Orders For Post Office Boxes Now Being Taken

Company Point Race Is Close

By Jimmy Bennett

The regular company point competition has been received by the troops with mixed reaction. Some companies have really gone gung-ho and others are trying.

As it stands now, D-3, B-4, D-1, and C-3 are in a hot race for the top of the heap. C-2 rates as the dark horse and is beginning to push the leaders hard.

Competitions of this sort are always good for morale and shame some companies into putting on a better show. As the saying goes, good things come in small packages, especially points. Maybe the companies holding up the cow's tail will get on the stick and surprise everybody. After all, there isn't any sense in letting three or four companies run away with it when there are 16 companies on the regiment.

These don't have to win all the time. There must be more than a few good companies on the entire regiment. How about you companies bringing up the rear giving these fellows a run for their money? Start chalking up a few points yourself and make this a real competition.

Col. Reed Speaks At SAME Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Society of American Military Engineers was held on 5 Jan., 1955. Twenty-five members were present at this meeting.

Colonel Reed, chief armor instructor here at Clemson, was guest speaker. Col. Reed spoke on the roll of the Armored Engineers Battalion in the Armored Division. Besides giving the four missions of the Armored Engineers Batt. which are supply, defense, intelligence and road work, Col. Reed cited examples from his personal experience in World War II and Korea.

A field trip to Donaldson AFB was planned for next Saturday. The purpose of the field trip is to view construction of the new two million dollar hangar there at Donaldson.

Flames To Present Jam Session Next Friday Afternoon

On Friday afternoon, January 14, at 4 p. m., a jam session will be held in the college auditorium by "The Flames." Admission will be twenty five cents per person.

"The Flames," a seven-man band that is currently touring the east coast, comes to Clemson highly recommended by many big name night clubs in Georgia and South Carolina.

In the College Chapel Friday afternoon they will be singing and playing many of their hit tunes: "Hearts of Stone," "Sincerely," "49 Women," "Soldier's Mercy," "Blues for the Flames" and many other top hit tunes.

The exhibition of music is sponsored by the Block "C" Club through the courtesy of the Central Dance Association. Tickets may be purchased from any Block "C" member.

Sophomore Class Decides To Sell Plastic Covers

At a recent meeting of the Sophomore Class, the class decided to sell plastic book covers. This step was taken in view of the fact that none are obtainable here at Clemson this year, and the need for them is evident to all who wish to take good care of deteriorating textbooks.

Several committees have been appointed to begin work on the class project.

The cover was designed by a committee headed by Newton Stall, and an order has been placed for the first shipment. Members of the sophomore class will begin selling these covers at the beginning of the second semester. Carl Lewis is chairman of the committee responsible for the selling of these "plasticos."

All students are urged to take advantage of this opportunity of spending a little money now so that they can make much more money later when they try to sell their used books.

Tiger Is Now In New Offices

Saturday, January 8, the TIGER moved from their old office at the steps below the old quadrangle to its new offices on the top floor of the new student center.

The new offices which consist of two large rooms and four small offices give the TIGER much more working space than it had in the old office.

Some new equipment has already been obtained for the new offices and more will be added in the near future. Anyone wishing to come by and look over the new quarters is welcome to do so. The staff will be in the offices on Monday and Tuesday nights.

Speakers Are Selected For Religious Emphasis Week

Speakers and committees for Religious Emphasis Week were announced this week. Religious Emphasis Week will include February 8, 9, 10, and 11, and will feature speakers and forum leaders on religion.

Catholic convocation speaker will be the Rev. Walter T. Gouch, Instructor in Political Science and in Religion at Johns Hopkins University. The Protestant speaker will be Dr. John Owen Smith, District Superintendent of the Spartanburg District of the Methodist Church. The Jewish convocation leader will be Dr. Abraham Cronbach, Professor of Social Studies at the Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati.

Combination Locks Are New Features

The new Clemson student post office has been completed and is planning to go into operation within the next week or ten days. At present, orders are being taken at the new station for the combination lock boxes.

Located in the arcade in the basement of the dining hall section the new college station has a total of 2170 boxes available to individuals and clubs. In addition to the individual small boxes, there are a few larger compartments for publications and student organizations. It is requested that the business managers of the larger organizations to make arrangements for obtaining one of these boxes as soon as possible.

The way the plan is set up is to put only one person to a box. Box rent will be $1.10 per quarter. The new address for the post office will be: Your name, your new box number, College Station, Clemson, S. C.

J. B. "Chick" Boggs and A. C. Jenkins are handling the new station for the time being. Boggs said that although the exact hours of operation have not been decided yet, the hours will be set up so that the station may accommodate the students fully. One of the main reasons for the move from the old post office was the closing time of the old office. With the main station closing at 7 p. m. every night many students were not able to check the afternoon mail. With night watchman service around the new dormitories, it is highly possible that the lobby of the new station will be open 24 hours a day.

Post Office officials have reason to believe that the students will receive better service through this separate station. Instructions have been given to bail the College station mail separately from the town mail. When these bails come into the main office they may be sent directly up to the station.

Sixteen Seniors Are Taken Into Phi Kappa Phi

Sixteen seniors were initiated into the Clemson Chapter of the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi at the last meeting. The meeting was held in Club Room 2 of the YMCA on December 3, 1954.

The following were taken into the chapter: Melvin E. Barnette, arts and sciences major of Pendleton; Thomas W. Bookhart, electrical engineering major of Greenville; Arthur E. Brown, ceramic engineering major of Florence; Niles C. Clark, Jr., animal husbandry major of Waterloo; and Henry R. Coleman, civil engineering major of Abbeville.

Also, John C. Cox, architectural engineering major of Greenville; Clarence W. Davis, textile engineering major of Abbeville; Basil F. Dickert, chemical engineering major of Columbia; Thomas C. Drew, Jr., electrical engineering major of Gaffney; and Ben R. Fox, textile manufacturing major of Inman.

Also, David R. Gentry, textile manufacturing major of Easley; Joseph D. Hayes, Jr., mechanical engineering major of Latta; James A. Murphy, agricultural engineering major of Starr; Bernard C. Smith, education major of Conover, N. C.; William R. Stone, Jr., textile chemistry major of Newberry; and Theibert R. Suggs, pre-medicine major of Loris.

All of these seniors had a grade point ratio of 3.10 or better in order to qualify for membership in Phi Kappa Phi. They ranked scholastically in the top six percent of their class.

Following the initiation a banquet was held in the Purple Room of the Clemson House, in honor of the new members of the chapter. Dr. J. B. Pitner, head of the Agronomy Department, delivered an address entitled "The Role of Agriculture in the World Food Supply."

ASME and SAE Take Field Trip To Atlanta

A group of fifty-four members of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the Society of Automotive Engineers left by train Tuesday morning, December 7, for a field trip to Atlanta. The excursion included two industrial tours and dinner in Atlanta.

In the morning, the group was conducted through the Buick, Pontiac, and Oldsmobile divisions of the General Motors assembly plant in Atlanta. There the members saw 1955 model automobiles painted, completely assembled, and driven to the road test.

Following dinner, the group was taken for a tour of the Lockheed Aircraft factory. The students observed the construction of the Strategic Air Command's B47 and the new Air Force transport, the C-130. The model seen was the first production model of the latter plane. The group also saw a film showing the first test flight of the C-130.

Publicity for Religious Emphasis Week activities will be taken care of by John Califf, Bob Bradley, and Bill Key. Insuring good attendance will be the work of Bruce Cloaninger, George Buck, and Roger Lorelle. Arrangements and entertainment for the visiting religious leaders will be handled by Bob Oliveros, Willis King, Walker Duval, and Richard Freund. Budget details will be under the charge of Earl Liberty, and arrangements for faculty forums will be made by John Gentry.

Committees are at present completing final plans for Religious Emphasis Week. Upon completion, these new plans will be announced.

Concert To Feature The Lighter Side Of Music

Annual Variety Show Planned By Juniors

Officers and representatives of the Junior Class met Monday night of this week to begin preliminary planning of the annual Variety Show. This Variety Show is put on every spring for the purpose of raising money to help defray the expenses of the Junior-Senior Banquet.

The main purpose of the Monday night meeting was the establishing of committees to handle various details of the work connected with the show. Planning of the show and arrangements were put under the charge of Connie Faucett. Class officers and representatives were assigned committees dealing with transportation, publicity, programs, entertainment and advertising.

Committee members will be selected by the committee chairman. The class officers have expressed a wish that all those asked to serve on the committees aid as much as possible, in order to insure a good Junior-Senior Banquet this year.

At present it is planned to have the Variety Show in March. Before then the Junior Class will sponsor the Booby King Contest to raise operating funds.

Clemson To Be Represented At Phi Psi Convention

In conjunction with its own 50th anniversary observance, Gamma chapter, the Lowell Technological Institute affiliate of Phi Psi fraternity, will play host to the 53rd annual national Phi Psi convention in the spring.

The three-day affair will take place Thursday through Saturday, April 14 to 16, at the Hotel Beaconsfield in Brookline. For the first time in Phi Psi history, wives of members will be invited guests, and a special "get-acquainted" tea is planned for them during one of the afternoon programs.

A tour of the L.T.I. campus will be featured on Friday afternoon of the spring weekend, and guest speaker at the closing banquet Saturday evening will be Lowell Tech President Martin J. Lydon, and other distinguished speakers will be presented during the convalescence.

Phi Psi numbers among its members many men prominent in the textile field who are expected to attend the convention. Active chapters are located in Clemson, S. C.; Lowell, New Bedford, and Fall River, Mass.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Raleigh, N. C.; Atlanta, Ga.; Lubbock, Texas, and Auburn, Ala., and alumni chapters in Boston, New York, Providence, R. I., Chicago, Ill., Greenville, S. C., Charlotte, N. C., and Albany, N. Y.

All Phi Psi men are asked to observe the date of the 53rd convention which originally was scheduled for an earlier time.

Concert Band Giving Auditions

Auditions for the Clemson College Concert Band are being held tonight in the College Auditorium from 6 until 7:30. Membership in this organization is open to the entire student body, and offers a chance to the more talented musicians for playing the better music in a concert band repertoire.

The concert band plays several concerts in the spring both on and off campus, some years performing as far distant as Charleston and Columbia. The auditions will be in the form of a simple test to determine the contestants musical ability.

Group Needs Student Backing To Push Ideas

The Student Assembly met for one hour last Wednesday night, January 5. The primary topics of discussion were reports on the recent student government convention and the reports of committees.

Wesley Foundation Host To Converse Student Delegation

A delegation of girls from Converse College presented the program at the regular Wednesday night meeting of the Wesley Foundation, the Methodist student organization. This was the first delegation from Converse to visit the group.

It was announced that elections for Wesley Foundation officers will be held next week. The meeting will be held at six o'clock.

The South Carolina Methodist Student Conference will be held the weekend of February 18-20. The conference will be held at Winthrop College this year. Students wishing to attend should contact the Rev. George Cannon or Miss Sue Henry at the Methodist Church. The cost of the conference will be approximately $5, of which the Wesley Foundation will pay $1.

Two Elected To Fill Vacancies In Alpha Zeta Fraternity Here

At the January 10 meeting of the South Carolina Chapter of Alpha Zeta, national honorary agricultural fraternity, new officers were elected to fill the vacancies made by officers graduating at the end of this semester. James K. Henderson, former Chancellor, and Robert J. Donaldson, former Censor, are the two officers graduating.

Niles C. Clark, Jr., an A. H. Senior, was named the new Chancellor, being promoted from his past position of Scribe. Clyde E. Woodall, VAE Junior, was elected Censor. Chauncey D. Smith, Jr., a dairy senior was chosen to be the new Scribe. At the termination of the election, the new officers were formally installed.

Members of the South Carolina Chapter were told of the Alpha Zeta World War II Memorial Fellowship Award and were urged to compete for this award if their future plans are for graduate work. The fellowship award is for $1,500 to be used in any school of the recipient's choice.

Daily Addresses Extension Men

William C. Dailey, a junior in agriculture from Marlboro County, spoke to extension service personnel and other persons in agriculture Monday, January 10, in Riggs Hall. Dailey was an International Farm Youth Exchange delegate to Scotland from June to November of last year.

In the meeting, Dailey discussed some of his experiences in Scotland and showed color slides of scenes he had seen.

NOTICE!

Master schedules for the second semester are now being released by the registrar's office. Anyone wishing to pick up a master schedule may drop by any time and do so.

It was reported that the Student Assembly proposal to allow Friday sign-out privileges to those who rated weekends, whether they had Saturday classes or not, had not been definitely approved or disapproved. At the last meeting, the Assembly drafted such a proposal and sent it on to be reviewed by the college administration. It was said that the measure had been approved by the deans and directors, but had been voted against by the office of the PMS&T, and that at present the proposal is still before President Poole, who will make the final decision.

The report by the committee on determining the practicability of installing a point system at Clemson to limit club joining gave rise to some discussion. The Student Assembly is considering a system whereby a certain number of points will be allotted each student at Clemson; these points are accumulated by joining different campus organizations and by holding offices in these organizations. For example, a man joining a fraternity will be assigned two or three points; if he is elected vice-president he will be assigned several more points. Each student will be allowed to accumulate only a certain total. If he exceeds this total he will have to resign from enough positions or clubs to bring his point total down to the allowed limit. This system is designed to limit a student's office-holding and club membership so that he can devote more of his time to a few organizations rather than dispersing his participation too thinly over a number of groups.

Discussion of the point-system committee report centered mainly on the provision for club membership. Debate was held to decide whether points would be assigned only for holding office in a club, or also for club membership. The Assembly voted to award points for membership as well as office-holding, with the understanding that office-holding would carry the heavier weight.

Barney Austin, Tillman Johnson, Jim Humphries, and Roger Yike spoke at the beginning of the meeting on the recent student government convention held at Duke University in Durham, N. C. Austin covered the details of the trip, while Johnson took up the projects proposed by the National Student Association. Humphries reported on other discussions, including faculty evaluation projects, point systems, and leadership instruction for office-holders in campus organizations. Yike reviewed the meeting held for editors of college newspapers, in which the point of student government cooperation with newspapers was stressed.

It was suggested and approved at the Student Assembly meeting that a student be appointed to write a weekly column in the TIGER, reporting the activities of the Assembly. The Student Assembly usually meets every other week.

NOTICE!

The Community Chorus will begin practice for the Easter Cantata at 8 o'clock Tuesday night, January 17. The practice will be held in the College Chapel. All members are asked to be present.

Student Assembly Asks For Student Backing

ON page three of this week's TIGER you will find a new editorial column; "Your Student Assembly. This column is to familiarize the students with the actions, plans and proposals of the Student Assembly.

Many students here on the campus don't even realize that a Student Assembly even exists here at Clemson. This week's column will explain to us what the student assembly is, some of the things it has done in the past and a few plans for the future.

In order for our Student Assembly to gain privileges for us they must first have our support. College officials will never recognize this organization unless we, the students, recognize it. Students should be self governed. At many colleges this plan is in effect and is working admirably. Before we can turn ourselves into a self governing body we must take the responsibility of backing our representatives to the hilt.

We Need Your Support

It seems that the TIGER has lost the support of many of the organizations on the campus.

Before Christmas you supported us and cooperated with us in supplying us with material for news.

We like to feel that we are here to help you. Before we can give you any publicity we have to have cooperation from you. This is your newspaper and it is up to you to make it an organ for student activities.

Each organization should appoint or elect a publicity chairman whose duty would be to let the TIGER in on the happenings of your club. In doing this you would be receiving more publicity and you would help us in putting out a better TIGER.

A GUIDE FOR THE DATELESS

With the cost of dating rising higher and higher (seems the only pleasure that costs the same these days is Philip Morris), it is no wonder that so many of us men are turning to discus throwing. Naturally, we would prefer nuzzling warm coeds to flinging cold discs, but who's got that kind of money? Prices being what they are, the average man today has a simple choice: dating or eating.

Unless the average man happens to be Finster Sigafos.

Let me tell you how Finster Sigafos, a man no smarter, no richer, than you or I, solved his dating problem. Finster came to college with the normal ambition of any average man: he wanted to find the prettiest coed on campus and make her his. He looked long and carefully, and at last he found her—a tall job named Kretchma Inskip, with hair like beaten gold.

He asked her for a date. She accepted. He appeared at her sorority house that night, smiling, eager, and carrying a bouquet of modestly priced flowers.

"Now then," said Kretchma, tossing the sleazy flora to a pledge, "where are we going tonight?"

Finster was a man short on cash, but long on ideas. He had prepared several attractive plans for this evening. "How would you like to go out to the Ag campus and see the milking machine?" he asked.

"Ick," she replied. "Well then, how about running over to the dental school to fool with the drills?"

"Bah," she replied. "Well, what would you like to do?" he asked.

"Come," said she, "to a funny little place I know just outside of town."

And away they went.

The place was Millionaires Roost, a simple country inn made of solid ivory. It was filled with beautiful ladies in backless gowns, handsome men in dickeys. Waiters scurried about bearing costly eats on flaming swords. Original Rembrandts adorned the walls. Philip Morris trays adorned the cigarette girls. Chained to each table was a gypsy violinist.

Finster and Kretchma were seated. "I," said Kretchma to the waiter, "will start with shrimps remoulade. Then I will have lobster and capon in madeira sauce with asparagus spears. For dessert I will have loads of out-of-season fruit."

"And you, Sir?" said the waiter to Finster.

"Just bring me a pack of Philip Morris," replied Finster, "for if ever a man needed the soothing, steady, beneficent aromas of mild vintage tobaccos, it is me now."

So, smoking the best of all possible cigarettes, Finster watched Kretchma ingest her meal and calculated that every time her fetching young adam's apple rose and fell, he was out another 97¢. Then he took her home.

It was while saying goodnight that Finster got his brilliant idea. "Listen!" he cried excitedly. "I just had a wonderful notion. Next time we go out, let's go Dutch treat!"

By way of reply, Kretchma slashed him across the face with her house mother and stormed into the house.

"Well, the heck with her," said Finster to himself. "She is just a gold digger and I am well rid of her. I am sure there are many girls just as beautiful as Kretchma who will understand the justice of my position. For after all, girls get as much money from home as men, so what could be more fair than sharing expenses on a date?"

With good heart and high hopes, Finster began a search for a girl who would appreciate the equity of Dutch treat, and you will be pleased to hear that he soon found one.

Today Finster goes everywhere and shares expenses fifty-fifty with Mary Alice Hematoma, a lovely three legged girl with sideburns.

TALK OF THE TOWN

CDA Buys A Better Band For The Coming Dance; New Post Office Open

By JOE McCOWN

CDA PRESENTS

The Central Dance Association of Clemson seems to have really gone all out in their efforts to present us with a big name dance band at the Mid-Winter's Ball. The hiring of the Billy May orchestra is an answer in capital letters to the pleas of the students for that really big week-end. For two years, the same old refrain of "give us a really big name dance band and, we, the students, will support it" has echoed across the campus after every dance week-end. Well, this is the chance that everyone has been waiting for. The CDA has bought into the big time, and possibly into a big time headache, if the green stuff doesn't start to roll in, in oversize amounts.

It is not the intention, or purpose of the CDA to make money. But, like all business organizations, it must stay out of the red, or else. Hence, the big bill ($7.00) for block tickets.

This next dance will be a big test of the Clemson student body's ability to sustain bands of the calibre of the Billy May Orchestra. If the tab for the band and the money taken in balance out, all's well and good; if not, it will be just another one of those sad stories, and the students will have to be content with the Podunk Five, or some such band at the Military Ball. This is called placing the responsibility in the student's collective laps, which, after all, is probably just where it belongs.

The early sale of dance tickets may seem like crossing the proverbial bridge before one comes to it, but actually, there is a method in this seeming madness. By some strange reason, it seems that there will be a bumper crop of top bands floating around in this section of the country with open dates coinciding with that of the Military Ball. So the CDA wants to know, in advance, if their bankroll will be large enough to hire one of them. If these bands are to be engaged, the arrangements must be made ahead of time, for it is said that the early bird gets the worm, or in this case, the band.

If the powers that be would consent to forget some of the parking regulations over this dance week-end, and all others to follow, it might help the students' cause. The students could be allowed to park along the yellow curbs outside of the barracks, and in the administration parking spaces opposite those yellow curbs on the nights of the dance. It doesn't seem possible that this small amount of use would wear out the pavement in those areas. Also, the small parade ground could be opened to student parking on dance nights. This small amount of leniency would save the student's dates the trouble and hazard of traipsing from the far distant corners of the campus to the dance.

OUR POST OFFICE

It really feels great to have a student post office so close that neither rain, sleet nor the dark of night will prevent the troops from performing their sacred duty, namely, that of collecting their own mail from their own personal post box.

The idea of locating the new student post office so close to the students shows that at least a few of the powers up in the big offices had their brains perculating some of the time, which is a good thing to know. I guess that if any orchids are to be given out this week, they should go to the man who thought up the idea of the student P. O.

There is one string attached to the P. O. For some reason, the Federal government doesn't feel too benevolently towards those who deface their property (i.e. attacking your post box with a sledge hammer).

In fact, they might feel so badly about such pranks as to send a few of their hired men down here to escort those enjoying such innocent pleasures to a place known as the pen. This, to say the least, would not be good. In fact, several such trips might spoil a student's good name, to say nothing of the student. So, young man, keep it clean.

There is just one gripe connected with the new P. O. That is the one presented by those men who are leaving here February via the graduation route. It seems that they have to pay a full three months rent, for a box, even though they only expect to be here a few weeks. This seems trivial, but when this expense is added to all of the others connected with graduation, it hurts a man right in his most sensitive place, his pocketbook. It seems that some way could be worked out whereby graduating students could skip this added expense.

A Word To The Wise

By WAYNE DAVIS, Assistant Cadet Chaplain

This would be a wonderful time for me to write a nice scholarly dissertation on the secrets of how to pass examination. I think that the proper method would be to have it published for all to read and consider. However, I am neither a scholar nor the possessor of such profound secrets. Unfortunately there are a few undesirable individuals on our campus who have always considered that they have the "fool-proof" solution. They do not desire to have their method brought to light, for the stigma of such practices is very undesirable.

Yes, it is time for the "night riders" to go to work. They have been loafing all semester. I don't mean by that title those students who are at present burning the midnight oil. These "night riders" (more correctly named "lame brains" or "kindergartners") specialize in burglary and the such. Such crimes carry very severe penalties, but we don't have a detective agency employed full-time to catch those who seek to take the "easy way out."

Any society that is active is able to accomplish much through the pressure of public opinion. If any quizzes or exams are placed in circulation won't you consider it your duty to show the thieves just how big a fool they have been.

There are many positive acts which we can do to make things easier during the next two weeks. If you can't surpass the desire to exercise your lungs just ask your first sergeant to let you call the company out a time or two. Anything will be better than deciding to sound-off after everyone gets to studying.

As Jerry Hammett said last year "If you find yourself looking on someone else's paper for information, be sure to put it in question marks on your own . . . Enter the exam with a clear mind, and leave with a clear conscience . . . If you've never been a man, these exams are a good place to start."

I have always believed that God is just as interested in our activities in the classrooms as those at the Church. He is pulling for you—do your best. Just remember that "the honor you save may be your own."

DON'T GET ME WRONG BUT

Now Is The Time For All Good Men To Study; Country Ladies Coming

By Lawrence Starkey

NOW IS THE TIME

It's caught up with us again! Exam time, that is. A few short weeks ago we were worried about blue slips—or looking forward to getting pink ones.

And then came Christmas! Ah, how many of us absolutely swore to ourselves that we would write that term paper or read that required book during the holidays! But few did, I'll wager.

So now our gay collegiate attitude has been disturbed. We'll just have to lay our charcoal suits aside for a couple of week-ends and burn the midnight oil.

And when we get knee deep in reviewing what some of us have never read in the first place, we'll undoubtedly promise ourselves, "Next semester I'll read every lesson day by day." Then we can add these to a long, long list of "Famous last words."

Note: This is not to be taken by my professors as my general attitude toward their respective subjects.

COUNTRY LADIES?

This is the last semester that Clemson College will be a School for Country Gentlemen only. The old institution will be open to Country Ladies (sound peculiar?) in only a few weeks. It's really an astounding realization when you think about it.

Yes, for next semester about ten fair maidens will grace our presence and brighten up the institutional grind. It will be interesting to see to what extent they'll fall into the college pattern. The first club or organization to accept girls will surely be one of the most popular.

SEEN AND HEARD

Seen—"No cars allowed beyond this point! $5.00 fine for violation."

Heard—The fire department has keys to each of the roads leading to the quadrangles. Last week's cartoon was good, though.

NEW ENVIRONMENT

We of the Tiger Staff are enjoying the comfort of our new environment tonight—on the top floor of the Student Activity Center.

It's just another factor that makes us realize the pace at which Clemson has changed. It's just another one of those conveniences that you want to thank someone for—but you don't know who to thank.

GOLDEN DAYS

Have you ever had someone tell you in almost a threatening tone, "You'd better enjoy your college days; they'll be the best days you'll ever have"? I have. And of course I took it like we all take most elderly advice.

When you come to think of it, however, the first semesters of college have passed mightily quickly. Maybe there's something to what they say.

This is the last semester for many students. I never thought I'd be thinking this, but I'm glad it's not mine.

I'm not advocating the shallow "Enjoy-yourself; it's-later-than-you-think" philosophy, but I do think we could all put more college activities into our college life.

DISCO-PA-TION

By Mack McDaniel

Here are the facts: Billy May's band is one of the finest in the world and they will be at the next dance. It will be a great experience to hear this great group, so if you like a good dance and gone music (and anyone who's human does), don't fail to be at the dance.

The band will be under the capable direction of Sam Donahue. We know that the dance will be a success but lets make it a bigger success. This will mean that we can have more great bands at Clemson.

Have you heard the latest from Skip Williams and his gine trio? It's called Lovers Like to Sit Together. Man, this is ridiculous.

Discovery Record Company released a terrific Gillespie album several years ago. The title: Dizzy Gillespie Plays and Johnny Richards Conducts. On this recording, Dizzy's playing is fabulous and the backing by Richards is beyond anything else of its kind.

To quote the comments of Richard Bock on the album cover "These recordings are the result of a strong desire on Dizzy's part to portray his true feeling, and on Johnny's part to write scores which fit and compliment Dizzy. We feel that these records capture a rare mood—that of showing an artist off to his best advantage amidst handsome surroundings.

The songs were picked to present Dizzy in various moods. Notice how each composition has a different approach giving Dizzy opportunity for much colorful expression, and how the excellent woodwind section added much beauty to the overall picture. Especially listen to the depth of feeling in their moving interpretation of Alone Together from the show "Flying Colors".

The album includes such songs as Swing Low Sweet Chariot, Lullaby of the Leaves, Million Dollar Baby, What is There to Say, Alone Together, The Things I Love, On the Alamo, and Interlude in C.

Dizzy may not be what the strict modernist calls a great musician but some of us get our kicks from playing and understand his concept and beautiful expressions. His style? Call it "bop" if you wish but it certainly leaves all other music called "bop" in the shadows.

Two Clemson graduates (former Jangleer members) were in New York's wonderful haven for jazz fans (Birdland) listening to Dizzy in one of his many engagements at this nightclub. After he played a set and sat down at his table, they strolled over and asked him where he was from originally and he said, "I'm from Cheraw, Man!"

RCA Victor has lowered its high standards and is putting out a series of records on the "Camden" label and selling them for quite low prices (12 inch LP for $1.98). They advertise "Acclaimed performances of popular and classical music by world famous artists". The orchestras: Century Symphony, Centennial Symphony, Stratford Symphony, etc.

The truth is that these orchestras don't even exist. The records sound like copies of old, low fidelity 78 RPM records from RCA's old catalog. It would be better to stay away from such "bar-gains".

Vet's Corner

Q. I am a disabled veteran attending law school under Public Law 16. After I finish my classroom work, would I be allowed to take a bar review course, also under Public Law 16?

A. Yes. Review courses are permitted under Public Law 16, but they must be bona fide review courses and not merely a repetition of the course previously taken.

Q. I have a GI endorsement insurance policy from World War II. After the endorsement matures, how will I receive the money?

A. You will have a choice. You may elect to receive payment either in a lump sum or in specified number of monthly installments.

Q. I served in the WAC during World War II, and have been holding a GI insurance policy ever since. I expect to get married next month. Does VA want proof of my marriage—such as a photostat of the marriage certificate—in order to change the name on my policy?

A. No, it's not necessary. All you need do is write a letter, over your signature, requesting that your name be changed in VA's records.

(Veterans living in this area who wish further information about their benefits should write to VA Regional Office, 1801 Assembly Street, Columbia, S. C., or see their County Service Officer.

Q. May a veteran take Korean GI training in a school outside the United States?

A. Yes, provided he enrolls in a VA-approved course in an accredited college or university.

Q. I am taking flight training under the Korean GI Bill. Because of bad weather, I did not receive any instruction at all last month. Will I get my VA allowance all the same?

A. No. Flight trainees do not receive GI allowances for any month during which they received no instruction.

Q. I am planning to take a car-entry course under the Korean GI Bill. It is being offered by a school that requires a predominance of shop work. How many hours a week would I have to go to be considered a full-time student?

A. Full-time training in a trade course requiring shop practice is at least 30 hours a week for at least five days a week, with no more than two and one-half hours of rest periods each week.

Q. I was separated from service in May, 1952. What is my deadline for starting training under the Korean GI Bill?

A. Your deadline comes in May, 1955—exactly three years from the date of your separation from active service.

(Veterans living in this area who wish further information about their benefits should write the VA Regional Office, 1801 Assembly Street, Columbia, S. C., or see their County Service Officer.

Christophers Sponsor TV Script Writing Contest

The Christophers, a voluntary organization which sponsors a series of television program films appearing on 256 TV stations weekly and promoting simple religious principles in everyday life and business, have announced a TV story writing contest open to all college students.

Entries should be submitted in the form of basic stories of about 1000 words from which a professional script writer can develop a dramatization. Subjects from which the contestant may choose are: "Teenagers Can Shape the Future," "Improving Labor Relations," "Earnings and Property, the Right of All," and "Changing the World Through the Housewife."

Nineteen prizes are offered totaling $4,000. First prize is $1,000, second prize $750, third prize $500, and fourth prize $250. Also 5 prizes of $100 each will be awarded. The closing date of the contest is March 31, 1955.

The contestant should keep in mind as he writes his story that the winning stories must have sufficient dramatic interest to appeal to the general TV audience and each story should reflect powerful motivation that springs from love of God and others rather than mere protection of self.

Mrs. Cole Is Perfect Hostess For Lounge

By Lawrence Starkey

Students wandering through the student lounge these days see not only the modernistic furniture and paintings, but also a very charming added attraction, a new hostess. Many students have already met her, and have discovered her fine personality and friendly manner.

She is Mrs. Margaret Cole and likes to be called by her nickname—"Peg". Mrs. Cole has lived in Clemson for four months. She moved here from Aiken, South Carolina, but calls Charlotte, North Carolina her home.

Her husband is connected with the Uteal-Mohawk mill near Clemson. One of their two daughters is a sophomore at Carolina and the other is married.

Academically, Mrs. Cole attended business school in Charlotte, some courses at Carolina, and is very interested in taking some at Clemson.

She is active in the Order of the Eastern Star and is a member of the Baptist Church. All of Mrs. Cole's previous work has been in contact with people, but this is the first time she has been associated to any great extent with students.

She is surely suited to get along with men, however, and understands their problems well. She smilingly said, "I have always worked in an office around a multitude of men, and I was the only girl in a family of six children."

"Peg" declares that she wants to get to know everyone personally and just be one of the gang. She is now developing a system to try to learn all our names. Mrs. Cole laughingly admits and delights in the fact that boys are already calling her "Ma".

She relates that the most amusing thing that has happened yet, occurred when she was showing some women visitors the Chapel and a boy came prancing down the hall in nothing but a towel wrapped around himself. She reminds the students that visitors are often in this section at all times.

We surely welcome and are looking forward to knowing better our new hostess, Mrs. Cole.

COMMERCIAL EDUCATION

The third grade teacher carefully explained that a group of sheep is a flock and a group of quail is a bevy. Then she asked for the names of groups of other animals.

When she came to camels, a child timidly suggested, "A cartoon."

Your Student Assembly

By Niles C. Clark

The Student Assembly, legislative body of the Student Government at Clemson, is your Student Assembly. Its primary purpose is to represent you, the student, in the Student Government. The Student Assembly is composed of five class representatives from each class and twenty representatives from the Council of Club Presidents.

The Student Assembly is interested in your welfare and is constantly on the job to alleviate student problems. Presently up for consideration by the Assembly are several bills.

One resolution has been passed by the Assembly and sent to the Administration for further consideration. This resolution, if passed by the Administration, would give long weekend leave privileges to juniors and seniors, as is now the policy, with equality, regardless of whether the said students had Saturday classes or not. This resolution was passed by the Assembly because the present long weekend leave policy was felt unfair to juniors and seniors who could not avoid having a Saturday class.

Another proposal which is now being considered by a committee has to do with the number of campus organizations to which a student can belong, and also the number of offices which a student may hold. The proposal would limit this by awarding a specified number of points for each organization to which belonged and office held by a student, and limiting the allowable points to a specified number. This point system, by limiting the offices which could be held and the clubs which could be joined, would 1. promote student interest in the clubs of which he was a member by allowing him more time to work with his clubs, and 2. enable more persons to be officers in the different clubs thus being in a position to exercise more leadership and get more from their college career.

In the past, the Student Assembly has done much to promote the interest of Clemson students. One of the outstanding projects of the Assembly was the substitution of a civilian guard detail for the regular cadet guards during examinations. The Assembly has looked into many other student problems and has at least tried to solve them.

By talking your problems over with your class representative and asking him to present the problem before the Assembly, you will be doing yourself, your fellow students, and Clemson College a big favor.

Express your views on proposals up before the Assembly for study, and he will be able to do a better job of representing you in the Student Government.

CLOTHES MAKE THE MAN

As the Tigers took the court against the Maryland Terrapins last Saturday night, one could not help but notice the contrast in the way that the players were attired. The Maryland basketballers were neatly attired in new looking uniforms that really gleamed in the Old Liner colors. The team looked sharp not only in performance, but in dress as well.

The Tigers, much to our chagrin, did not present as striking an appearance. They wore the same old uniforms that they have worn for the past five years. Mind you, I'm not inferring that the Tigers have poor uniforms; I'm only stating that I think the basketball aggregation ought to get new uniforms once in a while. When a team puts in an appearance in faded uniforms, they just don't look as good to the fans, regardless of their performance.

I think that the athletic association could afford to live the teams new "unis" to play in. I certainly feel that they deserve them. It would sure brighten things up a bit for McFadden's boys and who knows—it might even have an effect on the won-lost column.

CANTEEN QUIBBLES

Certain students have expressed concern over the prices that are now being charged by the canteen. The canteen is operated by the athletic association of the college and the profits go to the association.

The main question of concern is "should the canteen be a profit-making organization? and if so, how large a profit should it need make?" Many other schools have canteens operating at expense. This enables the students to get more for their money and also urges on a greater volume of trade. A small profit would not be too bad for the canteen, but many students fail to see the need of the athletic association using the canteen as one of its principal sources of revenue.

One canteen that operates on a cost plus system is the Varsity, located at the University of Georgia in Athens. At the Varsity, students can buy a hotdog for a dime, hamburger for fifteen cents, milkshakes for fifteen cents and pimento cheese sandwiches for a dime. Even at such prices, the Varsity reports that it operates on a profit-making basis. That's not hard to realize when one sees the students trading there.

It therefore seems strange to many students that the canteen prices at Clemson are as high as they are. Of course, just opening a new canteen there may be certain expenses of which the students know nothing and if this is the case at Clemson, then we have only to wait until these initial expenses have been defrayed.

One thing about the canteen that everyone appreciates is the service. All of the workers are doing a top flight job and it's wonderful to have a canteen now such as we have here at Clemson. We're proud of it.

SWIMMERS ON THE MARCH AGAIN

Once more, Coach Tom McHugh's boys have come through. Friday the swimmers put another victory under their belts as they downed the Wofford College swimming team at Spartanburg.

By blsating the Terriers, the Tigers greatly enhanced their shares of winning the state tank title. The Citadel and Carolina are the only obstacles left in the aqua Tiger's path.

Hanckel, Hawes and Carter again looked superb. Clemson exhibited depth and superb performance in rolling to their third tank victory of the season.

TENNIS PRACTICE ROLLS RIGHT ALONG

Though tennis season does not officially open until March 25, activity is fast and heavy on the Field House courts. The charges of Hoke Sloan have been working out every day improving forehand and backhand, stroking and service.

Khin Si, Clemson's wonder boy, continues to dazzle the spectators with his speed and blazing serve, is improving rapidly. Chandler Kinsey, Angus Lander, and Bill Seabrook are also rapping that old onion in practice session.

Hoke's "soph whizzes" Terry Wise, Eddie Scarpa, Don Mitchell, and Chris Thees are also doing their share of tennis work in the practice sessions.

Coach Sloan says that this year's team has great possibilities and hopes that the won-lost record will be better than last year even with the more rugged schedule.

MORE ORCHIDS FOR BILLY

Bill Yarborough continues to draw the plaudits of the scribes and mentors as the season rolls along. In the Maryland encounter, Bill hit the hoop for 333 points to boost his points per game average to 28.8. He was hitting on all cylinders as the Tigers gave the highly favored Terps a run for their money in the Saturday contest.

Bill's performance came against a team noted for its defensive abilities. Maryland leads the ACC in defense thus far this year and ranks high nationally in that department. Yarborough, however, penetrated the Maryland defenses like a sieve as he poured his 33 points through. A new individual record against the Terps this year.

At the conclusion of the contest, the Maryland coach remarked that Yarborough was the best basketball player to face the Terps thus far this year. Bill continues to come through in the clutches for the Tigers.

Yarborough Off As Average Points Per Game Hits New Low Mark Of 28.2 Points

By Bill Linton

The Clemson Tigers dropped a pair of basketball games this week, but in doing so showed promise of greater things to come. The Tigers lost to the Maryland Terrapins on Saturday night and to the Duke Blue Devils on Tuesday night in keeping their conference goose egg record intact. Though defeated, the Tigers showed the two aggregations, two of the finest quintets in the ACC, tough battles in both encounters. Billy Yarborough again led the Tigers in scoring in both of the contests.

Clemson's scrappy Tigers gave the highly touted Maryland Terrapins a hard time until the Terps began to hit from the outside. The Terps held a slim 1 point lead at half time, 35-34, but at the start of the third period scored six points before the Tigers got the range. Clemson could never overcome this deficit. The final score in the Atlantic Coast Conference contest was 71-63.

Bill Yarborough took no heed of the defense thrown up to stop him by Coach Bub Milliken's powerful Terps as he netted 33 points. The Terrapins, stumped by the Walhalla flash's favorite jump shot in a tight man to man defense, saw him switch his tactics to set shooting. He had an accuracy of 44%, hitting on 12 of 27 shots from the floor.

While Yarborough was keeping the Tigers in the game on offense, the Bengals threw up a very effective zone defense that kept the Terps from getting in close for easy shots.

Clemson led almost the entire first half until the last few seconds. Robert O'Brien, whose long shots were a thorn in the side of the Tigers all night, hit a two handed set shot to give the Terps a 23-22 advantage. Bob Keesler kept the Terrapins on the move when he hit for eight of Maryland's next ten points to allow them to maintain a slight 35-34 intermission lead.

Bob Everett, the Terps big gun in the scoring department, was unable to crack the Tigers' defense so Keesler took over and led the Terrapins in this department. Keesler got in close enough times to collect 31 points and lead the Terps in scoring. 15 of these came in the second half. The Terps,

Frosh Defeat Camden Academy; Yockel, Reamer Hit For 25

Paced by the twenty-point performance of Carl Reamer and Vince Yockel, the Cub basketeers defeated Camden Military Academy Tuesday night, 96-68. The Cubs led all the way, holding a halftime margin 38-33 and pulling away in a last half spurt.

Carl Reamer paced the opening half, gaining 18 points. Vince Yockel showed his best form in the second stanza as he pumped in 20 points to lead the closing rush of the Cubs.

In the closing minutes, five members of the freshman team took the floor and mauled the opposition. Their inspired blocking and running gained great acclaim from the refs and much amusement for the spectators. Gene Crocker made his quarter-back sneak for a first and ten under the Clemson goal. Crocker, having performed well, was subsequently removed from the contest. Bill Barbary with 10 points and Jack Bush with 8 paced the footballers.

But Johnny Dodd of Clemson gathered scoring honors for the night. The former Brooklyn-Cayce flash tossed in 27 points in a losing cause.

The summary:
Camden (68)—Price 17, Strong, Henry 9, Hamby, Askins 4, Knight, Dodd 27, Boonenbers, Kitch 11, Roddy.
Clemson (96)—Reamer 25, Muncieff, Bush 8, Martin 7, Burgess, Crocker, Williams 10, Clement, Steinbrecher, Fisher 4, Yockel 25, Barbary 7, Stoops, Few, Simmons 10, Yeary.

Bill Yarborough Top Contender In Nation For Scoring Honors

By Frank Richardson

"First cage All American from Clemson since Banks McFadden!" That's what the troops are saying about Bill Yarborough.

And the way things look now, Bill is one of the top contenders for U. S. Dream Team honors. He is top man in the ACC and is ranking fourth in the nation in averaging 25 points per game.

Bill started his hardwood career at Walhalla, playing four years of varsity ball. His senior year he led the Walhalla quintet to All State Class A championship. Bill had an average of 25 points in his final prep season.

Yarborough was named to the Upper State squad in the annual All State title the following summer. He led the scoring to spark his team to victory. Bill was selected as the most valuable player for his performance.

Bill was not limited to basketball in high school. A stand-out in three years of football, Bill was side-lined his senior year due to an injury. The married Yarborough is an excellent baseball player, seeing semi-pro action with Chicopee during summers.

Bill was used sparingly in 16 games his freshman year, hitting 120 points for a 7.5 average. As a soph, Bill, not seeing action in the first half of the season, played in nine games, scoring 110 points for a 15.7 average.

This year has seen Bill come into his own. He has hit 102 goals for 42.3 percent, averaging 28.2 points per game in nine games. He shows up well on defense, snatching 40 rebounds so far this year. Always a team man, Bill consistently feeds the ball to somewhat less accurate mates.

Although the Tigers have not yet hit their stride, we can look forward to a greatly improved team in the future, and we will see Bill Yarborough, one of the nation's best, to lead them.

BONNIE BANKS

McFadden Well Liked Coach; One Of Schools Top Athletes

By Frank Richardson

For more than a decade now, Clemson men have been able to point to an individual and say "Clemson has produced as fine an athlete as any school has ever produced. He will take his place among the college all-time football greats everywhere."

We can say this because this individual is Banks McFadden, present basketball mentor here at Tiger town.

BANKS MCFADDEN

Young McFadden came to Clemson in the Fall of 1936 on an athletic scholarship. He was placed at end and became an excellent pass receiver. His six foot three inch frame enabled him to handle center on the freshman basketball team with remarkable prowess. Although lacking previous experience, he reported for track and became outstanding in several field events.

Banks was moved to wingback the start of his sophomore year. Seeing only limited action, he gained 183 yards in 31 attempts and punted for an average of 41 yards in 17 tries.

In 1938, he switched to tailback and netted 342 yards in 66 carries. He completed 10 of 20 passes for 169 yards and punted 29 times for a 39 yard average. McFadden became a terror to opponents his senior year and led his team to a 6-3 victory over Boston College in the Cotton Bowl. Tiger fans saw him total 436 yards running in 72 carries, complete 29 of 67 passes and average 42 yards punting.

Banks still retains the honor of being the only South Carolina football player to be named to every major all American team.

He was one of the stars in the annual Chicago All Star game the following August, and in his one year of professional football he finished second in the league in ground gaining in compiling the highest rushing average in the National Football League.

McFadden's fame was just as great on the basketball court and came faster to the exceptional small town competitor. As a sophomore, he turned a poor Clemson basketball team into a winner which advanced to the Southern Conference Tournament Finals. Banks was a unanimous choice for all Southern on the strength of his all around play.

In the 1939 tournament his junior year, Clemson upset all favorites in winning the conference championship. McFadden repeated as unanimous all Southern choice and was named first team All American by Chuck Taylor's group and the Helms Foundation. He is the only South Carolina athlete to be so honored in history.

His senior year McFadden was late reporting for basketball because of the Cotton Bowl, but his post New Year's showing enabled Clemson to again rate the Southern Conference Tournament bid. Though the Tigers were eliminated early, McFadden was named first team All Southern for the third straight year.

Just as he is regarded to be the outstanding football and basketball player in South Carolina collegiate history, he still rates as the finest all around track star to be produced by the Palmetto state. His junior year, McFadden averaged 11 points per meet in competing as high and low hurdler, broad jumper, javelin thrower, and 100 yard dashman.

The following year he dropped the javelin and the 100 yard dash for the discus and shot put and increased his point average to 22 points a meet. He ended his collegiate career in a blaze of glory, setting state track records in the 120 hurdles (14.6 seconds), 220 low hurdles (23.9 seconds), the broad jump (23 feet 3 3/4 inches). These marks still stand today after 13 state meets in which they might have been broken. Also in

"Oh, my aching back!" This statement about sums up the feelings of the eighteen men who were newly named to Block C membership. In the above photo Rogers Cobb and Charlie Bussey can be seen on the receiving line while several of the old members "dish it out." The initiation sessions are held right after dinner and will continue all through this week.

Athletic Ability Honored; 18 Initiated Into Block C

By Bill Leitner

The Clemson Block C Club is now in the process of receiving eighteen new members into the club. The members are undergoing a thorough initiation as the above photo will bear out. These boys were chosen for membership as a result of their having won a block letter in some sport at Clemson. The initiation will take place all week.

Eighteen new members are being initiated into the Block "C" Club this week. The "Cubs" are made up of athletes who have earned their first letter in a major sport and Senior managers of the major athletic teams.

The initiation lasts all week and follows the usual Clemson tradition of cigar boxes and paddles. Missing this year is the famous "last night" of the past when all sorts of pranks were played on the initiates. The "Cubs" are re-as the initiation project and will modeling the clubroom this week decorate it for a dance to be held Friday night. "The Flames" will provide the music.

The new members are baseballers Leonard Humphries, Lonnie Shealy, and Charley Blackstone; and footballers Joel Wells, Jim Coleman, Billy Hudson, Dick Marazza, Willie Smith, H. B. Brumpton, Dick DeSimone, Johnny Tice, Charlie Bussey, Frank Griffith, and Neuf Ankuta. Senior football managers Mac Fleming and Earl Herndon are also among the new members as are tracksters Roger Cobb and Miles Carter.

Tanksters Meet USC In Y Pool Saturday; Seek Fourth Win

By Louis Jordan

The Clemson swimming team is continuing its winning ways as the season rolls on. Coach McHugh's boys have been improving with every meet and all things are pointing toward a possible state championship for the terrible tankmen.

There is a bright outlook for the future of the Clemson Tiger swimming team. Coach Tom McHugh has had records set and a host of victories by his 1954-55 tanksters. After returning from the holidays the boys found it hard to get back into shape for their post-Christmas meet with the Wofford Terrier team. Although there were no fast heats, the Tiger boys came out on top 62-20.

The captains of the team, "Rusty" Hawes of Utica, N. Y., and Frank Hinkel of Charleston, S. C., are both swimming for their last year. So far this season they have both done exceptionally well and are improving daily. "Rusty", who specializes in the 100 and the 150 yard dashes, is proving his reliability each meet. Hinkel is the big gun in the 220 but swims the 100 yard dash with "Rusty".

Along side Hawes in the 100 and 150 yard dash is Mack Hendee. Mack has not had too much experience, but has come a long way in knocking seconds of his top speed in his category. Mack hails from Jacksonville, Florida.

Dick Carter, of Savannah, Georgia, carries the team in the 150 individual medley along with Jack Langston, of Hartsville, S. C. Dick has the 200 yard backstroke and also the honor of being anchorman on the 400 yard relay. Langston holds down the 200 yard breaststroke division.

Wesley Millard is the key man in the 220 yard slot after breaking the record for this event. "Wes" is from Sumter, S. C., and had a little experience before his time here at Clemson. He also has great possibilities in the 440 field.

"Wes" New of Greenville, S. C. is a newcomer to the Tigers and has shown great possibilities for much help in the 100 yard dash and the 300 yard medley relay; also the 440 yard freestyle.

In the 100 yard backstroke is West Summers from Orangeburg, S. C. Another of his events is the 300 yard medley relay. He is proficient in both classes. Joel Porcher was a swimmer last year but this year he has been converted to a diver due to the fact that there were no boys to come out for this part of the pool activities. He has greatly improved from his first day on the boards for the Tigers and is now very good.

The last member of the ten man Tiger team is Bonum Wilson, who comes from Charleston along with Porcher and Hinkel. Wilson swims with Carter in the 200 yard backstroke division and works the freestyle department.

If these boys get together to win their meets with the University of South Carolina and The Citadel they have the state championship in the bag.

This coming Saturday at 4 p. m. the Tigers meet the U. S. C. down at the pool in the basement of the Y. M. C. A. There is room for spectators in the balcony over the pool. So far there has been little interest among the students here at Clemson for swimming. If interest were aroused there might be possibilities for a new indoor pool for Clemson. If the swimming team is going to continue to thrive, then there will have to be some new facilities. Besides the sports angle, there is the fact there are going to be co-eds who like to swim.

The summary:
300 yd. med. relay—Hammond (W), Jefferies (W), Summers (C) 3:48.8.

60 yd. dash—Hawes (C), Hendee (C), Jefferies (W) 0:31.9.

220 yd. dash—Millard (C) Hinkel (C) Greene (W) 2:34.7.

120 yd. ind. medley—Carter (C), Wilson (C), Hammond (W) 1:23.5.

Diving—Porcher (C) 223.9 pts. Northern (W).

100 yd. dash — Hendee (C), Hawes (C), Summers (W) 0:59.8.

200 yd. backstroke—Carter (C), Wilson (C), Penny (W) 2:36.5.

200 yd. breaststroke—Langston (C), Jefferies (W), Oakman (W) 3:06.6.

440 yd. freestyle—New (C), Hollis (W) 6:03.0.

400 relay (Clemson)—Porcher, Wilson, Langston, Hinkel.

Carl Reamer Is One Of McFadden's Outstanding Frosh

By Tom Washington

Benjamin Franklin was born in Philadelphia and brought hope to the American people when they needed it most. Carl Reamer was also born in Philadelphia and from all present indications he and Vince Yockel of the Clemson Baby Basketeers are the one hope of despairing Coach Banks McFadden.

Reamer has paced the freshmen to victory against Western Carolina and Georgia and was the bright light in the Tigers defeat at the hands of North Greenville Junior College. His deadly hook shots and outstanding floor play have labelled Reamer for greater things in the future for Clemson's presently ailing basketball forces. Even with defeats at the hands of a good many foes this year, Coach McFadden can look at his freshmen and smile.

Reamer moved to Seattle, Washington and lived there until he was fifteen. He then moved back to Philadelphia. It was there that he rated the plaudits of all Philadelphia prep basketball followers. While playing for Mastbaum High in Philadelphia, Reamer was named sixth best player in the city of Philadelphia. He played varsity basketball his whole high school career and was captain of the Mastbaum basketballers his last two years.

Under the tutelage of Coach Gilbert Bancroft, Reamer improved every year at his center position until he drew raves from many college scouts, who sought to draw him into their basketball service. Being chosen sixth best player in Philadelphia is a much bigger honor than it would at first appear. Philadelphia is rated by many as the basketball capital of the nation, and turns out many great hardwood boys every year.

Reamer was not only outstanding as a basketball player. He played varsity baseball for two years and was captain of the team during his last year. He was rated by his coaches as one of the greatest athletes to ever come out of Mastbaum High.

His talents were not confined to the athletic field, either. Reamer was a leader in his high school from the very beginning. He served on the student council at Mastbaum as vice president of the student body during his last two years in high school. His classmates thought enough of him to name him president of the senior class and one of the senior superlatives at Mastbaum. He held the chairmanship to several committees at Mastbaum. Among which were the dance, budget, athletic, decoration, social, yearbook, and welfare committees.

ENGINEERS or PHYSICS GRADUATES

To those interested in advanced academic study while associated with important research and development in industry, Hughes offers two separate practical programs:

HUGHES COOPERATIVE FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

for Master of Science Degrees

HOW TO APPLY

A program to assist outstanding individuals in studying for the Master of Science Degree while employed in industry and making contributions to important military work. Open to students who will receive the B.S. degree in Electrical Engineering, Physics or Mechanical Engineering during the coming year, and to members of the Armed Services honorably discharged and holding such B.S. degrees. As many as 100 Fellowships will be awarded each year.

Candidates must meet entrance requirements for advanced study at the University of California at Los Angeles or the University of Southern California. Participants will work full time during the summer in the Hughes Laboratories and 25 hours per week while pursuing a half-time schedule of graduate study at the university.

Salary is commensurate with the individual's ability and experience. Tuition, admission fees and books for university attendance are provided. Provision is made to assist in paying travel and moving expenses from outside Southern California.

For the Hughes Cooperative Fellowship Program: Address all correspondence to the Committee for Graduate Study

University of Southern California University of California at Los Angeles

THE HOWARD HUGHES FELLOWSHIPS

in Science and Engineering

HOW TO APPLY

Eligible for these Fellowships are those who have completed one year of graduate study in physics or engineering. Successful candidates must qualify for graduate standing at the California Institute of Technology for study toward the degree of Doctor of Philosophy or post-doctoral work. Fellows may pursue graduate research in the fields of physics or engineering. During summers they will work full time in the Hughes Laboratories in association with scientists and engineers in their fields.

Each appointment is for twelve months and provides a cash award of not less than $2,000, a salary of not less than $2,500, and $1,500 for tuition and research expenses. A suitable adjustment is made when financial responsibilities of the Fellow might otherwise preclude participation in the program. For those coming from outside the Southern California area provision is made for moving and transportation expenses.

New Telephone System Begins

Company B-1 produced the neatest squad in the regiment in the contest held last Saturday morning during inspection. Company B-1, hot in the race for best company, is commanded by Cadet Captain Mike Ashmore of Greenville. The squad aligns itself to be inspected. Left to right they are: Cadet Sgt. W. K. Conner,

McCormick, Privates James F. Ballew, Tryon, N. C., Joseph M. Bramlette, Greenville; Kenneth J. Locker, Fairlawn, New Jersey; Fred H. York, Allendale, L. J. LaMarche, Bohamou, Gene R. Kinard, Fairfax, and Cdt. Cpl. Louis C. Derrick. (TIGER photo by Bob Huey.)

Officials To Be At Opening

The new dial and PBX (private branch exchange) telephone system here will be put into use Saturday at 2:30 p. m., according to college and Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph officials.

Dr. R. F. Poole, president of Clemson, will make the first call using the new system. He will contact Dr. Robert M. Cooper, chairman of the Clemson board of trustees, at Wisacky.

Southern Bell officials and workmen have been installing equipment now for several months. The telephone company has spent approximately $75,000 for the necessary equipment.

Altogether, there will be 200 working telephones, including 90 lines and 110 stations with an unlimited capacity for future expansion. The switchboard at the present will have 10 trunk lines leading into it. The entire system will have 1,860,190 conductor feet of wire and cable.

Among the Southern Bell officials who will be on hand for the ceremonies are T. Y. Wood of Seneca, plant manager of the Seneca office; Hubert C. Estes, Seneca, group manager of the Seneca office; and H. T. Thompson, plant manager at Anderson. Other officials from the Greenville, Anderson and Seneca offices have been invited.

The operator of the switchboard will constitute the "information center" for the entire college, including personnel and students. There will be available at the switchboard a locator file of administrative personnel, including department heads, faculty members, Extension workers, Experiment Station workers, officers and other employees.

Another feature is that intracollege "conferences" may be held with as many as five people participating. The PBX operator will also have a locator file for each student including daily class schedule, room number and other such information.

There will be a continuous service from the switchboard from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a. m. to 12 noon Saturday. The board will

Better Start Studying Because Examinations Are Coming Soon

By Pick Collins

The smell of printer's ink is once again in the air as semester exams are being run off the press. At the mere mention of exams most boys seem to flinch and a few get sick on the stomach. Then there are the "brains" that grin shyly and remind themselves that come exam time they won't be "sweating" it. And lastly there are those who can't pass anyway, so they sit back, light a cigarette and start making plans for great things next semester.

Within the folds of these little words on the exam papers lie the fate of the "border-line" kids. Here are the boys that are most concerned with the outcome of exams. If they can really get in a good good frame of mind before the exam they can cram more knowledge in that little brain than they ever thought possible. Unfortunately, a lot of students do resort to "cramming" the night before and it usually turns out that they are sorry the night after. You've just got to know your cramming limit.

It's possible that profs dread exams as much as students do. They have to think these things up and correct them. It takes an uncanny mind and a lot of time to think up some tests that have come out. All the students have to do is fill in a few answers—but that's the catch to the whole deal. It seems possible, since both parties concerned have an unfavorable outlook toward exams, that some sort of peace treaty could be drawn up.

One inspiring thought to all is the fact that you don't have to take exams. An average amount of study during the term produces good grades, and if the grades are good enough you are exempted. This is a healthy proposition as it inspires most boys to strive for a good average. Some people think that all students should be made to take all exams—that it's good practice. The experience of knowing how to take an exam is valuable, but for the ones who keep an A average during the semester it would probably be just one more duck in the pot. One prof remarked that he was not in favor of exempting A students because he did not have their good papers to look forward to when grading the exams.

To whom it may concern: This is not a sermon, but it's high time most of us got on the ball to start studying for these finals. They'll slip up on you like an old grey fox, and before you know it you'll be stepping in the class room for that exam. It won't break her little heart if you don't go home this weekend and Dad can send you that money. The weekend has been used for studying. And think of the way Mom will get all excited when she sees the good record that her "Invincible Hercules" has posted.

There are eight days left.

General Richard E. Werner, Commandant of Cadets at Clemson College and PMS&T reviews the Corps of Cadets for the last time at Clemson. General Werner leaves later on this month to take over command of the Georgia Military District with headquarters in Atlanta, Georgia. (TIGER photo by Bob Huey.)

'55 Taps Theme Features Changing Campus Life

By Dan Richards

This year's Taps, annual publication of the campus, is attempting to present the happenings of the school year in an entirely different manner from that which they have employed in the past.

The 1955 edition of the Taps will be centered around the idea of the changing campus scene.

The staff is striving to bring about a clear cut picture of the contemporary living conditions we now have. This is being achieved by the substitution of "abstract photography", contemporary art work, and color schemes for conventional methods.

All sections of the Taps are being remodeled so as to adequately represent the new phase of student life on the campus.

There are nine major divisions in the annual this year. Some of them are: the opening, administration, features, publications, military organization, the different organizations of the college, etc.

The staff is striving to cut down on unnecessary "bulk". This will be one of the new modes presented this year.

With the changing of the style, the Taps will be a leader in its field. There has been a trend in the past few years to "outgrow" old tradition and to "form new ones. With this trend in mind the Taps staff set about the task of "remodeling" traditions and keeping up with the new ones formed in the last two or three years by faculty members and students alike.

Since the first year book was published around 1927, it has been acclaimed as one of the most progressive and up-to-date college annuals in the country.

Although the cover of the new annual is a closely guarded secret, it, too, is reflecting the modernist trend of the Clemson of today. For the first time, the cover is being designed and painted by a student.

Although the Taps was not published during the Second World War, it has received numerous awards since its re-birth in 1947. For three years, the annual won the award All-American and has not received a rating lower than first place since.

Most students do not realize just how much the cost of publication per issue is. On the average, the cost per issue is approximately $26,000. Although it is an expensive project, the student price is kept to a bare minimum.

This year's staff is really doing a fine job and is keeping well on schedule. Included on this year's staff are: Ab Allen, editor-in-chief; John Gasque, associate editor; Mac Chapman, business manager; L. D. Tankersly, director of design; Hugh Patrick, sports editor; Dave Sherer, classes editor; Joe Dunn, features editor; Alan Connor, literary editor; Bob Shirley, organizations editor; Jim Gallowsay, military editor; Smith Hinant, advertising editor; Jack Bennett and Ted Pappas, designers; and Bob Huey, photographer.

It has been attempted to give you a "sneak preview" of the most dramatic issue edition of the Taps. However, the biggest and best surprise of all is to come when you see this year's edition. It promises to be one of the best ever published.

Wildlife Club To Hold Meet Friday

The next regular meeting of the Clemson Wildlife Club will be Friday, January 14, in the Chemistry Auditorium at 7:00 p. m.

Prizes for the 1954 Fishing Contest will be awarded the winners. In addition, appropriate films will be shown and various activities of the club will be discussed.

The public is invited.

Officers for 1955 elected at the last meeting are: President, B. J. Todd; Vice-President, P. H. Gooding; Secretary - Treasurer, C. D. Evans.

He took the lead in two musical plays during his junior and senior years and did a fine job there. He was also master of ceremonies at the "Senior Day Talent Show" held every year at Mastbaum.

Carl gave the graduation address at the commencement exercises for his class and on the same night received the alumni reward for outstanding service to school and community during his last two years at Mastbaum. All of these honors were especially significant when one realizes that Carl did not attend Mastbaum until he was a junior.

Reamer did not let his extracurricular activities interfere with his studies in high school. All the way he maintained a straight A and B average in his studies. He incidentally plans to try to do the same thing at Clemson.

He decided to come to Clemson last year and entered school in September. Carl is here on a basketball scholarship. He is majoring in mechanical engineering at present, but hopes to switch to business administration if it becomes a part of the curriculum here.

In an age of basketball where the backboards are dominated by tall men, six foot three inch Carl Reamer would be appreciated by any team, but if he had never seen a basketball in his life, Clemson would still be proud to have him.

McFADDEN WELL

His final appearance as a collegiate athlete, McFadden put the shot over 40 feet in his to take third in the state meet and ran a leg on the winning Clemson mile relay.

Avid Tiger fans figure McFadden's easy running style endurance and competitive spirit might have combined to make him one of the greatest quarter milers of all time, but the "team man" McFadden was always too busy scoring a mass of points in other events to specialize. He could jump five feet ten inches, but never took part in this event in a meet because of the presence of several other Tiger high jumpers of equal ability.

A major in the Air Force Reserve today, the rank he achieved as a member of the Army Air Force Special Service Force during World War II, McFadden is on the Clemson athletic staff as head basketball coach and freshman basketball coach. He is married and almost father of a girls basketball team with four daughters to his credit.

Anyone who has heard of Clemson, in connection with athletics, remembers Banks McFadden. His fame will last as long as Clemson fields a football or a basketball team. "Bonnie Banks" is dear to the hearts of his "highland ladies of the Blue Ridge foothills."

YARBOROUGH OFF

The Tigers as they pulled ahead to stay in the final few minutes. The sure eye of Ronnie Mayer and the deadly set shots of Harold Turner spelled the difference. The exceptional floor play of Joe Belmont also played a large part in the Duke victory. Belmont held Yarbrough in check flawlessly until the final few minutes when four fouls cramped his style. Bill racked up nine points in the first half and fifteen in the second.

A final hook shot by Yarbrough knotted up the count at 60-60 with four minutes left to play but from then on it was Duke all the way.

Nevertheless, Clemson let the Blue Devils know that they had been "in one".
