The Tiger's Guide to Clemson

This issue is an essential reference for both on and off-campus students. This supplement includes the academic calendar, sports calendars, up-coming events and general information about the community which commuting students might need in order to set up house keeping at the beginning of the school year.

Library operation

Tyrone Walker/staff writer

Slack-jawed and wide eyed, students are often amazed at the amount of information available in the libraries.

In an effort to meet the concerns of the students, Cooper Library will be issuing a survey in upcoming editions of The Tiger to determine how to improve their services. One main point being examined is the possible extension of hours. Any questions or suggestions should be directed towards Ralph Hayes at 656-5180. Your answers and input will help determine the future of library policies.

Cooper Library houses more than 1.5 million books, periodicals, government documents and other materials.

Two other branches are located on campus. The Architectural Library located in Lee Hall and the Special Collections located in the Strom Thurmond Institute building. These branches contain information dealing with the special nature of their programs.

Cooper Library Hours for Fall

Mon. - Thurs. 7:45 a.m. - 1:00 a.m.

Fri. 7:45 a.m. - 8:00 p.m.

Sat. 10:00 a.m. - 6:00 p.m.

Sun. 12:00 a.m. - 1:00 a.m.

Architectural Library

Mon. - Thurs. 8:00 a.m. - 9:00 p.m.

Fri. 8:00 am - 5:00 p.m.

Special Collections

Mon. - Fri. 8:00 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

Tues. 8:00 a.m. - 8:00 p.m.

Tyrone Walker/staff writer

Cooper Library sits in the center of campus overlooking the fountain.

Off-campus living

The Clemson area offers many alternatives to on-campus living. Apartments, town houses and homes are available for rent at fairly reasonable prices. Price ranges vary widely from $200 to $1000 a month.

Roommates are an effective way to help ease the cost of living.

Usually apartments house two to four people, but in some places, like University Ridge, up to six people can live in one apartment to help with the high rent.

Apartments can be found to accommodate nearly everyone's individual lifestyles.

The student on a tight budget may choose a more basic rental that lacks many luxuries. Different places offer luxuries like swimming pools, dishwashers and others even have washers and dryers located inside the apartment. This eliminates the hassle of dragging your clothes down to area laundry mats.

To find out more information about rentals, there are many real estate agents to contact.

• Bobbie Prater at 654-3311.

• Carolina Real Estate at 654-6202.

Southern Bell handles local telephone calls and billing for both local and long distance services. They have an office located in the Sears at Anderson Mall. Otherwise, they can be reached at 1-800-532-0163.

To turn on power contact Duke Power. Their office is located at 1329 E. Tiger Blvd. They have a twenty-four hour customer service line to help with any problems you might have call them at 654-7128.

Water and sewage is handled by the city. Their office is located in City Hall which is in the large brick building beside the police department. To connect the water line they can be reached at 653-2035.

• Tri-County Realty at 654-0083.

• Era Central Real Estate at 654-1166.

• Heritage Pointe - Burton Properties at 653-7717.

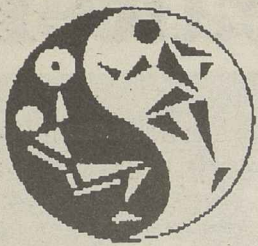

• Isaqueena Village Apartments at 654-6158.

• Moore-Ensley Realtors at 654-5240.

• Morris Newton and Associates at 654-5252.

After finding a place to live an important step to remember is turning on utilities. It usually takes a couple of days for utilities to be turned on, so be sure to notify the proper companies in plenty of time before you move.

Clemson traditions provide for Tiger faithful

There are chants, cheers, moments of silence and times of jubilant exultation. There are even faithful disciples, but is there a "Gospel according to the Church of Clemson Athletics?" Of course not, but according to the definition of "religion" in Exploring Religious Meaning, (a Religion 101 textbook), Clemson athletics does possess elements comparable to some religions.

This book defines a religion as "any person's reliance upon a pivotal value in which that person finds essential wholeness as an individual and as a person in a community." In this context, Clemson athletics could be considered a religion — and a non-denominational one, at that. Catholics, Protestants or Muslims, all can find "salvation" through the Clemson Athletic Department.

Clemson fans are known throughout the country as people "whose blood runneth orange," as the popular bumper sticker says, and will go anywhere to follow "their Tigers." Many of the devoted Tiger followers are members of IPTAY, Clemson University's official booster club. IPTAY, nurturing the need of these followers, gives the Clemson fan a special bond with the university.

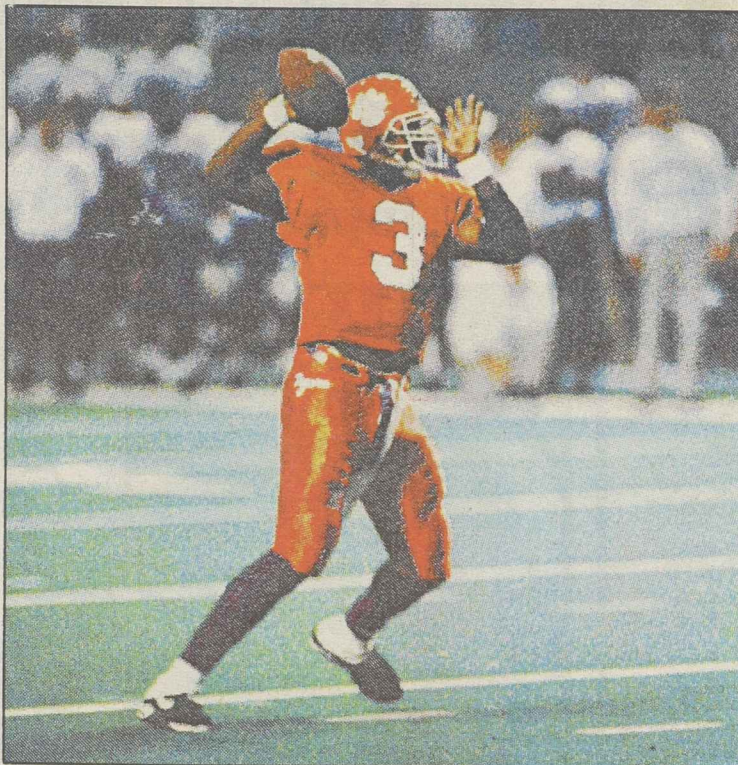

The "believers" find happiness in being part of an exclusive group, happiness that can't be realized by those heathens known as Gamecock fans.

Moreover, IPTAY members also have a sort of uniqueness because they donate as much money as they want, if their offering is at least $100 a year, of course. Loyalty to the religion is another important aspect and can be seen in the congregation of IPTAY, which to this date approaches 20,000 worshipers. They also have a certain degree of freedom and can decide which "athletic worship services" they want to attend.

Another characteristic of religion that Clemson athletics possesses is the pilgrimage the players and fans go through. The athletes go through minor pilgrimages every day (practice) so they can venture out and find success on their more important journeys (competition against other teams). Tens of thousands of Clemson "Crusaders" (the fans) hop in their Winnebagos every year to voyage to Clemson home games, away games and to cheer the Tiger football team on as they fight to capture a bowl game victory in the "Holy Land: of Florida."

The Clemson Athletic Department has a text followers should live by. It is the Orange and White, a sports newsletter mailed to followers once a week during the school year and once a month during the summer. It keeps members up-to-date with the different athletic teams.

file photo

Included in this text is a code to live by. The most important rule of the code is that Clemson fans have to overcome their feelings about South Carolina and Georgia, and try to "save" the nonbelievers that support those schools.

Rituals are also an important part of religion, and Clemson athletics are well known for their rituals. The most notable is the football players rubbing Howard's Rock and running down the Hill before each home game.

A couple of years ago, Sport Magazine declared this "the most exciting 25 seconds in college athletics," and listed it as the second best ritual in college football, behind Nebraska selling out their home games since sometime before the fall of the Ancient Roman Empire.

Other rituals include the football team wearing orange pants for important home games, songs the band plays and cheers from the student body.

It is imperative for a religion to have symbols with which followers can identify. The two major symbols of Clemson athletics are the Tiger mascot and the Tiger Paw itself. Sports fans everywhere, not just Clemson fans, recognize these as representing Clemson University.

A religion also needs a place of worship. Each sport's home field could be considered its "place of worship." The most notable would be Frank Howard Field, better known as Death Valley.

A Saturday afternoon in Death valley surrounded by 80,000 Tiger fans can be an uplifting experience.

Other "places of worship" include Littlejohn Coliseum, Riggs Field and Tiger Field.

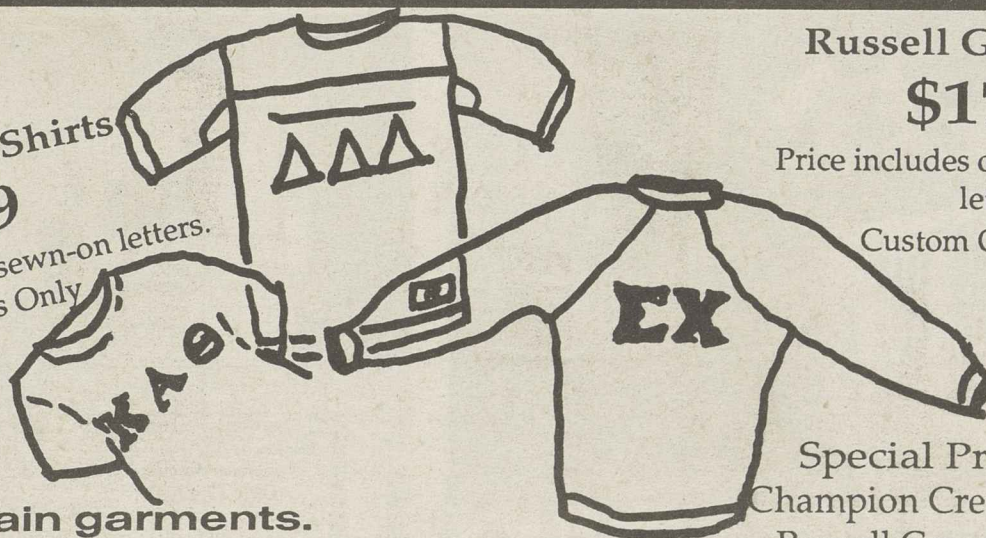

Although all somewhat rational human beings know Clemson Athletics could never be considered a religion, it is fun to see how the two possess quite a few of the same characteristics.

How much of a stretch would it be to see Tommy West, Rick Barnes or Jack Leggett as a messiah? Hmmm.

Ticket policies

by Lou Potenza
staff writer

Football is one of the main sports at Clemson University but it certainly isn't the only one.

Roughly 400 students take part in the intercollegiate athletic program, giving students year-round entertainment when it comes to spectator sports.

Clemson's campus recreation program provides opportunities for those who want to participate but not on an intercollegiate level.

The Tigers compete in 11 intercollegiate sports for men and eight for women.

The University is a member of the Atlantic Coast Conference, which also includes Duke, Florida State, Georgia Tech, Maryland, North Carolina, North Carolina State, Virginia and Wake Forest.

The men's teams compete in football, basketball, soccer, baseball, tennis, swimming, golf, outdoor track, cross country, indoor track and wrestling.

Women's teams compete in tennis, swimming, basketball, outdoor track, volleyball, cross country, indoor track and for the first time, soccer.

Tickets are required for home football and basketball games and are available at no charge upon presentation of a valid student I.D. and student use card at times and places published by the Athletic Department.

Traditionally, football tickets are available the week of the home game at Littlejohn Coliseum. Monday is the distribution day for seniors, Tuesday for juniors and so on.

Basketball tickets are available approximately two hours before tipoff at Littlejohn as well. There is no early distribution date for basketball unless otherwise noted. Students are admitted to all other on-campus intercollegiate athletic events, except NCAA-sponsored championship play-off tournaments upon presentation of I.D. and student use cards.

The Athletic Department does make every possible effort to accommodate all students that wish to attend an athletic event. However, if the demand for tickets is greater than the number of available seats, the Athletic Department does reserve the right to refuse to admit a Clemson student to an athletic facility if this endangers the safety of those participating and the spectators viewing the contest.

Disabled students should call the ticket office at 656-2118 to make arrangements for tickets.

New swimming coach named

by Lou Potenza
staff writer

Bruce Marchionda has been named the new Head Coach of Clemson's men's and women's swimming teams. Marchionda replaces Jim Sheridan who resigned last month to pursue other business opportunities. Marchionda served as an assistant coach with the Tigers in 1993-94. He coached the middle distance swimmers and helped two of his athletes to All-ACC honors.

"Obviously, I am extremely excited about the opportunity to coach at Clemson University," said Marchionda.

"We have a talented group of athletes returning and we had an excellent recruiting year. Last season we laid a solid foundation that we will be able to build upon this season."

Before coming to Clemson, Marchionda coached at Norfolk Academy in Norfolk, Va. where he served as both the men and women's coach since 1980.

Marchionda compiled a record of 226-22 at Norfolk and was recognized as state and conference Coach-of-the-Year from 1987 through 1991.

"We are delighted Bruce has accepted the challenge of directing our men's and women's swimming programs," said Senior Associate Athletic Director Dwight Rainey. "he has all the qualities to lead our program and be successful at Clemson."
