Local Cast To Give Broadway Comedy, "Dear Ruth"

Professional Musicians To Be Here Friday

Radio Stars To Present Veterans Hospital Program At Local Church

A unit of the Veterans Hospital Programs, headed by Richard Maxwell, widely-known radio singing star, will appear in the Clemson Methodist Church on Friday, February 24, at 7:30 p. m.

The program to be presented by the unit, which will also include Ivy Walsh and her accordion, and Al Walsh, radio and concert musician will consist of sacred music and light classics.

Richard Maxwell's name is known for his appearance for six years on the Seth Parker program, his own "Songs of Cheer and Comfort" (CBS), and his "Friends Indeed" (CBS) shows on the radio. He is a graduate of Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio, where he majored in biology and was graduated with highest honors.

He is a Phi Beta Kappa and has his A. B. and M. A. degrees. But he was primarily a musician, and in college he sang at every opportunity.

Mme. Galli-Curci, Metropolitan Opera star, heard him sing, and urged him to take up music as a career. She presented him with a letter of recommendation to Ettore Ruffo, a renowned Chicago music teacher. After six months' study under Ruffo, Mr. Maxwell went to New York where he soon was given a singing role in "The Music Box Revue," top Broadway musical production of 1923.

That same year, he was signed by the National Broadcasting Company, and thus launched his radio career. Few radio personalities have attained the record he has set in a quarter-century of broadcasting. He has appeared on an estimated 11,000 broadcasts.

Since 1945, when he began to devote most of his time to Veterans Hospital Programs, Mr. Maxwell has appeared at more than 300 hospitals and churches each year, an average of almost one a day.

It is the purpose of bringing cheer and comfort to hospitalized veterans that Richard Maxwell has dedicated his life.

Al and Ivy Walsh have appeared on the Studebaker Program (ABC) and will sing solos and duets accompanied by Ivy's Frontalini Accordion.

Veterans Hospital Programs, now in its fourth year of operation, is a national, non-profit organization supported by the Protestant Churches of America. Since 1945, an average of more than 150 entertainment programs have been given each year in Veterans' hospitals. Hundreds of radios have been distributed among individual patients as part of the unit's appearances. This year approximately one thousand radios will be given to disabled veterans, all paid for by the funds raised through the Protestant churches.

There will be no admission charge. At the close of the program, an offering will be received for the support of Veterans Hospital Programs.

Ceramics Society Installed Here At Banquet; Charter Presented

The Clemson Ceramics Department announces the installation of a local chapter of the American Ceramics Society on Saturday evening, February 18, at a banquet held in honor of the occasion.

The banquet was highlighted by an installation ceremony and the presentation of a charter to the new chapter by Charles S. Pearce, national secretary of the American Ceramics Society.

L. R. Whitaker, trustee of A. S. John Wells, Columbia Pipe Co., and Bill Cross, Carolina Ceramics Co., were among the distinguished guests attending. Also present was a delegation of nine students and several faculty members from the ACS chapter of

J. B. Faust, 1918 Grad, Transfers To Dublin Post

John Bernard Faust, foreign service officer, has been transferred to Dublin as second secretary and consul from Beirut.

Mr. Faust was born at Otranto Plantation, near Allendale, South Carolina, and was graduated from Denmark (South Carolina) High School and from Clemson Agricultural College, where he received his B. S. degree in 1918. He later attended the Georgetown University School of Foreign Service for a year.

From 1918 until 1926 Mr. Faust was engaged in chemical engineering work in the United States and Chile. Commissioned in the foreign service in May 1926, he has since served at Buenos Aires, Asuncion, Paris, Lisbon, Santiago, Tegucigalpa, La Ceiba, and Beirut.

In 1928-29 he introduced the tung oil tree into Paraguay; this has since grown into an agricultural industry. Mr. Faust's home address is Denmark, South Carolina.

The foreign service is the field operating arm of the Department of State which represents the United States government abroad. It consists of more than 11,000 employees at 300 consular and diplomatic missions scattered through the world. Through these posts, the United States conducts its business with other nations.

In addition to their well-known diplomatic functions, officials of the foreign service perform many other services for this government and its citizens.

These services include the issuance of passports and visas, economic and political reporting, reporting for the benefit of American business on possible markets for U. S. products or possible supplies of raw materials, protecting American citizens abroad. At one time or another, officials of the foreign service may be charged with performing any or all of these functions in posts ranging from Cape Town to Helsinki or from Buenos Aires to Rangoon.

Clemson Student Injured In Wreck

Frank McClure, electrical engineering senior of Varnville was injured in an automobile accident Friday afternoon, February 17, just below Greenwood.

McClure suffered a compressed vertebra and will remain in bed in a cast for about two months. He will have to wear a brace for two or three years after he has sufficiently recovered to get out of bed.

He will leave the Greenwood Hospital Wednesday morning in an ambulance which will carry him home. He was on Company C-4 at Clemson, and had expected to graduate in June.

No one else was seriously injured in the accident, although there were several other students involved in the wreck.

Georgia Tech, and the head of Ceramics Engineering from North Carolina State.

Harold E. Bishop, Ceramics engineering junior of Central, was elected to the office of president of the student ACS; George J. Bishop, mechanical engineering sophomore, of Anderson, will serve as vice president; and James T. Hough, chemical engineering junior of Charlotte, N. C., will assume office of secretary. The program chairman will be Arthur H. Harlee, mechanical engineering freshman of Florence.

Membership to all Ceramics chapter is open to all Ceramics engineering students. Notices of future meetings will be sent out along with invitations to attend.

Richard Maxwell, noted performer, will be one of a group of entertainers who will perform at the Methodist Church Friday evening. The group is appearing as a Veterans Hospital unit benefit.

Nu Epsilon Elects Ashton President

John P. Ashton, textile engineering sophomore of Philadelphia, Pa., was named president of Nu Epsilon at a meeting on Feb. 16.

Frank J. Holcombe, agriculture sophomore of Summit, N. J., was elected vice president; Alvin Zatzoff, textile manufacturing freshman of Philadelphia, Pa., will fill the post of secretary; and Thomas M. Croke, civil engineering junior, also of Philadelphia, assumes office as treasurer.

Plans are under way to select a new faculty advisor to fill the position vacated by Prof. E. B. Berry who has left Clemson.

Nu Epsilon is composed of students from the northern states. Students from the New England states, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, or New York are eligible for membership. Interested students are requested to contact one of the officers of the club.

Simons On Recent Radio Broadcast

Henry M. Simons Jr., assistant and agricultural editor of the South Carolina Experimental Station at Clemson, recently was on the National Farm and Home Hour radio program. This program was broadcast over WSMB, an affiliate of NBC, from New Orleans.

The theme of the program was "Southern Agriculture on the March." Master of ceremonies was Jack Flowers, who is extension editor for Mississippi State College. H. C. Sanders, a Clemson graduate of 1919, who is now Director of the Louisiana Agricultural Extension Service, was also on the program.

The latest developments in Southern Agriculture were discussed.

New Members Will Be Taken By ASME

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers will meet in the Riggs Hall Auditorium on Tuesday, February 28, for the purpose of taking in new members. All juniors and seniors majoring in mechanical engineering, who are not members, are eligible for membership.

Also at the meeting, a discussion will be started regarding the engineers and architects Day. This event will be held on April 14, 15, and 16 at Clemson.

The initiation for the new members will begin on the date of the meeting.

Two Former Tiger Men Address English Class

Two Clemson newsmen have been guest speakers in Professor John D. Lane's English at Work class.

Edward L. B. Osborne, director of the Clemson News Bureau, spoke Monday, February 13. Mr. Osborne is a former editor of the Tiger.

H. M. Simons, Jr., assistant agricultural editor of the Clemson Experiment Station, spoke at the class meeting Monday, February 20. Simons is a former associate editor of the Tiger.

Both gave a critical discussion of the Tiger.

Tiger Brotherhood To Circulate Petition Among Students About Alma Mater Change

Members of the Tiger Brotherhood will begin circulating a petition through the student body next Monday, February 27, to determine if the proposed new Alma Mater tune is to be adopted.

Contrary to a proposal voiced in The Tiger last week that every student be asked to vote either (1) for the present tune, or (2) for the new tune, or (3) for a change if he is in favor of neither of the two tunes, it is the plan that the petition be such that only those in favor of the proposed new tune will sign. It is deemed that if a majority of the students subscribe to such a petition the new tune may become official.

This plan was chosen because it is felt that it would be out of order for a student organization to call a referendum on the Alma Mater question; whereas, it would be in order for such a group to initiate a petition for a specified change.

The feeling that Clemson needs a distinctive Alma Mater tune has been felt by many for a long time. It is common knowledge that the present Alma Mater tune used by Clemson is used by many other colleges and high schools in the country. This attempt to change Clemson's Alma Mater is no denunciation of the musical merits of the "Far Above Cyparissus Waters" tune. The movement in favor of Clemson's adopting an original and distinctive tune is inspired by a sincere interest in the glory of Clemson.

The proposed new tune was written by Professor Hugh H. McGarity in response to a plea by the Tiger Brotherhood. The Tiger Brotherhood is deeply grateful to Prof. McGarity for his contribution and for his interest in this matter. "It is hoped that all of the students have become adequately familiar with the proposed new tune to judge it wisely," said A. J. Banks, president of the Brotherhood. A recording of the new music is being played daily in the mess hall.

"There is no prescribed procedure for a case such as this," Dr. R. F. Poole voiced the opinion that the matter is for the students to decide. Since the majority rules in democracy, the petition of a majority of the students should be recognized." Banks concluded.

Tickets may be bought from members of Little Theater or at the gate.

Polly Veale, wife of a Clemson student, leads the cast as "Ruth," big sister to "Miriam," played by Juanita Armstrong, also a student's wife. Miriam has been busy with a multitude of "projects" on of which has been a long series of love letters to an Air Force lieutenant, all signed with her big sister's name.

Complications arise when the lieutenant, William Seawright, played by William Terry, comes to town all full of romantic impulses for Ruth. Ruth, a statueque brunette, meanwhile carries a torch for Albert Kummer, who is portrayed by Professor Ray Tyner of the English department. The aggravated parents of the two girls are Judge Harry and Mrs. Edith Wilkins. Mrs. Forrest Cookson plays the mother role and Mr. I. A. Trivelpy, professor in the Civil Engineering department, plays opposite her.

Most of these are new on the Clemson stage making their first appearance here in "Dear Ruth."

The supporting cast includes several seasoned players. In a familiar role is Morey Lipton, instructor in zoology, playing the part of Harold Klobbermyer. Beaufort Gardner, a find of Little Theater's summer production "Our Town," is Sgt. "Chuck" Vincent. Dora, the colored maid, is played by Libba McGarity, who also appeared in "Our Town."

Jack Lesley of Easley heads the production staff as Production Manager. Serving with him in the backstage work on the play are Jimmy Beall, master electrician and stage manager; W. Schwiers, master carpenter; I. L. Langley, publicity; also, Ben Smith, house manager. Directing ticket sales is E. C. Schofield, assisted by Ollie Stukes, president of Little Theater. Prop man is Jack Skerratt with Jim Callahan and Jack Norris as stage hands.

A special set has been designed for this production by John McCulloch, of the school of architecture. McCulloch has overcome several technical difficulties presented by the Clemson stage. A modern decor is being developed for the set, a refreshing change from the Victorian atmosphere of recent productions.

The Little Theater presented "Angel Street" earlier this fall, and plans to present another play later in the spring. Members of Little Theater are also cooperating in sponsoring Barter Theatre's production of Moliere's "Imaginary Invalid."

YMCA Committee Names Aspirants

The nominating committee of the "Y" cabinet has chosen candidates for president, vice president, and secretary of the "Y" for the 1950-1951 term. Jimmy Stovall, Bill Ashley, and Jimmy Cushman were chosen candidates for president; and Jack Padgett and Gene McLeod for secretary.

In the election, there will be two main ballots, the first having the men running for president and vice president. The person receiving the largest number of votes on this ticket will be president and the person receiving the second largest will be vice president.

On the second ballot, which is for secretary, the man with the majority of votes will be elected. The election will be held at the "Y" on March 5 and 6.

Prefer Cow College Men To All Others

Senior Privates Critical; Lawrence Efficient; Table Manners Atrocious

By Charles Kennemore

There just ain't no justice! Last week at the request, or perhaps instigation, of several senior privates, I inserted a word or two about their supposed plight in this space. For that I have been roundly praised a few times, and soundly condemned quite a few more times.

I appreciate your plight, boys, about having to wear the uniform and, etc. What I think of the whole bloody set-up can be summed up very briefly in a few rather pointed four-letter words.

However, I can't really sympathize with you. I would like to refer you to the following in the 1948-1949 Clemson Agricultural College Record: pages 43-45, 52, 63-65.

Read 'em and go cry in your beer! In referring you to these pages I am perhaps overbold in assuming you came to this particular college voluntarily.

Ah, well, such is life!!!

Re Lawrence Letter to Tom Clemson

You, Mr. Lawrence, must be efficient—for our good and the welfare of the college. Of course we all realize that. It is undoubtedly the desire for greater efficiency that urges you to put a ticket on a car that stays twelve minutes in a ten minute parking space, or parks in a space marked "Out of Town Visitors" or "Administration" even though these signs have long since obliterated.

But for the very acme of efficiency—of late there seems to be plenty of parking space in the areas behind the first and third barracks. This is understandable of course since it is fifty yards or so further to walk. But in the eighth barracks parking area there are generally six or eight cars parked in the driving area. Of course, it is the desire for efficiency that causes you to seldom give a ticket to these major offenders. I suppose that it is perfectly all right to block eight or ten cars that may want, or need, to get out? That's O. K., let's just watch these little things. Is that the idea?

Efficiency? Ha! ha! I know some much better words. Want a lesson?

Bergman-Rossellini—It Even Makes The Tiger

In recent weeks I have come to the conclusion that the Clemson student body shows promise even to my warped way of thinking. The specific incident that brings about this comment is the much-publicized Bergman-Rossellini affair. My new found hope this time rises from the fact that even in the face of all the inane and stupid news and feature stories springing from this incident, I have heard very little said here on the campus. Those few comments, on the whole, have been non-committal or with a "So what?" or "It's none of my business" attitude. That's the proper viewpoint for my money.

Hey, Emily! Come A'Running!

I fear that I am not much of a student of Emily Post. I believe in an occasional comfortable elbow on the table, the old left hand helping with a hunk of bread sometimes, or maybe reaching for a dish when everyone appears busy. But even I draw a line. I suppose that I come from as poor a home as the average student here and much poorer than many, but I'm awfully proud at times. Maybe I'm wrong, but I was always taught that when eating family style that it was not correct to lick my fork clean and then use it to paw over the food on the platter. At the worst it isn't nice, and at best it is not very sanitary. But I've noticed that it is a very prevalent practice in the messhall here. Oh, well, maybe I've been wrong all these years!

Dirty Dirt On Dirt

Evidently the impossible can still happen. The janitor service in some of the buildings has gone from bad to worse. Things have come to a pretty sad state when the students have to post a list of volunteers to keep the classrooms swept regularly.

The situation in the Engine House last year became so bad that a student organization instituted a clean-up campaign that was successful for a little while. The A. S. T. E., a comparative newcomer on the campus, is launching a similar drive in the Textile building. At the beginning of the semester the architecture rooms were so filthy that the boys had to take a day off to scrub down the place, purely in self-protection of their drawings. I understand that the entire Textile building has two janitors, and that these are kept busy most of the time running errands or delivering messages.

These are pretty much the facts; you can, and maybe will, get some alibis.

The students are of course partially to blame for the present situation and can be invaluable in improving things, but I cannot see that it is really their responsibility though they have made it their problem. Someone within the interest of the students, but with more power will have to act. These people, whoever they are, should want to act, to find some way to do so; they should be required to do some.

Both the Engine House and the Textile buildings are frequent recipients of V. I. P.'s. I can well imagine the favorable impression of Clemson they take away with them.

These two buildings house two of our top schools and a department that we are trying to improve vastly. Surely they deserve the wherewithal to keep fairly decent in appearance.

There are many excuses for this state of filth, but there is not a good one in the lot.

Any of you students know anything about power politics?

that he (Oscar) has been waiting for this chance. You might say that he (Oscar) is even eager.

that he (Oscar) was very disappointed because his predecessors escaped punishment after all that nasty name calling.

that if you think they were nasty—you ain't seen nothing yet.

that he (Oscar) thinks the C. D. A. is doing a fine job at improving the racial question in South Carolina. Who's it gonna be for Junior-Senior, boys, Louis Jordan or Cab Calloway?

that much dirt was gotten on the troops over the weekend, but most of it is not printable.

that a certain young lady that he (Oscar) knows stays at home with her fingers crossed while hubby is out shaking the dice

that he (Oscar) hopes the "ill wind" that was blowing between Bundy and Stanly Saturday afternoon has died out.

that after all "gentlemen," no dame is worth the breaking of a "beautiful" friendship.

that the "dance" routine put on by Gilbert Bundy and Larry Stanley at the "Y" cabin Saturday was wonderful. Which one of you boys stepped on the other's toes?

that many of the troops did "take drunk" Saturday night.

that he (Oscar) knows all

Don't Get Me Wrong, But . . .

Term System Could Cure Semesters' End Ailments

By Bill Chamness

Final exams aren't so far behind us that I have forgotten what a gruelling ordeal they were. By the time they were over and I was stumbling my way to the bumming line, I was suffering from every malady common to old age. I had become accustomed to eye-strain, backache, and chronic headaches, but it took two full weeks of home cooked chicken and dumplings to cure me of the acute malnutrition that had set in.

By the time eighteen weeks of semester are spent, most professors have covered all or most of a volume on their particular subject. It is natural for them to expect the students to be familiar with every minute detail covered in the classroom and some that were not covered. To review a whole book for each course taken is a job so immense that I shudder to think that there are only sixteen more weeks til next exam time.

Now, I am aware that the proper way to prepare for exams is to keep up from day to day with each and every course, and at the end of the semester to thumb through the books hurriedly, and then go to a sexy movie to relax. This tried and proved method is applied by about one-tenth of one percent of the total student body on this and every other campus.

The generally accepted method here and elsewhere is to "goof oil" all semester and then when exams come up endanger health, happiness, and general wellbeing by cramming, staying up all night every night, and cursing the miserable lot of the long-suffering college student. This practice is the most incurable quirk of human nature ever imposed upon homo sapiens.

Be ye not dismayed, however; there is a solution, or at least a way of partially alleviating the hopeless dilemma in which we, as struggling students, find ourselves once per semester. The answer to our fervent prayers lies in the quarter system.

This system is one under which the usual nine months year is broken up into three rather than two terms. As you can see, this involves more exams per year, but they do not cover as much territory as do our semi-annual nemeses. That is not, however, the real beauty of the system.

Eighteen weeks is much too long in any one class under one professor. By the time I have sweated out four and a half months in the same course I am so sick of the subject, professor, myself and my fellow students that it is a matter of indifference to me whether or not I even pass the miserable exam. Not only that, but after that length of time I have usually worn out my welcome with the professor. Under the quarter system we would have to spend only three months on the same subject, in one sitting that is.

It is obvious that a change over from one system to another would entail a great deal of trouble and expense on the part of the administration, and they might not be equipped to make this change at the present time. But I would like to bring to their attention that we are customers, in a rather broad sense, and while I do not agree that the customer is always right, I do think that this plan merits the consideration of the powers that be.

Possibly a better plan could be worked out to mitigate the exam system under which we are now slaving. Maybe tests could be given at the midpoint of the semester covering the work taken up until then and another test given to cover the final half of the semester. That would be a cheap substitute, but at least a step in the right direction.

Oh, if we only wrote "Oscar," what a world of material we would have after this past weekend. That is neither here or there so we will start off with a group of jokes that come to us on a very scented stationary which we might add smells much better than some of the jokes.

Booby King

The annual Booby King contest will begin on Monday, and the junior class officers have worked hard to put on this project, thoroughly enjoyed by a large majority of the students. As most know, the Junior class is slightly in debt, and the funds collected from this contest goes toward financing the Jr.-Sr. banquet. Last year the contest netted over $100.

This year's voting should greatly exceed last year's, and the funds should be much higher. Students may vote for any candidate whom they deem worthy of this dubious honor. From rumors around the campus, several students seem to be very worthy of the title, and from all appearances, the race will be hotly contested, what with dark horse candidates entering during the final days for balloting.

To start off, students are requested to write the names of their candidates on the front of an envelope and deposit it in a box which will be located near the Juice Shop. Each vote for a favorite will cost one cent, and this may also be placed inside of the envelope.

The twelve leading candidates, after the count Monday night, will have their names placed on glass jars, and voters may simply drop their pennies, dollars, or five dollars through a slot in the top of the container. Results will be announced each night at supper, and also posted on a roster which will be mounted directly behind the balloting booth.

The contest will end promptly at noon the following Saturday, the votes will be tabulated, and the winner announced as soon as possible.

The Junior class officers have requested that students take an interest in the project, and have fun while helping get them out of debt.

Chesterfield Men Give Cigarettes

Jeff McMahan, textile manufacturing senior of Columbia, and Harry Dukes, textile manufacturing junior of Newberry, have recently been appointed Chesterfield representatives on the Clemson campus.

Free cigarettes will be given to some students each week, and various quiz programs in student publications will give Chesterfields as prizes, according to information received from the representatives.

They will stop several students each week to see what brand of cigarettes they are smoking, and if they are smoking Chesterfields, they will receive a free package of cigarettes.

DAR Hears Field Worker At Meet

Mrs. P. S. McCallum was hostess for a meeting of the local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution on Tuesday, February 20. Mrs. Jimmy Leaver, Mrs. Allen of Central, and Mrs. Winslow Sloan were assistant hostesses for this meeting, to which each member invited a guest.

Mrs. Frank Dargan spoke to the group of 75 ladies on the subject of Tamassee, a children's school in Oconee County. The 400 children in the school, for which Mrs. Dargan is field worker, work on the poultry and cattle farm and perform other duties.

The school was founded by Mrs. F. H. H. Calhoun.

A musical program followed the main part of the session. Frances Booker presented a piano solo. Marcia Poole rendered a vocal solo, accompanied by Mrs. R. F. Poole; Emily Stephenson played a violin solo; and Nancy Hunter presented a piano solo.

Karl Bindschelder, young textile expert from Sweden, has recently enrolled in the School of Textiles at Clemson where he plans to study the American textile industry. He will stay here for a period of six months before he returns to Gottenburg Sweden, where he is an executive in the ancestral textile plants of his father-in-law.

Accompanied by his attractive wife, Margareta, Mr. Bindschelder arrived in New Orleans six months ago. Determined to get the real and basic story of the South's principal crop, cotton, they went to Arkansas and participated in the complete cycle of cotton from the menial task of the cotton-picker through the finishing mills of that section of the United States.

While in Arkansas Mr. Bindschelder was named to the coveted position of "Arkansas Traveler." This is an honorary plaudit bestowed on less than a dozen people each year by the state of Arkansas, and these people are then considered good will missionaries from that state.

Mr. Bindschelder was born in Lucerne, Switzerland, and studied medicine at a university in that country. While in college he became tennis and ski champion, and it was at a tennis match in Neuchatel, Switzerland where he met his wife. She had come from Sweden to study French at the girls school at Neuchatel, and was invited to a party given to the visiting tennis players where she met Karl.

They saw a great deal of each other before her return to Sweden, but it was not until he had broken his leg in a ski race that they became engaged. As he put it, "She took advantage of my weakened condition."

Karl and Margareta were married in June of 1948 after her father had persuaded Karl to give up medicine and pursue the textile engineering profession. Karl started at the bottom in his father-in-law's plant. He worked on the early morning shift and studied textile engineering during the evening. He received the usual three-year degree in one year.

When asked what he thought of the Clemson School of Textiles Mr. Bindschelder's immediate description was, "just perfect." In elaborating he said that Clemson's school offered courses and machinery study that are not available in Europe. The Clemson campus is "like a paradise" to the Bindschelders. Margareta, in perfectly flawless English, explained that the feeling of fellowship and companionship of the students is what struck them as most remarkable.

Before their arrival in our country this friendly couple had the typical foreign opinion of Americans. After their close association with a general cross-section of American people, they found that the chrome and glitter of the Hollywood movies is not an accurate representation. Now they are taxing their six languages to find complimentary adjectives to describe their love for the United States and its people. They feel that to know a country one must know its people, and thus far they have had little trouble feeling right at home in any company.

The one disappointing aspect of college life in this country was a recent basketball game which they witnessed in the Clemson Fieldhouse. They found it noisy and could not understand the threats, jeers, and boos which shook the rafters. The attractive couple wondered if the spectators really intended to "kill the referee."

The Bindschelders, who are fast becoming a typical Southern couple, plan to leave Clemson in September and continue their educational tour of America's textile plants. They plan to visit

N. H. U. President Says Students Too Mercenary; Favors College Expansion

College education loses sight of its objective if the only thought is toward a big pay check for college-trained individuals, according to Dr. Arthur S. Adams, president of the University of New Hampshire. Dr. Adams declared here recently that when we become concerned that there may not be enough high-salaried jobs available for all the college graduates of the future, we are taking a too limited view of the reason for higher education.

"We must not forget the principle task of our colleges and universities should be education for living, not solely education to make a living," he said.

Referring to a book recently published by a Harvard economist, Prof. Seymour E. Harris, in which he said that the time may come when college graduates earn less than the non-college trained, President Adams declared: "I believe that the nation's educational institutions have been concerned all along and are now emphasizing more than ever the need for training in effective living, instead of an easy way to become rich."

Dr. Adams predicted a continued rise in college enrollment, despite the fact that most veterans have completed their education. He therefore favors an amendment to the National Housing Act which would permit colleges to borrow money for construction of new housing facilities. He said that high school population figures show that colleges "will see no let-up in the large number of young men and women seeking higher education."

High school enrollment last year was 6,236,000, he reported, but by 1956 it will rise to 8,048,000.

"We are not faced with a temporary problem, but our housing situation will be a permanent cause of concern until we have succeeded in finding a permanent solution." Temporary housing which the government furnished served well for the few years following the war, he declared, but it can no longer be counted on because it is temporary and is not feasible to maintain as permanent. "From all parts of the country we have reports that the temporary housing is approaching a state of disuse, that the cost of maintenance alone will soon exceed possible rental charges."

The proposed amendment, which would authorize colleges to borrow up to $300,000,000 at 2 1/2 per cent interest, would provide for financing of housing units at an approximate cost of $1,500 per student, Dr. Adams said. "Many institutions, however, can not build at that figure," he explained. "This legislation would then be a substantial aid in the conventional ways of financing which are open to institutions."

Bengals Come From Behind To Topple V. M. I., 83-73

Washington & Lee Falls Before Tiger Quint, 78-63

By J. Clanton

TIGERS FINISHING FAST—BUT TOO LATE

There was faint hope in some quarters that the Clemson quint could, provided V. P. I. dropped their remaining two games, grab a tournament bid by winning their last three contests. But all this was shattered Monday night when V. P. I. upset the William and Mary five, 60-47. Despite this fact, the Tigers are really putting on a whirlwind finish. Monday night they pulled a mild upset by drubbing Washington and Lee, 78-63, and Tuesday night they overcame a 35-33 halftime disadvantage to score 50 points in the second period and maul the V. M. I. Cadets, 83-73.

John Snee again proved himself to be one of the most valuable basketballers the Bengals have. Snee picked up 22 points in the W. & L. victory and added 19 more against the Cadets to lead the Tigers in the scoring column both nights. He is also leading his teammates in this year's scoring parade with 259 total markers, better than 13.6 per game.

It's too bad the Tigers haven't been playing in Virginia all season. Against the three Virginia teams they have played, Richmond, Washington and Lee, and V. M. I., the Bengals have captured three out of three and averaged almost 80 points per contest.

Furman, for the second time this year, let the Tigers hold the lead. The Purples, after the first ten or twelve minutes, simply outplayed the Country Gentlemen, outthrustled and out-shot them.

STUDENT SPORTSMANSHIP POOR

Speaking of "Country Gentlemen" . . . The Clemson student body is slowly moving away from this term with their conduct at the basketball games.

When the Furman team took the court Saturday night, the student body (Clemson) almost "booed" them right on back into the dressing room, and when an opposing player went to the foul line for a free throw, the same thing happened. This sort of thing doesn't help you, the school or the Clemson team. In only one or two games this entire year has been what could be called good sportsmanship on the part of the students. I know that we all like to win, but "riding" another team because they are out front won't help accomplish this.

Another thing, the referees have a job to do, and they do this job as well as they know how. They are down on the court and can see what is going on a lot better than someone in the stands. Sure, they make mistakes, but certainly not as many as it would seem by the action of the Tiger student body.

Saturday night after the Furman game quite a few of the "troops" stayed around to give the referees the devil about the way the ball game was called. Well, if we can't take losing one any better than that, then we shouldn't even come to the games.

It's getting pretty bad when the coach has to escort the officials to the dressing room. And why? Simply because a few "hotheads" thought that Clemson was given a raw deal. Well, they certainly weren't; they were thoroughly beaten. SPLIT "T" IN AT CLEMSON

All this week the coaching staff and football squad have been working hard installing the split "T" formation. This formation won't take the place of the single wing here at Clemson, but will probably be used to give the Tigers just a little more offensive power, and to take advantage of a "not to strong" line.

The first string single-wing backfield, Calvert, Cone, Mathews and Wyndham, look like the best bets to keep that status whenever the "T" is used. Calvert will be under the center at quarter, Cone and Mathews at right and left half, and Wyndham at the fullback post. In just three days Jackie Calvert is handling the ball like someone who has been a "T" quarterback for a spell, and it looks like Fred Cone may even have more power from his halfback position than he had from fullback in the single wing.

This formation won't be used as much next year as the old Clemson one, but it will be tried and used whenever it will be to the Tiger's advantage.

Clemson's unpredictable basketballers apparently got mad with themselves and everybody else at Lexington Monday night as they roared to an impressive 78-63 win over a good Washington and Lee team. The victory, which was a minor upset, gave the Tigers an 8 won and 10 lost record for the season.

The Generals drew first blood in the tilt and went ahead 2-0, but that was the last time they were in the masher's seat. Clemson stayed ahead from the two minute mark until the end of the game.

Again it was the Clemson's brilliant John Snee who spearheaded the Country Gentlemen's attack. The New Jersey flash combined a steady floor game and a good rebound performance to net a total of 22 points. Whenever the Generals would threaten or start to close the gap, Snee would hit with his amazing set shots.

By halftime, Clemson was well in control and had amassed a 17 point lead. The score was 39-22 when the first period came to a close.

Washington and Lee sophomore ace, Jay Handlan, continued to find the mark for his mates in the second canto, but it was to no avail as Snee, "Ronnie" Richardson and Jim Reynolds kept the Bengals well in front. "Bummy" Townsend also pitched in some valuable points for the purple clad lads.

Handlan was high point man in the game with 31 units. He was followed by Snee and one of his teammates, Hedge, who hit the hoops for 17 markers. Richardson and Reynolds were close behind with 12 each.

Great Center Seen In McGraw For '51

By CHARLES MEIBURG

Clemson's basketball prospects are better than at any time in the last ten years. One reason for this bright outlook is six foot, seven inch center John McGraw, who stands out as the leader of this year's brilliant freshman quintet. McGraw seldom leads his team in scoring, but his outstanding backboard play definitely stamps him as a contender for the varsity center position come next winter.

HIGH SCHOOL STAR

John played his high school basketball at Hendersonville, North Carolina, lettering three years. He earned a like number of awards in football, but most of his time was engaged in tilts on the hardwood. During his high school days, Big John won numerous honors, which included his making the All-Blue Ridge (Western North Carolina Conference) team and the Coaches All-State. His high school teams of 1948 and 1949 both won the North Carolina Class "A" high school state championship. Their record in 1949 was 31-4, which included two wins each over Parker High of Greenville and Greenville Senior High, along with victories over many other Class "AA".

McGraw received his biggest thrill in high school when his team trounced Christ's School of Asheville in the finals of the Blue Ridge Tournament. This tourney decides the winner of the western North Carolina conference who will play for the state championship. Big John played guard during most of the contests and sank 37 points in the finals against Christ's School. This set a new tournament record as Hendersonville won handily 76-54.

McGraw is probably best remembered by Clemson students for his sterling performance against the Carolina Biddies in the return engagement several weeks ago. Playing a brilliant rebound game, the six foot, seven inch center held the Carolina ace pointmaker to one field goal as the Cubs got revenge for a previous defeat.

Guard Jack Noel (23) has just let the ball fly for two points, as a Furman defender tries in vain to prevent the goal. John Snee is the other Clemson man in the photo. Evinston (8) Purple guard, is pictured to the right. Furman won the tussle 56 to 52 in a thriller at the Clemson Field House last Saturday night. (Photo by Henry Chaplin of The Tiger).

membered by Clemson students for his sterling performance against the Carolina Biddies in the return engagement several weeks ago. Playing a brilliant rebound game, the six foot, seven inch center held the Carolina ace pointmaker to one field goal as the Cubs got revenge for a previous defeat.

Born in Hendersonville, McGraw has lived in this North Carolina city all of his life. His father, John F. McGraw, Sr., is a retired tourist court operator. After his graduation last year, John, Jr., received scholarships to virtually every college and university in the Southeast. Clemson should be proud to have this versatile young basketball player in its midst. Let's hope better things are in store for Clemson and for John McGraw, star of the past, present, and future.

Snee Leads Tig Basketballers To Victory Over Virginia Teams; Scores 41 Points

Clemson's basketball Tigers, who were just as hot this week as they were cold last week, ended a successful road trip Tuesday night by tripping Virginia Military Institute, 83-73, at Lexington.

Wake Forest Drops Tiger Cagers 67-52

Wake Forest dealt Clemson's Basketball a terrific blow in a crucial Conference game 67-52 at Wake Forest a week ago. The win almost clinched a bid for the Deacons (they have a bid now) and lessened the chances of the Tigers who are now definitely out of the tourney.

The first half was a nip and tuck affair with the lead changing hands several times in the opening minutes. When the guns sounded for intermission, Clemson was only two points behind, 29-27.

It was a different story when the two fives came back, for the Wakes started hitting from all angles. The Baptists were far out in front after 4 minutes and stayed there without too much trouble.

The Tigers had to overcome a 35-33 deficit at half-time, and they did it in fine fashion as they put on their season's best scoring exhibition for one half. Led by John Snee, Doug Haugk and Jim Reynolds, the South Carolina Cadets outsped and outplayed the Virginia Military men during most of the second canto. The threesome, also the leading Bengal pointmakers in the first period, bewildered the Virginians with their brilliant variety of shots. When Snee wasn't hitting with his two hand set shots, Haugk was pumping his one hand jump shot thru the hoops. When these two were quiet, Reynolds was keeping the V. M. I. boys down as he often filled the bucket while throwing a wrench into the Cadet offense with his scrappy, aggressive play.

John Snee was the hottest Bengal as he tossed in 19 points. Doug Haugk was next with 18 and Jim Reynolds followed with 15. Recher and Nay tallied 21 and 20 points respectively to pace their V. M. I. mates.

Intramural Tourney Will Begin February 27

Sportfacts in Focus

By DICK RAINES

MAYBE NEXT YEAR????

Well, another cage season is drawing to a close and the Tigers of Clemson again find themselves out of the running for a Southern Conference tourney berth. The Bengals have a good chance to break even in the won and lost column if they can salvage a win from Maryland's Terrapins this Saturday night at the Field House. This year's squad was made up almost wholly of sophomores. Next year the Tigs will be without the services of only two members of this season's team, Jim Reynolds and "Heavy" Holshouser. John Snee, Doug Haugk, Bill Spender, and Don Richardson will form the nucleus of the '50-'51 aggregation. The bulk of the help will come from this season's great fresh team, which racked up thirteen victories against only one defeat. Tom McCullough, Warren Robinson, John McGraw, Ames Wells, Bill Deloach, Bob Dozier, and Joe Murry were a few of the outstanding men who performed on the hardwood for "Rock" Norman's "Flashy Frosh." Clemson came awfully close to gaining a position in this year's tourney, and perhaps with all of the members of this past season's team returning, plus some of the finest freshmen talent ever assembled at Tigertown, maybe the Tigs cannot only secure entrance into the '50-'51 tourney, but perhaps they will be strong contenders for the Southern Conference crown. The cagers will have to start early next fall though, if they are to vie with the best. This, however, constitutes a drawback. Who will coach the basketballers if all of the coaches are on the gridiron? It would be too great a job for one of the football coaches to go through another session in the gym after spending all afternoon on the practice field. Since another coach has been added to the football team it seems to me that one more tutor would not hurt the situation any, especially if his specialty is basketball. To ease the load on the shoulders of Coach McFadden, a cage coach would be most advantageous. I'm not trying to criticize Coach McFadden, but a cage coach, say an assistant to McFadden would be of great value to the team. After all, basketball is a full time sport the same as football, and if Clemson is to keep abreast of the other teams in the Southern loop, we've got to make it a full time job.

SEVERAL CLEMSON TEAMS IN SAVANNAH VALLEY TOURNEY

Some 45 teams have entered the Savannah Valley Tourney in Anderson and four different teams from Tigertown have entered. The Tiger Freshman squad have entered the open class and they are picked by most observers to take the tourney in their class. Monday night the Clemson Vigilantes bowed to Appleton, but the All-Stars composed of "Ragin' Ray" Mathews, "Furious Fred" Cone, Glenn Smith, and other grid stars smothered Starr in the first round of the tourney. Spartanburg's Whizers dropped one to Abney Wednesday night, but the dependable Tiger Frosh, under "Rock" Norman, wilted Jackson 85-30. The finals of the tourney will be played Saturday and trophies and other awards will be given the champions.

DIAMONDMEN BEGIN DRILLS

Clemson's baseballers began readying themselves for the current horsehide season last Tuesday afternoon. Frank Gillespie and Gene Moore are the only two major losses from last season, so the Tiger nine should perform with the best this year. Pete Manos, catcher, Durr Gooding, heavy hitting outfielder, and pitcher John Ford are likely to bolster this year's squad. The above mentioned men were standouts on the "Rat team" last spring. Luke Deanhardt, Ray Mathews, Ray McKay, Ken Culberson, Gene Aughty, Dick Hendley, and Carol Cox are some of the returning lettermen that should round out a well balanced team. The pitching staff has been the big question mark the past two seasons, and if Coach Cox can develop a finished mound crew then the Bengals may well be on their way to another S. C. championship. Let's hope they can duplicate the '47 season.

BRIEFS . . . .

Bob Smith, former Furman head coach, is the new man you've been seeing on the practice field. Smith is a split T expert and will be tutoring the Tigers in that capacity for the coming campaign. The Tigs will still employ the ole reliable single wing, but will add more power to their already potent offensive with the split-T. I understand that the footballers of '50 will be stepping out in new uniforms. I know that will be a morale booster after last season's dull orange and tan apparel.

Frank Jervey, class of '14, visited the campus last weekend. He was awarded the Medal of Honor in World War I. Jervey has been responsible for many boys who have performed on Tiger football teams. Hope he's got a few in mind for this year's frosh team.

With regular scheduled play almost completed several teams are still battling for the top position in the Intramural standings. The Fieldhouse Dodgers are currently leading the parade and should finish out this week's play undefeated.

This is the last week of basketball before the tournament, and all teams are scrapping to be one of the quints in the tournament. At the beginning of the season the Intramural council decided to place the top 16 teams in the tournament. Games this week may change the rating of some squads, but to date they rank as follows:

The Dodgers and C-3, tied for 1st place
B-1, second
A-1, D-4, Bks. 2, tied for third
B-2, fourth
D-1, A-2, D-3, and C-4, tied for fifth
Band, Spartans, Termites, and Old Soldiers, tied for sixth
C-2, D-2, A-3, B-3, Bks. 8, and Shorts, tied for seventh
C-1, eighth
A-4, B-4, and Nueps, tied for ninth.

In spite of all the interruptions that cause teams to miss a night for games, there have been sixty games of intramural basketball played, and there are still twelve more scheduled games before the tournament begins. The tournament will begin on Monday night, February 27, and will end on Monday night, March 6.

FREE THROW CONTEST BE HELD

Immediately following the basketball tournament the free throw contest will be held. Each contestant will shoot 50 free throws as follows:
10 shots straight
20 shots by 2's; shoot 2, then step away and back to the foul line for 2 more shots
20 shots by 5's; shoot 5, then step away and back to the foul line for 5 more shots.
This is individual competition so try your skill. Those wishing to enter this contest must leave their names at the "Y" desk not later than 9:00 p. m., March 6.

Golf And Tennis Tourney To Begin

The intramural golf tournament will be played in April, but qualifying rounds must be played in March. Several flights are needed to make an interesting tournament, so even if you are not a pro, enter and get into the night of your ability.

To determine the persons in each flight, each man will be asked to turn in 3 medal scores to Mr. Cooper. Qualifying rounds will be medal score play. The 3 medal scores will furnish your average score which determines the flight in which you play. When flights have been drawn up, all matches will be won on match play, not medal score.

The Boscobel golf course is giving a special rate to students, so get started with practice right away.

The intramural tennis tournament also comes in April and persons intending to play should begin practice now. In tennis, players will be scheduled in round robin series until all players have had experience against opponents. The tournament drawing will be made for champions in singles and doubles.

Softball will begin about the middle of March and teams may enter from ROTC companies or veteran groups.

Cary Cox Leaves Coaching Staff

Former Clemson grid star Cary Cox was recently signed to the post of Recreational Director for the city of Anderson. Cox, who captained the 1947 Bengals, was employed here at Clemson as head man of IPTAY and as freshman baseball coach. He also helped tutor the frosh gridders.

The 28 year old Cox will be Anderson's first recreational director, but it won't be the first time he has served in that capacity. During his stay in the Navy, he was director of recreational activities for the Charleston Naval Base.

Tig Frosh Win 14th From Jackson 85-30;

Clemson's once beaten frosh racked up another victory, as they massacred Jackson Mill, 85 to 30, at Girls' High Gym in Anderson. This was their first encounter in the open division of the Savannah Valley Tourney. The starting five consisting of Robinson, McCullough, McGraw, Moore and Murray racked up 29 points at the half as compared to Jackson's 16. The second half squad composed of Asnip, Revel, Hicks, Dozier, and Wells amassed 56 points during the last canto, while the Mill boys could only garner 14 markers. The first quint ran Jackson ragged during the first half, and the second team literally ran away with the tilt. Ames Wells was high scorer of the night with 23 points. Billy Ravel and John McGraw garnered 16 points and 12 points, respectively. A great majority of the Tigs' points came as a result of a pressing defense. The Bengals frequently stole the ball, and they used the fast break very effectively in this capacity. Monday night found Clemson's

Tiger Frosh Rip Furman Little Wind 85-16; McCullough, Robinson, McGraw Star

Clemson's big Tigers have found the going pretty rough this year, but their little brothers, "Rock" Norman's freshmen Bengals, keep right on rolling along. Their latest triumph was a decisive win over Furman's baby Paladins here Saturday night, 85-16. Thus, the frosh have taken 14 of 15 contests during the current season to register one of the most impressive records ever compiled by a Clemson basketball team.

During the first few minutes of the fray, the two fives battled on equal terms as the Purple's were withstanding the attack of the Tigers' first team. However, Coach Norman ran in his second squad about midway the first half, and they proceeded to do everything but blast the "Wind" off the floor. Not only were the second stringers clicking offensively, they also played some fine defensive ball in holding the Paladins to very few points.

Bengals Play Last Contest Saturday

Clemson's disappointing basketballers close their up and down season Saturday night when they tangle with the Maryland Terrapins. Earlier in the season the Tigers surprised the men from Maryland with a close 60 to 55 win, and the Terrapins will be out for revenge. However, the Tigers, who up to Monday were in the running for a berth in the Southern Conference tournament, must win in order to finish the season with a .500 percentage.

Outlining the season, we find that the Tigers dropped two contests to Georgia, while they overcame Presbyterian, Maryland, and Richmond before Christmas. Then with little practice, the Bengals lost to Furman in Greenville in an overtime period. This loss was followed by another loss to Wake Forest before the Tigers could ease by Davidson in two overtime stanzas for their first win since the Yuletide holidays. The Tigers then took The Citadel in stride before losing two to the University of South Carolina. The Citadel once again helped Clemson even up her record before the Tigers lost to powerful George Washington. Presbyterian fell easily to the "MacFaddenmen"; however, this win was followed by disastrous losses to Davidson, Wake Forest, and Furman, virtually closing the door of the Southern Conference tourney in the Bengals' face. This past week, however, the Tigers defeated the Generals of Washington & Lee and V. M. I. to bring their season's record to 9-10.

All-Stars, under the tutelage of "Nig" Griffith and Dan Stroud, thumping Starr 61 to 20 for a first round tournament win. The All-Stars were paced by Tommy Bailey and Frank Sharpe with 25 and 20 markers respectively. The tournament finals will be played Saturday to determine the champion.

The Country Gentlemen went to the locker room at half-time sporting a comfortable 43-16 lead.

The second half proved to be a replica of the first with the little Tigers never being pushed. Clemson was generous with substitutes in the second canto when it became apparent that the Bengals were ahead for keeps.

Clemson's Tom McCullough hit the basket for 17 points to lead his mates and the game's scorers. Granger of Furman was next in line with 15 units. The remainder of the Bengal scoring was well divided with Robinson registering 12 and McGraw, Dozier, and Murray counting ten times.

Purple Hurricane Stops Tigers Again 56-52; Reynolds Is High Scorer With 16

By Jack Cribb

An inspired Furman Purple Hurricane five stopped Clemson's fighting Tigers for the second time this season here Saturday night, 56-52, in a hair-raising contest. The Paladins finished fast in racking up the win after overcoming an early Bengal lead.

This loss, the third in a row for the McFaddenmen, almost completely snuffed out any remaining chances that Clemson had for getting in the Conference tournament.

Unlike most games this year, Clemson began in a whirlwind fashion and had built up a seven point lead before the referees had hardly opened their eyes. Paced by Jim Reynolds, scrapping Tig forward, the Bengals looked as if they were going to get plenty of revenge for the loss Furman tagged on them earlier in the year.

The Greenville lads caught the Tigers midway the first half and never relinquished that lead but once during the rest of the tilt. Clemson jumped into a short lived lead just before the whistle blew for intermission. The scoreboard read Furman 30, Clemson 28, when the teams left the floor for the mid-game rest.

RICHARDSON "HOT"

Although Furman stayed in the driver's seat during the entire second canto, not one of the capacity crowd was able to settle down because the Country Gentlemen were hot on the Purple's trail. Ronnie Richardson, with his tip-in shots, and Reynolds, with his accurate set tosses, were keeping the Clemsons very much in the game. Meanwhile "Shipwreck" Kelly and Bill Kerr kept Furman on the move and continually thwarted desperate attempts by Clemson to take the lead. Kelly was extremely effective with his hooks shots and Kerr slipped under the basket time and again for lay-up shots.

Jim Reynolds pitched in 16 points to lead the Bengal pointmakers and capture individual scoring honors for the evening. Kelly and Kerr led the Furman forces with 15 and 13 units respectively.

Y Plans To Publish Devotional Handbook

Plans to compile a booklet composed of devotionals written by Clemson men and friends have recently been completed by the College YMCA. The devotionals will be written by 365 men, many of whom have been speakers at the YMCA Vespers and Religious Emphasis Week.

If sufficient interest is shown in the project, the YMCA hopes to publish the devotionals in booklet form so that Clemson students and others interested may use the booklet in their daily devotions.

Poor Peons Procrastinate At P. O.; Pronounce Prayers For Paltry Postals

By BILL DENSON

Any Clemson man can easily make a long gripe list of things at the old school which give him a terrible black feeling of woe. Getting up for reveille would surely lead this black list for some, with having to meet eight o'clock classes giving revile a close second. Others might place pop quizzes and Saturday classes high on their roll of things most likely to give them the old urge to kill.

If, however, any Clemson man is asked to list the things that give him the most pleasant of feelings, getting mail (and lots of it) would undoubtedly lead his list. Next, of the feeling one has when he makes 120 on a trig test (worked the bonus problem right, too); there is probably no feeling as great as that of taking six letters from your P. O. box and finding that they are all for you.

In the short space of a few after-chow trips to the spacious Clemson Post Office, one soon learns to recognize some of the many different types of mail-seekers he sees in the crowd. Roughly, these types can be divided into four main groups.

1. I Just Got A Dear John Type. This type can usually be identified by the slow, halting way he totters through the lobby and down the steps of the P. O. He is often shaking his head sadly from side to side and muttering curses under his breath to himself. Clenched in his left hand is a crumpled wad of pink paper. If he speaks at all, it is to remark, "Women—bah! I'm through with 'em."

2. Never Say Die Type. This poor fellow never gets a letter, but he always walks down to the P. O. right after chow, takes out his handkerchief, and cleans the dust out of his box. If anyone happens to see him doing this, he will grin and say, "Oh, well—guess you can't get 'em every day." This type of fellow reckons time from "the time in October when I got a letter (which was probably an advertisement for Haidol)."

3. ROMEO-TYPE. The Romeo type carefully checks each of his letters at the box to see if the stamp is on upside down and if there are any amorous initials on the back flap. Next he puts the letter to his nose to check it for perfume. If any letter passes these three tests, the Romeo develops a beautiful expression on his face and floats airily out of the window. If his letters don't meet the requirements, he crams them into his pocket and stalks angrily away.

4. Nosey Type. The Nosey Type believes that all letters getting into his box should be examined and scrutinized with the efficiency of an FBI investigation. If you are not at the box, Nosey checks the postmark, holds the letter to the light to see what is in it, analyzes the handwriting, and notes the return address. If you read your mail as you walk back to the barracks with Nosey, he tries to read it out of the corner of his eye. He can hardly wait to inform every one that "Joe got a letter from Mary today, and from the look on his face and the little bit of the letter I managed to read while Joe wasn't looking, she must be plenty mad about something. It

John Lane Will Speak At Greensboro Dinner

John D. Lane, Professor of English at Clemson, will be the principle speaker at a dinner to be given by the Piedmont-Clemson Club of Greensboro, N. C., Friday night, February 24, at 7:00 o'clock. Professor and Mrs. Lane will be guests at the dinner.

The club is one of the largest alumni groups in the area, covering Greensboro, Winston Salem, High Point, and Burlington, North Carolina.

William Folk is the president of the club. Vice presidents are Tate Horton and J. A. Jones, Jr. E. P. Earle, formerly of Clemson, is the secretary of the club.

looked like it had about four sheets in it, and I think I could see some newspaper clippings in it, too. Wonder what she said to him? Hope he leaves it lying around the room."

These are the four main types of students one sees in the P. O., but there are many variations. The Secretive Type looks nervously from left to right before taking his mail out of the box, and shoves it quickly into his pocket. He is probably carrying on a secret correspondence with his best friend's girl. The I-Need-Money Type is always broke and quickly rips all his letters open hoping to find some badly needed long green in them. The Sympathetic Type notices that you didn't get any mail, waves his letter in front of your face, and tries to console you by saying, "Little woman forget you? Well, don't feel too bad, any of them will shaft you if they get the chance."

Next time you are in the P. O. see how many of these types of birds you can spot. Any by the way, what type are you?

Clemson Baptists To Attend Party

Thirty-five Clemson men will attend a party given by the Baptist Student Union of Lander College, February 25, at 7:30 p. m. The arrangements have been made by W. P. Roberts, extension chairman of the B. S. U. here. Roberts says that students planning to attend must have registered with Jim Spangenberg and have their permits approved by him.

A special chartered bus will leave from the post office for Lander at 5:45 p. m. Saturday and will return after the affair in Greenwood.

Pro-rata fee for transportation will be $1.50 per person.

Lander Baptists entertained the Clemson party last year in one of the outstanding off-campus parties shared by the local group. Plans in process at Greenwood indicate a similar party. The Lander
