline Rash (Clemson, SC) and Maggie Zawaski (Alliance, OH), to add depth in the distance events.

The middle distance group will be paced by the trio of Dix, McMillan, and Johnson. Last season, Dix had two of Clemson’s top four marks in the indoor 800m, while McMillan posted the top-five marks of the outdoor season in that event.

The sprint group will get a boost from the return of Christina Smith and Randi Hinton. A 2004 All-American, Smith ran with the 4x400m indoor relay team. She also was a provisional qualifier for the 400m hurdles as a freshman. Hinton will again pace the relay teams and continue to be Clemson’s top performer in the 200m. She posted a regional-qualifying effort in that event last season.

Sierra Hill and Tia Perry are a pair of rising sophomores who have the talent to elevate the level of the sprint group. Hill scored for Clemson at the outdoor 400m hurdles and indoor 400m ACC events. Hill, Hinton, and Perry return as three members from last year’s 4x400m ACC Championship team. Perry is expected to make more of an impact in his season in the individual events. Carmisa Morris, a freshman from Piedmont, SC, is also expected to be a difference-maker.

Polly Hardy returns as the top hurdler on the team. She posted the team’s top three times in the 100m hurdles and also performed well in the 60m hurdles. Krystal Barringer, a freshman from Charlotte, NC, should help in the sprint hurdles area and the 4x100m relay. She won the 100m hurdles at the AAU National Junior Olympic Games held in New Orleans, LA this past summer.

Olivia left mighty big shoes to fill in the horizontal jumps after claiming the 2005 NCAA Indoor national title in the triple jump and finishing runner-up in the event outdoors. Fortunately, the Lady Tigers return plenty of talent in that area.

Michelle Rogers returns in the triple jump after having missed a NCAA qualifying mark by just four centimeters at the 2005 Solid Orange Classic. Competing with her for a shot as Clemson’s top jumper will be Renata Miyamoto, who qualified for regionals last outdoor season, and Barringer, who also has the ability to compete in the triple jump.

Now in his fourth season overseeing the vertical jumpers and throwers, Assistant Coach Glenn McAreavey has a wealth of talent and experience to work with this season.

That could not be more evident than in the pole vault, as Beth Jordan, Helen Kirkland, Mary Armstrong, Krissy Thompson, and Jessica Earp are all expected to have a chance in that area. Jordan has the top returning marks for Clemson in the event, while Earp is concentrating her efforts in the event after performing as a multi-event athlete last year.

The Lady Tigers return their top two high jumpers from the 2004-05 season in Anna Korhonen and Felicia Vahedtovisto. A native of Finland, Korhonen recorded the top mark for Clemson last year at 5’6”. Katie Farnan, from Douglasville, GA, is expected to compete with those two for the top high jumping spot on the team.

In the throws, Clemson returns a group of talented performers who should get a boost from incoming freshman Rochelle Kokayko (Kelowna, British Columbia). Della Clark was Clemson’s most improved student-athlete in 2004-05, and she posted regional qualifying marks in both the weight and hammer throw. Allison Bradshaw scored for the Lady Tigers at the ACC Championships in the shot put as well.

Kristal Woods returns for her senior year and will help on the hurdles and discus throws this season. She posted a regional-qualifying mark in that event last season and ranks second all-time in school history in the event. Mikaela Patterson returns with the potential to be Clemson’s top discus thrower. She had a toss of 146’2” at the ACC Championships a year ago. Adding depth in the javelin will be a newcomer from the Clemson swim team, Rachel McLaurin (Houston, TX).

Philip Sikes is an Assistant Sports Information Director in his second year at that position at Clemson. He previously worked as a graduate assistant at Clemson for two years.
Gary Barnes

Most Tiger fans are familiar with one 'judge' that played football. Jeff Davis was nicknamed "The Judge" when he was the team leader during Clemson's 1981 National Championship season.

But another former Tiger football player is known as "The Judge," and he still resides in Clemson, SC. Gary Barnes, who played football at Clemson from 1959-61 and this year was inducted into the South Carolina Athletic Hall of Fame for his efforts, has served as a judge in Clemson's Municipal Court for nearly 20 years.

His affiliation with Clemson dates to the mid-1950s when he was recruited to Clemson by Frank Howard. However, Clemson was not his first choice.

"I went to Gordon Prep School for a year out of high school because I wasn't highly recruited," Barnes said. "Georgia Tech wanted me to play football and I was all set to go, but then they did not offer me a scholarship. Coach Howard took a chance on me. I owe him an awful lot. Looking back, Clemson was the right place for me."

Barnes played football and basketball at Clemson, but his basketball career was short-lived. "I didn't play much on the basketball team. They let me go in at the end of games, but my career didn't turn out the way I hoped. I thought I was a better basketball prospect than football."

Barnes recalled a story when Coach Howard called him into his office to discuss his basketball career. "He sat me down and talked to me, and he asked me not to play basketball anymore. I really wanted to keep playing, so I respectfully fought his decision. But in the end, he won out. I asked him if I should turn in my basketball uniform, and Coach Howard said, "That won't be necessary. I already did it for you."

What turned out to be Clemson basketball's loss was the football program's gain. Barnes played numerous positions during his time at Clemson - wide receiver, defensive back, and kick and punt returner - but his favorite was receiver. He was the first true split end in Clemson's predominantly rushing offense under Howard.

He never caught many balls in a season, but did catch a touchdown in the last Big Thursday game against South Carolina in 1959. In fact, Barnes scored the last points in a Big Thursday game, a two-point conversion in Clemson's 27-7 victory.

"I never knew that until the (South Carolina) Hall of Fame induction ceremony," he said.

Barnes also made one of the most famous plays in Tiger bowl history, as his 68-yard touchdown catch from Harvey White against Texas Christian in the 1959 Bluebonnet Bowl was the key play in Clemson's 23-7 victory. The Horned Frogs were ranked #7 in the nation entering the game and featured All-America lineman Bob Lilly.

Barnes' playing days on the hardwood were short-lived thanks to Coach Howard.

A First-Team All-ACC player in 1959 and 1960, Barnes finished his career with 39 receptions for 719 yards and six touchdowns. His 18.4 reception average is third best in Clemson history among receivers with at least 30 catches. After leaving Clemson with a degree in textile management, Barnes went to the NFL and played for the Green Bay Packers in his first season. He recalled the first time Vince Lombardi, the legendary coach, addressed the team.

"Gentlemen, three things should be important in your life: your religion, your family, and the Green Bay Packers. If it's not in that order, then we have a problem."

The respect and pride he has towards Lombardi to this day can be seen in Barnes' Clemson office, as he has a picture of his first pro coach intently watching his team from the sidelines, the only football-related picture in his office.

Barnes was an integral member of one of the most well-known offenses in NFL history, the "Green Bay Sweep." To perfect the play, he said, "we practiced on a seven-man (blocking) sled, and we kept at it until the timing was perfect and every man hit the sled at the same time."

In Barnes' rookie year, the Packers won the 1962 NFL title, losing once to the Detroit Lions on Thanksgiving Day. "If there were three or four minutes left, we would've won that one too," Barnes said.

One sports publication listed that 1962 Packer team as the greatest football team of all-time, better than any Steeler team of the 1970s, 49er team of the 1980s, and the 1972 undefeated Miami Dolphins.

Barnes could not immediately recall the publication, but stated that he "had it mounted and framed in my condo."

There is a list of Super Bowl Champions in the Clemson media guide. The Super Bowl began in 1966, so Barnes is not on that list. But had there been one in 1962, the Packers most certainly would have been World Champions.

As his career progressed, Barnes played for the Dallas Cowboys, Chicago Bears, and Atlanta Falcons after playing for Green Bay. Barnes had the unique distinction of playing for three Hall of Fame head coaches during his professional career in Lombardi, Tom Landry, and George Halas. He might be the only player in history to play for those three legendary head coaches, not to mention his college days under Howard, who was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in 1989.

"I can't identify anyone else who played for all three," he said.

Reluctantly, he admitted that his favorite is Lombardi. "He was the greatest, even though Coach Landry really knew football. There aren't enough good things I can say about Tom Landry. And it was an honor to play for George Halas, one of the NFL's founding fathers."

Gary Barnes was a First-Team All-ACC receiver in 1959,60 and later went on to play in the NFL for the likes of Vince Lombardi, Tom Landry, and George Halas.

Barnes said Lombardi displayed a different side of himself every week to his team. "He was a tyrant one week, then happy the next, and emotional, sometimes to tears, the week after. He had a unique ability to push all the right buttons at the right times, and he properly prepared us to play at a high level every week."

The demand for perfection and Lombardi's uncanny motivational ability made it even more difficult to disappoint him. "We hated to let him down."

Bart Starr, who later became a two-time Super Bowl MVP and NFL Hall of Famer, quarterbacked the Packers during Barnes' time with the team. "He was an extension of Coach Lombardi on the field. The amount of time he (Starr) spent preparing for games was unbelievable."

Barnes admitted that Starr "didn't have great mechanics, but he was the best I ever saw at winning games."

A list of other NFL Hall of Famers Barnes played with reads like a "who's who" list of NFL legends. The list includes Ray Nitschke, Jerry Kramer, Forrest Gregg, Paul Hornung, Willie Davis, Bob Lilly, and Mike Ditka. In addition, he recalls playing games against Johnny Unitas and Joe Namath, and just watching them perform.

Near the end of Barnes' playing career in 1966, he played with the Atlanta Falcons and scored the first touchdown in the history of that franchise.

Shortly after his playing career ended, he returned to Clemson and entered public service. He was named to Clemson's Centennial team on the One-Platoon Squad and was inducted into the Clemson Hall of Fame in 2002.

When asked about his proudest accomplishment off the field, he simply replied, "my family." Barnes and his wife Sarah have two children, Greg and Kelly, and two granddaughters. He proudly displays pictures of his family throughout his office, right up there next to Coach Lombardi.

2005 Tiger Football
By Tim Bournet

Only eight student-athletes in the history of Division I college athletics have gained All-America status in both football and basketball. I am fortunate to say that I knew two of the eight. Edward “Moose” Krause was the athletic director at Notre Dame when I was a student assistant in the sports information office from 1975-78, and of course I was fortunate to have known Banks McFadden for over 27 years during my career as Bob Bradley’s assistant and now as sports information director.

This past spring, just a few days after McFadden’s death at the age of 88, I contacted the other Division I sports information directors to compile a list of student-athletes who had earned All-America honors in both football and basketball, one of the great all-around athletic accomplishments in the history of collegiate athletics.

I figured it would be a short list, and I was right. At that point, it struck me that I had missed a great opportunity to get a once-in-a-lifetime picture of two of the eight double-major sports All-Americans together. When I traveled with Notre Dame to Clemson for the 1977 football game, Krause was on the trip, and I met McFadden prior to the game. Both viewed the game from the same press box, but to my knowledge, they were never photographed together.

This summer, when I reflected on McFadden’s unprecedented career at Clemson, it struck me that these two legends of their respective institutions had a lot in common. In addition to the double All-American note, they both lettered multiple years in a third sport…track. McFadden ran in many events and could virtually beat a team by himself. He once established four state records in the same meet, while Krause was one of the top weight event men in the Midwest during his track career.

One could make the case that both were better in basketball than football, although McFadden was named to the College Football Hall of Fame. Krause was inducted into the Basketball Hall of Fame in 1976.

Both men were listed at 6’3” and played center on their teams. Krause was a three-time first-team All-American from 1931-34, just the second three-time, first-team All-American in college basketball history (John Wooden, who would later lead UCLA to 10 NCAA Championships as a coach, was the first to do it as a player at Purdue).

McFadden was an All-American as a junior in 1938-39 when he guided Clemson to the 1939 Southern Conference Championship, still the only postseason tournament title in Tiger history. He scored 810 points in his career, an incredible total during an era when final team scores were in the 30s and 40s. He was later named the nation’s Most Versatile Athlete in 1939 as well.

Krause was a second-team All-American as a junior on the gridiron at Notre Dame as a lineman. He was recruited by Knute Rockne, but never played in a varsity game for the Irish under the famed Notre Dame coach, who died in a plane crash in March of Krause’s freshman year (1931).

McFadden was an All-American as a senior in 1939 when he was a multi-purpose threat as a passer, runner, and punter. He led Clemson to the 1939 Cotton Bowl and a victory over Frank Leahy’s Boston College team. Two years later, Leahy left Boston and became Notre Dame’s head coach. One of Leahy’s line coaches in the 1940s was Krause.

Both turned heads because of their physical status. Krause, at 6’3” and 220 pounds, was the biggest football player Rockne signed in his 13 years as head coach of the Irish (how times have changed!). McFadden, who was also recruited by a Hall of Fame coach (Jess Neely), was also 6’3”, but barely 180 pounds. Frank Howard, then an assistant, remarked when McFadden first arrived at Clemson that if you filled McFadden with tomato juice, he would resemble a thermometer.

When both men graduated from their respective institutions, they returned to work in their alma mater’s athletic department as assistant football and basketball coaches, then became the head coach of the basketball team. Krause coached Notre Dame for six seasons and upset Adolph Rupp’s 1948 Kentucky team that not only won the NCAA Tournament, but went on to win the Olympic Gold medal. Krause retired from coaching in 1948 and served as Notre Dame’s athletic director for 32 years, the longest stint in Notre Dame history. His career as a student until the time he retired spanned 50 years.

McFadden led the Clemson basketball team for 10 years, and from 1947-48 through 1951-52 led the Tigers to an improved conference record in each season, the first coach in college basketball history to realize a league victory improvement in five consecutive seasons. That streak culminated with an 11-4 Southern Conference mark in 1951-52 that is still the most conference victories in a season in Tiger basketball history. When McFadden’s coaching career ended in 1970, he served as director of Clemson’s intramural program until he retired in 1985. His career as a student until the time he retired spanned 49 years.

Facilities on both campuses honor the contributions they made to their respective schools. The track facility at Notre Dame is named in Krause’s honor, and a statue of Krause sitting in a chair is positioned in front of Notre Dame’s Athletic & Convocation Center. The football building at Clemson is named after McFadden. Both were honored many times over by their alma maters, winning distinguished alumni honors.

Both men served their alma maters with distinction and were showered with awards during their careers. But, the biggest common denominator both showed me was their character.

Late in their lives, both men had the daily challenge of caring for wives who had developed Alzheimer’s. Most days when I would go to the Notre Dame cafeteria on the South Quad, Krause would be in there cutting his wife’s food.

McFadden dealt the same hand. He would go to a nursing home three times a day to feed his beloved wife of 55 years, Aggie, until her death in 2001. The way both men showed a daily dedication to care for their wives with constant patience until the day they died was inspiring.

In my line of work, one deals with individuals who are in the public eye, people who assume legendary status whether they deserve it or not. Sometimes those people do not live up to that status in their everyday lives. But, Krause and McFadden served as a guiding light to generations of men and women who knew them, and were actually better people than their public personas.

I was fortunate to witness their example firsthand.

Tim Bournet is Clemson’s Sports Information Director and is in his 28th year at Clemson.

Banks McFadden, widely regarded as the greatest athlete in Clemson sports history, is one of eight athletes in NCAA history to be an All-American in both football and basketball.
