Senior, Junior Staffs Picked; Parrish, Bethune, Forgett Named

Tommy Green, horticulture junior of Sumter, has been elected editor of The Tiger for 1953-54. He succeeds co-editors Charles Meiburg and Louis Henry, arts and sciences seniors of Clemson.

Tom Livingston, textile manufacturing junior of Norway, will succeed Glenn Morrison, electrical engineering senior of Anderson, as business manager.

SERVING AS managing editor will be Carroll Moore, arts and sciences junior of Greenwood, succeeding Harold Owen, mechanical engineering senior of Greenville.

Alpha Zeta Receives 13 New Members

At the regular bi-monthly meeting of the South Carolina chapter of Alpha Zeta, held April 13, thirteen new members were initiated into the fraternity.

The new members are as follows: G. D. Odell, dairy post graduate of Easley; J. C. Debruhl, animal husbandry senior of Union; J. G. Flanagan, vocational agriculture education junior of Clover; J. T. Floyd, agriculture engineering junior of Nichols; C. J. Hammett, animal husbandry junior of Kingstree; N. E. McGlohn, vocational agriculture education junior of Laurens.

Also, D. C. Martin, animal husbandry junior of Travelers Rest; G. A. Norris, vocational agriculture education junior of Conway; H. N. Padgett, poultry junior of Saluda; J. H. Suggs, animal husbandry junior of Loris; and B. L. Walpole, agronomy junior of John's Island.

After the initiation of new members, the election of officers for next year was held. Those elected were C. J. Walters, agriculture engineering junior of St. George, chancellor; R. M. North, vocational agriculture education junior of Stockton, Ga.; A. L. McCaskill, dairy junior of Bishopville, scribe; B. M. Sanders, dairy junior of Cordova, treasurer; and D. C. Martin, animal husbandry junior of Travelers Rest, chronicler.

These officers will be installed at the next regular meeting.

ceeding Harold Owen, mechanical engineering senior of Greenville. Bruce Parrish, architecture junior of Cayce, will serve as associate editor.

Filling the newly-created position of advertising manager will be Bob Bethune, ceramic engineering junior of Cheraw.

Val Forgett, industrial education junior of Teaneck, N. J., was named to serve as circulation manager. He succeeds Johnny Fletcher, agricultural engineering sophomore of Raleigh, N. C.

Frank Anderson, arts and sciences freshman of Clemson, was elected sports editor to succeed Carroll Moore. Donald Dunlap, horticulture junior of Rock Hill, was named to succeed Tommy Green as news editor.

Also, Dick Edgeworth, mechanical engineering freshman of Hartselle, assistant to the business manager; and Charles Sanders, arts and sciences freshman of Ninety Six, and Billy Cooper, mechanical engineering freshman of Naval Base, assistant news editors.

The new staff will officially take over their responsibilities next week and will be recognized at the annual staff banquet Saturday, May 9.

The retiring staff will act in an advisory capacity until the end of the school year.

SENIORS WILL REGISTER FOR SENIOR DAY

Registration for seniors taking part in the Senior Day activities will be held from 8:00 to 12:00 noon, Tuesday morning, April 28 in front of the Juice Shop.

Seniors must pick up the "I Am A Senior" card at the time of registration. A complete program of events for the day will be given out also.

The general outline of events includes the constructive class project of the preparation of a picnic area for use on Mother's Day. Work on this project will begin at 1:00 p. m. and last until 3:00 p. m. when the field events will start at the stadium.

A barbecue supper will be served from 5:30 to 6:30 p. m.

The annual dance will be held in the field house from 8:00 to 12:00 p. m. The Jangleers will furnish the music. Prizes will be given away at the dance.

Girls from Anderson and Greenville have been invited to attend the dance and other events. However, seniors are urged to bring dates for the activities.

Brotherhood To Sponsor Dance Saturday Night

Tiger Brotherhood, local service fraternity, will sponsor a square dance at the Field House, Saturday night, April 25, from 8:00 p. m. until 12:00 midnight.

The music for the dance will be provided by the Clemson Cavaliers. The orchestra will provide music for round dancing as well as for square dancing.

The Clemson Cavaliers is made up of Clemson students. They are J. C. Burns, trumpet; R. Walker, drums; A. F. Copeland, piano; trombone; D. T. Carroll, sax; E. P. Yarnell, violin; and Billy Passinos, guitar.

Six Are Finalist In Contest For Trustee Medal

Final eliminations in the second annual public speaking contest for the Trustee Medal were held in the chemistry auditorium, Monday night, April 20.

Six finalists were picked at preliminary eliminations held April 13. The finalists and their topics are F. E. Cookson, Jr., "The Problems of Our Age"; F. C. Derrick, "A Challenge to Us as American Citizens"; S. C. Griffith, "The American System of Government"; L. F. Neville, "The Secret of Happiness"; F. A. Nimmer, "The Student's View of the New Grade Point System"; and M. E. Pate, "Our American Way".

The speakers were introduced by Professor John D. Lane of the English Department. Judges for the final contest were: Mr. A. J. Brown, college treasurer; The Rev. Emmet Gribben, rector of the Holy Trinity Episcopal Church; and Professor Gaston Gage of the School of Textiles.

The winner of the Trustee Medal will be announced during the Scholarship Recognition Day exercises to be held May 6.

ASME Meeting Held April 14

The Clemson Chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers met Tuesday night, April 14, in the newly-remodeled auditorium in Riggs Hall.

Plans were completed for the field trip to the Celanese Corporation plant in Rock Hill. The trip includes a tour of the power house used by the plant and observation of general production processes and bleaching.

ALSO DURING the meeting a field trip to several of the dams and steam power plants operated by the Tennessee Valley Authority was suggested for the fall semester of the next school year.

The remainder of the program was devoted to the nomination of officers for next semester. An election will be held at the next regularly scheduled meeting on April 28. All members are urged to be present at this meeting.

S. C. Student Government Association Meets Here

The second annual convention of the South Carolina Student Government Association opened here today for a two-day meeting. Registration began at the Clemson House at 11:00 this morning. The group had lunch in the college mess hall.

AFTER LUNCH group discussions were held by members of the Clemson faculty and administration. Leaders of the discussions included Walter T. Cox, "Students and the Public"; F. A. Burner and F. B. Schirmer, "Students and Student Organizations"; K. N. Vickery, "Students and Administration"; and H. L. Hunter and J. D. Lane, "Students and Faculty".

Nominations for new officers were held later this afternoon. The banquet was scheduled to be held tonight at the Clemson House.

Tomorrow morning's session will open with the reports from the group discussions. Election of officers will be held in the College Chapel at 11:00 a. m.

Officers of the association are Miles Bruce, Clemson College, president; Julia Jones, Converse College, vice-president; Sue Rawl, Newberry College, secretary; Barbara Loadholt, Columbia College, treasurer; and Madeline Campbell, the University of South Carolina, historian.

THE ASSOCIATION was organized last year by Floyd A. Spence, a graduate of the law school at the University of South Carolina. The organization is composed of student governments of the colleges, junior colleges, and universities of South Carolina.

PHI KAPPA PHI WILL INITIATE 20 NEW MEMBERS

On May 2, the Clemson Chapter of Phi Kappa Phi will initiate 20 new members. Fifteen of the initiates are Clemson students, four are Clemson College faculty members, and one is a Clemson alumnus. Dr. Francis Pendleton Gaines, Jr., President of Wofford College, will be the speaker at the Initiation banquet.

Phi Kappa Phi is a national honor society whose purpose is to recognize and promote excellent scholarship. To be eligible for membership a Clemson College junior must have a cumulative grade point ratio of 7.5, and a senior must have a cumulative ratio of 6.5 (old system). Faculty members and alumni must have a record of outstanding scholarship as college students and in their professional work since completing college.

The informal initiation ceremony will be held in the Club Rooms of the Y. M. C. A. at 5:00 P. M., Saturday, May 2. After the initiation of new members, the chapter will hold a short business meeting for the purpose of electing and installing new officers for the 1953-54 academic year.

The initiation banquet will be held at 6:00 p. m. in the Clemson Room of the Clemson House. The speaker, Dr. Francis Pendleton Gaines, Jr., was the leader of the faculty forums during the most recent Clemson College Religious Emphasis Week.

The new initiates are H. E. Bradberry, textile engineering junior of Greenwood; R. A. Bradberry, industrial physics senior of Clemson; J. E. Dempsey, mechanical engineering junior of Anderson; G. N. Floridas, pre-medicine senior of Clemson; H. C. Humphries, Jr., mechanical engineering junior of Sumter; Joseph Lindsay, III, pre-medicine junior of Clemson; J. T. McCarter, mechanical engineering junior of Taylors; H. E. McCoy, Jr., civil engineering senior of Bishopville.

Also, G. R. Morgan, Jr., textile manufacturing junior of Greenville; P. R. Nickles, electrical engineering junior major of Hodges; M. R. Reese, Jr., electrical engineering junior of Greer; J. H. Sams, III, electrical engineering senior of Clemson; B. M. Sanders, Jr., dairy junior of Cordova; C. J. Salters, agricultural engineering junior of St. George; and C. E. White, chemistry junior of

Band Will Make Return Engagement

The Central Dance Association has announced that that Erskine Hawkins has been booked for the Taps-Junior Senior Ball. Hawkins will play for the Friday night formal dance on May 8 and for the Saturday night informal on May 9.

On Friday afternoon the Hawkins aggregation will give a concert in the College Chapel from 4:00 to 6:00 o'clock.

Tickets have been priced at $3.75 for the Friday night dance and $3.25 for the Saturday night dance. Block tickets will be on sale at $6.50. Admission to the informal concert will be 25c.

This will be a return engagement for Hawkins and his band. The group played for the Mid-Winter's Ball last year and has appeared here before.

Hawkins, billed as the "20th Century Gabriel," is now touring the nation on a coast-to-coast tour. He comes to Clemson from his Broadway triumphs at the Paramount and Strand Theaters, the Lincoln Hotel, and the Savoy Ballroom.

HAWKINS GOT his start in music when he was very young, playing various instruments but spending most of his time on the drums. While he was a student at Alabama State Teachers College, the school bandmaster sent out a call for a trumpet player to join the school band. In order to get the job Hawkins had to work night and day with a tutor to learn the technique of the horn. "The Hawk" learned so rapidly that within a few months he was sitting in the first-trumpet chair with the band.

During the summer of 1934 the band played for a dance at the Roseland Ballroom in Asbury Park, N. J., and at the Harlem Opera House. The leader of the band couldn't meet the engagement so Hawk took over the position. They were later booked at the Ubangi Club as the "Bama State Collegians Orchestra."

While at the Ubangi and the Harlem Uproar Club Erskine Hawkins was heralded as the World's foremost trumpet player. Loew's State Theater signed the contingent and the band was established as a hit.

Hawkins and his aggregation opened a successful tour of road engagements, then returned to re-open the Uproar House. It had closed when he left on his tour since no other group was able to fill the stand as well as the Hawk.

During the 1937 season, the band toured with Stephen Fetchit and in the summer of 1938 it was booked for the Savoy Ballroom—"The Home of Happy Feet."

In July 1941 Erskine and his group were signed by the New York Paramount Theater, the mecca of swing bands, for a two-week personal appearance.

Since then Hawkins has played all the major theaters in the country. He holds the record at the Lincoln Hotel in New York where his many return engagements always result in overflow crowds every night.

Humphries, Mitchell, Enos Win In Tuesday Election

Hugh C. Humphries, mechanical engineering junior of Sumter, was elected president of the senior class for 1953-54 in elections held Tuesday, April 21. He defeated George R. Griffin, agronomy junior of Leesville, 172 to 152.

Allston T. Mitchell, textile engineering and textile manufacturing sophomore of Greenville, was named president of the rising junior class. He received 105 votes to defeat Arthur E. Brown, ceramic engineering sophomore of Florence, 60 votes; John W. Sowell, vocational agriculture education sophomore of Kershaw, 32 votes; and Jesse A. White, pre-medicine sophomore of Greensboro, N. C., 95 votes.

W. Kenneth Enos, chemical engineering freshman of Charleston received 97 votes to be named president of the rising sophomore class. He defeated C. R. Maxwell, mechanical engineering freshman of Greenville, with 91 votes, and G. D. Morgan, textile manufacturing freshman of Greenville, with 89 votes.

Joseph Lindsay, pre-medicine junior of Clemson was named vice-president of the senior class with 144 votes. He topped W. J. Cunningham, horticulture junior of Lancaster, with 111 and F. H. Denton, education junior of Dailas, Ga., 70.

W. F. Webb, civil engineering junior of Brunswick, was named secretary by acclamation.

W. L. Bross, electrical engineering junior of Greenwood, defeated C. B. Elmore, agronomy junior of Bishopville, by a tally of 161 to 156 for class treasurer.

JUNIORS ELECTED as representatives to student government for the senior class are B. F. Dodson, animal husbandry, Duncan; D. B. Dunlap, horticulture, Rock Hill; J. T. Gibbs, mechanical engineering, North Augusta; S. C. Griffith, arts and sciences, Newberry; and H. N. Padgett, poultry, Saluda.

J. P. Truluck, pre-medicine, Lake City, was elected vice-president of the rising junior class. He defeated G. R. Buck, architectural engineering, Columbia and W. W. Weldon, vocational agriculture education, Bennettsville.

Named secretary was D. L. Harrison, textile manufacturing, Brunswick, who defeated J. H. Hardee, agriculture engineering, Loris, and W. A. Key, textile manufacturing, Columbia.

George U. Bennett, arts and sciences sophomore of Columbia has been named treasurer. He led W. W. Crain, dairy, Chester, and C. H. Ferguson, textile manufacturing, Great Falls.

Junior class representatives named were: R. L. Best, mechanical engineering, Ulmerville; T. W. Bookhart, electrical engineering, Kingstree; F. C. Derrick, pre-medicine, Johnston; J. W. Gasque, electrical engineering, Columbia; and D. Morris, civil engineering, Shelby, N. C.

J. F. Long, mechanical engineering freshman of Greenville, defeated J. W. Grey, pre-medicine, Greenville; W. P. Hood, pre-veterinary, Hickory Grove; and J. W. Sumers, architecture engineering, Orangeburg; for sophomore class vice-president. B. J. Arnold, electrical engineering freshman of Laurens, defeated L. A. Chaddick, chemical engineering, Charleston, for secretary. Z. O. Brock, textile engineering freshman of Iva, was named treasurer. He defeated J. F. Devaney, architecture, Charleston; J. G. Gibson, arts and sciences, Greenville; and J. D. Pitts, mechanical engineering, Rock Hill.

N. G. Bates, mechanical engineering, Wateree; J. W. Bridwell, textile manufacturing, Woodruff; R. M. Buck, animal husbandry, Mt. Pleasant; J. B. Butt, chemical engineering, Greensboro, N. C.; and W. L. Coleman, architecture, Pamplico, were named sophomore class representatives.

'Tower' Staff To Sponsor Dance

The staff of The Clemson Tower will sponsor a dance to be held in the club rooms of the YMCA at 8:00 p. m. Saturday night, May 2.

Girls from Anderson College, Seneca, and Clemson have been invited to attend.

Admission will be 25c. Music will be furnished by records.

Do What Is Expected Of You On Senior Day

DURING SENIOR DAY, the Engineers' Council for Professional Development will be on the campus inspecting and judging the facilities of the Engineering Departments. This is the official accrediting council which rates the various schools of engineering throughout the country every five years. This inspection represents the initial accrediting of the Agricultural Engineering Department and the re-accrediting of the departments in the engineering school. And on behalf of the school it behooves us to govern our actions that such accrediting might not be impaired.

Few of us will ever forget the impact which Senior Day 1951 had upon the school. For no one can overlook or deny the aftermath of destruction of property wrought by such vandalism. Actions of that nature represent an appalling underestimation of the seriousness of the problem at hand and, if continued, will lead to the disbandment of Senior Day privileges. The Senior Class of 1953 has held an enviable record which should not be degraded by a superficial consideration of this appeal.

It is my observation that men can be judged by the manner in which they make decisions. Many face life with a stern reality and reveal their strength of character in the decisions they make. But a far greater number deny themselves that right, never balancing the scales of "pro" and "con", never crystalizing the essence of laudable opinions into decisions. These are the simple "lodgers in life" whose shallow consideration of the problem might result in conduct which would send "toboggening" the class esteem, respect, and privileges to which the officers have held so firmly.

This is a moment of decision which I urge you to use wisely. By our actions we can assert the trust placed in us by the administration or denounce it and thereby bring an end to Senior Day activities. Let's do what is expected of us.

TALK OF THE TOWN

By Harold Owen

So Long, Troops, It Has Really Been A Great Year For A Great School

THE LAST OF THE COLUMNS

This is (sob) it. Yes, this is the last time that all you dear readers, namely, mother, father, and my old lady (whom I outweigh 50 pounds), will have the privilege of reading this column under this byline.

From now on out this complaint-suggestion-orchid department will be in the direction of a qualified journalist, Carroll Moore, lately of the sports staff. If Carroll writes as well in this column as he does his sports column, this part of the paper should be worth reading.

From the journalist's point of view this has been a good year. There has usually been some news happening that has been interesting to comment upon. And I think that from any point of view this has been a good year, and also I think that everyone will agree that the year has passed rather rapidly.

Two very important changes that occurred this year come to my mind while pondering over the year's events. One was the elimination of hazing and the other was the discontinuation of reveille. I have only one comment on these two items, that being on the first. The upperclassmen next year should try to look for some constructive undertakings to replace hazing. Clemson really needs it.

The laundry and the mess hall are usually very inviting places to mention in a column of this sort. But I haven't said anything about either this year because I feel that they are trying to do a commendable job. But one improvement that the subsistence department could make next year is to strike the meal headed by Brunswick stew from the menu. Really, something else could be substituted for it.

The construction of the ceramics building was big news this year. This building, when it is completed this year, should really be appreciated by the engineering students with the extra room it will provide for expansion. While we are on the subject of building if anyone with a little money wants their name tagged to an auditorium or some such building, they can probably find an opening here at Clemson.

Before I put an end to this column I would like to remind the students that the annual spring inspection is not far off and I am sure that if all the students put out a little extra effort this inspection will be the best yet. But I hope that everyone will attend the dances that weekend and will have a great time.

In a farewell column it seems like the writer should be able to leave some wise words to his readers about everything. But I guess you people are just lucky since I can't think of wise words about anything.

But I would like to thank all the people who gave me ideas for this column, some of which were invaluable. I am quite sure that Carroll would like to be the spokesman of the students if and when a student has some suggestion that would merit publication.

This seems to be about all, so goodbye and good luck, everybody.

Don't Get Me Wrong, But . . .

Clemson Is On The Verge Of Losing Another Tradition; Bedtime Story

By Alan Cannon
SPEAKING OF SPEAKING

Clemson is on the verge of losing another great tradition. The speech contest, which was in the past years sponsored by the different forensic societies, has now dropped to the hands of the English professors.

I don't mean that this is bad, but it does mean that the interest in such a project has been completely dropped. The root of this trouble lies in the fact that the forensic societies no longer exist on the campus. There must be some reason why interest in this program dropped.

I hate to put it this way, but the desire for culture is non-existent on this campus. Students here have the mistaken belief that all that is needed for a good college education is to know just one certain field. I don't care if you intend to be a civil engineer and drag yourself through mud and muck for the rest of your life—you should have the cultural background that is essential to all people to make a real go of life. The past few sentences, I realize, are slightly off the deep end but it's about time someone said something about the situation.

A BED TIME STORY FOR SENIOR COUNCIL MEMBERS

"Once upon a time there was a real big boy who went to a country school. His name was Wheel. He was older (though no smarter) than most of the other little barefoot pupils, so the teacher let him watch over them at recess.

"If any of the little pupils threw rocks at the old schoolhouse, Wheel would send them home. Also, he would send home any pupil who snatched candy from another. Nobody objected much to Wheel's doings, because nobody liked stealers very much.

"When one of the pupils sneaked out of the classroom during class hours, or when one of them cut school too much, the teacher, Mr. Billiards, and the principal, Mr. Brownie, would get together and either make him stand in the corner for fifteen minutes or send him home. When one pupil tore a split in the seat of his pants Mr. Brownie would sew the pants. Sometimes the split would be too big to sew, and the teacher and the principal would have to send the pupil with the badly split pants home.

"One day at recess, Wheel saw a boy with a big tear in the seat of his pants. Wheel knew that the boy had already been sent home once before for torn pants, so Wheel took it upon himself to send the boy home.

"Most of the pupils thought that the boy with the bad tear should have been sent home, but they didn't think that Wheel should have sent him. Most of the pupils were too "chicken" to say anything, though.

"When the teacher and the principal were told about the incident, they smiled and said "OK."

"The next day, Wheel, feeling as biggity as you please, came to school with a great big split in his pants—right squarely in the seat. Much to his surprise—he was sent home.

"MORAL: Just because you think you're wheels, that's no sign you can't get too big for your britches."

I can only say that I wish I had written it.

GUEST EDITORIAL

Clemson Pays Tribute To Her Sons Who Pioneered The Way

By Grady Daniel

In a few more weeks another school year at Clemson will come to a close. Each class will move up the ladder a notch to take the place of the class that preceded it. The junior class of this year will don gold braids to their caps, key chains, and attach a proud "4" to their collars. Many will realize that strenuous efforts have not been in vain. Distant dreams that some shaven freshman once had will have suddenly blossomed into reality. Reality as solid as the gold class ring they will wear on their fingers. "Stripes" will change to "buttons" and responsibility to more responsibility—from leaders to greater leaders. The "R. H. I. P." and "R. H. I. R." that is taught and preached in the military science classrooms will suddenly mean more than just an abbreviation for words. It will be lived.

Another graduating class will sing the alma mater for the last time as students. They will leave Clemson with the very thing they came for as they prepare to assume a new role in life. Everything up to this point has been preparation. Now to begin practice.

The freshman class of this year will happily discard that plain, amorphous "1" and wear a curvaceous, graceful "2". The sophomore class will wear a more curvaceous "3." For others it will mean filling someone else's shoes—the fellow that has gone before. Somehow it seems that we are constantly endeavoring to uphold the ideals and traditions of those who have gone before.

It is the purpose of this column to pay tribute to "those who have gone before." To the sons of Clemson who have pioneered the way—to those who will go forth tomorrow to follow in their brothers footsteps. It was through their efforts, their labor, and their lives that Clemson is what it is today.

Clemson's sons fought valiantly in World War I. Through the services rendered by Clemson men in World War II, this institution again received honorable recognition and its reputation boosted even higher. They were all great men, your friends and mine. They treated the same walkways across this campus, climbed the same steps, sat in the same classrooms, and slept in the same barracks.

These things should be most prominent in our minds when at times we are prone to speak ill of Clemson. Why did we come here in the first place? Clemson is quite a reputable institution and is very well known—for its military, football teams, dances, and its leaders. If one day some member of our class should suddenly become President of this country, what would be the first thing we'd say? "He's a Clemson man. He was in my class. I roomed with him." Again we find that the tradition of Clemson comes from those who have gone before.

Not long ago I was scanning through the 1947 Taps and as I read the dedication I couldn't help but think of the words of Byron . . . "with all her volumes vast, history hath but one page." As I glanced at the many names lettered in gold on blue pages I felt a deep reverence inside and unconsciously my soul offered a prayer to God for them, a prayer of thanksgiving and praise. I felt proud of Clemson. Prouder than ever before. Proud to have been a part of it. Proud to be a son of Clemson.

This is the dedication that engraved itself in my heart. "Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friends." To the sons of Clemson who lost their lives in an effort to win a war for democracy, we dedicate this the 1947 Taps. Our hearts are filled with reverence as we seek an appropriate tribute to their great sacrifice.

We hallow the pathway by which these men molded their lives at Clemson as we vividly recall their friendships and smiling faces. Theirs is the power and the glory, for they were peaceful men, wanting for themselves only an opportunity to cultivate and prove their love for treasured rights, those of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness . . . Dreams blackened with the sin of war. And there came a call for these men to take up arms in the defense of these rights. They fought as our heroes and died while fighting for us. Now they live as immortals as we strive to pay our bit of gratitude in dedicating a mere yearbook to their memory.

The call came again and Clemson men were there to answer. In Korea today some have already made the supreme sacrifice, your classmates and mine. They fill the services of our country today. The 1st Armored Division is loaded with Clemson men from the class of '51 and '52. It is our duty to fill the shoes of these who have gone before to the utmost of our ability. We must go that "second mile."

Some of us may never leave the United States but still we have a definite part in this world today. It may be that of being an NCO in the cadet corps or an officer. If this be our part and our duty, we should train our subordinates well. We should feel proud to say that in another year, our places will be filled with even more capable men. And we know that they will be capable because we have trained them ourselves.

The opportunity may not arise for us to fight beside our classmates, and with the way things are looking in Korea today, I pray not. But if it should we should be ready. Then on the other hand we may want to go with our classmates but due to circumstances beyond our control, we may not be able. Nevertheless, we should back them up.

All Clemson men should feel an invisible bond between him and his fellow men—that son of Clemson feeling. We should strive to uphold and promote those ideals and traditions that were held dear by those who have gone before. Is this not the least we can do for our school and our friends?

I'm not saying that we should all go out and become "wheels." Life doesn't work that way. For every man that goes out and invents a new type machine, someone has to run it. As someone has already said, "We may not do great things, but we can do small things in a great way."

Appreciation For Help; Luck To Incoming Staff

IT is with reluctance that we relinquish the editorial reigns of The Tiger. For two years we have attempted to record the activities of Clemson and Clemson men. We have watched Clemson grow. And we have seen Clemson men take their positions as leaders throughout the world.

We have worked hard to keep ahead or abreast of the news. And now we are tired.

Before writing "—30—" to our final editorial, we would like to thank a few of the many who have made our journalistic tasks easier. We are indebted to Professor John Lane, Dr. R. F. Poole, the Business Manager's Office, Walter Cox, John Califf, and Brent Breedin. To these our sincere appreciation is extended.

To the incoming staff we relinquish the duties and responsibilities of The Tiger—a part of one of this country's greatest institutions. To them our congratulations are extended. Through their efforts may The Tiger continue to work to make a great Clemson greater.

Letters To Tom Clemson

Dear Tom,

I'm no moralist or essayist, Tom, but I felt obligated to write you a thank-you note for the most interesting and eventful years of my life. On June 7, I hope to graduate and be able to say proudly that I went to Clemson.

Tom, what I'm leading to concerns you and every senior and under-classman at this school. Probably you remember a tradition called "Senior Day."

Well, this year the seniors are planning another. In 1950 and 1951, the graduating seniors had a black mark against them for they took part in the worst vandalism ever seen here at Clemson.

I want to reassure you, Tom, and say that I, and every other senior up here, will do our best to give this, our graduating class, not a black mark, but a mark of distinction by having the most enjoyable and finest Senior Day ever.

Do you think that's too much to ask of the seniors? Thought you would agree, Tom. See ya' on the 28th.

Respectfully,
J. G. Campbell, '53

Platter Chatter

E. L. Carnes

The man every jazz fan should watch for the latest thing in modern music is a pianist-arranger named Dave Brubeck. His main idea about what will be done about jazz in the next year involves the dropping of the piano from the rhythm section of the big bands.

Although the thought of no piano in a band will have most people thinking of a horse with three legs actually will bring out the use of bass and drums to their best advantage.

The only band to try this to date is Gerry Mulligan, and confidentially, it is great. No records have been made available at this time, but they are soon to be released.

THIS WEEK'S CROP of "new" tunes are led by a couple of old standards done up like they have never been done before. Sarah Vaughn has waxed "Spring Will Be a Little Late This Year," and "A Blues Serenade."

And Doris Day has doubled her effort and recorded an album from her latest picture "By the Light of the Silvery Moon" and a single of "When the Red, Red Robin" and "Beautiful Music to Love By." The album has many old favorites headed by "If You Were the Only Girl" and "Ain't We Got Fun."

IF YOU ARE just wandering around looking and listening to records before you make any purchases, listen to "No One Will Ever Know" by Tony Bennett; "Baltimore Oriole" by the Four Freshmen; "The Nearness of You" by Bob Manning; and "Love Light" by Vic Damone.

These records may never be on the top of the hit parade but they are good listening in anybody's book.

THE STAN KENTON ensemble is back again with another album that as usual sets the pace in its field. The album, entitled "New Concepts", features Conti Condoli in "Portrait of a Count," Sal Salvadore and Maynard Ferguson in "Invitation For Guitar and Trumpet," and "My Lady" by Lee Konitz on alto sax.

The other names in the album are good all around band numbers such as "230N-820W," "Young Blood," and "Frankly Speaking." Since Stan has re-organized his band it would seem that he can do no wrong with his records.

TV STATION BEING BUILT IN GREENVILLE

When the Federal Communications Commission recently announced its grant of a construction permit for television station WGVL, now under construction in Greenville, it extended to this area the nation's newest pattern of home entertainment, according to Ben K. McKinnon, General Manager of Station WGVL.

The new station, now under construction, will televise in the range known as ultra high frequency, commonly referred to as UHF. The 107 television stations on the air across the United States at the start of 1952 operated in the very high frequency range, known as VHF.

"Ultra high frequency became necessary almost with the start of television," Mr. McKinnon said, "because there was no more room for new stations in the VHF band. The 107 stations were located in only 64 cities across the country, leaving many areas with no television, or one-station service."

The announcement of the new local station has caused a flood of inquiries concerning the purchase of television receivers. Obviously, the answers to these questions are important to people intending to invest in television receivers shortly, Mr. McKinnon pointed out.

Emil A. Sellars, Chief Engineer of WGVL, recommends two basic rules to be followed in buying a new television set. The first is to buy from a reliable television dealer; the second, buy a set capable receiving all 12 VHF and all 70 HF television channels.

Why all 82 channels when there will be only a few, used at any time in this area?

"The answer to that question is simple," Mr. Sellars explained. "Station WGVL will broadcast on Channel 23, so you will need reception only on one channel to see and hear us. If our station were to be the only TV ever to take the air in this territory, and if you never moved away from here, single channel reception would be all right."

"But, Mr. Sellars continued, "suppose you move away from here, or another station starts broadcasting in this area, Channel 4 in the VHF band has also been assigned to Greenville so the television buyer will need a set capable of receiving channels on UHF and VHF."

'BORN YESTERDAY' HAS SIX POTENTIAL SCENE THIEVES

By Chuck Burnette

"Born Yesterday," the Clemson Little Theater's forthcoming production has in the supporting roll, six potential scene thieves, all capable of rendering excellent performances.

The minor female roles are held by three fresh new faces on the local scene. Dusty Andrews, Booney Wagner, and Pat Player.

Mrs. R. C. Andrews, formally known as Dusty, has acted with the Columbia Little Theater and the University Players of the University of South Carolina.

She played the part of Christine in the Columbia production of I Remember Mama. Her first local performance is in "Born Yesterday."

MRS. FREDERICK Wagner, formally known as Booney, is secretary of the Clemson Little Theater and an outstanding member. Her only previous experience has been with the Junior League of Brooklyn where she aided in the production of its state wide puppet show.

Mrs. Pat Player is new to Clemson, arriving here upon her marriage to a student here. Although this is her first appearance in the Little Theater play, she was active in the recent production of the "Student Prince".

Among these performers are three cadets well-known around the campus for their dramatic activities. John Haytas, in his role of Senator Norval Hedges, follows up quickly on the heels of his portrayal of Hubert in "Student Prince" with another colorful character role. The still lingering memory of his highly dramatic performance as Dr. Wargrave in "Ten Little Indians" will seek to add additional flavor to his forthcoming performance.

John has earned additional merit for his production work in "Little Foxes," the Christmas show, and as secretary-treasurer of the drama group, Alpha Psi Omega. He is a member of the Nu Epsilon, the Newman Club, and a Tiger correspondent.

Peter Beck, as Eddie Brock, calls upon the dramatic experience gleamed from roles in the "Conjures Stone," "Ten Little Indians," and "The Atomic Blonde" to enrich his portrayal to a point of tremendous audience appeal.

He has also done production work on the "Little Foxes" and "Student Prince". He is a member of the Alpha Psi Omega and has been a member of the Clemson Little Theater for two years.

THE BARBER is played by Bill Muzzey, affording a change from his usual work with productions. An electrical engineering major, Bill has done lighting and sound work on "Little Foxes," "Student Prince," "Submergest," and "Arsenic and Old Lace". He is a member of the Belfry Club at Germantown Academy, the oldest schoolboy dramatic club in the United States, and the Alpha Psi Omega here at Clemson. He is also a member of Nu Epsilon.

Dr. John Hunter, civil engineering instructor, plays the part of the assistant manager in "Born Yesterday", a sequel to his performance as Dr. Armstrong in "Ten Little Indians". He assisted with the scenery and stage work of the "Student Prince". Dr. Hunter is one of the three honorary members of the local Alpha Psi Omega.

Winthron Daughters sponsor breakfast. The Clemson chapter of Winthron Daughters will sponsor a May morning breakfast in the Sabar Room of the Clemson House, May 1, from 7:00 to 10:00 a. m.

Proceeds from the breakfast will go for the organization's scholarship fund. Plates have been priced at $1.00.

Each lady will be given a corsage. Bridge may be played in the lounge.

Committee chairmen for the breakfast are as follows: Mr. J. F. Miles, general chairman; Mr. B. D. Cloaniger, flowers and table arrangements; Mrs. W. C. Power, music; Mrs. W. A. King, publicity; Miss Billie Vandiver, tickets; Mrs. D. C. Brock and Mrs. B. B. Burly, May annual.

Staff Members To Attend Press Meet

Meeting Will Be Held At Lander

April 24 And 25; Lane On Program

Nine members of The Tiger staff will attend the 1952-53 convention of the South Carolina Collegiate Press Association to be held at Lander College Friday and Saturday, April 24 and 25.

Seventeen Attend State Episcopal Meet From Here

Episcopal students from the colleges of South Carolina met last week-end at the Spring Convention of the State Association of Canterbury Clubs.

A delegation of seventeen men from Clemson was headed by Philip G. Porcher, Jr., the president of the State Association, Howard Jackson, the treasurer, and the Rev. Emmet Gribbin, Rector of Holy Trinity Church, Clemson.

The Spring Convention is held in alternate years at one of the two camps owned by the Episcopal Church in South Carolina. This year's convention met at Camp Gravatt near Batesburg with the Clemson Canterbury Club acting as the host club.

"COMMUNISM AND Christianity" was the study theme of the convention this year, and several panel discussions were led by Episcopal student groups at Winthrop, Clemson, the University of South Carolina, the College of Charleston, and The Citadel. Arnold Gaillard was Clemson's panel member.

Plans were completed for the series of Vacation Bible Schools which will be taught in many communities this summer by members of the Canterbury Clubs. Joe Easley of Clemson was elected President of the State Association for the coming year.

Other officers elected were Julian Gervais of Winthrop and Jack Etzold of The Citadel, vice-presidents; Jo Ann Sprott of Carolina, secretary; Harriet Travers of Carolina, treasurer; and Charles Stark of The Citadel, publicity chairman. The Convention next year will meet at Camp St. Christopher, Seabrooks Beach, near Charleston.

Pre-Med Club Shown Movies

The Pre-Med Club held a regular meeting Tuesday night, April 14. Plans for a social were made, and two films were shown.

The group decided to have a steak supper at the community lodge in Central, Friday, April 24. The two movies shown were of technical value to the club members. One pictured the clinical treatment of malaria, and the other film showed the preparation and staining procedures for the mounting of the casual organism of malaria.

Mu Beta Psi Plans To Give Jazz Concert

Mu Beta Psi, local music fraternity, is making plans to present another jazz concert to be held in the college chapel, May 21.

A vocal list will be featured with the Dixieland band.

Representing The Tiger at the meeting are: Louis Henry and Charles Meiburg, co-editors; Glenn Morrison, business manager; Tommy Green, news editor; Carroll Moore, sports editor; Val Forget, assistant circulation manager; and Frank Anderson, assistant sports editor.

Registration for the convention will be held Friday afternoon in Wilson Hall at 4 o'clock. Dinner will be served in the college dining room.

Mr. Ed Chaffin, managing editor of The Greenwood Index Journal, will give a lecture, "The Changing Newspaper Scene", in the recreation room at 7:30 p. m. After the lecture a reception will be held.

Mr. Hugh S. Jacobs, Jacobs Brothers Printing Company, Clinton, will lead the discussion on "The Problems in the Printing of a College Newspaper or Magazine."

Mr. John D. Lane, professor of English at Clemson and faculty adviser of The Tiger, will present for discussion, "Student-Faculty Adviser-Administration Relations."

The Executive committee will meet in the conference room before the meeting adjourns for lunch.

During the afternoon a business meeting will be held in the recreation room.

THE ANNUAL BANQUET will be held Saturday night in the college dining hall. Dr. B. M. Grier, president of Lander College, will welcome the students. The presentation of awards will be at this time.

Officers for 1952-53 are: Charles Meiburg, Clemson College president; Ann Hatchett, Columbia College, vice-president; Mary Jane Howard, Winthrop College, corresponding secretary; Harriet Haun, Coker College, recording secretary; and James Connelly, Newberry College, treasurer.

CHANCELLOR PRAISES LOCAL ALPHA ZETA

Dr. Herbert R. Albrecht, high chancellor of the fraternity of Alpha Zeta, visited the local chapter of Alpha Zeta on April 14 and 15.

Dr. Albrecht's visit marks the first visit of a high chancellor to the South Carolina chapter since its founding in 1930. Dr. Albrecht was appointed high chancellor in 1952.

He is professor and head of the department of agronomy at the Pennsylvania State College. He was recently named director of the Agricultural and Home Economics Extension Service at Penn State.

A SPECIAL meeting of the local fraternity was held Tuesday night, April 14, at which time Dr. Albrecht spoke to the student and faculty members. He gave a report on current and future activities of the fraternity as he has seen them in visiting other chapters in the United States.

The local chapter was commended by Dr. Albrecht for being one of the most active chapters in the nation. Activities which he specifically commended were the fraternity's sponsorship of the agricultural fair, reception held for agriculture freshmen, and the publication of The Agrarian.

NOTICE

The 'Y' workers and contributors picnic has been changed from April 27 to Monday, May 4. Those interested in attending this meeting are asked to secure tickets at the 'Y' office or from some member of the picnic committee. The charge will be 60c for students and 75c for adults.

Heyn Goes To New York Meet

Dr. A. N. J. Heyn, professor of natural and synthetic fibers and research specialist, of the textile management department of the Clemson College Textile School has been invited, along with several other scientists, by the North American Phillips Company, Inc., of Mount Vernon, New York to lecture in their seminar on April 24.

Dr. Heyn will lecture on "The X-Ray Studies of Synthetic Fibers".

Deacon's Record Against Clemson Remains Unblemished

Some people may call it smart coaching, others may say that it is smart baseball anyway that you look at it. As far as I am concerned, it's stooping just about as low as you can stoop and still be on top of the ground.

Some of you might wonder just what I am talking about, since very few of you saw the meeting between Clemson and Wake Forest in Anderson last Saturday. There were no write-ups in a South Carolina newspaper telling just what had happened at the game other than the ones stating that the game was called.

This is really what happened:

The baseball game between the Tigers and the Deacons was scheduled to begin at 2:30 Saturday afternoon at Nardin Field but a continual drizzle halted the beginning of the game until a few minutes after 3:00. When the umpires, captains and coaches met before the game to discuss the ground rules, the two coaches, Bob Smith of Clemson and Taylor Sanford of the Deacons, made a gentleman's agreement that there would be no stalling between the two teams despite threatening weather.

IT WAS ALSO DECIDED that no inning would be started after 5:00 since the grounds keeper had to get the field ready in time for the Rebels game that night. This was all settled, and play was begun on a damp but not soft field.

Clemson tallied three runs in the bottom of the initial inning after setting the Deacons down without a run crossing home plate in the top of the first. They again held the Baptists from scoring in the second, while the Tigers added three more in their half.

While the Tigers were taking their turns at bat in the second, a slight drizzle began to fall and at this point, six runs ahead and a possibility that the game may be called if the rain began to fall any heavier, Coach Smith could have started his boys by taking swings at the ball and missing in order to speed up the game. BUT, there had been an agreement that there would be no stalling, so therefore there could be no actions to try and make an out to send the game on its way.

In the third, after the Deacons were again retired without scoring, it was Clemson's turn at bat, and the first signs of stalling began. Pitcher Bill Walsh began taking more than his usual amount of time between pitches to the Clemson batters.

In the fourth, after the Deacons had scored three runs in the top of that stanza, the stalling became more and more obvious. Deacon Catcher, Jack Liptak began to mouth to Umpire Carrigan behind the plate, "What do you want us to do, catch pneumonia?" It was a good time for them to start their so-called tactics, since the half way mark in the game was drawing near, and the little drizzle continued, not to mention the Tiger's six-run lead.

WHEN THE DEACONS had been retired in the fourth, and it was their turn to take the field, Deacon coach, Sanford, stalled his entire team a full minute before making them take the field. Then, pitcher Walsh took a full nine deliberate warm tosses before starting to pitch to Tiger leadoff man, Joe Brown.

Joe fouled off in left field, but the Wake Forest men made no effort to get the ball. Deac third baseman, Jimmie Floyd, yelled to his teammate, "Get the ball for the manager" as Clemson manager, Jim Rast, trotted out to retrieve the ball. So, the Deacon fielder walked over, got the ball, and carried it to the manager, instead of pitching it to him.

Joe finally was walked and shortstop Dick Hussey stepped up to bat. The pitcher threw a wild pitch, and the Deac catcher went back to get it as Brown moved on to second.

Brown then moved on to third while Liptak, the catcher, stood at home plate with the ball in his hand watching the runner move and making no attempt to throw him out. Brown, seeing that the catcher was not going to try for him began advancing toward home plate. Liptak then reluctantly tagged Brown out as he neared home plate.

Umpire Carrigan then called the game immediately after Dick Hussey went down swinging on a third strike.

At this point in the game, with Clemson leading 9-3, it was not raining any harder than it was in the second inning, but the umpire seemed to be getting tired of Clemson trying to make an out which was not nearly so obvious as the Deacons' trying to delay the game.

He called the game at 4:25 and stated that he was delaying it for 30 minutes which would have made it 4:55 before play could be resumed. Then it would be too late to start another inning after the players got warmed up again.

FIFTEEN MINUTES LATER the drizzle turned into a downpour and killed all chances of play being resumed. Clemson's margin of victory was erased, and chances for an important Southern Conference victory were over.

It would not have been so bad if this was the first time that the Tigers had come into contact with this Wake Forest brand of "sportsmanship." But, three years ago, their basketball team came down to Clemson and delayed the starting of a game, because of some minor ailment of ONE of their players.

We're Not Leaving, Just Changing Jobs

For the past year, this writer has enjoyed covering the sports scenes on the local campus, but with this issue I shove to you my last column as Sports Editor of The Tiger. Next week, Frank Anderson, one of my most reliable cohorts, will be taking over the job as sports editor and will serve you the remainder of this semester and next year at this post.

IT IS THE CUSTOM for a departing editor to thank the various officials of athletics who cooperated to make his job possible. I will follow my predecessors. My thanks go to Clemson Athletic Director Frank Howard; Lib Griffith, his most capable secretary; the entire football coaching staff; Coach Banks McFadden, basketball coach; Coach Rock Norman, track coach; Coach Bob Smith, baseball coach; Mr. Gene Willamon, IPTAY secretary; Mr. Walter Cox, head of alumni affairs; and "Pearlaby," field house "superintendent."

I would especially like to thank Brent Breedin, Clemson sports publicist, who has helped me obtain much of my information, and who has been always willing to give a helping hand when needed.

Around the office, I have appreciation for my two assistants, Frank Anderson and Bob Wheeler, both of whom have worked with me diligently in conveying the news of sports to you each week. They were really great.

I would like to give special appreciation to the editors of this year's Tigers, Charles Meiburg and Louis Henry, for helping me over the journalistic hills that I have encountered. They have been wonderful editors and much help to me all year.

To our photographer, Jack Trimmer, I would like to give thanks for supplying me at times with more professional shots than I could squeeze into my pages.

So, as I close this column and take my typewriter from the sports desk into the editorial department, I would like to say that I have really enjoyed serving you as sports editor, and I wish my successor, Frank Anderson, the best of luck on this beat for the next year.

Tigs Visit Hornets For Saturday Game

Tigs Squeeze By 'Cats In Track 66-65

Coach Rock Norman's cindermen squeezed by the Davidson Wildcats here last Wednesday afternoon for a Southern Conference win.

The Tigers sewed up the win when Allan Mason and his teammates, Moore, took a first and a third in the 220 low hurdles. The Cats' mile relay team won their event but this was one point short of overtaking the Tigs, who finally won the conflict 66-65.

High point man for the afternoon was Clemson's Dreher Gaskins. Gaskins took a first in the shot and discus and tied for second in the high jump for a total of 12 points. Not far behind this veteran trackster was frosh Allan Mason. Mason forged ahead in both of the hurdle events to take first in both the 120 high hurdles and the 220 low hurdles.

Leading the Davidsons in their futile attempt was distance man Sparks. Sparks took a first in the one mile and tied for second in the two mile, for a total of 7 points.

The Wildcats really ran wild on the running events from the 440 on up to the two mile. Out of 36 possible points in these events the speedy North Carolinians only gave up two markers. These two points came when Buck George got a third in the 440 and Willie Ervin took third place in the 2 mile.

Clemson ran up a lopsided margin in the field events and the short sprints and it was not until the distance events that the Davidsons began to make the contest into an exciting contest.

Honea Path Hands Baby Tigs Second Straight Defeat

The Honea Path Stingers defeated the Tiger J. V. baseball team by the score of 9-4 in a game played here last Friday afternoon.

Carroll McClain took the mound for the Stingers and threw a five-hitter at the Clemson boys. He pitched good ball over the entire route.

The Tigers called upon Herbie Anderson to handle their pitching chores. He pitched good ball until the sixth inning. Bill Mellard came on in the sixth, but couldn't get the side out after two outs. Bob Wheeler then came into the game and retired the last man on a strike-out. He finished the game, giving up no hits or runs.

The Stingers tallied four times in the sixth on the three walks, two Tiger errors, and a single. This put the game on ice for them.

Clemson Linksters Wallop Carolina 231-2 To 31-2

Coach Bob Moorman's golfers blasted a 231/2-31/2 win over the South Carolina Gamecocks on the Boscobel course last Friday afternoon.

Two Aiken boys again paced the golfers. Bill Johnson, a sophomore, took medalist honors for the afternoon with a two under par 70. Len Yuan, a freshman from Aiken, was hot on Johnson's heels with a 71. Veteran golfer and two letterman Jim Allison, tied with Yuan in also posting a 71.

TERRIERS FALL BEFORE TIGER NET TEAM 7-2

The Tiger net team continued to show winning form in rolling over the Wofford Terriers, 7-2, in a tennis match held on the local courts on Tuesday of this week.

The Tigs did not wait until the doubles matches to take their lead. They started in right from the beginning, and were never headed by the hustling Terriers.

Khin Si, Clemson's stellar freshman tennis star, won both his singles and doubles matches again. Owen and McCormack, in the doubles combination, played a fine game of tennis in running the match to the limit. They played three sets in defeating Hoffmeyer and Goodale of offord, 6-3, 5-7 and 6-2.

Netters Toppled By Citadel, 5-4 In Close Contest

The Tiger tennis team lost a heartbreaker to The Citadel last Friday in a match held here at Clemson. The score was close all of the way and it was not until The Citadel won two of three doubles matches that the outcome was decided.

Freshman Khin Si continued to shine for the Tigs. He won his singles match with Newmann, and, teamed with Archie Baker in the doubles, defeated Koester and Lyon.

Summary:
Koester (Cit) defeated Seaborn (C), 6-4, 6-4.
Khin Si (C) defeated Newmann (Cit) 5-7, 6-1.

Plowden (Cit) defeated Moxley (C), 6-0, 1-6, 6-1.
Coleman (C) defeated Williams (Cit), 6-2, 3-6, 6-2.

McCormack (C) defeated Stetz (Cit) 6-2, 7-9, 6-0.
Seaborn and Khin Si (C) defeated Koester and Lyon (Cit), 6-5, 11-9.

Plowden and Newmann (Cit) defeated Howard and McCormack (C), 6-3, 6-0.
Sirkin and Stetz (Cit) defeated Owen and Stokes (C), 6-3, 6-2.

G'cocks Edge Tigs In Close Net Battle By 5 Sets To 4

The University of South Carolina defeated the Tiger net team 5-4, to carry their string to seven victories in nine starts.

The match was not decided until the Carolina No. 2 doubles combination of Nick Klonaris and Jimmy Potter took a marathon match from the Tigers Khin Si and Archie Baker, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Each team won three singles matches, but the Gamecocks took two of the three doubles matches for their winning margin.

Tig-Hornet Clash To Be Played At Meadowbrook

Next Saturday afternoon the Furman Hornets and the Clemson Tigers will meet in their third installment of the 1953 baseball season. The game is scheduled for Meadowbrook Park in Greenville and will probably get underway about three o'clock.

Up until press time, the two teams have not met but once. This contest was on April 8. Southpaw hurler Billy O'Dell fanned 16 Hornets in the six innings he pitched. At this point, freshman star Bubba Free took over to finish out the contest for the 15-1 win.

The second game of the Clemson-Furman series was scheduled for yesterday after The Tiger had already gone to press, so by this time, most of you have already heard the outcome.

THE TIGERS' FIRST 15-1 victory over the Hornets can by no means be an assurance that the Bengals will take these two games. Furman has improved a great deal since that first outing behind the hard hitting of third baseman Bob Dellinger. In the South Carolina contest last Monday afternoon, Dellinger led his teammates to an 11-2 win with a single and two doubles in four times up to the plate.

Furman is not the only team holding the hitting power. The Tigers have three slugging juniors who also stand very high when it comes to batting averages. Leading this trio is flashy third baseman Wyman Morris.

At present, Wyman has a batting average of .556. Second in the standing is Roy Coker. Coker, the second baseman from Taylors, is batting a phenomenal .366. The other junior batting in the three hundreds is outfielder Doug Kingsmore. Batting in the cleanup spot, Kingsmore has an overall average of .300.

The only substitution in the Tig lineup will be George Brodie replacing Dick Swetenburg at first. Brodie has already played a great deal of ball at the initial sack and should fill in well, especially from the hitting end.

In the second game with South Carolina, Swetenburg stretched too far in a double play and pulled a leg muscle, taking him out of the lineup indefinitely.

IN THE PITCHING department, it is unknown who will start for the Tigers. Coach Smith has three reliable hurlers who could possibly take the mound against Furman.

KEITH DAVENPORT

World Traveler Visits Professor Frank Burtner

By Bobby Mixon

More than two and a half years ago, a group of four persons set out from Sydney, Australia, bound for England, and eventually, the United States. Their vessel for the 30,000-mile trek across two oceans was to be a 46-foot sailing cutter named the "Waltzing Matilda." Included in the group were Keith Davenport, a newspaperman for the Sidney Sun; Philip, his brother and owner of the boat; Rosetta, Philip's wife; and Don Brown, a friend.

Keith Davenport, who is now visiting Frank Burtner, professor of sociology at Clemson, whom he met while they were students together at the University of North Carolina, gives an interesting account of the voyage, which lasted ten months as contrasted with the four days required for an airplane trip.

DAVENPORT'S BROTHER is an airline pilot by profession with the Sydney-to-London route as his regular run. Both of the brothers served with the Royal Australian Air Force in England during World War II.

It was back in 1950 when the "Waltzing Matilda" sailed away from Australia carrying the two brothers on the wandering pleasure cruise which they had always wanted to take.

Their first stop was in New Zealand and the plan was to take on enough food and supplies at each stop-over to last for each lap of the journey. The water supply created no problem as the craft was equipped with huge tanks which were capable of holding two or three hundred gallons of water.

Almost all of the way across the South Pacific, sailing eastward from New Zealand, the "Waltzing Matilda" used to full advantage the "roaring 40's," a term applied to the trade winds along the 40th parallel.

Even though the craft is considered to be comparably small for an ocean-going vessel, she successfully weathered one of the frequent storms for which that area of the South Pacific is notorious.

Using these same trade winds which supposedly carried the ancient Polynesians in their travels across the Pacific, the "Waltzing Matilda" approached the Patagonian Channels along the coast of Chile.

CLEMSON UNIT TO RETAIN 30% OF QM GRADS

Major Jack I. Hamlin has released the following statement to clarify misconceptions which have developed with regard to calling Quartermaster ROTC graduates to active duty in other arms and services:

"At the present time the following services are approaching their authorized strength of junior grade officers: Quartermaster Corps, Transportation Corps, and Military Police Corps. At the same time, the following arms and services are below strength in these grades: Infantry, Armor, Artillery, Engineer, Signal, Chemical, Ordnance, and Medical Service.

"THE SHORTAGE IN these latter arms and services total approximately 1200 officers. Thus, an equal number of ROTC graduates in June from QMC, TC, and MPC will be detailed to the other units to balance authorized strengths in the Army.

"This situation, then, will affect the Clemson Quartermaster cadets who graduate and receive their commissions on 7 June 1953 only. It does not apply to Distinguished Military Graduates who accept Regular Army commissions. Also, the Clemson unit is authorized to retain a quota of 30% of the Quartermaster graduates who will go on active duty with the Quartermaster Corps as originally scheduled.

"There are 13 QMC graduates this semester (not including DMG). Thus, 4 will serve with the QMC, and the other 9 will be detailed to one of the other understrength arms or services. Note that these 9 graduates will be detailed, not assigned to units. This means that they will be commissioned as Quar-

BRADLEY DESIGNS PLAQUE FOR CHURCH MEMORIAL

By John Patrick

Too often when men retire, they find that they have nothing left to occupy their minds and hands. These find that the long sought time of retirement is not a time of peace and happiness as they had visioned it, but is instead filled with days of boredom. One man, at least, at Clemson has never had to face this problem.

Professor M. E. Bradley, former head of the English Department and affectionately known as "Prep" to hundreds of his former students, still finds his days pleasantly filled with a variety of interests. Perhaps his most interesting hobby is that of woodcarving.

ALTHOUGH HE occasionally uses special woodcarving knives and chisels, Mr. Bradley's favorite tool is a plain pocket knife. Working with close grained woods such as boxwood, holly, walnut, and mahogany, he has turned out some beautiful pieces.

Among his most prized carvings is that of a man's head which he carved from the root of a walnut. Mr. Bradley states that the secret of carving this piece, as in all other carvings, is adaptation of the grain to the finished carving.

Under his skilled hand, another part of this root has been fashioned into a nine-inch replica of a large buck, which represents "the one that got away" from Mr. Marshall Bell of the Mathematics Department while on a hunt in Hampton County.

WHILE MR. BRADLEY carves mostly for recreation, he has also done the carving for several plaques. After he has carved the designs and letters, the wooden plaques are used as patterns from which the finished bronze memorials are produced.

He is now working on a very complicated design involving the state seal. The plaque pictured above illustrates a memorial the pattern of which was carved by Mr. Bradley. This plaque, located in the Presbyterian Church, demonstrates the need of a steady hand and a patience which few ever attain.

Besides his hobby of woodcarving, Prof. Bradley has become quite proficient in plaster work and painting. His work with plaster, which is strengthened by a wire mesh base, ranges from a model landscape for his son's toy train to the design of the organ grill in the Presbyterian Church.

Another excellent piece of plaster work is a relief map of Greenwood County which was on display at the Cotton Exposition in New York during the late 1920s.

HIS PAINTINGS, like the rest of his work, are exceptional. One of particular interest is a picture of his old home painted from a photograph after the house had burned.

Even though the photograph was an old one, every detail, from the brick in the chimneys to the front gate, is clearly depicted in his painting.

Mr. Bradley came to Clemson in 1901 and has lived on the campus ever since. He received his degree from Erskine College in 1898, after entering directly into the junior class two years previously.

Perhaps Professor Bradley's artistic talents may be more clearly understood in the light of the fact that his mother composed music which has been published and painted nearly one thousand pictures, several of which may be seen hanging in Mr. Bradley's home.

It is truly inspiring to see a man who has retired from active work still enthusiastically engaged in hobbies that are both worthwhile and beautiful.

Pre-School Clinic Be Held April 28

A pre-school clinic will be held at the Calhoun-Clemson high school at 9:00, April 28.

Any child that is six years old by November 1 is asked to be registered at the clinic.

Dr. Ballard, Pickens County physician, will be at the school to give shots and make physical examinations.
