NO RETREAT. NO SURRENDER.

A great strategy for winning football games.
Not so great when it comes to your weekend home.

Just 17 miles from Death Valley, there's a place to get away from it all. To retreat from the crowds. To surrender to the pleasures of lakeside living. At The Reserve, we've created an extraordinary community with spectacular Jack Nicklaus Signature Golf, boating, and an array of amenities for the entire family. And while the pleasures of living — and playing — on the lake are endless, the opportunity is limited.

Call us after the game to reserve your place in this one-of-kind year round retreat. And surrender to the charms of mountain lake living.

What's Inside

Charles Bennett .............. 6,7

Senior Spotlight
While Charles Bennett is known for his pursuit of the quarterback and timely tackles behind the line of scrimmage, it is an interception against N.C. State in 2004 that will be his signature play as a Clemson Tiger when he plays his final game in Death Valley against Florida State in November.

Cory Groover .............. 9

Senior Spotlight
Despite having to go to junior college instead of going straight to Clemson, Cory Groover has been able to make a big impact. His on-the-field leadership and enthusiasm help inspire and motivate many of his teammates. His energetic attitude also helps to inspire the orange-clad Death Valley crowd to get loud.

Trey Tate .............. 12,13

Senior Spotlight
As a youth, Trey Tate always dreamed of playing in the ACC. He grew up in Gaffney, SC with visions of playing basketball in a league that is deep in its tradition on the hardwood. It was not until after his junior year of high school that he felt he may get the chance to play in the ACC, but on the gridiron.

Lionel Richardson .............. 49

Senior Spotlight
Perseverance, determination, dedication, and leadership describe Clemson linebacker Lionel Richardson. He persevered after tearing his ACL before his junior year in high school, an injury that could have ended his playing career. He was determined to play football at Clemson and thus became a walk-on.

Josh Cody .............. 117

Former Temple & Clemson Coach
After leaving Clemson after the 1930 season with a 29-11-1 record, Josh Cody coached at Vanderbilt, Florida, and today's opponent Temple, which was his final stop in coaching and administration. At one time or another, he coached both the football and basketball teams that are competing today at Death Valley.

The Last Word .............. 128

Senior Spotlight
Fifty years ago (1965) was a silver anniversary of sorts for Clemson's Frank Howard - his 25th football season in Tigertown. For the first nine (1931-39), he was Jesse Neely's line coach, and he spent the next 15 as the head man. Read more sobre Howard and the 1955 Tigers in today's edition of "The Last Word."

2005 Tiger Football
Whitehurst Closing in on Dantzler's Record
Clemson quarterback Charlie Whitehurst needs just 140 yards of total offense to become Clemson's career leader in that category. Woodrow Dantzler holds the mark with 8,798 yards, 139 more than Whitehurst's 8,659.

Few observers felt Dantzler's record would ever be broken because of his ability as a runner and passer. But, Whitehurst has already trumped Dantzler's passing numbers and should break the total offense mark on Saturday. Whitehurst will appear in his 40th game when the Tigers play Temple, the 36th consecutive start at quarterback.

Whitehurst ranks 11th in ACC history in career total offense and will move into the top 10 when he moves past Dantzler. Whitehurst has at least five games remaining and should reach third place before he hangs up his Clemson jersey. He does not have a realistic shot to reach Philip Rivers of N.C. State or Joe Hamilton of Georgia Tech. But, he should reach the 9,630-yard total of former Wolfpack quarterback Jamie Barnette.

Whitehurst already holds 39 Clemson records, including 13 career marks. He is already the Tiger career record holder for passing yards, completions, completion percentage, passing yards, touchdowns passes. His 21 career victories are tied for fourth in school history with Steve Fuller and Mike Eppley. That career record is an unattainable 32 wins by Rodney Williams (1985-88), but Whitehurst certainly hopes to reach Nealon Greene's 24 wins between 1994-97.

So far this season, Whitehurst has completed 67 percent of his passes, ahead of the single-season mark of 63 percent by Brandon Streeter in 1999. He is coming off one of his best games of the year, a 22-31 for 246-yard performance at N.C. State on October 13.

Clemson Offensive Line Young & Balanced
When someone asks Head Coach Tommy Bowden to rate his top offensive linemen, he usually has to pause and think about the answer. Over the first six games, five different offensive linemen have had the highest film grade awarded by Assistant Head Coach Brad Scott. Center Dustin Fry led the way against Texas A&M, senior offensive guard Chip Myrick was the leader against Maryland, junior tackle Marion Dukes had the high grade against Miami (FL), and guard Brandon Pilgrim was the best against Boston College, and junior Roman Fry was the leader against both Wake Forest and N.C. State.

Clemson's offensive line has had its best performance at N.C. State, leading the Tigers to a two-year best 489 yards of total offense, including 243 on the ground. Clemson did not allow a sack, even though the Tigers were going against a Wolfpack defensive line that ranks among the best in the nation. Three of the four starting down linemen for the Wolfpack were slated to be drafted in the first two rounds of the 2006 NFL draft.

Barry Richardson was named the ACC Offensive Lineman of the Week for the N.C. State game after recording an 82-percent grade. That was quite an accomplishment considering he was going head-to-head with N.C. State's Manny Lawson, one of the top defensive ends in the nation. Richardson had five knockdown blocks, including a key block on James Davis' first touchdown run.

Not listed above is Nathan Bennett, who might be the most consistent of the offensive linemen. Bennett leads the team in knockdown blocks (45.5), followed by Roman Fry (37.5). Roman Fry's total included 11.5 against Wake Forest and 10.5 against the Wolfpack, the top figure by a Tiger in both games.

What is encouraging for Bowden is the youth of the offensive line. Myrick is the only senior among the 11 offensive linemen who have played in a game this year, meaning just about everyone will be back for the Tigers up front on offense in 2006.

Tigers Hold Wolfpack to 10 Points
Clemson enters Saturday's game against Temple after recording a 31-10 victory at N.C. State on October 13. It was a dominating victory for Tommy Bowden's Tigers in many ways. Overall, the 21-point victory margin was the best for Clemson in the series with the Wolfpack since 1996, when Clemson won by 23 points in a 40-17 victory at Death Valley. The 21-point victory margin was the largest for the Tigers in any ACC game since a 40-7 win over Duke at Clemson in 2003. It was also the largest margin of victory in an ACC road game since a 39-3 win at Georgia Tech in 2003.

The Tigers were outstanding on offense and defense. The 489 yards of total offense were the most by a Tiger team in any game since Clemson recorded 542 yards of offense at South Carolina in 2003. Clemson held N.C. State to 267 yards of offense and just 92 yards rushing in allowing 10 points. It was the fewest points scored by N.C. State against Clemson since a 30-10 Tiger victory at Clemson in 1989. It was also the fewest points scored by N.C. State against the Tigers in Raleigh since 1988.

Clemson Records 200–200 Game
Most teams strive for offensive balance, because an ability to rush and throw the ball with effectiveness usually translates to a victory. That has been the case in Clemson history. A look at the records shows that Clemson has never lost a game in which it has had at least 200 yards passing and 200 yards rushing on offense.

That pattern continued in the win at N.C. State, as the Tigers had 243 yards rushing and 246 yards passing in the 31-10 win. It was the first time since the 2002 North Carolina game that Clemson had at least 243 yards rushing and 243 yards passing in the same game. Overall, it was the 17th time in Tommy Bowden's career that Clemson had at least 200 yards of each, and the first time since Clemson had 302 passing and 240 yards rushing in the 63-17 win at South Carolina in 2003.

Clemson is now 43-0-1 when it has at least 200 yards of each category, including 36 consecutive wins dating to 1976. The only time Clemson has failed to gain victory when it had at least 200 rushing and 200 passing took place in a 24-24 tie with Georgia Tech in 1976.

Davis Leads ACC Freshman Rushers
Those of you who witnessed the Tiger win at N.C. State saw freshman running back James Davis gain 143 yards on 12 carries and score a pair of touchdowns. Davis consistently made big plays, as he had six different runs of at least 10 yards in the first half. For the year, Davis has 433 yards on 84 carries, good for 5.2 yards per attempt. It was the second 100-yard game of the year for the first-year freshman, and the 143 yards ranked fifth best among freshmen for a single game in school history.

Davis was on his way to a 200-yard game, but he suffered a fractured left wrist on his first carry of the third quarter and could not return. He will be lost for at least three weeks. Davis is ranked fifth in the ACC in rushing yards per game entering this week’s play, including first among freshmen.

Davis’ rushing total was the most by any Tiger since October 13, 2001, when Woodrow Danzlitz gained 184 yards on 23 carries at N.C. State (four years ago on the same field). Davis’ performance was the best by a Clemson running back since Travis Zachery had 151 yards on 29 attempts against Maryland in 2000.

Waters Leads ACC in Tackles for Loss

One of the top Tigers of the 1960s was Charlie Waters, who went on to fame with the Dallas Cowboys in the 1970s. Now another player named Waters (no relation) is making a name for himself at Clemson. Anthony Waters is Clemson’s top tackle so far this year with 65 stops, and ranks third in the ACC and 22nd in the nation in that category on a per-game basis. That is saying something, because the ACC might be the best conference in the nation when it comes to defense.

Waters is coming off a performance at N.C. State where he led the Tigers in tackles (11), including four for loss. He now has 10.5 tackles for loss for the season and leads the ACC in that category. He has 15 more tackles than any other Tiger and 6.5 more tackles for loss than any other teammate.

Waters has taken over the middle linebacker position left vacant by Leroy Hill, the ACC Defensive Player-of-the-Year in 2004 and a third-team AP All-American. Last year, Hill had 106 tackles, and added 19 tackles for loss and eight sacks. Waters’ level of production is not far behind so far this year. Through six games, Waters has 65 stops and 10.5 tackles for loss to lead the Tigers in each category.

On a per-game basis, Waters is averaging nearly 11 tackles per game, above the 9.6 per game by Hill a season ago. Hill averaged 1.72 tackles for loss last year, among the top 20 in the nation, and Waters stands at 1.75 per game.

Waters has led Clemson in tackles in four of the six games. He had 14 at Maryland when he matched up with D’Qwell Jackson, the ACC’s top tackler. He then had 11 stops in the triple-overtime game against #13 Miami (FL). Against #25 Boston College, he led the Tigers again with 14 stops, tying his career high for the second time in three games.

The native of Lake View, SC is averaging a tackle every 4.83 plays, better than the tackle for every 6.4 plays by Hill in 2004.

Hill Records Third Interception in 2005

Tye Hill is listed among the top candidates at cornerback for the 2006 NFL draft. One of the reasons for Hill’s rise up the NFL draft boards has been his ability to intercept passes this year. He was ranked 14th on Mel Kiper’s draft board on ESPN.com at the beginning of October, and he has only enhanced his status since then. The native of Saint George, SC has three interceptions in the first six games, three more than he had last season.

Hill had 21 pass breakups last year to rank third in the nation and set a Clemson single-season record. But, he did not have any interceptions to go with those pass deflections. As a result, Hill worked hard in the offseason catching the football. When practice started, he took a few minutes to work on catching the ball with the wide receivers. He continues that today, even during pregame warmups.

Hill had his third interception of the season and fifth of his career at N.C. State on national television in the Tigers’ 31-10 victory. He ranks 18th in the nation and tied for third in the ACC in interceptions per game. The Tiger senior cornerback has also improved his reputation as a tackler with 37 tackles overall, including 29 first hits. He had three tackles for loss at Wake Forest, the first Tiger cornerback in school history to record three tackles for loss in a single game.

Tigers & Owls Met in 1991

Clemson and Temple have met just once. That game took place on September 21, 1991, and it resulted in a 37-7 Tiger victory. Clemson’s defense that year led the nation in rushing defense, and it enhanced its numbers that day when it held Temple to 89 yards rushing on 46 attempts. The Owls under Head Coach Jerry Benetti gained just 104 yards on 58 plays for the day, just 1.8 yards per play.

A look to Clemson’s roster of that day tells the story. The Tigers’ point-prevention unit included future first-round draft choice Wayne Simmons, 12-year NFL defensive tackle Brenton Buckner, four-time Pro Bowl player Chester McGlockton, 10-year NFL linebacker Levon Kirkland, and nine-year NFL linebacker Ed McDaniel. Those players combined for nine tackles for loss on the day.

Clemson was led on offense by sophomore running back Ronald Williams, who had 14 rushes for 86 yards. Quarterback DeChane Cameron completed 7-12 passes for 85 yards and two touch- downs, while the late Terry Smith had four receptions for 60 yards.

Temple actually took a 7-0 lead in the first quarter when quarterback Brent Thompson hit tight end Bryant Garvin for a one-yard touchdown pass. Temple had 81 yards and five first downs in the first quarter, then had just 23 yards of total offense and just one first down over the last three quarters.

Clemson tied the score 7-7 on a trick play. Wide receiver Larry Ryans scored on a 25-yard run on an end-around with 10:28 left in the second quarter. Clemson scored 14 points in the second quarter and 13 in the third to put the game away and capture its 10th-straight home victory. Clemson improved its record 2-0 and moved to #7 in the AP poll after the victory.

Owl Update

Temple enters this game with an 0-7 record after a 34-3 loss against Miami (FL) last week. It was an active week for the Owls, who learned their head coach Bobby Wallace would be leaving the program at then end of the season.

Wallace has been the head coach of the Owls since 1998, when the program was still in the Big East. The Owls will hope to duplicate an accomplishment of that season when they come to Death Valley on Saturday. That year, an 0-6 Temple team pulled off one of the great upsets in school history with a 28-24 victory at Virginia Tech.

Wallace is a respected coach who led North Alabama to three Division II national titles during 10 seasons as the head coach from 1988-97. Umar Ferguson is one of the top offensive players for the Owls. The leading rusher has 489 yards in six games, more than any Clemson running back.

He has scored three touchdowns and has a 3.6-yard average. The Owl’s starting quarterback is Mike McGann, who has completed 60-142 passes for 741 yards and one touchdown. The top receiver is Bruce Gordon, who has 22 catches for 316 yards.

The top defender for Temple is Manuel Tapia, who has 62 tackles. Christian Dunbar has 44 tackles, including 8.5 tackles for loss and three sacks. Mike Mendenhall has 40 tackles, including a team-best nine tackles for loss. 4.5 of which are sacks. The sack total is also a team best. Temple’s defense has forced 15 turnovers, has 43 tackles for loss, and 12 caused fumbles.

If asked about his performance on the Tiger football team, defensive end Charles Bennett would not have much to say. Bennett's lack of response is not a result of poor stats or performance, but rather due to his humble personality.

That humble personality, when it comes to accomplishments on the gridiron, developed its roots in Camden, SC. Bennett began playing football as a running back for the Chiefs, a local recreation team. His cousin Lamonte convinced Bennett to play the game against the wishes of his mother Joann Bennett, who was not eager to see her son play the rough game.

"She said that I was too small, because I was the smallest one in the group," recalled Bennett. "But I always had the attitude of a big kid."

Now standing at 6'5" and weighing 250 pounds, Bennett has changed positions, and has blossomed into one of Clemson's top defensive linemen and team leaders.

At Camden High School, Bennett did not become a noticeable asset to the team until his junior year, as he became a starting defensive end. He has followed a similar path at Clemson. During that third year at Camden High, Bennett made a name for himself, as he recorded his first touchdown.

"My most exciting memory from high school took place when I scored my first career touchdown on an interception return. I thought that I was 'the man!' I took a chance on the field, and I did what I had to do."

Bennett finished his career at Camden High with a strong senior season. Despite missing two games due to an ankle injury, Bennett finished with 89 tackles, 15 quarterback pressures, 14 sacks, and 22 tackles for loss. As a result, he was ranked among the top-16 defensive ends in the nation by USA Today.com, and was rated one of the top 125 players in the nation, regardless of position, by the same service.

Camden High claims the fame of two professional athletes, and that reputation may have helped Bennett, especially when it came to the defensive side of the ball. Vonnie Holliday was a star defensive end at Camden High before he went on to an All-ACC career at North Carolina from 1990-93, and was a first-round draft selection with the Green Bay Packers. He is now with the Miami Dolphins.

When the decision came to choose a university and to continue his football career, Bennett took a somewhat different approach to the situation than the average high school athlete. While most high school athletes make their decisions based on academic performance, coaches, playing time, or the social life of the campus, Bennett had something else in mind.

"My choice was either Clemson, South Carolina, or Tennessee. Tennessee seemed too far away at that time, and South Carolina was in a big metropolitan area. I didn't need to be around the clubs and other distractions. I doubt if that (South Carolina) would have worked out for me. I was being responsible by choosing Clemson."

As Bennett played as a standout defensive end at Camden High, his family was always there for support. Just as the family encouraged him in Camden, Bennett can always be sure that they will be in their seats at Death Valley for every home game. Even before a home game, Bennett's pre-game ritual consists of cleaning the apartment before the family arrives in town.

"My mom and family come to all of my games," said Bennett. "They even came to each of my games during my freshman year when I was being red-shirted, even though there was no way I was going to get in the games."

For the first time, during the 2001 season, Bennett became a spectator. It was not easy, as is the case for all red-shirts who go from high school superstar to playing only on the scout team during the week.

The 2002 season got Bennett back into the habit of being on the field, but his rise up the depth chart took time. "In my first game here, it was crazy. The crowd was so loud and I felt like they were screaming just for me. I had been accustomed to maybe 1,000 people at games, but not playing in front of over 80,000."

Although Bennett was excited about his first game, the reality of playing Division I football hit him square in the face. He played in all 11 games that year on special teams, but was on the field for just 22 defensive snaps, and made four tackles as a reserve. He did appear in the Tangerine Bowl against Texas Tech and made a pair of tackles.

"My first time on defense here...those boys had their way with me," laughed Bennett.

The 2003 season was just a glimpse of the impact that Bennett would have on the Tiger defensive line. Bennett improved to 10 tackles in 78 snaps during that season. Two of those tackles came in seven plays against #9 Georgia, a game played on national television.

A highlight for Bennett in 2003 was the Peach Bowl and Clemson's 27-14 win over #8 Tennessee. It was played in front of a sellout crowd in Atlanta, GA at the Georgia Dome, and it was in that game that Bennett recorded his first career sack, a 14-yard tackle for loss of Volunteer signal-caller Casey Clausen.

The play kept the Volunteers out of field-goal range and was a momentum-changing play in Clemson's victory. It was the highest-ranked win in a bowl game for the Tigers since they defeated #4 Nebraska in the 1982 Orange Bowl to win the National Championship.

The practice leading up to that bowl game and that subsequent play was a career-changing experience for Bennett. "When you prepare for a bowl game, you have a lot of extra practice time, and Charles Bennett made good use of that time," said Head Coach Tommy Bowden. "He worked hard in December getting ready for that game, and he was rewarded with significant playing time in the game. Ever since that game, he has been a big part of our defensive gameplan."

Bennett played 18 snaps against Tennessee after playing just 60 plays in the first 12 games of the season.

Encouraged by his performance in the Peach Bowl, Bennett moved into the starting lineup at the outset of the 2004 season, and he responded with continued improvement, as he started 10 of the 11 games that season. He had 48 stops to rank first among defensive linemen, and was second on the team in tackles for loss (14) behind ACC Defensive Player-of-the-Year Leroy Hill. He also led the team in quarterback pressures (11), and his five sacks ranked in a tie for 10th in the ACC in 2004.

With three caused fumbles in the 2004 season, Bennett became the first Tiger to do so since Bryant McNeal during the 2001 campaign. One of Bennett’s best games of the 2004 season came as the Tigers traveled to Miami, FL to face the #10 Hurricanes. Bennett recorded two tackles for loss, one sack, and seven tackles as the Tigers defeated the Hurricanes 24-17 in overtime.

While Bennett is known for his pursuit of the quarterback and timely tackles behind the line of scrimmage, it is an interception that will be his signature play as a Clemson Tiger when he plays his final game in Death Valley against Florida State on November 12. On October 30, 2004, Clemson met N.C. State. The Tigers were desperate for a victory if they hoped to become bowl eligible. N.C. State (4-3 entering the game) was in the same situation. It was a hard-fought game that came down to the last possession.

Clemson led the Wolfpack 26-20 in the final minute, but Jay Davis led N.C. State down field. With eight seconds left, the Wolfpack had the ball just six yards away from a game-winning touchdown. With one play left, Bennett dropped into coverage instead of rushing the quarterback. Davis did not account for the Tiger defensive end, and Bennett smartly stepped into the passing lane near the goal line.

The ball stuck in his arms and he sped in the opposite direction, returning the ball 39 yards and running out the clock in the process. The play touched off quite a celebration, as Clemson ended a two-game losing streak to the Wolfpack, and it gave the Tigers hope for the rest of the season. It obviously gave Clemson momentum, as Clemson then went to Miami (FL) and beat the #10 Hurricanes in the Orange Bowl the next week.

“That was memorable play,” said Bennett. “I just wanted to make a play. We got pressure on the quarterback from Leroy Hill, and I was in the right place at the right time. It was a dream ending for a defensive end.”

It was actually the second interception by a Tiger defensive lineman that day. Earlier in the game, Eric Coleman returned an interception 20 yards for a touchdown.

As stated above, Bennett played well in Clemson’s overtime win at Miami in 2004, and he continued that trend this year, as he had a season-high eight tackles, including a key sack that forced the Hurricanes to punt on their last possession. The play brought the atmosphere to another level, enabling Clemson to drive for a tying field goal.

“Charles Bennett is certainly one of the leaders of our defense and the team,” said Bowden. “He has shown great progress over his career athletically. But, what strikes me is that he is a respected player on this team. He knows what to do in the locker room, after a win and after a loss.”

Bennett and junior defensive end Gaines Adams are leaders of the 2005 Clemson defense, and it is a role they welcome. Adams is one of Bennett’s closest friends on the team, if not the closest.

“Gaines is like my brother,” smiled Bennett. “I always try to think about how we became so close, but I guess it just happened when we were roommates at the Peach Bowl. In my sophomore year, I was playing linebacker, and when I switched back to defensive end, he was the one helping me learn the plays. We always give each other advice and help on the field. We’ll probably be friends for the rest of our lives.”

It is these friendships that Bennett obviously appreciates. With the help of his teammates like Adams, Bennett knows he must make the most of his time on the field and in the classroom.

“I want to make the best of this (football), because not everyone has this opportunity. Even on the college level, a lot of people want to play but can’t because of grades or not having a coach promote them well. I’m taking advantage of this opportunity.”

“This season, I want to have a successful year and be productive. I don’t want to break any records, I just want to work as hard as I can, and hopefully it will all pay off in the future.”

Uncommon Wisdom
By Will Long

It is not often a defensive lineman wears a single-digit jersey, but there is a history of it at Clemson. Trevor Pryce, now a Pro Bowl defensive tackle for the Denver Broncos, wore #8 during the 1996 season when he was a First-Team All-ACC player. He chose the single-digit number because he thought a lineman looked quicker in one. Pryce was regarded as one of the most talented defensive players in the ACC and became a first-round draft choice. Maybe there was something to the theory.

Current Tiger defensive tackle Cory Groover wears a single-digit number for a different reason.

It all came down to a fortune cookie and one lucky number. Throughout his high school and junior college careers, Groover wore #6, #9, and #23. One day at the end of his junior college career, Groover went to dinner with his sister at a Chinese restaurant. He opened a fortune cookie at the conclusion of the meal, and the small paper in the cookie listed four numbers: 6, 7, 9, and 23. Considering he had worn three of the four numbers on his jersey previously, he decided to ask for a single-digit number when he came to Clemson. Oddly enough, the #7 was the only available single-digit jersey.

“I had had good luck as a player wearing those numbers in high school and junior college, so I thought I would continue the good fortune,” said Groover.

The road to Clemson was not as easy as it was in selecting a number. A standout in high school who was the defensive player-of-the-game at the Shrine Bowl for the Sandlappers, he signed with Clemson, but went the junior college route first.

He enrolled and played at Southwest Mississippi Community College. “It was really tough going to junior college, because I had to work really hard to accomplish my goals,” said the Simpsonville, SC native. “I had to change my work ethic. It was tough because I was far from home. I cried, because everything was much tougher than I thought, and because I was so far from home and my friends.”

Groover is the only player listed on the defensive depth chart who took the junior college route. The senior sport management major said he chose Clemson because he was, “from a small country town and Clemson really gave me a family feeling. It was also close enough to home, yet far enough away.”

Groover also considered Tennessee, but he chose Clemson because it was very loyal from the beginning and showed a lot of interest. During high school and junior college, Groover was the best player on his teams. When he arrived at Clemson, the coaches were able to motivate him to be a better and more complete player.

“The coaches did a great job motivating me. They told me that I would have to work really hard to earn a starting job, which I had never had to do before,” Groover is motivated in many different ways. However, two different sources are very inspirational to him.

“My teammates help motivate and drive me,” said Groover. “When someone makes a play or a big hit, I feed off of that. Anything we can do to pump each other up, we use for motivation. If someone makes a big play or gets a big hit, we can get into the opposing player’s heads, and that can really make an impact during the next play or two.”

Also, the crowd at Death Valley proves to be a motivational factor for Groover. “The crowd is so huge for us. If everyone is up on their feet yelling and screaming and jumping around, we feed off that. If we need a big three-and-out, it helps us to have the crowd yelling and screaming and being as loud as they can. The crowd does so much for us.”

Many times while the defense is on the field and even times when they were not, Groover can be seen jumping around trying to motivate his teammates. “One of the main reasons I jump around is because my teammates are able to feed off of me. But also, it helps to get the crowd involved. And we need the crowd involved as much as possible.”

“Another reason I jump around is because you can not worry about what happened on the last play. It has already happened, and there is nothing you can do about it. You have to move on to the next play. We have to keep each other motivated.”

Groover has had many people make large impacts on his playing career. He credits his middle and high school coaches, teachers, and principals for having positive impacts on his maturation.

But one person who has had a positive impact on him is his position coach this year, Marion Hobby. Hobby played Groover’s position at Tennessee with distinction and was the captain of a 10-2 Volunteer team as a senior in 1989. As a former player, Hobby has the respect of his players.

“If you are not playing hard or going fast enough, he will tell you that you need to step it up or get off the field and give someone else a chance. I think players today need that from their coaches. He tells you straight up how it is going to be. He makes you give 100 percent all the time.”

Groover’s most memorable game was the 2004 version of Clemson-South Carolina. “Being from South Carolina, I have been able to experience the rivalry as a fan by watching it. Playing against South Carolina gave me an up-close-and-personal feel for the rivalry.”

In Groover’s first-ever game as a Tiger, he recorded a sack against Wake Forest in 2004. He also registered a career-high six tackles against Virginia last year. However, his most significant performance may have come against the Miami Hurricanes when he made five tackles, including two for losses. He was a big reason Clemson shut out the Hurricanes in the second half, overcame a 14-point deficit, and defeated the #10 Hurricanes in overtime.

As for the rest of this year, Groover has his expectations set high. “I want to finish this year strong by winning all five of our remaining games and then go to a bowl game,” he said. Despite having to go to Southwest Mississippi Community College instead of going straight to Clemson, Groover has been able to make a big impact for the Tigers. His on-the-field leadership and enthusiasm help inspire and motivate many of his teammates. His energetic attitude also helps to inspire the orange-clad Death Valley crowd to get loud and proud. He hopes that everyone will be able to feed off of his energy and enthusiasm.

As a youth, Trey Tate always dreamed of playing in the ACC, and for the past four years, he has been able to live that dream... sort of. Tate grew up in Gaffney, SC with visions of playing basketball in a league that is deep in its tradition on the hardwood. It was not until after his junior year of high school that he felt he may get the chance to play in the ACC, but on the gridiron rather than the basketball court.

"By the time my junior year was coming to an end, I began to realize that I may not have the height to play basketball at the Division I level," said Tate. "My coaches at Gaffney began to hint to me that I should try and play college football. I didn’t really think of that as an option, but when I began to get letters from schools, I thought I might have a chance. Instead of playing center (as a basketball player), I would be squaring off against them (as a defensive lineman in football)."

Tate is the cousin of Miami (FL) linebacker Rocky McIntosh. The two starred on the same team at Gaffney High School and were in the same graduating class. The two still stay in touch and often spend time together when they are both home in Gaffney. The two cousins ended their career’s with a 1-1 record against the other, with each gaining an overtime win on the road after the Tigers fell to the Hurricanes 36-30 in three overtimes earlier this season.

"Initially, I thought a few of my teammates at Gaffney were going to Clemson," answered Tate when asked about choosing Clemson. "It didn’t work out for all of us to come here, but Clemson was close to home for me, and my mom really liked that. Coach (Burton) Burns recruited me, and he was always very easy to get along with. It was an easy decision to become a Tiger."

Tate was a part of Clemson’s decorated 2001 recruiting class that was one of the Tigers’ highest-ranked classes by many recruiting services in quite some time. Many of those players did not red-shirt their first year at Clemson and were seniors in 2004. Tate, however, is one of 11 fifth-year seniors, a group that helps form a strong nucleus and source of leadership for Clemson in 2005.

With members of his recruiting class, such as Leroy Hill and Airese Currie, now playing in the NFL instead of potentially their final season at Clemson, Tate cannot help but wonder what could have been.

"Obviously, it would have been nice if we could go out with all of the guys that came in with us," remarked Tate. "However, the guys that played our first year were needed by the team, just like we need some true freshmen this season. Every senior class experiences it, and we still have a strong team this year, but it does make you stop and think what it would have been like with those guys still here."

One member of that 2001 class that played as a true freshman was Tate’s former roommate, Ben Hall. The two have a friendship that still lasts, and a rivalry that goes back to their high school days still lingers.

"The last time I talked to Ben was probably two weeks ago," said Tate. "The reason for the phone call he received from his old roommate? "He had to make sure that I knew his high school (Byrnes) had beaten my high school (Gaffney)," laughed Tate. "It has been good to talk to Ben, and hear his experiences with trying to play professional football and life after Clemson in general."

While Tate and Hall became close friends, it is the togetherness of the entire team that Tate has liked about his time at Clemson. "Ben and I became close because we lived together, and Charles Bennett is a good friend of mine as well, because we are in the same class and play virtually the same position," explained Tate. "I like to think I am friends with all of my teammates, and I hope that they feel the same way about me."

It is safe to say that his teammates do feel that way about Tate, with many agreeing that he is one of the most easy-going, well-liked players on the team.

"Trey is a good teammate," stated defensive lineman Donnell Clark. "He is a nice guy and easy to get along with. He works hard in the weight room and on the field. He is a senior and a player that we see as a leader on the defensive line."

Defensive end Charles Bennett echoed the comments of Clark, and said that their friendship has come a long way, both on and off the field. "When Trey and I first came to Clemson, we didn’t exactly see eye-to-eye," laughed Bennett. "We would play pranks on each other a lot, and sometimes it even got out of hand."

"Trey is a cool guy, though, and as we have gotten older, we have become closer friends. We play on the defensive line together, and we have had to communicate a lot more. We sometimes ride to and from prac-
Trey Tate
Senior Spotlight

Trey Tate, a native of Gaffney, SC, is one of 11 fifth-year seniors on the 2005 Clemson team.

Tate has roamed the defense under three different position coaches, including first-year Defensive Line Coach Marion Hobby.

Coach West. I can say that I've had my moments, both good and bad, with all three of my position coaches, but I have enjoyed my time with all of them.

The fifth-year senior started every game on the Tiger defense in the 2004 season. He played a key role in Clemson's three-point victory over Maryland last year when he had five tackles. He also had two sacks overall, which helped the Tigers lead the ACC in sacks in 2004.

As a red-shirt sophomore in 2003, Tate moved into select company by sacking former N.C. State quarterback Philip Rivers, one of only a handful of players in the country that can make that claim. Tate also caused a fumble on that play.

After five games in 2005, Tate had four starts to go along with his 11 in 2004. He could potentially start more than 20 games in his career, and arguably had his best performance so far this season against the Hurricanes when he recorded a tackle for loss.

While Tate is in the twilight of his career as a Tiger, he still believes there is a lot he can accomplish over the second half of the 2005 season. "At this point, I try to go out to practice everyday and make myself the best player I can be," said Tate. "The only way I can achieve that is to practice as hard as I can each day we take the field. As a team, we just have to keep playing hard each and every Saturday, and good things are going to happen. I'm eager every time we go to play, because I want to make plays and help this team win games."

Beyond posting up perhaps Shaquille O'Neal down in the low post, Tate's biggest dream in sports is to score that ever elusive touchdown by a defensive lineman. Tate looked on with envy last season when his fellow defensive lineman Eric Coleman picked off a pass against N.C. State and rumbled 20 yards for a touchdown. It was the first touchdown by a Tiger defensive lineman since Terry Jolly in 1999. Tate hopes that there is not another five-year span between touchdowns by a defensive lineman, and that he can be the one to record one in the 2005 season. There are many Tiger fans that would have no problem watching #92 scoring a touchdown, whether by return or fumble recovery, during his final stretch at Clemson.

A human resource development major, Tate is on schedule to graduate in December. His plans for after graduation are still up in the air.

"I have not really decided yet if I am going to try and give professional football a shot," admitted Tate. "If I choose not to, thankfully I will have a degree, and I will begin to look for a job. At this point, I just want to focus in on my last few games as a Clemson Tiger, and when the season is over, I will have to sit down and plan out what I want to do."

Kyle Tucker, a second-year graduate student from Cartersville, GA, is a graduate assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

Playing against Miami (FL) and former high school teammate Rocky McIntosh earlier this season, Tate had a tackle for loss.

James F. Barker
Clemson University President

Clemson University President James F. Barker came to the office in 1999 with a clear vision of Clemson's future. A 1970 Clemson University graduate, Barker has established a goal of making the university one of the nation's top-20 public universities - an institution that draws outstanding faculty and students, provides an unmatched academic experience, and helps drive the state's economic development.

Clemson has made significant strides in this area and reached a #34 ranking among public institutions according to U.S. News & World Report in 2006. That represents a five-position jump in the last three years and a 39-position improvement since 1997.

"South Carolina needs a top-tier research university, and our students deserve to have access to a top-tier education without leaving their home state," he said. "Building Clemson's academic, research, and service programs to the level where we can compete with anyone will benefit our state, our students, and our alumni."

Clemson, already South Carolina's top-ranked public university, is making strides toward that goal. During Barker's presidency, the university has:

- been recognized as TIME Magazine's Public College-of-the-Year;
- developed an academic strategic plan with eight emphasis areas aligned with the state's economic needs;
- implemented an enrollment management plan to protect the quality of classroom teaching and allow for more student/faculty interaction;
- redesigned the general education curriculum to focus on learning outcomes, and give undergraduates more opportunities for study abroad, service-learning, and research activities;
- more than doubled external research funding; and
- completed Clemson's largest capital campaign.

Working with private industry and state leaders, Barker also has steered Clemson into a greater economic development role. In a span of just six months, Clemson broke ground for the Clemson University International Center for Automotive Research (Clemson-ICAR) in Greenville, SC, dedicated a state-of-the-art biosystems research complex, and constructed a state-of-the-art Advanced Materials Research Laboratory at the Clemson Research Park. All three projects represent substantial investment in areas related to South Carolina's most promising economic clusters.

Barker also is becoming a leading voice in higher education in South Carolina and beyond. He chaired the Commission of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, the regional accrediting body, during a period that included the search for a new president, and served as chair of the ACC Council of Presidents for three consecutive years, including the 2003-04 academic year when he was significantly involved in the expansion of the league with the addition of Boston College, Miami (FL), and Virginia Tech.

He also has earned recognition as a community leader, receiving South Carolina's Order of the Palmetto, induction into the Boys & Girls Club Hall of Fame, the Greater Greenville Chamber of Commerce's Buck Mickel Award for Business and Community Leadership, and Anderson Independent-Mail's "Pointing the Way" Leadership Award for Community Service.

Barker earned his bachelor of architecture degree from Clemson in 1970 and his master of architecture and urban design degree from Washington University in Saint Louis, MO in 1973. Before returning to Clemson in 1986 to serve as dean of the College of Architecture, he was dean of the School of Architecture at Mississippi State University. In 1995, he became dean of the new College of Architecture, Arts, and Humanities, which was created after a comprehensive reorganization and has received national attention as a new model in education.

Jim & Marcia Barker

Barker's Goals by 2010

Academics, Research, & Service
1. Excel in teaching, at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.
2. Increase research and sponsored programs to exceed $100 million a year in research support.
3. Set the standard in public service for land-grant universities by engaging the whole campus in service and outreach, including a focus on strategic emphasis areas.
4. Foster Clemson's academic reputation through strong academic programs, mission-oriented research, and academic centers of excellence, relevant public service, and highly-regarded faculty and staff.
5. Seek and cultivate areas where teaching, research, and service overlap.

Campus Life
1. Strengthen our sense of community and increase our diversity.
2. Recognize and appreciate Clemson's distinctive-ness.
3. Create greater awareness of international programs and increase activity in this area.
4. Increase our focus on collaboration.
5. Maintain an environment that is healthy, safe, and attractive.

Clemson's National Reputation
1. Promote high integrity and professional demeanor among all members of the University community.
2. Establish aPhi Beta Kappa chapter.
3. Have at least two Clemson students win Rhodes Scholarships.
4. Send student ensembles to perform at Carnegie Hall.
5. Have at least two Clemson faculty members win recognition by national academies.
6. Publicize both national and international accomplishments of faculty, staff, and students.
7. While maintaining full compliance, achieve notable recognition with another national football championship, two championships in Olympic sports, and two Final Four appearances in basketball.

Educational Resources
1. Campaign goal surpassed by 40 percent.
2. Rededicate our energy and resources to improving the library.
3. Increase faculty compensation to a level competitive with top-20 public universities.
4. Increase academic expenditures per student to a level competitive with top-20 public universities.
5. Manage enrollment to ensure the highest quality classroom experiences.

Student Performance
1. Attract more students who are ranked in the top-10 percent of their high school classes and who perform exceptionally well on the SAT/ACT.
2. Promote high graduation rates by increasing freshman retention, meeting expectations of high achievers, and providing support systems for all students.
3. Promote excellence in advising.
4. Increase the annual number of doctoral graduates to the level of a top-20 public research university.
5. Improve the national competitiveness of graduate student admissions and financial aid.

Barker, Clemson's 14th President, is a recipient of the National Distinguished Professor Award of the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture and served as president of that association. He was also named Fellow of the American Institute of Architects. The Barkers, Jim and Marcia, have a son and daughter-in-law, Jacob and Rita Bolt Barker, and another son, Brit.
Clemson Athletic Director Dr. Terry Don Phillips is known for his love of Tiger traditions, spirit, and pride, deemed Solid Orange. Yet his deep satisfaction comes with what that united Clemson strength of mind brings, "a reality toward building a model program that can compete at the highest levels in all sports."

As visible as the statewide "orange outbreak" of Tiger faithful that Phillips promotes, a towering mark of his mission emerged this year when his plan for the WestZone expansion of Memorial Stadium progressed to near round-the-clock construction. As has been his style for over 25 years in all aspects of athletic administration, his focus is on enhancing the infrastructure in a deliberate, quality manner. "There's nothing worse than trying to maintain status quo," said Phillips, who became Clemson's 10th athletic director on July 1, 2002. That motto has been a basic tenet that has characterized his career as an administrator and his pursuit to develop Clemson into a model athletic program in the 21st century. His beliefs are in line with the University's overall goal of making Clemson one of the top-20 public universities in the nation.

His resolve comes from a unique balance of experience in nearly every phase of college athletics as well as a devotion to higher education that includes both a doctorate and law degree. He remains a classroom presence by teaching a Sports Law section for Clemson's Department of Accountability and Legal Studies. In addition, Phillips is chair of the NCAA Division I Infractions Appeals Committee, which serves the appellate role for all university and individual appeals arising from the Committee on Infractions.

Those influences are obvious in his strategic plan for Clemson Athletics, which provides for a model program that can compete at the highest levels with academic integrity, concern for the student-athlete, financial responsibility, and in full compliance.

Steady strides have been made toward these goals through facility improvements and the development of concepts that will serve the entire program, starting with the current endzone expansion at Memorial Stadium. This fall, the facility will feature new lockerrooms for both teams and a new video scoreboard. In 2006, 1,000 premium club seats will open and create a vital new revenue stream for future facilities.

After the completion of the club seats, plans call for a new comprehensive football building at Memorial Stadium. It will benefit the entire department, as it will create additional updated facilities in the McFadden Building for Clemson's Olympic sports program. A "One Clemson Center" will also be constructed to showcase the history of Clemson University, including its military and athletic heritage.

Since Phillips' arrival at Clemson, many highlights toward being a model program have occurred on the field as well, beginning with Clemson's first-ever national championship in golf. His second year included an incredible run on the gridiron to end the season, as Tommy Bowden's Tigers defeated #3 Florida State in November and #6 Tennessee in the Peach Bowl. The women's tennis team was one of three programs to win ACC Championships in the same weekend and advanced to the Final Four of the NCAA Tournament, the first women's athletic team in Clemson history to reach the Final Four in any postseason tournament. Nancy Harris' team duplicated the accomplishment in 2004-05.

In the most recent school year, 15 of Clemson's 19 sports programs advanced to postseason play. The list included six which were chosen for NCAA Tournament competition (baseball, golf, rowing, women's soccer, men's tennis, women's tennis). The Tigers sports program had 62 All-ACC selections, 14 All-America selections, and seven student-athletes who were named at least academic all-region.

In terms of personnel, Phillips made national news when he hired Oliver Purnell as Clemson's head basketball coach in 2003. Purnell has had a history of rejuvenating basketball programs, and it appears he is continuing that trend at Clemson. He led the Tigers to postseason play in 2004-05, their first postseason appearance in six years.

Phillips also enhanced his department's diversity by naming former NCAA Administrator Phil Grayson and former Clemson All-America football player Jeff Davis to athletic director positions. He also promoted Barbara Kennedy-Dixon, one of the greatest ACC women's basketball players in history, to the associate athletic director/senior women's administrator position when Linda White retired in 2005.

Clemson has also continued to raise standards when it comes to the school's overall mission of academics. In the spring of 2005, a record 245 student-athletes were named to the Academic Honor Roll, including a record 121 who were named to the President's List. Additionally, a record-tying eight athletic programs had over a 3.0 semester GPA.

Excellence in academics has been a constant on his resume. He has an undergraduate degree from Arkansas (1970), a master's from Virginia Tech (1974), a doctorate from Virginia Tech (1978), and a law degree from the Arkansas School of Law (1996). He is a member of the Arkansas Bar, American Bar Association, and the Sports Lawyers Association.

From an experience standpoint, Phillips has worked in nearly all phases of college athletics. He coached on the football staff at Virginia Tech, supervised spring sports and student-athlete enrollment at Florida, handled athletic fundraising and facility enhancement at Missouri and Arkansas, and had 15 years experience as an athletic director, including 13 at the Division I level, prior to his appointment at Clemson, coming from Oklahoma State.

Football was transformed from a perennial losing status, defeating Oklahoma during the first eight years he was associated with Oklahoma State. For this, he received the National Football Foundation Oklahoma Chapter Outstanding Contribution to Amateur Football Award in 2002.

When it came to success on the field and in the classroom, OSU's programs were among the best in the Big 12. The achievements of the Cowboy program during his tenure (1994-02) included a pair of national titles in men's golf, a men's basketball Final Four, two trips to the College World Series, 13 Big 12 titles, and 11 individual national champions. It had 53 academic All-Americans as well.

Before leading Oklahoma State, Phillips served as senior associate athletic director at Arkansas from 1988-94. He ran the daily operations and had oversight of facility projects for the men's programs, and was president of the Razorback Foundation.

Phillips was athletic director at Liberty (1980-81) and Louisiana-Lafayette (1983-88). He was also an assistant athletic director at Mississippi (1981-83), and began his administrative career in 1979 as an assistant athletic director at Florida.

Phillips began his career in college athletics coaching football. He started as a graduate assistant at Arkansas from 1970-71. He moved on to Virginia Tech as an assistant coach from 1971-78 before joining the ranks of athletic administration.

Winning has been on his resume since his playing days. At Arkansas, he lettered on three Frank Broyles' teams (1966,68,69). The Razorbacks were 27-5 in those three years and played in two Sugar Bowl games.

In addition to Phillips' leadership with the NCAA Infractions Appeals Committee, he also works with the NCAA certification program. He currently serves on several ACC Committees: Finance Committee, chair of the Committee on Infractions and Penalties, Television Committee, the Men's Basketball Committee, and the Football Committee.

Phillips has two children, John Dennis (28) and Sarah Jane (25), and three step-children, Meagan (16), Marshall (14), and Madison (12). His wife Tricia is a graduate of the University of Missouri School of Journalism, and earlier enjoyed a career in athletics and development. She is now active in the Clemson and Seneca communities.

The Awesome Power Of Outdoor
When one looks at Tommy Bowden's résumé, the first thing that comes to mind is consistency. Clemson's head football coach has completed eight seasons as a Division I head coach, and all eight of his teams have been bowl eligible at the conclusion of the regular season.

Bowden has also shown consistency in terms of improvement over the course of seasons. In both 2003 and 2004, his teams have won five of its last six games. The 2003 team won its last four, including wins over top-10 teams Florida State and Tennessee to finish the year in the top 25 of both polls.

There has also been consistency in terms of success against Clemson's in-state rival (South Carolina). The Tigers have won five of the six meetings with the Gamecocks since Bowden became head coach in 1999, and the 83.3-percent winning percentage is the best of any Tiger head coach in history against the Gamecocks given a minimum of five games. He has an average victory margin of 13.7 points per game in the state-rivalry game, all against future Hall of Fame Head Coach Lou Holtz.

Through eight seasons as a Division I head coach, Bowden has a 62-33 record, a 65.3-percent winning percentage that ranks 10th among winningest active coaches. In conference games, he has never had a sub-.500 record, and his overall conference record stands at 39-21 for a 65.0-percent winning percentage.

Through six years at Clemson, he has a 44-29 mark and five bowl appearances. He has 28 ACC wins as well. The only program with more ACC wins during this time is Florida State. The 44 overall victories rank third in Clemson history in total wins. The 29-7 victory over South Carolina in the 2004 season finale was not only the 600th win in Clemson history, it moved Bowden ahead of Hall of Fame Coach Jess Neely into third place on Clemson's coaching victories list. Only Frank Howard and Danny Ford are ahead of Bowden.

Twice Bowden has been named ACC Coach-of-the-Year (1999-00), joining Howard, Charley Pell, and Ford as the only two-time recipients of that award in Tiger history.

Consistency in his approach is one reason Clemson went from a 1-4 start to bowl eligibility in 2004. It marked the first time since 1963 that a Tiger team had overcome such a deficit to finish with a winning season.

Clemson played a complete game at #10 Miami (FL) on November 6, 2004 and defeated the Hurricanes in the Orange Bowl by a score of 24-17 in overtime. It was the second overtime win of the season for the Tigers, who are 4-0 in extra-session games under Bowden and an NCAA record 5-0 for the history of the program.

The win over Miami gave Bowden and the Tigers three wins over top-10 programs in the last 13 games, something that had been done at Clemson just once previously (1981 National Championship team). All three of those programs (Florida State, Tennessee, Miami) have won the national championship within the last seven seasons.

Over the last two seasons, Bowden has won five games over coaches who have won the national title (Bobby Bowden, Phillip Fulmer, Larry Coker, Holtz (twice)). These big wins have stimulated interest in the program. The Tigers averaged nearly 79,000 fans per home game in 2004, the sixth-highest average in Clemson history. Clemson has ranked in the top 20 in home football attendance each of the six seasons Bowden has been at Clemson.

With Clemson's selection to the 2003 Peach Bowl, Bowden became the first head coach in Clemson and ACC history to take a team to a bowl game in each of his first five seasons. In fact, no coach had ever done so more than twice to open his career at Clemson. That is also something that prominent Tiger predecessors Neely, Howard, Pell, Ford, and Ken Hatfield failed to do. Under Bowden's direction, Clemson had also appeared in the Peach Bowl in 1999, the Gator Bowl in 2000, the 2001 Humanitarian Bowl, and the 2002 Tangerine Bowl prior to its 2004 Peach Bowl invitation.

The 2004 Peach Bowl appearance meant that it was the first time since the senior class of 1991 that Clemson went to a bowl game in five straight years. Clemson's red-shirt seniors of 2003 were the first group he recruited, so it is an indication of the firm foundation his first group set. In December of 2003, Bowden cemented his place at Clemson by signing a seven-year contract, which will go through 2010. The 2003 season was a breakthrough year in many ways. Clemson earned its highest-ever win over a ranked team with a 26-10 victory over #3 Florida State. The Tigers also defeated #24 Virginia in a thrilling overtime game. The 39-3 win over a bowl-bound Georgia Tech team was Clemson's largest victory margin in the series since 1900 as well.

The victory over Florida State, Clemson's first in 12 tries since the Seminoles joined the ACC, was the beginning of a four-game winning streak to close the season. In those four games, Clemson outscored its opponents 156-48, an average score of 39-12. Clemson defeated arch-rival South Carolina in Columbia by a score of 63-17. It was the most points ever scored by a team in the 101-game series and the Tigers' largest victory margin in the series since 1900. It was also Bowden's fourth win in five tries against the Gamecocks.

The season concluded with a 27-14 win over #6 Tennessee, the highest-ranked team Clemson has defeated in a bowl game since 1981, when the Tigers defeated #4 Nebraska in the Orange Bowl to claim the national championship. As a result, Clemson finished the season with nine wins and a #22 final national ranking.

Off the field, Clemson has graduated nearly 75 percent of its scholarship seniors in his six years. In 2003, Clemson ranked #11 in the nation, including second among public institutions, in the NCAA graduation-rate study for football scholar-official signees who entered Clemson in 1996. Clemson was first in the nation in graduation rate among African-Americans (100 percent). Nine of Clemson's current seniors are slated to graduate in December. Charlie Whitehurst already has his undergraduate degree.

The 2002 season included victories over bowl teams Georgia Tech and Wake Forest, and a third victory in four years over arch-rival South Carolina. Clemson gained 434 yards of total offense in the 27-20 win over the Gamecocks, the most yards against Lou Holtz's defense all season.

The 2001 season demonstrated Bowden's ability to win in the long run, as he had the second-youngest "two-deep" in the ACC. Thirty-four of his top 44 players were underclassmen. Only Duke had a younger group of top 44 players. Seventeen different freshmen saw action in 2001, including 10 who played in at least 10 games.

Bowden has a record of 44-29 (.603) as Clemson's head coach and is 62-33 (.653) overall. He ranks 10th among active Division I coaches on a winning-percentage basis. He has recorded that ledger against a difficult schedule. His first year, Clemson's schedule was ranked in the top 10 in the nation. In 2001, his team defeated five teams that finished the season with a winning record, tied for the third-highest single-season figure in school history. One of the wins was a 47-44 overtime triumph at #9 Georgia Tech. It was the highest-ranked road win in 20 years for the program. In 2003 and 2004,
Clemson’s schedule strength once again ranked in the top 25 by the Sagarin rating.

When Bowden came to Clemson in 1998, he inherited a team with a 3-8 record. By late October of 2000, just 14 months after his first game, Clemson was ranked #3 in the nation in the USA Today poll after an 8-0 start. That ranking was the highest for the program in 16 years. The final #14 ranking in that same poll was the highest final listing for the program since the 1990 season.

Bowden’s 2000 Clemson team was one of the most decorated in history. Six different Tigers were finalists or semifinalists for national position awards, including linebacker Keith Adams, who was one of the final three finalists for the Butkus Award.

Chad Carson and Kyle Young were both named first-team Academic All-Americans, making Clemson the only Division I-A school in the nation to have a pair of first-team selections. For the second straight year, the football team had its highest team GPA on record in 2001 and a record number of ACC Academic Honor Roll recipients. Nineteen of the 22 seniors on the 2001 team earned their degrees.

The top-six semester GPAs on record have taken place under his 12-semester watch. Carson brought pride to the entire University in 2002 when he reached the final stage of the Rhodes Scholarship selection process. His was the only Division I football player to hold that distinction.

In 1999, Bowden accomplished a personal milestone that no Clemson coach had attained since 1981, the year the Tigers won the National Championship. He became the first Clemson coach since Danny Ford to be named ACC Coach-of-the-Year.

Bowden led the Tigers to a 6-6 record and 5-3 mark in the ACC against the nation’s seventh-toughest schedule according to the Sagarin rating. The Tigers finished tied for second with Georgia Tech and Virginia in the final ACC standings, a six-place improvement over the previous season, the greatest one-season jump in ACC history in league play.

Under Bowden, Clemson continued its strong defensive tradition. With 47 sacks, Clemson led the ACC in that category for the second-straight year, and the final total established a school record. Three players (Adams - 15.5, Carson - 12.0, Robert Carswell - 10.8) all had nearly 11 tackles per game in 1999 to rank among the top-four tacklers in the league. Clemson also led the ACC in sacks in 2004.

Making strong improvement in his first year with a program that was nothing new for Bowden. In the two seasons he was the head coach at Tulane, Bowden took a team that had been 4-18 in the two years previous to his arrival, and emotionally and numerically reversed the team’s fortunes with an 18-4 record, posted an 11-1 conference mark, and finished the 1998 season ranked seventh in the nation by both polls. Tulane and Tennessee were the only undefeated teams in college football in 1998.

The Green Wave scored 40 or more points in eight games in 1998, including each of the last seven games. In one game, the Green Wave scored 72 points and rolled up 704 yards of total offense. They converted 52 percent of their third-down opportunities for the season and had just 11 turnovers in over 800 plays. The 1998 season saw the program post a perfect 11-0 regular season under Bowden, its first perfect regular season since 1931. The Green Wave won Conference USA, its first league title since Tulane won the SEC in 1949. Bowden was named Conference USA Coach-of-the-Year.

Bowden’s team ranked seventh in the final AP poll and was a mainstay in the polls from the third week of the season on. Tulane had not been ranked at any time since 1979, and had not been ranked in a final poll since 1973. After Bowden accepted the job at Clemson, Tulane defeated Brigham Young in the Liberty Bowl, 41-27.

A look to the list of coaches who had undefeated seasons in the 1990s shows two other men named Bowden. His father, Florida State’s Bobby Bowden, had a perfect regular season in 1996 and 1999, while his brother, Terry, posted a perfect regular season in 1993. Obviously, the Bowdens are the first family of college coaching and this “Wonder Years” environment had a lot to do with Tommy’s decision to enter coaching.

Tommy Bowden began his college football experience as a walk-on wide receiver at West Virginia. He played for his father between 1979-75 during Tommy’s stint for Frank Cignetti during the 1976 season.

As a junior, he caught 15 passes for 189 yards and one score. Bowden remained at West Virginia in 1977 and began his coaching career, serving as a graduate assistant on Cignetti’s staff. His interest in coaching only became more intense after that first year as a graduate assistant. His father then hired him as a secondary coach at Florida State in 1978.

In early 1980, Bowden joined the staff at East Carolina, where he coached for the spring-practice session. That spring, he moved to Auburn and served as the Tigers’ running backs coach in 1980.

In 1981, Bowden returned to Tallahassee as the tight ends coach. In two more years at Florida State, the Seminoles posted a 15-8 mark. The 1982 team ranked #13 in the final poll, claimed a 9-3 record, and won a Gator Bowl championship.

From 1983-86, Bowden served under Steve Sloan at Duke as the quarterbacks coach. He was named coordinator in 1985. It was as a Duke assistant that Bowden made his first trip to Death Valley as a coach. Among the players Bowden tutored was Anthony Dilweg, who went on to the NFL.

After four years at Duke, Bowden became the wide receivers coach at Alabama under Bill Curry. It was there that Bowden refined his offensive coaching prowess under noted offensive mind Homer Smith, then the Tide offensive coordinator.

In 1990, he returned to a coordinator role, serving Kentucky as its offensive coordinator and wide receivers coach. That year, he helped the Wildcats to their first upper division SEC finish since 1984.

In 1991, Bowden joined Pat Dye at Auburn. He remained with Auburn for six seasons, his longest stint as a college assistant coach. During his tenure, Auburn had a combined record of 46-20-2, including a perfect 11-0 season in 1993. Auburn had four AP top-25 seasons, including a #4 final ranking in 1993 and a #9 final ranking in 1994.

Born on July 10, 1954 in Birmingham, AL, Bowden is married to the former Linda Joan White, who he first met when the two were in school together at Morganstown (WV) High. The couple has two children, Ryan (23), a 2004 Clemson graduate and currently a law student at Regent University, and Lauren (20), a junior at Clemson.

Personal Data
Born September 30, 1954 in Arcadia, FL... married to Darley... the couple has two sons (Jeff 24, John 21).

Scott Highlights
In his first season at South Carolina in 1994, he led the Gamecocks to their first post-season bowl win in school history in the Carquest Bowl. While with the Seminoles, they were 10-0-1 in bowl games... with the win at the Carquest, Scott never tasted a bowl defeat in his first 12 bowl games as a coach. Florida State had a 44-6 (.660) record with Scott as offensive coordinator, which ranked as the most wins by a Division I program during those four years... Florida State also claimed the 1993 national title with Scott running the offense and finished no lower than fourth in the nation in any one season... coached Heisman Trophy winner Timmy Smith... he was a two-star recruit... 2000 offensive set 31 records, including total offense and touchdowns... the 2000 team ranked top 15 in the nation in total offense, scoring, and rushing... as offensive coordinator in 2001, he directed Woodrow Davis to the first 1,000-1,000 passing-rushing season in NCAA Division I history... he coordinated two of the top four offenses in Tiger history (2001, 03)... his son Jeff was the Tigers holder for three years and is now a high school head coach in Bythewood, SC... his other son John is a senior football player at Harvard.

Koening Highlights
In his first year as the defensive backs coach at Memphis in 1991, he helped lead the Tigers to a 24-10 upset of #14 Southern California in the Los Angeles Coliseum... his second season with the program saw Memphis defense rank third in the nation in total defense and 15th in scoring defense as the defensive coordinator at Wyoming in 1997, the Cowboys ranked second in the nation in sacks, sixth in pass defense, 17th in scoring defense, and 23rd in total defense; that defense also had a school-record and national-best 24 takeaways... head coach at Wyoming from 2000-02... coached 10 Cowboys who earned first-team all-conference honors and 12 who were second-team selections during his five seasons at Wyoming... as the defensive coordinator at Troy in 2003, his unit ranked sixth in the nation in turnovers forced... in 2004, the Trojans forced 32 turnovers to rank tied for second in the nation behind National Champion Southern California... the Trojans finished 2004 ranked sixth in the nation in pass efficiency defense, eighth in rushing defense, and 10th in scoring defense; the Trojan defense also led the nation in interceptions with 25... Troy finished ninth in the nation in fewest yards per play allowed and 16th in the nation in total defense (311.0)... of the 12 teams Troy faced in 2004, 11 failed to reach their scoring average for the course of the season... two Troy defenders ranked in the top 16 in the nation in interceptions (Johnny Faulk and Derrick Ansley), his defense featured standout defensive lineman Demarcus Ware, who ranked eighth in the nation in sacks and 13th in tackles for loss.

Dear ACC Football Fans,

This is an exciting time to be a part of the Atlantic Coast Conference! With the addition of Boston College on July 1, 2005, the ACC will compete with 12 of the finest academic and athletic institutions in the country.

As we begin this new chapter of Atlantic Coast Conference competition, I hope you not only enjoy the excitement as you cheer on your respective school, but that you will also take advantage of the many exciting destinations that are available in the newly expanded ACC footprint. From the historic Boston Harbor to the beaches of Miami – each of the 12 ACC campuses and surrounding areas have many great attractions to offer.

ACC Football will also take on a new look this year as each conference team will compete in either the Atlantic or Coastal division.

At the conclusion of conference competition, the winner of each division will square off in the inaugural Dr Pepper ACC Football Championship Game on Saturday, December 3. This historic event is set to kick off at 8:00 p.m. in Jacksonville, Fla., and will be aired nationally on ABC. We hope that all ACC fans will make plans to share in this memorable experience.

The ACC, and its 12 member institutions, has a tradition of tremendous academic and athletic balance. As a conference, we are extremely excited to once again turn the attention to what has made this league so strong throughout its history – our student-athletes, coaches and fans.

We sincerely hope that all the dedicated followers of the ACC will continue to bring meaning to the ACC’s promise - A Tradition of Excellence … Then, Now and Always.

Sincerely,

John D. Swofford
Atlantic Coast Conference Commissioner

Clemson Memorial Stadium has been held in high esteem for many years. Whether it be players from the 1940s and 1950s, opposing players from the 1970s and 1980s, or even professional players in the 1990s, the ambiance of this special setting is what college football is all about.

The storied edifice added to its legend when the first meeting of father and son head coaches (Bowden Bowl I) took place before a sellout crowd of more than 86,000 fans in 1999. Clemson has ranked in the top 20 in the nation in attendance 22 straight seasons. In 2004, the streak continued when Clemson averaged nearly 79,000 fans per game.

The facility’s mystique is derived from its many traditions, which date to its opening in 1942, the legendary games and players, and Clemson’s corresponding rate of success. Clemson has won 227 games in 63 years there and has won over 71 percent of the contests (227-88-7). Thirty-nine times since 1983, a crowd has exceeded 80,000.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before Head Coach Jess Neely left for Rice after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message.

“Don’t ever let them talk you into building a big stadium,” he said. “Put about 10,000 seats behind the YMCA. That’s all you’ll ever need”.

Instead of following Coach Neely’s advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing—there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work, clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally on September 19, 1942, Memorial Stadium opened with Clemson thrashing Presbyterian by a score of 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow; and grow and grow.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40’s, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed... without problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, the boy was swollen twice his size and was hospitalized.

There are many other stories about the stadium, including one that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner as the concrete poured.

Howard said that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he said. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through."

"I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more weeks' pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard said that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 and we played at 2:00." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and in 1960, 5,658 west endzone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large endzone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the field. This increased capacity to over 80,000, which makes it one of the largest on-campus stadiums.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $135.5 million, or $666 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

In 1974, the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Luckily, the stadium wasn’t built behind the Y
What has been described as, "the most exciting 25 seconds in college football from a color and pageantry standpoint," actually started out as a matter-of-fact entrance, mainly because of necessity.

The first 20,000 seats in Memorial Stadium were built and ready for use before the 1942 season, less than a year after Pearl Harbor was bombed and the United States was drawn into World War II.

The shortest entry into the stadium was a short walk down Williamson Road from Fike Fieldhouse's dressing rooms to a gate at the top of the Hill, which is located behind the east endzone. There were no dressing facilities in the west endzone - there was only a big clock where the hands turned and a scoreboard, which was operated by hand.

The team would dress at Fike, walk down Williamson Road, come in the gate underneath where the big scoreboard now stands and jog down the Hill for its warm-up exercises. There was no fanfare, no cannon shot fired, no Tiger Paw flag, no Tiger Rag played... just the team making its entrance and lining up to do the side-straddle hop.

That's pretty much the way things went for the next 25 years.

Either in 1964 or 1965, S.C. Jones, a member of the class of 1919, made a trip to California. He stopped at a spot in Death Valley, CA and picked up this white flint rock. He presented it to Coach Frank Howard as being from Death Valley, CA to Death Valley, South Carolina."

The rock laid on the floor in Howard's office in Fike Fieldhouse for years. One day, he was cleaning up his office and he told Gene Willimon, who was executive secretary of IPTAY, to "take this rock and throw it over the fence, or out in the ditch... do something with it, but get it out of my office!"

Willimon didn't think that was the way a rock should be treated. After all, it had been brought 3,000 miles by a very sincere Tiger fan.

By the mid-1960s, Memorial Stadium was pretty well living up to its moniker, Death Valley, because of the number of victories that had been recorded there. Actually, the name was first used by the late Lonnie McMillian, head coach at Presbyterian College in Clinton in the 1940s.

McMillian and the other Blue Hose coaches before him used to open the season each year by coming to Clemson. Seldom scoring (24 shutouts in 39 games) and with only three wins and four ties to show for it, his teams were getting killed by the Tigers regularly. In 1948, McMillian made the comment to the press that he was taking his team to play Clemson in Death Valley.

An occasional reference to Memorial Stadium by that name could be heard for the next three or four years, but when Howard started calling it "Death Valley" in the 1950s, the name took off like wildfire. The Tigers celebrated the 50th season in the "Valley in 1991.
Running Down The Hill
"The Most Exciting 25 Seconds in College Football"

But getting back to Howard's Rock.
The rock was mounted on a pedestal at the top of the Hill. It was unveiled September 24, 1966, on a day when Clemson played Virginia. The Tigers were down 18 points with 17 minutes to play and came back to win (40-35) on a 65-yard pass play from Jimmy Addison to Jacky Jackson in the fourth period. That was quite a spectacular debut for that rock.

The team members started rubbing the rock prior to running down the Hill September 23, 1967, a day when Clemson defeated Wake Forest, 23-6. Prior to running down the Hill that day, Howard told his players: "If you're going to give me 110 percent, you can rub that rock. If you're not, keep your filthy hands off it." Howard told of the incident the next day on his Sunday television show and the story became legend.

When Hootie Ingram succeeded Howard as head coach prior to the 1970 season, Ingram decided that the team would make its final entrance on the field out of the dressing room in the west endzone. In all home games in 1970 and 1971 and the first four games of 1972 when the Tigers did not run down the Hill, their combined record was 6-9. The team decided it wanted to come down the Hill once prior to the South Carolina game in 1972. The result, in a cold, freezing rain, was a 7-6 victory when Jimmy Williamson knocked down a two-point conversion attempt which preserved the win.

The Tigers have made the entrance for every home game since 1942, except for the seasons mentioned above - 307 times heading into the 2005 season.

After final warmups, the team goes back into its dressing room under the west endzone for final game instructions. About 10 minutes before kickoff, the team boards two buses, rides around behind the north stands to the east endzone, and debarks to the top of the Hill behind Howard's Rock.

At the appointed time, the cannon booms and led by a high-flying Tiger Paw flag, the band forms two lines for the team to run between and strikes up "Tiger Rag"...the frenzy starts in all sincerity and usually lasts for three hours.

It is a tradition that has inspired Clemson players for many years.

"The Rock has strange powers. When you rub it, and run down the Hill, the adrenaline flows. It's the most emotional experience I've ever had."
Six-time All-Pro and former Tiger All-American Michael Dean Perry

Perseverance, determination, dedication, and leadership describe Clemson linebacker Lionel Richardson.

Richardson persevered after tearing his ACL before his junior year in high school, an injury that could have ended his playing career. He was determined to play football at Clemson and thus became a walk-on. He remained dedicated to football, and has become one of the leaders of the 2005 Tiger team.

It is easy to see the source of these characteristics within Richardson’s personality. Growing up in Huger, SC, Richardson was the youngest of four children. His family was extremely close. His parents, sisters, and brother have always been supportive of him.

He credits his introduction to sports to his father. In a sense, his father was his first coach. His dad was the person who first gave him a basketball to shoot, a baseball to hit, and more importantly, a football, in his case as a defensive player, to pursue.

Richardson began playing organized football in the sixth grade, shortly after his father gave him that football. Playing football was time consuming for Richardson, because his parents had to travel 30 minutes back and forth in order for him to attend practice. It was around this time that he began to develop a love for the sport.

Moving forward some years, Richardson began playing football for Hanahan High School. He started his career as a running back, and rushed for 1,150 yards and scored 20 touchdowns as a sophomore. His passion, mixed with his determination, caught the eyes of many. College recruiters were sending him mail, and things looked promising.

However one day in practice just before his junior season, Richardson tore an ACL, halting his progress. He was forced to sit out his junior year.

In short, he had to work twice as hard to get back to the player he was before his injury.

“When I tore my ACL, it was extremely difficult, because I knew we had a great team that year and I would not be able to contribute. Also, my brother was a senior that year, and it was going to be my last chance to play with him. Prior to my injury, he was my backup, but he finished with over 1,700 rushing yards that year, until he tore his ACL, too. The entire situation was bittersweet for both of us.”

Richardson recovered through his work ethic and was back in the lineup for his senior year, as he rushed for 1,100 yards and 16 touchdowns. He was named all-region, but did not have any scholarship offers from Division I schools.

When it came time to decide on a college to attend, academics were at the forefront. Already knowing that he wanted to be an engineer, Richardson narrowed his search to Clemson and Georgia Tech. Clemson has long had a strong engineering program, and that was the major factor in Richardson’s decision. But, he also had knowledge of Clemson’s football program, because his high school coach (Jeff Crule) was an offensive lineman on Clemson’s 1981 National Championship team.

Graduating fifth out of a 180 students at Hanahan High, Richardson received in-state scholarships and decided to attend Clemson. He liked the campus atmosphere and the friendly people. But, he never forgot that his love was football, and he was determined to keep the sport in his life.

So, when Richardson came to campus in the fall of 2001, he tried out for the Tiger football team as a walk-on. Through hard work, he made the team, returning to his old high school position of running back. “As a walk-on, you are automatically put in a position to prove yourself,” stated Richardson. “I knew that coming into tryouts, so it did not bother me. I knew I had the ability to get playing time. I was just waiting to have to work extra hard.”

Richardson did prove himself. After serving as a member of the scout team in 2001, he carried the ball seven times for 17 yards in the 2002 Spring Game on Riggs Field as a reserve running back. Then in the spring of 2003, he was moved to linebacker. He took the change of position in stride, because he wanted to get on the field anyway he could.

“Some of the best linebackers are former running backs,” said Richardson.

Through his consistent work ethic, it did not take him long to earn a scholarship, quite an accomplishment for a walk-on. Between one to three walk-ons a year earn scholarships at Clemson and at most Division I schools.

“When Coach Bowden told me I had earned a scholarship, it was a thrill, but my parents were even more excited for obvious reasons.”

In 2003, Richardson made a strong contribution to a Tiger team that ended the year with nine wins and a top-25 national ranking. He made four starts and 24 tackles, including seven in a overtime victory against #25 Virginia and an eight-point win over North Carolina. He played 205 snaps in nine games for the season.

In 2004, he had 10 tackles in 113 snaps. He had another strong game against a ranked team when he played 22 plays in the overtime win at #10 Miami (FL). He played in all 11 games as a reserve.

Richardson has continued to make a significant contribution to the team this season. First, he earned a scholarship for the third consecutive year. He has played 69 snaps in the first six games behind leading-tackler Anthony Waters. He has contributed a total of 11 tackles, including his first career sack in the memorable triple-overtime game against Miami (FL).

While Clemson lost that game, it will be a career highlight for Richardson when he reflects on his five years in the Tiger program. “No one expected us to win that game. The atmosphere was incredible. I know I haven’t heard that loud in Death Valley before. People in the stands were in shock, but our team knew we had the talent and confidence to beat them, and we nearly did.”

“Getting my first sack was also exciting. We were in a particular defense that allowed me to rush the quarterback. I was left unblocked, so I just went and made the play.”

A senior, Richardson has been looking to the future. As an electrical engineering major and an athlete, he has had to work twice as hard to keep his grades up, because there is not much spare time. Between football and school, he has had many sleepless nights. He is, however, looking at many job opportunities, including one in particular with Duke Power. His job offers range from a project manager to a design engineer, but he also plans to get his MBA in graduate school.

Based on his determination on the football field the last five years, we are sure he will reach those goals and more. He has done whatever it takes to be successful on the gridiron, even if it meant he had to prove himself from day one as a walk-on. That characteristic will carry over to his future in the engineering field, and will serve him well for the rest of his life.

Clemson University is home to big ideas — ideas that fuel the economy, improve health and safety, and educate students for life.

Teaching America's best scholars in a unique learning environment

Clemson students are among the nation's best. Their SAT scores, freshman retention rates and graduation rates rank among the top public research universities. Clemson students think critically through individual research, collaborative work, laptop innovations, cutting-edge laboratories, studios and other hands-on challenges. Students gain lifelong communication skills through the Pearce Center for Professional Communication and the new Class of 1941 Studio for Student Communication. Clemson's Rutland Center for Ethics helps students manage ethical issues now and in the future.

Meeting today's business needs with a century of know-how Clemson's International Center for Automotive Research (Clemson-ICAR®) in Greenville positions South Carolina to become a hub of the nation's automotive and motorsports industry. Its Center for Optical Materials Science and Engineering Technologies' spinoff companies have already generated more than $3 million. Clemson's advanced materials research has a new state-of-the-art facility at the Clemson Research Park in Anderson County, making the Upstate a magnet for related industries. Its Biosystems Research Complex serves as a focal point of biotechnology research, the promising field to create new products and processes in medicine, agriculture and industry.

Solving life-threatening situations with life-altering research

Clemson attracted more than $125 million in externally funded research and sponsored program awards last year. Its scientists are working to stop breast cancer, heal ailing hearts, reverse bone loss, decrease diabetes and address a host of other health issues. Clemson engineers are working to make safer and "smarter" vehicles through automotive and transportation technology. Researchers are aiding soldiers on the battlefield, revolutionizing wireless communication and advancing security.

Athletic Department Staff
Clemson University

Mission Statement

The Department of Athletics offers nationally prominent athletic programs. Through a dedicated commitment to educational interests, a competitive athletic program, and integrity in all areas, the student-athletes, coaches, and staff strive to bring credit and recognition to Clemson University.

The mission of the Athletic Department is to sponsor a broad-based athletic program that provides educational and athletic opportunities for young men and women to grow, develop, and serve the interests of Clemson University by complementing and enhancing its diversity and quality of life.

Furthermore, the Athletic Department seeks to be a source of pride for the citizens of the State of South Carolina and to be recognized as a nationally prominent program, through consistently high levels of performance and accomplishment in athletic competitions.

The Athletic Department strives to develop student-athletes academically and athletically with the total commitment of aiding their efforts to graduate from Clemson University and advance to careers that will enable them to be productive members of society.

The Athletic Department will act in an ethical and honest manner, dedicated to compliance with all Federal, State, NCAA, Conference, and University rules and regulations.
Clemson Memorial Stadium, known to Tiger faithful as "Death Valley," seats more than 81,000 loyal fans. It is located on the western side of the Clemson University campus, while the campus is only a two-hour drive from Atlanta, Charlotte, and Columbia. The beaches of coastal South Carolina are only four hours away, while the awe-inspiring sights of the Blue Ridge Mountains can be viewed just a few miles northwest of Clemson.

The Clemson Tiger Sports Network supplies Tiger fans with a full day of broadcast each football Saturday. Each broadcast day has three programs, "Tiger Tailgate Show," "Game Day Broadcast," and the "Fifth Quarter Column." A tradition since the 1970s, the "Tiger Tailgate Show" is a two-hour entertainment and interactive program. It is produced on the lawn of Littlejohn Coliseum (at the corner) closest to Death Valley.

The program begins three hours prior to kickoff. Bubba Britton, Duane Evans, Don Munson, and Whitney Walters play host to the show. It is the gathering place on gameday. Interviews with former Clemson players, games, display items, and pregame excitement are all part of the program.

The game broadcast is anchored by Pete Yanity. The sports director at WSFA-TV in Spartanburg, SC took over in September, 2003 after the passing of the legendary Jim Phillips, who had been the longtime voice of the Tigers since 1968. Yanity has been a part of the broadcast team since 2001 as the host of the pregame, halftime, and postgame shows, and as the sideline reporter during games.

Yanity has been the sports director at WSFA-TV in Spartanburg the last 15 years. He has also been a sideline analyst for nine years on Carolina Panthers pregame football games and has considerable play-by-play experience for Comcast Sports Southeast, covering various college events, including Tiger football and baseball. Yanity is also the voice of Tiger basketball and the host of the Tommy Bowden and Oliver Purnell Television Shows.

Joining Yanity in the booth is former Clemson offensive lineman Will Merritt, who played for the Tigers from 1998-01. He was a starter in both 2000 and 2001 when he was named Second-Team All-ACC.

Merritt worked on the Clemson radio network pregame and postgame shows in 2002. He also provided color commentary on the television tape-delay broadcasts of selected 2002 games. In 2003, he became the color analyst of the game day broadcasts. The native of Easley, SC is the host of "The Morning Drive," a sports talk show that airs each morning on WCCP (104.9 FM) in Clemson.

Former Clemson Academic All-American linebacker Chad Carson completes the broadcast team as the sideline commentator. Carson served in that capacity for the final two games of 2003 and all of 2004. Carson is fourth in Clemson history in career tackles and was a starter on Tommy Bowden’s first three Tiger teams.

As has been the case in the past, the gameday broadcast begins with the Tommy Bowden Pregame Show. Bowden meets with Sports Information Director Tim Bouret to provide fans with the latest game lineup and strategy information. Yanity and Merritt also provide a last-minute scene-setter that includes the latest lineup and weather information.

After the game, fans can tune into the "Fifth Quarter Show," hosted by Ralph Patterson and Munson, or attend the show live from the Wild Wing Cafe in downtown Greenville, SC. Interviews with Coach Bowden and Assistant Coaches Rob Spence and Vic Koenning are also included. An added feature includes lockerroom interviews with Clemson’s top players that day. A rundown of the game stats and audio highlights are provided.

Fans can follow the Tigers by listening to "Tiger Calls" each Thursday evening with Bowden and Don Munson from 7:00 PM to 8:00 PM. The shows will air live from Chick-fil-A in Seneca, SC or one of four local Tri-County Ace stores.

The Clemson Tiger Sports Network also produces the Tommy Bowden Television Show, a repeat of the previous week’s highlights. Yanity serves as the host of this weekly program that gives fans insight into the coaches’ decisions during the previous game and takes an up close look at your favorite players.

For more information, contact Rob Cahagan (General Manager), Don Williams (Sales & Operations), and Burt Jenkins (Account Executive) at Clemson Tiger Sports Properties, P.O. Box 552, Clemson, SC 29633-0552. They can be reached via phone at (864) 654-5544 and via fax at (864) 654-5509.

This brief NCAA rules education is aimed at outlining basic recruiting rules to help potential Tiger student-athletes and parents better understand the extensive process. Clemson University is committed to recruiting and conducting our athletic program with the highest level of integrity. If you have questions about NCAA rules, please contact Clemson’s compliance services at (864) 656-1580 or through our website at ClemsonTigers.com and click on compliance. You can also visit the NCAA’s website at NCAA.org.

Important NCAA Terms

Academic Credentials - A prospect should check with his high school guidance office to see if he is taking classes that will meet NCAA eligibility standards. A prospect should do this early - prior to his sophomore year - and keep track of core courses. A prospect will need to take either the ACT or SAT for NCAA certification.

Contact - NCAA rules define a contact as a face-to-face interaction with a prospect and/or his parents off Clemson’s campus by a coach. The NCAA sets a contact period for football prospects from late November through the end of January. That is the only time coaches can meet with a prospect away from the Clemson campus.

Core Courses - Courses at a prospect’s high school that are considered college preparatory. For the class entering Clemson in 2006, 14 core courses are required, including four in English, two in math, two in science, one additional from English, math, or science, two social sciences, and three additional courses. For the class entering Clemson in 2008, 16 core courses are required, including four in English, three in math, two in science, one additional from English, math, or science, two social sciences, and four additional courses. A high school prospect’s guidance counselor will have a list of the school’s core courses, or you can visit the NCAA Clearinghouse’s website at NCAAClearinghouse.net for more information.

Dead Period - Recruiting period when coaches may not have face-to-face contact with prospects on or off Clemson’s campus. Coaches may continue to telephone and write a prospect.

Evaluation - In April and May of a prospect’s junior year, coaches will come to a prospect’s high school, and review his athletic and academic credentials with his coach. In the fall, they may watch a prospect compete one time, but they will not have any contact.

Home Visit - During the contact period, a senior prospect may invite college coaches to his home to meet his parents, and to talk in detail about the football program and academic offerings at any college the prospect is considering.

Receiving Mail - When a prospect is in the ninth and tenth grades, NCAA rules allow Clemson to mail a questionnaire, NCAA educational information, and a summer-camp brochure to a prospect. After September 1 of the prospect’s junior year, coaches can provide a prospect with the following: write personalized letters, send a media guide and copies of newspaper articles, and a schedule card. A prospect can receive a football game program when he visits the Clemson University campus.

Recruiting - A term used to describe the process of acquainting a prospect with a college and the coaches of that college, who are striving to learn more about a prospect. Only coaches can recruit - no one else is permitted to persuade a prospect to play sports at a particular college.

Prospect - Any student who has entered the ninth grade. Once a person becomes a prospect, NCAA rules define how college coaches can interact with that prospect.

Telephone - Clemson football coaches can call a prospect once in May of the prospect’s junior year. After September 1 of a prospect’s senior year, a coach can call a prospect once a week. A prospect can expect unlimited calls during the contact period, before his official visit and once the prospect has signed a National Letter of Intent.

Frequently Asked Questions

• Are a prospect’s parents invited for an official visit? Yes. NCAA rules allow a school to provide lodging and meals for parents or legal guardians who accompany their child. However, NCAA rules do not allow schools to provide transportation for parents unless they drive with their son.

• Can a prospect visit Clemson anytime during his high school career? Yes. A prospect can have his high school coach call Tiger coaches to set up an official visit. He can attend a football game and talk with Tiger coaches, and it does not count as a contact when it is on Clemson's campus. There are times a prospect cannot visit - NCAA rules refer to them as “dead periods,” and coaches will not schedule to meet with a prospect during that time period.

• Can IPTAY members help recruit me? No. NCAA rules are clear; only Clemson coaches can telephone, contact, and evaluate a prospect. Only college coaches can offer unofficial official visits.

• Is the prospect’s high school coach invited for an official visit? NCAA rules are such that high school coaches may not be provided any expenses for official visits.

• What is a National Letter of Intent (NLI)? It is a contract; a prospect and his parents sign a promise that the prospect will attend a particular college. In return, that college promises a prospect financial aid. A prospect signs it during his senior year (in February for football). Once the prospect signs it, he cannot be recruited by any other school, and it is a binding contract for the prospect’s first year in college at the school that provides the national letter of intent.

• What is IPTAY? IPTAY is an organization of Clemson fans. It has over 23,000 members. It generates financial support for the athletic department, and it is the best in the country!

• What is an official visit? A prospect can take five official visits, which are expense-paid. Before the visit, the prospect must present a high school transcript and proof of an SAT, ACT, PACT, or PSAT test. Official visit invitations are extended by Tiger coaches only. Official visits may not occur prior to the first day of class of the prospect’s senior year in high school.

• What is the NCAA Clearinghouse? It is the agency that certifies a prospect’s eligibility for NCAA Division I and Division II. A prospect should register with the NCAA Clearinghouse at the end of his junior year in high school. Applications are available in the prospect’s guidance office. Cost is $32.

One of the most important facilities on the Clemson athletic landscape is the strength training facility. Located in the Jervey Athletic Center, it has continued to keep up with one of the most progressive areas in college sports. Head Strength Training Coach Joey Batson, who is in his ninth year as the director, makes sure Clemson student-athletes in all sports are ready for competition physically.

In the summer of 2004, he oversaw a third major facility enhancement. When he came to Clemson, the facility covered 11,000 square feet. It has continued to grow and now covers nearly 15,000 square feet. It is one of the most modern all-around facilities in the country.

The following improvements were made:

- State-of-the-art sound system
- Eight flat-screen plasma televisions
- State-of-the-art ventilation system
- New lighting system
- 10 new multi-functional Clemson power racks
- Mondo-rubber flooring throughout entire weight room
- New orange upholstery on all weightlifting equipment
- New paint on surrounding walls and columns
- Carpeting in entrances and offices
- Front entrance drop ceiling
- Metal overlay for awards displays
- Reconstruction of entryway walls

The plush atmosphere provides an interesting contrast to the physical exertion that takes place within the facility. When a Tiger student-athlete enters the etched-glass doors, he is greeted by nearly $700,000 worth state-of-the-art equipment.

The eight plasma televisions are positioned throughout the facility and are used for training and instruction, as strength coaches film athletes and work with them on their form.

Clemson has a staff of five full-time strength coaches along with four graduate assistant coaches, and numerous student assistant coaches who ensure a Tiger football player receives as much individual attention as possible. Training programs are position specific, and are designed to meet the specific needs of each student-athlete.

Batson is one of the most highly-regarded strength coaches in the country. In his nine years directing the program, he has coached 11 strength All-Americans. He is a major reason Clemson has been to a bowl in six of his eight years. Also, seven of his assistants at Clemson are now strength training directors at NFL or college programs.

When Clemson's football players returned to campus for the second session of summer school of 2004, they reported to a new football locker room and player lounge area within the Jervey Athletic Center. The 4,200-square-foot facility has all the modern conveniences, including a player lounge that includes seven plasma televisions and four computer work stations. The lounge also features murals that document Clemson's greatest players, greatest victories, and prominent former players who have gone on to the NFL.

The following is a rundown of some of the features of Clemson's new lounge and locker room area:

- The locker room area is divided into eight sections, with the lockers corresponding to each player's uniform number. There are 115 lockers in all. Each section of the locker room is highlighted by a logo and picture of historical significance from a bowl game Clemson has played in. Each section also features large interchangeable action photos of recent Clemson players.
- Each player has a new mahogany locker that features a helmet storage area and a storage compartment below a padded seat. There is also a private lock box for personal items.
- Each locker features a large Tiger Paw that introduces the helmet storage area and a personalized name plate.
- The lounge area features seven plasma televisions, complete with split-screen capabilities. All are tied to a central video hub. The television area also contains an Academic Hall of Fame, complete with photographs and accomplishments of Clemson's academic All-Americans and award winners.
- The lounge also features four computer work stations to enhance communications capabilities with professors or advisors at Vickery Hall.
- One wall of the lounge contains a complete list (by team) of every former Tiger who has played in an NFL game. Another wall is a mural of Clemson's All-Century team (chosen in 1996 in conjunction with the 100th year of Clemson football).
- The entrance is dominated by a 30'x9' picture of Death Valley taken at night from Howard's Rock.
- The locker room and lounge areas also feature pictures from Clemson's 13 ACC Championship teams and the 1981 National Championship team.
- The back of the locker room, which has a new exit to the practice field, features a picture of Clemson players running down the Hill and rubbing Howard's Rock. It is the last image seen by each Clemson player as he heads to the practice field.

INSPIRATION COMES STANDARD
Vickery Hall
Student-Athlete Enrichment Program

Since its inception in 1991, the five-faceted Student-Athlete Enrichment Program has provided student-athletes a continued commitment to excellence. Our approach is to address the total student-athlete, and we are committed to coaching our student-athletes to success not only in the athletic arena, but in the academic, personal growth, career, and community service arenas as well. We provide opportunities and services to address the changing needs and skills of student-athletes during college and after graduation.

Vickery Hall is a $3-million structure that is as impressive aesthetically as any of the other Clemson facilities. But the importance of Vickery Hall to the Clemson athletic department is not found in the structure itself, but in the many programs that the building houses.

Vickery Hall opened in 1991 and was the first facility in the country constructed solely for the all-around academic support of student-athletes. The two-story, 27,000 square-foot building is open all day and into the evening hours to accommodate student-athletes' extended schedules. It is a vital reason that the number of student-athletes on the ACC and Clemson Academic Honor Roll has shown continuous improvement since its opening.

Vickery Hall Values
We believe that you can win ACC and National Championships with men and women who strive for academic and athletic excellence, and who share values of honesty, open communication, fairness, balance in the personal life, integrity, life-long learning, accountability, and commitment.

Vickery Hall Staff Members:
- are honest in their dealings with athletes, coaches, parents and administrators.
- are technically sound in their approach to advising.
- are committed to developing expertise that is recognized nationally.
- are committed to helping each other meet the challenges of motivating student-athletes toward their best academic efforts.
- are known for treating athletes consistently and with concern for their future.
- are chosen for Clemson and demonstrate a commitment to decision-making that is in the best interest of Clemson.
- are committed to retention, graduation, and life-long connection for student-athletes.

Our Student-Athletes:
- are able to communicate with peers and with adults.
- are exposed to the best in academic support.
- understand that they are expected to perform at their highest level in the classroom and on the playing field.
- understand that they are obligated to follow rules, train for championships, and graduate.
- realize that in exchange for their participation in athletics, they receive a college education, a network of support, and life-long relationships.

Vickery Hall Facts
- Named in honor of Dean Kenneth Vickery, longtime Clemson Faculty Athletic Representative
- Located in the heart of Clemson’s campus
- Built around the five CHAMPS commitments - academic, athletic, personal growth, community service, and career development
- Employs two learning specialists
- Offers both wired and wireless internet connections
- Recipient of Division I Athletic Director Award of Excellence
- Employs a staff of 10 full-time employees, all with at least a master’s degree in counseling or education
- Experience of the staff in academic advising exceeds a combined 45 years
- Employs over 60 tutors, a majority of which have either an undergraduate degree or pursuing an advanced degree.

2006 Clemson Opponents

Clemson will play road games in major markets Boston and Philadelphia in addition to having ACC road trips to Florida State, Virginia Tech, and Wake Forest according to the list of opponents the Tigers will play in 2006.

Clemson only announced the list of opponents and game sites it will play in the 2006 season. The dates of all games will be determined and released in January of 2006.

Clemson and the other 118 Division I teams will play 12 regular-season games in 2006. The Tigers non-conference foes include South Carolina, Louisiana Tech, Temple, and Florida Atlantic. All but the Temple game will be played in Clemson Memorial Stadium.

The Tigers will play ACC home games against Georgia Tech, Maryland, N.C. State, and North Carolina in 2006, while league road games will be at Boston College, Florida State, Virginia Tech, and Wake Forest.

Florida Atlantic, who finished with a 9-3 record under Howard Schnellenberger in 2004, will come to Clemson for the first time ever. Schnellenberger coached Miami (FL) to the 1983 National Championship. Louisiana Tech will travel to Clemson for the second time. Clemson has a 2-0 lifetime record against Louisiana Tech, a 49-24 victory in the Humanitarian Bowl to close the 2001 season, then a 33-13 win at Clemson in the second game of the 2002 season.

Clemson and Temple begin a three-year series in 2005 when the Owls come to Clemson on October 22. The two teams will meet in Philadelphia, PA at Lincoln Financial Field, the home of the Philadelphia Eagles, in 2006.

North Carolina returns to Clemson’s schedule for the first time since 2003 when the Tigers won a thrilling 36-28 game in Death Valley. It will be the only game between Clemson and North Carolina between 2004 and 2009.

The Tigers travel to Wake Forest in 2006, the second consecutive year Clemson will play in Winston-Salem, NC. Clemson plays at Wake Forest this year on October 1. When Clemson plays at Boston College in 2006, it will be Clemson’s first trip to Boston since the 1983 season, when the Tigers suffered their only loss of the year to a Doug Flutie led Eagle team.

Clemson will not play ACC teams Virginia, Duke, or Miami (FL) in 2006.

GET THE GOOD STUFF
In 1955, students across America were vaccinated for the Polio, Ann Landers started her advice column, and Ray Kroc opened his first McDonald’s restaurant. Also that year, kids were dancing to Chuck Berry’s “Maybellene,” “Ain’t That a Shame,” by Fats Domino, and “Rock Around the Clock.”

By Bill Haley & the Comets. Families were making their way to a place called Disneyland or tuning in to “Davy Crockett” on television.

At Clemson University, the male students were adjusting to campus life with women coeds, the Clemson House was a hotel, and Duke Ellington and his big band performed during a campus dance. Tuition was $100 for the year for in-state students.

The year 1955 was also the year the Clemson College Band officially changed its name to Clemson Tiger Band.

In the fall of 1962, Tiger Band toured the White House in conjunction with its trip to perform at the Clemson game at Maryland. During the tour, President John F. Kennedy unexpectedly came out of the Oval Office to meet the band. Not having any instruments with them, they sang the Clemson Alma Mater, and they chatted with the president for a few minutes.

Tigerama 2005

Why are the members of Blue Key Honor Society stripping on their boots and tightening their bandanas? Because they have been busy all summer and fall planning for the 50th annual Tigerama 2005, “Go West, Young Tiger.” This year’s show will be on Friday, November 4 at 7:30 PM in Littlejohn Coliseum. Following tradition, it is being held on the Friday night before the Homecoming football game against Duke. Like last year’s show, there will be a pre-event held on the lawn of Littlejohn from 5:00 PM to 7:00 PM. The pre-event will include performances from Clemson singing groups and other performers. There will also be inflatable games for children to enjoy before the show. To avoid congestion and long lines, doors will open at 6:30 PM and fans are encouraged to arrive early.

Tigerama was started in 1956 by Joe Sherman, who eventually went on to be the creator and director of the Clemson Alumni Association. Before coming back to Clemson, Sherman worked at Florida and was able to watch Gator Growl, their homecoming celebration and pep rally. He saw how it brought the school together, created a sense of excitement, and encouraged alumni, students, and locals to all come support the school. He knew that Tiger fans would be perfect spectators for the same kind of event at Clemson. Sherman recruited Blue Key students to direct and plan the event. It was a huge success and has been a tradition ever since.

Tigerama’s participants and performers have changed over the years, but recently it has been an “All-Clemson” show, featuring only Clemson students and graduates. This year is no exception, with performances by the cheerleaders, Rally Cats (and their counterpart, the Rally Boys), Tiger Band, Tigerar, the Pershing Rifles, the crowning of Miss Homecoming, the student organization ski competition, and the fireworks display after the show.

Clemson Alma Mater

Where the Blue Ridge yawns its greatness
Where the Tigers play
Here the sons of dear old Clemson
Reign supreme alway.

Chorus
Dear old Clemson, we will triumph
And with all our might
That the Tigers’ roar may echo
Over the mountain height.

“Tiger Band will bring photos and other band memorabilia to share with one another,” Cook said.

For more information about the 50th anniversary party, call the band office at (864) 656-3380.

Clemson Facts From 1955

• The school was known as Clemson Agricultural & Mechanical College.
• Clemson beat South Carolina 26-14. The game was played in Columbia at the State Fairgrounds on “Big Thursday.”
• Dr. Robert F. Poole was president of the college and out-of-state tuition was $300 per year.
• Clemson’s first all women’s organization was formed (Clemson Coed Association).
• The freshman class totaled 1,067 new students, a record high at the time.

Today’s Show

Tiger Band will perform music by two of the great jazz legends, Chuck Mangione and Chick Corea. Our show opens with Mangione’s rousing “Legend of the One Eyed Sailor.” Tiger Band will then take you south of the border with Corea’s拉丁 sensation “La Fiesta.” Finally, the show closes with Gene Pueting’s salute to both jazz masters, “One More Time, Chuck Corea.”

Take home the sounds of Tiger Band by purchasing the group’s CD, “We’re An American Band.” The CD features more than 30 tracks of favorites from previous football seasons. It includes “Sock It To ‘Em,” “Tiger Rag,” the Clemson Alma Mater, and a special emphasis on patriotic songs. The CD is available at the Tiger Band Office (119 Brooks Center) for $15. To order by mail, send a check for $17 payable to CUTBA c/o Clemson Tiger Band, 119 Brooks Center, Clemson, SC 29634-1505.

The approximately $54 million WestZone initiative is underway, and soon the west end of Clemson Memorial Stadium will be transformed into a unique campus landmark. As the new “front door” to Death Valley, the WestZone will welcome fans, student-athletes, coaches and friends of Clemson University in an unprecedented fashion.

The WestZone Club, featuring excellent premium seating, will eventually cater to approximately 1,000 Clemson fans starting with the 2006 season. Boasting stylish amenities, comfortable seats and upscale cuisine, the WestZone Club combines indoor elegance and outdoor excitement. Private elevators will take patrons to the exclusive club, which includes a buffet dining area, along with lounge areas overlooking the Clemson campus and Lake Hartwell.

The WestZone initiative also will include great benefits to future Clemson Tiger gridders, including new locker rooms, team lounge areas, media interview rooms, training room, weight room, team and position meeting rooms and coaches offices. The overall project also will include the One Clemson Center, which will feature its history and traditions of Clemson University from an athletic, military and education standpoint.

Construction on the project began after the 2004 season and will continue during the 2005 season. Clemson will play its fall 2005 home schedule, as the general seating area will be functional by the opener on September 3 with Texas A&M.

Josh Cody
Former Head Coach at Clemson & Temple

This probably was best exemplified when it was rumored he was leaving after three years at Clemson. To show their appreciation for his fine record (including a then-3-0 mark against South Carolina), the students, faculty, and staff acted quickly and took up a collection to buy him a brand new black Buick, and presented him this new car in front of the steps at Tillman Hall on May 6, 1929. He would stay for one more year after this kind gesture. In 1930, the Tigers finished with an 8-2 mark in his final football season at Clemson, the first time in history the Tigers had won at least eight games in three consecutive years.

Cody was the only coach in Tiger history who has been around more than two years who never lost a football game to South Carolina. He also defeated Furman three straight seasons, had a 13-0-1 home record, and had a 72-percent winning mark overall, fourth best in Clemson history. He also coached Clemson’s first All-American, center O.K. Pressley. Cody also coached basketball at Clemson for five years and led the Tigers to a 16-9 slate in 1930. During the 1928-30 seasons, he guided Clemson to a 22-4 mark at home on the hardwood.

While Cody was coaching the football and basketball teams, he had a capable assistant in Joe Guyon, who also coached the baseball team. Guyon was a Native American that had attended Carlisle Indian School (1912-13) with the great Jim Thorpe, the greatest athlete in the first 50 years of the 20th Century according to Associated Press.

Guyon played two years under John Heisman at Georgia Tech (1917-18), including the Yellow Jackets’ 1917 National Championship team. Cody also had the distinction of playing both pro football and baseball, and was named to the National Football Hall of Fame and the NFL Hall of Fame in Canton, OH. An injury in baseball ended his playing career, and so he came to Clemson as a coach.

Upon leaving Clemson, Cody returned to Vanderbilt as an assistant football coach and head basketball coach. He was the head football coach and athletic director at Florida from 1936-39.

In 1940, Cody was a line coach at Temple and was appointed head basketball coach in 1942. He held that post until he became athletic director in 1952. During his tenure as basketball coach, Cody racked up 124 victories and guided the Owls to the NCAA Tournament in 1944, the first NCAA Tournament appearance in the history of the program. That team reached the Elite Eight of the tournament.

In 1955, he coached the football team at Temple after the original coach resigned on the eve of the season. The Owls were wireless that year (0-8), but Cody never complained, and instead stressed, “They were improving and trying hard.”

During his career, Cody had a few guiding principles he developed that he thought were important. At that time, Cody had African-Americans playing at Temple on the basketball team. When asked before the NCAA Tournament what he would do if segregation became an issue and his team could not stay in the same hotel or eat in the same restaurant, he simply replied, “We will not play in that city. We go together as a team or not play at all.”

Such was Josh Cody - he loved his players and respected them, and they did the same.

“I’ve always tried to treat a player the way I’d expect my son to be treated,” was another of his guiding principles.

Another rule he lived by was, “It’s important to realize how much influence a coach can have on his youngsters,” he once said.

Cody retired to a farm in New Jersey. He died of a heart attack on June 19, 1961 in Mount Laurel, NJ at the age of 69. He was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame as a player in 1970 and the Tennessee Sports Hall of Fame in 1999.

Cody enjoyed a wide reputation as athlete, coach, administrator, and gentleman. Although many things have changed in the last 80 or so years since Cody was at Clemson, some things that he stressed, like the importance of character and respect for others, will never change.

Sam Blackman is Clemson’s Associate Sports Information Director and is in his 19th year at Clemson.

Josh Cody, pictured in the center above with his Tiger coaching staff in the late 1920s, had a 29-11-1 (.720) record in four seasons (1927-30) as Clemson’s head football coach.

Where Are They Now?

James Earle, Dan Pearman, Nelson Welch

James Earle
1984-87
A linebacker from Easley, SC, James Earle was the only defensive player to start every game on Clemson’s 1986 ACC Championship team. He had a season-high 10 tackles and two pass breakups in a 17-17 tie at Maryland, the game that clinched the title for the Tigers. Earle also started every game in the 1987 season when the Tigers won the ACC Championship, beat Penn State in the Citrus Bowl, finished with a 10-2 record, and were ranked #12 by AP.

Earle entered the coaching profession shortly after graduation and coached the tight ends during the 1994 season, Tommy West’s first year as head coach at Clemson. He also coached on the high school level in South Carolina. Currently, Earle lives in Easley and is an administrator at Spartanburg High School. He and his wife Susan have four children. Their oldest daughter, Ashley (18), is a freshman at Clemson and works in the sports information office. Britney (17) and Chelsea (16) both attend Carolina High School. The Earles also have a son, Tarrin (6).

“Always remember Clemson because of the relationships that I made with the other players and the coaches,” said Earle. “I also always remember the 1987 Georgia game at home. It was a big goal of ours to beat Georgia, and in the fourth quarter we needed a safety and a field goal to win. We were able to get both, and it was a great effort by our defense and the entire team.”

The Tigers trailed Georgia 20-16 with less than seven minutes remaining that day, but after a punt was downed on the one-yard line, the Tiger defense stopped Bulldog quarterback James Jackson in the endzone for a safety, with Earle in heavy pursuit on the play. The Clemson offense moved the ball down the field with no timeouts, and David Treadwell kicked a 21-yard field goal with two seconds left to give the Tigers a 21-20 win.

The friendships Earle made while on the team at Clemson have continued to last, especially with wide receiver Ricardo Hooper, who was the best man in Earle’s wedding. Their families have become close, and the two visit each other often. Earle says he also remains in close contact with wideout Ray Williams and defensive lineman Raymond Chavous.

Dan Pearman
1985-87
A tight end who began his career as a walk-on, Dan Pearman lettered from 1985-87 for the Tigers and was a member of two ACC Championship teams. Pearman started 11 of 12 games in his senior season of 1987, and was named a Strength All-American. He also caught a pass in the 35-10 Citrus Bowl victory over defending National Champion Penn State. When his playing days as a Tiger were over, Pearman spent two years at Clemson as a graduate assistant coach in 1988-89, and helped the Tigers to a 20-4 record over those two seasons.

Currently, Pearman is in his eighth season at Virginia Tech as tight ends and offensive tackles coach. He helped the Hokies to the ACC Championship in 2004 in their first year in the conference. Before coaching in Blacksburg, VA, Pearman spent eight years at Alabama, coaching on both the offensive and defensive sides of the ball. The Crimson Tide won the National Championship in 1992 while Pearman was a graduate assistant with the team.

Overall, Pearman has coached in two National Championship games, and has been a member of the coaching staff on four conference championship teams in the ACC, SEC, and Big East.

Reflecting on his time at Clemson, Pearman said it is the people at his alma mater that he will never forget. “I really enjoyed my time at Clemson, and I always think about the people at Clemson and how everyone seemed to have a common thread,” said Pearman. “Whether it was people on the football team or other students, everyone seemed to get along, and that is what made Clemson a very special place to me.”

Pearman has made many friends in the coaching circles, but says his former teammates remain close friends. “I still talk to John Phillips, Hank Phillips, Steve Gerald, Rodney Williams, Chris Lancaster, and Jeff Bak as often as possible,” said Pearman.

He is married to the former Kristy Sewell of Birmingham, AL, and the couple has a daughter Taylor Brooke (8), a son Tanner Ryan (5), and a son Trent Joseph (1).

Nelson Welch
1991-94
Three times in his career, Nelson Welch kicked five field goals in a game. The first time Welch hit the five field-goal mark (against N.C. State in 1991), he set a Clemson record for field goals in a game. His record stood for nearly 14 seasons until current Tiger placekicker Jad Dean booted six field goals in Clemson’s 25-24 win over #17 Texas A&M to open the 2005 season.

“I am very proud of Jad, he has done very well, but I’ll have to tell him not to break all of my records,” laughed Welch, who still holds it or is tied for seven season and career field-goal records at Clemson.

Welch currently lives in Spartanburg, SC and works for Adidas Team Sales, selling Adidas products to local high schools and colleges. He has been with the company since 1997 after coaching for one year at Hillcrest High School. Married during his final year at Clemson, Welch and his wife Kristen have two children, Davis (4), and Chas (11 months).

Reflecting on his days as a Tiger, there are some big kicks that Welch will never forget. “It seemed as though I had my worst games against Virginia, but I had some big kicks against them, too,” said Welch. “In 1991, I missed two kicks early, but I hit a 40-yarder to tie the game late, and that tie enabled us to go on and win the ACC Championship.

“The next year at Virginia, Louis Solomon had a career game and led the greatest comeback in school history. I missed a field goal early and missed an extra point, but Louis got us into field-goal range with under a minute left, and I made a kick that helped us win 29-28 after being down 29-0.”

Another kick that often gets lost in the mix is one that Welch says is one of his biggest memories. In the 1993 Peach Bowl, Clemson scored a touchdown with under 30 seconds to play to tie Kentucky 13-13, and all that stood between the Tigers and a victory was an extra point.

“You laugh because you think all you have to do is make a little 20-yard kick, but it was pressure packed and it was a big one, because it gave us the lead and it was our first bowl win in three years.”

Welch stays in contact with his former roommate, offensive lineman Mike Kunz, as well as Dextor Davis, Derrick Witherspoon, Stephon Wynne, Tim Jones, Wardell Rouse, and Ed Glenn.

Linebacker James Earle was a part of Clemson’s stifling defenses from 1984-87.

Dan Pearman, a tight end from 1985-87, is currently an assistant coach at Virginia Tech.

Nelson Welch made a Tiger record 72 field goals between the 1991 and 1994 seasons.

By Tim Bourret

The 2004-05 Clemson men’s basketball team made great strides in Oliver Purnell’s second year as head coach. The Tigers advanced to postseason play for the first time in the 21st century, and made a six-win improvement over the previous season, the greatest one-season victory improvement by a Tiger team since 1986-87. The 16 victories included three wins over 2002 National Champion Maryland, the first time Clemson has ever won three games over the Terps in a single season. Other highlights included a victory over Big Ten power Ohio State in the ACC-Big Ten Challenge, a thrilling overtime triumph against rival South Carolina, and a buzzer-beater victory over Virginia Tech on Sharrad Ford’s and Olu Babalola’s Senior Night game. Clemson was the talk of the ACC Tournament when it upset Maryland, then took eventual National Champion North Carolina to the final minute before suffering a seven-point loss.

These accomplishments were made with a team that featured four first-year freshmen who brought energy and excitement to Littlejohn Coliseum. As a result, interest and optimism in the program is its highest since Clemson’s last NCAA Tournament season in 1998.

“I was pleased with the direction our team took last year,” said Purnell, who brought Radford and Old Dominion to 20-win seasons in his third year at each school.

“The team showed maturity despite its youth last year. I was pleasantly surprised with the way our team handled first-time situations, whether it be the first game, the first ACC game, the first game on national television (win over Ohio State in the ACC-Big Ten Challenge), and of course winning on the road at South Carolina, and the ACC Tournament.

“They handled everything very well, and that bodes well for the future. Experience is very important. Those successful experiences are going to help us quite a bit in the coming years. We played as well as anyone in the league in February and March. We would have liked to win more games and advance further in the ACC Tournament and the NIT, but that gives us something to shoot for.”

What the Tigers will be shooting for is the NCAA Tournament. Many coaches avoid talking about the NCAA Tournament when it comes to a preseason outlook, but Purnell feels it will be a motivating factor for his team that returns four starters and nine lettermen.

“The NCAA Tournament is definitely on our mind. Naturally, winning more games in the ACC is something we strive to do as well, and we will have to do that to reach the tournament. We have had a couple of solid recruiting classes, and now we need to follow that up with positive experiences, giving us something to build on. We did that last year, and we feel we can make improvement this year.”

A look to the ACC reveals another daunting task, as the league will be among the best, if not the best, in the country. Boston College, a top-20 team last year that started 20-0, will only make the league stronger. But, many ACC teams lost outstanding players to graduation and early entry into the draft.

“We are looking to come up in the league and have some of the other teams come back to us. We have a legitimate chance to move up.”

“We go into this season fearing no one. We are going to go into every game believing we can win. It is still probably going to be the toughest league in the nation, especially when you now add Boston College, who will be near the top in the preseason standings, probably trailing only Duke.”

For Clemson to show continued improvement, it will have to do so without Ford, a 2004-05 senior All-ACC center. Ford was Clemson’s leading scorer (14.9), leading rebounder (8.2), and top shot blocker. He was also a team leader who was outstanding in directing a squad that played four first-year freshmen a combined 80 minutes a game. Babalola was Clemson’s fourth-leading scorer with a 6.8 average, and his aggressive style also will be missed.

“We will miss Sharrod’s presence on the inside offensively and especially defensively. His ability to block shots and make up for some defensive errors on the perimeter was huge last year. As we build this program, we owe a lot to Sharrod and Olu.”

Someone will have to carry on in the pivot for Ford, who left Clemson ranked in the top 10 in school history in career rebounding and blocked shots. Purnell will not ask any specific frontcourt player to come in and average 15 points and eight rebounds per game. Ford will be replaced by committee.

“We will go into the season with a mindset that we will have to play the position by committee. We will not ask for an All-ACC performance out of Akin Akingbala, Steve Allen, or James Mays. If we can play that position by committee and get improved seasons at the other positions, we have a chance to be better.”

Julius Powell and Raymond Sykes are two more frontcourt freshmen who will help in the rebounding area and inside scoring.

“Akin will begin the pre-season as our starter. He has the talent and has had some success here, especially in spurts. We are looking for him to carry a more significant load than he has had in the past. He can stay with any center in the ACC for a short period. We have to increase his stamina.

“We will miss Sharrod’s leadership. We will look to Akin and Shawan Robinson in that area, obviously, as they are four-year players, but we have leaders among our young players. Cliff Hammond had a tremendous freshman year. When he speaks, the others listen.”

Hammonds is one of the Tiger sophomores who have Clemson fans excited about the coming season. He was named to the ACC All-Rookie team in 2004-05 when he was a four-time ACC Rookie-of-the-Week selection, a record for a Tiger.

He will be joined in the backcourt by Robinson, a deadly outside shooter who ranks in the top 10 in Tiger history in three-point goals and three-point percentage, and Venick Milton. Clemson’s career leader in steals per game. Also look for Troy Mathis, a red-shirt freshman, to have an impact.

Sam Perry gave the Tigers spark at a wing position last year, and freshman K.C. Rivers comes to Clemson after winning national championships at the prep level. He once made a school-record 15 three-point goals in a single game.

As far as strength and weaknesses are concerned, Clemson should be more perimeter oriented. In fact, this is the best collection of young backcourt and wing talent at Clemson since the mid-1990s.

“Our strength has to be on the perimeter,” said Purnell, an outstanding guard in his own right when he led Old Dominion to the Division II National title 30 years ago. “Last year, our strength was on the inside with Sharrad Ford, and we revolved our attack around him. This year, we have to look more to the perimeter where we have some depth. That may allow us to get out and pressure even more. If you are attacking both ends of the floor on the perimeter, it can help your inside, because it will take the pressure off the post.”

New Head Coach Cristy McKinney is excited about her first season at the helm of the Lady Tiger basketball program. With 12 returning letterwinners, she takes over an experienced team with no shortages of depth, size, or talent.

McKinney comes to Clemson after 12 years leading the Rice Owls. She left as the program's winningest coach and guided the team to an NCAA berth a year ago, her second in five seasons. Her Owls captured a share of the Western Athletic Conference regular-season title and the WAC Tournament crown last season.

The 2005 WAC Coach-of-the-Year prefers to play an athletic, up-tempo style of basketball, and believes this year's team can handle and succeed in her system, both offensively and defensively.

"We are athletic and we are deep, so we should be able to push the basketball," she said.

McKinney hopes to score a lot of points in transition, but the team's makeup allows it to have various offensive sets in the half-court game as well. Also expect half-court sets to try and take advantage of individual strengths on the team. The Lady Tigers must utilize Amanda Frist's ability to score in the low block, one-on-one. Khali Sanders' and Maxienne White's versatility as power forwards must also be exploited. They can be effective in the paint, and also on the perimeter.

The offense also needs to take advantage of perimeter strengths. It needs to provide lanes for slashers, such as D'Leshia Lloyd and Tasha Taylor, and spot-up opportunities for shooters Carrie Whitehurst and Susan Yenser. Julie Talley and Tasha Philips have the ability to shoot or attack the ball as well.

On the other side of the ball, expect the Lady Tigers to play plenty of man-to-man defense. "Defensively, I love to get after people," McKinney explained. "We have the quickness, the athleticism, and the depth to pressure the ball. We'll mix in a little zone and have our man-to-man when we need to, but we will hopefully be a solid man-to-man team."

Along with Frist, Sanders, and White, Lauren Allen, Adrianne Bradshaw, and Moreeimi Davis return to give the Lady Tigers depth and size at the post positions. Frist,a 6'4" native of Fountain Inn, SC, is a three-year starter who looks to close out her career with a stellar senior season after averaging 7.7 points and 6.2 rebounds per game last year.

"Amanda had a really, really good freshman year here, and has been solid the last two years," commented McKinney. "We would like to see her have a great senior year."

Sanders and Allen are also entering their final year of Lady Tiger basketball, and McKinney has high expectations for them both.

"Lauren is a good athlete and is a very versatile player, as she can play the #4 or the #5 position for us," she said. "Khali Sanders is one of the most talented players I’ve seen. She will probably play the power-forward position, but she could also play center for us."

McKinney touted Sanders’ ability to take the ball inside and post up her defender. With more playing time expected this season, Sanders hopes to improve her statistics and record more performances similar to the January 17, 2005 contest against Wake Forest. Sanders scored 17 points on 7-10 shooting that night.

Bradministr, a Greensboro, NC native, and Davis will also see action at the post in their second year in the program. McKinney compliments Bradshaw's improvement as the 2004-05 season progressed and plans to use her talent more this season.

"Moreemi posts well and uses her body well," described McKinney of the 6’3” Davis.

Rounding out the inside is White, a red-shirt sophomore. She started eight games for the Lady Tigers last year, averaging 4.3 points and 3.4 rebounds per game. The left-hander is another athletic option for McKinney at the #4 position.

McKinney will also have an abundance of players to use at her discretion on the perimeter. However, Taylor, a sophomore, is the only true point guard on the team healthy enough to begin the season. She handled the point responsibilities late last season, and tallied 83 assists and 24 steals in the process. She will quarterback this year’s offense.

Behind her, Talley, a senior, will see minutes at the point as well as at the two-guard position. The 5’6” Talley has started 42 games over the last three years and is a threat to score on the outside. Her 94 career three-pointers already rank among the best in school history, and she boasts a career 36.3-percent three-point shooting mark.

Freshman Christy Brown is another true point guard for Clemson who could back up Taylor in the second half of the season. The 5’6” native of Atlanta, GA had surgery on a torn ACL over the summer, and the coaches are unsure if she will be ready to play this season. McKinney also lost guard Reggie Maddox, the team’s leading scorer from a year ago, due to academic reasons.

In McKinney’s system, the #2 and #3 positions have similar qualities, and five players will vie for playing time in the two spots. Talley is a more natural #2 guard and will see most of her time there.

Phillips, another senior, is entering her second year in the Clemson program after transferring from Gulf Coast (FL) Community College. McKinney will rely on her scoring abilities from behind the three-point line to aid the Lady Tigers this season.

"Tasha can shoot the basketball. Hopefully, she can really help us improve our percentages."

Lloyd is a talented sophomore who figures to see minutes at the #3 position with her size, standing at six-foot tall. She averaged 8.6 points and 3.9 rebounds for Clemson in her freshman campaign.

Whitehurst, the only junior on the team, has the ability to play both the #2 and #3 positions for the Lady Tigers. Her six-foot frame will often give her a height advantage over her defender. The sister of Clemson quarterback Charlie Whitehurst is the team’s best pure shooter. Yenser, a rookie from Marietta, GA, will also likely earn playing time this season on the perimeter. "She understands and has a good feel for the game," McKinney said. "She had a good summer playing pickup and is a really good shooter."

The Lady Tigers’ 2005-06 schedule will begin at the fourth-annual WBCA/BTI Classic in Tempe, AZ; Lady Tiger Classic at Clemson, SC; ACC regular-season game; Greensboro, NC; and Lady Tiger Classic at Clemson, SC.

By Jeff Rhodes

Memories are funny. Good times can be recalled minute detail. Tough times are generally summed up and then brushed off. Memories of the 1980 Clemson football season fall somewhere in between. Twenty-five years later, some things are fuzzy, while others are crystal clear.

For anybody who was there, Head Coach Danny Ford's second full campaign is usually remembered like this: "We had some close losses. But Willie Underwood intercepted the only two passes of his career against South Carolina (getting notably more excited), and both came when South Carolina ran exactly the same play. He returned one for 64 yards to set up one touchdown, and he scored from 37 yards out on the second one (now really getting worked up), and the Tigers beat the ever-loving noodle soup out of the Gamecocks 27-6 on a chilly and wet day, and we ended up having a decent season. I need to take a deep breath."

When Jess Neely left Clemson to go to Rice in 1939, he was quoted as saying that all the Tigers would ever need was a 25,000-seat stadium over by the Y-Barn (Forgotten Memory #1).

Rice made its first and only trip to Death Valley in 1980, and a crowd of more than 60,000 turned out to watch the season opener. Neely actually came to the game and was honored during pregame ceremonies for his contributions to Tiger athletics as head coach and athletic director between 1931-39.

Sophomore Homer Jordan made his first career start at quarterback and accounted for 210 yards of total offense, passing for 142 yards and rushing for 68 more, as the Tigers ground out a 19-3 win over the Owls.

For reasons that are completely unexplainable, some individuals have career days every time they play Clemson. Georgia's Scott Woerner was Clemson's nemesis in the early 1980s. Woerner scored on a 67-yard punt return and had a 97-yard interception return to lead the Bulldogs to a 20-16 win between the hedges in Game #2. Many say that game was the catalyst that propelled Georgia to the 1980 National Championship. We say, still with more than a little bitterness, "You're welcome."

That was one of the strangest games in Clemson history from a statistical standpoint, especially when one considers that Georgia won the national title. Clemson ran 56 plays to 10 for Georgia in the first half, yet trailed 14-10. Clemson won the total defense battle 351-157 and had 26 first downs to just 10 for Vince Dooley's team on the day. Clemson's defense held Buck Belue to just two completions for 31 yards, yet Georgia won the game.

Freshman fullback Edgar Pickett, who later had a solid career playing defense, and sophomore tailback Chuck McSwain each scored on one-yard plunges to carry Clemson to a 17-10 win over stubborn Western Carolina in Week #3. McSwain's score capped a 99-yard drive that took 5:38 (Forgotten Memory #2). This was the first time Clemson and Western Carolina had ever played.

Clemson used two field goals by senior placekicker Obed Ari, a three-yard touchdown run by sophomore tailback Brandon Crite, and a timely interception to hand Virginia Tech a 13-10 loss in Week #4. which actually was the fourth week of the season, as open dates were not nearly so common as they are now (Forgotten Memory #3).

Clemson had a gritty goal line stand late in the fourth quarter to preserve the win. Death Valley became Deaf Valley, as the crowd of 64,558 (then the largest home attendance in history) was so loud that the Virginia Tech tackle could not hear the quarterback's snap count and was flagged for a false start. After having second-and-goal from inside the one, the Hokies settled for a field goal.

 Legendary Head Coach Frank Howard once said Virginia was the "white meat" on the Clemson schedule. In 19 previous games against the Tigers, the Cavaliers had lost 19 times. Up 24-10 at the start of the fourth quarter, Virginia just knew this was going to be their year. It not.

A 26-yard touchdown by Crite narrowed the gap to 24-17. With less than four minutes remaining, junior defensive end and current Clemson University Trustee Bill Smith scooped up a blocked punt and scored from 11 yards. With six seconds left, Ari, who also played soccer for the Tigers, casually hit a 52-yard field goal for the 27-24 win. Now we all remember that play.

Virginia called a timeout in an attempt to freeze Ari. After the game, Ari, who had played for the Nigerian National Soccer team before coming to Clemson, was quoted as saying, "Pressure? That was not pressure. Pressure is playing for your home country in front of 100,000 crazy soccer fans."

With a 4-1 record in the middle of October, the Tigers were looking for rankings and thinking of bowls. Then Ben Bennett happened. The Duke freshman passed for 257 yards, threw for one touchdown, and caught another (and taunted us as he did it), as the Tigers lost an ugly 34-17 decision on a day when just about nothing went right.

Duke was an omen of things to come. In Week #7, Tiger miscues resulted in 21 N.C. State points, as Clemson lost 24-20 in the rain in Raleigh. Things brightened a little the next week, as Clemson jumped to a 35-7 load over Wake Forest, but then had to hold off a furious rally and escaped with 35-33 win.

Eventual ACC champion and #14 North Carolina held Clemson on a goal-line stand behind the play of ACC Player-of-the-Year Lawrence Taylor, and won 24-19 in Week #9. The 34-7 loss at Maryland the next week was the worst defeat in Ford's 11-year coaching tenure (Forgotten Memory #4).

Demoralized, with no bowl to play for - there were fewer bowls and even fewer conference titles then, and 500 teams generally did not have a postseason - and the #14 Gamecocks up next, things did not look promising. But Ford, to borrow a famous ad slogan, had a better idea.

The Tigers warmed up wearing their normal white pants, retreated to their locker room, and found, as Billy Joel would immortalize in his song, "It's Still Rock and Roll To Me" their bright orange pair of pants. When the team ran down the Hill sporting the new britches for the first time, there was an audible gasp from the crowd of 64,200.

In addition to the two interceptions, Underwood recorded 17 tackles and was named Sports Illustrated's National Defensive Player-of-the-Week. Ari ran two first half field goals to break three NCAA career and season records (Forgotten Memory #5). He finished the year with 23 field goals and became the first Tiger to lead the nation in a statistical category.

In all, the Tiger defense picked off three Gamecock passes, recovered a fumble, and did not allow a South Carolina player to cross the goal line.

That included Heisman Trophy winner George Rogers, who ended his four-year career without ever finding the endzone.

As Jeff Phillips, son of the "Voice of the Tigers" Jim Phillips said in passing after the final gun, "I barely survived the Gamecocks. I was something to be desired."

It sure was. Everybody remembers every detail, every score, and every pushup the Tiger did in 1981. We will have more on that season next year during its 25-year anniversary season.

Clemson unveiled its orange pants for the first time ever against South Carolina in 1980. Willie Underwood (#20) was named national defensive player-of-the-week by Sports Illustrated thanks to his pair of interceptions.

What is the legacy of the 1995 team that will be among three former Clemson squads honored today?

"Road Warriors" is the first characteristic that comes to mind. The 1995 Tigers had a perfect 5-0 record on opponents' home field, and that puts them in some strong company. Since Clemson began playing football in 1896, only three teams that have played at least five road games have had a perfect record in enemy territory. Those teams are Clemson's 1948 team that won the Southern Conference Championship, the 1981 National Championship team, and the 1995 squad.

Not only did the Tigers win those road contests, they dominated. All five wins were by at least double digits, the only team in Clemson history to claim five double-digit wins on the road in one season.

Clemson was one of eight conference teams with a perfect road record, as Tommy West's team joined Colorado, Florida, Nebraska, Northwestern, Oregon, Utah, and Virginia Tech with that distinction.

One could also make a claim that the 1995 Tigers ranked among the most overachieving teams Clemson has had in many years. Clemson was coming off a 5-6 season in 1994, and entered the season with a lineup that started eight sophomores and a first-year freshman. The offense had struggled in 1994, and with six sophomores slated to start on offense, West figured he was going to have to win games on defense.

But that was not the case, as this squad finished the season with over 300 points and over 400 yards per game of total offense, just the third team in school history (at the time) to reach those parameters. The Tiger offensive line, led by then-sophomores Jim Bundren and Glenn Rountree, provided holes for Raymond Priester and Emory Smith that allowed the offense to average nearly 260 yards per game on the ground, fourth best in the nation.

Many of the young offensive players had breakout seasons. Priester finished the year with 1,322 yards rushing and ranked 18th in the nation in terms of per-game average. Nealon Greene finished 22nd in passing efficiency, and Smith scored 15 touchdowns to rank 18th in the nation in that important category.

The defense featured experience and youth. The secondary, and the entire team for that matter, was led by Brian Dawkins, who ranked eighth in the nation in interceptions. He was a Second-Team AP All-American that year, but did we realize how good he would become? He is a four-time Pro Bowl safety with the Philadelphia Eagles and is considered to be the best safety in the NFL according to many.

In addition to Dawkins, Clemson's secondary that year included Dexter McCleon and Leomont Evans. McCleon is still starting in the NFL with the Kansas City Chiefs, and Evans played three years with the Washington Redskins. That is the only Clemson starting secondary to have three players go on to the NFL in the last 23 years.

The youth and thus enthusiasm of the Tiger defense was led by Anthony Simmons, who had the finest season in school history for a first-year freshman. Simmons was from nearby Spartanburg, SC, and he was ranked among the top players in the nation before coming to Tigertown out of high school.

For once, a recruit lived up to his billing, as he led the Tigers in tackles (150), including 11 for loss. He became a starter on the second day of practice and never went to second team for the next three years.

After the season, Simmons was named the UPI National Freshman-of-the-Year, a rare honor for a defensive player. He was a freshman All-American and a Third-Team AP All-American, and was also named the ACC Rookie-of-the-Year. He became the first first-year freshman in ACC history to earn All-America honors as a defensive player.

The special teams of 1995 might be the best in Tiger history. Clemson was the only school in the nation to have a player rank in the top 25 in the nation in punting, field goals, punt returns, and kickoff returns. Antwuan Wyatt was 15th in punt returns and 12th in kickoff returns, and remains the only Tiger in the last 40 years to average over 12 yards a punt return and 25 yards a kickoff return in the same season. Chris McHally was 23rd in punting with a 41.8 yard average, and Jeff Sauer, who was also captain of Clemson's 1995 NCAA College World Series baseball team, was 10th in the country in field goals.

A quick look at the scores in 1995 shows that this team was much like Clemson teams of recent years. The Tigers started with a 3-3 record after six games, including three losses at home. The most difficult to take was a 19-17 loss to Georgia.

"That was an old-fashioned football game," recalled West. "Both teams wanted to run the ball and show who was superior up front. We had an open date the week after that game, and thank goodness we did. Everyone was beat up for that game.

But, after that October 7 loss to the Bulldogs, Clemson did lose another regular-season game. Clemson swept through Maryland (17-0), Georgia Tech (24-3), North Carolina (17-10), Duke (34-17), and South Carolina (38-17). Clemson was outstanding on both sides of the ball, as the 130-47 aggregate score shows. The run at the end moved Clemson into the #10 position in scoring defense for the season, Clemson's highest ranking in scoring defense in the last 20 years.

The Duke game included two of the more incredible individual performances in Tiger history, including one on defense and another on offense. Dawkins, playing in his final home game, set a school record by intercepting three passes in the first quarter. The game was played in a driving rainstorm in the first half, and he was able to circle those passes into his arms. He was named national player-of-the-week by Sports Illustrated for that performance.

Clemson could have had the offensive national player-of-the-week had the magazine divided the honor. Priester, then a sophomore, ran for 263 yards on 32 carries to establish the single-game rushing record, a mark that still stands today. Many of his yards came after halftime when a brilliant sunshine appeared. It was a resumé game for Priester, who would go on to become Clemson's career rushing leader with nearly 4,000 yards.

The regular season concluded with a 38-17 victory at South Carolina. Clemson outscored the Gamecocks 21-0 in the fourth quarter to register their fourth straight win in Columbia. How many of you remember Smith's run in the fourth quarter when he dragged a South Carolina defender about 20 yards before he was finally tackled? That play in the fourth quarter symbolized Clemson's strong finish that year.

Brian Dawkins (#20) and the rest of the Tiger defense were crucial in Clemson's 38-17 victory at South Carolina and five-game winning streak to end the regular season in 1995.
By Brent Breeding

Fifty years ago (1955) was a silver anniversary of sorts for Clemson’s Frank Howard - his 25th football season in Tiger town. For the first nine (1931-39), he was Jess Neely’s line coach, and he spent the next 15 as the head man.

He had his ups and downs, and was coming off a disappointing three-year stretch following the glory days of 1948-51’s two undefeated seasons, three top-20 AP finishes, and three bowl games in the days when there were only a half-dozen such postseason events.

For the seniors on the 1955 team, captained by Don King of Anderson, SC, their failure in three tries to finish above .500 or to defeat arch-rival South Carolina bordered on the unbearable.

While King was the only entering freshman to letter in 1952, his senior classmates, fullback Billy O’Dell of Newman, GA, halfback Joe Paglié of Clariat, PA, tackle B.C. Inabinet of Columbia, SC, end Walt Laraway of Pennsylvania, and center Wingo Avery of Newman, GA, were determined to go out winners.

In fairness to the 1952-54 Clemson teams, their schedules were probably the toughest in school history up to that time. In each season, three opponents finished among the nation’s top 20 as selected by the Associated Press, including the 1953 National Champion Maryland Terrapins. These nine losses, coupled with the five-, six-, and seven-point defeats at the hands of the South Carolina Gamecocks on “Big Thursday” pretty much assured the “hot seat” facing Tiger coaches and the ultimate challenge confronting the senior Tigers.

Coach Howard’s partial response to his dilemma was the hiring of a veteran T-formation coach, Carl Wise of Washington & Lee. Carl had helped coach Bainbridge Navy to a pair of undefeated seasons during World War II before joining Art (Pappy) Lewis at Washington & Lee in 1946.

In addition, the veteran Russ Cohen retired following seven seasons as defensive backfield coach, so freshman Coach Banks McFadden returned to that position, and longtime offensive backfield coach “Goat” McMillan took over McFadden’s freshman responsibilities.

Quarterbacks King and Charlie Bussey resumed leadership roles, and to a large degree, the promising K-unit (King Unit) and B-unit (Bussey Unit) approach of 1954 remained in place. Joining the above-noted six seniors on the K-unit were junior lettermen Joel Wells at halfback, Willie Smith at end, Dick Maranza at tackle, and Earle Greene at guard, along with sophomore John Gordian at guard.

All went according to plan in the opening three games. Presbyterian fell 33-0, with King passing to Laraway for one score and handing off to halfbacks O’Dell and Paglié for two more. Bussey led his unit with a scoring pass to Joe Bowen and a handoff to halfback Lem McLendon, who ran for a final touchdown.

Playing Virginia for the first time in school history, Wells and O’Dell rushed for touchdowns for the K-unit, and Neuf Ankuta added one for the B-unit to upset the home-favorite Cavaliers and their preseason “national sophomore-of-the-year” Jim Bakhhtian. O’Dell outgained the future All-ACC fullback 88 yards to 21.

In the second game of the season, before an overflow home crowd of 22,000, the Tiger seniors had a field day in defeating Georgia for the first time since 1914 by a score of 26-7. O’Dell rushed for 71 yards and two touchdowns, King passed to Paglié for a third, and Laraway returned a Georgia pass interception eight yards for the final score. For the first time since 1951, Clemson was again in the AP top 20 at #16.

The national ranking lasted one week. In Houston’s Rice Stadium in mid-October, Coach Neely’s Owls upset the Tigers 21-7 before 37,500 enthusiastic fans. Bussey played most of the game at quarterback and scored Clemson’s only points. Wells netted 54 yards on 14 carries - over half his team’s total. And Rice took advantage of five Tiger turnovers, giving up but one in return.

Though despondent in losing their first game of the year, Clemson’s motivated seniors took things out on the Gamecocks 28-14 on “Big Thursday.” Bussey quarterbacked the K-unit to a 14-0 halftime lead, passing 55 yards to Smith for a first-quarter score and handing off to Paglié for a three-yard touchdown, set up by Wells’ 46-yard run.

The two teams exchanged touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters. South Carolina fumbled Maranza’s second-half kickoff, with Smith recovering on the Gamecock 42. Paglié gained 28 yards on two plays, and Wells followed with 14 yards on the next two, scoring from the four. In their second possession of the half, the Gamecocks tallied behind a 14-yard dash by halfback Carroll McClain; then midway into the final quarter, cut the Tiger lead to 21-14 on a four-yard touchdown run by Buddy Fick. But, South Carolina failed on an onside kick, and Jim Coleman later raced 22 yards to set up a final score by King and a 28-14 Clemson victory.

Wons at home against Wake Forest (19-13) and against Virginia Tech (21-16) at Roanoke, VA set the stage for the game of the year against undefeated #2 Maryland at Clemson. Clemson was 6-1 and Maryland was 7-0 entering the contest.

Coach Jim Tatum’s powerful Maryland team, like South Carolina, had three successive wins over the Tiger seniors. Before a record-breaking Memorial Stadium crowd of almost 30,000 fans, Howard’s K-unit dominated the first 26 minutes of the first half, scoring two touchdowns for a 12-0 lead.

A pass interception stopped a third possible Clemson scoring drive at the Maryland 20, and fresh Terrapin troops wore down the tiring Tigers for a late touchdown to cut the lead to 12-6 at halftime. An early second-half score and conversion gave Maryland the lead 13-12. And in the final quarter, the Terrapins added two touchdowns while holding Clemson scoreless for a 25-12 verdict.

To this writer, Coach Howard and team captain King each assumed responsibility for the loss: Howard for not substituting more against the four Maryland platoons, and King for not sustaining the late first-half drive that might have given the Tigers a 19-0 halftime lead. Wells rushed for 102 yards and a touchdown, and King passed to reserve end Dalton Rivers for a score.

While still licking their wounds a week later, Clemson visited Mobile, AL to face #12 Auburn (#8 at season’s end). The team was visibly flat, though O’Dell battled for 74 yards on 15 carries - over half of the Tigers’ 137 rushing total - in losing 21-0.

The finale against Furman in Greenville, SC on November 26 brought a 40-20 victory, a season mark of 7-3 (with losses to two of the nation’s top-10 teams), and high hopes for next season. Wells rushed for an ACC-game-record 175 yards and two touchdowns, while reserve junior fullback Bob Spooner gained 38 yards on three carries and also scored.

For the season, Wells, seventh in the nation in rushing (782 yards on 135 carries), was First-Team All-ACC. Paglié’s 39.1-yard punting average was 15th best in the nation, and Maranza’s blocking skills earned him the Jacobs Blocking Trophy.
