Jr. Y Council Sponsors Brothers Four Concert

Popular Singing Group Appears Here

By MARTIN DAVIS
Tiger News Writer

On Oct. 19, at 8:00 p.m., the Junior Council of the YMCA will sponsor the Brothers Four at the College Field House. This is one weekend no student will want to miss at Clemson. With the Brothers Four on Friday night and the Clemson-Duke football game on Saturday afternoon, an eventful weekend should be in store.

Success Stories

Success stories are always exciting in the entertainment world, but the skyrocketing success of the Brothers Four is remarkable even by show business standards. Just a little over a year ago, Dick Foley, Mike Kirkland, John Paine, and Bob Flick, brothers in Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, started singing together just for fun at the University of Washington in Seattle. Then they began to sing in public. The response to their refreshing, relaxed, yet enthusiastic style was overwhelming. They hit the big time with their first professional job at the hungry in San Francisco, where they were spotted and signed by Mort Lewis, manager of Dave Brubeck. Within six months they had a Columbia contract and one of the big record hits in the country — "Greenfields."

One month after they arrived in New York, they made their network television debut via the Jimmy Rodgers Show, and had since appeared on the Ed Sullivan Show, the Kate Smith Show, Mitch Miller's Ford Starline Spectacular, the Dick Clark Show, "Be Our Guest," and Canada's award-winning Music '60 Show. They have appeared at many of the colleges from coast to coast and recently completed an engagement with Johnny Mathis at the Carter Barron Theater in Washington, D. C. They have also won popular and critical acclaim at the Newport Folk Festival.

their early twenties. Yet they do all their own arranging. None have had a formal education in music, and none of them can even read music.

They all are natives of the Seattle area and before their meeting at the Phi Gamma Delta house they had no show biz ambitions at all. Each had a career mapped out. For Kirkland, medicine; for Foley, engineering; for Paine, the law; for Flick, radio and T. V. management.

Those careers have been filed away now. The boys are working too hard. They recently played 45 straight one-night stands and they fly thousands of miles each week.

Leisure Time

Outside from their busy schedules each of the Brothers Four finds time for individual hobbies and interests. Mike Kirkland, the blend tenor of the Bios 4, is taking flying lessons. Mike hopes to solo by this summer. John Paine was a page boy in the Washington State Senate for two sessions. He is also an amateur photographer and does much of the publicity and promotional camera work for the boys. Bob Flick, the crew cut of the Brothers Four is an amateur puppeteer and does card tricks. Dick Foley can play five musical instruments. They are the organ, piano, banjo, ukelele, and tenor guitar.

Exceptional Students Study Accelerated Honors Course

Unknown to the regular student at Clemson, since February of this year there has been an Honors program in progress which has allowed certain chosen Freshmen and Sophomores to study according to their academic ability.

The aim of the program is to give the student an accelerated course in the subject in which he is qualified and interested in. This puts him several steps ahead of the ordinary student and enables him not only to complete more work in a given time, but also to delve more deeply into his studies and obtain a more basic understanding of his subject.

By the time the student reaches his senior year he will be considerably ahead in his studies and during the second semester may well be doing graduate work. When he earns his degree he will be given credit for his honors course on the diploma. He will, however, have to complete an as yet unspecified number of hours of honor work before graduating.

Student Insurance

Student Government has announced as a reminder to all students that the deadline for enrollment of the insurance program is October 1, 1962. This is a new program here this year, and it has been accepted very well. Bothe Bill Hendrix, President of the Student Body, and Walter Cox, Dean of Student Affairs, urge every student who is not already enrolled to do so as soon as possible.

John Lee Announces Date For Freshmen Class Nominations

John Lee, Chairman of Election board, has announced that the Freshman Class will hold their first class meeting Tuesday night, October 2, in the Chemistry Building Auditorium. The major point of business will be the nomination of candidates for class President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, and nine Senate seats. Student body President, Bill Hendrix, will call the meeting to order promptly at 7:30 p. m.

The college constitution states that there may not be more than four candidates for each position, except in the case of the senate race, where they may be two candidates for each position. If an excessive number are nominated for a position, balloting will be held at the meeting to determine the proper number of nominees.

All freshmen are urged to take an active part in their student government and the best way to start is to see that the right men are elected to represent the Freshman class.

Campaign rules and regulations will be explained at the meeting. The elections will be held Oct. 9 under the direction of the Elections Committee.

Parking Restrictions

The student parking area in the rear of the hospital is restricted for use by those actually visiting the hospital for treatment or medical service. Students meeting classes in Long Hall, Physics, Math and English complex or any other building, will not use this area except for its intended purpose.

Students receiving parking violation tickets will have their patients record at the hospital checked to determine their visitation to the hospital.

TIGER Questions Answered

College Officials Holds Tiger Banquet

By F. A. LAWTON
Tiger News Writer

The annual Tiger Banquet was held for members of the Tiger Staff by members of the college administration on Tuesday, the 18th of September at seven o'clock. The banquet featured an informal question and answer period between the students on the staff and personnel from each of the college's many departments after the meal. The Tiger staff took this opportunity to ask questions on important issues that face the students and those which affect the college as a whole.

Zalin B. Grant, an Editorial Columnist, asked Dr. Edwards, the President of Clemson, the latest developments on the well publicized suit against the college. Pres. Edwards said that the decision of the lower court which had been in favor of the college had been appealed and that he was not going to give a statement to the students until after the case was out of the courts. He did mention, though, that any interested persons can go to Dean Cox and read any of the trial documents. Pres. Edwards said that the college had given statements to the newspapers across the state.

Girls Dormitories

Girls dormitories was the most vital question to most of the Clemson students. Gerry Purdy, News Editor, asked Dr. Edwards when the girls' dormitories are to be started. Dr. Edwards answered that new girls' dormitories will be occupied first semester next year. He said that girls are to be told this fall and winter that they will have dorms next September. This means that unless contractor difficulties come into existence, 150 girls will be housed here next fall. (Hooray!)

The controversial Clemson College golf course was brought up by Tommy Risher, Sports Editor. This golf course is to be built on donations (see editorial) and will be handled separately from the college funds.

New Library

At this point, Dave Gumula, Editor of The Tiger, asked about the plans for a new library. Dr. Edwards answered that this is next on the agenda after the first girl's dormitory. The plans for the new library are now being drawn and bids for the work are scheduled to go out in the spring. The oft asked question of changing the name of the college was mentioned by Jerry Oxner, a Tiger columnist. The problem has been partially relieved for the students graduating this January. The old diploma, which read "Clemson Agricultural College", has been changed to read "Clemson College" after approval by the Board of Trustees. More will be released on this as final actions are available.

Hartwell Reservoir

The problem of sewage disposal in the new Hartwell Reservoir was presented by Joel Patterson, Cartoonist. This problem, now under study jointly by the Corps of Engineers and the College, will be relieved by the end of the year, 1963.

There will be no guarding the campus during the Thanksgiving weekend. This problem of changing the annual traditions of the school was opened to the meeting by Jerry Oxner. Pres. Edwards said that the placing of the Clemson-South Carolina game on Thanksgiving weekend was to put the traditional game on the last date of the season, and was (Continued on Page 6)

Skin Diving Club Outlines Purposes

BY AL ROACH
Tiger News Writer

Beginning the winter of 1961, the Clemson Skindiving Club started their organization.

Their constitution contained a four fold purpose. They are as follows:

A. "To provide Clemson College students with an organized skin diving activity." This is done by club sponsored divers and activities.

B. "To train interested students in proper and safe skin diving practices." The Club gives instruction in which the trainee must pass through a three stage program.

C. "To promote water safety at Clemson College." This is done by providing the Clemson student with safety rules on skin diving, boating, and swimming.

D. "To act as a rescue and recovery group for Clemson College at such times as deemed appropriate by the officers of this organization and the Dean of Student Affairs."

The Clemson College Skindiving Club has set high standards for their activities. They have provided themselves with a rough responsibility, but have proved themselves quite capable.

All of these points are outstanding but the one that seems to be most prominent is their latter purpose: "To act as a rescue and recovery group for Clemson College." Already the Club has participated in three recovery maneuvers. For this, they have developed their own search patterns and buoy equipment.

The club is constantly being complimented on its outstanding performances. The following are excerpts from letters to the club. Mr. Richard C. Armstrong, Ex-Assistant Dean of Students, says, "Your immediate responses to our call for assistance and the fine work after you arrived on the scene certainly should eliminated all doubts about your value during a water emergency." President Edward compliments, "The long hours spent by your men in extremely dangerous water in the recovery efforts were a great inspiration and certainly appreciated by all at the scene."

These are only a few. This club has developed itself into a high class organization. They are not here for their own personal glory, but for the service and protection of the Clemson student.

The Clemson College Skindiving Club is by no means closed to its present members. In order that the new students, old students, or anyone interested, can find out more about becoming a member, there will be a meeting on the second of October. The meeting will be at seven o'clock in the club room which is located in the old Geology annex between the Ceramics Building and Riggs Hall.

During the summer of 1961, he attended the Eglin Air Force Base Summer Training Encampment near Fort Waldron Beach, Fla. As a result of the excellent and most valuable pre-training Bobb received from his Clemson unit, his efforts at Eglin placed him in the upper one half of his fellow cadets at the encampment.

Cadet Col. Bobb, realizing that the United States Air Force is a vital part of this country's defense, is planning a program that far exceeds any which has been in the past. "The leaders of tomorrow must receive the proper training today," says Col. Bobb. Desirous of the best men with which to work, all entering freshmen interested in the Air Force Program at Clemson had to pass high standards and rigid requirements. These were to score 60 points higher than the minimum college limit on the entrance exam; to be in the upper half of their high school class; pass the A.F. Officers Qualification Test; and to pass the rigid physical examination.

Col. Bobb feels that we have the most select group of basics that any one could expect to have.

"The Chair" Demands High Degree Of Skill, Knowledge To Serve Students

It has been said that the success of or failure of a group depends to a great extent upon the skill of its presiding officers. The success of the Student Senate, our legislative body, is no exception. This body's success depends a great deal upon the guidance of its presiding officer, the President of the Senate. This year's Senate has chosen Jerry Lominack, a senior majoring in architecture from Greer, S. C., to accomplish this task of utmost importance.

"The Chair", as the President refers to himself, must possess a thorough knowledge and understanding of Student Government. Above all things, he must know parliamentary law and how to apply it if he is to properly direct the proceedings of the Senate. He cannot depend upon his personality to carry him through.

Last year, while only a junior, Jerry Lominack served well as our Student Body Secretary. It will be the constant use of his executive abilities, common sense, good judgment, and an unbiased attitude that will make him an outstanding Senate President.

Without question Jerry will devote his undivided time and effort to see that this year's Student Senate plays a significant role in helping develop "the best Student Government ever to exist on our campus."

New Golf Course Uses Unique Financing

This column stands corrected. Let's get the facts and then editorialize.

The facts: as planned by the architect, Mr. George W. Cobb of Greenville, S. C., Clemson's planned golf course will include a practice range, a club house that could not in the least sense be described as elaborate, a front nine of 3,465 yards and a back nine of 3,545 yards.

The course is to be a compact course which features an artificial lake in the center to be used for irrigation purposes. This man-made lake will be supplied with water from a pump in the Hartwell Reservoir. Because of the proximity of the Hartwell Reservoir holes two, five, eight, and fifteen will require direct shots across the water.

The course, to be located across the lake from the Utica-Mohawk Mill, will be about four miles from the present college campus. The course area is presently being surveyed. Because of a suit against the federal government (Corps of Army Engineers) with regard to available land for the course, full-time planning cannot go forward.

Dates of construction and development cannot be given until this suit has been cleared in the courts. Thus no definite dates can be given regarding the construction of the course. This problem coupled with the larger problem of financing the course make the course a "dream" at the present time but planning still continues. Dreams often come true!

Originally the golf course was the "brainstorm" of about three faculty members that were interested in seeing what could be done regarding it. These men worked together for several months before they had sufficient material to present to President Edwards and the Comptroller, Mr. Wilson.

President Edwards was sufficiently impressed with their plans that he appointed a committee of interested people to further investigate it. This committee, headed by F. J. Jervey, came into existence some fifteen months ago and was immediately confronted with the problem of financing.

Their solution: Clemson will not attempt to solicit funds, per se, for the course but will ask friends of Clemson in the construction field to donate men and machinery to work the land. Thus the course would not require cold cash, always difficult to obtain, and monies would not have to be diverted from other, "higher priority," projects. With this in mind few could object to a golf course acquired in this manner.

Could more tennis courts be obtained in this manner?

Rats Receive Preferential Treatment At Clemson This Year

A Furman "rat-ed" or, rather, a freshman coed, was recently overheard asking: "Why don't Clemson coeds (freshmen) wear their rat hats?"

Clemson has been the scene this year of some of the poorest "rattin'" ever seen on the campus. With the loss of the traditional guarding of the campus, the early (only four days) presentation of "Gator" Farr and his "chicken burial," and other old dying traditions, a point of diminishing returns will soon be reached.

How many rats do you know that avoid the dining hall during the midday meal because they know Tatum Gressette, Clemson's head cheerleader, will be leading the rats through an extensive series of cheers? How many rats will speak to upperclassmen in the halls — the traditional "Hi"? How many rats do you know that have really caught hell?

What can be done? Actually the only effective remedy is to really give the rats hell. If they pass you in the hall without speaking, call them back and chew them out. Take an interest in the rats next door and make sure they have the proper "awe" of upperclassmen, the pseudo-gods of the campus. Trips to the Canteen are one of the proper methods of reducing the rat to his proper status on the campus.

Actually, since the rat hats will be gone within a few weeks (by administrative action), why not make an intensive effort to show rats what Clemson can really be like?

A point on the Carolina game: Rats, why don't you wear your hats to the game to show the "slime from the lower levels" that you are Clemson men, uniquely Clemson rats this semester, and damn proud of it!

Last Big Tradition About To Be Chunked

By RALPH HOOD
Tiger Columnist

Tradition be damned! Let's make money.

How many of you have been wondering if this is the new (?) policy of the Clemson athletic department? I'm referring, of course, to this year's date for the Clemson vs. South Carolina football game.

Why is the game being played on Thanksgiving weekend this year? For the benefit of the students? Hardly. This date is doing a fine job of finishing off the few lingering traditions of the by gone "Big Thursday" era.

When, I ask you, are the rats expected to guard the campus this year? From Monday until Tuesday? A lot of good that would do. Or perhaps the "Baron" expects them to give up their Thanksgiving holidays in order to keep up this custom, a custom which has, incidentally, been here even longer than he.

When will "Gator" Farr preach the sermon for the Gamecock? On Tuesday night? Great fun! Half of the students will have left for the holidays, and the other half will be snowed under by the inevitable pre-holiday quizzes. Now that I think of it, I wonder how Gator Farr feels about giving up his Thanksgiving to come up here?

In case anyone is wondering, there won't be any Blue Key dance after this Clemson-Carolina game. How long had that been a tradition?

Why then, was the game scheduled for the Thanksgiving weekend? To me, there seems to be two obvious reasons and they both add up to m-o-n-e-y.

In the first place, Thanksgiving weekend has usually been a bad football date as far as ticket sales go. What better way to boost sales on a bad date than to schedule a game that nobody wants to miss?

In the second place, if the game is played on Thanksgiving weekend, a lot of the students, especially those who live far away, won't be able to attend. This, of course, makes it all the better. This will leave our cash register minded athletic department free to re-sell all of the student tickets for $5.75 each. How much is tradition worth, anyway?

Congratulations, athletic department. You figured right. A lot of the students won't be able to make the game. Perhaps you can do even better next year. You can schedule the game for exam week and sell all of the tickets usually taken up by students. Then you can take films of the game and charge us fifty cents each to see the film. This has endless possibilities.

How about it students, how do you feel? How do you students who live far away like this date? Let's hear from the guys who wanted to take their girls, but hate to ask them to give up Thanksgiving with the folks.

I personally wish that every student had picked up his ticket regardless of whether he planned to use it or not. Of course it's too late now. We had to pick up our tickets almost two months before the game this year so that the athletic department could know how many were left to sell.

In closing, I would like to propose a new name for the Clemson-Carolina game. It went from "Big Thursday" to "Solid Saturday." Now let's change it from "Solid Saturday" to "Dollar Day."

Week's Peek

A "Working" Pendulum Would Be Much Better

By BOBBY DYE

Tiger Associate Editor

One of the finest new buildings on our campus at the present time is the one that houses the physics, math and English, departments. This newly-completed building in all its sprawling splendor, has long been needed and for the first time brings the previously scattered classes in those respective together as they should be. The building has many new advantages for both professor and students in such things as tinted windows and modern equipments.

The building also has many unique features, too, that add a great deal to the building itself. . . or at least, were intended to add to the building. One of the more outstanding of these features is the huge pendulum housed within a glassed-in shaft going through one of the stairways.

This pendulum was one of the much-talked-about projects for the buildings last year, receiving its due recognition and publicity for the intricate operation it would perform and the delicate work necessary for the successful construction of the pendulum.

The huge pendulum, in all its awesomeness, rapidly became the pride of the entire physics department and more specifically, those worked in close association to make it possible. Now that it has become not only possible but a physical part of the building, the simple fact that it is not working is marring the whole purpose for it in the first place. The purpose of the pendulum was not merely decorative or to be one of the moreunique features on the Clemson campus. The purpose behind the tremendous effort put forth by those members of the physics department was to erect a pendulum so delicate but enormous that it would illustrate the movement of the earth.

At the bottom of this pendulum is an accurately divided scale for the illustrative purpose, but the mechanism involved in the construction evidently was not sufficiently delicate to coincide with the intricate purpose. This was simply an oversight—one that those same interested members of the physics department now want to correct. The adjustments necessary to put the pendulum back into "working form" would, in essence, involve only two steps.

First of all, they would like to replace the heavier, spun-steel cable with a single steel strand, and secondly, they would like to replace the universal joint with knife-edge connection. Coupling these two simple changes, according to Mr. Gilreath of that department, the pendulum would most probably attain sufficient accuracy once more to swing as it should.

For those of you who may have noted slight movements by the pendulum, this is just partial functioning and could be highly improved by these two corrective steps. It might be noted that neither of these changes would actually involve major constructive work as far as the building is concerned, but would simply be corrective measures made on the actual pendulum.

It does seem, to say the least, that is not unreasonable to hope for the endorsing of these two steps that some of the professors of the physics department are trying so hard to obtain. With projects and efforts such as this one being so pitifully scarce on this campus, surely this one that has been initiated will be followed through on until it is entirely, and not just partially, successful.

Talk Of The Town

"Solid South" -- Not So Solid Anymore

By CECIL HUEY

Tiger Feature Editor

During the last few years, the so-called "Solid South" has become a lot less solid. Support of the Republican Party has mushroomed from a token response into a serious challenge to Democratic dominance. Southerners are beginning to realize that Republicans aren't all fat, cigar-smoking, northern industrialists, dedicated to the development of interests and opposed to anything below the Mason-Dixon line. They are also realizing that Democrats aren't tall stately, gray-haired statesmen, dedicated to the preservation of American ideals and staunch advocates of all that is right.

However, there is still a large number of Southerners who remain adamant, refusing to accept the fact that Republicans are anything other than scoundrels. Many of these men hold a surprising amount of power and do not hesitate to use it to support any Democratic candidate and to condemn any and all Republicans.

Here in South Carolina, several newspapers openly support the Democrats and constantly berate the Republicans. They are so set in their policy of "Democrat or Die", that Castro himself would receive their complete support were he to run for office on a Democratic ticket.

To illustrate the utter lack of reason behind the support of many Democratic candidates is the fact that States Rights is a prime issue. Even though the candidate may be worthy of support on any number of other issues, this one issue is the one played up the most. To many of these die-hard newspapers and to many of their supporters, this is the only issue. The truth is that the stand of one party is nearly identical to the stand of the other.

One South Carolina daily newspaper constantly referred to Richard Nixon as "N.A.A.C.P. Nixon" during the last presidential campaign, yet Kennedy's appointment of Thurgood Marshall to the United States Court of Appeals received only secondary headlines. This same newspaper refers to to Eisenhower as our "golf-playing" former president but says nothing of Kennedy's frequent resort vacations or to Jackie's incessant jaunts aboard. Now this paper has gone into high gear in its campaign against the Republican Senatorial candidate, Workman.

It is not the purpose of this column to enlist support for the Republicans or the Democrats, but to enter a plea against the narrowminded bigotry that is preventing many Southerners from exercising their democratic rights in an intelligent manner. This is a plea for a "See-Saw South".

The Civil War has been over nearly a century, but many Southerners are still fighting it—many Northerners too, for that matter. The traditional rivalry that still exists clouds the vision of men when it comes to evaluating a political candidate. However, it is a selective cloudiness, covering only that which favors the opposite party. It is the privilege of all Americans to exercise their courage in matters like these, but it is also their duty to make honest decisions, to make decisions uninfluenced by personal prejudice or pride. The failure to fulfill this duty is un-American. A plea against this is a plea against the "Solid South".

The people who are fighting to keep the "Solid South" solid are violating this duty. With honest presentation of the facts by news media of the South, this area could well become the "See-Saw South", a high strategic area as far as politicians are concerned. Many of the South's wishes would then be heeded by both parties, aiding in its development and advancement. If the present trend continues, this could well be the case in the very near future. Such a change would be in the best interest of all Southerners.

Point Of View

Intellectual Game Called Psyche Slicing --- New Fad

By ZALIN B. GRANT
Editorial Columnist

The hottest game to take hold since Cupid and Campaspe played the first game of strip poker is a nice little intellectual exercise called psyche slicing, better known as psychoanalysis. Lambasted and lampooned in the nation's press, but to no avail because it has acquired an almost religious-like following, there seems to be, at best, only a glimmer of recognition of the danger of the amateur psychologists, the self-appointed prophets of disorders in America.

Causes of this phenomenon, according to experts, are multitudinous and inseparable. Leaving no stones unturned, I, as an admitted amateur, hazzard to guess that this latest fad can be correlated with status seeking.

Status seeking, in such a status-conscious nation as this, in its polished form, comes under many guises these days. No longer does the Cadillac, the Mink, the best prep schools, fill the tacit qualifications for a status symbol. No, not at all, for Vance Packard and numerous sociologists have dug a grave for such common and outmoded marks of distinction and laid them to rest, albeit not very quietly, under six feet of publicity.

Forced into new grounds, Americans have recovered admirably, adapting to the situation with equanimity and, of course, a tad of snobbery. There are certain changes that are quite noticeable now in the persons who, bless their unassuming hearts, are supposed to have social savvy par excellence.

For instance, the inhibitors who formerly served dry martinis (just one cc of vermouth, please) have replaced this drink of the bourgeois with a subtle serving of Haig and Haig—from a pinch bottle, no less. And the card game that Charles Goren made so famous, long exhausted of any status value, has lost out to mahjong in the "knowing" circles. And bookshelves are now crammed with drab empirical writings of unknowns.

But, perhaps you have not noticed the intellectual badge worn so proudly by those who, by their own admission, are the elite of our society. I speak of the badge of the junior psychologists; a badge which gives them the authority, the perception and the privilege to unrestrained soul-peering. Of course, the only remedies that these post-Freudians can suggest for diagnosed (by them) mental aberrations in friends, other than the stock on-the-couch type, are of the tsk-tsk variety.

Alas, this poor world has not been the same since Sigmund Freud discovered the id. That discovery has been likened, and justifiably, too, I think, to Newton's discovery of gravity. How did those poor people live without knowing how mentally unstable they really were?

The condescending amateurs of psychology, looking down from lofty heights of piousness, usually ascribe the cause of every person's behavior to some implication couched in the terminology of psychology: regression, compensation, transference, ad nauseam.

As a friend of mine noted, there is no such thing as sin in the eyes of the status-minded pseudo-psychologists. A person is cleansed of fault by the simple concession that he has a slight mental aberration. Sounds good.

Psychoanalysis has a sacred history in the recognition of nervous disorders, and has, without doubt, contributed immeasurably to the health of the world; but there is a growing number of unqualified people, seeking what I believe to be an unattainable goal for them—superiority—that have become disgusting psychological caricaturists.

Frosh Lab Proves Prof's Nightmare

By EARLE SMITH
Tiger Feature Writer

When the freshman goes into the Chemistry laboratory for the first time, he is bewildered. This is not just a place in which to play, nor is this a place in which to loaf. He has been told that he must work. Oh, that appalling work again! THREE HOURS! That's a long time. The Professor has just told him a hundred "don'ts" for the laboratory, and he doesn't remember any of them.

The first thing he does upon arriving at his appointed place is to take an inventory of the equipment in his drawer. The equipment is now, however, in unusable condition. For, much to his sorrow, the chagrined young fellow has pulled the drawer open too far and now his equipment is lying shattered all over the floor. At the sound of the shattering glass, the professor looks over at the poor fellow who is now completely confused and terrified.

Having settled down slightly, the student begins to go about his task for the day. The only thing he must do is make a wash bottle, but to make the wash bottle he must bend some glass. Bending the glass is not going to be difficult, though, because the professor has shown the class how to do it. It is really simple—nothing to it. First, he turns on the gas. Next, he has to light the burner; but, alas, he has no matches and must find some. So off he walks to hunt up a match and finally ends up asking the professor for one. The professor, slightly perturbed, tells him for about the third time that there is a special instrument with which to light the burner. "Oh, yes!" the young says. He remembers now. So back to the table he goes to ignite the burner. Suddenly a terrific explosion echoes through the room. The entire room is blackened with soot and smoke floats in the air. Smiling sheepishly, the poor freshman remembers that he had forgotten to turn off his burner while searching for the matches.

Forgiven again, though, the freshman sincerely tries to do the correct thing. First, he must break off a piece of the glass tubing from the large one issued to him. That's easy enough. With a file he makes a small scratch in the glass; thumbs together; and break. There—slightly jagged but fair. One small detail he forgot though. The professor is standing opposite him with a piece of glass in his nose and another piece in his ear. "Oh darn! I forgot to aim towards the floor." The professor says nothing, however, so the young fellow, who was scared out of his wits, continues with the job.

Somehow or other he manages to make the bend without further mishap. Well, just a burned finger or two and a few burned places on the table top. After fire polishing the jagged end he proudly shows it to the professor who burns his fingers on the hot end and drops it on the floor. It too has been broken. With these past mistakes in mind the disheartened young man goes back to his table and finally bends the necessary pieces of tubing.

A few cut fingers and broken flasks later the project is completed. A little crude to the professor maybe, but absolutely divine to the freshman. The bell finally rings and, although the place is a shambles, the apprehensive professor retires to his office before any of the freshmen can ask him how to clean up.

Once in the gracious quiet of his office, he locks the door and takes a bottle of tranquilizer tablets, washing them down with a shot of rubbing alcohol. These help little, however, for he lapses into a nervous gibberish and finally collapses flat on the floor.

Student Chaplain:

Words From A Struggle

By STEVE ACKERMAN
Student Chaplain

And behold, a lawyer stood up to put him to the test, saying, "Teacher, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" He said to him, "What is written in the law? How do you read?" And he answered, "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your strength, and with all your mind; and your neighbor as yourself." And he said to him, "You have answered right; do this, and you will live."

But he, desiring to justify himself, said to Jesus, "And who is my neighbor?" Jesus replied, "A man was going down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and he fell among robbers, who stripped him and beat him, and departed, leaving him half dead. Now by chance a priest was going down that road; and when he saw him he passed by on the other side. So likewise a Levite, when he came to the place and saw him, passed by on the other side. But a Samaritan, as he journeyed, came to where he was; and when he saw him, he had compassion on him, and went to him and bound up his wounds, pouring oil and wine; then he set him on his own beast and brought him to an inn, and took care of him. And the next day he took out two de-nari and gave them to the innkeeper, saying "Take care of him; and whatever more you spend, I will repay you when I return." Which of these three, do you think, proved neighbor to the man who fell among the robbers?" He said, "The one who showed mercy on him." And Jesus said to him, "Go and do likewise." Luke 10:25-37

You will never learn who Jesus Christ is by reflecting upon whether there is such a thing as sonship, or virgin birth, or miracle. Who Jesus Christ is you learn from your hungry, distressed brothers, for it is in them that he meets us. He is always in the depths. And we shall draw near to these brethren only if we open our eyes to see the misery around us. And we can open our eyes only when we love. But we cannot go and do and love, if we stop and ask first, Who is my neighbor? The devil has been waiting for us to ask this question; and he will always whisper into our ears the most convenient answers. We human beings always fall for the easiest answers. No, we can love only if we have the mind of Jesus and turn the lawyer's question around. Then we shall not ask "Who is my neighbor?" but "To whom am I a neighbor? Who is at my door? Who is expecting help from me and who looks upon me as his neighbor?" The reversal of the question is the point of the parable.

Anyone who loves must always be prepared to have his plans interrupted. We must be ready to be surprised by tasks which God sets for us today. God is always compelling us to improvise. For God's tasks always have about them something surprising and unexpected, and this imprisoned, distressed brother, in whom the Saviour meets us, is always turning up on our path just at the time when we are about to do something else. God is a God of surprises, not only in the way in which he helps us—for God's help too, always comes from unexpected directions—but also in the manner in which he confronts me with tasks to perform and sends people across my path.

I cannot close without mentioning the fact that it is Jesus Christ who is telling the parable. We hear the parable from the lips of Him who is the Good Samaritan for us all, who became our neighbor. When we stand alone, quivering beneath a sense of awe-ful guilt, which nobody else suspects, which would cause our friends to desert us if they knew about it, then here too, Jesus is the neighbor who is not shocked by the dark abyss, because he came down from heaven and descended into the deepest pits of misery and guilt. Jesus loves us and therefore he finds us, and therefore he also knows us. He knows us better than we know ourselves and still he does not drop us, still he is our friend, our nearest friend.

In this happy certainty we can proceed to act. Who would not wish to do something for him, since he himself has become our neighbor; who would refuse to non-or Him in his poor and miserable brothers?

Therefore let this last thing be said about loving our neighbor. All loving is a thanksgiving for the fact that we ourselves have been loved and healed in loving; we grow into all the mysteries of God when we pass on what we have received and when we learn by experience that a disciple of Jesus becomes not poorer but ever richer and happier in giving and sacrificing and that whatever of his feeble strength he puts at God's disposal comes back to him in twelve great baskets. For God is great in his giving and incalculable in the abundance of his mercy.

WRITE? YOU'RE WRONG

In the recent furor over the assassination of President McKinley, it may have escaped your notice that a nationwide study of the writing ability of American college students has just been published.

The survey reveals an astonishing fact: that when students have completed their freshman year and are no longer required to take English, their writing skill progressively declines until we come to the fantastic situation where graduating seniors actually are poorer writers of English than incoming freshmen! Many theories have been offered to account for this incredible fact. Some say that seniors know less English than freshmen because all seniors major in French. This is not true. No more than 94 percent of seniors major in French. How about the other six percent?

Well sir, of the other six percent, half—or three percent—take physics, and it is not hard to understand how these poor souls grow rusty in English when all they ever say is "E equals MC squared."

Of the remaining three percent, two-thirds—or two percent—major in whaling, and their English too grows feeble with disuse. Whalers, as we all know, do not speak at all except to shout, "Thar she blows!" maybe twice a year.

Of the one percent remaining, it cannot be fairly said that they are poor writers. The fact is, we don't know what kind of writers they are. Why not? Because they never write. And why don't they ever write? Because this remaining one percent of American college students are enrolled at the University of Alaska, and never take their mittens off.

(Incidentally, I received quite a surprise upon first visiting Alaska two years ago when I was invited to Juneau to crown the Queen of the Annual Date Palm Festival. Frankly I expected to find a surly and morose populace. After all, going through life with your mittens on all the time is hardly calculated to make you merry as a cricket. Not only can't you write, but you miss out on all kinds of other fun things—like three-card monte, making shadow pictures on the wall, and lint picking. However, to my astonishment, I discovered Alaskans to be a hale and gregarious group, mittens notwithstanding, and I soon found out why: because mittens notwithstanding, they could still smoke Marlboro Cigarettes, still enjoy that rich mellow flavor, that fine, clean Selectate filter, that truly soft soft pack, that truly flip-top flip-top box—and that, friends, will make anybody happy, mittens notwithstanding. In fact, Alaskans are the happiest people I have ever met in the whole United States—except, of course, for the Alaskan vendors of Marlboro Cigarettes, who have not been paid in many years—indeed, never—because how can anybody dig out coins to pay for cigarettes when he is wearing mittens?)

But I digress. What are we going to do about this deplorable condition where college students, having completed Freshman English, become steadily less proficient in the use of the language? The answer is simple. We will make them take Freshman English all through college. In fact, we won't let them take anything else! This solution, besides producing a nation of graceful writers, will also solve another harrowing problem: where to park on campus. If everybody takes nothing but Freshman English, we can tear down all the schools of law, medicine, engineering, and whaling, and turn them into parking lots. Can't we?

Weight Lifting Club Boasts Fast Growth

By BILL JACKSON
Tiger Feature Writer

The Weight Lifting Club here at Clemson is one of the newest and fastest growing clubs on campus. This is only the second year of its existence and great amounts of progress are now being made. Much enthusiasm has been shown toward the club recently as was evidenced at a meeting last week for prospective members when a large number of boys joined. This shows a promise of greater things to come from this club.

The purpose of this club is to provide facilities for anyone interested in weight lifting and physical development. The club is open to any student and it is hoped that many more will join. In view of the results of physical fitness tests, it appears that the club is doing a great service to the community. Boys who work out regularly are developing fine healthy bodies which in turn will lead to alert minds and better citizens of the future. Weight lifting is also an interesting form of recreation, and it is a break from the daily routine of study. It provides the student with a much better balanced program of activities.

The club has an ample supply of weights, and it has just recently purchased a new 410 pound Olympic Barbell Set. This provides an excellent supplement to the already large supply of equipment owned by the club. The club has an isometric contraction apparatus, lifting platform, lat machine, approximately 4,000 pounds of weights, plus many other smaller items necessary to a complete lifting program.

Many of the boys in the club who are conscientious weight lifters are becoming very interested in competitive lifting. Last spring the club had an intra-club weight lifting contest. Bob Glover was the winner of the contest with Don Chuy second and Dick Dobbs third. Plans are now being made for a contest with an Olympic weight lifting club from Rock Hill. The Rock Hill club has several excellent lifters, and it should prove to be a most exciting meet. Attempts are being made to secure world champion weight lifter Paul Anderson as a judge for this contest. In preparation for this meet, the Clemson club expects to have two or three intra-club meets this fall to develop experience for competition.

If there are any boys on campus who are weight lifters, or who are interested in becoming weight lifters, it is suggested that they join the club. This will prove to be a beneficial and rewarding undertaking. The club is located in the basement of 7th barracks in the Cub Room.

The officers of the club are: C. B. King, President; Gerry Purdy, Vice President; Jerry Raz, Secretary; and Ed Runnion, Treasurer. Anyone who would like to join the club should contact one of these officers in order to secure a key to the Cub Room. It is sincerely hoped that there will be a large number of boys who will participate in this activity.

Tigers Invade Wolfpack Lair In ACC Duel

By TOM RISHER
Tiger Sports Editor

Tech Stops Tigers

Clemson ventured into Grant Field last weekend and ran smack into one of the teams that must be ranked as one of the best in the South. The most fearsome part of the Georgia Tech team was the great bunch of big, mobile linemen that they had. They made it very hard indeed for the Tigers to run on the ground. Tech's pursuit and overall defense was so terrific that the Tigers did not have a gain longer than 15 yards all day, and only one running play that went for more than 10 yards. In junior quarterback Billy Lotheridge Tech has a very sharp field general and a very accurate passer. With plenty of time to throw behind the big Tech forward wall, Lotheridge tossed for three touchdowns in the second quarter, and this was the difference in the game. Except for the lapse of the Tigers' pass defense in the second period, there was very little to choose from between the two teams.

All was not dreary in the Tiger camp, as the game had good performances from several players. Eddie Wernitz had a great day punting the ball as he averaged over 46 yards per punt. In addition, he also made a couple of tackles as Tech was returning his punts. The second unit backfield looked pretty good as they took the Tigers for their lone touchdown tour. The first unit only had the ball for about 11 running plays, as they played most of the defense. Bob Poole and Coleman Glaze at the end positions turned in a fine game defensively, as did Ted Bunton. Walter Cox intercepted a Tech pass and this turned into a 44 yard field goal by Rodney Rodgers, for Clemson's only lead of the game. A bad call by the officials on an apparently incomplete pass stopped one Tiger drive, and when the officials ruled the pass complete and said that Tech recovered the ensuing fumble, Tech moved to their last score.

For next week, Clemson takes on N. C. State at Raleigh. Coach Jim Hickey of North Carolina said last week before his Tarheels were upset by State, that he was more worried about them than when they had Gabriel, and he had a good reason to be. The same holds true for Clemson, as the Tigers beat N. C. State each time they played with Gabriel. Now that Gabriel has gone, the Wolfpack appears to be a much better balanced team than they were last year. The 7-6 triumph over North Carolina does not tell the thoroughness with which the Wolfpack won. Like Coach Howard said on his football show last Sunday, "the breathers have breathed their last, they're all tough now." N. C. State will prove to be just as tough as the Tigers will want.

Intramural Footballers Must Be At Games

As intramural football opens, there are certain responsibilities that go with turning in a roster and getting up a team. Once you decide to participate, you should be prepared to have your team at every game. In the past there have been numerous forfeits, but once you are of college age, it's time you were able to meet responsibilities, and this includes being present at scheduled football games. It's a lousy situation when a team has practiced and are ready to play a game and the opposing team never shows up.

Intramural Golf??

Coach Bill Wilhelm, the College Intramural director, would like to find out how many students would be interested in holding an intramural golf tournament in the near future. All students who would be interested in such an event are requested to meet with Coach Wilhelm in his office in the field house on Monday night at 6:30 P.M.

Georgia Tech Overcomes Clemson With 3 Touchdowns In 7 Minutes

By BILL LYNN
Tiger Sports Writer

The Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets, playing before a record home crowd of 51,140 people, used Billy Lotheridge's passing wizardry to defeat Clemson's Tigers, 26-9. Although he completed only seven passes, three of these went for touchdowns, of 23, 37 and 23 yards respectively.

Aside from Lotheridge's aerial show, Clemson played Tech on even terms. Clemson's defensive line, although yielding more yardage than Tech's, played well, but a leaky pass defence permitted Tech to gain crucial yardage. Out standing in the line were Dave Hines, Coleman Glaze, Walter Cox and Tracy Childers.

Georgia Tech received the opening kick-off, but couldn't move. On third down, guard Walter Cox intercepted Stan Gann's pass at the 39 and returned it to the 36. However, Clemson couldn't move the ball either. On fourth down, Rodney Rodgers booted a 44 yard field goal that had the Clemson fans buzzing.

Tech In The Hole?

Later, in the quarter, Clemson's Eddie Wernitz punted dead on the Tech six yard line. Seemingly in the hole, Tech began to move.

With Lotheridge directing the attack, Tech moved to the Clemson 23. He then found end Billy Martin for a 23 yard touchdown pass, and Tech led 6-3 with 10:43 left in the half.

After Wernitz punted to the Tech 33, Lotheridge started again. In five plays they were at the Clemson 37. On the next play, Joe Auer took a pass at the 30 and stepped into the end zone to make the score 13-3.

An intercepted pass at the Clemson 34 set up Tech's third touchdown. In only 2 plays, Tech had another one. Lotheridge found lonesome end Ted Davis real lonesome on a 23-yard scoring strike. Following the conversion, Tech carried a 20-3 lead into the dressing room.

Tigs Perked Up

Although the second half was closer, Clemson could never overcome the disastrous second quarter. In the third quarter, Glaze intercepted a pass at the Clemson 37, and began the scoring drive.

Joe Anderson brought in his second unit and began passing. The key play in the drive was a 13 yarder to Johnny Case at the Tech nine yard line. On third down, at the beginning of the fourth quarter, Jerry Taylor skirted around end for the score. The try for two points failed and the score was 20-9.

After the kick-off, Tech was forced to kick. Behind Parker's passing, Clemson had a first down at Tech's 4. Then a disputed pass play to Elmo Lam was ruled a fumble and Tech recovered at their 40. Lotheridge and McNames ached the following touchdown drive with Lotheridge scoring from the one.

... And It Was Over

This was the last of the scoring with the scoreboard reading 26-9 when the final whistle blew. Although Tech won, there were several good-looking signs on the Tiger squad. Joe Anderson's passing was good, particularly under the pressure the Tech line was giving.

Another pleasing sign, but not a surprise, was the punting of Eddie Wernitz. Wernitz averaged 46.5 yards on his punts, but Clemson's defence just couldn't hold the Yellow Jackets.

Clemson was beaten by one of the best teams in the South and we, as Clemson fans, should stay behind the Tigers with the important ACC play yet to come. With nine games remaining, Clemson can still have a fine year.

Tigers Look For First Win; Pack Seeks Another Upset

By: FRED CRAFT
Tigers Sports Writer

Frank Howard's Clemson Tigers journey to Raleigh, N. C. tomorrow to take on the surprising Wolfpack of North Carolina State. While the Tigers were dropping a 26-9 decision to Georgia Tech last week, the Pack put up a great defense and came away with a close 7-6 upset victory over highly rated North Carolina.

Wolf Pack Upsets UNC

Fullback Roger Moore's placement after State slashed 67 yards for a third period touchdown, proved to be the winning point as North Carolina's Junior Edge missed an attempted point after touchdown late in the fourth quarter. State's lone tally came on halfback Joe Scarpai's five yard run after quarterback Jim Rossi had led the Wolfpack inside the ten with his running and passing.

N. C. State is supposedly rebuilding after the loss of its offense — Roman Gabriel —. The great All-American led the Wolfpack for three seasons and replacing him and finding some kind of a running attack is Head Coach Earle Edwards big problem.

Edwards has his youngest squad in nine years and his hopes and those of State's rests on youth. An example is quarterback, where the two men expected to replace Roman Gabriel, have had only 20 offensive plays between them in two years. State lost 16 lettermen, but have 15 lettermen returning of which neither Bill Kriger nor Jim Rossi, the quarterbacks, can count themselves. They were used only when Gabriel was hurt or needed a short rest. Both however, are more than capable runners, passers, and signal callers.

State Has Experience

Only eight seniors are on the squad, but five of these are on the first unit. Don Montgomery, a junior whose leg was broken in the Alabama game last year, is the only letterman at end. Sophomore ends Whitney Martin, Ray Barlow, and junior Bob Faircloth will see action.

There are three capable lettermen guards in Bill Sullivan, Harry Puckett, and Captain Skip Matthews. Tackles are led by Bert Wilder, a junior od All-American caliber with Chuck Wachtel, Glenn Sassa, and Steve Parker fighting it out for the other tackle position.

Center should be strong with lettermen Oscar Overcash, Bob Royer, and Walt Kudryan returning. Fullback could be the strongest State position with lettermen Roger Moore and Dave Houtz being reinforced by sophomore Pete Falzarano.

Letterman Tony Koszarsky and Shelby Mansfield are the left halfback candidates with the sensational Joe Scarpai at the wingback position. Scarpai is backed up by Mitse Clark and sophomore Jimmy Guinn.

The Wolfpack can't be taken lightly and the Tigers can look for a balanced attack with more running, with option-type play from the quarterbacks triggering the offense. In the series, Clemson leads 23 to 7 with one tie. Last year the Tigers muffed Gabriel's horn and walked off with a 20-0 victory. Kickoff time is 1:30 p.m.

Cubs Entertain Baby Deacons In Death Valley At 2:00 P.M.

Game Today Opens Season For Frosh; Clemson Features Speedy Halfbacks

By GARY BOLEY
Tiger Sports Writer

Picking up a list of players on the freshman football team, Coach Covington "Goat" McMillan viewed his team as a whole. "I think we're a little further along than we were this time last year. When they came out they were a little further along, as far as knowing what to do."

The freshman football team has been practicing since Sept. 1, and now are preparing to open the season against Wake Forest. The Deacons will visit Death Valley at 3 o'clock today.

"Goat", still gazing at the lineup continued, "We've got two real good centers. They will both make good varsity candidates." McMillan was referring to Joe Waldrep and Randy Smith.

"We've got a good quarterback also," added McMillan. "He has looked real good passing." James Ruffner is leading the freshman team from the signal-calling position.

Halfbacks Are Best

Thus far, the halfback position has stood out as the strongest. The speed from the halfbacks will be a contributing factor toward the winning of ball games. Running from the right halfback position will be Captain Ellis Dantzler, Edwin Rogers and Ben Shivers. From the other halfback position will be Hugh Mauldin, Don Henderson and Joe Sellers. "The halfback position has depth and speed. It's our strongest," continued McMillan.

To be running from the fullback position will be Robert Swift. To help conquer the depth problem at fullback will be Martin Schneider and Martin Coates.

Starting on the tackle position will be Lester Smith and Harry Jerald and at guard will be John McKittrick and Lynn Craig. Charles Meadowcroft the co-captain of the team, was pointed out by "Goat" as the pass receiver. Meadowcroft is the left end. Running right end will be Clarence Duckett.

The Baby Tigers are ready to get the season under way. They meet the Deacons today, and next week travel to Chapel Hill for an encounter with the freshmen of the University of North Carolina. Duke will visit the Tiger Cubs the following week, Oct. 12, and the following week the Cubs will seek revenge over the Biddies of South Carolina in Columbia. The season will end in an encounter with the Georgia Tech freshmen.

Yell Rats!

The freshman games, in the past, have been witnessed by enthusiastic "Rats." This year will be no different. The home games will be watched by enthusiastic "Rats", or at least by "Rats" who appear to be enthusiastic. Visit Death Valley at 2 o'clock today, "Rats." That's all!

NOTICE

Homecoming this year comes one week after mid-semester reports are due, thus giving clubs and organizations a period free from mid-semester quizzes during which to construct their Homecoming displays. This week of freedom should assure ample participation in this year's contest. Any association contact Gene Crocker, room 10-408, to sign up a location for the display. Display sites will be assigned on a first come—first served basis.

Organizations which plan to have animated displays should make a particular attempt to sign up early for a location near a power source. There will be judging this year in two categories, animated and still, and the competition is open to all recognized organizations on campus.

ACC Teams Fall To Outside Foes; Cavaliers, Terps Only Winners

By HOWIE FISHBEIN
Tiger Sports Writer

With the initial games of all the ACC teams this past weekend in the record books now, it looks like it could be an uphill struggle for all eight teams against non-conference opponents. Of the eight ACC teams who played Saturday, six games were with non-conference teams, and the only winners were Maryland and Virginia.

Down at Grant Field in Atlanta, Billy Lothridge came off the bench in the second quarter and quickly threw three T.D. passes that built up a Tech lead the Tigers could not overcome. For the second half of the game Clemson stayed even with Tech, each team scoring only six points.

quarterback Tom Myers who tore apart the cocky Gamecock hopes for their 37-20 victory. Myers completed 20 out of 24 passes for 25 yards and three touchdowns. Carolina's ground game was very impressive as it was led by Billy Gambrell who went 8 yards for one touchdown.

For the fans of Virginia their opening game with William & Mary was off to a dismal start. The Indians quickly scored in the first quarter on a ten yard reverse. The alternating Cavalier quarterbacks Cuzzo and Kuhn then directed their teams to three scores, with each quarterback scoring a touchdown making the final score over the Indians.

Duke, pre-season pick for top honors in the AC traveled three thousand miles west to Los Angeles, only to lose 14-7 to Southern Cal. The score was tied 7-7 with less than two minutes left in the first half when Trojan quarterback Bill Nelson lofted a TD pass to end Hal Bedsole good for 51 yards, and then held on to win.

Letters To Tom

Howard Critized

Dear Tom:

In reading the Sunday September 16th, edition of the Atlanta Journal Magazine Section, I was shocked and embarrassed to read the statement made by Frank Howard. In reference to a possible Crew team, he said and I quote "Football is now supporting more non-playing athletic activities than it can afford" and he isn't interested in any game where "the players sit on their bottoms and win going backwards." I certainly hope this letter will indicate that not everyone approves of this narrow-minded, tobacco-chewing football "Barons" views on those so called non-profit making sports. It is my opinion as well as that of others that sports in colleges and universities are first of all aids in the

Ads Questioned

Dear Tom,

In recent issues of the TIGER advertisements have appeared urging people interested in obtaining a "World Constitution" to write to a certain address. No information other than the address is given. I think Clemson students should know something about this organization.

The purpose of this organization is, simply put, to effect total world disarmament and to require

Idea's

But where did the idea originate to bring this group to the Clemson campus. It all started one Monday night in early March of last year at a YMCA sophomore council meeting. Dean Cox was speaking on future developments of the college. Someone asked if an independent organization could bring a popular group to the campus. Bruce Tyson and Alex Credle, who had the idea of bringing the Brothers Four to Clemson, went to see Dean Cox and then Mr. Cooper, General Advisor and Secretary of the YMCA, about it. Both approved and the idea was brought up at the next Sophomore council meeting. It was met with unanimous approval, and a football weekend the following fall was decided upon as a tentative time.

The group got their first big break when the ITA, or International Talents Associates, arrived at the Clemson House for the SUSGA convention. The ISA handles such popular singing groups as the Brothers Four, The Kingston Trio, the Journeymen, and Peter, Paul, and Mary. A tentative date of Oct. 19, 1962 was set, and on May 23 the contract was signed.

Four members of the Junior Council have been instrumental in arranging the Brothers Four concert. They are Bruce Tyson, Publicity, Alex Credle, Physical Arrangements, and Nouman Pulliam, tickets.

Tickets

Bruce Tyson stated, "Tickets will be on a first come first serve basis. Four thousand tickets were printed. These may be purchased at the YMCA or from any junior YMCA council member. They will also be sold at the door as long as they last."

It is not too early to buy tickets, for neighboring high schools and colleges have been notified and publicity over various radio and T.V. stations will begin shortly. The YMCA has stated that if this is a success they will try to sponsor another group next year.

Dear Senator Goldwater:

As a citizen of this country, I wish to bring to your attention the attached document. It is a Call to all nations to choose delegates to draft a proposed World Constitution. None of the 180 prominent world personalities who have signed the Call believes such an effort to be either impractical or unnecessary. In fact, they sincerely feel this might save the earth from disaster. The Call has been delivered in the name of these citizens of various countries to most national governments during December, 1961 and January, 1962. I dearly hope this project will receive your full cooperation.

There are times in history when scepticism is deadly and sheer idealism the key to salvation. So-called impractical and visionary ideas can then become a canvas, a basic material on which to plan intelligent and logical decisions for the welfare of all concerned. We all know that social idealism seldom offers a technical solution, but rather represents an emotional drive; it is from there that competent legal minds can have a chance to design a workable system. This is what this Call is aimed to do. I believe we are in such times and agree with such an inspiring idea. Whether delegates to the Convention will be successful or not, cannot be known. Obviously, it is not a minor problem, nor is it an easy challenge. I feel, however, that an attempt at a World Constitution could not have been started without this effort.

For information on the history of the Call, may I suggest that you contact directly the World Constitution Coordinating Committee, 2310 North 15th Avenue, Phoenix 7, Arizona.

Very precisely, I respectfully request you to please present a bill to the effect that delegates would be officially chosen by the United States of America. If, in your opinion, this does not appear to be the right procedure please tell me what the procedure should be, and what else I should do as a private citizen.

you get a "Dear John" notification, don't fail to notify your hostess. Your buddy may get a last minute acceptance for a date with no place for her to stay. Not only that, it's just common courtesy to notify the lady of the house that a room will not be needed.

d. Most hostesses will expect your date to return to their house within a reasonable time after the dance. Should you be planning out-of-town parties, or extra trips, a full and frank discussion beforehand will usually avoid the risk of misunderstanding.

e. Plan the times you will pick up your date throughout the weekend. Give her adequate time to get ready. She wants to look her best even though the activity may be informal. By giving her sufficient time, you should both avoid an uncomfortable waiting.

f. Never place your hostess in the position of having to ask you for payment of charges incurred.

g. A "Thank You Note" to the hostess after a weekend at her home is always in order. It adds that little bit extra that will cause your date to be a welcome guest on her next visit to Clemson.

Coat Check Contract

Starting this year for the first time, the CDA will offer a contract for the coat check at the dances. Every club on the campus is invited to submit a bid for the cost of running the coat check.

The lowest bid for the coat check will be given the contract for the entire year. All clubs who are interested should contact Jimmy Hardwick, or any of the officers of the CDA and ask them for a copy of the contract.

Your entire weekend can be as pleasant as you wish to make it. Consideration for others is primary. Neither you nor your date can help but be observed throughout the weekend. Your actions will be a direct reflection of the parental guidance you have received.

The team needs help in all events — especially in diving, crawl, backstroke, and butterfly. The team is entirely dependent on students.

A call for Freshmen swimmers will be made at a later date. This call is for eligible upperclassmen only.

Tau Beta Pi

TAU Beta Pi, engineering honor society, will offer, free, a slide rule course beginning Wednesday, September 26, to sophomores in engineering. Classes will be conducted weekly on Wednesdays from seven to eight p.m. for ten consecutive weeks, ending November 28.

At present most engineering students at Clemson must learn the use of the slide rule on their own initiative. Tau Beta Pi feels that all engineering students would benefit greatly from an early working knowledge of the tool that will be invaluable to them in their junior and senior work.

The classes will be instructed by seniors in Tau Beta Pi in room 301 of the Civil Engineering Building. Don't miss this opportunity.

Young Republicans

The Clemson Young Republicans Club held an organizational meeting Thursday, September 20th in meeting room No. 1. The purpose of the meeting was to elect officers. George Stumpf, a new transfer student, was elected president.

The Young Republicans will try to promote the Republican candidates running in this area, and they will also try to stimulate interest in the Republican party. Any student who wishes to find out more about the Young Republicans should contact one of the officers. These are: President, George Stumpf; Vice-President, John Richards; Corresponding Secretary, Ed Thomason; Recording Secretary, John Quarles; and Treasurer, Allen Sale.

Glee Club Practice

From now until the Christmas holidays Clemson's Glee Club will be holding its practices every week. These practices are held every Monday and Tuesday afternoons at 4 p.m. in Room 203 of the Geology Building.

"Great things are in the planning mill for the Glee Club this year," Pete Spangler, President, was heard remarking recently. "The officers have come up with such ideas as radio concerts, TV appearances, a unique club patch, and other ideas. These are still in the planning stages but with luck and work, we can achieve all of these."

Students that are interested should attend one of the practices and let "Doc" Hugh McGarity, director, know of their interest. An audition is necessary before any new member is to be considered.

Registration

Dean of the College, Dean Williams, answered questions about the registration. In his remarks, he mentioned that the college inquires throughout the nation about many types of registration. With this information Dean Williams' department attempts to arrange the best system for the students. The publication of courses offered is given to aid students in selecting schedules. This publication gives our school an advantage over most other schools in registration.

Another timely subject, nationalizing fraternities, was discussed by President Edwards. This was not proposed for the present time. He said that this school now has fraternities at a fraction of the nationalized cost, and they seem to be "adequate."

The question and answer period gave The Tiger staff an invaluable chance to find out more about our school and to pass the word on to the students.

The administration wants every student to "know the facts" about any issue concerning Clemson College. They ask that any student wanting to find out about any issue ask the proper administrative official about it. They will be more than happy to explain any issue.

Danforth Foundation Encourages Graduate Fellowship Applicants

The fellowships, offered by the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Missouri, are open to male college seniors or recent graduates preparing for a career of teaching, counseling, or administrative work at the college level. Applicants may be planning to major in any field of study common to the undergraduate liberal arts and sciences curriculum, at the American graduate school of their choice, but should not have already undertaken graduate work. Nominations close October 28. Approximately 100 fellowships will be awarded to outstanding candidates nominated by Liaison Officers of accredited colleges and universities in the United States this year. Nominees will be judged on intellectual promise and personality, integrity, genuine interest in religion, and high potential for effective college teaching.

Winners will be eligible for up to four years of financial assistance, with an annual maximum of $1,500 for single men and $2,000 (as well as $500 per child) for married men, plus tuition and fees. Students without financial needs also are invited to apply. Danforth Fellows and leading scholars are guests of the Foundation at an annual conference on teaching.

There are now 472 Danforth Fellows in graduate study preparing to teach, and 267 more already teaching in some 150 colleges in this country and in 20 institutions Fellowship concurrently with other may be held for life, with certain benefits after completion of graduate study such as financial assistance to attend educational conferences.

The Danforth Foundation, one of the nation's 10 largest educational Foundations, was founded in 1927 by the late William H. Danforth, St. Louis businessman and philanthropist. The Foundation's primary aim is to strengthen higher education through its own programs of fellowships and workshops and through grants to colleges, universities and other educational agencies.

Conservative Group Holds Open Session

Clemson's Americans For Freedom, a conservative organization formed last year, will hold its first campus-wide meeting next Monday night, Oct. 1, at 7:00 P. M. in Earl Hall (Chem. Eng. bldg.). Everyone is invited to attend.
