O'Rourke-McFadden Trophy to the Winner

For the fourth time, Clemson and Boston College will play for a trophy. The Boston College Gridiron Club began sponsoring the O’Rourke-McFadden Trophy in 2006. Clemson won it in the first season with a 27-21 victory at Boston College, then won it in 2009 with a 25-7 win at Clemson. Last year, Boston College took the trophy with a hard-fought 16-10 victory at Chestnut Hill.

The trophy features a leather helmet replica of those used by Charlie O’Rourke (Boston College) and Banks McFadden (Clemson). They competed against each other in the 1940 Cotton Bowl at Dallas, TX.

In addition to the trophy presentation, the Boston College Gridiron Club will present a replica leather helmet to the MVP of the winning school. The helmet will reflect the colors of the winning team.

Scouting Boston College

Two of the top players in the ACC will be on display when Boston College faces the Tigers today. Running back Montel Harris, who has been a thorn in Clemson’s side over the years, is the leading active rusher in the ACC with 3,635 yards and could become the ACC’s career rushing leader by season’s end.

Harris missed the first three games of the season due to an injury, then played sparingly in the Eagles’ victory over Massachusetts. Playing a full game for the first time last weekend against Wake Forest, Harris totaled 108 yards on 22 carries and gave life to the Eagles’ running attack. Last year against Clemson, Harris accumulated 143 yards on 37 carries and added a 36-yard receiving touchdown, Boston College’s only offensive touchdown of the game. The carry total tied for the third-most against Clemson in history.

On defense, Boston College is led by junior linebacker Luke Kuechly. He was a unanimous first-team All-American last year as sophomore, joining Clemson’s DaQuan Bowers as first-team All-Americans from the ACC on defense. Kuechly has an incredible string of 27 consecutive games with double-digit tackles, and his 83 tackles for this year lead the nation. He had 14 tackles against the Tigers last year to lead the Boston College defense. The streak goes back to the fifth game of his freshman year, as it is the longest active streak in the nation.

Tigers Off to a 5-0 Start

Clemson has a 5-0 record for the first time since the 2000 season, when the Tigers started 8-0. It is just the ninth start of at least 5-0 in school history.

Clemson is 2-0 in the ACC to start the season for the first time since 2007, when the Tigers defeated Florida State and N.C. State to start the year. Clemson has not won its first three ACC games to start the season since 2000, when it started 5-0 in the ACC. However, Dabo Swinney’s team has a chance to do it today.

Clemson has won five straight games to open this season against five teams who won some type of a championship last year. The Tigers have topped Troy (Sun Belt Conference Champion), Wolford (Southern Conference Champion), Auburn (National Champion), Florida State (ACC Atlantic Division Champion), and Virginia Tech (ACC Champion) this season.

On the Cover

On the cover of today’s program are seniors Andre Branch (44) and Dawson Phommachan (149), who will lead the Tigers in their attempt to regain the O’Rourke-McFadden Trophy. Also featured are various homecoming pictures.
Stopping Streaks & Landmark Wins

On September 17, Clemson ended Auburn's 17-game winning streak, the longest streak in Auburn history, the longest active streak in the nation, and the longest streak Clemson has ended in history. Clemson also ended its 14-game losing streak to Auburn. Clemson had not beaten Auburn since 1951.

At Virginia Tech last weekend, Clemson ended the Hokies' 12-game ACC winning streak, their 14-game regular-season winning streak, and their five-game winning streak against Clemson. The Tigers had not beaten Virginia Tech since 1989.

Three in a Row Over Top-25 Ranked Teams

With last Saturday's win over #10 Virginia Tech, Clemson became the first ACC team in history to win three consecutive games over top-25 ranked opponents. Two weeks ago, the Tigers defeated #19 Auburn. Last weekend, Clemson downed #11 Florida State.

Clemson had won back-to-back games over ranked teams just four times previously (1982, 1988, 95, and 1999). Georgia Tech (1959) and Virginia Tech (2002) have won three games in three weeks over ranked teams, but they were not in the ACC at the time of their accomplishments.

Saturday's win at Virginia Tech was Clemson's 20th road win over a ranked team in its history, but its first by 20 points. The Tigers' previous largest margin of victory over a ranked team on the road was 11 points, a 28-17 win at #19 North Carolina in 1994 and a 34-23 win at #16 Florida State in 1989.

Tigers Up to #8 in the Polls

Clemson moved from unranked in both polls to #8 in both with its three straight wins over top-20 teams. It is the highest ranking for the Tigers since October 22, 2000, when Clemson was #5 in the AP poll and #4 in the coaches poll after an 8-0 start to the year. The Tigers were ranked in the top 10 for six straight weeks that season.

The last time Clemson was ranked in the top 10 was in the 2008 preseason poll when the Tigers were #9 in both polls. The last time Clemson was ranked in the top 10 during the regular season was 2006. Clemson was #10 after a 7-1 start. The Tigers then dropped out of the top 10 with a 24-7 loss at Virginia Tech. Ironically, Clemson entered the top 10 for the first time since that loss at Virginia Tech with a victory over the Hokies in Blacksburg last weekend.

Allen Continues Outstanding Play

 Tight end Dwayne Allen continued his stellar play in the win at Virginia Tech. He had four receptions for 75 yards and a touchdown to lead Clemson receivers on the day. His 32-yard touchdown catch in the third quarter gave Clemson a 14-point lead on the way to its 23-3 victory.

Allen was named national Tight end of the week by the College Football Performance Awards for his outing against Virginia Tech. It was the second time this year he was honored with a national tight end award. He received the same honor from the John Mackey Award Committee for his performance in the win over #19 Auburn.

Branching Out in Home State

Andre Branch, a Richmond, VA native, had a career-high 11 tackles, a career-high six tackles for loss, and a career-high four sacks in Clemson's win at Virginia Tech. His tackle for loss and sack totals tied for most in Clemson history. He tied Keith Adams, who had six tackles for loss and four sacks against Duke in 1999, therefore Branch set the school records for those two categories by a defensive lineman.

For his efforts, Branch was named national defensive player-of-the-week by the College Football Performance Awards. He became the first ACC player with at least three sacks in a game this year.

When it's football season in Clemson country, Tiger fans load up their tailgate tables with our fresh and delicious Lip Lickin' Fried Chicken. Which means plenty of lips are gonna get licked before the visiting team does.
Andre Branch knew at an early age that he was meant to play football. He played his first down on the gridiron at the age of seven and flourished right away. While growing up, he played a variety of sports in Richmond, VA, however, football was his calling.

“I love playing basketball and I still play this day, but football was and still is for me, because it allows me to play and show my emotion the most.”

Branch has quite a few influences, and these have shaped not only the man, but also the player that he is today.

“I try to do everything I do to the best of my ability for my mom, and for my grandfathers looking down on me from Heaven,” said Branch. “I want to do everything I can to make them proud with my actions, on and off the playing field.”

Branch was dominant on the football field and on the hardwood at Varina High School. Over his final two seasons, Varina High was 20-3 and had one of the top defenses in the nation. In his senior year, Branch tallied 62 tackles, seven tackles for loss, three sacks, and two caused fumbles. He also intercepted two passes as an outside linebacker, including one he returned for a touchdown on his way to earning first-team all-district honors.

Branch followed that spectacular football season by nearly averaging a double-double on the hardwood (14 points, eight rebounds) to go with four blocks per game. He was named all-district in basketball as well.

While multiple schools recruited him to play basketball, he knew football was his true calling and he a tough decision to make. With three schools from the ACC recruiting him, the decision came down to where he felt the most comfortable. In the end, he chose Clemson over Florida State, N.C. State, and West Virginia.

“It just felt like home,” stated Branch. “I loved the coaching staff and the atmosphere at Clemson.”

When Branch arrived on campus, it did not take long for him to feel right at home. The 2007 season, one that saw Branch redshirt, also saw him make a memory that will last a lifetime.

"I will never forget my first game, a night game in Death valley versus Florida State on ESPN. I didn’t even dress out, but it was an amazing feeling to know I was a part of the Clemson Family.”
That Labor Day matchup saw the Tigers defeat the Seminoles, one of the teams that had recruited Branch out of high school. It only solidified that he made the right decision to join the Tiger program. Four years later, he celebrated one of the best team victories of his career when the Tigers defeated the #11 Seminoles 35-30 two weeks ago.

The 2008 season saw Branch finally take the field. He appeared in seven contests for the Tigers and averaged over 20 snaps per game. He saw his most snaps (36) against Alabama in the Georgia Dome in the season opener. He finished the season with 11 tackles, including a tackle for loss.

In 2009, Branch appeared in all 14 games for a Tiger defense that finished in the top 25 nationally in seven defensive categories. He tallied 46 tackles, eight tackles for loss, and two sacks as a sophomore.

Branch had a four-game stretch in which he had a tackle for loss in each game. The Tigers won all four games, including a thrilling overtime victory on the road at #8 Miami (FL). He also helped the Tigers to the ACC Atlantic Division title and a final top-25 ranking.

The 2010 season presented a new challenge to Branch, because he was asked to fill the starting role at bandit end, which was vacated by NFL draft pick Ricky Sapp. Then Branch showed his all-around abilities by playing a linebacker position against Georgia Tech’s vaunted running attack, helping Clemson to a 27-13 victory. He was a big reason Georgia Tech scored just one touchdown.

Branch stepped in and picked up right where Sapp left off with 55 tackles, 7.5 tackles for loss, and five sacks in 2010. He played his best against top competition, registering solid games versus Auburn, Florida State, and South Carolina.

His 2011 season and personal goals are very simple...to win a championship, but more importantly, to be a leader.

“I want to be a leader not only on the field, but also in the classroom and in the community,” said the fifth-year senior.

Branch has gotten off to a great start, leading the team in tackles from his defensive line position. Through five games, he has 34 tackles, including 11 against Wofford’s option offense and five against Auburn’s spread offense. He also enjoyed experiencing the victory over Florida State in a big reason the Seminoles totaled just 29 rushing yards.

But it was his performance in his home state against #10 Virginia Tech last weekend that he might remember the most. In the Tigers’ convincing 23-3 win, he tied a school record with six tackles for loss and four sacks along with 11 tackles, as Clemson held the Hokies out of the endzone for the first time since the 1990s.

As charismatic as a person as Branch is, it is easy to see why people look up to him and want to get to know him.

“I love walking around campus and meeting new people,” admitted Branch. “We are a family here, and I want to get to know my family members.”

The Tigers hot start has a lot to do with Branch’s play and a Tiger defense that has stepped up when called upon. Clemson has already defeated the defending National Champions (Auburn), the ACC Atlantic Division Champions (Florida State), and the ACC Champions (Virginia Tech) this season.

The Tigers have faced a defending conference or division champion every game so far this season and are currently well on their way to potentially having their own championship season, fulfilling the team goal of “One Team, One Dream.”

Branch brings this charisma and confidence onto the field with him every week as well. After every play, you will see #40 moving towards his teammates to motivate them or the fans. He believes there is no other way to play the game than with the swagger he brings to every play.

“If you are not going to give everything you have on every play, there is no reason for you to be out there. It is a great opportunity to play at Clemson and I have to go as hard as I can every play, not only for myself and my team, but for the fans.”

As Branch’s Clemson career comes to an end following this season, he has one goal that is higher than the rest.

“I want to finish my sociology degree.”

A career in football is also most likely on the horizon for Branch, who is a highly-rated prospect on many draft boards (including #25 on Mel Kiper’s “Big Board”).

When asked about those rankings in a recent interview, Branch responded by saying, “Hopefully, I will be given a chance to play and pursue a career in football. It would be a blessing.”

EVEN THOUGH THE TIGER SENIOR PICKED UP FOOTBALL LATE IN HIS YOUTH, HE HAS PROVEN THAT HE IS A NATURAL AT PUNTING.

BY TARA SHORES
awson Zimmerman knows the importance of family and faith. The parents and two brothers of Clemson's starting punter have been his support through many of his decisions. They were by his side when he started playing football, and they continue to encourage and strengthen him as he finishes his last semester of his undergraduate degree. His mother, in particular, has been an inspiration for the way that he has conducted himself during his college years.

"My mom has been a huge influence to me in her devotion and the way that she is a woman of God," explained Zimmerman. "She cares for me and my brothers, and it's something that is unique and special. I try to model a lot of my life after what I see her do and the way I see her love other people, the way she spreads joy, and the way she cares for people of all walks of life."

Following his mother's example, Zimmerman has involved himself in many community service and outreach programs over the past few years. He traveled to Saint Louis, MO and Memphis, TN with Clemson FCA to volunteer and serve organizations in each city. He has also volunteered his time at Shriners Hospital, Serenity Place Boys Academy, and Clemson Elementary School.

Even before college, Zimmerman was serving others, as he traveled to Biloxi, MS to help with the Hurricane Katrina relief effort and to Ecuador. However, service was not the only thing he was becoming more passionate about.

Zimmerman was a soccer player in high school who decided to try football "for kicks." After practicing some with the Brookwood High team, he quickly realized that he had a natural talent for punting. By his senior season, he was ranked as the #2 punter in the nation by Scout.com and was being recruited by many colleges.

"I was naturally blessed with the talent to kick a football," admitted Zimmerman. "When I started training and getting better, I started getting noticed by colleges. That's when I knew that I might have a future in football."

Zimmerman chose Clemson over other colleges, because after praying with his family, he believed that it was where God wanted him to be. Since joining the Tigers and football team, he has been training every summer with a kicking coach and working hard to improve upon his natural abilities.

Over the past three seasons, Zimmerman has put in a lot of hard work, both in the weightroom with the team and on his own. He has put in countless hours alone in Death Valley, punting footballs in the cold and working to mature on and off the field. It has also helped him become mentally stronger as well as better technically.

After beginning his career in a tough matchup against #24 Alabama in the first game of his freshman season, Zimmerman had notable games against Wake Forest and Georgia Tech later that year.

In his sophomore season, he totaled 19 punts inside the 20, including two in the Music City Bowl victory over Kentucky. He averaged at least 40 yards per punt against Middle Tennessee, Boston College, Miami (FL), and Florida State. His performance in the overtime victory at #8 Miami was pivotal in terms of field position, and to this day, he marks it as one of his fondest memories.

In 2010, Zimmerman was named team specialist-of-the-year and was selected as one of 10 semifinalists for the Ray Guy Award, which honors the nation's best punter. He had a 42.7-yard punting average and 19 punts inside the 20. His 2010 season also included nine punts of 50+ yards and a net punting average of 40.6 yards that was third-best in school history. He averaged at least 40 yards per punt nine times, including two games with an average in the 50s.

Zimmerman led Clemson to a #24 national finish in net punting and secured himself a place in the recordbooks with two of the longest punts in Tiger history, a 79-yarder against North Texas and a 76-yarder at Boston College.

However, his best play of the year might have taken place against N.C. State, when he made a leaping catch of an errant snap and got the punt off in time to pin N.C. State deep in its own territory on its final drive of the game. The Tigers won the game 14-13, and he was named Clemson's special teams player-of-the-game for that effort.

Entering his senior season, Zimmerman was seventh in school history in punting average (40.6). In the first five games this season, he has averaged 42.4 yards per punt, including a 39.4-yard net average and eight punts inside the 20.

His goal for the season is to simply keep his eye on the games in front of him.

"This year, I have been approaching everything on a one-punt basis," said Zimmerman. "For each punt, I don't think about the last one or the ones in the future, I just try to focus on that punt and my technique."

Aside from punting, Zimmerman excels in the classroom with a career GPA of 3.93. In 2009-10, he was selected as the football representative for Clemson's All-Academic team and was named Academic All-ACC in both his sophomore and junior seasons. However, balancing football and academics has been anything but easy for the English major, who recalls writing through the night on Thursdays and then heading straight to lift weights on Friday morning.

"It's tough for any student-athlete who takes studies seriously," said Zimmerman. "It's one of those things where you have to learn how to manage your time. It takes a different amount of drive that not a lot of people have if you are going to be successful on the field and, more importantly, in the classroom."

Even though he already accomplished much in his career, Zimmerman has set his sights higher this season. He has already been selected as a candidate for the Lowe's Senior Class Award as the FBS' top senior student-athlete. He is also a candidate for a National Football Foundation Scholarship, an award only one Clemson football player (Kyle Young) has received in the last 33 years.

After college, Zimmerman would like to try to attain a master's degree in English or an MFA in creative writing. With the support of his family and the drive to succeed, he will do well, but with faith, he believes he will accomplish so much more.

"Do you not know that in a race, all the runners run, but only one gets the prize?" says 1 Corinthians 9:24-25. "Run in such a way as to get the prize. Everyone who competes in the games goes into strict training. They do it to get a crown that will not last, but we do it to get a crown that will last forever."

Zimmerman epitomizes this verse, training hard to be the best punter in Clemson history, studying with dedication to make the most of his education, and serving the community to leave a lasting impression on those around him.

There is no certainty that Hollywood would accept the script. But if ever produced, the movie would likely be an inspiration to all who watched it. The central character experiences every human emotion, overcomes adversity, realizes dreams, and leaves the viewer smiling as the end is still unfolding. For Tony Elliott, this is no movie. For Tony Elliott, this is his life's journey.

Elliott is in his first season as running backs coach at Clemson. He arrived in Tigertown after previous stops at S.C. State and Furman. As a wide receiver, Elliott lettered four times (2000-03) for the Tigers. The young coach has quite a biography early in his career, but it is his path to Clemson that amazes so many.

After lettering in football, basketball, and baseball at James Island (SC) High School, he looked to Furman as the place he would continue his football career. When his plans with the Paladins did not work out, he found himself at the Air Force Prep School in Colorado. Still not the correct fit, Elliott arrived in Clemson in 1999, thinking his football career was over. He set his sights on an engineering degree.

Convinced by a member of the football team to walk on, Elliott did just that. It did not take long for him to make an impact, as he earned a letter in the 2000 season covering kickoffs.

Elliott went on to play 44 games in his career, including four as a starter in 2003. He had two career touchdown receptions, both against Georgia Tech. The first came in the rain against the Yellow Jackets in 2002, a 24-19 Tiger win. The other came in Atlanta the following year in a 39-3 victory.

Elliott’s impact on his teammates and the entire program cannot be measured by statistics. By his senior season, he had been named the team’s “most respected player” in a survey conducted by Anderson Independent-Mail. Both players and coaches recognized Elliott’s work ethic and leadership qualities. He was named a captain of a team that finished 9-4, ranked #22 in the country, and recorded the highest-ranked win in Tiger history with a 26-10 victory over #3 Florida State.

In the hotel prior to the South Carolina game that season, Clemson players gathered for one last team meeting before heading to the stadium. It was the weekend before Thanksgiving, and team chaplain Darren Bruce asked each player to stand and state something for which they were thankful.

In an unforgettable speech that I witnessed, Elliott thanked his teammates for being his extended family. He told the story of how as a young boy in California, he was in a car accident with his mother and sister.

Elliott spoke of the horror of that day, as his mother tragically died in the accident. He explained the difficult circumstances involving the relationship with his father and how he moved east to live with his aunt. He also shared with his teammates that while many of them had mothers and fathers traveling to watch them play, he did not. He said his teammates were his family. They were what he was thankful for.

No one moved or made a sound. Most of his teammates never knew the story Elliott had just shared. He concluded by assuring his teammates that the Gamecocks would get his best effort that night and asked that they do the same. The meeting ended in silence. Clemson won 63-17.

Elliott graduated from Clemson in 2002 with a team-high 3.55 GPA in industrial engineering. Upon leaving Clemson, he put his degree to use and found work as an industrial engineer. Few could have predicted he would later be re-united with the position coach from his senior season, current Tiger Head Coach Dabo Swinney.

In 2006, he ventured into college coaching when he joined the S.C. State staff as an assistant and helped the Bulldogs to consecutive 7-4 records (200607).

In 2008, Elliott joined Furman’s staff, where he worked for three seasons under Head Coach Bobby Lamb. Lamb was replaced by Bruce Fowler in December of 2010, and the new Paladin head coach decided to retain Elliott on the staff. However, when Swinney called Elliott the next month extending an offer to join the Clemson staff, the former Tiger co-caption could not refuse.

"I was working as an engineer, but I felt the Lord led me into coaching," admitted Elliott. "Once I started, I dreamed about Clemson as my ultimate opportunity in coaching. It is a blessing to be back at Clemson. In our first game, a lot of emotion came back to me as I ran down the Hill. But once the game starts, you have to focus on coaching and block the emotion out."
Q. Why did you choose Clemson?
A. There are great people here and great facilities. It reminded me a lot of home.

Q. What goal did you set for yourself this year?
A. To be the best I can be for my team.

Q. What is your most memorable college football experience?
A. Beating Miami (FL) in overtime in 2009.

Q. What do you think about before a game?
A. The hard work and dedication it took for me to get here, and what an unbelievable experience this is.

Q. What is the best part of playing for the Clemson football program?
A. The fans and my teammates.

Q. How do you prepare for a game?
A. I listen to different types of music, but mostly Ti.

Q. What have you learned most from your teammates?
A. To be accountable, both on and off the field.

Q. What is the biggest challenge of being a student-athlete?
A. It's hard to manage time. You have to give everything in your schoolwork and in football.

Q. Who has had the greatest influence on your football career?
A. My family and the mentors from my high school have all influenced me. They keep me humble and grounded.

Q. What is the biggest difference between high school and college football?
A. The talent level is much greater in college. Everyone counts on you a lot more, too.

Clemson climbed from the third tier to a top-25 ranking among public universities in the 2011 U.S. News & World Report guide to colleges, and it has been recognized for value, affordability, and return on investment by Kiplinger’s and Bloomberg/Businessweek magazines. Ninety-two percent of seniors would choose Clemson again according to the National Survey of Student Engagement. Also, Clemson is third among all public universities in the percentage of alumni who make gifts to their school. That is another indication of quality and alumni satisfaction.

Clemson continues to attract top students and faculty. It is the #1 choice of Palmetto Fellows, the state’s best students. A record-setting 16,867 undergraduate and 6,082 graduate school applications were received for the fall of 2010, and just over 50 percent of the freshman class graduated in the top-10 percent of their high school classes.

The University provides an unmatched educational experience - intellectual development - for students and research-driven economic development for the state of South Carolina.

Barker is a leading voice in higher education for South Carolina and the nation. He served on the NCAA Division I Board of Directors for four years, three of which as chair. He also delivered a keynote address at the Society for College & University Planning conference in Charleston, SC in October of 2010.

For his leadership, Barker has received the Order of the Palmetto, South Carolina’s highest civilian honor, and The Cliff’s Business Person-of-the-Year Award from Greenville Magazine. He has also been awarded honorary doctorates from the Medical University of South Carolina, South Carolina State University, and Mars Hill College.

A native of Kingsport, TN, Barker received his bachelor of arts degree from Clemson University in 1970 and his master of architecture & urban design degree in 1973 from Washington University in Saint Louis, MO, which also recognized him with its Distinguished Alumnus Award. He is also a Fellow of the American Institute of Architects and the Institute for Urban Design.

As Clemson’s President, Barker remains committed to the classroom. Each spring, he is a part of a team that teaches an undergraduate course exploring “a sense of place” in architecture, literature, and history.

In his spare time, he maintains the daily fitness regimen of a life-long athlete and enjoys playing with his grandchildren. He is widely acclaimed for his pen-and-ink drawings of campus buildings and his watercolor paintings.

Barker and his wife, Marcia, have two sons, Britt and Jacob, a daughter-in-law, Rita Bolt Barker, and two grandchildren.

When the Clemson baseball squad played host to the 2011 NCAA Tournament, it meant the Tiger sports program had accomplished something only one other program had done nationally. It marked the third consecutive year Clemson had been to a bowl game, the NCAA Men’s Basketball Tournament, and the NCAA Baseball Tournament. Only Florida State has equaled that accomplishment.

Reaching a high level of success in the high-profile sports is a credit to the administrative acumen of Clemson Athletic Director Dr. Terry Don Phillips. Now in his 10th year at Clemson, Phillips has enhanced the Tiger program on many levels.

The 2010-11 season marked the fourth straight year the men’s basketball program reached the NCAA Tournament, a first in the 100-year history of that program. The Tiger football team has been bowl eligible each of Phillips’ nine previous years and has had four top-25 final rankings. The baseball program has been to the NCAA Tournament eight of his nine years and has been to the College World Series twice.

In addition to the success of the high-profile sports in 2010-11, the women’s track & field program won the ACC title both indoor and outdoor, the second straight year they accomplished that feat, and finished in the top 20 at both national meets. The men and the women both finished in the top 25 at the indoor meet.

The rowing program had its third straight top-15 finish and the women’s tennis team made its ninth straight NCAA Tournament appearance. Overall, seven teams finished in the top 25 in the nation.

In his nine years at Clemson, it has had 53 teams finish the season in the top 25, including the golf team that won the 2003 national title. Five different women’s sports have captured ACC titles during his tenure. Only Virginia has had a wider variety of women’s sports win league titles.

The 2010-11 academic year was also a year of great accomplishments on an individual basis. Track athletes Patricia Mamone (triple jump), Miller Moss (heptathlon), and Brianna Rollins (60m hurdles) won national titles. Golfer Corbin Mills won the United States Public Links National Championship. Women’s tennis players Josipa Bek and Keri Wong reached the finals of the NCAA Doubles Championship, a first in Clemson’s storied program. Defensive end DaQuan Bowers won the Bronko Nagurski Award as the top defensive player in college football.

One of the reasons for Clemson’s level of success as a total sports program has been his emphasis on improving facilities.

On June 30, 2009, the football staff moved into the WestZone at Memorial Stadium. It was a day that brought a smile to everyone associated with the program, but especially Phillips, who had been working toward that day before he arrived in 2002.

Phillips’ vision for the WestZone was to create a top-of-the-line facility for the football program, but at the same time have a positive effect on the total sports program. The facility at Memorial Stadium now creates more office space, new locker rooms, and training room and strength training facilities for the Olympic sports programs.

In the 2011 spring semester, nearly 50 percent of student-athletes were on the academic honor roll and seven of the 15 programs had team GPAs of at least 3.0. All 19 Clemson teams posted APR scores of at least 945 and 13 of the 19 were over 957. The football program had a 977 APR score for the 2009-10 data, a cohort of four years that ends with the student-athletes who were on the team for the 2009-10 academic year. Clemson was 11th out of all NCAA football programs in terms of APR score.

Phillips has been recognized for these accomplishments in recent years. He was named as one of the 100 Most Influential Sports Educators in America in 2008 by The Institute for International Sport at the University of Rhode Island.

Phillips was also recognized nationally for his performance at Clemson in 2006 when he was honored by NACDA (National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics) as the 2005-06 General Sports Turf Systems Athletic Director of the Year for the FBS Southeast Region. He was one of just four FBS athletic directors honored at the annual convention in New Orleans, LA.

Excellence in academics has become a lifelong pursuit. He has an undergraduate degree from Arkansas (1970), a master’s degree from Virginia Tech (1974), a doctorate degree from Virginia Tech (1978), and a law degree from the University of Arkansas School of Law (1996). He is a member of the Arkansas Bar, South Carolina Bar, American Bar Association, and Sports Lawyers Association.

Phillips maintains a classroom presence by teaching a sports law section in Clemson’s accountancy & legal studies department. In addition, he is past chair of the NCAA Division I Infractions Appeals Committee and continues to serve the committee as requested.

Prior to coming to Clemson, he served as athletic director at Oklahoma State. Football was transformed from a perennial losing status to very competitive, enjoying a return to bowl games after several years and establishing a winning record against in-state rival Oklahoma. For this, he received the National Football Foundation Oklahoma Chapter Outstanding Contribution to Amateur Football Award in 2002.

Before leading the Cowboys, he was a senior associate athletic director at Arkansas (1988-94). He also served as athletic director at Liberty (1980-81) and Louisiana-Lafayette (1983-88). He was an assistant athletic director at Missouri (1981-83) and began his administrative career as an assistant athletic director at Florida (1979).

Phillips began his career in college athletics coaching football. He started as a graduate assistant at Arkansas in 1970 and 1971. He moved on to Virginia Tech as an assistant coach (1971-78) before joining the ranks of athletic administration. At Virginia Tech, he served on coaching staffs that included future Clemson Head Coach Charley Pell and Danny Ford.

Winning has been on Phillips’ resume since his playing days at Arkansas. He lettered three Frank Broyles teams, where he and his brother, Loyd, an Ole Miss Trophy winner, were starting defensive tackles, the first brother combination to start together under Broyles. Arkansas had a 27-5 record in the three years, played in two Sugar Bowl games, and played in the memorable 1969 National Championship game against Texas, a contest that continues to be featured on ESPN Classic.

In 2010, he joined Loyd in the University of Arkansas Hall of Honor. Phillips has two children, John Dennis and Sarah-Jane, and three stepchildren, Meagan (a Clemson graduate and former member of Tiger Band), Marshall, and Madison. His wife, Tricia, is a graduate of the University of Missouri School of Journalism and earlier enjoyed a career in athletics and development. She is currently active in the Clemson and Seneca communities.

At 41, Dabo Swinney is the youngest head coach in the ACC and one of the youngest in the country. However, his resume is already stuffed with many significant accomplishments on a school, ACC, and national level.

First, his mere appointment to the position was significant. In October of 2008, he was named Clemson interim head coach, replacing Tommy Bowden, who had been his position coach as a player at Alabama and been Clemson’s head coach since 1999. He led the Tigers to a 4-2 record over the remainder of the regular season, including a victory over Steve Spurrier’s South Carolina Gamecocks in the regular-season finale. That strong finish led to a Gator Bowl bid against Nebraska.

On December 1, 2008, the interim tag was removed from the title and he was named the program’s head coach. At the time, there had been 28 interim head coaches at the FBS level since 1970 and those coaches had combined for a record of 26-86-2. Only one of those 28 interim coaches posted a winning record, and that was Swinney. When he was hired as the head coach, Swinney became just the second interim coach to be elevated to the head coach position at the same school during that time period.

In addition to leading the program to three bowl games on the field in his career, his players have also excelled in the classroom. As a head coach, his players have an APR score of 988, best among active FBS coaches.

Clemson had to replace three First-Team All-ACC position players on offense in 2010, as Jacoby Ford, Michael Palmer, and C.J. Spiller moved on to the NFL. It was the first year since 1956 that Clemson had to replace three First-Team All-ACC skill position players in the same year. All three players performed well in the NFL in 2010, further showing their talent level.

The 2010 season included wins over bowl teams Georgia Tech, Maryland, and N.C. State. The Wolfpack were ranked #23 in the nation and were leading the ACC in scoring. But the Clemson defense held N.C. State to just one touchdown and 13 points. The team excelled defensively in 2010 and was 13th in the nation in scoring defense and in the top 25 in both total defense and pass defense.

Swinney’s accomplishments include leading the Tigers to their first bowl win since 2005 in the 21-13 victory over Kentucky in the Music City Bowl. Swinney’s first season included a six-game winning streak at midseason, a streak that saw the Tigers score at least 34 points in every game, a first in school history. During that stretch, the Tigers defeated 88 Miami (FL) on the road. The 40-37 overtime victory tied for the highest-ranked team Clemson has defeated on the road in school history.

Swinney became Clemson’s interim head coach on October 13, 2008 when Tommy Bowden stepped down. Then on December 1, 2008, the “interim” tag was removed, as he took over on a full-time basis as the Tigers’ 25th head coach. He had been Clemson’s assistant head coach for two years and had been in charge of the wide receivers since 2003.

Swinney took over a 3-3 team and led it to a Gator Bowl bid against Nebraska. He guided Clemson to a 4-1 record over the last five games of the regular season, with the only loss at #24 Florida State. That 4-1 record to end the regular season tied for... the best mark in the ACC for that time period. Four of his six regular-season opponents were later bowl participants.

The 1993 Alabama graduate joined the Clemson staff prior to the 2003 season. In his eight years as an assistant or head coach, the Tigers have finished in the top 25 of the final polls four times and totaled 11 wins over top-25 teams, including victories over Florida State (4), Miami (FL) (2), and Tennessee (1), during his tenure in Tigertown.

Swinney coached his wide receiver position to a level of consistency that had not been seen previously at Clemson. He had a wideout finish first or second in the ACC in catches five of the last six years. In his first year, he had three of the top-10 receivers in the ACC, a first in Tiger history.

He has coached a first or Second-Team All-ACC wideout (Derrick Hamilton, Aireses Currie, Chansi Stuckey, Aaron Kelly, Ford) in seven of his eight seasons at Clemson, also an unprecedented feat at Clemson.

The Alabama native has a reputation as one of the top recruiters in the nation. In 2006, he was listed as the #5 recruiter in the nation by Rivals.com. It marked the second straight year that he was lauded by the website as a top-25 national recruiter. He signed 38 players in five recruiting seasons as an assistant coach and was a major reason Clemson’s 2008 recruiting class was rated #2 in the nation according to ESPN.com when he signed 11 players. He was named one of the top-25 recruiters in the nation by Rivals.com in 2007 as well.

Swinney received a commerce and business administration degree from Alabama in 1993 after lettering three times (1990-92). A walk-on who went on to earn a scholarship, Swinney was a wideout on Alabama’s 1992 National Championship team. He was also named Academic All-SEC, along with being an SEC Scholar-Athlete Honor Roll member in 1990 and 1992. Along with his appearance in the 1993 Sugar Bowl, his Alabama teams played in the 1990 Sugar Bowl, 1991 Fiesta Bowl, and 1991 Blockbuster Bowl. Both Sugar Bowl appearances came after winning the SEC Championship game.

After his playing career, Swinney served as a graduate assistant from 1993-95 at Alabama, where he coached in the 1994 Gator Bowl and 1995 Citrus Bowl. In December of 1995, he received his master’s degree in business administration from Alabama.

He became a full-time assistant coach at Alabama in February of 1996 under Head Coach Gene Stallings (now in the Hall of Fame) and coached a total of five seasons there on a full-time basis. He was assigned to coach the Crimson Tide’s wide receivers and tight ends in 1996, a season that saw Alabama win the SEC Western Division title and make an Outback Bowl appearance. The following year, he solely coached the tight ends under Head Coach Mike DuBose.

In 1998, he coached Alabama’s wide receivers, a position he held for three seasons. At the end of the 1999 campaign, Swinney coached the Crimson Tide in the 2000 Orange Bowl after winning the SEC Championship game. Wide receiver Freddie Milons was the game MVP.

During his time at Alabama, Swinney was a part of six teams with at least 10 wins, five top-10 finishes, one national title (1992), three SEC Championships (1989, 92, 99), and five SEC Western Division titles (1992, 93, 94, 96, 99) as a player and coach. He has coached the #2 receiver at Alabama (Milons) along with the #1 (Kelly) and #2 (Hamilton) receivers in Tiger history.

As an assistant coach, he had 20 former players either drafted or sign free-agent contracts with NFL teams. The list includes Hamilton, Currie, Kevin Youngblood, Stuckey, and Milons, an All-American at Alabama.

From April of 2001 through February of 2003, Swinney was in private business in Alabama. He married the former Kathleen Bassett in 1994. They have three sons, Will (13), Drew (11), and Clay (8).

In 2010, he coached Jarvis Jenkins to a First Team All-ACC season. His defensive tackles were a big reason Clemson was 13th in the nation in scoring defense in 2010.

- Finalist for defensive line coach of the-year by FootballScoop.com in 2010.
- Helped Clemson to an ACC Atlantic Division title and a top-25 final ranking in his first year at Clemson in 2009. The Tigers were 12th in the nation in tackles for loss.
- Clemson finished in the top 25 in the nation in seven defensive categories in 2009.
- Has coached 329 games as a full-time assistant coach, more than any other active member of the Tiger coaching staff.
- Coached the previous 15 years at Tennessee under Head Coach Phillip Fulmer. He coached in 13 bowl games during those 15 years and was part of eight teams that won at least 10 games. The Volunteers finished in the top 25 of the polls in 12 of those seasons, including six top 10 finishes. Tennessee also finished in the top 10 of the AP poll five straight years (1995-99).
- Served as Tennessee's recruiting coordinator from 1999-02.
- Coached on the 1998 Tennessee staff that won the national title with a 13-0 record. That team had six wins over top-25 teams and gave up just five rushing touchdowns.
- In 1998, he was named the SEC's top defensive line coach.
- Coached six years (1988-93) under Head Coach Mack Brown at North Carolina.
- He helped the resurgence of North Carolina during that era, culminating with a 9-3 record in 1992 and a 10-3 mark in 1993.
- Coached five years at Florida from 1983-87. The Gators played in two bowl games, including the Gator Bowl in 1983, and finished in the top 10 of the AP poll.
- Coached former Clemson star and NFL All-Pro running back Kevin Mack in high school in the 1970s.

- Served as offensive coordinator and associate head coach at Tulsa in 2010 and guided that offense to among the best in the nation. That offense was a big reason Tulsa improved from 5-7 in 2009 to 10-3 in 2010. The Golden Hurricane won its last seven games.
- Was 13th in the nation in passing offense (288.7) and 15th in rushing offense (216.9) in 2010. Its 505.6 total offense yards per game were fifth-most in the nation. Tulsa was the only school in the top 15 in the nation in rushing and passing offense.
- Tulsa averaged 41.4 points per game, eighth-most in the nation, and scored at least 28 points in 12 of its 13 games. Tulsa was fifth nationally in first downs (25.6) and tied for fifth in touchdowns scored from the red zone (46). His offense scored 9 touchdowns overall on 21 rushing plays (32 rushing, 32 passing). The team totaled 3,066 plays (357 rushes, 469 passes) in 2010.
- G.J. Kinne was fourth in the nation in total offense (323.9) in 2010 and without Dammari Johnson was first in all-purpose yards per game (202.2).
- Won 82 percent of his games as a high school coach in Texas. He led Lake Travis High School to back-to-back, undefeated (16-0) state championship seasons. He won three state titles overall and played in six state championship games in his high school coaching career. He also won a state title at Bay City High in 2000.
- In 16 years as a head coach at the high school level, he had a 169-38 record (.810). He earned coach-of-the-year honors in 11 of those 16 years.
- In 2008, he coached current Texas quarterback Garrett Gilbert, who was named Gatorade and Parade Magazine National Player of the Year while setting the state passing yardage mark (4,884).
- His 2008 team was ranked #2 in the nation by USA Today and #8 by Rivals.com, while his 2009 team was ranked #2 by Rivals.com and #9 by USA Today.
- Coached Joren Smadel (Mississippi), Kody Spano (Nebraska), Andrew Smith (North Texas), and Scott Elliott (Tulane) during his high school coaching career.
- Served as head boys basketball coach at Eustace High School from 1993-97 and had a 128-32 record.

Education
Returns to Clemson after spending the last three years at Duke. He served as assistant head coach, defensive coordinator, and defensive line coach under Duke Head Coach David Cutcliffe.

In 2008, Duke's defense held opponents to 234 points per game, best in 20 years, and held three opponents to less than 10 points, a first for the program since 1976.

This is his second tour of duty at Clemson. He served as defensive line coach in 2005, helping the Tigers to an 8-4 record and a top-25 finish in the AP poll.

Has NFL experience, as he was an assistant coach with the New Orleans Saints in 2006 and 2007. The 2006 Saints had a 10-6 record and won the NFC South. Among his players that year was defensive end Will Smith, who had 10.5 sacks and started in the Pro Bowl.

Prior to coming to Clemson, he worked for Cutcliffe at Mississippi for six seasons (1999-04). During that time, the Rebels had a 44-29 record, five winning seasons, and four bowl wins.

In his first year at Mississippi in 1999, the Rebels were fourth in the nation in rushing defense (78.1).

Was a Freshman All-SEC selection in 1994 and was named to Tennessee’s 100-year anniversary team. A third-round draft pick (67 overall) of the Minnesota Vikings, he played three years (1996-99) with the New England Patriots. He played 42 games in the NFL and had five sacks, including three as a rookie in 1996.

Playing Experience

Lettered four times as a defensive end at Tennessee (1986-89), three-year starter, played three seasons (42 games) in the NFL with the New England Patriots.

Education

B.S. degree from Tennessee in 1995.

Personal Data

Born November 7, 1966 in Irondale, AL; he and his wife, Constance, have three daughters, Maria, Mariah, and Camille.

• Has 33 years of experience in college coaching. He served as Vanderbilt’s head coach in 2010 after eight years as offensive line coach with the Commodores.

• Started his coaching career as a student assistant at Furman under Art Baker in 1976 and became a full-time offensive line coach with the Paladins under Dick Sheridan in 1978. In 1977, he served as football and baseball coach at Hanahan (SC) High School. He had a 14-2 record in his one year as a baseball coach.

• Moved with Sheridan to N.C. State in 1986. He was a part of a resurgence of Wolfpack football, as he helped Sheridan turn the 3-8 team of 1985 into an 8-3-1 club that beat three AP top-25 teams in 1986. Caldwell was on the staff at N.C. State when it defeated Clemson three straight years (1986-88).

• N.C. State had three top-25 AP finishes from 1991-94, including a #17 ranking in 1992 thanks to a 9-3-1 record.

• Coach the Wolfpack offensive line for 11 years, then added assistant head coaching responsibilities for his final three years. Fourteen of his players at N.C. State were All-ACC selections.

• Coach at North Carolina in 2000 and 2001. The 2001 Tar Heels won eight games, including a 16-10 Peach Bowl win over Auburn.

• Joined Clemson graduate Bobbie Johnson’s staff at Vanderbilt in 2002. He coached Chris Williams, who developed into an All-SEC performer in 2007. He became the highest offensive lineman draft pick in school history (414 overall) by the Texans.

• Was a part of the 2008 Vanderbilt staff that guided it to its first winning season and bowl game in 26 years. It defeated Boston College in the Music City Bowl, Vanderbilt’s first bowl win since 1955.

• From 2005-08, he helped Vanderbilt win games at Arkansas, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, South Carolina, and Tennessee.

• Named Vanderbilt head coach on July 14, 2012 after Bobby Johnson retired. Caldwell won at Mississippi in his first road game.

• Overall, five of his former players have earned All-America honors and seven have been drafted into the NFL.

Playing Experience

Lettered three years at Furman under Art Baker, including his senior season (1975) when he was named team MVP and offensive captain.

Education

Earned a degree from Furman in 1977.

Personal Data

Born January 26, 1954 in Pageland, SC; he and his wife, Nora Lynn, have one daughter, Emily.

• Spent the last three years as a wide receivers coach at Furman.

• Became the wide receivers coach at Furman in 2008. He helped that program to a 7-5 record in his first year. In 2009, the Paladins were 20th in the nation in scoring offense.

• Retained by new Furman Head Coach Bruce Fowler in December, 2010, but he accepted the position at Clemson the next month.

• In 2008, he coached All-SoCon performer Adam Mims, who had a team-high 58 catches, and David Hendrix, who set a freshman record with 46 catches. Mims continued to flourish under Elliott's guidance and ended his career with 198 catches for 2,433 yards.

• The December, 2002 Clemson graduate earned his undergraduate degree in engineering, was a First-Team Academic All-ACC selection, and a CoSIDA Academic District III team member.

• Entered the business world after his playing days were over at Clemson and worked with Michelin North America for two years.

• Returned to coaching in 2006 as an assistant at S.C. State. He helped the Bulldogs to consecutive 7-4 seasons (2006-07). The 2006 team was 23rd in the nation in total offense.

• Was a co-captain of Clemson’s 2003 team that had a 9-4 record and a #11 ranking by AP and USA Today. He had 23 receptions for 286 yards and a touchdown that season. He was also a recipient of the ACC’s Weaver-James-Corrigan Postgraduate Scholarship.

• Dabo Swinney was his position coach in his senior season (2003). That year in a survey of Clemson players conducted by Anderson Independent, he was named the team’s "most respected player".

• Had 34 receptions for 453 yards and two scores in his career. Came to Clemson as a walk-on in the fall of 1999 and finished his career with four letters and 44 games, including four as a starter as a senior. He had a touchdown catch at Georgia Tech that year.

Playing Experience

Lettered four times as a wide receiver at Clemson (2000-03).

WOODY McCORVEY
Associate AD Football Administration

- 10th Season at Clemson
- Alabama State '72
- Born September 30, 1950

Woody McCovey returned to Clemson after 20 years to become Associate Athletic Director for Football Administration on Dabo Sweeney's first staff in 2009. He was Sweeney's position coach during his playing days at Alabama and served as wide receivers coach and tight ends coach on Danny Ford's Tiger staff from 1983-89. McCovey serves as the primary liaison between Sweeney and the athletic and IPTAY administration. He also oversees the management of the football administrative offices.

He returned with a positive effect on the program in 2009 when Clemson won the ACC Atlantic Division for the first time and finished the season in the top 25 of the AP poll.

He supervises the football budget and works with the staff at Vickery Hall to oversee the team's academic progression. Clemson had six players named to the Academic All-ACC team in 2010 and Clemson's APR score in 2011 was 11th-best among Division 1 programs. He also makes speaking engagements and represents the football staff at various meetings and functions.

McCovey worked seven seasons at Clemson between 1983-89. With McCovey coaching the tight ends from 1983-85 and the wide receivers from 1986-89, Clemson posted a 68-73-3 record and won three ACC titles. During that time, the Tigers were invited to the 1985 Independence Bowl, the 1986 and 1989 Gator Bowls, and the 1986 and 1989 Citrus Bowls. Clemson posted a 10-2 record in each of his last three seasons under Ford.

Among the players he recruited were future Pro Bowlers Donnell Woolford and Chester McGlockton. McGlockton was inducted into the state of South Carolina Hall of Fame in 2011. McCovey also coached future NFL players Keith Jennings and K.D. Davis.

McCovey coached at Tennessee from 1989 through 2006 and won a bowl game 17 of those seasons. Overall, he had 36 years of experience as a football coach. He coached or signed 36 players who went on to a professional football career as well.

From 1966-06, he coached in the SEC every year, including each of the last five at Mississippi State, where he served as assistant head coach and offensive coordinator in addition to coaching the quarterback. He was a big reason the Bulldogs won eight games, including wins over Auburn, Alabama, and Mississippi, in 2007. He also coached running back Anthony Dixon, who was a sixth-round draft pick by the 49ers in 2010, and Kyle Love, a free-agent signee.

McCovey coached at Tennessee for five years (1999-03). With him heading the running game, the Volunteers had a 46-14 record. He helped guide Tennessee to the 2000 Fiesta Bowl, 2001 Cotton Bowl, 2002 Citrus Bowl, and 2002 and 2003 Peach Bowls. Tennessee was the only football team in the SEC to win two consecutive New Year's Day Bowl games from 2006-02.

Prior to joining the staff at Tennessee, McCovey worked one season at South Carolina, where he served as the wide receivers coach in 1998 under former Tiger Assistant Coach Brad Scott.

McCovey took the South Carolina job following an eight-year stay at Alabama from 1990-97. He served seven seasons as the wide receivers coach and 1996 campaign as offensive coordinator. He was the assistant head coach in 1997 as well.

Alabama had five top-25 final rankings in his tenure in Tuscaloosa, including three seasons in the top five. The Crimson Tide won the 1992 national title with McCovey serving as wide receivers coach and Sweeney as one of his student-athletes. That season culminated with a 34-13 win over heavily favored Miami (FL) in the Sugar Bowl.

Current Clemson Assistant Coach Danny Pearman was also on that staff.

From 1990-96, Alabama had a 70-16-1 record and played in six bowl games. With McCovey at the controls of the 1996 offense, Alabama was 10-3, including a win over Michigan in the Outback Bowl.

From 1979-82, he served as an assistant coach at Alabama A&M and helped that program to the 46 rushing offense in Division II in 1981 after finishing 11th in the nation in scoring offense in 1980. McCovey began his collegiate coaching career at North Carolina Central in 1978.

McCovey began his coaching career with a six-year stint (1972-77) at J.M. Tate Senior High School in Florida. A quarterback at Alabama State from 1968-71, McCovey earned his bachelor's degree from Alabama State in 1972 and a master's degree from West Florida in 1977.

In 2010, McCovey was inducted into the Atmore (AL) Hall of Fame. The Atmore, AL native is married to the former Ann Brown. The couple has a son, Martin.

BRAD SCOTT
Assistant AD

- 13th Season at Clemson
- South Florida '79
- Born September 30, 1954

Brad Scott is in his 13th year with the Clemson program, but his first in athletic administration. The assistant athletic director moved into administration in March of 2011 after 12 seasons as an assistant coach under Tommy Bowden and Dabo Sweeney from 1999-10. His 12-year tenure, which included him working with the offensive line, is tied for the ninth-longest for a Clemson football assistant coach in the program's history.

Scott works primarily with the football program in various administrative duties, but he has department-wide responsibilities when it comes to serving as a liaison between Clemson and high schools in securing documents needed to gain admission.

Scott had great success on the gridiron during Scott's tenure as an assistant coach. The Tigers recorded seven of the top-nine yards-per-play seasons in school history, six of the top-eight seasons in total offense, each of the top-five touchdown teams, and each of the top-nine passing yardage teams during his 12-year career.

From 2001-03, Scott served as offensive coordinator, and in that time, Clemson had two of the top-four total offense figures in school history. The 2003 season set a passing yardage record (3,687) that still stands today. That top-25 team that beat #3 Florida State and #4 Tennessee at the end of the 2003 season averaged 432.9 yards per game, still the second-best mark in school history.

Clemson was bowl-eligible all 12 years Scott was on staff and the Tigers played in 11 bowl games. The Tigers had five top-25 seasons, including 2009 when Clemson won the ACC Atlantic Division. He coached 15 First or Second-Team All-ACC players, including five who earned All-America honors.

Scott served under Bobby Bowden at Florida State from 1983-93. He was the program's offensive coordinator from 1990-93. In 1993, Florida State won its first national title and Seminole quarterback Charlie Ward became the school's first Heisman Trophy winner.

He also gained recognition as an outstanding recruiter during his career. Florida State had the #1 class in the nation multiple times as the recruiting coordinator, and he was named one of the top-25 recruiters in the nation by two recruiting services in 2010 when he signed two five-star recruits from the state of Florida.

Scott is a 1979 graduate of South Florida and earned a master's degree from Florida State in 1984. He was born on September 30, 1954 in Arcadia, FL and is married to Darcie. The couple has two sons (Jeff, John). Jeff is an assistant coach and the recruiting coordinator on the football staff.

Don Munson in his second year with the Clemson athletic department in a full-time capacity. He is a familiar name to Tiger fans because of his involvement with the Clemson radio network for the last 16 years.

Munson took over the new position of creative media services director in 2010. He has department-wide responsibilities, with an emphasis on football. He supervises the football recruiting website and social media, provides video features for ClemsonTigers.com, authors articles for various Clemson publications and websites, and serves as the master of ceremonies for the Prowl & Growl meetups in the spring. He continues to serve as host of the Clemson football and basketball coaches radio call-in program, “Tiger Calls,” and provides play-by-play commentary on various Clemson Olympic sports.

Munson has covered Clemson athletics since 1994, when he first joined the network as the network’s football pregame, halftime, and Fifth Quarter Show host. In 1995, he moved into a full-time position with the Clemson Sports Network as an-on-air host and affiliate relations manager. In 1997, he was named operations manager and became a part of the broadcast team for as a pregame, halftime, and locker room reporter.

In 2003, he rejoined the radio network as host of the Tiger Tailgate Show and Fifth Quarter Show. When Jim Phillips passed away in September of 2003, he assumed the duties as host of Tiger Calls and play-by-play announcer for women’s basketball and baseball.

Munson is a 1984 graduate of Appalachian State with a B.S. degree in communications. He was the play-by-play announcer at Appalachian State from 1984-91. In 1993, he served as a season the play-by-play voice of Western Carolina and in 1994 was the voice of the UNC Asheville men’s basketball broadcasts.

Married on May 26, 1984, Munson and his wife, Elizabeth, have one daughter, Michelle (20).

Clemson’s Memorial Stadium has been held in high esteem for many years. Whether it be players from the 1940s and 1950s, opposing teams from the 1960s and 1970s, or even professional players in the 1990s, the ambiance of this special setting is what college football is all about.

The story of the stadium began with the first meeting of father and son head coaches (Bowden Bowl I) that took place before a sellout crowd of more than 80,000 fans in 1999. Clemson has been in the top 20 in the nation in average attendance 34 straight seasons. Its attendance has exceeded 80,000 fans 57 times since the 1983 season. In 2010, Clemson was 18th in the nation in average home attendance.

The facility’s mystique is derived from its many traditions, which date to its opening in 1942, the legendary games and players, and Clemson’s corresponding rate of success. Clemson has won 256 games in 69 years there and has won nearly 72 percent of the contests (256-99-7).

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers, but it was constructed against the advice of at least one coach. Just before Head Coach Jess Neely left for Rice after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message:

"Don’t ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "Put about 10,000 seats behind the YMCA. That’s all you’ll ever need."

Instead of following Neely’s advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place took some clearing, as there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work, clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally on September 19, 1942, Memorial Stadium opened with Clemson defeating Presbyterian College 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for the opener would soon grow.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 1940s, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first tiking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.J. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The construction of the stadium did not proceed without problems. One afternoon during the clearing of the land, a young player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then proceeded to attach the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, the boy was swollen twice his size and was hospitalized.

There are many other stories about the stadium, including one that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner as the concrete poured.

Howard said that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he said. "After three weeks on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through."
"I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get this far and I would give them three more weeks' pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that, it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons.

Howard said that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 and we played at 2:00." But that would be all of the construction for awhile. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added, and in 1960, 5,658 west endzone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large east endzone ("Green Grass" section), this expansion increased capacity to 33,000. Later, upper decks were added to each side of Memorial Stadium as crowds swelled—the first in 1978 and the second in 1983. It increased capacity to over 80,000, which makes it one of the nation's largest on-campus stadiums. In 2006, the WesZone was added, an area that contains locker rooms and a luxury club level that holds over 1,000 seats.

The effect that inflation has had can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of Memorial Stadium was built at a cost of only $125,000, or $6.25 per seat. The stadium's newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $584 per seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as 'Death Valley.' It was tagged by the late Presbyterian College Coach Lonnie McMillan in the late 1940s. After bringing his teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, he said the place was like "Death Valley." A few years later, the name stuck.

In 1974, the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach, because of his long service and dedication to Clemson University. Luckily, it wasn't built behind the VMAA.

"Running down the Hill is still talked about everywhere I go. Players who played against Clemson when I was in college remember running down the Hill and thinking we would gain some type of spirit on the field. The adrenaline rush was unbelievable for a Clemson player and quite a shock for the opponent on game day."

Former Clemson All-American Jerry Butler

"I came here knowing it would be loud and Clemson would hit hard, but the noise was the biggest factor. I didn't concentrate as well because of it." Herschel Walker after Clemson's 13-3 win in 1981, his only regular season loss.

"Howard's Rock has strange powers. When you rub it down the Hill, your adrenaline flows. It is the most emotional experience I have ever had." Six-time All-Pro and Tiger All-American Michael Dean Perry

"When Clemson players rub that Rock and run down the Hill, it's the most exciting 25 seconds in college football."

Brent Musburger, ABC Sports

"Death Valley really lives up to its image. I was impressed with this stadium. When you put 80,000 people in there, it feels like they are on top of you. I'd have to be more careful coming here to play Clemson."

San Francisco quarterback Steve Young

"Florida was loud in the Swamp. But the loudest, not only stadium, but the loudest place I have ever been around in my life was definitely Death Valley. I was yelling at the top of my lungs and I couldn't even hear what I was saying. That place was unreal in how loud it was. I don't think I will ever be in a louder place than Clemson."

Florida State quarterback Chris Rix, 2001

"In 2005, Clemson's Memorial Stadium, commonly known as 'Death Valley,' reached an astounding 126 decibels when a packed crowd observed Charles Bennett's sack of Kyle Vight in the Tigers' overtime game against Miami (Fl). This level easily surpassed the old record of 121 decibels set by Louisiana State fans in Tiger Stadium, which holds nearly 11,000 more fans.

BUMPERSPORTS.COM

"The game when I was a sophomore (in the 2005 season) stands out for me. What an awesome place that is to play. I'll never forget that atmosphere, and I know for a fact I've never seen so much energy in one place at one time. If you've never been there, going out on the field for the first time at Clemson is incredible." Boston College quarterback Matt Ryan, 2007

"We go to a lot of great venues for college football, but this doesn't take a back seat to any place. In terms of the atmosphere, stadium, the noise, and the facilities, this is a special place on a Saturday night."

ESPN commentator Todd Blackledge, 2009

“THE MOST EXCITING 25 SECONDS IN COLLEGE FOOTBALL”

Brant Musburger
What has been described as “the most exciting 25 seconds in college football” from a color and pageantry standpoint actually started out as a matter-of-fact entrance, mainly because of necessity.

The first 20,000 seats in Memorial Stadium were built and ready for use before the 1942 season, less than a year after Pearl Harbor was bombed and the United States was drawn into World War II.

The shortest entry into Memorial Stadium was a short walk down Williamson Road from Tike Fieldhouse’s dressing rooms to a gate at the top of the Hill, which is located behind the east endzone. There were no dressing facilities inside the west endzone of Memorial Stadium; there was only a giant clock, where the hands turned, and a scoreboard that was operated by hand.

The team would dress at Tike Fieldhouse, walk down Williamson Road, come in the gate underneath where the scoreboard now stands, and jog down the hill for its warmup exercises. There was no forget, no cannon shot fired, no Tiger Paw flag, no “Tiger Rag” played...just the team making its entrance and lining up to do the side-drill loop. That is pretty much the way things went for the next 25 years.

Either in 1954 or 1955, S.C. Jones, a member of the class of 1919, made a trip to California. He stopped at a spot in Death Valley, CA and picked up a white flint rock. He presented it to Head Coach Frank Howard as being from Death Valley, California to Death Valley, South Carolina.

The rock laid on the floor in Howard’s office in Tike Fieldhouse for years. One day, he was cleaning up his office and told Gene Williamson, who was executive secretary of IPTAY, “to take this rock and throw it over the fence or out in the ditch...do something with it, but get it out of my office!”

Williamson did not think that was the way a rock should be treated. After all, it had been brought 2,200 miles by a very sincere Tiger fan.

By the mid-1960s, Memorial Stadium was living up to its moniker (“Death Valley”) because of the number of Tiger wins that had been recorded there. Actually, the name was first used by Lonnie McMillan, head coach at Presbyterian College during the 1940s.

McMillan and the other Blue Hose coaches before him used to open each season by playing at Clemson. Seldom scoring (24 touchdowns in 39 games) and with only three wins and four ties for 6 years, they were getting “killed” by the Tigers regularly. In 1948, McMillan made the comment to the press that he was taking his team to play Clemson in “Death Valley”.

An occasional reference to Memorial Stadium by that name could be heard for the next four years, but when Howard attended calling in “Death Valley” in the 1950s, the name took off like wildfire. Clemson celebrated its 89th year in the “Valley” in 2020.

But getting back to Howard’s Rock.

The Rock was mounted on a pedestal at the top of the Hill on the east side of the stadium. It was unveiled on September 24, 1966 when Clemson played Virginia. The Tigers were down 18 points with 17 minutes left and came back to win 60-35 on a 73-yard pass from Jimmy Addison to Jacky Jackson in the fourth quarter. That was quite a debut for the Rock.

The team members started rubbing the Rock prior to running down the Hill on September 23, 1967, a day when Clemson defeated Wake Forest by a score of 23-6.

Prior to running down the Hill that day, Howard told his players, “If you’re going to give me 110 percent, you can rub that Rock. If you’re not, keep your filthy hands off it.”

Howard told of the incident during the following day on his television show, and the story became legend.

When Boothe Ingram succeeded Howard as head coach prior to the 1970 campaign, Ingram decided that the team would make its final entrance on the field out of the dressing room in the west endzone. In all home games during the 1970 and 1971 seasons and the first four games of 1972 when the Tigers did not run down the Hill, their combined record was 6-6.

The team decided it wanted to come down the Hill once prior to the South Carolina contest during the 1972 season. The result, in a cold, freezing rain, was a 17-6 victory when Jimmy Williamson knocked down two-point conversion attempts, which preserved the narrow win.

The Tigers have made the entrance for every home game since 1942, except for the years mentioned above (347 times entering the 2011 season).

After final warmups, the team gathers back in its dressing room under the west endzone stands for its final game instructions. Approximately 10 minutes prior to kickoff, the team boards three buses, rides around behind the north stands to the east endzone, and disembarks to the top of the Hill behind Howard’s Rock.

At the appointed time, the cannon booms, and led by a giant Tiger Paw flag, the band forms two lines for the team to run between and strikes up “Tiger Rag”...the frenzy starts in all sincerity and usually lasts for three hours.

It is a tradition that has inspired Clemson players for many years.
FOR SEVERAL FOOTBALL SEASONS, CONSTRUCTION HAS DOMINATED THE LANDSCAPE ON THE WEST SIDE OF MEMORIAL STADIUM. AS TIME PASSED, ATHLETIC OFFICIALS INSISTED THAT WESTZONE WOULD BE ONE OF THE FINEST FOOTBALL FACILITIES IN THE COUNTRY. NOW THAT PHASE III OF THE WESTZONE INITIATIVE IS FINISHED, TIGER FANS CAN SEE FIRST-HAND THAT THOSE ASSURANCES WERE ACCURATE.
The everyday activities for the football program moved to Memorial Stadium on July 1, 2005. Tiger coaches moved into new offices in the WestZone of Memorial Stadium that day. A month later, the team moved the locker room to Death Valley its full-time facility.

Additionally, a new equipment facility, athletic training facility, and strength training facility opened with all the modern conveniences of an NFL franchise's facility.

The new facility is 142,000 square feet, which adds over 50,000 square feet to previous facilities in the Jervey Athletic Center. It includes a two-floor strength training facility that is 14,000 square feet, the largest dedicated solely for football in the nation.

“Our program’s motto since I became head coach is All-in!”, said Head Coach Dabo Swinney. “This facility shows any Clemson football player, recruit, or selector that our University is All-in’ with this program. The facility is among the best in the nation and allows our student-athletes to develop and become the best they can be.”

The equipment room has been expanded to include, among other items, new offices and a new laundry room that encompasses approximately 6,000 square feet of space. The football staff offices and meeting rooms are composed of approximately 4,000 square feet of existing space and more than 18,000 square feet of new space.

The facility includes offices for the head coach, assistant coaches, and support staff along with position meeting rooms and a 150-seat auditorium with a sloped floor and theater seating.

The training room, located on the north side of the home team’s locker room, is expanded to include a new hydrotherapy room, new offices, and examination rooms. The training room occupies about 6,200 square feet of space as well.

The level three concourse has been expanded with the addition of the football offices. This space, the roof of the new football offices, is utilized for game day marketing activities and to provide fans additional space to gather inside the stadium.

In 2011, Phase III of the WestZone project was completed, which added 8,000 square feet of enclosed space on the north side of the second level.

Clemson is committed to building a model sports program—one that propels our University into achieving and maintaining national athletic rankings that rival our competitors. The WestZone project is a major step forward in building a total sports program.

In order to be a consistent contender at the highest level of competition, Clemson must recruit the best student-athletes in the country: student-athletes who can compete both academically and athletically on the field. The nation’s best recruits are impressed by superior facilities, top coaches, and a strong sense of excitement along with school spirit. The student-athlete desires an environment in which they will have a positive, nurturing experience.

It is no coincidence that the quality of recruiting classes has improved dramatically since the WestZone project began in 2004.

Coaching is the most critical component of such an environment. An outstanding coach can sometimes transform meager resources into a good program, but the greatest success comes when top-quality coaching combined with top-quality facilities allows that coach to recruit successfully on a consistent and continuing basis.

Former Clemson running back James Davis, the 2005 ACC Rookie of the Year and now with the Washington Redskins, stated that one of the biggest contributing factors in deciding on Clemson was the University’s commitment to upgrading facilities. "Does Clemson want to be a championship program?" asked Davis when he was considering Clemson. "The WestZone initiative showed me that it does!"

Building success requires building for success. While the WestZone is located in Memorial Stadium, the completed project provides resources for Clemson’s total sports program, permitting all Tiger teams and athletes to compete with the nation’s best. Moving all football operations to the WestZone has opened up space in the Jervey and McFadden buildings for the other 18 sports to improve their facilities for recruiting and have more offices, training, conditioning, and sports medicine space. This will greatly enhance the overall performance, both on and off the field, for all 19 sports.

A look at Clemson’s athletic history shows the importance infrastructure enhancements have on the football program. The following chart summarizes the relationship.

A significant aspect of Phase II of the WoodZone project at Memorial Stadium was the construction of a new strength training facility on the first floor that is adjacent to the Clemson locker room and the Frank Howard Field playing surface.

For the first time, there is a strength training facility exclusively for the development of the Clemson football team. Director of Strength & Conditioning Joey Batson, who is in his 16th season at Clemson, makes sure that all Tiger grinders are ready to compete against the top teams in the nation. In his first 14 years in Tigertown, Clemson has played in 12 bowl games and he has coached 20 All-Americans on the gridiron.

It is the fourth major facilities construction since Batson joined the Tiger football program, an example of his desire to keep Clemson at the forefront of strength training. The new facility has the best in all strength training equipment, not to mention the existence of a new sound system and nine new flat-screen televisions that give Tiger football players a pleasant atmosphere to accomplish the most strenuous work.

The strength training facility actually has two floors. The first has all the free-weight equipment, including a dumbbell area, and the second has cardio equipment. Batson has a staff of eight assistants working with the football team. Joining Batson are veteran Strength Coaches David Abernathy and Larry Greenlee along with Graduate Assistants Josh Miller and Adam Smootherman. Five more assistants deal in player development year-round. Those assistants include former Tigers La'Dont Harris, Bobby Hutchinson, Brian Mance, and Damionic McKee and along with Brandon McCombes.

Facility Highlights
- 11 power racks
- 11 Half Olympic platforms
- 11 custom-built racks
- Football sleds that monitor power output and speed off the ball
- Cardio equipment
- Full line of leverage equipment
- Power station
- Nine flat-screen televisions
- Awards wall

JOEY BATSON
Director of Strength & Conditioning

- 15th Season at Clemson
- Newberry '85
- Born June 22, 1961

Joey Batson is in his 26th year as a strength & conditioning coach at the collegiate level and 15th year as director of strength & conditioning at Clemson.

Batson was named master strength & conditioning coach by the Collegiate Strength & Conditioning Coaches Association (CSCCA) in 2009. This honor is the Highest given in the strength & conditioning profession. He was also presented with a blue MSCC jacket in 2009.

Batson has had a strong impact on the Clemson program since he became director in 1997, helping the Tigers to 12 bowl games and five top-25 final rankings. While at Clemson, he has worked for three head football coaches and has had a tremendous impact throughout the state at many notable high school programs.

An example of his respect level in the profession is demonstrated by the number of former assistants who are now assistants and/or directors at other universities, including leagues such as the ACC and SEC, along with several high-profile high school programs in the state.

Not only does Batson bring professional experience to the position at Clemson, he brings experience as a football player at the collegiate level. The Travelers Rest, SC, native was a tight end at The Citadel in 1979 before transferring to Newberry, where he was a two-year letterman and team co-captain during his senior season.

Batson earned his bachelor of arts degree in physical education from Newberry in 1985 and his master's degree in education from Clemson in 1988. Prior to his collegiate career, Batson was named to the 1977 all-state football team as a defensive end in high school.

Batson is married to the former Susan Malone of Greenville, SC. The couple has two sons, Michael and Benjamin.

Boston College was founded by the Society of Jesus in 1863 and opened its doors on September 5, 1864. Through its first seven decades, it remained a small undergraduate institution, serving the sons of the Irish working class, and teaching theology and philosophy, Greek and Latin classics, and English and modern languages.

Originally located on Harrison Avenue in Boston's South End, it outgrew its urban setting early in the 20th century and moved to the present Lawrence Farm in 1905.

Though incorporated as a university from its beginning, Boston College did not begin to fill out the dimensions of its University charter until the 1920s with the inauguration of the Graduate School of Arts & Sciences, the Law School, and the Evening College.

The 1930s saw the introduction of the Graduate School of Social Work and the College of Business Administration. The School of Nursing and the School of Education followed in 1947 and 1952. The Graduate School of Arts & Sciences first offered doctoral programs in 1952, followed by the graduate schools of Education, Nursing, Management, and Social Work. By 1970, all undergraduate programs had become co-educational, and today women make up more than half of the University's enrollment.

In 1974, Boston College acquired a 40-acre site, 1.5 miles from the Chestnut Hill campus, that had been owned by Newton College of the Sacred Heart. The land is the present site of the Law School and residence halls. Thirty years later, the University acquired 43 acres from the Boston Archdiocese on land adjoining the Lower Campus in Chestnut Hill.

The Brighton Campus is now the site of the School of Theology & Ministry when the Weston Jesuit School of Theology re-affiliated with Boston College and was joined with the Institute of Religious Education and Pastoral Ministry.

* Conference regular season games. Note: All times are PM and Eastern. Home games in bold.
We have restless hearts.

Tigers sometimes put their hearts in their feet, traveling to areas far outside their comfort zones — looking for answers, providing solutions. A breakthrough warming blanket might not seem like much unless it's around a premature baby in an area devoid of technology and adequate medical care. For a wondering mind, it's a chance to find life-changing solutions. This outside-the-campus thinking is one reason Clemson is ranked No. 9 nationally for our innovative approaches to learning.*

RESOURCEFUL

We call it the Determined Spirit. Use what you have. Create what you need. Stay with the project. It's an attitude that makes for some long nights and outstanding results. And it's just part of what makes Clemson uniquely Clemson.

*U.S. News & World Report's 2011 Up-and-Comers category for institutions that have made the most promising and innovative changes in the areas of academics, faculty, student life, campus or facilities.

once its inception in 1991, the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs have provided Clemson student-athletes a continued commitment to excellence. Our approach is to address the total student-athlete, and we are committed to coaching our student-athletes to success in the academic, personal growth, career, and community service arenas.

As an original member of the NCAA CHAMPS/Life Skills
Program, we provide opportunities and services to address the changing needs and skills of student-athletes during college and after graduation. This program was selected for the FBS Athletic Director's Association “Program of Excellence” Award, a lifetime award recognizing CHAMPS/Life Skills excellence.

Clemson’s commitment to provide its student-athletes with the best facilities is evident in many ways. From the soaring upper decks of Memorial Stadium and the beautiful WestZone, to the “New Littlejohn Coliseum,” to the state-of the-art strength training facility, young men and women from all of Clemson’s intercollegiate varsity sports have the best in facilities for both training and competition.

The Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs are housed in Vickery Hall, located in the center of campus. The $3-million structure is as impressive architecturally as other athletic facilities. But the importance of Vickery Hall to our student-athletes is not found in the structure itself, but in the many programs that the building houses.

Vickery Hall opened in 1991 and was the first facility in the country constructed solely to provide academic support to student-athletes. The two-story, 27,000 square-foot building is open all day and into the evening hours to accommodate student-athletes’ extended schedules.

Vickery Hall programs are dedicated to providing a holistic, educational experience by inspiring an environment of respect, integrity, and excellence. Through these services, Vickery Hall guides and encourages each individual to reach his or her full potential as a student, athlete, and citizen.

Vickery Hall was recently certified (as one of only 19 programs in the country to date) by the National Association of Academic Advisors for Athletics. The tutoring program was certified (as one of only three athletic tutoring programs in the nation) by the College Reading & Learning Association.

Academic Commitment
Ten of Clemson’s 19 sports programs had their highest Academic Progress Report (APR) scores on record, including the football team along with the men’s and women’s basketball teams, according to statistics released by the NCAA in 2011. All 19 programs posted scores of at least 945 and 13 of the 19 were over 975. The APR measures classroom performance of student-athletes for every Division I program. Teams scoring below the 925 cutline can face penalties.

Head Football Coach Dabo Swinney has the highest career APR score (988) among active FBS coaches. Over 90 percent of his seniors that have stayed to the end of their careers have graduated.

In the 2011 spring semester, seven of the 15 programs had team GPAs of at least 3.0 and the overall GPA was 2.90.
A total of 227 of its 441 student-athletes were named to the academic honor roll, including 94 on the Dean’s List.

The programs that posted a 3.0 GPA or better were the women’s swimming & diving (3.59), women’s track & field
Clemson joined Florida State as the only schools in the nation to advance to a bowl game along with the NCAA Tournament for baseball and men's basketball in three consecutive seasons. It was the 10th year that Clemson went to a bowl game, the NCAA Men's Basketball Tournament, and the NCAA Baseball Tournament in the same academic year.

Seven programs finished the 2010-11 season with a top 25 national ranking. The highest-ranked team to end the season was women's outdoor track & field, which finished #7 at the NCAA Championships. The other sports that finished their respective seasons in the top 25 were women's indoor track & field (#11), women's tennis (#14), rowing (#15), baseball (#16), men's indoor track & field (#22), and men's swimming & diving (#25).

The team of Josipa Bek and Zen Wong advanced to the championship match of the NCAA Tennis Doubles Tournament. The Tiger tandem knocked off two of the top-three national seeds and won a school-record 34 matches together during their historic season, which culminated with the runner-up finish.

Clemson's women's track & field program earned its second consecutive sweep of the ACC women's track & field championships (indoor and outdoor) with a 69.5-point margin of victory in the outdoor meet at Durham, NC in April. Miller Moss won the NCAA Championship in the heptathlon, the first multi-event title in school history. Brianna Rollins won the indoor national championship in the 60m hurdles with a Clemson-record time of 7.96. Patricia Mamoa defended her national championship in the triple jump, becoming only the second female in Clemson history to win more than one individual national championship.

DaQuan Bowers was one of the most decorated athletes at Clemson in many years, as he was a unanimous first-team All-American, just the fourth player so honored in school history. The junior also won the Bronko Nagurski Award as the top all-around defensive player in the nation as chosen by the Football Writers Association along with the Ted Hendricks Award as the top defensive end in the country.

CUAD MISSION STATEMENT

The Department of Athletics offers nationally prominent athletic programs. Through a dedicated commitment to educational interests, a competitive athletic program, and integrity in all areas, the student-athletes, coaches, and staff strive to bring credit and recognition to Clemson University.

The mission of the Athletic Department is to sponsor a broad-based athletic program that provides educational and athletic opportunities for young men and women to grow, develop, and serve the interests of Clemson University by complementing and enhancing its diversity and quality of life.

Furthermore, the Athletic Department seeks to be a source of pride for the citizens of the State of South Carolina and to be recognized as a nationally-prominent program, through consistently high levels of performance and accomplishment in athletic competitions.

The Athletic Department strives to develop student-athletes academically and athletically with the total commitment of aiding their efforts to graduate from Clemson University and advance to careers that will enable them to be productive members of society.

The Athletic Department will act in an ethical and honest manner, dedicated to compliance with all Federal, State, NCAA, Conference, and University rules and regulations.

This brief NCAA rules education is aimed at outlining basic rules to help potential student-athletes, parents, and boosters better understand the regulations. Clemson is committed to recruiting and conducting our athletic program with the highest level of integrity. If you have questions about NCAA rules, contact Clemson’s compliance services at (864) 656-1580, our website (ClemsonTigers.com), or via email at compliance-L@clemson.edu.

Are You a Booster?
The NCAA definition of a “representative of athletics interest” generally encompasses most individuals who regularly attend Clemson sporting events (reminder - once a representative, always a representative). Specifically, a booster or “representative of athletics interests” is any individual, independent agency, corporate entity, or other organization that is presently or has ever:
- Participated in promoting the institution’s athletic program (such as buying season tickets to sporting events).
- Assisted in providing benefits (such as summer employment) to enrolled student-athletes.
- Assisted or been requested by the department of athletics staff to assist in the recruitment of prospective student-athletes.
- Attended Clemson University.
- Contributed to the department of athletics or IPTAY.
- Participated in or been a member of IPTAY.
- Been otherwise involved in the Clemson University athletics program.

Ask Before You Act
Prospective student-athletes may:
- Identify outstanding potential student-athletes in your area and forward information, such as newspaper articles, to the coach of that sport at Clemson.
- Continue to establish friendships with friends and neighbors, even those with prospect-aged children. However, contact for recruiting purposes is still prohibited.
- Attend, on your own initiative, events such as games and banquets where prospective student-athletes are present as long as you do not contact the prospect(s) or their family for recruiting purposes.
- Answer a call from a prospective student-athlete (you may not initiate the call) regarding only Clemson University in general, not about Tiger athletics. Please promptly inform compliance services or the coach should this situation arise.
- Make donations to a high school if it is located in your community; the donation is not made at the request of Clemson or Clemson coaches, and the funds are distributed through established channels and not directed towards a specific student-athlete.

Current student-athletes may:
- Continue to come out and support student-athletes at Clemson athletic events.
- Provide summer employment to student-athletes, but only if you contact Clemson’s office of compliance services (compliance-L@clemson.edu) first and the student-athlete is compensated for work actually performed at a rate commensurate with the going rate in the locality for similar services.

What Every Booster Should Know
- Extra Benefit - Any special arrangement by a Clemson employee, booster, IPTAY member, or alum to provide a prospective or enrolled student-athlete or their families and friends with a benefit not permitted by NCAA legislation. Examples of prohibited benefits include (but not limited to):
  - Arranging employment for family and friends of the student-athlete.
  - Free or reduced housing agreements.
  - Gifts of money, awards, food/drinks, or other tangible items.
  - Loans of money or automobiles.
  - Professional services without charge or at a discount.
  - Promises of employment or loans following college graduation.
  - Providing transportation for the student-athlete or their friends and family.
  - Use of ATM, credit, or other types of gift cards.
- Institutional Control - A central principle of the NCAA by-laws. Institutional control requires that Clemson University conducts its intercollegiate athletics program in compliance with NCAA rules and regulations. This includes booster activity.
- Prospective Student-Athlete - A student, regardless of their athletic ability, who has started classes for the ninth grade or any student enrolled at another two or four-year institution.
- Recruiting - Any solicitation of a prospect or a prospect’s family by Clemson’s coaches or representatives of athletic interest for the purposes of securing the prospective student-athlete’s ultimate enrollment and participation in athletics at Clemson. Only designated Clemson athletics department staff members may recruit.
- Student-Athlete - A student whose enrollment was solicited by a member of the Clemson athletic department staff or other representative of athletics interest with a goal of the student’s ultimate participation in Clemson’s intercollegiate athletics program. Student-athletes are not just those who were recruited or receive athletic scholarships, they are also those who participate in intercollegiate athletics.

Activities That Will Harm Prospective Student-Athletes
You may not...
- Contact (including phone calls, texts, and email) or interact with a prospective student-athlete or their family for the purpose of persuading them to attend Clemson.
- Contact coaches, guidance counselors, or other school administrators in order to gain information on prospective student-athletes.
- Make contact with a prospective student-athlete or the prospect’s family during official or unofficial visits.
- Provide any other extra benefits to prospective student-athletes, family, friends, or their coaches.
- Provide prospective student-athletes or their family and friends with transportation or financial assistance.

Activities That Will Harm Current Student-Athletes
You may not...
- Generally provide benefits that are not available to other members of the Clemson student body.
- Provide extra benefits to student-athletes or their family and friends. Examples of prohibited benefits include (but not limited to):
  - Gifts of money, awards, food/drinks, or other tangible items.
  - Free or reduced housing agreements.
  - Loans of money or automobiles.
  - Occasional meals.
  - Professional services without charge or at a discount.
  - Promises of employment or loans following college graduation.
  - Providing transportation for the student-athlete or their friends and family.
- Sending student-athletes items to be autographed and returned or using autographed items to raise funds for high schools.
- Use of ATM, credit, or other types of gift cards.
- Use the name or image of a current student-athlete to advertise, recommend, or promote products or services.

Consequences
Violations of these NCAA, ACC, and University policies can result in severe penalties, including:
- Disassociation - Clemson University may permanently dissociate itself with an athletic booster. You could lose the privilege of purchasing season tickets, the privilege of being an IPTAY member, or any other Clemson athletic-related benefit deemed appropriate.
- Harm to the Enrolled Student-Athlete - Violations can also result in the enrolled student-athlete or entire team being unable to compete for Clemson University.

The IPTAY Representative program continues to be one of the most important marketing tools available for the growth of the IPTAY Scholarship Fund. This group of nearly 700 men and women throughout the country volunteer their time to encourage those in their communities and in their circle of influence to join IPTAY on an annual basis and to support Clemson in all endeavors. Despite the economic challenges throughout the state and region, IPTAY had a successful 2011 campaign due to the tireless efforts of this group.

The recruitment of new donors, those who have a potential for leadership gifts, and creating a link between Clemson and its constituents is the goal of each IPTAY representative. With the continued leadership provided by the IPTAY Board of Directors and our past presidents, the REP program will continue to be successful. If you are interested in becoming an IPTAY representative, contact Jason Wilson via email at wilson@clemson.edu.

The Clemson Tiger Sports Network supplies fans with a full day of broadcast each football Saturday. Each broadcast day has three programs, “Tiger Tailgate Show,” “Game Day Broadcast,” and “Fifth Quarter Show.” A Tiger tradition since the 1970s, the “Tiger Tailgate Show” is a two-hour entertainment and interactive program. It is produced on the lawn of Littlejohn Coliseum at the corner closest to Memorial Stadium.

The program begins three hours prior to kickoff on gameday. Roy Philpott, David Stein, Dory Kidd, and Ben Mikkert host the show. It is a popular gathering place. Interviews with former players, game day display items, and other exciting action are all a part of the show.

The game broadcast is anchored by Pete Yanity. The sports director at WSPA-TV (Ch. 7) in Spartanburg, SC took over in 2003 after the passing of Jim Phillips, who had been the longtime voice of the Tigers since 1968. Yanity has been a part of the broadcast team since 2001 as the host of the pregame, halftime, and postgame shows, and as the sideline reporter during games.

Yanity has been the sports director at WSPA the last 21 years. He has also been a sideline analyst for 15 years on Carolina Panthers' preseason games and has play-by-play experience with CSS, covering various college events, including Tiger football and baseball games. Yanity is also the voice of Tiger men's basketball and the host of the Dabo Swinney and Brad Brownell Television Shows.

Joining Yanity in the booth is former Tiger defensive lineman Will Merritt, who played for the Tigers from 1998-01. He was a starting offensive guard during the 2000 and 2001 seasons when he was named Second-Team All-ACC.

Merritt worked on the Clemson radio network pregame and postgame shows during the 2002 season. He also provided color commentary on the television tape-delay broadcasts of selected 2002 games. In 2003, he became the color analyst of the gameday broadcasts.

Patrick Sapp completes the broadcast team as the sideline commentator. The former Tiger quarterback and linebacker (1992-95) is in his fifth season as sideline commentator. As a player, he passed for 2,278 yards in three seasons under center. During his senior campaign, he moved to linebacker, where he totaled 33 tackles and a team-high 5.5 sacks prior to being selected in the second round of the NFL draft by the San Diego Chargers. Sapp is currently a development officer for the Clemson Alumni Association.

As has been the case in the past, the gameday broadcast begins with the Dabo Swinney Pregame Show. Swinney meets with Sports Information Director Tim Bowers to provide Tiger fans with the latest lineup and strategy information. Yanity and Merritt also provide a last-minute scene-setter that includes the latest lineup and weather information.

After the game, fans can tune in to the “Fifth Quarter Show.” Interviews with Swinney and Coordinators Chad Morris and Kevin Steele are included. An added feature includes locker room interviews with Clemson's top players that day. A rundown of stats and audio highlights are also provided.

The network also produces the Dabo Swinney Television Show, a recap of the previous week’s highlights. Yanity serves as the host of this program that gives fans insight into coaches' decisions from the previous game and takes an up-close look at your favorite players.

For more information, contact Robert Stockhausen (general manager) at Clemson Tiger Sports Properties, 153 Old Greenville Highway, Suite 203, Clemson, SC 29631, by phone at (864) 654-5544, or via fax at (864) 654-5509.

Dr. Mark Spede, Director of Bands for Clemson University, and Ed Evans, President of the Clemson University Tiger Band Association (CUTBA), are pleased to announce an exciting new addition at the Tiger Band practice field. Fundraising for this project is already underway and has achieved a remarkable level of success.

"With the Tiger Band Plaza, we are bringing a beautiful and needed improvement to our practice facility," said Spede. "The Plaza will provide a wonderful place for our band members and their parents to assemble, and it will provide us with an excellent recruiting tool for prospective band students. It will be both a functional structure and a chronological monument to Tiger Band, and it will be a beautiful addition to the Clemson campus on Perimeter Road."

"CUTBA is very honored to be able to be a part of this project," stated Evans. "The Plaza will be a place that every Tiger Band member - past, present, and future - can visit and enjoy. The Plaza will be a tribute to our efforts as the Guardians of the Clemson Spirit and The Band That Shakes the Southland."

The Plaza will be both functional as well as commemorative, incorporating storage capacity to assist the band during rehearsals for football. The Plaza bricks will allow for all Tiger Band members to have their name, instrument, and class year recorded as a permanent testament of their time in the band.

The Plaza will also assist in fundraising for the band endowments, which provide scholarships for Tiger Band members. Funds raised through major gifts and brick purchases above the cost of the project will flow into a special endowment for Tiger Band. There are notable naming opportunities for interested donors.

Construction on the Tiger Band Plaza is planned to begin during the spring of 2012, and the dedication ceremony will take place during Homecoming weekend in 2012. Interested donors should contact Rob Porter (rporter@clemson.edu, (864) 656-1655) at the Clemson University Foundation.

About CUTBA
CUTBA is a support organization for Tiger Band. Its members consist of former Tiger Band members and friends of the band. CUTBA was organized in 1978 and has raised over $500,000 in scholarship funds in its endowment. The endowment also has over $2.3 million in planned gifts.

CUTBA also provides watches to all Tiger Band seniors and performs several other duties to assist Tiger Band. CUTBA's members participate in Alumni Band each year and march with Tiger Band at the Homecoming game.

Today's Show
Today's halftime show will feature music of the late 1970s. First up is Michael Jackson's "Rock With You," followed by the experimental rock group Emerson Lake & Palmer's epic "Karn Evil 9." After the introduction of the Homecoming Queen and Court, the Tiger Alumni Band will take the field for a "Blast from the Past."

Eric Bruck's list of individual accomplishments would be impressive if the 2011-12 season was his last with the Clemson men's swimming & diving program. But, the reigning ACC sprint freestyle champion has only been swimming collegiately for two seasons, so he has plenty of time left to pad his records and enhance his resume.

Also frightening for the opposition is that he is nowhere near complacent with his accomplishments to this point.

"There is always going to be someone faster," admitted Bruck. "I'm not letting up. There are still lots of people who'd like to beat me.

Bruck's list of swimmers he has not beaten is smaller than most, as he spent most of last season steamrolling the competition all across the ACC, as well as the rest of the nation. He won the 50 freestyle at the ACC Championships and finished tied for 14th in the nation in the event.

Setting the tone for a program that sent a foursome of student-athletes to the national meet.

After a pair of conference crowns (Bruck was also a part of the ACC Champion 200 medley relay team), the Lexington, KY native has designs on a repeat performance this season, although his list of goals has become more expansive and ambitious.

"At ACCs, I want to add a third event...the 100 fly," he declared. "I want to score in all three events...the 50 free, the 100 free, and the 100 fly. At NCAAs, I'd like to score in the 100 free and see what I can do in the 50 free."

Bruck has always been über-talented. He was a highly-recruited prospect out of high school, so his string of success comes as no surprise to his coaches. In fact, Bruck expects it, which is the main reason he has re-dedicated himself during off-season conditioning so that he can work faster for longer stretches this season.

Head Coach Christopher Ip said there is a sense of urgency for Bruck to be great once more as a Tiger.

"He's a very competitive person," explained Ip. "He was the real deal as a sophomore, already scoring at NCAAs. He is definitely a great leader. People see him as somebody who was pretty raw. To watch him be that dedicated and to see him make the progress he did this summer is making some of the other guys step it up as well."

"This was the first summer I've ever swam and trained," added Bruck. "I've definitely got a leg up at the beginning of this season compared to previous seasons. I feel like I'm off to a very good start."

For Bruck, there is solace in the fact that he was not alone during the spring and summer. The success of a year ago, particularly on the men's side, has added to the hunger of a group of dedicated Tigers who want to see Clemson University represented admirably at the highest level.

"Everyone is still busting their tails in practice," said the ACC Champion. "There are a lot of people who are working a lot harder than they ever have before, both in the weightroom and in the pool. I think individually and team-wise we are going to have some really good swims.

Bruck has led by his performance over a span of two seasons, and this season he has been officially added to the laundry list of leaders, mainly seniors, on the men's squad. A rather quiet person by nature, Bruck has not always been totally comfortable speaking and bringing himself to the forefront.

This season, however, he has become more of an integral part of the leadership structure within the team. It has become easier according to Bruck, because of the way he and his teammates relate to one another. They have become a band of brothers through trials and circumstances that might have broken the spirits of a weaker group.

"With everything that has happened, even though it's a smaller group, we're getting better together," said Bruck. "We're together all the time, so we have to get along with each other and push each other."

With one final shot to bring the Clemson men's swimming & diving program into the national spotlight, a team made up almost exclusively of decorated upperclassmen will rely on individuals like Bruck to set the tone. It is a role he is well-suited for at this time, a role that he said will need to be shared among the group when considering exactly what is at stake.

"We're basically all seniors this year," stated Bruck. "Everyone is a leader. If someone is struggling at practice, everyone has to pick them up and make sure that they're doing their job so that the team can meet its goals."

Meeting goals is always a team's focus. If Clemson men's swimming & diving wants to know how to do it, Eric Bruck is a perfect example.

A Tradition of Excellence . . . Then, Now and Always Tori Cervone

The junior is a leader of women with lofty team and personal goals for the 2011-12 season.

Often times, Clemson Swimming & Diving Head Coach Christopher Ip refers to his swimmers as being "on schedule." This means that the student-athlete is progressing in his or her development at the exact pace that the coaching staff believes he or she should be. Sometimes, a student-athlete can fall a little behind, so it is nice to have someone on the roster who can pick up the slack in a number of areas.

For the Clemson women’s swimming & diving team, that person is junior Tori Cervone. A jack-of-all-trades for the Tigers, Cervone has competed in just about every event imaginable during her Clemson career. On a team that is thin on available bodies, using versatile swimmers like Cervone in a number of roles will be more important than ever.

There is responsibility involved with swimming multiple events. Swimming involves a great deal of mental preparation, so rushing around from event to event, particularly when it involves multiple disciplines, is not ideal for everyone.

However, she has become adept at brushing the pressure aside and focusing on one event at a time. In fact, she believes the multi-faceted nature of her role keeps her mentally fresh.

"Regardless of whether I have to do the same events every meet or not, I’m still going to try my best," said the Closter, NJ native. "I like to do different events every meet, just so I don’t get bored. I feel like I would get bored if I had to do the same events over and over again. But, I don’t feel any more pressure than I already would.”

Cervone has grown comfortable enough with her main events that she has begun to establish herself as one of the most successful medley swimmers in school history. She currently holds top-six marks in four events - 200 backstroke, 200 butterfly, 200 individual medley, and 400 individual medley.

She is well within striking distance of several school records and would like to make sure she leaves Clemson as the school leader in at least one event after coming so close a season ago.

"I wish I had gone a little faster in the 200 IM," she said of her performance last season. "I’m only a tenth off of the record. Hopefully, I can get that this year. That’s probably one of my biggest goals for this year...to get that record. I made the finals in the 400 IM at ACC’s last year and I’d like to do that again, and maybe do it in some other events.”

Cervone can afford to focus on her individual accomplishments in 2011-12 due to a shift in focus within the program. Ip has put an emphasis on individual success this season, choosing to err on the side of one-on-one instruction due to the lower number of student-athletes at his disposal.

"It’s going to be an interesting year," admitted Ip. "We have to work more individually with the athletes and really focus on that. Hopefully, when they individually do well, the team success will appear. We can’t go for huge team goals, because our team isn’t as large as it has normally been. But, we’d do the best we can.”

From leaders on the team like Cervone to the few new faces who will litter the roster this season, the Tigers are hopeful that each individual will pick up some extra slack in events where the talent pool might not be deep. Cervone will obviously be a major part of that plan, but others, including her sister, Alisha, a sophomore, will be counted on as well. The strategy will require a special sense of togetherness and individual responsibility to the collective body.

"As long as everyone gives it our all, and I think everyone will, the overall results will be good," said Cervone. "We might not win every meet, but we should be able to compete with other teams.

"Everyone did their jobs over the summer to stay in shape and improve. Even though our team is smaller in numbers this year, we’re stronger than ever.”

After watching their male counterparts send four representatives to the NCAA Championships last season, Cervone and her teammates would like to join them this season. There will be several chances for a versatile swimmer like Cervone, who will be asked to compete at a high level in a variety of events, to qualify.

In the program’s final season, Cervone has designs to leave her own personal legacy on Clemson women’s swimming & diving. Leading a host of Tigers to nationals, a lofty yet attainable goal, would be a nice way to do it.

“That would be awesome,” Cervone said of participating in the NCAA meet this season. “There are a couple of people who are really close, and maybe we can get a relay in there, too. I have a really good feeling about this season.”

THE TWO-SPORT STANDOUT RECALLS THE MAGICAL 1981 SEASON AND THE KEY GAMES THAT ENABLED THE TIGERS TO CAPTURE THE NATIONAL TITLE.

Throughout his dual-sport career as a football and baseball player at Clemson, Bob Paulling defined consistency in every facet of his athletic career from 1979-83.

On the diamond, he was an All-ACC and all-district first-baseman for a Tiger team that won two ACC Championships and advanced to the 1980 College World Series.

On the gridiron, Paulling was an All-ACC placekicker. For his career, he was 34-41 on field goals and 107-109 on extra-point attempts. His 299 career points place Paulling 10th on Clemson's all-time scoring list. He was also the only Clemson athlete to be named First-Team All-ACC in two sports during the 1980s.

But it was Paulling's play during the magical 1981 National Championship season that has forever endeared him to Tiger fans. The native of Saint Matthews, SC was born and raised a Tiger.

"My dad played football at Clemson for Frank Howard and I had a sister who played basketball at Clemson a few years ahead of me," said Paulling. "I grew up going to Clemson games ever since I was an infant. I went to my first Clemson-South Carolina game when I was five-years-old, and I haven't missed one since."

Exactly 15 years after watching his first Palmetto State battle, Paulling would help the Tigers to the 1981 national title and college football glory.

His calm and accurate kicking got its first chance to shine during the second game of that season against Tulane.

"We were in the bus riding to the Superdome when we looked out the window and saw our starting kicker, Donald Igwebuikhe, had missed the ride. He was running out the front door of the hotel and he had to run about half a block to catch us. Donald pulled his hamstring running the bus down. He couldn't kick in pregame warmups, so I was the kicker that game. I kicked a couple field goals late that helped seal the deal over Tulane."

While the Tulane game was a big one for Paulling, he listed two other contests as the biggest in a season that would change Clemson forever.

"Of course beating defending National Champion Georgia and Herschel Walker in Death Valley was very memorable. I remember Jeff Davis and Terry Kinard knocking the ball loose from him and Tim Childers with some big hits."

"But, the North Carolina game was the biggest. When we beat them 10-8 in Chapel Hill, that was huge. The Georgia game got us going with confidence and it put us in the national polls, because they were the defending National Champions. It showed us that we could play with the big boys."

"But looking back, I think the UNC game maintained that momentum and pushed us towards being where we wanted to be: a National Championship team."

That dream came true on a steamy Miami night on January 1, 1982, when the undefeated and #1 Tigers defeated #4 Nebraska 22-15 in the Orange Bowl. Paulling vividly recalled the postgame pandemonium.

"I remember there was a guy in the stands who had an orange cowboy hat on and I made eye contact with him somehow. He threw me his cowboy hat like a Frisbee. I caught it and it was a solid-orange, Stetson-type cowboy hat."

"I had taken part of a bumper sticker and put on the part that said, '11-0 and Ready to Go.' I put it on my head on the field and wore it home. I still have that cowboy hat today. I don't know whose it is, but if the guy reads this article, he might call and want his cowboy hat back. That connection and being able to win that game for the fans was something special."

After graduating from Clemson with a degree in electrical engineering, Paulling was drafted as a kicker by the Saint Louis Cardinals. Following a free-agent stint with the Atlanta Falcons, he went to work for Tri-County Electric Cooperative in Saint Matthews.

He is now the CEO of Tri-County and makes it back to Tigertown for every home game with his wife of 31 years, Dale. They have one daughter and are enjoying the joy of a new grandson.

"I just got a video of him in a little Clemson outfit kicking a football," smiled the proud grandfather. "It just turned one and already kicking a football."

Paulling thinks of his experience at Clemson on an almost daily basis.

"It was such an honor, not just to be around great coaches, but great players at Clemson," he added. "You think about the players on that team who went on to have long NFL careers. Players like Terry Kinard, Jeff Davis, Perry Tuttle, William 'Refrigerator' Perry...the list goes on and on.

"It is amazing to look back and see how talented that group was and how special it was to be a part of it."

To Rosemary Ross, Clemson is home. The Anderson, SC native grew up attending Clemson sporting events and being around the campus.

Mrs. Ross moved away to attend Winthrop in Rock Hill, but after graduating with a degree in education, she found her way back home in 1977 after a brief stay teaching in Charleston. It was in Charleston where her relationship with Jere Ross, whom she met through a mutual friend who attended Clemson, grew.

"If it weren’t for Clemson, I never would have met my husband," she admitted.

Jere Ross was in Charleston in dental school and he is now a dentist in Clemson. Dr. Ross is a native of Clemson, so it was only natural for the couple to settle down in the place they both had always considered home.

"Everybody thinks of Clemson as a great college town, but it’s a great place to raise your family, too."

Mrs. Ross taught second grade at Clemson Elementary for five years before becoming a stay-at-home mom in 1985.

The couple has two children, Mary Frances (29) and Lauren (26). Mary Frances graduated from Clemson with a degree in biological sciences in 2004 and then attended the Medical University of South Carolina, where she earned her dental degree. She is now in practice in Clemson with her father at Calhoun Clemson Dental Associates.

Their younger daughter, Lauren, graduated from Clemson in 2007 with a degree in marketing. She now lives in Charleston and works as an associate account manager at Blackbaud, a software company.

The Ross family, along with four other families, get together every gameday to tailgate and catch up. They have been doing that for 34 years, so all of the families are extremely close and the best of friends. Their seats in Memorial Stadium are together and their children have grown up together.

"It’s very special," she said.

Mrs. Ross enjoyed being around for her daughters’ college experiences. "I think family is very important to me.

That’s why I enjoyed my children coming to Clemson so much, because I got to meet their friends. They would tailgate with us, which was special."

Mrs. Ross loved being there as a motherly figure for all of her children’s friends as well as her own. "Before exam week, I would have each daughter pick a few friends to invite over for a Christmas dinner so that they could have a touch of home and a home-cooked meal before exams started. That was always very special to me. I got to know their friends and they got to know us. We became like family."

It is very evident that family is the most important aspect of Mrs. Ross’s life. When asked about her parenting tactics, she credited the way she was raised.

"I came from a very strong family and my growing up was a utopia. We tried to raise our children the same way, with family values and Christian values. I think it’s so important in life that they know it’s ok to laugh. It’s important to have laughter in your life. We’re very close...we tell each other I love you all the time."

Sporting events are another way for her family to get together. "I think Clemson is a huge part of our family, who we are, and why we’re here. It’s a great place to be."

Since moving to Clemson in 1977, Mrs. Ross has been involved in the community. She participated on her share of school-related committees for her daughters, such as PTA President, fundraiser chairwoman, and a member of the D.W. Daniel High School Booster Club.

The Ross’ have been members of Fort Hill Presbyterian Church for the last 34 years and are active members. She is also a member of the Clemson Garden Club and the Clemson University Women’s Club.

Being named Mother-of-the-Year by Tiger Brotherhood means a great deal to Mrs. Ross.

"I have never been so overwhelmed. I have heard about it all my life and knew how special it was. It is very humbling, because I know so many of the people in Tiger Brotherhood, and for them to bestow this honor upon me, it is very humbling. I was brought to tears. It was very special. The whole ride has been wonderful."

When Coach Frank Howard’s 1951 Tigers defeated longtime rival Auburn 34-0 at season’s end to finish in the AP top 20 for the third time in four years, it spoke volumes about the character and leadership of Tiger players and coaches.

Clemson’s undefeated 1948 and 1950 teams were ranked #11 and #10, respectively, in the final AP polls, which, together with the #20 finish in 1951, put Howard’s football program behind only those of California’s Pappy Waldorf, Oklahoma’s Bud Wilkinson, and Michigan State’s Biggie Munn in consistency from 1948-51 (those teams had four straight top-20 seasons).

So how did a small, underfunded, South Carolina military land-grant college compete in the big-time athletic world in that era? It had a lot to do with the character found in those individuals who grew up in the rural South.

Coach Howard used to state with pride that his early Clemson teams consisted of “small-town boys who played ‘big time’ football.” He could have added that he and his assistant coaches were a bunch of small-town boys as well.

Born on his father’s farm in Barlow Bend, AL, Howard’s early upbringing was strictly “country,” and he was often called as such after moving to nearby Mobile upon his father’s death when he was “four or five,” as he recalled.

Upon graduation from Alabama in 1931, he turned down a higher-paying job to coach the line at Clemson under Jess Neely (his mentor at Alabama for four years), because he wanted access to locker room showers. He had access to those showers until his death in 1996.

Howard chose not to follow Neely to Rice in big-city Houston in 1940. Instead, he as-sumed the Tiger head coaching spot and retained fellow Neely Assistants Bob Jones and Covington (Goat) McMillan. Jones and McMilian had played their football at Clemson’s (except for Cohen, who was never a full-time employ-e). What they faced in preparation for the 1951 campaign was the loss of six “impact players” off the undefeated 1950 Orange Bowl Championship team (1950-51). The “Dream Backfield” of Jackie Calvert, Dick Hendley, Ray Mathews, and Fred Cone, offensive end Bob Hudson, and All-South linebacker Wyndie Wyndham. All were NFL draftees, with Cone, Hudson, and Mathews playing a combined 30 years in the pros. All are in Clemson’s Hall of Fame as well.

On the positive side, there was substantial talent returning, including six future Tiger Hall of Famers (Bud Wilkinson, defensive halfback Knobby Knoebel, and defensive guard Tom Barton. None of this group, or anyone else on the 1951 team, except defensive tackle Bob Pat-ton, would play pro football. In most instances, they wanted to put their Clemson education to use back home.

Barton, under the stabilizing influence of wife Jean Yarborough, entered the high school coaching and education administration field. He earned his doctorate in education from Duke and became one of South Carolina’s most respected leaders as Greenville Tech’s president during its first half-century.

Wade joined the Clemson coaching staff in 1953 after marrying Barbara Henderson. He was Frank Howard’s chief assistant in the 1960s prior to becoming Tennessee Tech’s head coach and athletic director in 1967. Knoebel made the military a career, retiring as a colonel. Smith became president of his own engineering firm (C.G. Smith & Associates) in Orange, CA. Gaskin managed a commercial credit company in Charleston. Hair was employed at Lockheed’s Polaris Missile facility.

First cousins Lawrence and Nathan (Bill) Gressett entered Clemson as freshmen in 1949. Lawrence practiced law with his father (Marion) in Saint Matthews, SC before taking over as president of SCANCA and board chairman in the 1990s. He also served as Clemson’s board chairman. Bill practiced family dentistry in Orange, CA.

On only two other occasions held down starting positions on the 1951 squad. Linebacker Jimmy Quarles, who became a leading orthodontist in his hometown, and wingback Buck George, who became a textile executive and assistant coach of the Catawba Indians in Rock Hill.

Sharing the fullback position with Gressett was 1950 letterman Jim Shirley. The two actually gained more yardage together than did Cone in 1950. Shirley became a world-famous golf-course designer.

Offensive guards and best friends Pete Manos and Dan DiMucci had varied careers. Manos most recently in the restaurant business in Myrtle Beach and Dan in high school coaching in Pennsylvania.

Center Joe Bryant was honored by his friends Jim and Barbara McCabe in 1999 with a $100,000 IPTAY endowment in his name.

Halfback Archie Baker and safety Peter Cook rounded out the only Clemson defensive backfield to go unscorched through the year at least 60 years. Baker is an insurance executive in Charleston.

Finally, while Patton, a team captain, did play one year of professional football with the New York Giants, he went on to have a successful career in high school coaching in Anderson, as a Howard assistant at Clemson, and in real estate in Nashville, TN.

It was this team that deserves partial credit for the creation of the ACC. Having defied the old Southern Conference presidents by playing Miami (FL) in the 1952 Gator Bowl, Clemson and Maryland (who played in the Sugar Bowl) had their 1952 conference schedules cancelled. The uproar that followed helped generate the interest in 1953 for a new league.

Today is Homecoming on campus, a day that brings fond memories to all Clemson graduates, especially former Tiger football players. Former Tigers who ran down the Hill under the regimes of Frank Howard to Tommy Bowden will be a part of the crowd at today’s game and will have the opportunity to relive some great times in Death Valley. Players on teams spanning eight decades will receive special recognition today as a part of the athletic department’s football reunion program.

Pregame ceremonies will include Al Cameron, believed to be the last living member of Clemson’s 1939 SoCon Championship team that defeated Boston College 6-3 in the 1940 Cotton Bowl. Cameron, father of Clemson Vice President for Advancement Nell Cameron, will make his way down the Hill (with some help) prior to the game. He turns 96 tomorrow and has been doing all kinds of physical preparation for this moment.

It will be a special day for Cameron when you consider he never had the opportunity to run down the Hill as a player. Clemson played at Riggs Field during his entire career as Memorial Stadium was not constructed until 1942. Many more teams will be honored today, some in an anniversary year and some who are not.

There is reason to honor Clemson’s 1948 team every year. That squad ran off a perfect 11-0 season, a SoCon title, and a #11 final ranking, Clemson’s second top-20 team in history.

This was a squad led by Bing of Honor member Fred Cone and his hard-driving running style. One of Clemson’s closest victories in that season was a 26-19 victory at Boston College. The season concluded with a 24-23 win over Missouri in the Gator Bowl, the team’s school-record sixth win by a touchdown or less.

Today marks the 50-year anniversary of the 1961 team. That Clemson squad played a tough schedule, with road games at Florida, Auburn, and South Carolina. One of the top victories was registered over Duke in Durham by a score of 17-7. Duke finished the season with a #14 ranking in the coaches poll. Tommy King was a First-Team All-ACC end, while Eddie Wenzer was ninth in the nation in punting (40.2) and Elmo Lam was 11th in punt return yards.

The 1973 team will return to campus today. Red Parker’s first team also played a challenging schedule that year, with road games at Georgia, Georgia Tech, and South Carolina and a home contest with Texas A&M. Ken Pingleton was the productive quarterback of the Tigers that year and finished the season 10th in the nation in total offense. That squad also had a sophomore tight end named Bennie Cunningham, who would go on to All-America seasons in 1974 and 1975 and would be the only tight end named to the ACC 50-Year Anniversary team.

The 1986 Tiger team will celebrate its 25-year anniversary, and that was certainly a season to remember. Danny Ford’s team won the first of three consecutive ACC Championships and finished the campaign ranked in the top 20 of all three polls.

The ACC title was clinched in unusual fashion, in fact, in a manner that could not happen today. Clemson and Maryland tied 17-17 in a game played at Baltimore’s Memorial Stadium, but that tie gave the Tigers the title. What Clemson fan can forget the clutch catch by All-ACC tight end Jim Riggs in the fourth quarter?

The 1986 Tigers had a landmark victory at Georgia on September 20, as David Treadwell booted a 46-yard field goal on the last play of the game to send Clemson to a 31-28 win in Athens. That was one of the most exciting games I have witnessed. What a day for All-American Terrence Flagler, whose running and receiving stymied the Bulldog defense. Clemson’s top tackler that day was Norman Haynes, a native of Athens, GA.

The 1986 Tigers finished with an 8-2-2 record and a 27-21 win over Stanford in the Gator Bowl. Rodney Williams was the MVP of that game, the first of two bowl game MVP honors for Clemson’s winningest quarterback in history.

Another signal-caller had a stellar season for the 10-year anniversary team that will return to campus today. Woodrow Dantzer’s 2001 season was one for the recordbooks, as he became the first Division I quarterback to pass for at least 2,000 yards and rush for at least 1,000 yards in one season.

His exploits were worth the price of admission every Saturday. He had perhaps the greatest back-to-back performances by any Tiger in wins over Georgia Tech and N.C. State. On September 29 in Atlanta against the #9 Yellow Jackets, Dantzer ran for 164 yards and threw for 254 yards in the thrilling 47-44 overtime victory. At the end of the first half, he scored on a 38-yard “Hall Mary” run, then ended the game with a six-yard touchdown run in overtime.

We only had to wait two weeks to see him surpass that performance. The Tigers had an open date before a trip to N.C. State. Dantzer gained 517 yards of total offense in a 45-37 victory over Phillip Rivers and the Wolfpack. It is the single-greatest Clemson performance I have seen.

Dantzer had 184 rushing yards and 333 passing yards that day. He threw four touchdown passes and ran for two more. It seemed everything Offensive Coordinator Brad Scott dialed up that day worked. Dantzer tied the ACC record for touchdown responsibility and completed 23-27 passes. His passing efficiency was 237.7, the best in school history for a minimum of 25 pass attempts.

So here are these teams of yesteryear back in Tiger-town today. They made a significant impact on the heritage of Clemson football. May they enjoy today’s game and witness a 2011 team that plans to make its own impact in Tiger football history. They are certainly off to a good start.
