The Road From Death Valley To Paradise Is Just 17 Miles Long.

The first ever community where you’ll find both a Jack Nicklaus Signature Golf Course (opened in 2002) and an Arnold Palmer Premier Golf Complex (construction set to begin in 2007).

The first ever community where you’ll find both a Jack Nicklaus Signature Golf Course (opened in 2002) and an Arnold Palmer Premier Golf Complex (construction set to begin in 2007).

Your odometer tells you its only 17 miles from Death Valley to your home at The Reserve. But your heart and soul tell you this perfect lakeside retreat is a million miles away. That’s because, at The Reserve, we’ve created an extraordinary community with a spectacular array of on-site amenities for the entire family.

And while the pleasures of living — and playing — on the lake are endless, the opportunity is limited. Call us after the game to reserve your place in this one-of-a-kind year round retreat. And experience the charms of mountain lake living today.

Getting Here: Head north from Clemson on SC Hwy. 133 for approximately 17 miles. The entrance to The Reserve at Lake Keowee will be on your left.

Three senior leaders of Clemson’s “Death Valley Defense.” Anthony Waters (LB) was injured in the first game and was lost for the season, while Tramaine Billie (LB) was injured in pre-season and was also out for the year. Gaines Adams (DE) is one of the top "sack artists" in Clemson history.
104th Meeting Between Tigers & Gamecocks

This will be the 104th meeting between Clemson and South Carolina on the gridiron. The series dates to 1896, the first year of football at Clemson and the fourth season for South Carolina. Clemson holds the advantage 63-35-4 since that first meeting in Columbia. Clemson has more wins over South Carolina than any other school, and those victories represent over 10 percent of Clemson’s all-time victory total (616). The last time the two teams met at Clemson (2004), the Tigers won 29-7. It was the 600th victory in Clemson history.

Clemson has won four in a row, eight of nine, and 14 of the last 18 in the series. Since 1988, Clemson is 8-1 in games played in Columbia and 6-3 in games played in Tiger town.

This year’s senior class will attempt to join the seniors of 2005 as a class with a perfect 4-0 record against South Carolina. Other Clemson classes who have beaten South Carolina four consecutive years were the seniors of 1900, 1919, 1930, 1937, 1938, 1939, 1940, 1983, 1991, and 2000.

Clemson will be going for its fifth consecutive win over South Carolina. The Tigers have not had much success in this situation. Clemson has a 1-6 record in the series when it is going for its fifth consecutive win in the series. The only victory took place in 1938 when Clemson won 34-12 to record its fifth straight win. Clemson suffered losses in 1902, 1920, 1931, 1984, 1992, and 2001 when going for its fifth straight. Clemson’s longest winning streak in the series was a seven-game streak between 1934-40.

Clemson has two weeks to prepare for South Carolina. Clemson has a 7-1 record against the Gamecocks when it has two full weeks to prepare, including a 16-14 win in 2000, the last time that was the situation. The only year South Carolina has beaten Clemson when the Tigers have had two weeks to prepare was 1896, the first meeting.

This weekend’s game will be played on the Saturday after Thanksgiving for the first time since 1984. South Carolina won that game at Clemson 22-21. The 1978 game was also played the Saturday after Thanksgiving, a 41-23 Tiger win. Clemson has a 7-2 record against South Carolina when the game is played the Saturday after Thanksgiving or on Thanksgiving Day. The only game played on Thanksgiving Day was the 1963 contest that was moved from the Saturday before Thanksgiving to Thanksgiving Day due to the death of President John F. Kennedy.

Clemson won the 100th meeting at Clemson by a 27-20 score in 2002. Then the Tigers won 63-17 in Columbia in 2003. The point total was Clemson’s highest ever against the Gamecocks, and it was the largest victory margin in the series for Clemson since a 51-0 victory in 1900.

The Gamecocks last won in 2001 in Columbia by a 20-15 score. That South Carolina victory ended a four-game winning streak for the Tigers. South Carolina has not beaten Clemson in consecutive years since the 1968-70 era.

Tommy Bowden is 6-1 against South Carolina in his previous seven games in this rivalry. All six of the wins have come against Lou Holtz and Steve Spurrier, coaches who have won the national title and will be in the College Football Hall of Fame one day. The 6-1 start is the best among Clemson coaches who have coached the Tigers for at least five years. Josh Cody (1927-30) had a perfect 4-0 record against South Carolina, the only Clemson coach with a perfect record in the rivalry game.

Bowden has a better record against South Carolina than all three of Clemson’s three former coaches in the College Football Hall of Fame and Danny Ford, who won a national title at Clemson. John Heisman was 1-1 against the Gamecocks, Jess Neely was 6-3, and Frank Howard was 13-15-2. Ford was 7-3-1 from 1979-89. Obviously, a win for the Tigers would give Bowden the same amount of wins over South Carolina as Ford had.

The Clemson-South Carolina series is a tie for 13th in college football history in terms of most-played rivalries. The most-played rivalry is the Minnesota-Wisconsin series, which had been played 115 times entering this year. This will be the 98th straight year that Clemson and South Carolina have met on the gridiron, or every year since 1909. It has moved into third place all-time for the longest uninterrupted series in college football history. The only active rivalries that are longer are the Kansas-Nebraska series (active since 1968) and the Minnesota-Wisconsin series (active since 1907).

The Clemson-South Carolina rivalry is the third-longest uninterrupted series in college football history, as the two Palmetto State teams have met every year since 1909. Today’s meeting is the first between the Tigers and Gamecocks after Thanksgiving since 1984.
the Tigers enter the game with at least the same record as South Carolina. Clemson has a 63-36-4 advantage in the series overall, so the Gamecocks have a 20-17-1 record in the series when they enter the game with the better record.

South Carolina Update

South Carolina enters today’s game with a 6-5 record. The Gamecocks are bowl eligible for the second consecutive season under Head Coach Steve Spurrier. The Gamecocks have been within a touchdown of every SEC team they have played with the exception of an 18-0 loss to Georgia. The Gamecocks lost by a touchdown or less against Auburn, Tennessee, Arkansas, and Florida.

Two quarterbacks have contributed to the success of the Gamecock offense this year. Syvelle Newton is 27th in the nation in passing efficiency and has averaged 150 yards per game in total offense as a dual-threat quarterback. He might be the most versatile player in college football this year, helping the Gamecocks to victories as a wide receiver, quarterback, and safety. He had eight tackles as a safety at Florida the first time he played the position. Blake Mitchell was the quarterback early in the year and now late in the year. He has completed 68 percent of his passes.

Sidney Rice is the top receiver with an average of 5.1 receptions per game. He is regarded as one of the top wideouts in the nation, and he is in the top 35 in both receptions and reception yards per game. He had seven catches for 122 yards against the Tigers last year, but Clemson was successful in keeping him out of the endzone. Cory Boyd and Mike Davis are a solid one-two punch at running back for the Gamecocks, who average 134 yards per game on the ground this year.

Clemson has some outstanding defensive players, including defensive back Fred Bennett, who could be a first-round draft pick in the NFL. Jasper Brinkley leads the team in tackles with 7.8 per game, and he also leads the team in tackles for loss. South Carolina and Clemson are both in the top 25 in the nation in scoring defense, so points may be at a premium.

Both teams have had kickers who struggled in the state of Florida, but other than the appearances in the Sunshine State, Clemson’s Jad Dean and South Carolina’s Ryan Succop have been outstanding. Both are in the top 26 in the nation in field goals per game. Dean has made 12 of his last 13 field goals, while Succop has been outstanding as a punter and a placekicker.

Steve Spurrier Returns to Death Valley

Steve Spurrier will make his first appearance in Death Valley as the head coach of the Gamecocks, but he has been to Clemson previously as the head coach at Duke. Spurrier was 1-2 against Clemson as the Duke head coach, with both losses coming in Memorial Stadium.

The Tigers won the 1987 game by a score of 17-10 in Spurrier’s first year as Duke head coach. That was a close call for a Tiger team that was ranked #7 in the nation with a 5-0 record entering the game. That Clemson team ended the season with a 10-2 record and ranked #10 in the final UPI poll. The following year, Clemson won 49-17 over Duke. That was actually a battle of top-25 teams at Clemson.

C.J. Spiller is coming off a season-high 154 yards rushing against N.C. State. This season, he has 759 rushing yards and a freshman school-record 10 total touchdowns.

The Tigers were #11 and Duke was #22 entering that game. Clemson ended the year 10-2, while Duke was 7-3-1.

The following year, Duke defeated Clemson 21-17. Clemson entered the game ranked #7 in the nation. Duke was just 1-3, but it would run the ball to the end of the regular season and tie Virginia for the ACC title. Clemson would end the year 10-2, and it actually was the highest-ranked ACC team in the final poll with a #12 AP ranking. That was Danny Ford’s final year as Clemson head coach.

Tiger Offense Over 2,000 Yards in Both Areas

Clemson went over the 2,000-yard passing mark in its win over N.C. State on November 11. The Tigers enter the South Carolina game with 2,047 passing yards, good for 186 yards per game.

Clemson already had over 2,000 yards rushing entering the contest. Thus, this is just the third team in school history to record over 2,000 yards rushing and 2,000 yards passing in the same year. Clemson now has 2,521 rushing yards entering the South Carolina game.

The only other Clemson teams to go over 2,000 yards in both categories in the same year are the 2000 and 2001 squads. All three Clemson teams that have had at least 2,000 yards of each have been coached by Tommy Bowden.

C.J. Spiller Breaking James Davis’ Records

James Davis established many freshman records in 2005 when he led the Tigers in rushing with 879 yards and nine touchdowns. He established Tiger freshman records for touchdowns, yards per carry, all-purpose yards, and 100-yard games.

A year later, those records have either been broken or tied by current freshman C.J. Spiller. Spiller is second in rushing on the Tigers’ top-five rushing offense with 759 yards and eight rushing touchdowns. Spiller has already beaten Davis’ record for touchdowns by a freshman with 10, has a freshman record 6.7 yards per rush, and a freshman record 1,171 all-purpose yards. His four 100-yard rushing games have tied Davis’ production as a freshman as well.

Spiller is coming off a season-best 154 yards rushing on 18 carries in the win over N.C. State. That included a 52-yard touchdown run, his fifth touchdown of at least 50 yards this season. That is already a school record for 50-yard touchdowns in a season and is just two short of the career record for 50-yard touchdowns.

Gaines Adams Needs Two Sacks to Tie Record

Gaines Adams had a career-high 10 tackles and a key pass deflection that led to an interception in the 20-14 win over N.C. State two weeks ago, the last time the Tigers took to the gridiron. Adams did see his sack streak end at eight consecutive games.

Adams has 26 career sacks entering his final home game and needs three sacks to break Michael Dean Perry’s school record of 28. William Perry, a three-time Clemson All-American and Michael Dean’s older brother, had 27. Michael Dean actually broke his brother’s record in a game against South Carolina in 1987.

Adams was named one of five finalists for the Bronko Nagurski Award last Thursday. That honor is presented to the nation’s top defensive player by the Football Writers of America. The other four finalists for that honor are Michigan’s Leon Hall (CB), Ohio State’s Jim Laurinaitis (LB), Florida’s Reggie Nelson (DB), and Mississippi’s Patrick Willis (LB).

Adams has 10.5 sacks so far this year, most in the ACC and ninth-most in the nation. The 10.5 sacks are tied for second-best in Clemson history for a single season behind the 16-sack season turned in by Keith Adams in 1999.

Gaines Adams is among the best players in college football from a pro-potential standpoint. He is rated as the fourth-best NFL prospect by ESPN’s Mel Kiper in his November 16 rankings.

When one thinks of the name Michael Jordan, the word “greatness” comes to mind. Jordan is a legend in all athletic circles, arguably the best basketball player in history.

However, Jordan was cut from his high school basketball team as a sophomore. It is remarkable that he went on to become the sport’s top player.

While Gaines Adams and Jordan play different sports, they share a common unlikely path to stardom. Adams was never cut from his high school team, but he is a product of an eight-man football team, a squad coached by one of Clemson’s most hated rivals on the gridiron, former South Carolina quarterback Steve Tannehill.

Adams is among the top defensive players in the nation in 2006. He has been named one of five finalists for the Bronko Nagurski Award, an accolade that will be presented on December 4 in Charlotte, NC. That honor is given to the top defensive player in the nation. Adams is also a sure bet to be chosen to many All-America teams this year.

During his career at Clemson, he has posted impressive stats. He has played in 46 games, including 24 as a starter. Adams has totaled 157 tackles, including 41.5 tackles for loss. He also has 26 sacks, 65 quarterback pressures, 19 pass break-ups, and five caused fumbles.

Prior to 2006, he was named to the Hendricks Award, Bednarik Award, and Bronko Nagurski Award watch lists. Lindy’s and Phil Steele rated him as the #2 defensive end in the nation as well.

Adams had the chance to turn pro after his junior year, but he opted to return in 2006. As a result last summer, ESPN analyst Mel Kiper rated him as the #2 overall prospect for the 2007 NFL draft.

The native of Greenwood, SC has come a long way to receive these honors. As stated above, his high school did not even field an 11-man football team, and he did not receive a single Division I scholarship offer after his career at Clemson Academy.

“I was devastated,” recalled Adams. “I stuck to playing football because I was good at it and thought I had a better chance to get a scholarship in football as oppose to basketball. So when I didn’t get any scholarship offers, I hurt. I didn’t know what I was going to do, but I knew I wasn’t going to give up. When the opportunity to go to Fork Union Military Academy presented itself, I took it.”

Adams has always been an elite athlete, but basketball was his favorite sport growing up. But, that changed when Cambridge Academy’s football coach (Tannehill), who led South Carolina to wins in Death Valley in 1992 and 1994, saw potential in the young Adams and encouraged him to play football.

Eight-man football came easy to the then 6’1” Adams. He played on both sides of the ball and tallied 341 tackles, 33 sacks, 10 interceptions, 158 catches for 4,394 yards, and scored 65 touchdowns during his career at Cambridge Academy.

Knowing he did not have a scholarship to play college football prompted him to transfer to Fork Union in Virginia, where he continued to improve his game. He played 10 games there as a defensive end in 2001, and he had 58 tackles, 22 sacks, and two interceptions. Clemson began to take notice of Adams while he was at Fork Union. Ron West, the Tigers’ current outside linebackers coach, is credited with bringing this outstanding bandit end to Tigertown.

“I recruited him at Fork Union and we offered him early,” remembered West. “When you’re out recruiting, you never know how a guy is going to play, but I knew there was something special about him. He was fast off the edges, and we knew he would be an asset to our defense.”

Upon graduation from Fork Union, Adams began to prepare for Clemson and the dream of playing college football. The transition from high school to college was not hard for him, particularly because he had attended prep school in Virginia. He was used to being away from home by that point.

Adams knew he had to gain more weight in order to be a powerful defensive end. Thus, the coaches and he decided it would be best if he redshirted his first year. During that time, Adams focused on the strength training room and gained the weight he needed.

During his red-shirt freshman season of 2003, Adams became the second-team defensive end. He played 12 games and recorded 15 tackles. Four of those tackles were for a loss, and signs of his dominance as a defensive end began to emerge. He also had seven quarterback pressures.

As the season progressed, so did his playing time. He played 172 snaps over the course of the season, and 161 of those were in the last eight games. He might have had his best game of his freshman year against #3 Florida State when he had four tackles, two tackles for loss, and a sack in limited duty. It was the first of three wins for Adams against the Seminoles, the first ACC senior class to defeat Florida State three times.

Adams has never been a person to settle for anything less than the best. Having 15 tackles his first year only made him want to get better, and that is exactly what he did. In 2004 as a sophomore, he had 35 tackles, more than double his total from 2003.
Gaines Adams
Senior Spotlight

He had eight tackles for a loss, with five of those being sacks. Those five sacks placed him tied for second on the team. Adams had at least one tackle in every game and at least one tackle for loss in seven games. Having played basketball for a good portion of his life, his leaping skills were a particular asset during the Utah State and South Carolina games, where he had a blocked punt in each game. His all-around athletic ability and his improvement from the past season garnered him the 12th Man Award for the Clemson defense.

Working hard is a big part of who Adams is, and in 2005 it paid off with his explosive season. “During the summers, I buy into Coach (Joey) Batson’s (Clemson’s strength & conditioning coach) system. Coming off of my sophomore year, I knew that the coaches were depending on me to make a big impact, and I had a chance of starting and didn’t want to lose that opportunity.”

The changes in Adams showed during his red-shirt junior year when he became the starting defensive end. He finished with 56 tackles, which was the high figure among defensive linemen. He added 9.5 sacks, setting the school record for sacks by a junior, replacing Michael Dean Perry’s previous record of nine set in 1986.

His sack total tied for fourth in the ACC, but it was the high mark among underclassmen. He accumulated a team-high nine pass breakups and made a place in history as the first defensive lineman to lead the team in pass breakups since Mark Heniford in 1977. He was third in the ACC in caused fumbles (3) and sixth in tackles for loss (15) as well.

Adams finished 2005 strong. Against #16 Florida State, he had three quarterback pressures, 2.5 tackles for loss, and 1.5 sacks, earning him Clemson’s defensive player-of-the-game award. He was named ACC Defensive Lineman-of-The-Week after the Maryland game when he had eight tackles and 2.5 sacks. In the Champs Sports Bowl, he had seven tackles, two of which were sacks, and a caused fumble to help lead the Tigers to victory. Adams has 10.5 sacks this season and 26 for his career, just two shy of the Tiger record.

With his breakout season, he received much publicity. The once-unknown kid from Cambridge Academy was making a splash in the college sports world. NFL scouts were impressed. Although he had the chance to turn pro, he chose to return for his senior year, a decision that delighted Tiger fans. “I felt like I was not ready for the NFL, and I am a person that finishes something once I start it,” he admitted. “I came to Clemson to get an education, and I’m going to do that. I graduate in December and will be the first one in my family to do so.”

Upon making the announcement to return, Adams was put on several awards watch lists, listed as one of the top prospects in the NFL draft. With that notoriety came interviews, and lots of them. Adams, an extremely shy person, did not worry so much about the watch lists or the NFL, but the media interviews took some getting used to.

“The hype hasn’t changed me,” said #93. “I still work hard and want to help this team succeed. The only thing that has changed is that I have to give more interviews now, which has been an adjustment, because I’m a shy person.”

During the summer before his senior season, Adams did not focus on the attention he was receiving, but instead centered on the goal of having a successful season. Over the course of this year, Adams has had many phenomenal games.

In the Florida State game, Adams began a series of eight straight games with at least one sack. He had 2.5 sacks in that 27-20 win over the #9 Seminoles. He had two tackles for loss, including a sack, in the win over #13 Georgia Tech, and added a career-high 10 tackles and a pass deflection that led to a fourth-quarter Nick Watkins interception in the win over N.C. State. Overall this year, he has 51 tackles, 14.5 tackles for loss, and 10.5 sacks. He has been in the top 10 in the nation in sacks all year.

His impressive numbers have put him among elite company in the Tiger recordbook. He has 26 career sacks, just two behind the school record of 28 held by Michael Dean Perry and one behind William Perry’s total of 27.

But, when asked about his most memorable moment in a game this season and his career for that matter, Adams smiled and simply responded, “The Wake Forest game” in 2006.

Many Tiger fans will never forget it. It was rainy and cold, and Clemson was trailing 17-3 entering the fourth quarter. Wake Forest was preparing to kick a field goal and widen its lead to 17 points when Adams caused a fumble on a botched field-goal attempt. He caught the ball out of midair with one hand and returned it 66 yards for a touchdown, which brought the Tigers within seven points. That moment changed the entire game, and the Tigers went on to win 27-17. It was Wake Forest’s only loss through its first 10 games of the season. Adams ended the game with his first career touchdown, two caused fumbles, a recovered fumble, three tackles for loss, and two sacks. The play was cited as the Pontiac Game-Changing Play-of-the-Day in college football by ESPN.

His highlight-reel plays and consistency on the field come as no surprise to his position coach. “I’ve coached him for three years as our bandit end,” said West. “He works hard and has gotten better each year. NFL scouts remark on how he has improved his game immensely from where he was two years ago. He plays the run a lot better and is much more physical. I account that to his dedication.”

That dedication is a reason for Adams’ consistency. This year, he had a streak of eight consecutive games with at least one sack, a Clemson single-season record by three games.

“Gaines has had a terrific season,” said Tommy Bowden. “He has been one of the most consistent players in the nation. His sack streak is a testimony to that. He is a player that coordinators have to account for on every play. He must give them a lot of sleepless nights when they are preparing for us.

“Our defense has been in the top 10 in total defense, scoring defense, and sacks all year, and he is a major reason for our success in those areas. We are certainly glad he came back for his senior year to finish his career on the field and earn his degree in the classroom. He should be playing football for a long time to come at the next level.”

Not only has Adams improved his game, but he has been an inspiration to others. Senior linebacker Anthony Waters reflected on the years he has known Adams.

“Gaines and I are like brothers,” he smiled. “We lived together for two years and both play defense, so we are always together. He motivates me and vice versa, and we push each other in the weightroom. He has made me play to the best of my potential. He will have a big impact in the NFL.”

Adams is truly a remarkable person. Growing up, he enjoyed basketball and wanted to be like his childhood idol (Jordan). Things have changed since then. In fact, his career demonstrates how hard it is to predict the future when it comes to athletics.

His story might be the most unpredictable. How many products of eight-man high school football go on to become first-team All-Americans and NFL first-round draft picks?

And even fewer are sent to this school thanks to the tutoring of a former Gamecock quarterback.

For Tramaine Billie, a senior parks, recreation, & tourism management major from Drexler High School in Columbia, SC, it has been a tough season on the sidelines. Billie broke his right ankle in an August 16 pre-season practice. After much consideration and advice from his coaches, family, and friends, Billie decided to red-shirt this season and come back strong next year. Watching the games from the sidelines has been more difficult than Billie ever imagined.

“It has been very hard,” admitted Billie. “This is the first time I’ve been injured to the point where I couldn’t practice or play. But I have had to stay strong and be a fighter for myself and for the team.”

When asked what he is doing to stay involved with the team, Billie said he encourages everyone to play hard and tries to tell them characteristics of the game they may not recognize. He talks with his teammates to help them read the opposing offense and learn other players’ positions so they will be in the right spot at the right time.

Born November 15, 1983, Billie has been an all-star athlete from the start. He grew up loving basketball and running track. While at Drexler High, Billie was twice named MVP of the Drexler track & field team. In 2002, his speed earned him the 100m state title. Football did not become a significant part of his life until high school.

“It wasn’t until high school that I realized I could run the ball well and make some pretty good plays,” he recalled. “It was then that I thought I might want to go somewhere and play in college.”

Known in high school for his amazing speed and ability to run, Billie was moved to running back as a junior after playing his first two seasons at linebacker. During his first season as a running back, he rushed for a school-record 2,003 yards in 2001 and scored 19 touchdowns. In this day and age when your rushing total exceeds the calendar year, that is saying something. He earned the team and region MVP awards as well.

Billie followed his junior year with an even more spectacular senior season. He ended his high school career by setting a career rushing mark with 4,073 yards and 43 touchdowns.

“My high school football coach, Coach Bacon, and track coach, Coach Brooks, always pushed me to work hard and compete to my full potential,” Billie stated. “They are a big part of where I am today.”

Coming out of high school, Billie was the #17-rated running back in the country according to Tom Lemming and the #9 prospect in the state according to South Carolina High School Sports Report. Among the long list of schools who wanted Billie’s talents were Clemson, Florida State, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Louisiana State, and his hometown team, South Carolina.

After making an oral commitment to the Gamecocks, Billie decided it would be better in the long run for him to attend Clemson. “I thought about it and talked with my family for a long time. I didn’t want to be too close to home, but I wanted to be close enough so I could drive home, so I chose Clemson. During the recruiting process, the Clemson coaches were great and were a big part of my decision.”

To no one’s surprise, Billie came to Clemson as a running back. During a pre-season practice his freshman year, he made a hit on former wideout Airese Currie, knocking Currie’s helmet off.

“After that practice, Coach Bowden asked me if I could play defense,” the 6-1, 210-pound Tiger said. “In high school, I played defense and offense, so I told Coach Bowden I could. I wanted to get on the field my freshman year. I just wanted to play.”

Billie’s initial plan was to red-shirt his freshman year, but after putting on shows in practice, Bowden decided he needed Billie on the field. He was one of only two true freshman defensive players to appear in a game in 2003. As the backup for then starting linebacker Eric Sampson, Billie had 14 tackles, including three key stops in the Tigers’ 26-10 win over #3 Florida State.

As a sophomore in 2004, Billie finished the season as the fifth-leading tackler for the Tigers with 62 stops. He also recorded his first career interception against Georgia Tech.

In 2005 as a junior, Billie had 93 tackles, which was third-most on the team. He had a hit that caused a fumble in the win at Maryland, recovered a fumble at Wake Forest, and had a blocked field goal against Duke. In addition to his defensive prowess, Billie also became one of the top special teams players for the Tigers. He has twice been honored as special teams player-of-the-game (Duke, South Carolina) by the Tiger coaches.

Billie had avoided injuries and had excellent seasons until this year. During a pre-season practice in August, his right foot got caught under him after he was blocked, resulting in a badly-broken right ankle.

At one point this year, foot injuries seemed to be almost contagious for the Tigers. Billie, starting wide receiver Chansi Stuckey, offensive guard Jamarcus Grant, and starting safety Michael Hamlin have all been sidelined with foot injuries this year. While all three broke a foot, Stuckey and Hamlin were able to return after just three or four weeks, but Billie says his break was different. Not only did Billie break his bone, he tore tendons as well.

“My ankle was really loose from the torn tendons,” the injured Billie said while receiving rehabilitation. “It takes longer for tendons to heal than a bone. I broke my ankle bone and tore tendons. Stuckey and Hamlin just broke their bone.”

Billie’s perseverance apparently comes from his mother, a reason he has been able to deal with his serious injury. “My mother has always driven me to be the best,” said #26. “Whatever I did, she has always told me she ‘had my back!’ She still says that! She stays on me 24/7 to make me do what I have to do to make it in life.”

While teammate Anthony Waters suffered an injury in the first game of the season that ended his Clemson career, Billie was not red-shirted previously, therefore he will be able to return for the 2007 season as one of the leaders of the defense.

“I am definitely coming back next year,” Billie said with confidence. “I plan to work hard to get bigger, faster, and stronger. I need to help the team the best way I can next year, and I am working towards goals that will allow me to do that.”

What Tiger fan could ask for more?

Anthony Waters

Senior Spotlight

By Sanford Rogers

This afternoon, Clemson and South Carolina will take to the turf at Frank Howard Field to renew one of college football’s most-storied rivalries. For many people in this state, in towns ranging from Fork to Fountain Inn and Inman to Irmo, the Clemson-South Carolina gameday is one of the most important days of the year.

For this writer, who will witness his 25th Clemson-South Carolina contest today, a Tiger win had always meant the difference between happiness and sadness for the following 365 days. However, that attitude has changed dramatically after visiting with Clemson senior linebacker Anthony Waters. Waters, with his actions on and off the field, has demonstrated there are things in life much more important than the outcome of a football game.

To know Waters you have to begin with a visit to the quaint town of Lake View, SC. Located at the intersection of Highway 9 and Highway 41 on the South Carolina/North Carolina border some 256 miles from Clemson, the town is known for its never-ending tobacco fields, and undying support for Lake View High School and its athletic squads.

For Waters, Lake View is where he started to become the man he is today.

"Growing up in Lake View was a great experience," recalled Waters. "I also lived in Lumberton, NC and Mullins, SC, but Lake View is where I began my football career and is where so many people have played an important role in my life. I can't say enough about the people there. They have always been there for me and supported me in every way."

Any resident of Lake View is quick to point to the success of the Wild Gator football team. The Class A school has won eight state titles in football through the years. The old joke about being able to rob the bank at the time of a Friday night high school football game is certainly applicable to Lake View. The environment is one that Waters recalls fondly.

"Football is what Lake View breathes," remembered Waters. "When those lights come on Friday night, there is nothing like it. You’ve got everyone in the town from Mayor Boston Page to the smallest kid yelling for you. Looking back on it, Lake View reminds me of Clemson in a lot of ways. The love and support of the entire community is something I will always remember."

When Waters looks back on his development as a person and as a football player, there is no shortage of mentors from Dillon County.

Lake View High School Head Football Coach Jewell McLaurin, a Clemson letterman in 1969 and 1970, Kip Herlong, the head baseball coach at Lake View High, and football Assistant Coaches Kenny Rogers and Daryl King all have a special place in his heart.

"I don’t think there is any chance I would be where I am today without these men," stated Waters. "My family life was not the best when I was growing up, but these coaches were all like fathers to me."

"Coach McLaurin was always there for me. He stayed on me to be the best I could be. Coach Herlong and his entire family have been great to me. He really showed me the whole picture about life being more than football. Coach Rogers provided me with discipline. I knew if I got into trouble, I would have to face him. No one wants to be on his bad side."

"Coach King was the guy who pushed me to get bigger and stronger. When I was working out, he was right there beside me pushing me to do more. I don’t think I could have played for better coaches or better people than the ones I had at Lake View."

McLaurin, who will guide the South Carolina Shrine Bowl squad in December, could not be more proud of his former star.

"Anthony Waters is a success story," said McLaurin. "As a sophomore, he was a slender guy. But, he got into the weightroom and was as dedicated as any player I’ve coached. Not only does he possess a great deal of talent, he has a real desire to win. That is something that comes from inside."

Waters’ talent was on display for everyone to see at Lake View. He led the Wild Gators in rushing, receiving, and tackles as a senior, and was selected to play in the Shrine Bowl. In that contest, he accumulated eight tackles. Those numbers make it easy to understand why he was listed as one of the top-100 players in the country by numerous recruiting services.

Choosing a college is a difficult decision for any student-athlete. While Waters had offers from Auburn, Georgia Tech, and Maryland among others, the decision came down to one that most of the Palmetto State’s top players have to decide between...Clemson and South Carolina. He credits former Clemson Assistant Mike O’Cain, now Virginia Tech’s quarterbacks coach, for being the determining factor in donning the orange and purple.

"I had grown up a South Carolina fan," admitted Waters. "It came down to Clemson and South Carolina. I had trouble with the SAT, but Clemson and Coach O’Cain never gave up on me. He would call me every week and tell me to keep working hard, and things would work out. He is a great man. I owe him a lot for sticking with me."

O’Cain recalls Waters and the recruiting process six years ago. More importantly, he does not forget how hard #40 worked to come to Tigertown.

Senior linebacker Anthony Waters was the vocal leader of Clemson’s defense and gave Tiger fans many reasons to cheer.

“In Anthony’s case, I saw how hard he worked to get the test score needed to qualify,” said O’Cain. “With the type of hard work Anthony displayed to be eligible for admission at Clemson, there was no doubt in my mind that he was going to be a success on the field and in the classroom.”

“Anthony Waters is the reason that you want to be in coaching. He is a young man that has overcome so much to be where he is today. I’m really proud to say that I know Anthony Waters. I’m a better person because of him.”

Waters continued to work hard after making his way to Clemson. Following a red-shirt season, he played a key role on the special teams in 2003, with nine of his 35 tackles coming in a special teams role, helping the Tigers to a top-25 season. He continued his progress in 2004, starting all 11 games at linebacker. His best individual game was against Georgia Tech, as he had 10 tackles in just 69 snaps.

Prior to the 2005 season, there was much talk about who would replace ACC Defensive Player-of-the-Year Leroy Hill at middle linebacker. Waters, who had heard the talk throughout the spring and summer, was determined to be that replacement.

“I used the question about who would replace Leroy as motivation,” remembered Waters. “The year before, the same question was being asked about who would replace John Leake. I knew if I worked as hard as I could, I could be the guy who the coaches could count on.”

The coming-out party came early in the 2005 season for Waters. After a win in the opening game against #17 Texas A&M, the Tigers traveled to Maryland to face a Terrapin defense led by linebacker D’Qwell Jackson. Following a Tiger victory, the media and Clemson coaches took note of his performance that saw him tally 14 tackles, including a career-high 4.5 tackles for loss. Following the contest, he earned defensive player-of-the-game honors from the Clemson coaches.

“Going into that game at Maryland, I was determined to make a name for myself,” said Waters. “Everyone knew what a great player D’Qwell Jackson was. Having a game like I had put me on the radar and gave me a lot of confidence for the rest of the season. It also let the coaches know that they could count on me to be a leader.”

His performance did more than put him on the radar. It catapulted him to a year when he led the nation’s 11th-best scoring defense in tackles. His 9.9 tackles per game was third best in the ACC.

A season like Waters had in 2005 led to questions about the possibility of declaring for the NFL draft. The allure of earning a large paycheck and fulfilling a dream of playing at the next level was considered. But in the end, the desire to achieve an even bigger goal won out.

“Last January, I didn’t spend too much time thinking about the NFL,” stated Waters. “When I made my SAT score coming out of high school, I made it a goal to earn a degree from Clemson. Football does not work out for everyone. To have the opportunity to get a free education and not take advantage of it was something I was not going to do.

Earning my degree means so much to me and my family. We have not had the greatest of times during my life. Me graduating from college means so much to them. My mother Lynette means the world to me. I want to do anything I can to make her life better. I have eight brothers and sisters (Travis, Cody, Tasha, Henri, Jaquanna, Keivonte, Darius, Diayah). They mean everything to me. By me earning a degree from Clemson, it shows what you can do if you don’t give up.”

After seeing what he had overcome in his life, every Tiger fan hoped and dreamed for the storyline of 2006 to be about a stellar senior year. Preseason acclaim came early, with his name appearing on the Bednark Award and Bronko Nagurski Award pre-season lists. He was also a preseason All-America candidate by the Football Writers Association.

But late in the third quarter of the season-opener against Florida Atlantic, a non-contact knee injury took the breath away from Waters’ coaches, teammates, and fans. Death Valley may have never been quieter when he hobbled off the field.

“I told Danny Poole (Clemson director of sports medicine) there was no way I was coming off the field on a cart,” said Waters. “My mom, grandmother, and godmother were all in the stands. I knew the injury was bad, but I didn’t want them to worry about me more than they had to. I don’t think I will ever forget how the crowd cheered for me then. That is what makes Clemson so special.”

While his playing career at Clemson ended against the Owls, the goals of graduation and playing in the NFL are within reach. He is more than busy spending his time rehabbing his knee for three hours a day while completing his internship with the Clemson sports information office (his final class before earning a sports management degree in December). But before making the jump to the pro ranks, he has proved to be an integral member of the 2006 squad, albeit from the sidelines.

Just seven days after the injury, he was on the sidelines in Chestnut Hill, MA trying to guide the younger Tiger defenders against Boston College.

“I take it as a compliment that Coach Bowden has allowed me to travel with the team,” said Waters. “Somewhere in my career, I did something that let him see me as a leader. Even though I can’t play, I know that I can help the younger guys. I still see myself as a leader on this team.”

Sophomore linebacker Antonio Clay is one of those players who values his leadership. He is quick to credit Waters with his progression this season.

Waters has remained an integral part of the team as a mentor for his teammates.

“Anthony is a great leader,” said Clay. “Even though he is not able to be on the field, he is right there encouraging me and telling me what I need to do. I’m a better player because of him.”

Clemson fans appreciate the leadership that Waters has displayed on the sidelines this year. But fans of all teams (even Gamecocks) should appreciate the leadership that Waters has displayed away from the Clemson campus.

Anytime that he returns to the Pee Dee region of South Carolina, there is a good chance one will find him speaking at the elementary school, middle school, or high school in Lake View. His message is one that will pay dividends for years to come.

“I try to show my face as much as possible at the schools and tell them what they can accomplish, no matter what you come from,” said Waters. “I’m an example of what you can do if you work hard and have people who are willing to help you. I can’t thank people enough for what they have done for me.”

McLaurin knows that Waters has made a difference. “Anthony is very gracious to come back and speak to the kids,” said McLaurin. “I have told our young men that you can’t run down the Hill or play anywhere in college without working hard in school. He is an example of that. Years from now, there are kids that will be better because of him.”

Waters continues to remember where he came from. Prior to this season on a trip home, he visited one of Lake View’s most loyal fans, Greg Moody, a middle-aged man who suffers from Down Syndrome. Waters happens to be Moody’s favorite player. Just before returning to Clemson for his final season, he stopped by Moody’s home and presented him with one of his old Clemson game jerseys.

Yes, it has been a trying year for Anthony Waters. But, he has it all in the proper perspective.

Waters suffered a season-ending knee injury in the season-opener against Florida Atlantic, but has still kept his spirits high.

Clemson University Campus

Notes:
- All cities are in South Carolina.
Clemson one of the nation’s top 20 public universities – an institution that draws outstanding faculty and students, provides an unmatched academic experience, and helps drive the state’s economic development.

A 1970 Clemson graduate, Barker has said, “South Carolina needs a top-tier research university, and our students deserve to have access to a top-tier education without leaving their home state. Building Clemson’s academic, research, and service programs to the level where we can compete with anyone will benefit our state, our students, and our alumni.”

Clemson, already South Carolina’s top-ranked public university, is making strides toward that goal. During Barker’s presidency, the university has:

- been recognized as Time Magazine’s “Public College-of-the-Year” and ranked #1 among the “Best Places to Work in Academia” by The Scientist Magazine;
- developed and implemented an academic “Road Map” with eight emphasis areas aligned with South Carolina’s economic needs;
- launched major new education and research-based economic initiatives, including the Clemson University International Center for Automotive Research (CU-ICAR) in Greenville, and the Clemson University Restoration Institute in Charleston;
- redesigned the general education curriculum to focus on learning outcomes, and give undergraduates more opportunities for study abroad, service-learning, and research;
- hosted the first-ever ACC “Meeting of the Minds” conference for undergraduate research and creative inquiry;
- attracted more students who are clearly among America’s best;
- more than doubled external research funding, and completed Clemson’s largest capital campaign.

Working with state leaders and private industry partners, Barker has steered Clemson into a greater economic development role. Master planning is complete for the CU-ICAR campus near I-85. The BMW Information Technology Resources Center is operational and construction is underway on the Carroll Campbell Graduate Engineering Center. The first class of Ph.D. students in automotive engineering will enter this fall and recruiting has begun for master’s degree candidates. They will be taught by distinguished professors brought to the state to hold endowed chairs established under the South Carolina Research Centers of Excellence Act. Three of the four chairs devoted to automotive engineering – the BMW Chair, the Michelin Chair, and the Timken Chair - have already been filled.

Clemson is also investing $80 million to develop an advanced materials industry cluster. The linchpin is the Advanced Materials Research Laboratory, located in the Clemson Research Park in Anderson County, which is anchored by the nation’s top optical materials and electron microscopy laboratories.

Barker also is becoming a leading voice in higher education in South Carolina and beyond. He currently chairs the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and chaired the ACC Council of Presidents during the league’s recent expansion. He began a term on the national NCAA Board of Directors in spring of 2006.

For his leadership, Barker has received the Order of the Palmetto, South Carolina’s highest civic honor, and the 2006 Chief Executive Leadership Award from the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) Southeastern District III. He was an invited speaker at the first-ever Forum on Presidential Leadership in June of 2006, sponsored by The Chronicle of Higher Education, and attended by more than 250 college and university presidents and trustees.

As president, Barker remains committed to the classroom. Each spring, he is part of a team that teaches an undergraduate course exploring “a sense of place” in architecture, literature, and history.

In presenting the Distinguished Alumnus Award in 2005, Washington University Chancellor Mark Wrighton said, “James F. Barker has taken the architectural skills and knowledge required to design a building and applied them to the future of a university. His architectural vision, collaborative instincts, and sense of place are rapidly pushing Clemson up through the ranks of the nation’s top public universities. He has become a leader in national academic circles by creating a new model of education, building interdisciplinary partnerships among the professional schools, and the basic curriculum by tearing down artificial walls between disciplines.”

A native of Kingsport, TN, Barker earned his B.A. degree from Clemson in 1970 and his master of architecture and urban design degree from Washington University in Saint Louis, MO in 1973. He and his wife Marcia have a son (Jacob) and daughter-in-law (Rita Bolt), and another son Brit.

It hasn't taken Dr. Terry Don Phillips long to make his mark on Clemson University. That impact was recognized in June of 2006 when he was honored by NACDA (National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics) as the 2005-06 General Sports Turf Systems Athletic Director of the Year for the Southeast Region of Division I-A. He was one of just four Division I-A athletic directors honored at the annual convention in New Orleans.

Phillips was honored for many reasons. In 2005-06, Clemson finished its most successful all-around athletics year in his tenure. The program had six-top 25 programs, including top-10 final rankings in men's soccer, golf, and baseball. It marked the first time since 1979 that Clemson reached the Final Four in soccer and the College World Series in baseball in the same academic year.

Clemson also had top-25 finishes in football, men's tennis, and women's tennis. The school's athletic program won a postseason football, men's basketball, and baseball game this academic year, the first time the program has done that since 1993-94. Clemson was the only school in the country to win a postseason football game, a postseason basketball game, and a College World Series game.

Clemson finished #32 in the nation in the Director's Cup standings on a per-sport basis in 2005-06 and #39 in total points, Clemson's highest rankings under the current scoring structure.

From an academic standpoint, nine of Clemson's 15 sports programs scored a perfect 100-percent graduation rate according to the Graduation Success Rate (GSR) figures announced by the NCAA on December 19, 2005. Clemson was #7 in the nation among the 119 Division I-A institutions in percentage of programs with a 100-percent score.

The Tiger football program had a 94-percent rate, fourth in the nation among Division I programs, trailing only Navy, Notre Dame, and Wake Forest. In the spring semester of 2006, the 15 programs had a combined GPA of 2.84, third-best on record, and all-time records were set for most Dean's List and President's List student-athletes.

"There's nothing worse than trying to maintain status quo," said Phillips, who became Clemson's 10th athletic director on July 1, 2002.

That motto has been a basic tenet that has characterized his career as an administrator and his pursuit to develop Clemson into a model athletic program in the 21st century. His beliefs are in line with the University's overall goal of making Clemson one of the top-20 public universities in the nation.

His resolve comes from a unique balance of experience in nearly every phase of college athletics, as well as a devotion to higher education that includes both a doctorate and law degree. He remains a classroom presence by teaching a Sports Law section in the Accountancy & Legal Studies department. In addition, he is chair of the NCAA Division I Infractions Appeals Committee, which serves the appellate role for all university and individual appeals arising from the Committee on Infractions.

Those influences are obvious in his strategic plan for Tiger athletics, which provides for a model program that can compete at the highest levels with academic integrity, concern for the student-athlete, financial responsibility, and in full compliance.

Steady strides have been made toward these goals through facility improvements and the development of concepts that will serve the entire program, starting with the endzone expansion. In 2006, 1,000 premium club seats will open and create a vital new revenue stream for future facilities.

Future plans call for a new comprehensive football building at Memorial Stadium. It will benefit the entire department, as it will create additional updated facilities in the McFadden Building for the Olympic sports program. "A one Clemson Center" will also be constructed to showcase the history of Clemson University, including its military and athletic heritage.

Since Phillips' arrival at Clemson, many highlights toward being a model program have occurred on the field as well, beginning with Clemson's first ever national championship in golf in the spring of 2003, the first title for any Tiger program in 16 years.

His second year included an incredible run on the gridiron to end the season, as Tommy Bowden's Tigers defeated #3 Florida State in November and #6 Tennessee in the Peach Bowl. The football program has continued to make strides since then and ranked in the top 25 for the second time in the last three years with its #21 finish in 2005, and it is a consensus top 20 team in the preseason for 2006.

The women's tennis team was one of three programs to win ACC Championships in the same weekend in 2003-04 and advanced to the Final Four of the NCAA Tournament, the first women's athletic team in Clemson history to reach the Final Four in any postseason tournament. Nancy Harris' team duplicated the accomplishment in 2004-05, and has a string of four-straight top-20 seasons.

Excellence in academics has been a constant on his resume. He has an undergraduate degree from Arkansas (1970), a master's from Virginia Tech (1974), a doctorate from Virginia Tech (1978), and a law degree from the Arkansas School of Law (1996). He is a member of the Arkansas Bar, American Bar Association, and the Sports Lawyers Association.

From an experience standpoint, Phillips has worked in nearly all phases of college athletics. He coached on the football staff at Virginia Tech, supervised spring sports and student-athlete enrichment at Florida, handled athletic fundraising and facility enhancement at Missouri and Arkansas, and had 15 years experience as an athletic director, including 13 at the Division I level, prior to his appointment at Clemson, coming from Oklahoma State.

Football was transformed from a perennial losing status to defeating Oklahoma during five of the eight years he was associated with Oklahoma State (1994-02). For this, he received the National Football Foundation Oklahoma Chapter Outstanding Contribution to Amateur Football Award in 2002.

When it came to success on the field and in the classroom, OSU's programs were among the Big 12's best. The achievements of the program included two national titles in men's golf, a men's basketball Final Four, two trips to the College World Series, 13 Big 12 titles, and 11 individual national champions, along with 53 academic All-Americans.

Before leading Oklahoma State, Phillips served as senior associate athletic director at Arkansas from 1988-94. He ran the daily operations and had oversight of facility projects for the men's programs, and was president of the Razorback Foundation.

Phillips was athletic director at Liberty (1980-81) and Louisiana-Lafayette (1983-88). He was also an assistant athletic director at Missouri (1981-83), and began his administrative career in 1979 as an assistant athletic director at Florida.

Phillips began his career in college athletics coaching football. He started as a graduate assistant at Arkansas from 1970-71. He moved on to Virginia Tech as an assistant coach from 1971-78 before joining the ranks of athletic administration.

Winning has been on his resume since his playing days at Arkansas. He lettered on three Frank Broyles teams (1966,68,69), Arkansas was 27-5 in the three years and played in two Sugar Bowl games.

In addition to Phillips' leadership with the NCAA Infractions Appeals Committee, he also works with the NCAA certification program. He currently serves on several ACC Committees. Frank Broyles Committee, chair of the Committee on Infractions & Penalties, Television Committee, the Men's Basketball Committee, and the Football Committee.

Phillips has two children, John Dennis (29) and Sarah-Jane (26), and three step-children, Meagan (17), Marshall (15), and Madison (13). His wife Tricia is a graduate of the University of Missouri School of Journalism, and earlier enjoyed a career in athletics and development. She is now active in the Clemson and Seneca communities.

The Awesome Power Of Outdoor
Each of his last six teams have finished the season with a winning record. A winning season in 2006 would give him a Tiger coaching record seven straight winning seasons, and he would become just the fifth head coach in ACC history to record seven straight winning seasons with the same program.

Bowden has also shown consistency in terms of improvement over the course of seasons. In each of the last three years, his teams have won at least five of its last six games. The 2003 team won its last four games, including wins over top-10 Florida State and Tennessee to finish ranked in the top 25. The 2005 team won six of its last seven games, a first for a Tiger team since 1991.

There has also been consistency in terms of success against Clemson’s in-state rival (South Carolina). The Tigers have won six of the seven meetings with the Gamecocks since Bowden became Clemson’s head coach in 1999, and the 85.7 percent winning mark is the best of any Tiger head coach in history against the Gamecocks given a minimum of five games. He has an average victory margin of 12.3 points per game in the state-rivalry game, and all six wins have been recorded against future Hall of Fame Head Coaches Lou Holtz and Steve Spurrier.

Through nine seasons as a Division I head coach, Bowden has a 70-37 record, a 65.4-percent winning mark that is eighth-best among active coaches with at least six years of experience. In conference games, he has never had a sub-.500 record, and his overall conference record stands at 43-25 for a 63.2-percent winning percentage.

In seven years at Clemson, he has a 52-33 (.612) mark and six bowl appearances. He has 32 ACC wins as well. The only program with more ACC wins during this time is Florida State. The 52 overall victories rank third in Clemson history in total wins. The 29-7 victory over South Carolina in the 2004 season finale was not only the 600th win in Clemson history, it moved Bowden ahead of Hall of Fame Coach Jess Neely into third place on Clemson’s coaching victories list. Only Frank Howard and Danny Ford are ahead of Bowden.

Bowden has tallied his record against a difficult schedule. In his first year at Clemson, the schedule was ranked in the top 10 in the nation. In 2001, his team defeated five teams that finished with a winning record, tied for the third-highest single-season figure in school history. One of the wins was a 47-44 overtime triumph at #9 Georgia Tech. It was the highest-ranked road win in 20 years for the program. In 2003 and 2004, Clemson’s schedule strength once again ranked in the top 25 by the Sagarin rating. The 2005 team faced five top-25 teams in the regular season, a first in school history.

Twice Bowden has received ACC Coach-of-the-Year honors (1999, 03), joining Howard, Charley Pell, and Ford as the only two-time recipients of that award in Clemson football history. In January of 2006, he was given the Grant Teaff National Coach-of-the-Year Award by the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Off the field, Clemson has graduated nearly 80 percent of its seniors in his seven years. Clemson’s graduation success rate of 94 percent in 2005 was fourth-best among the 119 Division I programs. In 2003, Clemson was 11th in the nation, including second among public schools, in the NCAA graduation-rate study for scholarship football signees who entered Clemson in 1996. Clemson was first in the nation in graduation rate among African-Americans (100 percent). Each of the top-six semester team GPAs have been recorded under Bowden.

In 2005, Clemson had a record of 8-4, including a 3-2 mark against top-25 ranked teams. All four of the losses were by six points or less and by a total of 14 points. Two of those losses came in overtime, therefore the Tigers lost the four games by a combined five points at the end of regulation.

The 2005 team also won six of its last seven games, including a 19-10 win over Colorado in the Champs Sports Bowl. Clemson had the best record among the 12 ACC teams over that time period.

Clemson finished in the top 25 in four national defensive rankings, including 11th in scoring defense. After the victory over Colorado in the Champs Sports Bowl, the Tigers were ranked #21 in the final Associated Press and USA Today polls. Clemson had three wins over top-20 ranked teams, the most in one season by a Tiger team since 1989.

In four years at Clemson, Charlie Whitehurst became the most prolific signal-caller in school history. He set 46 Tiger records, including records for passing yards (9,665), completions (817), completion percentage (65.4-percent), and touchdown passes (49). He directed Clemson to 25 wins as a starting quarterback, the second-most wins in school history.

Consistency in his approach is one reason Clemson went from a 1-4 start to bowl eligibility in 2004. It was the first time since 1963 that a Tiger team had overcome such a deficit to finish with a winning record.

Clemson played a complete game at #10 Miami (FL) on November 6, 2004 and defeated the Hurricanes in the Orange Bowl 24-17 in overtime. It was the second overtime win of the year for the Tigers, who are 4-2 in extra-session games under Bowden.

The win over Miami gave Bowden and the Tigers three wins over top-10 programs in a 13-game span, something that had been done at Clemson just once previously (1981 National Championship team). All three of those programs (Florida State, Tennessee, Miami) have won the national championship within the last eight seasons.

Over the last three seasons, Bowden has won seven games over coaches who have won the national title (Bobby Bowden (twice), Phillip Fulmer, Larry Coker, Holtz (twice), and Spurrier). These big wins have stimulated interest in the program. The Tigers averaged over 78,000 fans per home game in 2005. Clemson has been in the top 20 in home attendance each of his seven years at Clemson, and five of the top-nine average figures have come in his tenure.

With Clemson’s selection to the 2004 Peach Bowl, Bowden became the first head coach in Clemson and ACC history to take a team to a bowl game in each of his first five seasons. In fact, no coach had ever done so more than twice to open his career at Clemson.
Tommy Bowden
Head Coach

The 2004 Peach Bowl appearance meant that it was the first time since the senior class of 1991 that Clemson went to a bowl game five straight years. Clemson’s red-shirt senior in 2003 were the first group he recruited, so it is an indication of the firm foundation his first group set. In December of 2003, Bowden cemented his place at Clemson by signing a seven-year contract, which will go through 2010.

The 2003 season was a breakthrough year in many ways. Clemson earned its highest-ever win over a ranked team with a 26-10 victory over #3 Florida State. The Tigers also defeated #24 Virginia in a thrilling overtime game. The 39-3 win over a bowl-bound Georgia Tech team was Clemson’s largest victory margin in the series since 1900 as well.

The 2003 victory over Florida State, Clemson’s first in 12 tries since the Seminoles joined the ACC, was the beginning of a four-game winning streak to close the season. In those four games, Clemson outscored its opponents 156-48, an average score of 39-12. Clemson defeated arch-rival South Carolina in Columbia 63-17. It was the most points ever scored by a team in the 01-game series and the Tigers’ largest win margin in the series since 1900.

The season concluded with a 27-14 win over #6 Tennessee, the highest-ranked team Clemson has defeated in a bowl game since 1981, when the Tigers defeated #4 Nebraska in the Orange Bowl to claim the national championship. As a result, Clemson finished the season with nine wins and a #22 final national ranking.

The 2002 season included victories over bowl teams Georgia Tech and Wake Forest, and a third victory in four years over arch-rival South Carolina. Clemson gained 434 yards of total offense in the 27-20 win over the Gamecocks, the most yards against Hoit’s defense all season.

Clemson had another record-setting season in 2001, a season that culminated with a Humanitarian Bowl victory over Louisiana Tech. Clemson set school records for points scored, touchdowns, and total offense in a bowl game in the victory.

When Bowden came to Clemson in 1998, he inherited a team with a 3-8 record. By late October of 2000, just 14 months after his first game, Clemson was ranked third in the nation in the USA Today poll after an 8-0 start. That ranking was the highest for the program in 16 years. The final #14 ranking in that same poll was the highest final listing for the program since the 1990 season.

In 2000 and 2001, his dynamic offense produced a Heisman Trophy contender in quarterback Woodrow Dantzler, who placed his name next to 52 school records. In 2001, he became the first quarterback in Division I history to total 2,000 yards passing and 1,000 yards rushing in a single season.

When Bowden came to Clemson, he had one simple goal - improvement. Bowden warned Clemson supporters that the Tigers were unlikely to be bowl participants in 1999, but his main focus was to improve. Bowden’s goal of improvement was reached and he was happy to be wrong about his preseason prediction, as the Tigers were invited to the 1999 Chick-fil-A Peach Bowl.

In 1999, Bowden accomplished a personal milestone that no Clemson coach had attained since 1981, the year the Tigers won the National Championship. He became the first Clemson coach since Danny Ford to be named ACC Coach-of-the-Year. Making strong improvement in his first year with a program was nothing new for Bowden. In the two seasons he was the head coach at Tulane, Bowden took a team that had been 4-18 in the two years previous to his arrival, and emotionally and numerically reversed the team’s fortunes with an 18-4 record, posted an 11-1 conference mark, and finished the 1999 season ranked #7 in the nation by both polls. Tulane and Tennessee were the only undefeated teams in college football in 1999.

The Green Wave scored 40 or more points in eight games in 1998, including each of the last seven games. In one game, the Green Wave scored 72 points and rolled up 704 yards of total offense. They converted 52 percent of their third-down opportunities for the season and had just 11 turnovers in over 800 plays. The 1998 season saw the program post a perfect 11-0 regular season under Bowden, its first perfect regular season since 1931. The Green Wave won Conference USA, its first league title since Tulane won the SEC in 1949. Bowden was named Conference USA Coach-of-the-Year.

A look to the list of coaches who had undefeated seasons in the 1990s shows two other men named Bowden. His father, Florida State Head Coach Bobby Bowden, had a perfect regular season in 1984 and 1999, while his brother, Terry, posted a perfect regular season in 1993. Obviously, the Bowdens are the first family of college coaching and this “Wonder Years” environment had a lot to do with Tommy Bowden’s decision to enter coaching.

Tommy Bowden began his college football experience as a walk-on wide receiver at West Virginia. He played for his father between 1973-75 and then for Frank Cignetti during the 1976 season.

- diagnosed coach in bowl game

Years as a coach: 28
Record of teams as assistant: 129-85-2 (602)
Record of teams as head coach: 70-37-4 (654)
Record of teams in conference games: 43-25-3 (632)

As a junior, he caught 15 passes for 189 yards and one score. Bowden remained at West Virginia for the 1977 season and began his coaching career, serving as a graduate assistant on Cignetti’s staff. His interest in coaching only became more intense after that first year as a graduate assistant. His father then hired him as a secondary coach at Florida State for the 1978 season.

In 1980, Bowden joined the East Carolina staff, where he coached during spring practice in 1980. That spring, he moved to Auburn and served as the Tigers’ running backs coach for the 1980 season.

In 1981, Bowden returned to Tallahassee as the tight ends coach. In two more years at Florida State, the Seminoles posted a 15-8 mark. The 1982 team ranked #13 in the final poll, claimed a 9-3 record, and won a Gator Bowl championship.

From 1983-86, Bowden served under Steve Sloan at Duke as the quarterbacks coach, and was named coordinator in 1985. In 1984, he made his first trip to Death Valley as a coach. Among the players he tutored was future NFL player Anthony Dilweg.

After four years at Duke, Bowden became the wide receivers coach at Alabama under Bill Currie. It was there that Bowden refined his offensive coaching prowess under noted offensive mind Homer Smith, then the Tide offensive coordinator.

In 1990, Bowden returned to a coordinator role, serving as Kentucky’s offensive coordinator and wide receivers coach. That year, he helped the Wildcats to their first upper division SEC finish since 1984. In 1991, Bowden joined Pat Dye at Auburn. He remained with Auburn for six years, his longest stint as an assistant. Auburn had a combined record of 46-20-2, including a perfect 11-0 season in 1993.

Born on July 10, 1954 in Birmingham, AL, Bowden is married to the former Linda Joan White, who he first met when the two were in school together at Morgantown (WV) High. The couple has two children, Ryan (24), a 2004 Clemson graduate and currently a law student at Regent University, and Lauren (21), a senior at Clemson.

STRENGTH FROM HOWARD’S ROCK IS EVERYTHING.
Clemson Memorial Stadium has been held in high esteem for many years. Whether it be players from the 1940s and 1950s, opposing players from the 1970s and 1980s, or even professional players in the 1990s, the ambiance of this special setting is what college football is all about.

The storied edifice added to its legend when the first meeting of father and son head coaches (Bowden Bowl I) took place before a sellout crowd of more than 86,000 fans in 1999. Clemson has ranked in the top 20 in the nation in attendance 25 straight seasons. In 2005, the streak continued when Clemson averaged 78,232 fans per game.

The facility’s mystique is derived from its many traditions, which date to its opening in 1942, the legendary games and players, and Clemson’s corresponding rate of success. Clemson has won 231 games in 64 years there and has won over 70 percent of the contests (231-90-7). Forty times since 1983, a crowd has exceeded 80,000.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before Head Coach Jess Neely left for Rice after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message.

“Don’t ever let them talk you into building a big stadium,” he said. “Put about 10,000 seats behind the YMCA. That’s all you’ll ever need”.

Instead of following Coach Neely’s advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing—there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work, clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally on September 19, 1942, Memorial Stadium opened with Clemson thrashing Presbyterian 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40’s, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, the boy was swollen twice his size and was hospitalized.

There are many other stories about the sta-
Stadium, including one that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner as the concrete poured.

Howard said that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he said. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through."

"I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more week's pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard said that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 and we played at 2:00." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and in 1960, 5,658 west endzone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large endzone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side as crowds swelled - the first in 1978 and the second in '83. This increased capacity to over 80,000, which makes it one of the largest on-campus stadiums.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged by the late Presbyterian Coach Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, he said the place was like "Death Valley."

A few years later the name stuck.

In 1974, the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.

Running Down The Hill
"The Most Exciting 25 Seconds in College Football"

What has been described as, "the most exciting 25 seconds in college football from a color and pageantry standpoint," actually started out as a matter-of-fact entrance, mainly because of necessity.

The first 20,000 seats in Memorial Stadium were built and ready for use before the 1942 season, less than a year after Pearl Harbor was bombed and the United States was drawn into World War II.

The shortest entry into the stadium was a short walk down Williamson Road from Fike Fieldhouse's dressing rooms to a gate at the top of the Hill, which is located behind the east endzone. There were no dressing facilities in the west endzone - there was only a big clock where the hands turned and a scoreboard, which was operated by hand.

The team would dress at Fike, walk down Williamson Road, come in the gate underneath where the scoreboard now stands and jog down the Hill for its warm-up exercises. There was no fanfare, no cannon shot fired, no Tiger Paw flag, no Tiger Rag played...just the team making its entrance and lining up to do the side-straddle hop.

That is pretty much the way things went for the next 25 years.

Either in 1964 or 1965, S.C. Jones, a member of the class of 1919, made a trip to California. He stopped at a spot in Death Valley, CA and picked up this white flint rock. He presented it to Head Coach Frank Howard as being from Death Valley, California to Death Valley, South Carolina.

The rock laid on the floor in Howard's office in Fike Fieldhouse for years. One day, he was cleaning up his office and he told Gene Willimon, who was executive secretary of IPTAY, to "take this rock and throw it over the fence, or out in the ditch...do something with it, but get it out of my office!"

Willimon did not think that was the way a rock should be treated. After all, it had been brought 3,000 miles by a very sincere Tiger fan.

By the mid-1960s, Memorial Stadium was living up to its moniker, Death Valley, because of the number of victories that had been recorded there. Actually, the name was first used by the late Lonne McMillian, head coach at Presbyterian College in Clinton in the 1940s.

McMillian and the other Blue Hose coaches before him used to open each season by coming to Clemson. Seldom scoring (24 shutouts in 39 games) and with only three victories and four ties to show for it, his teams were getting "killed" by the Tigers regularly. In 1948, McMillian made the comment to the press that he was taking his team to play Clemson in Death Valley.

An occasional reference to Memorial stadium by that name could be heard for the next four years, but when Howard started calling it "Death Valley" in the 1950s, the name took off like wildfire. The Tigers celebrated the 60th year in the "Valley" in 2001.
Running Down The Hill
"The Most Exciting 25 Seconds in College Football"

But getting back to Howard's Rock. The rock was mounted on a pedestal at the top of the Hill. It was unveiled September 24, 1966 on a day when Clemson played Virginia. The Tigers were down 18 points with 17 minutes to play and came back to win 40-35 on a 65-yard pass play from Jimmy Addison to Jacky Jackson in the fourth quarter. That was quite a spectacular debut for that rock.

The team members started rubbing the rock prior to running down the Hill on September 23, 1967, a day when Clemson defeated Wake Forest by a score of 23-6.

Prior to running down the Hill that day, Howard told his players, "If you're going to give me 110 percent, you can rub that rock. If you're not, keep your filthy hands off it."

Howard told of the incident the next day on his Sunday television show and the story became legend.

When Hootie Ingram succeeded Howard as head coach prior to the 1970 season, Ingram decided that the team would make its final entrance on the field out of the dressing room in the west endzone. In all home games in 1970 and 1971, and the first four games of 1972 when the Tigers did not run down the Hill, their combined record was 6-9. The team decided it wanted to come down the Hill once prior to the South Carolina game in 1972. The result, in a cold, freezing rain, was a 7-6 victory when Jimmy Williamson knocked down a two-point conversion attempt, which preserved the win.

The Tigers have made the entrance for every home game since 1942, except for the seasons mentioned above - 313 times heading into the 2006 season.

After final warmups, the team goes back into its dressing room under the west endzone stands for final game instructions. About 10 minutes before kickoff, the team boards two buses, rides around behind the north stands to the east endzone, and disembarks to the top of the Hill behind Howard's Rock.

At the appointed time, the cannon booms and led by a high-flying Tiger Paw flag, the band forms two lines for the team to run between and strikes up "Tiger Rag"... the frenzy starts in all sincerity and usually lasts for three hours.

It is a tradition that has inspired Clemson players for many years.

"The Rock has strange powers. When you rub it, and run down the Hill, the adrenaline flows. It's the most emotional experience I've ever had."
Six-time All-Pro and former Tiger All-American Michael Dean Perry

Manhattan Construction Company congratulates Clemson University on the completion of Phase I of the new West End Zone Facility.
For 73 years, IPTAY has been the lifeblood of Tiger Athletics – transforming Clemson University from a regional presence to a national power – and providing a model of success for other educational systems to follow. Our Mission is no different today than it was 73 years ago when IPTAY was created.

Please note that by making your contribution to IPTAY, you agree to abide by all NCAA regulations.

The Four Priorities of the IPTAY Scholarship Fund
1. The payment of the annual cost of athletic scholarships.
2. The payment or reimbursement of the operating expenses of IPTAY.
3. The establishment and maintenance of an adequate reserve fund deemed appropriate by the IPTAY Board of Directors.
4. Any expenditure other than those established under the previous three priorities, shall be limited to either direct or indirect aids to the athletic program of Clemson University and must be approved by the IPTAY Board of Directors.

Minimum Priority Contribution is $140. Contributions of any amount to the IPTAY Scholarship Fund are welcome.

$30 Tiger Cub Club (ages birth - 12)

Rehydrating and replenishing champions again and again since 1965.
The game broadcast is anchored by Pete Yanity. The sports director at WSPA-TV in Spartanburg, SC took over in September, 2003 after the passing of Jim Phillips, who had been the voice of the Tigers since 1968. Yanity has been a part of the broadcast team since 2001 as the host of the pregame, halftime, and postgame shows, and as the sideline reporter during games.

Yanity has been the sports director at WSPA-TV in Spartanburg the last 16 years. He has also been a sideline analyst for 10 years on Carolina Panther preseason football games and has considerable play-by-play experience for Comcast Sports Southeast, covering various college events, including Tiger football and baseball. Yanity is also the voice of Tiger basketball and the host of the Tommy Bowden and Oliver Purnell Television Shows.

Joining Yanity in the booth is former Clemson offensive lineman Tim Allott, who played for the Tigers from 1998-01. He was a starter in 2000 and 2001 when he was named Second-Team All-ACC.

Merritt worked on the Clemson radio network pregame and postgame shows during the 2002 season. He also provided color commentary on the television tape-delay broadcasts of selected 2002 games. In 2003, he became the color analyst of the game day broadcasts. The host of Evans, SC is the host of "The Morning Drive," a sports talk show that airs each morning on WCP (104.9 FM) in Clemson.

Former Clemson Academic All-American linebacker Chad Carson completes the broadcast team as the sideline commentator. Carson served in that capacity for the final two games of 2003, and all of 2004 and 2005. Carson is fourth in Clemson history in career tackles and was a starter on Tommy Bowden's first three Tiger teams.

As has been the case in the past, the game day broadcast begins with the Tommy Bowden Pregame Show. Bowden meets with Sports Information Director Tim Brouret to provide Clemson fans with the latest lineup and strategy information. Yanity and Merritt also provide a last-minute scene-setter that includes the latest lineup and weather information.

After the game, fans can tune into the "Fifth Quarter Show," hosted by Ralph Patterson and Munson, or attend the show live from the Wild Wing Cafe in downtown Greenville, SC. Interviews with Coach Bowden and Assistant Coaches Rob Spence and Vic Koenening are also included. An added feature includes locker room interviews with Clemson's top players that day. A rundown of the game stats and audio highlights are provided.

Fans can follow the Tigers by listening to "Tiger Calls" each Thursday evening with Bowden and Don Munson from 7:00 PM to 8:00 PM. The shows will air live from several Ingles grocery stores in the Clemson area.

The Clemson Tiger Sports Network also produces the Tommy Bowden Television Show, a recap of the previous game's highlights. Yanity serves as the host of this program that gives fans insight into the coaches' decisions during the previous game and takes an up close look at your favorite players.

For more information, contact Robert Bahagian (General Manager), Don Williams (Sales & Operations), or Matt Wynn (Account Executive) at Clemson Tiger Sports Properties, P.O. Box 552, Clemson, SC 29633-0552, or by phone at (864) 654-5544 and via fax at (864) 654-5509.
"Hungry Tigers Love Paw Paw John's"
By Tim Bourret

In celebration of the 25th anniversary of Clemson's 1981 National Championship season, we have recalled the careers of all the lettermen for the Tigers that season. This is the last installment of the series, which includes the final 11 players who lettered on that team.

#67 Jim Scott • DT
Scott was a defensive tackle from Alexandria, VA who was a reserve in 1981. He had just 11 tackles in nine games that year, but went on to become a two-year starter in 1981 and 1982. He had 53 tackles and eight tackles for loss, including six sacks in 1982, then had 35 tackles in 11 games in 1983.

Scott was known as a big-play guy. He had 100 tackles in his career, but 15 were tackles for loss and nine were sacks. In fact, Scott had one more sack than William Perry had in 1982 when Perry was an All-American.

#84 Bill Smith • DE
Smith is one of the most successful lettermen from the 1981 National Championship team. He has been successful in the real estate world near Columbia, and now serves on the Clemson University Board of Trustees.

Smith was one of the leaders of the 1981 Tiger defense that was second in the nation in scoring defense. He had an injured-plagued career, and injuries even effected his red-shirt senior season when he missed the first two games. But, he saved his best game for the last when he had a career-high 10 tackles in the Orange Bowl win over Nebraska.

The most memorable single play of his career might have come against Virginia in 1980 when he recovered a blocked punt and ran 11 yards for his only career touchdown in Clemson's come-from-behind-win in Charlottesville.

#15 Jeff Stockstill • WR
Stockstill had just four catches for 81 yards during the 1981 season, but his image is seen whenever the national championship clinching victory over Nebraska is replayed on ESPN Classic. An ingenious fellow by nature, Stockstill ran a right to Head Coach Danny Ford after the Tigers clinched the victory and is in every picture with Ford during the postgame victory-ride for the Tiger head coach.

Stockstill, whose brother Rick was a long-time assistant at Clemson and is now the head coach at Middle Tennessee, was the leading receiver on the 1982 team that finished ranked #8 in the nation with a 9-1-1 record. He had 25 catches that year, which would be comparable to a 50-catch season by today's standards.

#23 Jeff Suttle • SS
Suttle was a sophomore reserve safety on the 1981 team who had 31 tackles by season's end, second among non-starters that season. He played in every game but one that season, missing the N.C. State game due to the flu.

Suttle had his best game of the year against Virginia when he had five tackles, two tackles for loss, a sack, and an interception. His film grade was 110 percent, high among Tigers that day.

But, for this native of Lafayette, GA, his highlight of 1981 came in the win over Georgia. He had a recovered fumble in that game, one of nine turnovers forced by the Tiger defense that day.

#82 Danny Trippett • LB
Trippett was a consistent player who did not get a lot of publicity during the 1981 season, was second among the leading tackler on the awesome Clemson defense with 86 tackles. The native of North Carolina was topped only by three All-Americans on that tackle chart (Jeff Davis, Terry Kinard, Jeff Bryant).

He suffered a knee injury late in the year or he might have had even a higher ranking on the tackle chart. His best game was against Georgia that year when he had 11 tackles. It was Trippett (not Kinard, Davis, or Bryant) who was named ACC Defensive Player-of-the-Week in that 13-3 win.

Trippett has had a career in the coaching profession at the high school and college level.

#22 Perry Tuttle • WR
Tuttle adorned the cover of Sports Illustrated after Clemson's National Championship clinching win over Nebraska. His reaction after his touchdown catch from Homer Jordan in the second half is the only time an active Tiger athlete has been on the cover of Sports Illustrated. Tuttle had 52 of Clemson's 112 receptions that year. Today, he would have had 80 for over 1,200 yards. It is amazing he had the year he had, because opposing defenses knew Jordan would be looking for him at every key moment.

Tuttle was a first-team All-American in 1981, and he later went on to play in the NFL and CFL. He now has a marketing company in Charlotte, NC.

#91 Mike Wade • DE
Wade holds a distinction among 1981 lettermen. He is the first former player to send his offspring to Clemson on a football scholarship. His son Michael is red-shirting this season as a freshman quarterback.

Wade was a reserve defensive end on the 1981 team who played sparingly. He was listed as second team after 1980 spring practice. Wade later married his wife Elizabeth, who was a member of the Clemson volleyball team.

#49 Ronald Watson • DB
There were not a lot of first-year freshman who lettered on the 1981 team, but Watson was one of them. He had come to Clemson as a running back from Jefferson, GA, but he soon became a reliable, hard-hitting safety.

Watson played in six games that year on special teams and made three tackles, but by his junior year, he was one of the top defensive backs in the ACC. He had 78 tackles in 1983 on Clemson's 9-1-1 team, then had 92 tackles in 1984 as a senior when he was second on the team in tackles behind William Perry.

#65 Scott Weeks • OG
Weeks was a guard from Jackson, SC. Prior to William Perry's arrival, he wore #66. When Perry asked for that number, he gave it up and took #65. Weeks saw action in four games in 1981 as a reserve offensive guard behind some very good offensive linemen.

Weeks was a reason Clemson had such a strong ground game, as he was able to spell the starting linemen and help the Tigers average nearly 400 yards per game.

#50 Scott Williams • C
Williams was one of the Tigers' top long snappers of all-time. First of all, think back to how many blocked kicks or booted extra points Clemson had between 1981-84 Clemson's starting kickers Bob Pauling and Donald Igwebuike were All-America quality in 1981, as was then-freshman punter Dale Hatcher. Williams should get some of the credit for their success. When he was a senior, Igwebuike and Hatcher were both All-Americans, one of just two seasons in school history that Clemson has had an All-America kicker and punter in the same year.

#80 Jim Wurst • TE
Wurst was a reserve tight end on the 1981 team. The native of Atlanta, GA played in nine games that year, including a 48-play performance in the win over Maryland. Tight ends did not catch many passes in that era, as they were used as blockers for running backs Cliff Austin, Chuck McSwain, Jeff McCall, and Kevin Mack. A four-year letterman, Wurst earned his degree in agricultural engineering, the only letterman on the 1981 team to major in that academic discipline.

Tim Bourret is Clemson's Sports Information Director and is in his 29th year at Clemson.

2006 Clemson Football
HOW SERIOUS YOU ARE ABOUT TAILGATING SHOWS HOW SERIOUS YOU ARE ABOUT FOOTBALL.

Wings, Ribs, BBQ and World Famous Calabash Chicken. This is how to do a Tiger tailgate right. And this is why Fatz Cafe has been a Clemson tradition since 1988.

Please call ahead for tailgate orders.

Even game faces get thirsty.

Clemson Memorial Stadium, known to Tiger faithful as "Death Valley," seats more than 81,000 loyal fans. It is located on the western side of the Clemson University campus, while the campus is only a two-hour drive from Atlanta, Charlotte, and Columbia. The beaches of coastal South Carolina are only four hours away, while the awe-inspiring sights of the Blue Ridge Mountains can be viewed just a few miles northwest of Clemson.
Frequently Asked Questions

- Are a prospect’s parents invited for an official visit? Yes. NCAA rules allow a school to provide lodging and meals for parents or legal guardians who accompany their child. However, NCAA rules do not allow schools to provide transportation for parents unless they drive with their son.

- Can a prospect visit Clemson anytime during his high school career? Yes. A prospect can have his high school coach call Tiger coaches to set up an unofficial visit. He can attend a football game and talk with Tiger coaches, and it does not count as a contact when it is on Clemson’s campus. There are times a prospect cannot visit - NCAA rules refer to them as “dead periods,” and coaches will not schedule to meet with a prospect during that time period.

- Can IPTAY members help recruit me? No. NCAA rules are clear; only Clemson coaches can telephone, contact, and evaluate a prospect. Only college coaches can offer unofficial/official visits.

- Is the prospect’s high school coach invited for an official visit? NCAA rules are such that high school coaches may not be provided any expenses for official visits.

- What is a National Letter of Intent (NLI)? It is a contract; a prospect and his parents sign a promise that the prospect will attend a particular college. In return, that college promises a prospect financial aid. A prospect signs it during his senior year (in February for football). Once the prospect signs it, he cannot be recruited by any other institution, and it is a binding contract for the prospect’s first year in college at the school that provides the national letter of intent.

- What is an official visit? A prospect can take a total of five official visits (one per institute), which are expense-paid. Before the visit, the prospect must present a high school transcript, proof of an SAT, ACT, PACT, or PSAT test, and be registered with the NCAA Clearancehouse. Official visit invitations are extended by Tiger coaches only. Official visits may not occur prior to the first day of class of the prospect’s senior year in high school.

- What is the NCAA Clearancehouse? It is the agency that certifies a prospect’s eligibility for NCAA Division I and Division II. A prospect should register with the NCAA Clearancehouse at the end of his junior year in high school. Applications are available in the prospect’s guidance office or online at www.NCAAClearancehouse.net. Cost is $50.

Since its inception in 1991, the five-faceted Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs have provided student-athletes a continued commitment to excellence. Our approach is to address the total person, and we are committed to coaching all of our student-athletes to success, not only in the athletic arena, but in the academic, personal growth, career, and community service arenas as well. We provide opportunities and services to address the changing needs and skills of student-athletes during college and after graduation.

Vickery Hall is a $3-million structure that is as impressive aesthetically as any of the other Clemson University facilities. The importance of Vickery Hall to the Clemson athletic department is not found in the structure itself, but in the many programs that the building houses.

Vickery Hall opened in the fall of 1991 and was the first facility in the country constructed solely for the all-around academic support of student-athletes. The two-story, 27,000 square-foot building is open all day and into the evening hours to accommodate student-athletes’ extended schedules. It is a vital reason why the number of student-athletes on the ACC and Clemson Academic Honor Rolls has continued to grow since its opening.

Our programs are dedicated to providing a holistic, educational experience by inspiring an environment of respect, integrity, and excellence.

Through our services, we guide and encourage each individual to reach his or her full potential as a student, as an athlete, and as a citizen.

Vickery Hall Values

We believe that you can win ACC and National Championships with men and women who strive for academic and athletic excellence, and who share values of honesty, open communication, fairness, balance in their personal life, integrity, life-long learning, accountability, and commitment.

Vickery Hall Staff Members:

- are able to communicate with peers and adults.
- are exposed to the best in academic support.
- are able to communicate with peers and adults.
- are exposed to the best in academic support.
- understand that they are expected to perform at their highest level in the classroom and on the playing field.
- understand that they are obligated to follow rules, train for championships, and receive their undergraduate degrees.
- realize that in exchange for their participation in intercollegiate athletics, they receive a college education, a network of support, and life-long relationships.

Vickery Hall Facts

- Named in honor of Dean Kenneth Vickery, long time Clemson Faculty Athletic Representative
- Located in the heart of Clemson’s campus
- Built around the five CHAMPS commitments - academic, athletic, personal growth, community service, and career development
- Employs two learning specialists
- Offers both wired and wireless internet connections
- Recipient of Division I Athletic Director Award of Excellence
- Employs a staff of 10 full-time employees, all with at least a master’s degree in counseling or education
- Experience of the staff in academic advising exceeds a combined 45 years
- Employs over 60 tutors, a majority of which have either an undergraduate degree or pursuing an advanced degree.

Construction of Component I of the WestZone Initiative at Memorial Stadium is ahead of schedule and will be completed for the season opener on September 2 when the Tigers play host to Florida Atlantic. Visually from the field, the area resembles a construction site during the 2005 season, but that will not be the case in 2006.

On opening day this year, Clemson fans will see a completed WestZone Club seating area that will feature over 970 new orange back seats, complimented by a common climate-controlled lounge area that will feature specialty food and beverage, television monitors for replays, and other exclusive amenities. The club-level seats are sold out for the 2006 season, and were actually sold out prior to construction.

Fans will also benefit from a concourse walkway that connects the North and South stands. It offers additional restrooms and concession areas, new seating for wheelchair-bound spectators, and other game-day amenities. Additional seats in the "pie" areas to the right and left of the West stands will also be completed. The new scoreboard at the East end of the Stadium, complete with state-of-the-art video replays, is also a feature of Component I, and was operational during the 2005 season.

While fans attending games at Death Valley this season will see these visible enhancements to the stadium, Clemson's student-athletes will enjoy a finished locker room area that is nearly twice the size of the previous locker room area. New wooden lockers, carpeting, and photo montages depicting the Tigers' football heritage are prominently featured in the new locker room. The visiting team's locker room was completed last season as well.

Since the announcement of the WestZone Initiative in 2004, Head Coach Tommy Bowden and his staff have seen a steady improvement in the quality of young men (athletically and academically) who are considering Clemson University. A look to the recruiting rankings of many services is consistent with that feeling.

"It is not a coincidence that the quality of our recruiting classes has improved dramatically since we began moving dirt and pouring mortar in the West Zone of Memorial Stadium," said Bowden.

"Our fans who follow the program closely see that in the recruiting service rankings, but I see it through personal contact with the quality of young men who are now considering and selecting Clemson. As we continue to build and eventually finish the WestZone Initiative, it will help us reach the championship-quality program we all strive for."

Component II and Component III of the WestZone Initiative will have a further positive effect on Clemson recruiting efforts and the overall quality of the Tiger Athletic Program. Component II will include new offices for the football coaching staff, position-team meeting rooms, a new team meeting room, football administration offices, a player lounge area, an aquatic training facility, a lower concourse entrance area that will include personal plaques of each current Tiger, and a 15,000 square-foot strength training facility.

"The Capital Campaign's original goal was to raise $27 million," said Senior Associate Athletic Director Bill D'Andrea. "To date, we have raised $16.3 million, and I am optimistic we will raise the remaining $10.7 million that will allow us to complete Component II and move our football operations to Memorial Stadium. That is our immediate goal."

Component III will feature a Clemson Museum that will include Clemson's university, military, and athletic history, and a new Lettermen's Lounge. Based on estimates by an architecture firm and an independent estimator, the cost to complete Component I was predicted to be $30 million when the evaluation took place in 2003. However, due to the construction market climate and the rising costs of materials, Component I cost roughly $40 million when it was completed this summer. Funds for Component I have been raised through private donations.
the assistance of IPTAY, existing athletic department funds, and through the issue of state bonds.

Additional funds will be needed to complete Component III, which includes the Clemson Museum and the Lettermen’s Area. Former Clemson University President Phil Prince and former Executive Director of IPTAY Joe Turner are the co-chairmen of the WestZone Initiative. The total cost of the three components combined should be approximately $70 million.

“We certainly feel a sense of urgency to complete Component II and Component III,” said Athletic Director Dr. Terry Don Phillips. “We have been behind in this area, and we feel the completion of this project will put us ahead when it comes to facilities. But, we are going to make sound decisions from a fiscal standpoint that won’t handicap our department and university in the long-term.”

The original plans for a new football administration building were developed in 1999 prior to Phillips’ appointment as Clemson’s athletic director, and called for a separate building constructed near the football practice fields adjacent to the Jervey Athletic Center. Phillips had administered successful projects at other institutions that combined a new football facility with the construction of a club seating area. The WestZone Club will have a positive effect on the cash-flow needed to finance the overall project. Thus, it was a featured aspect of Component I.

Dr. Phillips is committed to building a model athletic program at Clemson, and he sees seven major areas that need to be addressed in reaching this accomplishment. The WestZone Project addresses five of the seven areas. Specifically, this project will:

- recruit and nurture quality student-athletes;
- attract and retain outstanding coaches and staff;
- give Clemson competitive facilities;
- promote Clemson’s school spirit and rich traditions;
- assure sound fiscal accountability.

After the 2003 season, Clemson built a new football locker room in the Jervey Athletic Center and renovated the strength training facility. A new artificial surface practice field was installed and a 53-yard indoor surface was purchased for the Indoor Track Facility for use during inclement weather.

“The renovations we made in 2004 provide our team with a quality environment during the present time, but the new facilities inside the WestZone will be among the best nationally,” said Dr. Phillips.

“After meeting with Dr. Phillips on April 25, I have a general understanding of the construction schedule and finances that will be needed to complete the football operations aspect of the WestZone Initiative,” said Bowden. “I have the utmost confidence in the people we have leading us in this capital campaign, and know it will be among the best football facilities in the country when it is completed.”

The entire 19 sports program will benefit from the WestZone Project, because it will allow Clemson’s Olympic sports improved facilities as well. The current football locker room (built in 2004) in the Jervey Athletic Center will be converted into separate locker rooms for Olympic sports. There will be less congestion and less scheduling conflicts in the strength training room at the Jervey Athletic Center. The McFadden Building will give Olympic sports more office space.

“The WestZone Initiative will become the front door to Death Valley and our athletic facilities landscape,” said Dr. Phillips. “Facilities aren’t the end all, but they are extremely important in the recruiting process. They can put you in position to become successful, both athletically and academically.”

In 2006, Clemson signed a football recruiting class that ranked among the top 16 in the nation according to three different services. While there are many factors to consider when a young man is trying to select a university to further his career, it is apparent that facilities are an important aspect.

One of the country's top heart and vascular teams is right here.

It's one thing to shout "We're number 1!" But we're willing to go on the offense, and stand behind that claim with the statistics. AnMed Health Heart and Vascular Care outperforms all Upstate hospitals in the treatment of heart attack and open heart surgery.

We're ranked in the top 10% of U.S. hospitals for open heart surgeries and treatment of heart attacks by Medicare. And we've earned five (out of five) stars in stroke care from HealthGrades.

We may not shout as loudly as some, but we've got the quality data and the outcomes and the experts to prove our claim. And we invite you to check it out at www.anmedhealth.org.

When it comes to your heart and vascular care, we're in this together.

The ACC’s Instant Replay at a Glance:

Objective: To allow for specific types of officiating calls to be immediately reviewed & corrected.

Principles: There must be INDISPUTABLE VIDEO EVIDENCE for any on-the-field call to be changed. In addition, a review must have a direct, competitive effect on the game, such as a change of possession, scoring play, etc.

The ACC will be using instant replay for every game during the 2006 season. In addition, the instant replay system is no longer experimental and has been added to the NCAA rule book ensuring that each conference will follow the same guidelines.

Reviewable Plays:
1. Plays governed by sideline, goal line and end line:
   a) Scoring plays, including a runner breaking the plane of the goal line.
   b) Pass complete/incomplete/intercepted at sideline, goal line and end line.
   c) Runner/receiver in or out of bounds.
   d) Recovery of loose ball in bounds.
   e) A loose ball touching a sideline, goal line or an end line.

2. Passing Plays:
   a) Pass ruled complete/incomplete/intercepted anywhere in the field of play and end zones.
   b) Touching of a forward pass by an ineligible receiver.
   c) Touching of a forward pass by a defensive player.
   d) Quarterback (passer) forward pass or fumble (if ruled incomplete, the play is finalized).
   e) Illegal forward pass or illegal handing beyond the line of scrimmage.
   f) Illegal forward pass or illegal handing after change of possession.
   g) Forward or backward pass thrown from behind the line of scrimmage.

3. Miscellaneous Reviewable Plays:
   a) Runner ruled to have fumbled (if ruled down, the play is not reviewable).
   b) Forward progress errors with respect to first down.
   c) Touching of a kick.
   d) Number of players on field.
   e) A scrimmage kicker beyond the line of scrimmage when the ball is kicked.
   f) Clock adjustments.
   g) Fourth-down/try fumble plays.

Not Reviewable Plays:
1. Holding.
2. Offside/encroachment.
3. Pass interference.
4. Personal fouls (e.g., late hits).
5. Illegal blocks.
6. Illegal formations.
7. Face mask.
8. Taunting/excessive celebration.
10. Roughing the passer/kicker.
11. Fighting participants.

Coaches Challenge Added to Instant Replay
The head coach of either team may request that the game be stopped and a play be reviewed by challenging the on-field ruling.
- A coach initiates this challenge by taking a team timeout before the ball is next put in play and informing the referee that he is challenging the ruling of the previous play. The head coach who has challenged the original ruling is not permitted any other challenge during the game.
- After a review has been completed, if the on-field ruling is reversed, that team’s timeout will not be charged.
- After a review has been completed, if the on-field ruling is not reversed, that team’s timeout counts as one of the three permitted that team for that half.
- A head coach may not challenge a ruling in which the game was stopped and a decision has already been made by the Replay Official.
- If a head coach requests a team timeout to challenge an on-field ruling and the play being challenged is not reviewable, the timeout shall count as one of the three permitted his team during that half of the game. If all team timeouts have been used, a delay penalty will be assessed.
- A head coach may not challenge an on-field ruling if all the team’s timeouts have been used for that half.

One of the most important facilities on the Clemson athletic landscape is the strength & conditioning facility. Located in Jervey Athletic Center, it has continued to keep up with one of the most progressive areas in college sports. Director of Strength & Conditioning Joey Batson, who is in his 10th year, makes sure Clemson student-athletes in all sports are ready for competition physically.

In the summer of 2004, he oversaw a third major facility enhancement. When he came to Clemson, the facility covered 11,000 square feet. It has continued to grow and now covers nearly 15,000 square feet. It is one of the most modern all-around facilities in the country.

The following improvements were made:

- State-of-the-art sound system
- Eight flat-screen plasma televisions
- State-of-the-art ventilation system
- New lighting system
- 10 new multi-functional Clemson power racks
- Mondo-rubber flooring throughout entire weight room
- New orange upholstery on all weightlifting equipment
- New paint on surrounding walls and columns
- Carpeting in entrances and offices
- Front entrance drop ceiling
- Metal overlay for awards displays
- Reconstruction of entryway walls
- Computerized information display

The plush atmosphere provides an interesting contrast to the physical exertion that takes place within the facility. When a Tiger student-athlete enters the etched-glass doors, he is greeted by nearly $700,000 worth state-of-the-art equipment.

The 10 plasma televisions are positioned throughout the facility and are used for training and instruction, as strength coaches film athletes and work with them on their form.

Clemson has a staff of five full-time strength coaches along with four graduate assistant coaches, and numerous student assistant coaches who ensure a Tiger football player receives as much individual attention as possible. Training programs are position specific, and are designed to meet the specific needs of each student-athlete.

Batson is one of the most highly-regarded strength coaches in the country. In his nine years directing the program, he has coached 12 strength All-Americans. He is a major reason Clemson has been to a bowl game in seven of his nine seasons. Also, eight of his former assistant strength coaches at Clemson are now strength training directors at NFL or college programs.

As Clemson prepares itself for another exciting game against state-rival South Carolina, Tiger Band looks back at the year that has quickly gone by. For many, this season was just the beginning of a good marching program.

This year, Tiger Band enjoyed a new beginning, as Dr. Brian Sproul joined the director’s staff. Sproul serves as the Assistant Director of Bands, Director of the Jazz Band, and will act as the conductor for the Concert Band in the spring.

Before coming to Clemson, Sproul earned his bachelor’s degree from Georgia, a master’s from Utah, and he will receive a doctor of musical arts degree from Alabama at graduation ceremony this semester. While at Utah, Sproul served as Assistant Director of Bands, as well as Director of the Marching Band.

Sproul is affiliated with Phi Mu Alpha National Music Fraternity and has membership in the College Band Directors National Association. Also, during his time at Utah, Sproul had the opportunity to serve as one of the directors for the Salt Lake 2002 Olympic Spirit Band. The Olympic Spirit Band performed at many of the venues during the winter games, as well as the Opening and Closing Ceremonies.

The Clemson University Band program considers itself very lucky to have Dr. Sproul as a part of its staff. Faculty and students alike look forward to time well spent with Dr. Sproul in the coming seasons.

While Dr. Sproul is just beginning to put his stamp on the Clemson campus, several Tiger Band members are celebrating their last game in Memorial Stadium today. As students at Clemson, these graduating seniors are flooded with good memories. From cookie break in Harcombe to endless hours spent in Cooper library, the campus holds a part of their spirit, and they will carry the Clemson Tiger spirit with them wherever they go.

One aspect of their experience as Clemson students that will play constantly in their memory is the time spent with Tiger Band. After walking across the stage this December, next May, or next August, these students will be able to walk across the stage and not only say "I went to Clemson," but also "I was in Tiger Band."

They can say they were a part of hot band camp, Halloween costume contests, weekends in Panama City, trips to see Mickey Mouse during bowl trips, frigid gameday rehearsals, the musical experience of "Tiger Rag" during "the most exciting 25 seconds in college football," and so much more. These are moments in their lives that will last forever.

Senior horn player David Rest is finishing his fifth marching season and looks back on his time in Tiger Band fondly. "Joining Tiger Band was the best decision I ever made at Clemson," Rest said with a smile. "I had so much fun after four years that I decided to stick around for an extra year of music and to support the Tigers, especially at away games and bowl games!"

Tiger Band CD
You can take home the sounds of Tiger Band by purchasing the group's CD, "We're An American Band." It features more than 30 tracks of favorites from previous seasons. It includes "Sock it to 'Em," "Tiger Rag," the Clemson alma mater, and a special emphasis on patriotic songs. It is available at the Tiger Band Office (119 Brooks Center) for $15. To order by mail, send a check for $17 payable to CUTBA c/o Clemson Tiger Band, 119 Brooks Center, Clemson, SC 29634-1505.

Thank you to all of our seniors for the contribution you have made to the Clemson spirit! And welcome to Dr. Sproul from all of Clemson. May the future bring great things for each of you.

"Tiger Rah!"
What is that song that Tiger Band plays after every Clemson field goal? It is "Tiger Rah!" It was the official fight song for Clemson from the mid-1930s until the 1948 season. "Tiger Rag" appeared in Clemson in 1948 and eventually replaced "Tiger Rah!" as the school's fight song, but "Tiger Rah!" continued to be played. In 1972, however, the tune was removed from Tiger Band's repertoire due to a section of Dixie that appeared within its lines. But in 2003, Director of Bands Dr. Mark Spede rearranged "Tiger Rah!," removing the section of Dixie. Tiger Band performs the song after every field goal to celebrate the history and tradition of Clemson University.

The story goes that Thomas Green Clemson’s hunting dogs responded only to his commands. That was because he had trained them in French.

From 1838 when he married John C. Calhoun’s beautiful daughter, Anna Maria, until his death in 1888, it was clear that Mr. Clemson stood out in one way or another from his upcountry South Carolina neighbors. He was not what we’d call a local boy.

If not distinguished from the crowd by his French-friendly dogs, Clemson would have certainly been so by his looks. Standing 6 feet 6 inches tall and wearing size 14 shoes, he was hard to ignore in a crowd. Handsome in his earlier years, charming and hospitable, Clemson got plenty of attention from his new neighbors when he and Anna Maria lived at the Fort Hill plantation during much of the first four years of their marriage.

Yet the thing that ultimately most set him apart from others was what went on inside his head. Thomas Clemson had a dream. And during 2007, the bicentennial year of his birth, we’ll be celebrating both the dreamer and the outcome of his vision.

Clemson considered himself a Southerner from the time of his marriage on and gave long and serious thought in his declining years as to the best way he could help South Carolina recover from the Civil War. The solution he devised, with input and support from his wife, has impacted the lives of more than 125,600 men and women who have received degrees over the past 113 years since Clemson Agricultural College first opened its campus to 446 students. Countless others have benefited from special studies and public service activities through the years.

Today, we are sitting on — and surrounded by — Thomas Clemson’s dream.
Quest for Knowledge

He had been born in Philadelphia in July 1807. Son of a wealthy merchant and his wife, he lived a privileged and adventurous life, acquiring a classical education and credentials that led to his profession as a mining engineer in the years before his marriage at age 31.

Clemson's father had died when he was a boy of seven but left him a generous legacy that ensured a superior education. The young Clemson enrolled at 16 at what is now Norwich University in Vermont, where he received basic instruction in both the arts and sciences. Three years later, he was studying at the Sorbonne in Paris, where he also attended the Royal School of Mines. There he received a diploma as an assayer.

In Paris, Clemson developed an enduring appetite for the arts and for intellectual life. He spoke fluent French and several other languages. He began to paint. He played the piano and violin. As a student, he participated in 1830 in the overthrow of Charles X. And he took great pleasure in the exhilarating social life of Paris.

Life of Accomplishment

Clemson returned to the United States at age 26 and rapidly began accruing reputation and fortune in his field. He traveled widely, and on one of his frequent trips to Washington met Senator Calhoun's daughter. They married the same year after a whirlwind courtship.

Using his influence as U.S. secretary of state, Calhoun saw his son-in-law, with whom he shared a close personal and intellectual relationship, named charge d'affaires to King Leopold's Court in Belgium in 1844. The Clemsons remained there until spring of 1851, the year after Calhoun's death, when they returned to the United States to live in Maryland.

The years abroad had been highly successful as well as stimulating for Clemson and Anna Maria. There, Clemson began collecting art and interesting furniture — both for himself and for friends at home. One chair from this period, a distinctive gift from the king, is in the parlor of Fort Hill today.

Clemson's interest in scientific education was evident during the Maryland years. He was instrumental in the establishment of Maryland Agriculture College, now the University of Maryland. In 1860, he worked for the federal government in Washington as superintendent of agricultural affairs, a precursor to the new position of secretary of agriculture.

The next year, war began. Although his wife remained on their property in Maryland, Clemson — though conflicted in his mind about secession — joined the Confederacy along with his son, John Calhoun Clemson. Some years after the war, Fort Hill passed to Anna Maria and became home to the family until Clemson's death at age 81.

Flight of the South

Despite the variety and accomplishment of his early life and middle age, we tend to remember Thomas Clemson as a sad and lonely elderly man, brooding about past losses and sitting on his porch at Fort Hill pondering the dismal present and dim future of the South. He was sometimes irascible, too, feuding with neighbors over cows and fences and contested millponds, or dunning relatives for overdue loan payments.

Granted, Clemson had much to keep him awake at night. His personal losses over the years were so great that one can understand his once having compared his life to Job's. He and Anna Maria had lost all four of their children: an infant daughter who lived only three weeks, Cornelia to scarlet fever at age three, Florence (Mrs. Gideon Lee) suddenly in July of 1871 and John Calhoun just 17 days later in a railroad accident near Seneca. Then Mrs. Clemson herself died in 1875, leaving her husband alone at Fort Hill to think about the dream they had shared over the years.

Vision into Reality

The dream was a college that would educate South Carolina's youth and provide help for the impoverished people of the state. It would be a place for current and future generations to learn the means for bracing up the collapsed economy of the South.

It would be called Clemson Agricultural College, and in his famous will, signed in 1886, Clemson describes it in the beautiful term, "a high seminary of learning." He left what he always called "the Fort Hill place," some 814 acres of land and about $80,000 in cash and securities to the state in order to make it happen.

Despite his outward dourness in advanced age, Clemson's heart was ever warm toward his adopted state and region. His yearning to see education make an impact on the lives of South Carolina's suffering people influenced his lasting legacy. Mr. Clemson would be proud to see what his dream has created.

Kopp is a junior righty who has shown flashes of dominance with his outstanding changeup. Two more righthanders, Zocchi and Clark, came on late in 2006 to be clutch performers. Clark, who was not even on the 25-man travel roster during the regular season, earned the win in a masterful performance in Clemson’s ACC Tournament Championship victory over N.C. State. Hinson, a sophomore, is a power pitcher from the left side.

Righthanders Stephen Clyne and Matt Vaughn along with lefties Chris Fidyck, Alex Martin, and William Bond all have spent at least one year in the program. Righties Alan Farina, Justin Sarratt, Brock Schnabel, Graham Stoneburner, and Josh Thralkill along with lefty Matt Zoltak are six newcomers who will add depth to Kevin O’Sullivan’s pitching staff.

Lefthander Daniel Moskos returns as the closer. In 2006, he was unhittable at times when he totaled 10 saves and a 2.52 ERA in 33 relief appearances. The Alta Loma, CA native, who is an NCBWA Preseason Second-Team All-American, also spent this past summer as the closer for Team USA, as he helped the team to the gold medal.

In the field, one of Clemson’s biggest concerns is replacing the leadership and defensive abilities of catcher Adrian Casanova. Alex Burg and Doug Hogan are prime candidates for the starting job, as both have seen valuable innings behind the plate. Buddy Munroe is a talented freshman who will also compete for the starting role, however, he has been hampered by injury. Walk-on Adam Ward will provide depth at the position as well.

Senior Marquez Smith returns at third base after a successful first season in the Tiger program. Junior shortstop Stan Widmann fills out the other spot on the left side of the infield with two years of starting experience at the position.

On the right side, Taylor Harbin brings his fielding prowess to second base for the third straight year after committing just six errors in 2006. He also brings intangibles in terms of leadership and a strong work ethic to practice every day.

First baseman Andy D’Alessio is Clemson’s most highly-touted player. The NCBWA Preseason First-Team All-American hit 23 homers with 85 RBIs last year on his way to being a semifinalist for the Dick Howser Trophy. Tim Morris and Ben Paulsen, son of Assistant Head Coach Tom Rigginos, are two tall freshmen who will compete for innings at first base as well as DH. Freshmen J.D. Burgess and Ryan Cooper along with walk-ons David Bunnell and Michael Gegerok will also compete at the middle infield positions.

Clemson must replace first-round draft pick Tyler Colvin in left field and the steady bat of Travis Storrer in right field. D.J. Mitchell saw considerable action in the postseason at right field when Storrer went down with an injury. Red-shirt freshman Wilson Boyd showed a promising bat in his first year in the program as well.

Leggett is also excited about the prospects of freshman outfielders Addison Johnson and Alex Lee. Chalk will roam centerfield for the third straight year. The speedster has an excellent arm and is one of the best bunters in school history. He had 21 sacrifice bunts in 2006, easily eclipsing the previous school record. Chalk also hit .353 with 18 steals and 41 walks against only 21 strikeouts, and had a 467 on-base percentage to set the table for the heart of Clemson’s lineup. He enters 2007 on an active 16-game hitting streak.

Brian Hennessy is an Associate Sports Information Director in his sixth year at that position at Clemson. He previously worked as a student and graduate assistant at Clemson for six years.

The Clemson rowing program appears ready to take it to the next level. Reasons abound for the optimism held by Head Coach Susie Lueck, who is in her ninth year running the Tiger program. The team has 28 returning letterwinners, the coaching staff is on the same page, the facilities are receiving an upgrade, and the fall season has shown that Clemson has speed in its top boats.

"Chemistry is much better this year," Lueck admitted. "The student-athletes are enjoying what they're doing, which plays a big part. The fall season has gone really well. We showed at the Head of the Hooch (November 4) that we have tremendous depth in this program. The competition to earn each seat is going to take the team higher than we've ever been before."

Lueck's reference to the highly-regarded Head of the Hooch Regatta, which took place a few weeks ago on the Tennessee River, was supported by outstanding results produced by the team. The Tigers' top-two 4+ boats finished fourth and fifth, respectively, in a large field, just 0.3 seconds apart. The Tigers also performed well at the Head of the Charles in Boston, MA on October 22.

In the championship 8+, Clemson's first varsity boat was 21st and right on the nose of several nationally-prominent programs. The last race of the fall season was the Rivanna Romp, where Clemson's novice 8+ boat was second in a strong field, showing the promising youth that exists on the current team.

Four seniors have held down spots in the varsity 8+ during the fall season and are expected to maintain their level of performance heading into the spring. First and foremost among the senior class is returning All-American Sarah Cooper. She was cited as first-team all-region by the Collegiate Rowing Coaches Association, and she was an All-ACC performer during the 2006 season. Cooper has held the #8 seat with the varsity 8+ the entire fall season.

Fellow seniors who have rowed with the Tigers' top boat this fall include Barbi Breimann, Brittny Gamble, and Kristen Weinacker. All are former letterwinners, and Weinacker is returning after a red-shirt season. Some of the other top performers who have made their way into the varsity 8+ this fall and should be significant contributors in the spring are Ford Heiner, Jessica Leidecker, Lindsay Sheppard, and Suzanne Van Fleet.

The juniors in the top boat were members of an outstanding novice 8+ crew that won an ACC title in 2005. Lueck also cited the sophomore class that participated in the novice 8+ races a year ago, and believes that group's experience should only help push the upperclassmen to elevate their performance level in practice.

Sophomores who have rowed with the second varsity 8+ during the fall season include Meg Bendik, Caroline Borgan, Melanie McDaniel, Caitlin O'Neill, and Nicole Rau. Those five girls have teamed with Blair Bendle, Lizzie Jennings, and Kathryn Wait, and have shown good boat speed during the fall aerobic season.

"It is exciting to see how much the sophomore class has improved this fall," Lueck said. "They will continue to make those kinds of improvements this winter. By spring, they will be really competitive and knocking on the door of the varsity 8+. They keep pushing the varsity 8+ to work harder."

Lueck's top returning coxswains are Abbey Fernandez, who has two years of experience in various boats, and Elyse Roenick, the varsity 8+ coxswain in the fall.

"The team has had a great attitude and work ethic in the fall," Lueck noted. She also saw the fatigue that took its toll on the team after a demanding fall schedule that included rowing practice twice per day, as well as 5000m races and academic demands.

"We've taken a lot of strokes this fall, so it will be good for the team to get some rest to get ready for the spring season," she said.

The coaching staff has seen several changes since the 2006 spring season. Kelly Lynch, longtime assistant coach under Lueck, left the program to pursue other interests. Shaw Tilton, former head coach at Tulsa, was hired as an assistant coach who also recruits for the Tiger program.

"Shaw has been an outstanding addition," Lueck explained. "He's incredibly talented and the kids love him. He's really knowledgeable about the sport."

Becca Brinker, in her second year with the program, takes over as the novice coach. Her groups have had positive races in the fall season. She is also actively involved with recruiting. Her sister Sara in her second year as the program's director of operations.

The Tigers will also have the benefit of an upgrade in facilities. Construction on a 10,000-square-foot boathouse began in the spring and is slated to be completed later this year or in early 2007. The facility will house an expanded locker room, athletic training room, expanded meeting space, and workout additions, and in the long term, coaches offices.

The spring season will provide quite a challenge for the Clemson rowing team. The Tigers get back underway in March by playing host to Eastern Michigan and Cornell in separate head-to-head regattas. The Tigers also welcome Indiana, Marist, and Purdue to town again this season for the Clemson Challenge.

The Tigers did not opt to go to the Stanford Invitational this season, because that highly-rollable regatta falls just one week prior to the ACC Championships. Instead, Clemson will participate in the San Diego Crew Classic on March 31 through April 1. Some of the top teams from the West Coast will compete in that event.

Two weeks before the conference regatta, the Tigers will travel to Washington, D.C. for the George Washington Invitational for three days of head-to-head racing with selected schools. On April 21, Clemson will host the ACC Championships for the third straight spring. The event was slated to be in Miami, FL, but unforeseen circumstances brought the conference racing back to Clemson. The Tigers will again row at regionals in Oak Ridge, TN, the same venue that will play host to the NCAA Championships in May.

"Because nationals are in Oak Ridge this season, there is a bigger desire for the women to compete here," Lueck explained. "A lot of the girls are obviously familiar with that race course because of regional competition in the past."

Clemson has not advanced to the NCAA Championships in its short rowing history. However, the Tigers have a renewed enthusiasm for 2007, which has been reflected in the team's strong results during the fall. Should Lueck's crews continue their improvement into the spring, their chances of making it to Oak Ridge will be greater than ever before.

Philip Sikes is an Assistant Sports Information Director in his third year at that position at Clemson. He previously worked as a graduate assistant at Clemson for two years.
Today is the final regular-season game and the final home game of the 2006 season.

Whenever Clemson plays South Carolina, it is a special occasion, but today will be twice as special for 20 Tiger senior football players because it is their final home game. For 16 of the 20, it has been a five-year journey, as those players red-shirted the 2002 season. For that group, including defensive end Gaines Adams, quarterback Wil Proctor, and offensive linemen Nathan Bennett and Dustin Fry, it will be their 33rd “run down the Hill.”

This will be a day of reflection for those seniors. They will not (and should not) leave the field abruptly. They will go to the Tiger Paw at midfield while the band plays the alma mater. It is a day they should take in all the color and pageantry of a Clemson football Saturday. As they leave the field, they will take one last look at the Hill, the stadium, the Ring of Honor, and that new WestZone that did not exist when their careers began.

This senior class has a lot to be proud of because they have done much to enhance Clemson's football heritage. Entering today's game with South Carolina, the group has a four-year record of 31-16. The 66.0 percent winning mark associated with that record is the best by any Tiger senior class since Brenton Buckner’s senior class had a 71.3 winning percentage (33-13-1) between 1990-93.

A victory today would give the group 32 wins, tied for the most by a senior class since 1993. The 2003 Clemson seniors posted a 32-18 record for their four seasons combined. Obviously, a win today and a bowl win would surpass that 2003 total.

This group has brought consistency to the program. Clemson has already won eight games this year, and combined with the eight wins in 2005, this is the first time since the 1986-91 era that the Tigers have won at least eight games in consecutive seasons. Believe it or not, Clemson and Georgia Tech are the only two ACC schools who have not had a losing season in ACC play over the last four years.

A bowl victory this year would give the group a 3-0 record in bowl games. No Clemson class has won three bowl games since the seniors of 1991, and it has a chance to be the first class since 1990 to go undefeated in bowl games.

This senior group has already been a part of two teams that have finished the season in the top 25 of both polls, and a third top-25 finish would also be a first for a Tiger class since the 1993 seniors.

When it comes to performance in rivalry games, this class is among the best in school history. With the 27-20 last-second victory at #9 Florida State in September, it became the first class in ACC history to defeat the Seminoles three times. It already has a 3-0 record against South Carolina, and it would love to equal the accomplishment of its immediate predecessors with a fourth straight win over Clemson’s in-state rival.

This class stands out when it comes to wins over ranked opponents. The class has nine wins over top-25 teams in its four seasons, just one shy of the Tiger record for top-25 wins in a four-year period. The seniors of 1989, 1990, and 1991 all had 10 top-25 wins. However, this group has eight top-20 wins and four top-10 wins. This class is tied for the school record in each category. The seniors of 1983 and 1989 had eight top-20 wins, and the seniors of 1983 and 2004 had four top-10 wins.

How impressive is four wins over top-10 teams in a four-year period? Danny Ford's last six senior classes in the 1980s, when Clemson had the fifth-best record in the nation, never had more than one.

Those top-10 wins stand out over the four years. It started late in the 2003 season when Clemson defeated #3 Florida State 26-10 on a Saturday night in Death Valley. That victory came on the heels of a 45-17 loss at Wake Forest.

There were many lessons learned by the 2006 seniors from the 2003 seniors the week leading up to that Florida State game. They understood the importance of never giving up even when the rest of the world was apparently crashing down on them.

Clemson finished the 2003 season with a 63-17 win at South Carolina and a 27-14 win in the Peach Bowl over #6 Tennessee, the highest-ranked team Clemson has defeated in a bowl game since the 1981 National Championship season.

This senior class also gave us a top-10 win at Miami (FL) in 2004, an overtime victory that rekindled memories of the national championship victory in the same Orange Bowl. There were also wins over top-20 teams from Florida State and South Carolina that year, two of the nine wins in the last four years over coaches who have won the national title in their respective careers.

This group has actually won each of its last four games against top-20 teams. It is the first time in 17 years that Clemson has won four straight over top-20 teams. The recent run of top-20 wins includes the aforementioned win at #9 Florida State this year, Clemson's first win in Tallahassee since 1989.

The victory over #13 Georgia Tech on October 21 was a dominant performance against a team that has not lost another ACC game this year. The senior-led offensive line provided holes for youthful backs James Davis and C.J. Spiller, leading to the first game in school history in which the Tigers had a 200-yard rusher and a 100-yard rusher.

That day will be remembered for a long time, as it was the first-ever appearance on campus by ESPN College GameDay. When GameDay comes to your city, it signifies to the nation that you are a relevant program on a national scale. This senior class has brought Clemson to that level.

The underclassmen on this 2006 Tiger team hopefully have learned many lessons of a strong work ethic, how to put the field or film study, leadership, and academic excellence. Three members of the current seniors already have their degrees and 10 will join them in December.

The underclassmen should also have learned what it is to be a good teammate. In August, the story of Ray Ray McElrathbey and his custody of his 11-year-old brother Fahmarr received national headlines. A big part of the story was the aid the brothers received from the rest of the team.

Prior to the NCAA's ruling allowing staff members and their immediate families to provide transportation for Fahmarr to school, teammates, most of them seniors, provided the transportation. One morning it would be Adams, another day it would be Chansi Stuckey, and another day it would be Anthony Waters who would arrive at an early hour at his apartment to take Fahmarr to school. Other seniors provided help financially or in other everyday tasks, as the older McElrathbey juggled the responsibilities of being a parent and a student-athlete.

These were all seniors helping a freshman. The on-the-field accomplishments of this senior class are considerable. But years from now when I reflect on this group, it will be the example they set through their aid for a freshman teammate that I will remember the most.
